Down-Graded Athletics Are Not Lurking In Middle School Plans

Re-organization plans for the Hicksville School District do not include abolishment of interscholastic athletics for junior high or middle school students.

Responding to inquiries from the Illustrated Press concerning purported stories to that affect, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Catherine Fenton cleared the air.

The administration has not gone on record, nor has advocated, the abandonment of interscholastic athletic teams when or if the proposal to have a middle school for seventh and eighth grade students and a full four year high school is approved.

Dr. Fenton indicated that the committee, which has been working for a year on the reorganization, will report to a Board of Education sub-committee on Wednesday, June 12, and will report at a regular meeting on Wednesday, June 25.

It has come to light that one paragraph in the report indicates a National Education Committee study found that the "presence or absence of an athletic program in a junior high or a middle school has no appreciable effect either way on students."

Many Hicksville parents and students dispute that philosophy as alien to the competitive 65-year history of the school district and community.

Repercussions from inclusion of that statement fanned what had been smoldering suspicions as far back as last August.

Many Hicksville citizens regard a vigorous, healthy, competitive athletic program, coupled with club and extra-curricular activities, to be a deterrent to today's drug and alcohol problems confronting students.

It is contended that the elitist New York City pavement theory expressed in the statement gives little weight to the influence on drop-outs and attendance rates extra-curricular involvement helps to control.

Dr. Fenton concluded that final decisions in such matters are based on the evaluations of the building principal and the district athletic director.

Observers feel her clarification has helped rekindle the efforts to pass the school budget.

Infusion of new support for the re-submitted budget vote had been blunted by the recurring questions regarding the expected total educational life of the proposed middle school.

Thereafter he served nine years as a member of the Grand Lodge Activities Committee and as Chairman in 1978-79.

In 1982, Brother Affatato was elected to a four year term on the Board of Grand Trustees and is presently Chairman of the Board.

Postal Service Moving Advice

"You won't lose touch or lose time when you move if you take advantage of the new Change of Address Kit provided free by the Postal Service," says Roger Nienaber, General Manager/Postmaster Hicksville Division.

The filing of a Change of Address card at your local post office will generate the mailing of a Change of Address Kit to your new home. This is a new program instituted to provide better service to our customers who move.

The Postal Service will forward your First Class Mail for 18 months and second class such as magazines and newsletters, for 60 days.

We provide address correction information only for those mailers who request this service.

It is up to our postal customer to notify all their correspondents and publishers of their new address. Inside the cover of every magazine you'll find instructions for filing an address correction.

Inside the Change of Address Kit you will find nine Change of Address cards (Form 3576) for customers to directly notify their correspondents of their new address.

To insure accurate forwarding of your mail, give all information requested including apartment numbers and correct zip code.

Take a few minutes to read the brochure contained in the kit which explains to customers the importance of notifying all correspondents of their change of address. The brochure also explains what happens to mail that is forwarded and what classes of mail require additional postage for forwarding.

Customers can verify the new address label on the kit and notify their former post office if the new address is inaccurate.

"The Postal Service wants to make sure your mail moves with you. The time spent following these instructions will help us give you the postal service you deserve," Nienaber says.

Advent Church Strawberry Saturday

The Episcopal Church of the Advent will be holding its annual "Strawberry Saturday" parish fair on June 14 between the hours of 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. The booths and activities will cover the church grounds on the south side of Jericho Turnpike at Advent Street, across from the Senior High School.

Sheila Hankin is the General Chair for the fair. She announced that "this year's event would have the usual feature of strawberries for sale — by the case, in quarts, over ice cream, chocolate dipped. The strawberries are Long Island's best, picked the day of the fair."

In addition, "Strawberry Saturday" will have the Castle Bounce and the Dunking Machine for children; a wide variety of games, refreshments of various kinds. There will be a Tea Garden for relaxing in, plants and flowers, a boutique, Leigh's Corner with various items for sale, books, furniture and other attic treasures. A table with baked goods will be awaiting eager gourmets. This year a "silent auction" has been added to the proceedings.

There will be a "Grand Sweepstakes" raffle with a TV set, a "weekend in the Pocos"; a basket of cheer and a basket of food among the prizes. In addition, two hand-made afghans will be raffled at the boutique table.

The Investor's Corner

By JOSEPH P. FREY, Ph.D.

Last week we asked you to make a list of banks and mortgage companies if you are considering refinancing your house or getting a first-time mortgage. Now we suggest you start to call them—let your telephone do the walking. Ask for the mortgage department.

You will finish up with a large quantity of information. To organize it, get a large sheet of paper; list the questions down the left side; the names and telephone numbers of the banks across the top. Fill in the answers. The better deals will become readily apparent. You will be able to eliminate most, ending up with two or three, and some unanswered questions. Call back; get your questions answered; and get an application through the mail.

They will want to know your financial history, the value of your assets, etc. This alone makes the exercise worthwhile since most of us do not know how much we are worth. Many of us "feel poor" because we do not have much cash in the bank.

Here are the questions to ask:

1. What is your interest rate for variable rate mortgages?
2. To what index is the rate tied?
3. What additional margin do you get over the index?
4. What prepayment penalties are there?
5. What cap (upper limit) do you have?
6. What is the maximum adjustment for the rate at the end of the period?
7. How often do you adjust the variable rate? (They probably will give you this information with question 1.)
8. Can the mortgage rate be renegotiated (called a modification) if the rates fall in the future? (This can save you a bundle.)
9. What type of fixed-rate mortgages do you have?
10. What are the fees involved to get a mortgage?
11. What limitations as to the maximum loan do you have?

He will answer financial questions sent to him at Anton Community Newspapers, 132 East Second Street, Mineola, NY 11501. ## A Letter from Lulabelle...

...You probably already know that I am lazy—very lazy about things that one really doesn't have to do—such as hanging out the wash... Now I have many friends who maintain, even to this day, that there is nothing more satisfying than hanging out a wash on a lovely windy day and getting that "good outdoor smell" into all the sheets and things...I suppose there must be some merit in what they say, but for me, it's all just unnecessary labor...First of all, that "good outdoor smell" usually smells something like somebody's fireplace...all of my pillowcases and socks always ended up full of leaves...and, I hesitate to mention the problem of bird droppings in my tree-filled yard...No, forget it, for me there's nothing more satisfying than that lovely clothes dryer—The towels are soft and not crisp the way they were in my "hanging out" days and I don't have to rewash after backyard problems...And are you old enough to remember a time before "permanent press"? How we used to stand at that ironing board with all those dampened clothes. Did you, by chance, have a little girl whom you dressed in starched dressed complete with puffed sleeves? Remember how we carefully held the sleeves and pressed them around in a circle so they would stand up perkily around our darling's arm...Oh, how grateful I am that these days have come when the clothes dryer is a necessity to most of us when the permanent press clothes and household things really look pretty smooth (if fetched from the dryer before the wrinkles can settle in!)...And here's a final thought for you—do you remember boiling diapers???

Yours, Lulabelle

Letters From Our Readers

An Open Letter of Thanks to Dr. Mitchell Kornet and his staff at Mid-Island Animal Hospital, Hicksville:

Dear Dr. Kornet and Staff:

How can we thank you for caring for Puss over the years, especially this past year and-a-half. Puss found us more than seventeen years ago, and as you know, immediately won our hearts and became a member of our family.

Back in December of 1984 was when we had the first sign that Puss had serious medical problems. You waited for us beyond office hours on a Saturday afternoon when we brought Puss in to be examined. You suspected something serious and knew he would require several tests. Knowing Puss at this age would be better off at home than to stay over night at the hospital, you said you would check on him that evening to see if he would be able to go home. Around 10 p.m., after an early evening emergency of your own, you called and said to meet you at the office so we could take Puss home. When we met, you gave us all the time necessary to advise us of the prognosis and necessary care Puss would require.

In February of this year we thought we would lose Puss again. However, thanks to your medical skills and concern, as well as our love for Puss and he for us, he rallied and most certainly had quality living during the last four months.

On June 3rd we had to make the decision we knew was inevitable and you, Dr. Kornet, could not have been more understanding. Puss is no longer with us but our hearts will always be full of wonderful memories.

Although it does not seem adequate, we would like to say "Thank You."

A Sincere Bow to All Moms

A Different Kind of Athlete

By Steven K. Berrent

If you met my mom you could tell she is not an athlete. Unlike my mom, I love sports. I play soccer, basketball, baseball, and tennis.

I don't know why my mom comes to all my games. She doesn't know all the rules of the games. All she seems to do is talk to her friends. If I were her, I'd stay home and do something that I'd like to do.

One day my dad and mom went to a convention in Pittsburgh. I had a soccer game. So my aunt and uncle took me. Something was missing. I couldn't play the way I always do. I turned to the sideline. It came to me. Mom wasn't there. My aunt and uncle waved, but Mom wasn't cheering. I remembered the way Mom jumped, yelled, waved, and smiled.

When I felt tired, my mom could push me on with all her cheering. "Come on Steve, GO!!!" she would yell. This time I was just tired, and nothing was able to get me moving. As my aunt and uncle drove me home, I realized that when my mom was jumping and cheering, "COME ON STEVE, GO!!!" it made me play my best. I could play 110% for my mom.

So, my unathletic mother has a very important part in my sports. She participates as a fan. She is my personal cheering section. I need her for support and assistance. Now when someone says my mom is not athletic, I always correct them. My mom is there for me, and participates in every sport and game I play. My mom is an athlete, but in her own way.

Steven Berrent, a fifth grader at the East Hills School of Roslyn, was selected as the first place winner in Nassau Reading Council's Young Author's Contest. Steven's personal narrative, entitled "A Different Kind of Athlete," was one of 1150 entries coming from 126 schools in Nassau County. The contest judges included college professors, teachers from elementary and high school grades, postgraduate students, researchers and professional papers. All of the entries were coded and since no names appeared on any of the papers, there was no possibility of bias in the judging. Steven won first place from among all the fourth and fifth grade writers. He read his story at an Awards Ceremony held by Nassau Reading Council at Adelphi University on June 4, 1986. More than 135 teachers, parents, relatives, and friends attended the "Writing Celebration."

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Declarer naturally presumes that the defenders are doing everything they can to defeat him and are not deliberately acting against their own best interests. It follows, therefore, that any information he acquires from the opponents' chosen line of defense can be utilized to guide him to the best method of play.

Take this case where South capitalized on the first two plays made by the defenders. After West's king of diamonds held the first trick, West led a low diamond to East's ace. East shifted to the jack of hearts, and the outcome of the deal hinged on South's play at this point.

Confronted by a potential loser in hearts and another in clubs, there was a normal temptation for declarer to now play the queen of hearts to try to win the trick. But before doing so, he paused to consider the likelihood that East had the king of hearts.

Correctly, he reasoned that the defenders, by their diamond plays, had arranged for the heart lead at trick three to come from East, and that West therefore had the king. Consequently, playing the queen could serve no useful purpose.

Retaining the queen, however, could prove enormously beneficial if West had fewer than three clubs. In line with that thought, South won the heart jack with the ace, drew trumps, cashed the A-K of clubs, and then led the queen of hearts.

West won with the king, but since he had no more clubs he was forced to return either a diamond or a heart. This allowed declarer to trump in dummy while discarding his club loser, and so, the contract came sailing home.

Had South played his queen of hearts at trick three, it would have become impossible to make the contract. Inevitably, he would have lost a heart and a club and gone down one.

National Safety in the Workplace Week

• National Safety in the Workplace Week will be observed June 15-21. The week is sponsored by the American Society of Safety Engineers and the Associated General Contractors.

—It goals include: to promote greater awareness of the necessity for effective safety programs; to stress the importance of safety training; and to recognize the outstanding work of engineers and other safety professionals.

• OSHA strongly supports observance of the week. The agency's slogan is, "Safety! You Bet Your Life."

• National Safety in the Workplace Week is important to draw national attention to on-the-job hazards that in 1984 resulted in:

—an estimated 11,300 workplace fatalities;

—about 1.9 million injuries;

—losses to American business of approximately $3.4 billion.

• To combat these accidents, OSHA has a balanced program of standards-setting, enforcement, support for state OSHAs, and voluntary initiatives.

—In FY 1985, OSHA conducted about 71,000 inspections, including records checks and walkarounds.

• Bottom line: safety and health pays off.

—not only in reduced compensation costs but in other gains like improved morale, increased productivity, lower absenteeism and turnover.

• Better worker protection demands our best efforts—not only during National Safety in the Workplace Week but all year long.

FORWARD '86

Poxabogue Will Be in Center Of Long Island Golf Year

Bearing the austere prestige of the Royal and Ancient, America's oldest private golf club, Shinnecock Hills, will host the United States Open in June.

Carved out of Eastern Long Island by Shinnecock Indian labor almost one hundred years ago, it has a panoramic clubhouse with an expansive view from which the Long Island Sound and the Atlantic Ocean may be seen.

A short way down the road is the North American Links with an equal reputation, reserved and formidable.

A bit south from the greens where the premier American Tourney is carded is another delightful course constructed on ancient Indian land. Nestled between the same bodies of water is a nine-hole course ideally ready for the average duffer.

Poxabogue Golf Course, which is located in Bridgehampton, was opened in 1962. It was originated by Hewlett Treadwell and Howard Liberty. The course was designed by Alfred Tull, a member of the American Society of Golf Course Architects. Mr. Tull, a gifted designer, was born in 1897 and learned his craft under the likes of Walter J. Travis, Devereaux Emmet and Albert Tillinghast. These were the three premier architects of the early 1900s.

Poxabogue is a nine hole, executive-length course. It is designed so the course offers everything that a full-length course has, with the exception that it doesn't take the golfer 6 hours to play it. The course is comprised of six par 3 holes of quite varied length, and three par 4 holes of moderate length. The course plays to a par of 30.

The putting greens are relatively small and are well bunkered. Most of the greens are pitched and have very interesting rolls and undulations. The layout, coupled with an ever-present breeze, produces a different test each day. Although not difficult for the player who is starting, the course will present some very interesting shots to the good golfer who wants to par the course. When he loses a shot or two to par, he will find, more often than not, that they are irretrievably lost. Playing the course seldom requires more than an hour to an hour-and-a-half for nine holes. This makes it convenient to play both before and after work, and allows the wife time at the shops of Southampton.

Poxabogue is open from April 1 through November 30, seven days a week. Along with the golf course is a practice driving range and practice putting green. During the summer months golf lessons are available from professionals. There are several youth golf clinics given, which is an excellent way for youngsters to learn the proper fundamentals of the game. Any equipment necessary is available for purchase in the pro shop. Club repairs are expertly done, and complete sets may be made to order to the golfer's specifications. Sets of clubs may be hired out for use on the golf course. Also, there is a cafe which serves breakfast, lunch and after-golf libations.

The course is two miles east of Bridgehampton, traveling on Montauk Highway. The course opens at 7:00 a.m. Additional information may be obtained by calling 537-0025.

Seniors Invited to Join Auxiliary Police Communications Unit

Nassau Senior citizens are invited to join the expanding Communications Unit of the Nassau County Police Department's Auxiliary Police.

Working with the Nassau Department of Senior Citizens Affairs, the Police Department's Civil Preparedness Office is accepting volunteers for the radio network that links the other 46 community units. Nassau County Police Commissioner, Samuel J. Rozzi, said volunteers joining would be trained in the operation of the communications system and would take selected classes in the basic school of recruit training.

The Communications Unit is open to any county resident over the age 17. For such volunteers under the senior citizen category, the training course is 13 weeks. Auxiliary Police members are uniformed, but do not carry weapons and do not perform regular police work. They serve as patrol observers around schools and public buildings and in crowd control situations.

The Communications Unit operates in evening and weekend hours and in emergencies.

Anyone interested in joining this special unit or in the Auxiliary Police should write to the Civil Preparedness Office at 1490 Franklin Avenue, Mineola, New York 11501 for additional information or an application.

Planting Tips From Planting Fields

There are a number of summer flowering bulbs that can be planted now. Most major garden centers have a wide assortment. An even larger assortment can be obtained from any of the mail order firms that specialize in bulbs.

Tuberous Begonias are among the most showy summer flowering bulbs. They are particularly useful in partially shaded areas. Although bulbs are readily available, it is frequently better to purchase plants that have been grown from seed or bulbs that were started in March. Prestarted bulbs will have a significant headstart on bulbs that you plant directly outside. Tuberous begonias are heavy feeders and should be fertilized monthly. Tuberous begonias are not hardy in our climate. They should be dug before the first frost and stored over the winter in a cool dry place.

Dahlias are a hobby for many Long Island gardeners. There are literally thousands of varieties ranging from miniatures that are superb for bedding in borders to giant plants with blooms 14 to 15 inches in diameter. Garden centers usually carry dwarf dahlias grown from seed for use in borders as well as tubers for the very popular pompon varieties which grow to approximately four feet in height. Dahlias should be planted in full sun and require soil which is rich in organic material (compost, peat, etc.). Because of the extensive root structure needed to support the larger plants, soil for dahlias should be prepared to a depth of at least one foot. Dahlias are heavy feeders requiring significant amounts of potash and phosphorus. Avoid using fertilizer with nitrogen during the growing season as you might get heavy vegetation with no flowers. Dahlias should be watered every seven to 10 days. Make sure that you give them enough water to get down to the root level.

Freeseas are an excellent source of mid-summer color in the garden and cut flowers for the house. Once they have bloomed in the garden they can be dug and replanted in the house as houseplants. When purchasing freeseas at a garden center, make sure that they are prepared for growing outdoors.

Gladiolus represent a wide variety of plants ranging from the miniature, with flowers as small as two inches across on stems of less than a foot, to the giants, with flowers over five inches across and borne on stems over six feet tall. Traditionally, they have been the mainstay of the florist's industry but they are being used more frequently in home gardens. The large and giant corms (as the bulbs are known) are readily available in garden centers.

Hicksville Social and Personality Notes

Lou Millevolte To Move To Wisconsin

Lou Millevolte, highly respected and beloved for over sixty years in Hicksville athletics and community life, has sold his home on East Street and will move to Green Bay, Wisconsin.

He will live in the area of his son Louis, who went to Lacrosse College in the same state. He settled there after graduation.

The senior Millevolte also attended Lacrosse. His principal in 1926, Miss Mabel R. Farley, arranged the college entrance for the unsuspecting Millevolte. She — as she did for many — guided his collegiate attendance and was responsible for his teaching, coaching and administrative career in the Hicksville school system.

Lifelong friendships with Harold Bergold of Hicksville and Tom Moreselli, were developed in his college days.

Lou's decision to summer in Green Bay and winter with relatives in Florida has left the coach's many devoted friends with sagging spirits. The decision is understood, however, and he will carry bountiful good wishes with him.

Mr. Millevolte's wife was the former Rose Mazzara of Central Park (now known as Bethpage). His constant supporter in all the activities he led for the benefit of Hicksville youth — mostly uncompensated — Mrs. Millevolte succumbed in April.

The couple had celebrated their Golden wedding anniversary in November of 1984.

The ranks of pleasant personalities that one was able to do business with in Hicksville has been reduced by the retirement of Peter Moffett. He completed thirty years service with Robert Chevrolet and Moffett Motors. Genial Peter lives in East Norwich.

His fifth child has finished college and is being married. It is time to pursue a more leisurely life.

Peter Junior is an investment counselor with David Lerner Associates.

New Arrival

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Lifson of Hicksville, joyfully announce the birth of their daughter, Pamela Beth, born on May 5 at Huntington Hospital.

Ebba McGunnigle Recovering

Friends of Ebba McGunnigle are so pleased to hear she is recovering from a stroke. She is the former Ebba Johnson of West Barclay Street. She had a stay in Nassau Medical Center.

She and her late husband, Bernard, operated the stationery store at the corner of Broadway and East Marie Street, now a donut shop, for many years.

Bernie was an outstanding sports writer with articles in the old Center Island News. He was very active in Long Island Softball circles organizing the Hicksville Loyals. He managed the team for two decades in top flight Semi-Pro Fast Pitch competition.

Anthony Valle Graduates

Hofstra University bestowed a Degree in Finance upon Anthony Valle of Hicksville at 1986 Commencement Exercises.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Valle of Dakota Street, Hicksville.

While in college Mr. Valle worked in management at Waldbaum's Supermarket in Jericho.

It was for his courageous feat during an attempted robbery at Waldbaum's that he was awarded the Nassau County Police Commissioner's Civilian Award for Bravery and Courage. The incident took place December 19, 1985.

The graduation ceremony was followed by a dinner reception for friends and family at The Linden Tree Restaurant in Hicksville.

Alice Dreher A Grandma Again

A 6 lb. 14 oz. 21 1/2" baby girl, Kelly Erica, was born to Joanne and Roger Dreher of Yardley, Pennsylvania, May 17.

Roger is the son of Alice and the late George Dreher of Dakota Street, Hicksville. Congratulations, Alice!

Lauren Duffy — 1 Year Old

Proud grandparents, Lee and Norman Duffy of Hollins Road, Hicksville helped their son Richard and daughter-in-law Jean celebrate their grandchild Lauren's first birthday last week. Happy Birthday Lauren!

"The Minardi's"

Betty and Bill Minardi have reason to celebrate. They now have a granddaughter — Devon Elizabeth, born to proud parents Mary and Donald Vogt of Lynbrook. They are also grandparents of 4 handsome grandsons.

Bill Minardi Jr., Boston College graduate and broker with ARM, played in the Manufacturer's Hanover Westchester Golf Classic.

He toured the course with his Pro-partner, Mark Tanner, in the Pro-Am first day of play.

Hospital Stays

Good Wishes by friends are extended to three members of the Hicksville faculty who are experiencing hospital confinements.

Lou Crandel of the Junior Physical Education Department and Nancy James from the high school staff are out of circulation for a time.

Joe Umbria's host of friends are distressed at the popular teacher-coach's illness. They all look hopefully to see him about shortly.

He was awarded a BA degree in Political Science.

Tilles Center Season At C.W. Post

Pianist Andre Watts, the Canadian Brass, the Sistine Chapel Choir, the renowned violinist Yehudi Menuhin, and the Twyla Tharp dancers are among the artists, orchestras, ensembles, and troupes that make up the largest season ever at Long Island University's Tilles Center for the Performing Arts—a 20-event, five-series calendar for 1986-87.

The Tilles Center's sixth annual fundraising concert—Gala VI—is scheduled for Saturday evening, Oct. 11. Tillis is the third largest concert hall in the metropolitan area with 2,300 seats. The Center will offer discounts of up to 25 percent for season subscribers and is adding several new features—further discounts for seniors, an exchange policy for subscribers, and a subscription opportunity for those who want to mix and match.

The 1986-87 Tilles Center season opens Thursday, September 25, with the traditional music and dance of Festival of India. The performance is the first event of the new International Series, which also includes appearances by the Sistine Chapel Choir (Oct. 4), Marcel Marceau (March 8), and the Hungarian State Folk Ensemble (March 27).

Bob McGrath of "Sesame Street" opens the Family Series with a Nov. 1 matinee, followed by "Amahl and the Night Visitors" (Dec. 21), the New York Virtuosi Chamber Symphony (Feb. 1), and the "Biggest Little Circus" featuring the Yakim Mime Theatre and the New York Virtuosi Chamber Symphony (April 12).

The program on June 15 will feature sacred works by Kastalsky, Chesnokov, Nikolsky, Bortniansky, and Ippolitov-Ivanov, secular part-songs by Tchaikovsky and Chesnokov, and folk song arrangements by Sveshnikov.

The Russian Choral Society is always looking for qualified singers who are interested in joining the chorus (knowledge of Russian is helpful but not required) and persons interested in supporting its research and publications work. Anyone interested in either aspect of the Society's activities is encouraged to write the Russian Choral Society, Inc., 188 Prospect St., Sea Cliff, NY 11579, or call (203) 288-2828.

HOUSE CALLS

By EDITH LANK

Moving That Fence

Dear Edith: In 1979 I bought a vacant lot from a local real estate broker who had just purchased it from the adjacent property owner. A fence separated the two properties, however it encroached on my property by about ten feet. I was assured by the broker that he would get the previous owner to move the fence in a few short weeks or have it done at his own expense if necessary.

After six years the fence is still there and in the meantime the property next door has a different owner. My broker friend during all this time managed to write three letters asking the owner to move the fence. Now he says the matter is out of his hands and I should sue the new neighbor.

Whose responsibility is it to move the fence and what is your opinion about the length of time my broker friend sat on this? What do you think?—Mr. M.L.

I think you should have had a lawyer handle the matter from the beginning, and I think you should talk to one immediately. It's more than a matter of moving the fence; you may be in danger of losing ownership of that strip of land.

Out-of-State Mortgage Companies

Dear Edith: We bought a home in 1979. Less than a year later our bank sold our mortgage to an out-of-state company. Our payments have always been made on time.

My husband applied for a car loan in September. We were told that company does not furnish credit statements to our credit bureau. Nothing showed on his credit report. Consequently, I had to co-sign for his loan.

Is it possible to transfer our mortgage to a local company or must we sell our house to be rid of that company?—Mrs. V.C.

I'm afraid your mortgagee had the right to sell the loan anywhere they pleased. You'll just have to deal with the out-of-state firm.

Keeping Retirement Secret

Dear Edith: My wife and I plan to purchase a small retirement home this September. My income is $32,900 annually, but when I retire in July it will be reduced. I may be able to increase it some with part-time work.

When we go to apply for our mortgage loan, should I not mention retirement? If I did tell them about it, what would be the result?—Mr. E.F.

You might as well come clean with the mortgage interviewer. They'll be verifying income with your employer and would find out about your coming retirement anyhow.

More important—you won't do yourself any favor by taking out a loan you aren't really qualified for. The bank's standards are intended to keep you from getting in over your heads.

How binding is your purchase offer? Do oral promises count? Edith gives advice in her leaflet "Negotiating Your Home Buying." Send $1 and a stamped return envelope to Negotiating, Box 18447, Rochester, NY 14618. Edith will also answer personally any letter with a stamped self-addressed envelope.

How do first-time homebuyers find the right agent? Where to start? The process is discussed in House Calls' leaflet "Beginning Your Home Buying." For a copy, send $1 and a stamped return envelope to Buying, Box 18447, Rochester, NY 14618. Include the envelope also with your questions.

Kneeling: Coach Louis Millivolte, Edward Coleman, Charles Van Wickler and the late Raymond Halleran.

They inflicted their only defeat on New York-Long Island champion Chaminade in sudden death overtime.

Lufthansa Golf Outing

Hicksville duffers scored well in the Lufthansa Airline Captain's Cup Golf outing for club members.

The tournament was held at Spring Lake Golf Club, Middle Island, Saturday, June 7.

Captain's Cup was won by George Thomas of Hicksville; 2nd went to Kenny Jensen and 3rd to Frank Jacono.

Low Gross went to George Thomas with second place being taken by Joe Printz Jr., also of Hicksville. Joe also took the prize for the Longest Drive. Closest to the Pin was Pete Bartomoleo.

Agnes Price of Hicksville was the winner for the Captain's Cup and Low Gross Ladies Division with Regatta Goetz placing second. Fran Thomas blasted off the Longest Drive.

Many in the Hicksville segment of the Lufthansa Club participated in the International Golf Outing, sponsored by the airline, at Crans Montana Resort, high up on the mountain peaks of Switzerland, last year.

This year the International Tournament will be held in Yugoslavia.

Nassau Sports Review

By JACK WHITE

The game of lacrosse is so popular on Long Island that it seems impossible to believe that in most areas of the U.S. the game is virtually unknown. At both the high school and college level, lacrosse is largely centered in three areas: Long Island, upstate New York and nearby New England and the Maryland-Virginia area.

There are teams in North Carolina, Pennsylvania, a few in the midwest, and some club teams on the West Coast, but the growth of the game has not been as widespread or rapid as local fans would have expected. There are some reasons which come to mind: the lack of national television exposure, the expense of starting a program, particularly from the standpoint of equipment, the lack of qualified coaches for youth programs, and competition from established sports such as baseball, track, tennis and soccer (at the youth level).

What is, in fact, the "national game" of Canada, was introduced to the Metropolitan New York area in prep schools and in some New York City high schools early in this century. The first Nassau public school to play lacrosse was Manhasset. The pioneer was Jason "Jay" Stranahan, who learned the game at Springfield College and introduced it to Manhasset when he became a physical education teacher there in 1932.

Stranahan had to schedule private schools, out of state games and college freshman teams to fill out a schedule. Two years later he convinced Jim Steen, another Springfield man, to start a team at Garden City High and, in 1935, the first Nassau public school varsity game was played between Manhasset and Garden City. That rivalry continues today as the longest uninterrupted public school series in the nation.

Stranahan and Steen organized the Metropolitan-Long Island Lacrosse League which was lacrosse's governing body until Section Eight took over in 1961. The first members included Poly Prep of Brooklyn, Locust Valley Friends, Erasmus Hall and Alexander Hamilton. Sewanhaka, under coach Howard Nordahl, became Nassau's third public school team in 1938.

World War II killed lacrosse in New York City and slowed its growth on the Island. But with the help and encouragement of Hostra coach Howdy Myers, interest was renewed. Bill Ashley started a team at Freeport High in 1949 and two years later, Mineola joined the league under coach Pete Kuchinsky.

Huntington was the first Suffolk school to play, beginning in the mid-1950s. From that time until today, growth has been steady to the point where the great majority of Nassau schools have lacrosse teams.

In addition to being a terrific spectator sport, lacrosse scholarship money flows into Long Island schools somewhat like football money goes to Pennsylvania or Texas. This is prime recruiting ground for college lacrosse and the rosters of all the top teams are dotted with the names of Long Island players. Farmingdale High coach Bob Hartranft has said that his players have received more than one million dollars in scholarship money. Similar numbers probably apply to schools such as Manhasset, Garden City, Sewanhaka and Elmont.
