Hicksville GOP Club Changes Location of Meetings

Starting with the next meeting, which will be held on Friday evening August 9th, the Ernest F. Francke Republican club of Hicksville will hold their regular monthly meetings at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall - Wm. M. Gouse Jr. Post No. 3211, located at 320 South Broadway in Hicksville. The hall is just south of the Firestone Store and north of the H.I.P. Building. All meetings during the summer months will be at 9:00 p.m. on Friday. The guest speakers for the August 9th meeting will be State Senator Ralph Marino, Assemblyman Joseph Reilly and Assemblymen Stuart Levine.

Committeeman Sam Weiss is home from a stay at the Glen Cove Community Hospital.

HHS Art At Library

The display area at the main desk of the Hicksville Public Library has an outstanding art exhibit running now through the end of August. These sketches, silk-screens, water colors and bas-reliefs were done by two very talented Hicksville High School students, Christine Zounek, who will be a senior this year and Chad Greensberg, a coming Junior.

Hicksville residents should be very proud of the results obtained by the High School Art department. These two young artists are a fine example of the work achieved by the Art teachers of the district.

Come to the library and see what young people can produce with enthusiasm and imagination.

JOSEPH ASSANTE: of Hicksville is pictured receiving the congratulations of Congressman Norman Lent, who has appointed the Hicksville high School graduate to the United States Merchant Marine Academy.

Joe, who was Vice President of his Senior Class and active in both Varsity Basketball and Soccer here, has now reported to the Kings Point campus. He is the son of Mr. & Mrs. Joseph Assante of Fifth Street in Hicksville.

School Starts September 3

BY SHIRLEY SMITH

In order to be more in line with the BOCES calendar and those of other Nassau school districts, the Hicksville Board of Education changed some closings in the 1974-75 school year. Originally, June 30 was scheduled to be the last day school day, but regents have been moved up so June 23 will now be the final day. This move required that five extra school days be added somewhere during the year as follows:

1. The first day of school will begin in the afternoon Tuesday, September 3 (rather than Wednesday morning, as usual-teacher orientation will still be Tuesday morning)
2. Although students will not attend a Superintendent's Conference Day--this is an additional conference day
3. School will be open for all students and personnel Thursday and Friday, January 2 and 3 (it was originally scheduled to be closed the days)
4. School will also be open Friday, May 9 (the day after Ascension Day--there will still be a Superintendent's Conference Day on Thursday, May 8, but students will not be in school then).

The board unanimously approved the calendar changes, which have also met with the approval of the Hicksville Congress of Teachers.

In Mr. Pirrung's absence, Mrs. Iris Wolfson, vice-president, presided at Wednesday night's meeting. She read into the minutes a telegram from the State Education Department which stated Hicksville may not provide summer transportation for the handicapped. This affirms the action the board had already taken in cancelling the program when the second budget was defeated and the district had to go on austerity.

The school board approved a federally-funded drug abuse program and appointed Michael Ellegaard as the counselor in charge of the program. Mr. Ellegaard worked as a group leader in the program last year. The board also approved the appointment of department representatives in the Junior and Senior High Schools.

The next public school board meeting will be Wednesday, August 14 at 8 p.m. in the Administration Building. The Board will be meeting July 31 (not a public session) to discuss the possibility of a third budget vote.

NEXT STOP--BROADWAY: It was "Sixth Grade Drama Night" at the Willet Avenue School on Thursday, June 6, at 7:30. The audience of over one hundred was very enthusiastic as they watched four one act plays: Shirley Holmes and the F.B.I., The Trial of Ain't, Red Riding Hood and Friends, and The Three Swine of Most Small Stature.

Every sixth grade student participated under the direction of Mrs. Doris Phillips and Mr. Richard Leuci, sixth grade teachers.

BLOOD DONORS MONTH: Nassau County Executive, Ralph G. Case, presents a Proclamation proclaiming the month of August Blood Donors Month, to John Butler, Director for the Greater New York Blood Bank for Long Island. Looking on is Nassau County Deputy Commissioner for the Department of General Services, Andrew S. Pitts who also serves as Nassau County BAND (Blood for Nassau Departments) Chairman.

New Officers For Greater Plainview Community Association

A thirteen member Executive Board, headed by new president Paul Eisenstein, has been elected to lead the Greater Plainview Community Association during the 1974-1975 year. Other new officers will be vice president Elaine Zaremsky, secretary Mike Polansky and treasurer Rose-Marie Lopez.

Mr. Eisenstein expressed confidence that the coming year would be a banner year for

GPCA. "The fact that wide-spread community interest has enabled us to expand the Executive Board from 7 to 13 members indicates the kind of year we can expect," he observed. "We have exciting plans and, more significantly, the kind of support from the people of Plainview that we need to implement those plans."

In addition to the officers, Elaine Sandler will chair the Membership Committee, Barbara Goldstein will chair the Beautification Committee and former GPCA president Carole Fishman will serve as chairperson of the Town Affairs Committee. Other members of the new Executive Board are Diane Damiano, Helen Carbello, Eric Ullman, Bernard Snyder, Martin Shulman, Dr. Murray Rosenberg and Homer Polonides.

Flag On The Play, Jets Property to be Taxed

The Nassau County Board of Assessors ruled July 24, that the property presently being leased from Hofstra University by the New York Football Jets would be assessed and placed on the county tax roll, according to Board Chairman Abe Seldin.

"Under the law any property that is not being used exclusively for educational purposes cannot receive an exemption," stated Seldin. "This parcel of land is being utilized by a profit-making corporation and hence must be taxed."

The 6.31 acre training facility, leased from Hofstra, is located directly east of the main campus on the north side of Hempstead Turnpike. The permanent training camp for the Jets will include a main building, parking lot and two football fields.

The Board's decision is supported by the legal opinion rendered last week by Nassau County Attorney, John O'Shaughnessy. In that statement O'Shaughnessy indicated that the property should be removed from the exempt rolls, since according to the lease the Jets were to have the "primary" use of the facility.

"Although we have no exact figures at the present time, the projected $750,000 cost of the facility should produce approximately $50,000 per year in tax revenue," stated Seldin. I am sure that the Jets want to be good neighbors and pay their fair share of property taxes."

Form Large Health Testing Center

The largest multiphasic health testing organization in the East was formed this month when Medi-screening Centers, Inc., of Syosset, became part of The American Health Corporation, a Manhattan based health services group created by six leading U.S. corporations in 1972.

Control Data Corporation, Eastman Kodak Company, The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, Norton Simon, Inc., Time, Inc. and Bradford Computer & Systems, Inc., are the corporations which launched The American Health Corporation. Their stated aim: to make efficient and cost-effective health services readily available to growing numbers of Americans.

The key has been multiphasic health testing, a relatively new, but fast growing component in modern health care. Multiphasic testing cuts the time and cost of comprehensive medical examinations, making them practical for large segments of the population. Medical problems may be detected and treated at their earliest stages, when treatment is simplest, and cure rates the highest.

With Medi-screening, The American Health Corporation now has two facilities offering multiphasic health testing in the New York area. Medi-screening is near Long Island's population center, at 175 Jericho Turnpike, in Syosset. It has been serving Long Islanders and others for over five years. The Health Maintenance Center is in midtown Manhattan, at the corner of Avenue of the Americas and 56th Street.

At both centers, the patient fills out a detailed medical history form in advance of the examination. During the examination, he or she receives a battery of significant tests: electrocardiogram, glaucoma evaluation, vision, hearing, pap smear for women, and chest x-ray are just some. A physician rounds out the testing with a complete physical examination, and a detailed report of the findings is prepared. All this is done in one center, in one brief visit, and at significant savings.

Alcoholism Grant to Create Rehabilitation Unit

County Executive Ralph G. Caso announced today a federal award of $846,538 - Nassau's largest alcoholism grant - to the Department of Drug and Alcohol Addiction for creation of the first free inpatient alcoholism rehabilitation unit for county residents.

"This grant represents more than money for an essential service," Caso said. "It also represents recognition by the federal government of the leadership role Nassau County has taken in providing rehabilitation services for this burgeoning social problem."

The three-year grant from the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism provides $250,835 for the first year, $279,418 in the second and $316,285 in the third. Over the life of the federal grant, the county will contribute the facility and maintenance and supportive and back-up services.

The three-year grant from the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism provides $250,835 for the first year, $279,418 in the second and $316,285 in the third. Over the life of the federal grant, the county will contribute the facility and maintenance and supportive and back-up services.

The department's Alcoholism Rehabilitation Unit, the first of its kind in New York State outside a state hospital, will open in the fall. Commissioner Harold E. Adams said. The unit is expected to service 300 male and female Nassau patients a year in a four-to-eight week program.

The program will include individual counseling, group therapy, lecture discussion sessions, occupational and recreational therapy and vocational services.

For the patient's family, the department provides free counseling, educational lectures and group therapy and recommends involvement with Al-Anon and Alateen, organizations which assist families of alcoholics.

"This newest program addition," Adams said, "will bridge the gap in county services between our seven-day alcohol detoxification unit and our six-month job-oriented halfway facility, Recovery House." Previously, people in need of continuing inpatient treatment had to be sent out-of-county, to Central Islip or Pilgrim State Hospitals.

Appropriate patients will enter the new rehabilitation unit directly following detoxification or after 48 hours free of alcohol. Referrals are expected to come from the Department of Drug and Alcohol Addiction and from other county programs, hospitals and service agencies. In addition, the planned program will be the only one of its kind in the metropolitan area to accept suitable court referrals. All other programs accept only voluntary admissions.

Before discharging a person from the rehabilitation unit, the staff will make arrangements for transfer to the next phase of rehabilitation, either the department's alcoholism after-care therapy program or Recovery House; find sponsorship into AA, and encourage membership in an "alumni association."

Report Shows Counties As Major Art Patrons

New York State's county governments constitute a significant source of arts funding, according to a recently issued report of the New York State Council on the Arts.

Entitled "County Funding of the Arts in New York State," the report surveyed the state's 57 counties outside New York City and found that at least 44 counties, or over 77 percent, collectively provide millions of dollars a year for music, dance, theatre, visual arts, television, museums, historical societies and libraries.

Although the Council itself does not consider the basic function of libraries as within its responsibility, library funding was included in the report because the public views libraries as "culture" closely related to the arts. On occasion, the Council has funded art events or special exhibits within libraries, but does not fund the basic library expenses such as book purchases or librarian salaries. If, general, state monies to libraries come from the State Education Department.

"The many arts funding programs conducted by the counties are of very great interest to the Council," noted Eric Larrabee, executive director of NYSCA. "We have always tried to explore new sources of revenues for arts groups, and we hope the information in the report will encourage a continuation and enlargement of the county programs. Perhaps it also isn't out of place to hope that the arts groups themselves will draw encouragement from this report in their own efforts to obtain a share of county monies."

The report was prepared by Nathan Weber of the Council's Arts Resources division.

Washington Report

Congressman
NORMAN F. LENT
5th District New York

The United States Supreme Court's decision last week, reversing a lower court ruling in the Detroit area, should have been greeted with cheers by suburban Long Island parents, teachers and kids.

By a vote of 5 to 4, the highest Court in the land set aside a decision by a federal District Court Judge in Michigan which had mandated the cross-busing of students between the schools in Detroit's inner-city and fifty-three suburban school districts in three surrounding counties. In doing so, the Court has, temporarily at least, laid to rest further attempts by lesser federal judges to destroy the "neighborhood school" concept by obliterating local school district lines.

Had the Supreme Court's decision gone the other way, it would have been but a matter of time before litigation would have been instituted, in local federal courts, based on the "Detroit Plan", to force children in Nassau and Suffolk Counties onto buses bound for distant schools in Brooklyn and/or Queens. In the event you might feel that outlook to be exaggerated, by the way, the "Detroit Plan" found faulty by the Court last week involved the busing of some 780,000 children for one-way distances of up to thirty miles in search of elusive "balance".

Notwithstanding the ruling, I will continue to press for passage of my Constitutional Amendment to bar the assignment of youngsters to schools on the basis of race color or creed. History has demonstrated that a 5-4 decision is too precarious a ruling to rest upon, and the amendment's adoption would declare with greater finality that vehicles other than a school must be implemented to insure equal educational opportunity for all of our Nation's young people. The proven ineffectiveness of busing for racial balance, coupled with its resulting upheaval of family life; disintegration of local school systems and added burden on the shoulders of already hard-pressed taxpayers, made for compelling arguments against the "Detroit Plan" and others like it.

The Supreme Court decision will not alter existing or future plans for school busing with city and/or school district lines, and leaves open the option for challenge in instances where deliberate discrimination can be proved. Neither of those possibilities would appear imminently disrupting here in Nassau, and again, the Court's decision is one to be welcomed.

Roncallo Reports

By Congressman ANGELO D. RONCALLO

The House of Representatives will soon consider a reorganization plan aimed at restructuring the committee system as it now exists.

I oppose this reorganization for many different reasons which I'd like to discuss with you.

First of all, under both reorganization plans currently up for debate, several committees, important committees with important areas of jurisdiction, would be done away with or stripped down. Much of the work done by these committees would be reassigned to other existing committees most of which are already swamped with work.

The Internal Security Committee would be abolished completely and the powers transferred to either the Judiciary or Government Operations Committees—major committees whose members and staffs are overloaded with other assignments from the Congress. Internal Security has been an important watchdog committee and its dissolution would seriously weaken our ability to investigate and control real and potential threats to our internal security. Their work can't afford to sit on a back burner somewhere else.

The Post Office and Civil Service Committee which regulates legislation affecting these two major sectors of the American workforce would be wiped out under one plan and seriously watered down under the other. In my opinion, it takes a certain amount of time to develop the background to understand this area. I'd hate to see that expertise both on the part of the members and the committee staff go down the drain. Many people have written me opposing this particular part of reorganization.

Finally, certain subcommittees such as the Small Business Subcommittee of Banking and Currency would be abolished and its responsibilities transferred to another "select" committee which might then be upgraded in power and responsibility. I think this is backward. I currently serve on this particular subcommittee and I know it would be shortsighted indeed to stop the initiative and good record of accomplishment which this subcommittee has accrued just in the name of "reorganization."

I am the first one to admit that some practices of the Congress need streamlining. However, I don't favor change just for change's sake. If we can't improve on the present system, I think it should be left intact.

Supervisor JOHN W. BURKE REPORTS

The recent publicity on the tick problem in Suffolk County has prompted a number of phone calls to my office regarding the situation in the Town of Oyster Bay.

I have been in contact with Dr. Robert Niebling, Deputy Commissioner of the Nassau County Department of Health, and Dr. Donald Nathan, Director of Epidemiology for the department. They informed me that, although Nassau does not have the tick population nor the number of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever cases as Suffolk, Nassau residents should still be very cautious, particularly in wooded or brush areas. The North Shore area of Nassau County, including Oyster Bay Town, has been identified as an area where ticks are particularly prevalent.

Nassau County's Anti-Tick Program does not include any spraying operations with diazinon or any other pesticide. Dr. Niebling pointed out how careful one must be in the use of any toxic material with respect to its potential effect on animal or human life. He cited the tragic death of the twenty Canadian geese in Lake Success that resulted from the ingestion of diazinon which had been sprayed on the grass on which they fed.

The Department of Health recommended a number of preventive steps for control of the tick population.

Keep grass closely cut and remove any brush from areas through which people or pets may pass. Areas of tall grass or brush should be avoided.

If children or pets are exposed to such areas, a careful examination of their bodies, particularly hidden areas such as the ears, scalp and body creases, should be made.

Ticks should be removed with tweezers, being sure that the biting parts are also removed. Sometimes a small heat source, such as a lit cigarette, placed

Bicycle Safety "First"

New York State is in the process of restructuring its written driver's license exam and the accompanying learner's manual to include questions concerning Bicycle Safety. The adoption of this proposal by State Sen. Norman J. Levy, a "first" for the State, stems from the urging of the Merrick Republican.

Levy, hailed as New York State's "Bicycle Safety Pioneer" when former Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller signed into law his package of bills establishing strict comprehensive Bicycle Safety Visibility standards and requiring bike safety to be taught in every school in the State; presented his proposal to State Motor Vehicles Commissioner Arnold R. Fischer.

"I reminded Fischer that New York State is in the forefront in providing bicycle safety standards and while the learner's manual mentions bike safety in passing, there are no questions about this important area on the written exam," explained Levy.

The south shore lawmaker said he received notification from Fischer that the State Motor Vehicles Department "is now reviewing material in the driver's manual and designing questions on bicycle safety, which, when completed and validated, will be added to the (written driver's test) question bank."

In conjunction with the new exam, a learner's manual is being revised which will include visual examples of bicycle safety for motorists.

"Biking is quickly becoming our second national pastime," continued Levy. "From kids at the park to suburban commuters at the station, 100 million of us are pedaling for fun, for the environment, for fitness, and maybe to cut down on expensive gas consumption. The Bicycle Institute of America reports that 13.3 million bikes were sold last year, while 1,060 died from bike accidents and injuries."

"While our State's new laws are setting a nationwide pattern for bike safety, true safety can only be achieved through a common mutual respect between motorist and bicyclist. Both must practice common sense rules of the road."

Solution To Energy Crisis... How About Windmills?

Reaching into the past to solve problems of the energy crisis, Nassau Energy Coordinator, Francis E. O'Connor, will meet with a panel of experts to explore a proposal to construct windmills as a source of power.

Following that meeting, O'Connor will ask Chief Deputy County Executive, Thomas G. DeVivo to convene a meeting of the County's Energy Crisis Committee on the Economy, which DeVivo heads.

"At present, there are no major technical barriers to preclude the use of prevailing winds to produce electric power in substantial amounts," O'Connor stated.

O'Connor's first move will be to call together experts from Grumman Aerospace, Princeton University, University of Massachusetts and Polytechnic Institute of New York to discuss a pilot project which would provide power to operate the Bay Park and Wantagh water pollution control plants.

The O'Connor proposal calls for the construction of wind-powered generators on land or at sea where the wind velocity is sufficient to provide almost constant power. The two plants in the proposal now consume approximately $500,000 worth of fuel per year in addition to digester gas which is a by-product of sewerage treatment. O'Connor wants to try the use of windpower to produce 60 per cent of the power requirements at both plants.

According to O'Connor, there are federal funds available to assist the County in the project.

Road Striping Efficiency Increased

Road-stripping efficiency of the Department of Public Works has increased by almost seven fold during the first year of operation of its specially-designed, high-output "Super Striper". Public Works Commissioner H. John Plock, Jr. disclosed today.

An analysis by the Traffic Engineering Division showed that the $100,000 machine with its three man crew painted 110,000 feet per day as compared to conventional hand-strippers also with three man crews which averaged 16,000 feet per day and Jeep-mounted machines with 5 man crews which do 34,000 feet per day. In addition, the cost of paint was reduced 20 percent through purchase of larger drums and a less-expensive type better suited to the "Super-Striper".

The "Super-Striper" paints center and lane lines with preheated, quick-drying paint at the rate of eight to ten miles per hour. The quick drying eliminates the use of cones that must be dropped off and then picked up under conventional methods at speeds of one to four miles per hour.

"Under the old methods, productivity was sharply limited by such factors as the 30-minute drying time of the paint, the limited paint capacity of the hand-operated machines and the loading and unloading of the machines from the trucks that transported them", Plock said.

"Now three men accomplish what formerly required 21. This has enabled us to assign men to work on the thousands of crosswalk locations, which still require the small hand-operated machines, while decreasing the total number of men on paint crews through normal attrition."

Plock said "Director of Traffic Engineering Paul Sterb and his staff have made a real contribution to County Executive's productivity program."

Heart Association Dinner

The Nassau Heart Association's Annual Meeting and Awards Dinner will be held on October 17, 1974 at the New Hyde Park Inn, Mrs. Clinton G. Martin, Chairman of the Awards Committee, announced today. "This evening," Mrs. Martin said, "will be dedicated to all of our devoted volunteers who have given so unstintingly of their time, talents, support and services throughout the year." "Their efforts," she added, "have made possible a continuing effort to reduce the death and disability of heart disease and prolong human life."

All are invited to join the Nassau Heart Association in honoring these outstanding volunteers. Reservations can be made by calling 741-5522.

Social Security Question Box

QUES: I recently hired a gardener on a part-time basis. The first day he came to work for me, he told me he didn't want me to report his wages for social security. Doesn't the law say I have to do this?

ANS: If you pay your gardener $50 or more in cash during a 3-month calendar quarter, the law requires you to report the earnings and send in the social security contributions. If you don't send in the contributions within a month after the quarter ends, you may have to pay the full amount due plus a penalty later. In addition, your gardener will be missing out on social security credit toward retirement, survivors, disability, and Medicare protection for himself and his family.

QUES: I am 68, and the only income I have is my social security benefit of $94 a month. I was going to apply for supplemental security income payments, but a friend told me I probably can't get them because I have a son living across town who can afford to help support me. Is this true?

ANS: You may be eligible for monthly supplemental security income payments, regardless of your son's income. You should call or write any social security office for information about applying for payments.

Hearings To Study High-Rise Fire Safety

"Every high-rise building in our state represents a potential tomb for hundreds and in some cases, thousands of people," State Senator Norman J. Levy of Merrick, chairman of the New York Senate Labor Committee, said in announcing the Committee's first in a series of statewide public hearings on "Fire Safety in High Rise Office and Apartment Buildings."

"The height and size of the building often makes complete evacuation impossible, while seriously limiting the ability of firemen to battle fires," Levy continued.

The hearings are scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. on August 8 and 9, at Rm. 5890, Tower Two, World Trade Center, New York City.

Levy said the committee's prime interest is in protecting the lives and safety of employees and residents in high-rise buildings and this is why the issue is being studied by the Senate Standing Committee on Labor.

He said the hearings will study characteristics and hazards which are unique to high-rise fires causing potential danger to the building's inhabitants. They will also study problems inherent in fighting high-rise fires, high-rise building characteristics which create potential fire hazards, and jurisdiction of enforcement power, as well as the determination of the applicability of fire safety laws to high-rises owned and operated by state, local and bi-state agencies.

"An alarming fact is that in some instances, it is the newer high-rises with their air conditioned units and sealed windows which present the greatest dangers. The committee hearings are not only directed to what standards should be applied to the construction of future high-rises, but what changes, if any,

are necessary in existing buildings," stated Levy.

Among the key witnesses scheduled to testify at the New York City hearings are high ranking representatives of the New York City Fire Department, N.Y.C. Building Department, Federal Government's General Services Administration, N.Y.C. Uniformed Firefighters Association (will demonstrate protective equipment used by NYC firemen while battling high-rise fires), the 1971 Mayor's Advisory Committee on Fire Safety in High-Rise Buildings; and other representatives of high-rise construction and elevator companies, etc.

Levy said persons wishing to testify at the hearings, which are open to the public, should contact the Senate Labor Committee at (518) 472-2397 in Albany, or (516) 766-7472 in Nassau County.

"King and His Court"

The Town of Hempstead Department of Parks and Recreation announces the return of the famed Eddie Feigner and his 4-man softball team, "King and His Court," to play at Merrick Road Park in Merrick, Thursday, August 8 at 9 p.m.

Feigner, reputed to throw a softball at 104 m.p.h., faster than the great Bob Feller's 94.5 m.p.h. fastball, uses 19 different pitching deliveries, and can even pitch blindfolded from second base, and strike batters out.

The King and His Court will be out to revenge their loss to the Recreation "All-Stars" by a score of 9-5, two years ago.

Through the 1973 season, spanning 27 years of softball competition, Eddie Feigner has pitched in 5130 games with a record of 4300-690-150. At one point in his career, Feigner won 187 games in a row. He has recorded 85, 101 strikeouts, and has pitched 716 no-hitters.

Forget-Me-Not Ball, Oct. 19

The 22nd Annual Forget-Me-Not Ball will be held Oct. 19 at Colonie Hill, Hauppauge, with society's Lester Lanin and his orchestra providing the evening's music. The gala, a fund raiser for the Nassau Cerebral Palsy Association's famed Center for Living, Roosevelt, traditionally is the kick-off event of Long Island's social season.

DR. and Mrs. Jack W. McElwain of Syosset—general chairmen of the affair—report a "King's ransom" in prizes to be awarded during the evening's festivities. The largesse includes a 1975 Vega Hatchback Coupe, color and black and white TV sets, jewelry, a countiure dress from Italy, intimate items by Playtex, appliances by Hoover, paintings, prime tickets to various sporting events throughout the year at the Nassau Veterans Coliseum, a case of champagne, flying lessons — even an ice cream maker, ice bucket and electric shaver. For the sporting soul, popular "winner-take-all" tables

Caso Calls On EPA To Set Energy Standards

Nassau County Executive Ralph G. Caso will call on the Federal Environmental Protection Agency to develop minimum performance standards for motor vehicles, home heating furnaces and other energy-using consumer products.

"We have to close the gap between industry's technological capability and its products," Caso said. "If the Federal government will set the standards and fix the dates when they must be met, industry can double the efficiency of the automobile engine and boost the performance of heating systems." He added that space heating systems account for 15 per cent of all air pollution emissions in Nassau County.

This is one of a series of environmental proposals Caso has prepared for presentation tomorrow at a meeting in Washington, D.C. with Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Russell Train and other local government officials from across the country.

Other proposals Caso intends to present include:

- + Reorganizing into one agency the federal machinery for regulating the energy industry and conducting energy research. Also, upgrading the Environmental Protection Agency to full cabinet-level status to guarantee that essential environmental considerations will not be overridden in the drive to solve energy problems;

- + Federal subsidies for lateral sewer construction, especially in areas like Long Island where ground water has to be protected and where the costs of additional sewers impose a heavy tax burden;

- + Amending the unfair trade practices section of the Federal Trade Commission Act to compel manufacturers to label all energy-using products to show annual average energy consumption, efficiency, life expectancy of the product and average annual operating costs;

- + Banning non-returnable beverage containers nationwide.

In Caso's opinion, regional or county laws banning non-returnable containers would not be effective. He said that non-returnable beverage containers are the most rapidly increasing component of municipal garbage, accounting for seven per cent of all household and commercial waste and for up to 75 per cent of all litter across the country.

Although praising EPA for its technical assistance to local governments, Caso urged the agency to speed up its procedures for processing local applications for funds under federal environmental protection programs. He said the value of federal grants for specific projects is sometimes canceled out by rapidly increasing construction costs.

Caso pointed out that a continuous flow of information from EPA, couched in laymen's terms, would prevent the public from being misled into believing that various experimental programs are instant panaceas for environmental problems.

"Sometimes the public thinks that local government officials are dragging their feet when, in fact, their own technical advisors are cautioning them that various programs are far from being perfected," Caso said. "EPA could eliminate some of the needless frictions by launching a public information program that would tell the public and local officials where various projects stand, how long it will be before prototype systems are ready and how long it will be before the systems are fully tested and ready for use."

Caso also will call on the EPA to develop maximum permissible noise levels for consumer products like motor vehicles, air conditioning units and power lawn mowers. In addition, the county executive wants the EPA to take over the regulation of jet noise control from the Federal Aviation Administration.

He said that local governments should have the final say on decisions to permit electric generating plants to revert to using coal.

Caso is participating in tomorrow's meeting as the chief executive of Nassau County, chairman of the National Association of Counties' Water Quality Committee and a member of NACo's Energy and Environment Steering Committee.

Other local government participants are Mayor Wesley C. Uhlman of Seattle, Washington; Mayor Joan Heggen of Tallahassee, Florida; Mayor John Hutchinson of Charleston, West Virginia; Mayor Fred Hoffenitz of Houston, Texas; Supervisor James Hayes of Los Angeles County, California; Chairperson Jean Packard of Fairfax County, Virginia, and Councilman Lynwood Roberts of Duval County, Florida.

Marino Law Being Readied For Action

State Senator Ralph J. Marino, author of a new "open records policy for government, commended Governor Wilson for naming four distinguished members to the committee that will shape the law's effectiveness starting September 1.

The Syosset Republican explained that the new members will merge efforts with three public officials to draw guidelines to fulfill the intent of the Taylor-Marino Freedom of Information Law. Those guidelines will set up standards for state and local agencies which must comply with citizens requests for government documents, regardless of the nature of their interest.

Formerly, citizens often had to go to court and prove they had a legitimate interest in sensitive documents before being given access to them. Despite this, many records remained sealed, notably those of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority and the power Commission. These records must now be made available.

"In defining membership for the Committee," said Marino, "I required that two members be present or former representatives of the media. Governor Wilson has more than complied with that requirement. Three of the appointees meet that standard, assuring that the public interest will be served."

The appointees are Gilbert P. Smith, executive editor of two Utica newspapers, T. Elmer Bogardus, publisher of three upstate newspapers, Elie Abel of Sag Harbor, Dean of the Columbia University School of Journalism and award-winning TV and New York Times correspondent, and Robert Sweet, former Deputy Mayor of N. Y. C. and former assistant U. S. Attorney.
