State Forces Oyster Bay To Ship Garbage Long Distance

The July 31 decision of the State Commissioner of Environmental Conservation, denying the 1982 Town of Oyster Bay application for a temporary extension of the Town's only landfill, is in keeping with the course of action initiated by the DEC policy makers last October. At that time they ignored the recommendations of their own experts and apparently decided that the answer to Oyster Bay's refuse disposal needs is long distance shipping rather than resource recovery. Long distance shipping is neither environmentally sane or economically intelligent. It certainly isn't reliable and it's very expensive.

"Since last October we have been fighting to prevent the Governor and the DEC administrators from attempting to force Oyster Bay to ship its residents' waste to landfills in other states," Supervisor Joseph Colby said. "By successfully blocking the State from implementing such an irresponsible policy, we saved Town residents $70,000 per day or approximately $16 million over a nine-month period."

"But," Colby added, "this arbitrary denial by the DEC Commissioner leaves us no choice but to close the Old Bethpage landfill and attempt to ship our residents' garbage. The money that we were able to save through our vigorous legal defense against this irresponsible State policy will now have to be spent trying to implement the State demand for long distance hauling of waste. It is the only method the DEC decisions leave us, if we are to make sure that garbage is not left on Town streets later this year."

Colby noted that Governor Cuomo's televised comments earlier this year made it obvious that the decision on the Town application to temporarily extend the landfill until a resource recovery plant could be constructed would be based on partisan politics, not facts. "There is no doubt the Long Island landfill law provides for a temporary landfill extension while Long Island towns attempt to build resource recovery facilities," Colby said. "The law recognized this need, and DEC engineers found the Town's plan technically sufficient, but partisan politics affected the Governor who publicly stated during the permit hearings that he directed his appointees to do all in their power to prevent the temporary extension. The DEC Commissioner, an appointee of the Governor, has obviously carried out that direction."

During the nine months that the Town has fought to prevent the State from forcing the expenditure of $70,000 per day to ship refuse, Town personnel utilized every legitimate alternative. "While our attorney sought to legally overcome the State's pro-shipment pressure, our engineers sought ways to continue disposal operations until the temporary extension permits would be granted," Colby said.

After the State turned down an earlier request to permit landfilling to a higher elevation -- a request that was recommended for approval by DEC engineers in Albany and on Long Island -- the Town reexamined its existing landfill permit.

Since the permit stated that the "final" elevation of the landfill could not exceed 240 feet above sea level (about 120 feet above ground) and since it is a known fact that refuse settles after being landfilled, the Town continued landfill operations above the "final" elevation. When this operation foiled State efforts to force costly and unreliable shipping, the State brought charges against the Town seeking $100,000 in penalties.

"While we have been in the process of demonstrating that the charges were wrongfully brought," Colby said, "the State has made it clear that it will accept no solution other than long distance shipping of waste."

The Town will attempt to initiate a shipping plan and is currently attempting to finalize bids in order to seek a contact that will comply with the State demand for shipping.

It is estimated that it will take from 3 to 6 months to implement the necessary bidding procedures and to build a transfer station at the site. This station and the bids must also be ok'd by the DEC. Then, and only then, can the expensive procedure of shipping the TOB garbage begin. One has also to bear in mind that initial costs to do this, as expensive as they are, will certainly not go down. It goes without question that the TOB will be helpless to refuse to pay all future raises in charges to ship this garbage out-of-state.

"If the State administration had followed the intent of the Legislature, a safe, DEC-approved temporary extension would have been constructed in the ground long ago and the DEC would have assisted this Town in implementing a resource recovery plant rather than working to implement policy to force Long Island to ship its waste," Colby said.

Bestman and Gray received $1,230.00 and $1,973.40 (Continued on Page 8)

On July 24 Nassau County District Attorney Denis Dillon announced the arrests of Sundai Bestman and Evita Gray on four counts of Grand Larceny. Bestman, 35, and Gray, 32, of 180 East 18th Street in Brooklyn are married and are accused of submitting fraudulent student loan applications to the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company in Hicksville, claiming they were U.S. citizens, when in fact they are Liberian natives and thus ineligible for the student loans.

According to Dillon, "The couple entered the U.S. in 1974 on non-resident student visas. Both applied for extension of their student visas after one year and were turned down, however both remained in this country. In September of 1980, both filed student loan applications with the Manufacturers Hanover Trust. Bestman for a student loan

COMMUNAL CEREMONIES

Anthropologists study the customs, institutions, and practices of primitive peoples. Their work not only adds to the store of human knowledge, it can also have important implications for those living in modern society.

While the death rite of most primitive peoples would be unacceptable in communities in this country, we can see how their ceremonies serve much the same purpose as our own funeral services. Just as marriages, births, coming of age were celebrated by the community, so was death. It was not an event for one person, or even one family, to take on alone.

Expressing grief, sharing grief, somehow helped the mourners to accept their loss. They could feel the support of the community, see that others respected and identified with their experience. The primitive funeral rite also sought to dispel the horror and fear of death, to give it significance with respect to life.

Galileo Lodge News

By Joe Lorenzo

PRESIDENT PETE MASSIELLO'S MESSAGE: "Hope is the thing with feathers that perches in the soul." Emily Dickinson

It's called getting your act together, and this exactly what the Galileo Lodge does. Especially so in these critical financial and social times. It has to survive, and it has to conquer insurmountable odds to stay alive. It has to be as strong as it is sound. It has to have stability. It has to be fit. So how does the Galileo do this, well, simply by having a diligent and loyal membership, male as well as female. One way in which the Galileo Lodge survives is its adherence to a very astute policy, and that is to offer the most in enjoyment and pleasure for the least amount of money to its members, friends and patrons. Obviously it does this, as the results can attest to.

From its obvious terminology, Membership Appreciation Nights are exactly what the name implies. The Galileo Lodge, in acknowledgement of the loyalty, devotion of its membership (male and female), gratuitously offers finely-cooked food, refreshments, unlimited liquor, coffee and cake, music and its own form of camaraderie and appreciation to these members. Last Thursday night was no exception, as everything was just terrific. Over 100 members and their families enjoyed themselves to the hilt. President Pete Massiello and Skip Monteforte made short, impromptu speeches about appreciation and how we, redundant as it may seem, should appreciate appreciation and conversely, of course. Bowling trophies were awarded to Marie Prudenti, Dolores Look and Terry Gatto. And on this night the Louise E. Massiello Scholarship Awards were handed out, and they were as follows: Patricia Ann Melluso, Frank Gatto, Nancy Giacanto, Ann Certo and Kim Romano. All of these terrific students are college-bound offspring of the members of the Galileo Lodge. Kathy Jonassen received a Galileo Lodge award for excellence in Italian studies. Armand Del Cioppo received a trophy for bowling also. State President Nick Viglietti gave a meaningful and poignant speech about education and its importance to our lives, and especially to people of Italian extraction. The Galileo Lodge is very proud and honored to be able to award these scholarships, I might add.

The Ladies Auxiliary proudly announces that on Saturday, the 28th of September, it will present its 11th Annual Anniversary Dance. Tickets will cost a very reasonable $25 per person, and in the offering will be a Smorgasbord-type dinner, beer, soda, coffee and cake, unlimited liquor and continuous music for your listening and dancing pleasure. Rose Riccardi will 'chair' this activity, ably assisted by co-Chairladies Terry Gatto and Rachel Saiano. Tickets will be available at the Galileo Lodge every Wednesday night, starting at 8:00 P.M. to 10:00 P.M. Or call Terry at 433-6708, Rose at 681-0966. The Lodge number is 931-9351. The Ladies Auxiliary, as you all well know by now, firmly believes in the old but appropriate axiom that if you can't do anything right, then don't do it at all. Needless to say that they do everything well.

Don't forget next Saturday, for that is the night for the Galileo Lodge's Italian Wedding Dance. So for a howling good time, with excellent food, dancing and the little parody that is part of this activity, you can't afford to miss this unusual dance. Call 931-9351, there might be more tickets available. And don't forget the Galileo Lodge picnic set for Sunday, the 11th of August at Eisenhower Park.

LODGE TIDBITS:

The excellent-prepared food at the Membership Appreciation Night last Thursday was concocted by Pat Gatto, Al Montello, Joe Crivelli, Bert Molinelli, the Bartender, Dom Valente and John Payne. A terrific job, as usual. Other trophies presented that night were received by Skip Monteforte, Joe Morace, Jim Posillico and Rocco Lombardo. These were for golfing excellence.

At The Town Board Meeting

By Geraldine Geannikis

On Tuesday, July 30th, the Town of Oyster Bay held a regular town Board meeting at Town Hall, Audrey Ave., Oyster Bay. The following issues were acted upon:

Decision was reserved on the petition of Richard and Thomas Notoy and Ethly

Is your house more valuable than your spouse?

Which is more valuable? Your spouse of course. Yet which is insured for replacement value? With today's two-income families, it makes sense to protect the financial human life values — the earning abilities — of both wage earners with insurance from Aid Association for Lutherans.

Marketing Corp. for a change of zone from Res. D to Bus. F at Old Country Rd. and Plainview Rd., Plainview. The developers, who are very flexible about the type of building that is constructed, wish to build one large building and two free standing buildings for the purpose of retail stores.

Doctors who are in the process of building a medical building in the same area expressed their concern for the traffic congestion generated by these developments.

The area will be studied for traffic patterns and an additional traffic light may be requested from the county for this area to be paid for by the developers.

Decision was reserved on the petition of Joseph Sorok, William Stewart and Old Country Car Service, Ltd. for a special use permit in a Bus. G Dist. and in an Ind. H Dist., to construct, maintain and use premises on Old Country Rd. East of Broadway, Hicksville, as a Subaru Automobile Dealership and automobile repair shop.

Local business men expressed their approval for the special use permit since the dealership, which has outgrown its present facility on W. John St., has a good reputation. They also felt that this would be an improvement to the area.

The dealership already has a site plan and could start construction as soon as they have the approval of the town.

Decision was reserved

CREATIVE FINANCING

Helping the buyer buy with advantageous loans — called creative financing — has been an important part of the real estate picture in recent years especially when mortgage money was tight or rates extra-high. Small wonder that the Internal Revenue Service has gotten involved.

Under current regulations, sellers offering financing must charge buyers at least 9 percent interest, or the IRS will impute a 10 percent rate, and assume that the seller is making that much on his investment. Current rules are expected to stand pat at least until Sept. 1, but changes are possible after that.

If you're planning to sell, it might be wise to sell NOW, while these regulations hold. We don't know what will come later when tax laws are overhauled.

To sell promptly, with minimal delays and problems take advantage of the know-how and experience of our real estate professionals. You'll get expert marketing service and up-to-the-minute information when you list with:

Boat Show

Due to exhibitor demand, the Marine Trades Association has announced the allocation of more land and water space than ever before for the Ninth Annual Freeport Boat Show.

The largest regional boat show in the Northeast, the Freeport event will run from October 4-6 and October 11-14 at the Town of Hempstead's Guy Lombardo Marina.

More than 500 new boats of all sizes and a wide variety of marine accessories will be displayed by some of the world's leading boat manufacturers, an increase of 25 percent from last year. Six finger floats will be added to accommodate the rise in demand for dock space and land space will be extended by 5,000 square feet. An additional tent will be erected to accommodate more indoor exhibitors—up 50 percent from 1984.

OUTPATIENT SURGERY

Over the past few years in response to the high cost of inpatient medical care and the difficulty in obtaining elective surgical beds many hospitals have opened out-patient surgical units. This allows many procedures that once required hospital admission and long waits for a hospital bed to be done quickly and much more simply.

The patient is the big winner here because a hospital admission becomes unnecessary and less time is lost from work. Often the procedure can be scheduled on Saturday so no work is missed.

One of the areas that I have found this especially helpful is in breast surgery. Nothing causes more fear in a woman than the knowledge that she needs a breast biopsy. Before outpatient surgery came into vogue these women were forced to wait two to six weeks to get a hospital bed depending on the hospital they used. Now if I do a breast biopsy under local anesthesia I can get operating time within days. Other operations that can be done in the out patient department under local anesthesia include drainage of abscesses, removal of cysts and fatty tumors, excision of skin lesions and removal of ingrown toenails.

It might be worthwhile to say a few words about local anesthesia. Many patients are apprehensive about being awake during surgery because of the fear of feeling pain. Local anesthetics properly administered will totally numb the surgical area. They are given at the site of surgery through a very fine needle which feels like a mosquito bite. After the xylocaine is injected the area becomes numb. Although you feel pressure and movement there is no associated pain.

Of the hospitals I operate out of, two have especially fine out-patient surgical units. Central General Hospital in Plainview and North Shore University Hospital in Manhasset.

At Central General Hospital all of the outpatient surgery is done under local anesthesia. The patient arrives five to ten minutes before their operation is scheduled and can leave as soon as it is finished. A pathologist is always available so if a frozen section is needed during a breast biopsy it can be done.

At North Shore University Hospital out patient surgery can be done under both local and general anesthesia. Since general anesthesia is available here many gynecologic, orthopedic, urologic and ophthalmologic procedures can also be done.

Out patient surgery is a new and very important area of holding down medical costs and providing improved simplified care to the patient. As these facilities continue to expand it will free up more hospital beds and help contain rising medical costs.

Dr. Sberwood is a board certified general surgeon who has been practicing on L.I. for the past 10 years. He is a graduate of the Georgetown University School of Medicine; his internship and residency in surgery were at North Shore University Hospital in Manhasset, N.Y.

Social Security Past & Present

By Albert Bernzweig
Melville Social Security Mgr.

August 14 marks the 50th anniversary of the enactment of the Social Security Act. President Franklin Roosevelt referred to the legislation as the "cornerstone in a structure which is being built but is by no means complete." The events of the past 50 years confirm this description.

An important feature of Social Security is its ability to adapt to society's changing needs. Circumstances today are very different from what they were 50 years ago, but the program is just as responsive now as it was then.

In 1930, 5.4 percent of the population was age 65 or older, compared with 11 percent today. The average life expectancy at 65 for men is 13 years, and 17 years for women. Men and women now 75 can expect to live another 9 and 12 years, respectively.

The past 50 years have also witnessed a marked change in the role of women in society. When the Social Security Act first became law, the typical family unit was composed of a working husband, a homemaker wife, and one or more children. Today, half of all women work, and they account for 43 percent of the labor force.

The longer lifespan enjoyed by Americans has been accompanied by lower birthrates. Today, women have an average of 1.7 children, compared with 3.7 in the late 1950's. If this trend continues, it is estimated that by 2035, there will be only two workers paying social security taxes for each person getting benefits.

As these and other changes over the past half a century took place, the Social Security Act was amended to keep up to date with the times. The first significant amendments, enacted in 1939, provided benefits to certain dependents and survivors of insured workers. In the 1950's, Social Security coverage was extended to include most types of jobs, as well as self-employment.

Disability insurance was added in the late 1950's, and Medicare was enacted in 1965. There were also changes in eligibility requirements, and automatic cost-of-living benefit increases were first paid in 1975.

The Social Security Amendments of 1983 greatly strengthened program financing. This flexibility to cope with and solve emerging problems has been matched by a stability that has kept the program true to its basic principles.

Social Security has lifted millions of people out of poverty and has enabled beneficiaries to live their lives in modest comfort.

Children's Workshop

Nature's wonders and beauties — the focal points of the Gregory Museum's vacation workshop for children — continue to hold much interest and fascination for Long Island's youngsters. July's program on the world of insects ran for four afternoons and was well attended all of the way. As predicted, Museum naturalist, Joan Scancarelli, crowned the four sessions with new slide pictures and a captivating talk on her most recent adventure, insect study and collecting on the banks of the great Amazon River.

Starting Friday, August 9th and continuing each Friday afternoon thereafter: Aug. 16, 23 and 30, from 2:30 to 4:30, children ages 9-12 may enjoy the summer's Gregory Museum workshop finale, "Reptiles of the Past." They will be able to learn about the awesome lizards of the past, the Age of Dinosaurs. Hands-on crafting activities will include making a "time machine," going on a "dig" and constructing the child's very own dinosaur. Ms. Scancarelli is most enthusiastic about working with youngsters keen on nature, but she is especially experienced at awakening even casual interest in youngsters. The registration fee for the four August Fridays, commencing August 9, is $12. Fee checks may be drawn to the Gregory Museum and mailed to Heitz Place, Hicksville, 11801 or brought to the opening program session. A reminder: The Gregory Museum August workshops will be held in the Community Room of the Hicksville Public Library, Jerusalem Avenue and First Street.

President

Joe Jablonsky
Executive Leader

By Harriet Maher

Summer is well underway...and we hope you're enjoying every minute of it. We've come up with a great idea to make summertime even more enjoyable. Here's the scoop:

Join us on Friday, August 9, 1985, at the VFW Hall, 320 South Broadway, Hicksville for an INDOOR PICNIC. Just think--no ants to contend with, no rain to dampen our spirits and no sweltering heat to perspire from because the VFW Hall is air conditioned.

No formal meeting will be held this evening; this is our mid-summer fun festival. There'll be music to dance to, beer and soda for you to drink, and lots of corn, tomatoes, flanks, beans, rolls and sauerkraut to eat.

The time we'll be starting is 8:30 p.m. A nominal fee of three dollars per person will be charged at the door to help us cover some of our costs for this evening. This is not a fund raising event...we just want to get together with our membership and have a fun-filled evening before the summer is over. We hope you will be able to join us at this event.

On another note, we believe it is appropriate to mention that we meet at the VFW Hall and it is a reminder to all of us that we owe a debt of gratitude to our past and present servicemen and women.

We should remember and pray for the return of American MIAs and POWs. Friday, July 19, marked National POW/MIA Recognition Day -- a day of remembrance for those heroes of our Armed Forces who are still lost or missing in Southeast Asia.

Congressman Norman Lent, as a veteran and active member of the House Task Force on MIAs and POWs, believes we have an important national responsibility to achieve the fullest possible accounting of our POWs and MIAs from the Vietnam War. These courageous individuals have made great sacrifices in the fight to protect liberty and freedom, and we must, said Lent, see to it that they are not forgotten.

President Reagan has pledged the fullest resources of the U.S. government to this effort, and has instructed the U.S. Departments of State and Defense to work in close cooperation with the National League of Families and with the Congress in pursuing every available avenue.

Since July 1984, in negotiations with Hanoi, our government has recovered the remains of 14 American servicemen. In February of this year, Laos and a United States team carried out the excavation of a crashsite of American aircraft, and there is hope that the personal belongings and remains found at the site will lead to the identification of some of the 13-member crew. This is the first excavation in Indochina since 1975, reported Lent.

He also stated that only by a sustained and serious effort can we hope to resolve this issue and finally bring this chapter in history to a close. Remember our MIAs and POWs and show that they are not forgotten.

If you're living on a fixed monthly income and find it difficult to pay your home phone bill by the due date, let us know. We may be able to make arrangements for you to pay by a more convenient date on a regular basis. Call your Residence Service Center, listed in the front pages of your phone book.

Last year 17 percent of your phone bill went to pay state and local taxes. We're taxed at a rate about twice as high as the average of all other major phone companies in the U.S. and more than twice as high as general businesses in the state. But legislation passed by the State Legislature and signed by the Governor this year will remove some of this tax discrimination, and we'll pass the savings on to you, by giving you a credit on your bill — and by reducing our request for increased rates.

If your phone has ever gone dead because someone accidentally cut into one of our underground cables, you appreciate why we keep reminding people: Call before you dig. The number's in the front pages of the phone book, and we'll appreciate your call. It gives us a chance to mark out for you any underground cable in the vicinity — and protect your telephone service and your neighbors'. Our network includes 95.5 million miles of wire in our telephone cables — and 62% of it is below ground.

These days there's more than your New York Telephone bill in your New York Telephone bill. We provide a variety of billing services for some long distance companies, so their bill may be included in, and added on to, the one you get from us. The companies pay for the service, and that helps pay for your basic phone service.

How many phones are there in New York? We're not the right ones to ask anymore because we don't provide phones anymore, and we don't repair them — with a few exceptions, such as special equipment for the disabled and coin phones. But we do provide — and we do repair free of charge — the line that connects your home or business to the local telephone switching center. By the end of 1984, our customers had more than 8.2 million lines. Add about 870,000 served by 40 other telephone companies, and that makes more than 9 million telephone lines in New York State, each with a telephone company central office at one end, and a customer with one or more phones or communicating devices at the other.

If you have a phone in your home — and in New York the chances are better than 9 out of 10 that you do — you have a unique telephone address. It's not duplicated by anyone in the nation. It's 10 digits long. The first three make up your area code. It says what part of the country you're in. The next three digits show which local central office switches your calls. It's your "central office designation", but some people call it an "exchange number". The last four make up your "line number". It identifies the line that connects us to you.

When someone dials your telephone address — your 10-digit phone number — switching machines "read" those digits to route the call (1) to the right section of the U.S., (2) to your central office and then (3) out along your own line to your home or business.

Your phone line allows you to make — and receive — local and long distance calls. It's your link to the network, and includes a pair of wires reserved for your use only. On the average, it costs us about $21 a month to provide that connection between your place and ours, whether or not you make any calls. It costs that much just to have it there and in working order so you can use it when you need it. (If you're several miles from our central office, it may cost several times more than the average).

The average home customer pays for less than half the cost of that line. We get the rest mainly by charging extra for long distance services. New "access charges" will help pay for more of the cost of those lines. They went into effect last year for businesses with more than one line and started in June for businesses with one line and for most home customers. (Customers receiving certain types of public assistance may be eligible for a lifeline-type of service and the access charge won't increase their bills).
