95 Enroll to Vote On Library Budget

The Hicksville Public Library is re-submitting a revised budget in the referendum being held on Saturday, June 15, 12:00 to 10:00 P.M. There were 95 new names added to the register during the week. Elery H. Bean, the President of the Board of Trustees, is encouraged by the support shown by the many community minded citizens for the new budget.

A successful vote on June 15, will not only restore the service which was curtailed last year, Bean said, but will add four additional days of service to the public. These are Columbus Day, Veteran's Day, Election Day and Lincoln's Birthday.

The library will also be in a position to adequately increase its book collection, expand its cultural program and continue the excellent service rendered by the Bookmobile which circulates 21% of the total circulation, at about 6% of the entire budget cost.

The revised budget of $272,371.50 is $10,850.00 less than the budget submitted in May. This would be an increase of only 2.5 to 3 cents per hundred of assessed valuation over last year.

Mrs Larkin Heads Auxiliary

At the May meeting of the Auxiliary of Christian Mothers, Sister M. Venard, Principal, announced that St. Ignatius School in Hicksville has equipped each of the 28 classrooms with built in screens for overhead projectors.

At a short business meeting, Mrs. Joseph Hecker, President, expressed her thanks to the chair-ladies of the Roller Skating Party, Mrs. Joseph Rigano and Mrs. Lawrence McCaffrey, and also to the Cake Sale Chairlady, Mrs. Mary Murphy. Appreciation was given to all who helped to make these events successful.

The members welcomed Rev. Leo Goggin, former moderator, of the Auxiliary and Pastor of St. Matthew's, as special guest of the evening.

At intermission time, Rev. Lawrence F. Ballweg, Moderator, showed humorous movie projector slides to the accompaniment of a tape recording made by Father on the Auxiliary's past year.

Mrs. Robert Corcoran, Chairman of the Nominating Committee announced the annual election results as follows: President, Mrs. Frank Larkin; Vice President, Mrs. Paul Jones; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Gerald O'Connell; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Edward Korb; Treasurer, Mrs. J. David Milford.

The climax of the evening was the annual musical revue performed by members and produced by Mrs. Corcoran and committee, Mrs. Frederick Hess and Mrs. John Niederauer. The filled auditorium echoed alternately with laughter for the comedy acts and applause for the talent acts.

The final meeting of the year will include the celebration of a Holy Mass on Monday, June 13 in the church at 8 P.M. and installation of next year's officers. Refreshments will be served in the school basement.

Jericho Believes UFO Reports

Participants in the May balloting of the Meadow Brook National Bank Community Opinion Poll voted almost three to one for replacing the present electoral college method of electing the President and Vice President with a total popular vote system. At the same time they gave strong support to the idea of placing men and women on a completely equal basis legally, including those laws affecting marriage.

In Jericho, the vote was 77.3% in favor of the popular vote 16.0% against; while 56.0% voted for legal equality of men and women and 38.6% were opposed to the idea, according to Charles J. Barvels, manager of the Bank's Jericho office.

Despite the claim by auto manufacturers that May sales were adversely affected by the controversy over safety, the majority of car buyers apparently give little thought to safety features when purchasing a car. Locally 30.6% considered safety; 68.0% did not.

On the question of Unidentified Flying Objects, here in Jericho, 53.3% believe reports of U.F.O.s indicate the possibility of vehicles from another planet; 45.3% do not.

Exhibit Art At Dutch Lane School

Dutch Lane School in Hicksville took on the appearance of an Art Museum May 26, when the students presented their Annual Art Exhibition under the direction of the art teacher, Mrs. P. Mannheim. Hundreds of Works of Art in many different two and three dimensional media decorated the corridors.

Highlights of the evening included demonstrations of various projects by fifty students in the 4th, 5th, and 6th grades and an address by Byron Belt, Director of the Nassau County Office of Performing and Fine Arts. Belt indicated that consideration was being given to the establishment of a series of Children's Art Exhibits in the County Executive Building in Mineola, with Dutch Lane School as an initial exhibitor.

TOP HONORS in the Daughters of the American Revolution Junior American Citizen contest were won by St. Ignatius School students. The fourth annual awards night program was held in Vernon School, East Norwich, June 3. From the left are Claire Keough, Mary Ellen Waygant, Joseph Mirabito, Francis Drab and Virginia Peragallo. ## BBB Warns of Model Home Racket

The home improvement field continues as the number one source of inquiries and complaints to the Long Island Better Business Bureau from Nassau and Suffolk residents. Last year of the 57,000 inquiries and complaints handled by the LIBBB, 13,000 involved home improvement complaints.

"And right now," says John P. Sullivan, LIBBB Executive Director, "Nassau and Suffolk residents are being fed the 'model home' pitch by the unscrupulous fringe in the industry. Like every other hoax the public is coaxed on the 'act now and get it for next to nothing' appeal. Actually, the best acting is done by the company's salesman."

Here are the ingredients of an actual recent shopping conducted by the BBB:

Assuring the prospective customer (from the BBB) that there was no doubletalking involved in the offer he was making, the salesman explained that representatives of his firm conducted surveys of Long Island communities, choosing one or two homes in each area which they would furnish with aluminum siding at absolutely no profit for the company. The home, he explained, was to act as a model in that area in order to stimulate subsequent sales.

And sweetening the kitty, the salesman then added that for each house that is sold aluminum siding because of the model, the BBB shopper would receive a $50 commission.

When asked if it would be possible to obtain an FHA loan to finance the installation, the salesman replied, "Oh, sure, sure."

"The BBB knows from long experience," says Sullivan, "that this 'model home' offer, the $50 commission incentives and the assurance of FHA loans is the classic entree used to deceive the public. The BBB also knows that what the salesman is out to do is sign up the public to iron clad contracts at prices which are not great big bargains and are certainly not non-profit offers."

My Lad

I think of my son across the sea
So very far away from me
He left a young lad so gay and free,
But a man he'll be when he comes home to me
He's seeing sights some good, some bad
This is one reason he'll not return as a lad
Responsibilities he'll face
As he moves from land to land
His foe will help him to become a man
He'll make new friendships
Some good, some bad
Oh how quickly you'll grow up, my lad
A mother's prayer will always be
God bless him and keep him safe and free.

Pageantry in Brass

By the St. Ignatius Girls Cadet Corps

Now you may have been wondering just why the girls have called their column PAGEANTRY IN BRASS. Last year in July, they held their first marching and maneuvering contest, which was the first to be held in this area. At that time they tried to find a name which would really capture the spectacle of such a contest in its motion, color, and sound. Kall Gomez thought of the appropriate title PAGEANTRY IN BRASS, for the show is truly a pageantry accompanied by the full sound of brass. As each corps stands on the starting line they make an impressive sight in colorful uniforms with the overhead lights picking up the sparkle from the drums and chrome bugles. Then with the snap of a pistol, the pageantry unfolds as the corps smartly steps off the line. What is really wonderful is that this pageantry repeats over and over as each corps comes off the line. It reaches a climax when the host corps and all competitors come on the field as a finale when prizes are awarded. If you have never seen such a pageantry, you will want to be there to see it; if you have, you will be there.

The girls are now planning their second annual PAGEANTRY IN BRASS at 8:00 p.m., Saturday night, July 30, on St. Raphael's Angels' Field in East Meadow. In conjunction with the contest, they are publishing a program journal of ads from merchants in the area. Already several Hicksville merchants have purchased ads. The girls are selling tickets in the local neighborhoods. Why not make it a night out for the whole family? Such a show is enjoyable for people of all ages. For those who can't come but would still like to give their support for such youth activity, there will be a section in the journal for boosters. The girls and everyone working with them are striving to make this contest a success. But it can be done only with your support. All the girls hope that from reading their column you will better appreciate the work that goes into such a show on the part of each competing corps.

On Memorial Day both the Senior and the Junior Corps paraded in Bergen County, New Jersey. The Junior Corps marched from Montvale to Park Ridge. For most of the girls it was their first parade. They were 48 buglers strong with a drum section of eleven and a five girl color guard. At each town through which they marched two girls played taps for the Memorial Services. After a fine job they were invited to the Park Ridge Legion Post for refreshments. Meanwhile in Northvale the Senior Corps provided music for the marching townspeople and local veterans. The parade ended at a monument for the dead soldiers of Northvale. After impressive Memorial Services, the American Legion invited all to have hot dogs and cokes. Both corps put on a good show and represented the people of Hicksville well in New Jersey.

All the girls would like to extend their best wishes to Barbara Barolotti, a former member of the Corps, and Pat De Monaco.

EDITORIAL OPINION

The Roses Are Blooming

Those one hundred-plus rose bushes along the fence of the former Mitchel Air Force Base bordering Hempstead Tpke are beginning to bloom this week in lovely red and yellow flowers. Give them a glance as you drive by and get some comfort from the following current pledge of Robert R. Gamble, Deputy Nassau County Commissioner of Public Works, commenting upon our recent editorial on the "Mitchel Field Roses:"

"The bushes are within the right-of-way of the contemplated widening of Hempstead Tpke by New York State but the County intends to remove them prior to this widening. We have not yet decided where to replant them but your suggestion of the Patterson Home (Unlondale) certainly merits consideration.

"The main point is that we are going to preserve this beauty. It will not be bulldozered", he pledges.

Vote Yes on June 15

About six thousand plus voters of Hicksville who took the trouble to register will be eligible to vote on June 15 upon the Hicksville Public Library Budget. The trustees of the library have shaved a few dollars off their offering of last May and suggest your vote be yes this time around. We agree and feel that it is not reasonable to provide certain public library facilities in the form of buildings and then not provide the money to operate those facilities.

And Speaking of Beauty

Campaigns to beautify and clean-up have their merit and there are indications that current campaigns along these lines are starting to roll. But there are areas which seem to elude attention, such as vacant lots under absentee ownership as were pointed out to a staff member this week. The grounds of the County's Salisbury Park, particularly along Hempstead Tpke, could use the zing of a power mower and a crew of handy men armed with pointed sticks and rubbish bags.

The New York Times this week noted editorially on Monday: "Urban beauty is more than skin deep. It is the fruit of intelligent and sensitive planning, landscaping, pollution control, architectural quality and environmental design tied to human needs."

FF-1 to LEM - three decades of Company's production history

Grumman's impressive history in aviation began in a Baldwin garage 34 years ago. During the next three decades, the Grumman name was often found in aviation headlines—first for its retractable landing gear, later for world-wide production and combat records in WW II, and since that time, for significant contributions to this country's air power. Plane News is running the following chronological record, compiled by Grant Daly of Presentations, as a service to personnel who have recently joined the Company. It contains the major milestones, and some of the little known events, in the production history of the Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation.

Famed F6F Hellcat, brought into action in 1943, was tabbed one of 'hottest' fighters in WW II action. In that era, the Hellcat capped its historic record during the spectacular Marianas 'turkey shoot' when it was credited with downing 249 enemy planes. The F6F later served in atomic tests, as radio-controlled 'bombs' in Korea, and finally as target drones before being retired by the Navy in 1962.

Grumman's first order, beyond aircraft maintenance and repair work, was for eight floats (the Model 'A') for conversion of Navy Vought 'Corsair' biplanes to amphibians. An order for 15 improved floats (the Model 'B') followed. The first airplane, the XFF-1, was ordered on April 2, 1931, and delivered on Dec. 29, 1931; it was a two-seater fighter with retractable landing gear and was 20 miles an hour faster than any other Navy fighter of that time. A scout version, the XSF-1, with more range, followed on Aug. 30, 1932, and an amphibian, the XJF-1, forerunner of many 'Ducks', went out on May 4, 1933.

The Company moved from Baldwin to Valley Stream in Nov. 1931, and to Farmingdale a year later. The first production order, for 27 FF-1's was finished in Nov. 1, 1933; it was followed by an order for 27 SF-1's finished on July 12, 1934, and another for 27 JF-1 amphibians, finished on June 20, 1935. The first single-seater, the XF2F-1, with a wing span of 28 feet and a speed of 230 at 6,000 feet, went to the Navy on Oct. 18, 1933; it was the first of the little fighters that would become the Grumman trademark. An order for 55 F2F-1's followed—the last delivered on Aug. 2, 1935. On Oct. 2, 1934, the Company finished an airplane for its own use, the

GG-1; it was similar to an SP-1. Fifteen JF-2 Ducks went to the Coast Guard, and five similar JF-2's to the Navy by the end of December 1935. The XF3F-1, a slightly bigger single-seater, first flew on May 13, 1935, but it crashed two days later; a replacement, built in 21 days, was delivered on June 20, 1935. A subsequent production order for 54 F3F-1's was finished on Sept. 18, 1936. A scout-bomber, the XSBF-1, capable of delivering a 500 lb. bomb, went to the Navy on Feb. 2, 1936, and in December the first commercial Grumman, the G-22, was delivered to Major Al Williams, the show and stunt pilot of the Gulf Oil Co. This was the brightly painted and chrome-plated Gulfhawk II that was the star of the air shows and is now in the Smithsonian; it was equivalent to an F2F with F2F wings.

Meanwhile, the Duck was improved and redesignated J2F-1; 29 went to the Navy, the last on June 17, 1937. Eight G-20's, like the JF-2, were sent to Argentina in February 1937.

Grumman's first venture for the private market, the eight-place monoplane, designated G-21A and called the 'Goose', was an immediate success. The first was delivered July 3, 1937 (the Bethpage plant opened in April 1937), and production continued until 1945. The Army bought 26 (designated OA-9) in 1938, and the Navy and Coast Guard bought one for test (the XJ3P-1) and six production versions (J3P-1, -2, -3, -4, -5, -6B) in quantity.

Eighty-one F3F-2's, with a bigger engine (the Wright R-1820), followed the F3F-1's; these were finished on May 1, 1938, and were followed by 37 F3F-3's, differing in minor modifications, which were finished on May 10, 1939. In 1939, all Navy and Marine fighter squadrons were equipped with Grumman.

The Company delivered its first monoplane fighter on Dec. 23, 1937; this was the XF4F-2; after tests it was rebuilt, with more wing area, and square wing-tips, and with a more powerful engine, as the XF4F-3. It was the prototype of the famous Wildcat.

A second Gulfhawk, a two-seater, the G-32, went to Gulf Oil on May 6, 1938, and the Company finished a duplicate for its own use (the G-32A) on July 1. These were taken over by the Army later and used as fighter-ferry-pilot trainers during the war under the designation UC-103. The G-32A is still flying.

The J2F was improved; 30 J2F-2's went to the Navy by Nov. 21, 1938 and 30 J2F-3's by June 22, 1939. Delivery of the J2F-4's started on Sept. 14, 1939, and four G-15's similar to the J2F-4's were shipped to Argentina by November 1939.

The outbreak of war in Europe in September 1939 brought an order from the French Navy for 81 G-36A's; these were similar to the Navy's production F4F-3's on which delivery started in February 1940. These differed in having Wright engines in place of Pratt-Whitneys and having eight light guns instead of four .50's. France surrendered one week after the first flight of the G-36A, and the order was taken over by the British, who named the airplane 'Martlet I'. They armed the airplanes with .50's.

The XF5F-1 Skyrocket, a radically different twin-engine monoplane fighter, was first flown on April 1, 1940, and on April 15, the first of 12 flying boats (G-21B's) was crated at Floyd Bennett for delivery to Portugal. These were G-21A's without wheels and armed with two .30 cal. guns. The G-44 Widgeon, a new amphibian for the private and commercial market, a little sister to the Goose, with six seats, first flew on June 1, 1940, and sold well immediately. As the J4F-1, it was bought later by the Coast Guard. Doors for litters were installed, and it was also purchased by the Navy as the J4F-2.

The XF4F-5 and XF4F-6 were special engine installations put into regular F4F airframes in 1940. Incidentally, the first Grumman aircraft to see action were three G-36A's of the British Fleet Air Arm which shot down a German JU88 bomber over the Orkney Islands (Continued on Page 7)

FF-1 to LEM

In December 1940.

On February 18, 1941, Robert L. Hall took the XP-50 for its first flight; this was an Army interceptor, similar to the XF5F-1, with turbo-supercharged engines and tricycle landing gear. It had an excellent rate-of-climb and appeared to be a fine airplane. It was lost in May, when the pilot had to bail out after a turbine exploded and jammed the nose wheel.

The XF4F-6, an F4F with an engine change, was first flown in November 1940; it was a prototype for the F4F-3A's, of which 30 were lend-leased to Greece, to be seized by the British when Greece collapsed and to become Martlet III's. Sixty-five others went to the Navy and Marines through March, April, and May 1941; some fought the Japs at Wake Island. A second British order for 100 G-36B's, which were called Martlet II's, and had different engines and folding wings, was delivered from March 1941 to November 1942. The XF4F-4, prototype of the folding wing Wildcat, was delivered in May 1941. Production models went out from November 1941 to December 1942.

The first airplane produced in Plant 2 was the first of 144 J2F-5's (improved Ducks), delivered on July 10, 1941. The last of the J2F-5's went out on March 5, 1942. The first XTBF-1 was delivered on Aug. 1, 1941; it was powered by a Wright engine and could carry a torpedo or as heavy a bomb load as a B-17. It was the prototype for more than 9,000 Avengers which did a lot to win the Navy's part of the war that started with the Pearl Harbor attack on Dec. 7, 1941.

Builders Cooperate on Summer Jobs

The Long Island Builders Institute at 1710 Hempstead Turnpike, East Meadow, today offers its full cooperation to the N.Y. State Employment Service, Hempstead Town Youth Opportunity Council, Great Neck Youth Employment Service, and other organizations seeking to supply summer jobs for young people.

All members of the Institute, both builders and the scores of other firms and individuals which serve the construction industry on Long Island, have been asked to "make a job for youth", either full or part time this summer. In announcing the all-out effort to provide summer employment, Gerald Monter, president of the big non-profit trade association, said:

"Our members are being asked to survey their needs for all types of workers and then register the openings they have -- even for a week or two -- with one of the several agencies which will bring jobs and job-seekers together.

"The Institute itself cannot in any way accept applications from those seeking employment. The jobs our members supply will be registered with one of the following agencies, and applicants must go to these agencies: "New York State Employment Service, 261 Old Country Road, Hicksville, or the Youth Employment Service, headed by Mrs. Shirley Libby at 345 Lakeville Road, Great Neck.

Coordinate GOP Town Efforts

Oyster Bay Town Republican Chairman, Michael M. D'Auria announces the formation of a Town Legislative Campaign Coordinating Committee to "coordinate the various campaign activities of the numerous candidates running for State office."

The committee consists of John Burke of Syosset, who is the Town Republican First Vice-Chairman and an Executive Leader; Mrs. Ann Ocker of Plainview, Chairman of the Nassau Federation of Republican Women; and James Picken of Massapequa, a committeeman and Administrative Assistant to D'Auria.

D'Auria explained that under the new reapportionment plan many of the Assemblymen and State Senators are representing new areas. This coordinating group will apprise the electorals of their representatives and outline the accomplishments and future programs of the Oyster Bay Town Legislative team, he said. The committee will also develop the campaign for the November election.

Asks Industry To Pass Word

Many men working in the construction trades and other allied industries gained their experience with the Sea Bees in World War II. The Navy is now asking these men to help pass the word on the need for Sea-Bees.

With their "Can Do" motto, and their reputation for accomplishing the tough jobs, the Sea-Bees are known the world over. Now there are openings in their ranks for men with experience in the building trades. The men required to fill these openings are to be found at construction sites, union meeting halls, on the docks, company maintenance crews, and many other places. These are the men the U. S. Navy is offering petty officer ratings to if they enlist in the Sea Bees (Naval Mobil Construction Battalions).

Backing for this drive for experienced construction workers has been given by the Eleventh National Legislative Conference of the Building and Construction Trades. Additional support is being offered by other unions, construction companies, employment agencies and activities allied with the construction industry. This support from the unions marks the second time in a quarter of a century that the trades have responded vigorously to a Navy call for assistance.

The Navy emphasizes that what they are asking of these men is not a one way street. For those with a minimum of three years experience in their trade the Navy will give them the rating of third class petty officer; second class petty officer for four years experience and first class petty officer for men with seven years experience, including one year as a sub-foreman. Men up to the age of forty are eligible to enlist.

In addition to the advanced rating, two three and four year enlistments are available, plus the guarantee that those who volunteer will be working within their specialty. These men will "by pass Boot Camp" and receive a short training period at Davisville, R. I., to familiar-

LIAC Sponsors Track Meet

A gala championship track meet, featuring the outstanding high school stars of Nassau and Suffolk Counties, has been scheduled for Carle Place High School on Thursday night, June 23. The meet, to be known as the Long Island Invitation Championships, will be sponsored by the Long Island Athletic Club.

Details of the event were announced by Charles (Chuck) Storrie, president of the LIAC. Storrie said: "The Long Island Athletic Club feels there has been need of a major track meet, which would bring together the best performers of our two counties, as well as the outstanding representatives of the parochial and private schools. We are happy to be able to sponsor such an event."

A committee of prominent track coaches representing the various high school leagues and areas will issue the invitations on behalf of the Athletic Club. Only graduating high school seniors will be invited with boys who win Nassau and Suffolk County sectional crowns automatically being on the invited list.

ize them with military procedures. After completion of this course they will be assigned to one of the construction battalions where their talents will be employed. Present day Sea Bees are operating in support of U. S. Marine Corps in Viet Nam. They are building airstrips, troop encampments, roads, oil and gasoline tank farms, harbor installations, ordnance depots, storage areas and water systems. Further information can be found at the local Navy Recruiting Station at 14 W. Columbia St, Hempstead.

Termite Time For Many Homes

This is the termite problem season, reports the Better Business Bureau --- the time of year when those homeowners who noticed "flying ants" swarming around their houses in March and April might do well to have their homes inspected for termites.

Termites have an insatiable appetite for cellulose substances such as paper, leather and, unfortunately for homeowners, wood. And even a brick house or a foundation of poured concrete offers no security against infestation.

Termites, which have been found as deep as 25 feet underground, are capable of tunneling their way 20 feet or more up and through a brick wall in search of wood.

Since the public is generally unknowledgeable about termites, often confusing them with flying ants, they are easy targets for unscrupulous spray-and-run operators who promise to "take care of the termites for a quick $50." Aside from taking money for services not rendered, the "termite man" leaves the homeowner with a false sense of protection against the termites. More often than not, however, the $50 charge was for nothing anyway since the house was not infested by termites in the first place.

Insecticides used in killing household pests --- flies, mosquitoes, etc., are of no value in termite control since they cannot come in contact with termites which are deep under the ground.

Termites follow a predictable pattern. They bore their way up through the ground, construct tunnels on brick and concrete, go through the hollows of foundations, or enter through cracked surfaces until they strike wood. They then return to the ground for water.

To rid a house of termites, it is necessary to control those colonized in the ground and block off their return or entry. This cannot be done by simple spraying despite what any "termite experts" contend.

Most termite control companies report that they insert special chemicals under pressure into the ground using a minimum of one gallon per outside lineal foot, and very often additional chemicals under basement floors, thus setting up a chemical roadblock which prevents the entry of termites. To rid homes of termites which have entered through cracked foundations, it may even be necessary to bore into the block walls from either the inside or outside of the house and pressure insert the chemicals. The price is generally based on the total number of lineal feet, although basement floors of wood or wood paneled basements and recreation rooms will inevitably increase the cost, as will areas which are not easily accessible.

Other firms employ what is termed mechanical termite control methods. This may entail excavation, and use of barriers to prevent termite entry.

However, whether a firm employs the chemical treatment or the mechanical method, a person's best protection against the unscrupulous termite firm is a check on his reputation. This can be done by inquiring of friends and neighbors. Also, the Better Business Bureau will provide inquirers with a factual report on a company's record of reliability, whether it stands behind its guarantees, etc. It is similarly a sound idea to have more than one firm check the house for termites.

The BBB has prepared an informative leaflet, "Termite Control" which explains basic facts that homeowners should know about termites and termite control. ## Southern NY Drill Next Week

The 71st Annual Convention of the Southern New York Volunteer Firemen's Assn. will be held in North Bellmore on Friday and Saturday, June 17 and 18.

William G. Pokorny of Mineola, secretary of the assn. said more than 1,000 visiting firemen from the southern tier are expected to attend the two day party. They will include volunteer firemen from Rockland, Westchester, Nassau and Suffolk counties and exempt volunteer firemen from the five boroughs of the City of New York.

Hempstead Supervisor Ralph G. Caso, Assemblyman Milton

Jones and Town Councilman George Murphy will welcome the volunteer firemen at the opening session on Friday morning, June 17 at 10:00 A.M. in the Vamp's Club, North Bellmore Fire Dept.

Nassau County Fire Marshal Peter E. Lynch will be the key note speaker of the convention. He will speak on "Operation Edith" a massive fire prevention program, that will focus on the rising death toll in house fires, and encourage home fire drills. More than 90,000 children from various youth organization's in Nassau County will take part in the program scheduled for fire prevention week in October.

F. Forrest Weed of Amityville, president of the assn. said the annual memorial service will be held at 2:00 P.M., Friday afternoon. Rev. George T. Cooks, pastor of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Oceanside and chaplain of the assn. will conduct the services for deceased members.

At the afternoon session, Fowler Finch of Sidney Center, 1st vice president of the Firemen's Assn. of the State of New York will address the group. The volunteer firemen will also hear a progress report on their legislative program in the state legislature.

The business meeting will close Friday night with the election of officers and a report of committees.

On Saturday morning more than 35 racing teams will compete in a drill at the Four Towns Training Center off Merrick Road and Meadowbrook Parkway, in Merrick.

The convention will end with a huge parade on Saturday night. It will form at Oakfield Road and Jerusalem Ave. and step off at 6:30 P.M. sharp. More than 75 fire departments, 30 bands, 5,000 volunteer firemen and 275 pieces of apparatus will take part in the parade. A block party will follow at fire headquarters on Newbridge Road, North Bellmore.

Offer Advice For Fishermen

It has been said, "Caution is a most valuable asset in fishing, especially if you're the fish." But caution is also important to the fisherman, according to Howard E. Camp, Jr., Red Cross Eastern Area Safety Services Director.

The careless fisherman can wind up "lifeless as a string of dead fish," said Camp, recalling G.K. Chesterton's vivid phrase. To avoid this situation he recommends these safety tips to anglers:

Be prepared before you cast that first line --- know how to swim, know basic first aid techniques, and take along first aid and snake bite kits. Discuss with your physician the advisability of tetanus shot.

Listen to the weather forecast so you can dress warmly --- or coolly enough, and take along sunglasses, sunburn ointment, or insect repellent if necessary.

This personal equipment should be supplemented by an assortment of fishing gear, including needleless pliers, wire cutters, and a pocket knife.

Keep all fishing tackle, lures and/or hooks in a covered container when not in use.

Let someone know where you plan to fish and approximately when you will return. Better yet, take a friend along.

Always be on the alert for swimmers, SCUBA and skin divers or water skiers who may be near your fishing area.

Anglers should not go barefoot. Broken glass, nails, or other debris can injure your feet. Or you might slip on a fish and cut your foot on its fins. Don waders or some type thick soled boots, not soft-soled shoes which are vulnerable to sharp objects too.

Will the real Derounian please stand up?

DEROUNIAN #1

In 1964, Derounian proclaimed himself in his own paid ads a "conservative."

DEROUNIAN #2

Today—without repudiating a single past vote or past statement—Derounian opportunistically calls himself a "middle-of-the-roader," even a "liberal."

DEROUNIAN #1

In 1963, Derounian, as reported by the New York Times, sponsored a secret meeting for the Conservative Party leaders to make a pitch to New York Republican congressmen.

DEROUNIAN #2

Today—although Derounian claims he'd not accept Conservative Party support—the Conservative Party just last week asked special permission to delay its choice until after June 28. Conservative Chairman, Richard Coons, last month let the cat out of the bag when he said, "There is no one else we would put in the same category as Stephen Derounian... His posture in Congress has indicated to us that he is pretty much philosophically allied with Conservative Party thinking."

DEROUNIAN #1

In 1962, Derounian went to California to speak for John Roussetol, now Executive Director of the John Birch Society. Derounian claimed Roussetol's Birch activity was "irrelevant" to membership in the United States Congress.

DEROUNIAN #2

Today, Derounian remains shadowy on what the Republican Party attitude should be toward the John Birch Society. When asked his position in late December, he evaded the reporter by saying "I am just a Roslyn committeeman." But a little later, he wired the House Un-American Activities Committee asking them to investigate the true nature of the Birch Society.

Is it that he still isn't sure about the Birch Society, or is it that he'd like to have his cake and eat it too?
