Oyster Bay And N.Y. State Reach Agreement On Old Bethpage Landfill

On July 20 Town of Oyster Bay and New York State officials announced an agreement for an extensive investiga-tion of possible toxic chemical contamination of ground-water in the area between the Old Bethpage municipal land-fill and the public drinking water supply wells of the Village of Farmingdale. This investigation will involve a series of exploratory borings and groundwater monitoring wells designed to safeguard nearby drinking water supplies by locating any contaminants seeping from the landfill. The Town estimates that this Off-Site Groundwater Monitoring Program will cost approximately one million dollars. The firm of Geraghty and Miller, of Syosset, consulting groundthe of deraginy and whiler of systex consulting global water geologists and hydrologists, who are among the fore-most authorities in this field in the Country, have designed this program, They are employed by the Town of Oyster Bay and it is through their findings that just this week the groundwater quality under the Old Bethpage landfill showed that the contamination problem is much less severe the artificiant of the antimination does not an under this than anticipated. The contamination does not go under this landfill as deep as had been expected originally. Earlier shallow wells on the landfill showed some degree of pollushallow were on the failed in shower such degree of point tion but when a set of wells were such down to between 100 to 2000 feet below the landfill there was no significant amount of contamination, spokespersons for the firm of Geraghty and Miller said. In fact they testified that at this depth under the landfill the water was pure enough to meet NY State's drinking water standards. Apparently the upper pollution is moving slowly south of the landfill but it is separated from the deep drinking wells to the south by impenetrable layers of clay.

However, under this new agreement, which was approved by U.S. District Court Judge Charles P. Sifton, further off-site testing will be done.

This agreement also provides that, based on the investiga-tion results, the Town will recommend a course of remedial action for the landfill and any nearby areas which may be threatened by toxic chemicals. The Town has also agreed to perform all cleanup work at the site required by Federal and State law, as well as by any applicable regulations. This includes control of mightane gas, which has been found throughout the landfill and its environs.

Lawsuit This consent order arose out of a lawsuit filed by the Attorney General's office last December against the Town of Oyster Bay and several corporations, including the Occiden-tal Chemical Corp (formerly Mooker Chemical of Hicks-ville): Cerro Conduit Co., Inc. (formerly Cerro-Wire of Syoset) and Grumman Corp of Bethpage. (Continued on Pone 2)

The suit, filed in Federal Court in the Eastern District on Dec. 9, 1983, alleges that the Town and the corporate defendants are liable under the Federal Superfund Act as well as under various state laws for creating, maintaining and failing to correct the existing environmental problems at the landfill. These problems include the existence of vinvi chloride, toluene, xylenes, benzene, alloride, iron, manga-nese, zinc and other organic and inorganic chemicals in the groundwater beneath the landfill, Although their existence to any degree seem at present to be limited. The corporate defendants--- Occidental. Cerro and Grumman ---- have refused to participate financially in the Off-Site Groundwater Monitoring Program provided for in the consent order. Further legal action will be taken against the consent order. Further regaraction win be taken against these defendants, according to a spokesperson for the office of the NY State Attorney General. The Town of Oyster Bay is represented in these matters by its attorney. Robert W. Schmitt, Esq. The matters are being handled for the State DEC by John Greenthal, Director of the Division of Environmental Enforcement, and Michael Tone and Louis Evans, attorneys in that Division. Technical personnel of both the State Dept of Law and the State Dept of Environmental Conservation will oversee the implemen-tation of the investigative program of the Off-Site Groundwater Monitoring Programs as it is presently called. Litiga-tion and negotiations for the Attorney General of the State of New York are being handled by Assistant Attorneys General Robert Osar and James Periconi, under the supervision of James Sevinsky. Chief of the Environmental Protection Bureau.

To Sum Up Mr. David Miller, a principal in Geraghty and Miller, Inc. said that the most recent findings have been sent to NY State officials and should help the Town's case for building the proposed resource recovery plant which is planned for this

Under the newly-agreed upon Off-Site Groundwater Monitoring Programs new wells will be drilled south of the landfill to see if the pollution has moved. This will be done in six locations. The results, and a plan to correct whatever problems do exist, will be given by the Town to the State. Of course, if pollution is limited and shallow it will be much less expensive to correct, experts stated.

directly to obtain postal information. Hicksville Postmaster Anthony M. Murello reports that the new computerized phone system will replace the switch-board system which has been in use at the Hicksville Post Office for many years. "I know our customers will be pleased as I am with the quicker access to our many postal depart-ments. The modular phone system benefits our office by reducing repair and maintenance cost, and lowering costs for additions, move and changes while stabilizing equipment costs for future cost effective expansion," said the nostmaster.

As a sectional center, Hicksville received many calls from all over Long Island and other parts of the country. The increased volume of calls is no problem for the system which is designed to utilize the latest advances in phone technology said Nora Stanlord of Northern Telecom, who installed the system

A Report to LILCO Customers

During the work stoppage by LILCO union employees, Company management personnel are prepared to maintain safe and reliable gas and electric service to customers. The Company's 1,465 supervisory and other non-union employees are trained to keep LILCO's gas and electric facilities in operation and to perform all essential services.

While customers can continue to expect dependable LILCO service, some non-emergency work may be delayed during the strike period.

emergency, customers can call the emergency telephone number on their bills or the LILCO emergency number listed in the telephone directory. These emergency numbers will be operational 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. LILCO personnel will respond to emergency calls. LILCO crews will respond to non-emergency service calls as the crews become available. LILCO will advise callers of possible delays.

Billing-Customer billing will continue on the regular schedule. LILCO will bill based upon a household's energy consumption for the same period last year. When a previous record does not exist, an estimate will be provided. As in the past, any needed adjustments will be made in the billing following the first actual meter reading.

Area Offices-All of the Customer Relations Offices on LILCO property will remain open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. to respond to inquiries; the most pressing of these will be given priority. The office telephone numbers are listed on the customer's bill.

The offices in Babylon, Port Jefferson, and Huntington, which are located in shopping centers, will be closed. Customers that generally do business with these offices can call their office and a recorded message will give customers the location and telephone number of the nearest office that can assist

Payments-Customers are encouraged to use the return envelopes enclosed with their statements to make payments. Customers who usually patronize offices that are closed can make payment at the following locations: Babylon - Bank of Babylon, 48 Deer Park Avenue; Port Jefferson - Chemical Bank, 228 East Main Street; and Huntington - Long Island Trust Company, 1850 New York Avenue or Chemical Bank, Route 110.

New Service-

Existing Facilities: If a customer is moving to or from a house with an existing g and/or electric service, the customer should contact the nearest Customer Relations office to initiate or terminate service.

Installation Required: New Business offices will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. to provide assistance to customers and builders for installation of electric and gas service that is currently under application. For other new service requests, the customer or builder should make an application in person at LILCO's Marketing offices in Hauppauge or Garden City where LILCO will discuss general requirements and provide cost estimates for the job.

Contractors-Individuals responsible for excavations on public or private property should continue to comply with the "One call procedure" mandated by New York State law and advise LILCO. LILCO will continue to identify and mark underground electric and gas facilities.

Energy Audits-The loan applications already filed under the Energy Audit Program and State Energy Conservation Bank Program will be completed. No new applications will be accepted during this period.

The LILCO employees on the job will do all they can to minimize inconvenience to customers. We appreciate your understanding and cooperation.

Road Runner Profile: Bruce Canner

Bruce Canner is a prime example of what the running and physical fitness boom is all about

When Bruce started running nearly eight years ago, he weighed 195 pounds and could barely make it around the East Birchwood block where he lived. After three years of determined effort, he was running 70 miles a week and his weight was down to 150 pounds.

At age 27. Bruce is now putting in some top performances, including a super 2 hour, 58 minute finish in the 1982 Marine Corps Marathon in Washington, D.C. and a 37:06 finish in the

The highlight of the evening was the installation of the 1984-86 Executive Offic-ers. Judge Marie Santagata introduced each of the incoming officers giving a history of their achievehistory of their achieve-ments both in the community and at the Center and read them the oath of office. The new officers are as follows: President, Judith Beckman: Executive Vice President, Harriet Kolber; Membershin Fileer Membership, Eileen Mul-vey; Programs, Carol Rudman; Treasurer, Barbara Caligiure; and Secretary, Patricia Gindhart.

Newly installed President, Judy Beckman, commended the outgoing officers, directed by 1982-84 Presi-dent, Audrey Jones, on their long list of achievements which included establishing the Madeleine Gardner Memorial Scholarship, a Member Benefits Directory and on increasing the Cen-ter's membership to over 400 business and professional women.

The installment was fol-lowed by a champagne toast to the success of the new to the success of the new officers and to the coming years of continued growth and strategic programming beneficial to Long Island's cross-section of women in business. In keeping with the progressive tone of the even-ing, Dr. Brenda Lukeman, noted clinical psychologist, philosopher, author and philosopher, author and playwright, followed up these events with a presentation on "New Ways of View-ing Ourselves" exploring ing Ourselves" exploring how to let go of the past and
