WE TELEGRAPH AND DELIVER FLOWERS

If a storm hits:

Here's what we are doing:

- Long before a major storm hits Long Island we set up a storm watch with national and regional weather bureaus. We alert our 5,400 men and women of the possible need for them to turn from their regular jobs to emergency restoration duties for which they have been previously trained.
- As the storm becomes imminent, we dispatch specially trained survey teams to some 150 power substations throughout the island. They provide immediate eye-witness appraisal of damage so that we can deploy repair crews quickly and efficiently without waiting for calls from customers.
- At the same time we start manning expanded, round-the-clock telephone answering service to take customer calls. If the storm is particularly severe we call in service personnel from neighboring utilities.
- During the storm we issue bulletins to local radio and press on repair progress so that you will know which areas are the worst hit and how long service in your area is likely to be out.

Please remember that restoration of power must be based on priorities. General health and security facilities, such as hospitals, fire and police departments require first attention. Repairs then proceed on returning electric service to the greatest number of consumers in the shortest possible time.

What you should do:

- Make sure you have a battery operated radio available to keep in touch with events in case electric service is interrupted.
- Keep on hand a flashlight and candles. Kerosene and oil lamps might also be kept on hand.
- Draw water in sufficient quantity in tubs and other receptacles in case water service is interrupted.
- Don't open your refrigerator or freezer any more than you must. This will help avoid spoilage of food.
- Most important of all, don't touch or try to fix fallen wires. This is a job for LILCO experts. Notify LILCO, the police or fire department as soon as possible of any fallen wires on your street.

LILCO: "Nuclear Energy Best"

The overwhelming economic benefit to LILCO customers of installing nuclear fueled electric generating capacity rather than oil or coal alternatives in the 1980's is clearly demonstrated in a report issued by the Long Island Lighting Company. The report, entitled "Generation for the 1980's" will be the subject of cross-examination this week at

New York State hearings on LILCO's application to build two 1,150 MW nuclear units near Jampson.

The LILCO study examines two specific subjects: the economics of nuclear vs. fossil fuel generation; and the economics of installing nuclear units as presently scheduled (one unit in 1982 and the second in 1984) as opposed to delaying installation until absolutely needed for system reliability.

During the 19-year period 1982 through 2000, the report reveals, capital and production costs for oil units, sized comparably to LILCO's proposed Jampson nuclear units, would cost LILCO customers $5.28 billion more than the nuclear units; comparable coal plants would require $5.72 billion more.

The study takes into account the expected increase in the cost of nuclear fuel after the first six to eight years of operation as a result of expiration of very favorable commitments LILCO now has. Even with a 50 percent increase in nuclear fuel price, there would be no adverse effect on the substantial economic superiority of the nuclear plants.

The need for installing the Jampson plants as scheduled is based on economic reasons (i.e., cost savings to LILCO customers), as well as for system reliability reasons. A one-year delay in Unit 2 alone would cost

Dedicate New Work Release Facility

County Executive Ralph G. Caso officially dedicated the pioneer Work Release Facility at the Nassau County Correctional Center on Monday.

Built with a first-of-its-kind grant from the federal government, the $1,290,000 facility is a "hallmark in the field of penology," according to Caso.

The Work Release Facility is a fenced complex just north of the Correctional Center on Carman Avenue in East Meadow. It contains 11 buildings which include eight units to house inmates on the work release program and three buildings for administrative and support services.

The facility can house 96 men and women on a two-acre site.

The work release program was instituted in Nassau six years ago. The program is limited to inmates serving time for misdemeanor offenses who are admitted after detailed screening and interviews. The system permits approved persons to leave the center each work day, perform their job and return to the center at night. Each one on work release helps pay for his own keep and is allowed to send the remainder of his salary to his family or to bank it against the day of release.

Work release has been hampered over the years by a lack of adequate facilities at the Correctional Center. State law requires that inmates on work release be housed separately from all others at the center. A converted carpentry shop has been used to date, strictly limiting participation of work release inmates in the counseling, rehabilitative and vocational services available and deemed necessary.

"It is our firm and proven belief this program can help a person regain self-respect, which in essence is the core of true rehabilitation," Caso said.

The last of the furnishing will be moved into the facility next week and inmate-participants will move in over the weekend of Sept. 13 and 14 in order not to interrupt their employment schedules.

SHIELDS CIRCUS: sits on Senator James Buckley's lap at the Annual Shield Circus in Levittown. Joining D'Amato and the others is Nassau County Comptroller M. Hallstead. The Nassau County volunteer organization sponsors the Circus Vargas each year for the benefit of handicapped children.

Benefit Bike-A-Thon

Four Long Island health-care institutions will benefit from a mammoth 30-mile Bike-A-Thon on September 14 between Levittown and Jones Beach. Specifically, the funds will go for children's care.

Riders of all ages are invited to participate by picking up applications at any of the seven McDonald's Restaurants that are serving as checkpoints during the event: 3039 Hempstead Turnpike in Levittown; 2361 Hempstead Turnpike in East Meadow; 1050 Front Street in Uniondale; 490 Peninsula Boulevard in Hempstead; 1255 Grand Avenue in Baldwin; 1813 Merrick Road in Merrick; and 1946 Wantagh Avenue in Wantagh.

The Bike-A-Thon will start at 9 a.m. on Sunday, September 14. The total distance is 30 miles but riders may start at any of the checkpoints along the route and be credited for the mileage they achieve. Prizes will be given both on the basis of high mileage plus sponsorship and by drawing at the end of the event.

The money raised from the Bike-A-Thon will be divided among the Long Island Jewish Children's Hospital, the children's section of the Nassau County Medical Center in East Meadow, St. Francis Hospital in Roslyn and the cerebral palsy patients at the Nassau County Center for Living in Roosevelt.

Top prizes donated by the owner operators of the McDonald's Restaurants involved are 10-speed bicycles, one from each participating McDonald's location. In addition, McDonald's is donating an Orange Bowl to serve beverages to thirty riders at each checkpoint. The owner operators of the McDonald's Restaurants supporting the Bike-A-Thon are Thomas Crane and Frank Carey, Kidder-Hunt Corporation, Roosevelt Strorman and W. & K. Management.

This year's Bike-A-Thon is a project of VOW, a Wantagh civic organization. Joan Kern is executive director.

In addition, about 15-20 of the Saffron Kilts Dancers, Division 2, Hibernian Dancers under the direction of Maureen Stein, will perform the jig, the reel, and figure dancing.

The Gardens are beautiful at this time of year, dressed in their Autumn colors. Blooming at this time are chrysanthemums of many new and old varieties, dahlias, cimicifuga and other perennials, plus the bedding and border annuals. Come early and stroll through the gardens, and

by Marcia Yeates

For a few moments at Monday's Board of Supervisors meeting, sparks were flying again in what has already become a heated feud between Democratic candidate for Hempstead Presiding Supervisor Matthew Bonora and Hempstead Town Supervisor Al D'Amato and his running mate, Presiding Supervisor Francis Purcell, who had left Monday's meeting early.

Brandishing a photograph showing Purcell's and D'Amato's county-owned automobiles outside a political gathering at Lido Beach on Sunday, Bonora charged that the two had been using the county cars, county gas and county employees (their chauffeurs) for partisan political campaigning. When D'Amato refused to answer questions about the use of the cars, Bonora angrily demanded an answer. Losing his temper, D'Amato screamed "Who the hell do you think you are?"

County Executive Ralph Caso quickly intervened in the shouting match and order was restored as Bonora continued his charges against the town supervisors, urging the County Executive to "call a halt to these activities."

The angry exchange followed a routine meeting at which, as expected, the Board approved a proposal to hire Hempstead architect William Keen Johnke to draw up plans and specifications for construction of a fire station at Mitchell Field. The move was protested by Carl Schmitt of Oceanside, a perennial purling watcher at Supervisors' meetings, on the grounds that it would be too costly.

County Executive Caso defended the construction, saying it would not be a "grandiose facility". The plans call for a 2 level building to be built on a concrete slab over a sump on Hempstead Turnpike. It will serve the Mitchell Field area which contains the Coliseum and Nassau Community College, with future structures still in the planning stages. The area is served by the Uniondale Fire District.

Supervisor Hannah Komanoff of Long Beach suggested that the various segments of the fire station proposal be put up for bidding separately so that essential facilities could be built and any additional items be delayed.

In emergency action, the Board approved extending the lease for the Black History Museum in Hempstead. They also voted to continue paying a portion of college fees for undergraduate Nassau residents who attend City University, but discontinued payment for graduate students.

The newly-imposed restriction on speakers limiting them to five minutes of speaking time kept the Board's usual gaffes from prolonging the meeting with long lists of complaints.

The next Board meeting will be on October 6. This brought charges of "part-time supervisors" from Board critics present.

Registration is open 7 days a week, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the park's Administration Building.

Dear Friends...

A SPECIAL PARKING DISTRICT for the Hicksville G-1 area, to be paid for by the G-1 property owners, has twice been requested by the Town of Oyster Bay and twice rejected in Albany, where it must be OK'd, according to TOB Supervisor John Burke. We are not experts on parking, but it would seem that if such a district came into being and was paid for only by the G-1 property owners, then said parking should only be available for those shopping in this area, and not those from all over the Island who use the Hicksville Railroad Station for commuting purposes.

We are not so naive as to think that the distortion of figures in governmental budgets is something new. But it is always confusing. For example, big headlines in "our" daily states that Suffolk County will end this year with a large budget surplus, BUT (and it is a big but) in the second paragraph of the same article it states, "however, it is not yet possible to predict whether there will be a tax increase next year ..." or could this type of budget twisting and headline grabbing be done at this particular time, in another attempt to show that a county legislature would save us money ... as the French say, "it is to laugh" ... ask any of your friends who live in Suffolk and pay taxes there. A county legislature is just another layer of government, which in our opinion we do not need now or at any time ... in fact we believe that one of our main governmental problems is too much government on all levels. We simply cannot afford any more ... and in fact we could use a great deal less in many areas. However, if the Courts do not rule against them, the Nassau County Board of Supervisors will place both forms of county government on the ballot this November. Then you and I, if we are registered, can decide which we want. Both forms will be constitutional and then it will be up to us. Are you registered?

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Please allow me to respond to Mrs. Name Withheld. Upon Request's letter of Sept. 4th. Her letter was designed to "enlighten me." She has missed my meaning which is simply that our public schools must be supported publicly by all of us, even those of us who do not have children attending them. By the same token, I readily pay social security which is used for payment to senior citizens. It is my belief that we must ALL contribute to both of these (schools and social service programs) for our common good as a caring populace.

Sincerely,
Neil Shapiro

To the Editor:

Oyster Bay fared very well on a recent sale offering $9.13 million in long-term, public improvement bonds.

The award was made to a Bankers Trust Company syndicate, the lowest of four bidders, at a net interest rate of 7.23 percent.

New York City's devastating fiscal crisis ... and a virtual glutting of the bond market with the so-called "Big Mac" issues - has depressed the market throughout New York State and has driven interest rates to unprecedented highs.

Recent examples of the effects of these circumstances are seen in the ability of the State Dormitory Authority to sell only $9 million of a $35 million offering, and the failure of the City of Buffalo to receive even a single bid on a bond sale proposed by its sewer authority.

Despite the effects the City's crisis is having in other areas of the State, continued investor confidence in our Town government has reflected the vital importance of Oyster Bay's stable credit rating and conservative fiscal policies.

We intend to maintain a responsible economic framework despite a recent recommendation by the State Comptroller that would put guess work into estimating revenues and expenditures in the adoption of Town budgets.

The State seems to feel that in July we should be able to determine how much we will not have spent six months later, and that we depend on that guess as definite revenue for the following year.

I have no intention of allowing this Town to unnecessarily count on having money that it actually does not have.

It might be safe for someone not directly responsible for this Town's fiscal management to suggest additional guess work, but, when I adopt a budget for the next year, I prefer to base the revenue column on as much fact and as little estimate as possible.

I will continue to use a fiscally conservative approach in budget preparation. It is better for a municipality to end a year with surplus revenue THAT IS ALWAYS INCLUDED IN A FUTURE BUDGET than to find itself out of money in September because it guessed wrong the previous year.

John W. Burke
TOB Supervisor

Hearing To Restrict Airports

The Town Board has set a public hearing date of October 7th to consider a proposal that would ban airports in four major zoning categories throughout the Town.

The proposal, if enacted, would amend Oyster Bay's Building Zone Ordinance to prohibit general airport use in residence "R", business "B" and "G" and industrial "H" zones.

The contemplated zoning change would affect the intention of the Grumman Corporation to expand the operation of its production-related airstrip for general commercial use. The corporation's land is zoned "H".

Since Grumman first announced its intention open a general aviation airport, attorneys for the Town and Grumman have had several exchanges of legal opinion on the necessity of the corporation to come before the Town Board. "While Grumman has shown some willingness to compromise, we feel that any action less than a public hearing before the Town Board would not be affording residents the full protection of the law," Supervisor John Burke indicated.

Agreeing with Burke on the Town's position, Councilman Salvatore Mosca, a resident of Bethpage, claimed that the proposed amendment of the Town Ordinance should eliminate further questions concerning the Town's authority. "The ordinance change to be considered would remove any doubts regarding the steps the corporation or anyone planning to open an airport would have to take," Mosca pointed out. "If enacted, this proposal would specifically require any applicant to seek a change of zone from this Town Board before initiating general airstrip use within the Town."

IT IS SAD ... to see the old Riedlinger service station demolished, it was certainly a Hicksville landmark for many years ... but it is now giving way to an Arthur Treachers Fish and Chips ... however, the Riedlinger Car Towing business still continues from the large garage on the rear of the property ...

AND THAT'S ABOUT IT ... in a nutshell ...

Burke: "Hopeful Signs For Downtown Hicksville"

Spotlighting a Nassau Industrial Development Agency and signs of upward movement in the economy, Oyster Bay Town Supervisor John W. Burke recently expressed the belief that the potential for downtown Hicksville will begin to become a reality.

Speaking at a luncheon sponsored by the Hicksville Chamber of Commerce, Burke told leaders of the business community that the long recognized potential of downtown Hicksville as a major suburban hub is beginning to see the possibility for realizing its capacity.

The Supervisor pointed to "the cars, the commuters, the road system and the railroad, not as intolerable conditions but rather as evidence of conditions precedent to the nurturing of an intense interest in the area." This view, Burke demonstrated, is one that has been held by the major planning agencies that have carefully examined this central area.

Pointing to Hicksville's 300-year history as having "its moments of grandeur and periods of decline," Burke said that "potential" is the one character the community has been "uniformly held to have." Its potential for development as an office building center has been recognized and advocated by Bi-County, Nassau County and Town planners and by the Town Board, according to Burke.

He pointed to the 1971 enactment by the Town Board of the G-1 (Office Building) Zone as major step leading towards Hicksville achieving its potential. "The G-1 enactment...has not only stopped the inexorable march of neon and plastic establishments that grace many another hamlet but also has produced a major 150,000 sq. ft. building which, according to recent and reliable information, will be occupied in its entirety by a major banking institution. In the same vein, preliminary plans have been under review for a second G-1 office structure of some 40,000 sq. ft.," Burke announced.

He reminded his audience that planners estimates indicate a major need for office space on Long Island. Burke referred to a Bi-county estimate for a need of up to 20 million sq. ft. by 1985 with an indication that 1.5 million sq. ft. should be in downtown Hicksville. He noted that Hicksville had not fallen into the trap of some areas which had plunged headlong into construction "creating a supply which a recession-affected demand could not absorb."

"Now the stagnation of some three-and-a-half years show signs of abating...thus we may hope that the Hicksville capacity...may begin to be realized," Burke said.

The Supervisor then added a major ingredient for optimism for the Downtown area. "Within the past month the County received approval," Burke said, "of its special legislation to organize a development agency...that can provide some mechanism to trigger needed commercial or industrial stimulation at the local municipal level." Nassau's Industrial Development Agency, which should be formed within the next 30 days, may well provide the key to unlock part or all of the downtown area.

He further indicated that the "new Nassau County agency will have the capacity to overcome the obstructions in Hicksville of truncated lots and diverse ownerships and to effect quality development."

Burke did warn, however, that the new agency "is not a panacea. It performs no miracles and comes with no ironclad guarantees." He noted that demand for space would effect the agency in the same manner as it would private developers. But "On balance, it can work," Burke declared.

He then concluded by calling on the Chamber of Commerce to join the Town in working to transform Hicksville's potential into a reality. He noted that there are some areas where it is necessary for the Chamber to generate public opinion that will bring about necessary actions for "the redevelopment that will inevitably come to Hicksville's central business district."

One area particularly noted by the Supervisor is the need for special State legislation to allow the creation of a special benefit parking district in the G-1 Zone. This legislation has been twice requested by the Town and twice rejected in Albany. If approved, it would allow for the creation of parking facilities for the G-1 area to be paid for the G-1 property owners.

Donovan Proposes Special Easements

At a luncheon sponsored by the Hicksville Chamber of Commerce last Tuesday, Judge F. Donovan, as one of the guest speakers, suggested that "the town acquire a special use easement in vacant land for beautification purposes. The easement would expire when the landowner obtained a building permit for actual construction." "The cost of obtaining such a special use easement should not be great," Donovan continued, "The landowner will lose no substantial use of his property since he is not prevented from developing it. After having obtained such easements, the town could plant grass, trees, and shrubs and promote gardening projects among its citizens. This is, of course, a stop-gap measure, but it will give us in Hicksville a bit of beauty and pleasure and restore some of the pride that we once had in our down town community."

"There are other problems pressing; housing for our older citizens, housing for our children and young marrieds. Propositions advanced in Hicksville for these or any other community needs should be devised and proposed with the assistance and the guidance of the community of Hicksville, for the benefit of its own residents. This ultimately means that there will be a need for initiative in the

Vamps Meet To Settle Dispute

By EX-CAPT. OWEN MAGEE

Hicksville F.D. Labor Day Parade & Drill Official Chiefs met with Racing Team officials over the past weekend to settle the dispute which ended the 47th Labor Day Fire Tournament before the last two contests were completed. At the meeting it was ruled that the Drill is over. No winner was declared.

Hicksville Vamps made known their feelings about ending the Drill, witnessed by nearly 8,500 paying visitors before it was finished. Drill officials agreed that new rules were needed to prevent a re-occurrence. The dispute started when an electric timing device malfunctioned. The teams demanded a re-run. The officials denied the request.

The officers and members of the Hicksville F.D. wish to thank all its supporters, the trophy donors,

ANGER
Not all murders are behind bars. Even churches are behind bars. We all know that those who kill bodies are subject to punishment by law. Yet Jesus tells us that it is just as much an act of murder to lash out at someone with our tongue as with our hands. A tongue can destroy lives and reputations as effectively as a tornado can wreck a town. While destruction is accomplished in minutes, restoration often takes years. Without mincing words, Jesus says that a lashing tongue can lead us to everlasting hell. Control your anger! You have no right to dump it on anyone... without subtly or blatantly. Every human being that casts his shadow upon this earth is a child of God... included in the category of the human race are also parents, brothers, sisters, wives, husbands, children and neighbors. The blood of Jesus Christ ran freely for each of these people. We have no right to destroy someone whom God has declared precious by His Son's sacrifice.

Throughout the Bible we are warned to control our temper. Only in instances of injustice are we permitted to show anger. We can be angry over one man's unjustness to another. The Greek word behind the term for "anger" in the New Testament is the word "orgy." Taken from the realm of nature it suggests a superabundant swelling of sap and vigor, thrusting and upsurging in nature. It connotes an impulsiveness to be found in man.

As impulsive as anger might be, it can be controlled. St. Paul says to the church at Ephesus, "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamor, and evil-speaking be put away from you, with all malice." God does not command that which is impossible to achieve. Yet to control our anger we must first believe that it can be controlled and then seek God's help in controlling it. We can control anger through the powerful presence of Jesus Christ in our lives. Christ can help us defuse our anger before we blow. He can even change us from a beast into a teddy bear. We must first want the change to take place, then seek it, and before long with God's help, we'll have it.

and special thanks to Fire Dept. surgeon Dr. Malasky of Hicksville for working at the Tournament with the Rescue Squads of Hicksville, Bethpage and Plainview; and thanks to photographer William Shirmer.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported lace and organza. The matron of Honor, Laura Stefanelli, the brides sister, wore blue organza. The Bridesmaids, Luann Radazo, Mary Ellen Weiss, Barbara Picari, and Renee Radazo, wore yellow organza and carried a mixture of summer flowers.

Gus Pisano was Best Man for his brother. Ushers included Michael Hannah, John Falbo, Joseph Stefanelli, and Leonard Pisano, Jr.

Vietnamese Family In Hicksville

Members of Redeemer Lutheran Church of Hicksville are awaiting the arrival of Doan Khim, his wife Doan Mau Thi and their 13 year old daughter Doan Tuget Thi, the Vietnamese family the congregation of the Lutheran Church in America. Rev. Theodore S. Grant is the pastor.

The Doan family are expected to arrive within the next week. Arrangements for sponsoring the family were made through the Department of Immigration and Refugee Service of the Lutheran Council in the USA. The council is comprised of all the major Lutheran churches and has had much experience in resettling refugees.

It is one of four church-related agencies chosen by the U.S. Government to assist in the resettlement program. In July LCUSA reported that more than 1200 families from Viet Nam and Cambodia have been sponsored by Lutheran congregations and an equal number of sponsors was expected in August.
