Angela Parola has long been active in the Wantagh Republican Club. She was president in-1954, a committee-woman since 1968, a New York State comitteewoman for the 14th Assembly District since 1972 and corresponding secretary since 1955.

Hicksville Shortchanged By Regents

In what he termed a "disappointment," Assemblyman Fred Parola (R-C, Wantagh) assailed the recent proposal by the state Board of Regents for funding to public schools. Under the proposal, Hicksville is slated to receive a $76,030, or a .97 percent increase, while Bethpage would receive a $40,775 or a .91 percent increase. receive a $40,775, or a .91 percent hike.

"The Regents' plan reflects a clear neglect of the suburban schools on Long Island and especially those that are impacted by excessive property taxes due to a lack of indus-try, Parola said. "Local residents deserve to see a fair share of their tax dollars returned in the form of increaed educa-tion funding. The Regents plan will not accomplish this.

"The Regents Board seeks to increase monies to areas like New York City, where residents pay relatively little for education when compared to the commitment by suburban-ites," he added.

"The bottom line is that the Regents are playing 'share the wealth' with our tax dollars because we in Nassau County

"Long Islanders already receive a poor return from the state for programs for which we pay more than our fair share in income and sales taxes." he continued. "Should the Regents' proposal be implemented, our return would be decreased to an even greater degree."

wides about 39 percent.
"This system unfairly judges an individual's ability to pay since it is based on property. I believe that we should shift the basis of funding schools and move to a system that reflects our ability to pay, such as income," the assembly man said, "The Regents' proposal has served to make my job more difficult when I do battle with the governor to bring funding to schools in the I4th A. Galileo Lodge News

By Joe Lorenzo

PETE PRESIDENT MASSIELLO'S MES-SAGE: "The greatest harm that you can do unto the envious is to do well." Old

On Saturday, the 7th of December, the Galileo Lodge was filled to the rafters with Christmas spirit and enthusiasm. The Laughter, the greetings, the friendly attitudes and hearty cheers, each with a distinct spontaneity, emanated from the 275 people who attended the Galileo Lodge's Christ-mas dance. This was a gala mas dance. This was a gala celebration, a beautiful spectacle for a very special time of the year. The food was excellent and plentiful, the music was delightful and very appropriate.

Joe Giordano and Ski Monteforte were honored that night, with State Presi-dent Nick Viglietti Bestowing the honors and adding to their statures. The commit-tee, consisting of Chairman Tony Sica and his two co-Chairmen, Joe Morace and Armand del Cioppo, performed admirably once again, which prompted President Pete Massiello to extend his thanks to them and to the other members, male and female, who also aided and abetted. The Monteforte family and the Giordano families were also present to enjoy and share the accolades they received, and the gifts also, This dance definitely was a mood-setter, it was also a forerunner of better things to happen for the holiday season. And the kitchen force, the ones who prepare the excellent cuisine served, they were fabulous, of

On Sunday, the 8th of December, the day after the Christmas party, when spir-its and feeling were still defi-nitely high, the Galileo Lodge presented its two Christmas parties, one for the handicapped children in the morning and the other one for the children of the Galileo Lodge membership and Ladies Auxiliary. This was also a very special day, the Children were special and mood and atmospere were very special. Oh, yes, this was the day when all thse children became the their faces beaming with joy and happiness, their eyes bright as sunlight and their bodies highly animated by the sounds of Christmas music provided by Richard Lagnese at the organ and Joe lanotti Jr. on the drums. the food provided by the Galileo Lodge was delicious and appetizing, and the "goodies", consisting of ice cream, candy, fruit, soft beverages and various types of cake also belied to fill of cake, also helped to fill their little tummies.

Give The Gift Of Friendship

Hanukkah, Christmas and New Years are traditional times of celebration and gaiety. Shopping for gifts has begun, trees are trimmed and children queue to speak with Santa.

December tradition also holds that nearly 2,000 unfortunate people may die in a motor vehicle accident involving the use of alcohol, according to National Safety Council statistics.

To focus attention on this potentially devastating occurrence, the week of December 15-21 has been designated as the fourth annual National Drunk and Drugged Driver Awareness

The Long Island Chapter American Society of Safety Engineers asks hosts and hostesses to promote this effort by using the "Desig-nated Driver" concept at all gatherings where alcohol will be served. The number Pack 172 Visits of tragic seasonal fatalities can be reduced if this act of friendship is offered along with an alcoholic beverage.

"What better gift can a person offer than an examination of their life, or more significantly, to keep them from the misery of knowing they ended someone else's life prematurely?" said Ed Williams, Chapter President Long Island Chapter American Society of Safety

Engineers, "All that's required is for a select few to volunteer" at the beginning of the party to drink non-alcoholic beverages and to drive the other celebrants home safely. The responsibility is rotated to other volunteers at the next

"We never want people using our machines because they dislike dealing with our people."

As good as automated teller machines are, a lot of people have been using them for the wrong reason. Because they dread dealing with bank people who often seem harried and impersonal.

It's a problem that affects all banks to one degree or another. The difference is, at Chase we've been doing something about it.

Together, we have renewed our commitment to some important values. To things like treating customers like human beings instead of numbers. To showing genuine concern about their problems; and to helping them select the kinds of accounts and services that get them what they need.

We've been doing a lot of very tangible things. We've instituted a system to cut down on red tape and streamline procedures, so you can devote more time to helping customers and less time to pushing paper. We've also made heavy investments in hiring and training more people like you. More tellers. More bank officers. All so that customers can spend less time standing in lines, and get the kind of service they deserve.

Now, if all this attention to things like "service" and "understanding" seems to set a new direction in the world of banking, you're right.

Because that's the kind of commitment to old values many banks seem to have forgotten.

But it's the kind of commitment we believe will make people enjoy going to the bank. Instead of dreading it.

The Thanksgiving Holi-day really took off at Lee School. All grades celebrated one way or another. Kindergarten teachers, Mrs. Grayson, Mrs. Marna held their traditional Pilgrim parties. Morning and afternoon classes thoroughly enjoyed their day and the visit from the honorary "Chief," prin-cipal, John Mateer.

Mrs. Baumann and Mrs. Massa's 2nd grade classes held a mini United Nations. The children brought in costumes, food or artifacts representing their various families' heritage. Each child gave a presentation.

Chile, India, Ireland were some of the many countries represented. Lee fourth graders were treated to their annual Thanksgiving dinner. This dinner is planned by both teachers and class mothers. The boys and girls enjoyed turkey, dressing, cider and all the other trimmings.

time, we see that young cou-ple, dead tired, from a threeitself that it often lacks a compassionate response to others. Remove the "no days journey up from Gal-lee, from the city of Nazareth to Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem because he was vacancy" sign of a life indif-ferent to God's desire that we worship him together every week. Let's remove the Bethlehem because he was of the house and lineage of David. Mary is about to give birth to the only Son of God. and the time has come for her to be delivered. This moment there is a knock at the door of your heart and Almighty God asks each one of you, and me, "Have you made room inyour heart for "no vacancy" sign we hang out to the Lord when he seeks to enter our lives, to be born anew in us and to give born anew in us and to give us rebirth.

There is no purer way to worship the Lord, no greater gift that you can bring to the Manger Boy, than to remove any "no vacancy" made room in your heart for my Son?

The recent death of Mr.
Leon Galloway, Library
Trustee, School Administrator and public spirited citizen, was a sad loss to the community. Leon Galloway's career spanned 41 years in the Hicksville School System. School System.

In a 1976 interview, conducted as part of the Oral History project of the Hicksville Public Library, Mr. Galloway reminisced about his career in public education and the changes in the community. In 1929, when young Leon Galloway arrived, he began teaching business subjects as the head of a department of three. Hicksville was an agrarian community of about 6,000 people, mainly potato farmers and small busi-nessmen. Fifty teachers served the schools at Nicho-lai Street, East Street and the Junior-Senior High School on Jerusalem Avenue. When he was appointed principal of the Junior High School in 1947. he was confronted almost immediately with the vast post-war expansion that transformed Hicksville and Long Island forever. In less than six years, Hicksville had built half a dozen ele-mentary schools and, by 1968, served more than 13,000 school children. The way this educational crisis

Mr. Gal-loway seemed to be most proud of the pre-Boces Vocational Program and the early foreign language pro-gram developed by the schools. He also served as Principal of the Hicksville High School and Adminis-trative Assistant of the Superintendent of Schools. In 1949 Mr. Galloway joined the Library Board of Trustees and served until Trustees and served until 1961. He served with distinction during a period when the public library was trying to cope with increased demand and the loss of their first home in the Nicholai Street School in 1950. He fully supported the lirst library expansion in 1955 and served as a most useful conduit between the public library and the schools.

Mr. Galloway was well known for his Civil War Collection of Confederate money and signatures. His 5,000 - 6,000 volume library of the Civil War is one of the most extensive in the area. His other hobbies included the content of the most extensive in the area. travel and, in recent years, foreign language study. He was a generous man who established college scholar-ships for Hicksville residents and provided the funds for a chapel in the United Methodist Church of Hicksville.

Holiday Safety

By TOB Supervisor Joseph Calby

Wherever I drive in the Town of Oyster Bay there is evidence that holiday festivities are in full swing

Outdoor decorations, Christmas trees and menor-ahs in livingroom windows and gaily decorated store windows evoke the spirit of the season.

If you enjoy brightening your home, in celebration of the season, then you should be aware that extra safety precautions are necessary, both indoors and out, for your holiday to be accident-free.

Nothing looks and smells wonderful as a fresh Christmas tree- and it will remain that way if you start by purchasing a tree that is very green, with needles which are hard to pull from the branches and where the trunk of the tree is still sticky with resin. Always place your tree away from a fireace, radiator or other heat source and fill the base holder with water. While the tree is indoors keep the holder full-heated rooms dry out trees rapidly

A tree just wouldn't be a Christmas tree without lights and trimmings. So keep in mind that indoor and outdoor lights must have the "UL" label att-ached to them certifying that they have been tested for safety. Discard any damaged sets or make the necesry repairs before using sets from previous years. No more than three sets of lights should be used on a single extension cord.

Metallic trees are relatively new and many people purchase them so that they can be used for serveral Manufacturers of metallic trees claim that the use of electric lights is safe but bear in mind that, as with fresh trees, using faulty lights is hazardous. Frayed or bare wires or loose connections can cause a metallic tree to become charged with electricity, possibly causing severe injury to anyone touching a branch. To be on the safe side, I recommend that you decorate a metallic tree with garland and nonelectric ornaments.

Chanukah menorahs come in two basic varietieswax candles and electric lights. At with Christmas lights, the wiring on electric menorahs should have a "UL" label attached. Wax candles are certainly more traditional but require more attention. The menorah in which they are placed should have a firm base and be nonflammable. Candles, particularly when placed on a window sill, should be kept away from other decorations, drapes and furnishings.

Trimmings and paper decorations should be labelled "flameproof."

In homes where there are small children avoid decorations which are sharp or breakable and ones that have small removable parts which a young child might put in his mouth. Trimmings which resemble edibles popcorn, candy canes, chocolates-might tempt a Holiday Festival Concert

Craft Fair At Fork Lane

By A. Eichenauer

This past Wednesday the second graders of Fork Lane held a craft fair. All the items were made by the children, with the help for their teachers, Mrs. Schmitt and Mrs. Green. The prices were very affordable.

The items the children were selling came from things they had at home. For example - bird feeders made from plastic soda bottles, necklacess made from sea shells, pine cone creatures, wooden ornaments, book markers and rainbow

All the children from the other grades, were escorted by their teachers to the all purpose room to purchase the many items available. Both second grades had class mothers on hand to help the children display, their items and, also help them with the money.

Mrs. Schmitt said, "all the money made from the sale of these items will go toward a worthly cause.

From the looks of things all the items were selling like hot cakes, and I hope both classess made a nice profit.
