

Hicksville Fire Dept. Tips For A Safe Holiday

- Don't empty ash trays in trash containers following a party. Let ash trays sit in one place overnight. Empty the following day or douse all ash trays in water before you empty.

- Keep holiday trash away from your home. Stow in metal containers a safe distance from any building in case of flare-up.

- Unplug Christmas tree lights. A short circuit can cause a fire.

- Before you retire make a check of seat cushions for possible smoldering cigars or cigarettes. The leading cause of holiday fires have been traced to fires smoldering in chairs and couches.

Following these simple rules will greatly reduce tragic residential fires and loss of life.

MR. COONEY'S 6TH PERIOD ENGLISH CLASS at the Junior High School has adopted a child under the Save The Children Program. Ninth grader Tricia Manaskie (seated) conceived, executed and is totally responsible for the wonderful idea.

This is the Nineteenth Century home of Henry Puvogel, situated on what was called the Plains of Hicksville. The present Long Island Lighting Company Headquarters complex now occupies the site on Old Country Road. At that time, before the turn of the century, it was also known as Manetto Hill Road. The original Vanderbilt Cup Auto Races were run on that road going past the Puvogel home and on to Plainview. Mr. Puvogel was a prominent citizen of his day serving in trustee positions in the formative stages of the Hicksville Fire and School Districts.

He was the owner of a fleet of horse-drawn Hanson carriages in New York City. In the early 1900's this was comparable to today's taxicab fleets.

He directed his drivers from 14th Street offices, next to the original Madison Square Garden. Finely appointed carriages were reserved for Lillian Russell, Lily Langtry and Diamond Jim Brady as they traveled from theater appearances to the eating establishments of Delmonico's and Tony Pastor's.

Upon his passing in 1910, Mr. Puvogel was President of the German American Club of New York City. A massive crowd attended the services held by Pastor Matschat in and around the home and at the interment in Hicksville Plainlawn Cemetery.

A Labor Day Parade of forty years ago is depicted passing the corner of Old Country Road and Broadway. Of historical significance is the old Bohack store on the right. Behind it stood the homes of William Clarence and Fred Brann, prominent purveyors of meats for Hicksville and the eastern gold coast. Between Bohack's and the homes was the summer ice house for storing meats. Huge blocks of ice were cut from the pond in front of the now Milleridge Restaurant and were placed between mounds of straw to preserve meat provisions as far into the summer months as possible.

Once the largest firematic parade and drill in the State of New York, if not the nation, conducted by the Hicksville Fire Department, it had more than two hundred community fire departments participating.

The march went down Broadway, crossed Old Country Road, turning west on Fourth street to the reviewing stand with spectator seats set up on the Junior High School grounds.

To the far left can be seen the gracious spire of St. Ignatius Loyola Church.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Our thanks to old good friends, Elaine (Froehlich) and George Karman for supplying the photograph, as well as many others you will see in the future of the 'All Hicksville' paper — the Illustrated News.)

Removal of Barriers

The Oyster Bay Town Board has approved an expenditure of Federal Community Development funds for the removal of architectural barriers to the handicapped at Help-Aid-Direction in Hicksville, according to Town Councilman Douglas J. Hynes.

"This money will enable H.A.D., which is located at 23A Jerusalem Avenue, to modify bathroom facilities to make them accessible to the handicapped," Hynes explained. "The funding comes through a federal program which allows the Town to use Community Development monies to provide handicapped access at not-for-profit community meeting rooms."

Hynes noted that the Town Board has approved an allocation of $10,000 for the project.

A Letter from Lulabelle...

...Here it is another year—and resolution time again... This year maybe I should resolve to keep the resolutions I have made for lo, these many years... and the first one is so ordinary that they even make plaques about it—I simply must get organized... That means throwing out all the clothes that I'll never fit into again no matter how much I like them—also, chucking those spiked heel shoes with the sharp pointy toes which are really quite cracked from hanging around so long waiting for the styles to return... and then there are the magazines—I never throw them away until I am "done" with them, and being "done" with me takes a lot of doing... I have to read all the ads, clip the pictures of the rooms I like... you can imagine how far back I am—to tell the truth, I still have lots of copies of the Ladies Home Journal in that large size they had years ago—but don't tell anyone... then there are all those other resolutions—go on a diet—be sure to exercise ten minutes every day (surely everyone could find ten minutes?!?)... I don't smoke so I can't give that up—and I simply can't make the impossible resolution to give up chocolate ice cream—that would be cruel and unusual!... so I'll go back to getting organized... I really will file all those clippings I have piled in boxes all over the attic—and somehow or other, I'll finally make a decision about those years of National Geographics—they're much too good to throw away, but where to keep every copy from the last thirty-two years?!?... yes, that's the resolution for me—and this time I'll try—honestly!!!

Yours, Lulabelle

Augie Cassella, who works tirelessly for The Gift of Life Program, went to Kennedy Airport with members of the Bethpage Club to pick up three Korean children and transport them to St. Francis Hospital for heart surgery. The Hicksville Jericho Club is sponsoring Kim Boon a two year old boy.

Joe DePaola announced that he just returned from a two and a half week vacation touring the south. He visited past president Sam Eklund in Community Hospital in Boca Raton, Fla. The question of "Do Women Belong in Rotary?" will be discussed in next month's "Rotarian Magazine." The opposing answers will be provided by two distinguished general officers of Rotary International.

Seniors Buy Holiday Stamps

Rachel Staiano and Grace Pesapare of the Mid-Island Senior Citizens Club were on hand to welcome Jane Healey, Superintendent of Window Services, when she and clerk Ed Murray came from the Hicksville Post Office to sell postage to the seniors at the United Methodist Church. ## Colby Comments

Two goals I set for the Town during 1986 were the development of plans for Oyster Bay's first golf course and the initiation of resource recovery.

Plans for the golf course have progressed better than even I anticipated they would. The designs have been drawn to include a splendid 18-hole course and a country club-style clubhouse. The next step, which will happen mid-January, will be the competitive bidding process to determine who will construct both the course and clubhouse. Barring any unforeseen hitches we expect actual construction to begin in early spring of 1987 and completion targeted for summer of 1988. Of the many recreational projects which have been undertaken during my administration this is the most exciting and innovative. It's also rewarding because with this project we will preserve 121 acres of land - the Bruce Estate on South Woods Road and Jericho Turnpike in Woodbury - as open space while providing Town residents with a highly desired recreational facility.

The second goal of 1986 which is currently being acted upon is the building of a resource recovery facility to handle all of the solid waste delivered to the Town's disposal complex.

Two qualified vendors have submitted proposals offering state-of-the-art mass burning technology and environmental safeguards while incorporating recycling as a method to cut down on the amount of refuse that must be processed. Expert consultants are now involved in evaluating both proposals and I expect that the Town Board will select a vendor to carry out this project.

THE SKATE SHOP

99 Cutter Mill Road
 Great Neck
HU7-6978

SKATING EQUIPMENT
 By Jesse Halpern

There never was a question as to what type of skate to use for speed skating. Neither was there over a question as to the best type of skate for playing hockey. But as far as the novice skater, interested in mild exercise and a form of relaxation, is concerned, the type of skates is often a problem. Also, how and where to buy them are problems. The unfortunate truth is that most people are poorly advised and consequently buy the wrong skate.

The skates generally bought in sporting goods stores and department stores are toys or little more than toys and could not hold the ankle of either the novice or the expert erectly. The exceptions to the generality are very rare indeed. The place to buy skates is only in the specialty skate shop.

Professional skaters, both performers and instructors, advise figure skates as the best type of skates for many sound reasons. The figure boot is a higher boot and distributes the necessary snugness over a larger area than any of the other boots. The skate itself is lower and consequently easier to balance oneself with. The blades on a correct pair of skates are screw attached on both heels and soles to the average weight center.

If the ankle bends it means that the weight center of the foot is a little to one side or the other of the average weight center, and the bending is immediately corrected with the moving of the blade toward the skater's weight center. The figure skate is the most maneuverable skate. The low weight center, the high boot, the movable blade - all help make the figure skate the easiest skate to skate on.

To have full control over the blade, the boot must be snug enough to make the foot and the blade feel as though the two were one, and the blade must be in the weight center of each individual foot.

Correct fitting can be done only by the expert who has enough boots of different lasts and widths to work with. The boot should be just as tight as the skater can stand. The foot does not move around within the boot. It should be almost impossible to budge the heel from the floor of the shoe and it should be possible to flex the toes a bit. The adult or the advanced child skater should be fitted with very light socks.

For children, the skate expert advises the same as for adults, except that children can be fitted with heavy socks and wear the same boots the second year with light socks. The largest possible blades should be attached to the boots so that the blades can be used on the next pair of boots. Over the long period, correct skates for children cost less per year than the toys ill-advised parents often buy.

Rental skates can't possibly give much satisfaction because every one who wears them stretches them in another place and after a while the shoes have no more support than a paper bag. The same can be said about second hand skates. Leather stretches and shoes take on the shape of the feet when there is only one wearer.

It is more important to have a good, well-fitted boot than an expensive blade. At the Jesse Halpern Skate Shops we don't hesitate to recommend an expensive boot with the least expensive blade. The boot is that much more important. There is advantage in better blades but it is small as compared with the advantage of better boots.

Reliance Employees Motor Patrol Award

Robert Maguire of Albertson, was one of sixteen honored at the Eighth Annual Award Ceremony for Civilian Radio Motor Patrol members which was held at Nassau County Police Headquarters in Mineola recently. Maguire, an employee of Reliance Utilities of Hicksville, was presented a certificate of award from Nassau County Police Commissioner, Samuel J. Rozzi and a $50.00 award from Citibank Vice President, Herb Myers for reporting the location of a vehicular accident to the police 911 emergency network.

Also cited was Maguire's co-worker, Dennis Leonard, of North Lindenhurst, who witnessed the accident and relayed the details to Maguire. The Citibank-sponsored Civilian Radio Motor Patrol was established to enlist the support of municipal, taxi and other company drivers and their dispatchers to utilize their two-way communication systems to alert police to emergency situations. The Civilian Radio Motor Patrol fleet numbers over 6,500 on Long Island.

NASSAU COUNTY POLICE Commissioner Samuel J. Rozzi and (right) Citibank Vice President in charge of Long Island Branches, Herb Meyers, congratulate Robert Maguire (2nd left) and Dennis Leonard.

The Homemakers Council of Nassau County will hold their monthly meeting on January 8, 1987 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at the Community Church on Stewart Avenue in Hicksville. Business Meeting "Image Consultant."

Every Second Counts

When it comes to him, CPR may be the most important skill you have.

Choking...suffocation...electrocution...heart attack...all life threatening possibilities in daily life. More than 650,000 people die annually from heart attack alone; 350,000 of these deaths occur outside the hospital.

St. Francis Hospital, New York State's leading Heart Center, offers a vital training program in CPR Training, which focuses on what to do during the critical period between such an occurrence and the arrival of an emergency medical team to help avert a tragic loss of life. CPR Training is simple and takes only three three-hour sessions for certification. Some 30,000 people have been trained through St. Francis Hospital's program, which is offered both at St. Francis and in the workplace through the Corporate On-site Program. Corporations cooperating in the workplace training program have recognized the benefit for employees, not only in terms of saving lives, but also in regard to the safety of the workplace in general.

Opening lead — king of spades.
One of the great advantages of playing a hand in a suit contract rather than in notrump, is that the defenders cannot run their long suit. The trumps act as stoppers and neutralize the tricks that the defenders would otherwise be able to score.
But this advantage does not protect declarer in every case. If the defenders persist with their long suit they may ultimately run declarer out of trumps and so score whatever cards they have left in their main suit.

Here is a case where the defense can assert its superiority in that fashion. West starts with three rounds of spades, forcing declarer to ruff.
Superficially it would seem that South is on solid ground, since he has four sure trump winners, three top diamonds and four top clubs. Nevertheless, South is doomed if the defense functions correctly.
At trick four, declarer leads the king of hearts. If West takes it with the ace, South waltzes home with the contract. But if West refuses the king, leaving himself with A-6-5 while South still has J-10-9, he retains control of trumps.
When South continues with the jack, West ducks again, thus permanently sealing declarer's fate. South now cannot afford another trump lead because West would take the ace and return a spade to force out declarer's last trump and so put the contract down two.
The best South can do after West twice refuses to take the ace is to try to cash as many winners as he can in diamonds and clubs. Eventually West ruffs one of them with his low trump and so defeats the contract one trick.

Collins Award

Michael Collins, Hicksville, who returned home to Long Island after spending the last two seasons with the Baltimore Blast, today was named the recipient of the November "Met Life Player of the Month" award for his contributions to the New York Express in the expansion club's first month of play in the Major Indoor Soccer League.

The Hicksville, New York native played in all five games in November, trying Njego Pesa for the team lead in scoring with seven points. Michael netted a club-high five goals and chipped in two assists.

"Michael was truly one of the team's bright spots in November," says Express Head Coach Ray Klivecka. "He was our top midfielder and really helped to keep us close in many of those defeats."

Besides his contributions as a midfielder, Michael also played in goal as the Express' sixth-attacker. In four games, he allowed just one goal in nearly 14 minutes in the nets. At the same time, the Express netted three scores with Collins leading the attack as the extra field player.

Collins and Pesa were responsible for 40% of the team's total offense in November, as the Express dropped its first five games in the "Misl", entering December without a win.

The six-year veteran broke into the "Misl" with the New York Arrows in 1981-82. After three seasons with New York, he signed a two-year contract with the Baltimore Blast. When a Long Island-based team returned to the league this season, Collins returned home.

Michael will receive the "Met Life Player of the Month" award at halftime of the Express-Cleveland Force game, at Nassau Coliseum. He will be honored for his achievement, along with the announcement of the December award-winner at the first of five "Met Life Player of the Month Luncheons", on January 5.

Express goalkeeper Hubert Birkenmeier was the runner-up to Collins for November honors.
