

Idling Truck Noise Irks Duffy Neighbors

By Rita Langdon

Benjamin Avenue residents opposed to a business idling its trucks early in the morning, plan to ask the Oyster Bay Town Board to place restrictions on the company's pending application for a special use permit, unless the problem is rectified.

The residents, all members of the Duffy Park Civic Association, said they are not opposed to the type of business of Oyster Bay Sand and Gravel or its pending application, but they find the noise from the idling trucks "intolerable," according to the civic association's president David Staton.

Approximately four diesel trucks idle for up to 15 minutes, sometimes as early as 3:30 in the morning, before they pull out onto Duffy Avenue, Staton said.

Resident Dee Kenny said that the noise is worse in the summertime when she has her windows open.

"My 3-year-old is awakened by the sound of the trucks... and it is very difficult to get him to go back to sleep."

Oyster Bay Sand and Gravel, at 292 Duffy Avenue, has applied to the town for the special use permit which includes permission to garage and service its trucks and equipment; to park its vehicles and equipment on its property; and to have materials, stockpiled, stored and sold from its location. No public hearing date has been set.

Staton said that if no solution can be reached prior to the hearing, his association will formally request the Town of Oyster Bay to place restrictions on the hours of operation "to protect the rights of the residents of Benjamin Avenue."

The residents met with the company's lawyer and owner, Jeffrey Funfgeld, last month to discuss problems residents had with the company's operations, Staton said.

Residents also complained that employees parking their vehicles on Duffy Avenue's dirt sidewalk is "unsightly" and that the company's grounds need landscaping.

Messages left by the Hicksville Illustrated for Funfgeld were not returned, but his secretary said, "None of our guys park on Duffy Avenue anymore." She added that Funfgeld has agreed to landscape the property.

Reached by telephone Monday, Staton said that automobiles have not parked on Duffy in front of Oyster Bay Sand and Gravel, because the police are ticketing the autos.

According to Staton, when he asked Funfgeld to change the starting time of his operations, Funfgeld said his trucks travel a great distance during the day to deliver to contractors and construction sites. To only begin these trips at 7 a.m., as the residents requested, Funfgeld's drivers would spend a great deal of time in traffic on the Long Island Expressway, Staton said.

The secretary did not comment on Staton's statement regarding Funfgeld.

Staton said, "Mr. Funfgeld was cooperative when residents brought up [the] two other points of concern... [but] that left only the issue of the truck noise—the most important issue—unresolved."

Hicksville Faces Tough Challenges in the 90s

By Michael J. Maloney

As we begin a new decade, Hicksville will be faced with new challenges and problems. Some problems will just be extensions of old ones, such as traffic, parking, homelessness and energy costs. Some problems we have never been experienced before, such as the aging population of Hicksville. And there will certainly be problems and challenges that no one can predict.

Hicksville historian Richard Evers believes that the 1990s will be a very important decade in terms of making changes that will benefit Hicksville not only in the '90s, but into the next century, as well.

Hicksville Fire Chief Tony Wigdzinski

"We are going to be pushed to make a lot of decisions. We are going to have to make some considerable modifications in our lifestyle," said Evers. "It's going to be a difficult, challenging and more trying decade. And I don't see how it can be done haphazardly. A lot more planning has got to come into the picture."

One of his main concerns is the lack of affordable housing for young families in Hicksville. "In all too many of these neighborhoods, its couples in their sixties and seventies living in houses that once had five or six people families," said Evers. "The town has got to relax the ordinances prohibiting two-family residences. They have to increase the number of possibilities for mother-daughter and two-family homes."

Evers is a supporter of civic-minded groups, such as the Duffy Park Civic Association and others, but believes that the different groups must work hand in hand to get more accomplished.

"The Town of Oyster Bay looks at us as a community that is not easy to deal with [due to so many different groups]. At times, these factions don't work together. I would hope in the next decade that we are going to learn to work together."

The homeless problem is also on Evers' agenda for the '90s. "Down at the railroad station is a situation that calls for more regulation," said Evers. "There is a lot of loitering. A lot of commuters are upset over the presence of people who are panhandling and look disreputable. The same problem they have in the city subways is present in Hicksville."

Ivan Czipott, the Hicksville Chamber of Commerce president, has a Hicksville agenda for the '90s, as well. "In the '90s, we plan to widen the base [of the Chamber]—to have representation from all business areas," said Czipott.

Ivan Czipott, Chamber of Commerce president

Czipott would like to see Hicksville further capitalize on its central Nassau County location by improving the commercial areas in the village. He hopes that the completion of the Broadway Mall will revitalize the image as a major commercial center on Long Island, as well.

"In addition," said Czipott, "we plan to work with the town government very closely to bring back the tree-lined streets that will improve the appearance and will bring shoppers to the area. We will make every effort to erase the remaining scars that the widening of Broadway left behind. "All in all," he continued, "we are looking 'o the '90s with optimism and I know with all the caring people, not only in the chamber, but in the active service organizations, we can make a difference to improve our town."

One big difference according to newly elected Fire Chief Tony Wigdzinski will be the opening of a second fire house on Levittown Parkway by March.

"We can't wait for that to open," said Wigdzinski. "There are a lot of problems with traffic. The town is just getting too big. It's taking too long to respond to calls. Hopefully when we open the new firehouse, our response time will be a lot better."

Wigdzinski said that the Hicksville Fire Department has not been affected by a lack of volunteerism seen in other departments. Even so, he feels that there could be more members if housing was a little cheaper in Hicksville. "It's pretty tough for a young guy to make it when he gets married. He has to work two jobs to make ends meet."

The fire department is not the only public service that is expanding. The Hicksville Public Library will be building an addition to house a new computer facility that will be for public use. The renovation of the Community Room will be welcomed by the groups that use the facility. The library will also be implementing a computerized circulation system that will use bar-coding to facilitate library procedures.

Even with all the improvements taking place at the library, Assistant Library Director Celeste Watman feels that the renovations are still not enough. "Space in the 1990s will always be a problem for us," she said. "We are bursting at the seams right now in terms of finding it difficult to constantly add new books to our collection at the current rate. Since we depend on constantly buying new materials, decisions have to be made — What do we keep? What do we get rid of?"

Watman is hoping that a younger population will begin to start using the library more. "I see some new families and younger people moving into the community with pre-school aged children," she said. "That will probably increase somewhat in the '90s. And, of course, the population is aging and people who have been living in this community for 20 or 30 years will be selling their homes to these new families."

Even with a small rise in the population, Watman doesn't see any additional people using the library. "I wish that more people in the community think of the library as the first place to go when they need practically any kind of information."

The challenges Hicksville faces in the 1990s may be a struggle, but with the determination of Hicksville's leaders, their goals stand a good chance of being achieved.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Chiesa

Lisa Santore Marries Alfredo Chiesa

Lisa Marie Santore and Alfredo Luigi Chiesa were married on June 4 at St. Ignatius Loyola RC Church in Hicksville. The nuptial mass was performed by the Rev. Andrew Pane.

Lisa is the daughter of Carmela and Michael Santore of Hicksville. Alfredo is the son of Anna and Luigi Chiesa, also of Hicksville, formerly of Jackson Heights.

Lisa's maid of honor was her twin sister Gina. Her bridesmaids included Brigitte Khouri, Joann Palermo and Karen Lange.

Her cousins, Christina Sciberras and Jacqueline Nichols were her junior bridesmaids.

Alfredo's best man was his cousin, Gian-Carlo Mazzanti. Ushers were Paul Bamundo, Joseph Palermo and Nick Ganio.

The reception was held at the Jericho Terrace in Mineola.

After honeymooning on Paradise Island and in Disney World, the newlyweds returned to their new home in Hicksville.

What A Great Couple!

For the past five years Joe Podbela and his wife, Dr. Sharon Essner, have visited the children at the Little Village School in Garden City at Christmas to bring presents to each and every one of them. Joe wears the traditional Santa Claus suit and the couple goes from room to room in the school which provides special educational services for developmentally delayed young children. Each child is given a gift which is purchased entirely by Joe and Sharon. This wonderful couple wants nothing in return—except to experience the joy and happiness of giving.

Dr. Essner is a dentist for children, adolescents and the handicapped... and guess what? Her practice is located right here in Hicksville. How fortunate we are to have such a loving, compassionate dentist like her in our midst.

Just Got Back

I've just returned from a trip to Vegas. While there we were coming out of the El Cortez when we noticed the Eye Witness News truck was interviewing someone. It was Cliff Robinson, one of the young men who parks the hotel's guests' cars, being interviewed about how he spent his holidays. We spoke to him after the interview and he said he had never had his name in the newspaper. I told him when I got back I would see to it that he would see his name in the paper—and here it is Cliff—your name in print. Happy New Year to a darling young man.

Appointed Assistant

Best of luck to Nicholas Turansky of Hicksville in his new job as assistant secretary of Roosevelt Savings Bank.

Nicholas, who joined the bank in 1987, is manager of the Deer Park banking office.

Prior to his promotion, he was an assistant manager at the Bellmore and Marine Park banking offices. He is a graduate of New York Institute of Technology, where he earned a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Theresa Liefke Graduated!

Congratulations to Theresa Liefke of Hicksville who received a bachelor's degree in community health at St. Joseph's College.

A Bachelor's For Glen

If you see Glen V. Ednie of Friendly Road in the area don't forget to congratulate him. Last month he received a bachelor's degree in business administration from SUNY at Oswego. Good luck in the future.

A Visit From a Rooster

We don't know how he got here, but for about three days last week, this red rooster was 'hanging out' at the Steinitz home on 16th Street.

The family said they felt sorry for the little fellow.

After a family member called a few animal shelters, "Red" was taken to Zorn's Poultry Farm in Bethpage. "They said they wouldn't cook him," said a family member who added that they have a petting zoo at the farm.

If "Red" decides to fly the coop again don't forget to give us a call at 747-8282.

Get Well Wishes

We're sending our get well wishes to Ronnie Riccardi who recently had surgery. Hope you're up and around soon, Ronnie.

"Belated happy birthday greetings Grandpa Dreher, from your kids and grandkids... Greg, Bonnie, Wendy, Ted, Ashley, Danielle, Dougie and Lindsay!"

Hi Cuz!

Todd, Brad, Evan and Shannon White, would like to welcome their newest cousin, Samantha Lynn DiFronzo, to the family.

Samantha was born December 23 at 5:05 p.m. to Joe and Rosemarie DiFronzo. Samantha was welcomed home by her big sister, Danielle, who turned two years old on Dec. 27, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe DiFronzo and Mr. and Mrs. John Wall, along with her cousins, aunts and uncles... and she was especially welcomed by her Aunt Mary Ryan.

Ed. Note: The DiFronzos have a daughter who has a birthday two days before Christmas and a daughter who has a birthday two days after Christmas. I wonder if they have any more if they can plan it for Christmas Day? Wouldn't that be nice?

Didja' Hear?

We were very sorry to learn about George's Meat Market on East Marie Street, closing. George's Market was a well-known meat market for almost 35 years. Old timers and newcomers met there week after week and got to know each other while waiting for their orders. George Spatz had a great personality, always had a smile, and knew most of the families in Hicksville. He will really be missed.

The thing that makes a small town nice is the personally-owned shops. We're really sorry to see the store empty. Dan Davidson, one of his butchers, is going to work at a shop in Bethpage.

Youngsters Entertained

Allison's School of Dance (operated by former Hicksvillite Allison Spettmann) presented its annual holiday benefit shows in December at the Bel Air Nursing Home and the A. Holly Patterson Home for the Aged. Some of the dancers are only four years old and yet they all went to the shows with sequins in their hair and smiles on their faces. How happy the older people were to see such beautiful little faces and bodies dancing and singing. Allison's daughter, Erica, and Gail (Spettmann) Castoro's daughter, Katherine, were two of the youngsters who performed. Thanks go to all the girls, to their parents, and to the dance instructors for all their time and caring.

A Great Gift

Susan and Bob Losco were given a special Christmas gift from their son Tom. Tom made the dean's list in Culinary Arts at Johnson and Wales University in Providence, Rhode Island.

Ed. Note: Bob said he can't wait 'till the springtime so he can get out on the golf course with Joe Ferguson—and beat him hole for hole.

Heating Unit Fires on Rise Says Fire Dept.

Take Proper Safety Measures

During the past few weeks, the cold weather has caused heating units to work overtime resulting in nine oil burner fires in Hicksville, according to the Hicksville Fire Department.

The department is urging residents to keep their heating units tuned up, cleaned and serviced by qualified repair people. Most of the problems were caused by clogged nozzles.

Another safety hint is to keep the area around the oil burner clear of combustible materials. Know how to shut off the oil supply from the tank to the burner. At any hint of a problem, turn off the electrical switch. In many situations, it can keep a fire from starting or at least keep the damage at a minimum. Levitt style homes whose burners are in the kitchen or under stairs require constant cleaning of dust. Many fires originate due to dust accumulations.

Kerosene heaters and electric heaters help out in cold snaps such as we are in now but basic safety steps are required.

- Keep heating units away from exits and any furniture and wraps.
- Never fuel a heater in the house.
- Never refuel a hot or working kerosene heater, kerosene ignites easily.
- Watch where you plug in electric heaters, overloaded electrical circuits start many serious fires.
- Hazardous fumes can build up in a home closed up tightly. Be sure you provide good ventilation. Leave a window open a little to cleanse the air you breathe.

TO YOUR HEALTH

By RICHARD H. BLAU, M.D.

Psooriasis and Arthritis

My patients are surprised to learn that psoriasis may be associated with arthritis. Psoriasis is a skin condition well known to most people. Red, scaling patches are visible around the elbows and knees. Often, the fingernails and scalp are also involved.

It is estimated that as many as 10% of patients with psoriasis also suffer from a very special type of arthritis. This form, called Psoriatic Arthritis, is very different from other types of arthritis discussed in previous articles.

Psoriatic arthritis often attacks the end joints of the fingers. In addition to joint involvement, swelling of an entire finger or toe may occur. A recent study at the University of Southern California found that psoriatic arthritis patients can suffer from significant arthritis of the neck.

The overall prognosis of untreated psoriatic arthritis is variable. Some patients have very little discomfort while others have significant disability. Obviously a correct diagnosis is very important. These patients often come to the attention of the rheumatologists (arthritis experts) for diagnosis and treatment.

Treatment for psoriatic arthritis may be complex. The rheumatologist will often work with the dermatologist to control the disorder. Anti-inflammatory medications, exercise, and joint protection are very effective treatments.

Arthritis strikes one out of seven people. Learn the facts. Call for your complimentary copy of "The Joint Approach: An Arthritis Overview."

Attorney Hired For Twin County Case

Oyster Bay Town Supervisor Angelo A. Delligatti recently announced the hiring of Michael T. Hopkins, Esq., to serve as a special counsel in connection with litigation involving the asphalt manufacturing plants in Hicksville.

Delligatti said, "Two asphalt operations, Twin County Recycling Corporation and Zara Construction Company, are presently conducting business under Special Use permits they received a number of years ago. Residents living in the vicinity of these plants have continually lodged complaints with the Town that the covenants and restrictions placed on these two operations have been and are being routinely violated. With the assistance of specialized legal counsel, we intend to bring enforcement action against these violators."

A highly respected attorney with expertise in zoning matters, Hopkins will execute whatever measures are necessary in order to obtain total compliance with all of the Special Use covenants and restrictions placed on the two operations.

When informed of the Town's decision, Arthur Uhlich, a long-time resident of West Nicolai Street and one of Twin County's most vociferous opponents, said "I am very pleased and encouraged by the Town's decision. It has taken seven years to reach this point where some progress is evident and I think it is a huge step in the right direction."

Another long-time opponent of Twin County, David Staton, also of West Nicolai Street, said,

Town Board Members Take Oath of Office

Angelo Delligatti officially began his second term as Town of Oyster Bay Supervisor at induction ceremonies Jan. 2.

Joined by his wife, Mary, and his children, Delligatti was sworn in to the office by Senator Ralph Marino. Also being inducted at the Town Hall ceremonies were Councilmen Howard Hogan, Douglas Hynes and Leonard Symons.

Marino, borrowing from comments made by his wife, Ethel, described Delligatti as "a breath of fresh air" who has brought a "winning style" to Oyster Bay government.

The Supervisor, who prefaced his address with an admission of dislike for delivering prepared, public speeches, said that "things are going well" under his administration. He said that in the next two years of his term the town will be looking to improve its recycling program; plant 500 trees throughout the township each planting season; assist Grumman employees with their career transitions; increase the activity of the Landmark Preservation Committee; allocate more funds to the acquisition of open space; and "maintain the quality of life we came here for."

Councilman John Venditto, who served as the Master of Ceremonies at the induction, thanked the officials who took part in and attended the ceremony, including Marino, County Executive Thomas Gulotta and various judges. Venditto credited Delligatti with assuring the success of the town's Republican incumbent candidates during November's elections.

"The residents spoke in a loud voice to return the Delligatti team to office," Venditto said. "The success should be credited to the accessibility of the Supervisor's office where things are getting better all the time."

Other Inductions

Marino also administered the oath office to Symons, of Plainview, who was described as "one of the hardest campaigners" and credited for bringing "a sense of humor to the job." Symons, who had been appointed last January to the council seat after Kenneth Diamond's retirement, was elected to the office for the first time last November.

Douglas Hynes was joined by his wife and daughter as he was sworn in by Surrogate Court Judge C. Raymond Radigan of Syosset. Howard Hogan, also an incumbent Councilman, was accompanied by his parents, wife and children.

Town Clerk Carl Marcellino, a resident of Syosset, was also inducted.

Letters From Our Readers

Letters to the editor are welcomed by the editors and publishers of the Anton Community Newspapers. However, they must follow certain guidelines in order for us to print them: they should be as short as possible; we reserve the right to edit in the interest of space; they MUST be signed (a typed name at the bottom will not suffice); they must include an address and telephone number so that we can verify their authenticity. We receive many fine letters which we would like to share with our readers, but we are unable to use them because they are unsigned or have a typewritten name only.

We cannot publish every letter we receive because of space limitations, but we try to present both sides of all issues. Personal attacks and letters considered to be in poor taste will not be printed.

True Spiritual Meaning

To The Editor:

One night in mid-December, I received a telephone call from a woman who identified herself as a grade school teacher. I was to learn later that she was one of a teaching team for first and second graders at the Woodland Avenue School in Hicksville. It seems that Elayne Kabakoff and Beverly Browne had been doing a fine job of imparting to their classes the true spiritual meaning of their holidays. The children were genuinely aware that it is, indeed, more blessed to give than to receive.

The classes spirited a project to raise funds for a donation to those less fortunate than they. When the fund became significant, the children voted to donate the fruits of their efforts to the Hicksville I.N.N., our Soup Kitchen.

As a member of the I.N.N.'s Board of Directors, I was invited to join the children in a joyous holiday celebration on Friday, Dec. 22, the first day of Hanukkah, and three days prior to the Christmas nativity. The youngsters received me warmly on a bitter cold day. They sang and acted out a lusty rendition of the Twelve Days of Christmas, and they proudly related to me how they had raised the funds for the homeless people in our community.

I was deeply touched when the children handed me a check for over $600, to be used by the I.N.N. to help the homeless and needy.

Dr. Mannus J. Clancy, the principal of Woodland Avenue School joined the celebration and soon the photographers from The Hicksville Illustrated arrived to take the "picture worth a thousand words".

I thanked the little ones and told them that in my prayers, I would thank God for all the good things they had done. One little one raised her hand to say that she would pray that some day we wouldn't even have a word like "homeless" in our language. That summed up everyone's feelings. As I was about to leave, a younger sister of one of the first graders arrived breathlessly — clutching in her mittened hand, a sandwich bag full of pennies. She had emptied her piggy bank and wanted to add her treasure to the check I had received!

And so amidst the darkness of this world's chaos and greed, shines the light of love, kindled, in this instance, by two teachers who are beautiful people. The Hicksville school system can well be proud of Elayne Kabakoff and Beverly Brown, and for the good works and spirit that they have conveyed to their charges.

Financial Support

To The Editor:

The holidays are now past, but we at the Hicksville Chamber of Commerce plan to continue our efforts to beautify our community for the enjoyment and benefit of all.

Hicksville dressed up for the holiday season! The Rotary Club decorated a lovely tree just north of the fountain, the Chamber of Commerce purchased banners for downtown Broadway between the railroad to just past Old Country Road, and the Spiegel Organization donated 20 planters which the Town of Oyster Bay supplied plantings. This is a perfect example of the Town and private industry working for the benefit of the community. I hope that the example will be contagious and that others will follow.

The Chamber plans to expand the decorations throughout the business area in the future, and we are soliciting financial support from our community. We are inviting you to join a group of special people who care about the appearance of our community. Won't you please make a contribution check payable to: The Hicksville Chamber of Commerce, 240 Old Country Road, Hicksville, New York 11801. At-ention: Decoration Committee, to help us make Hicksville one of the most beautiful places to be.

The Committee joins me in wishing you a very prosperous and healthy New Year, and we thank you in advance for your support.

We've Found A Sponsor

To The Editor:

Back in November, Boy Scout Troop 683, out of Willet Avenue School, Hicksville, found itself in a dilemma. We were due to re-charter in December and were told at the last minute that our sponsoring organization, who had sponsored us for over 30 years, was no longer interested in the Scouting program. I sent a letter of appeal to this paper hoping to find another group to sponsor us.

I am happy to report that community spirit and civic mindedness is very much alive and well in Hicksville! We received several concerned calls from civic, fraternal and religious organizations wanting information on sponsorship of our troop. A brother Scout Troop called saying that we were welcome to combine with them if we couldn't get a sponsor. To all those good people, the Scouts and Adult leaders of Troop 683 offer our deepest gratitude and sincerest thanks.

We would also like to thank The Knights of Columbus, Joseph Barry Council, Hicksville, who is our new sponsor! We are very proud to be able to carry on the high ideals of Scouting in your name.

A Vote of Confidence

To The Editor:

The result of the December 12 Fire Commissioner election was a victory for the entire community of Hicksville. I appreciate the vote of confidence, and will perform in a manner which will honor my campaign pledges.

Without this support of my fellow firemen, civic groups, and the community at large, the outcome would not have been such a strong mandate. I would like to thank the residents of Hicksville for their vote of confidence.

Joseph D. Giardina

An Apology

To The Editor:

The following is being published upon request:

To the residents of Hicksville:

As Chief of the Hicksville Fire Department, I wish to apologize to the residents of Hicksville for actions taken by certain members of this department on November 26, 1989.

This department upholds its highest integrity and pride in service to its community.

The action taken by some of its members on this day was not conducted in a professional manner.

Again, I wish to apologize to those who were offended—and to the entire community.

Paying For College

When I went to the butcher during the last holiday season he let me know that he was a regular reader of this column. Since I am always looking for ideas as to what to write about, I asked, Ergo, this column. Incidentally, if readers of this column want a topic discussed, let me know. I will try to work them in as fast as possible.

U.S. Savings Bonds. On January 1st the rules of the game had a change that everyone should know. Savings bonds, usually a good investment, have been made better. Now you can use the funds invested in EE savings bonds to finance your children's education for college. There are some rules to be observed. If you follow the simple rules, All of the Interest is Tax Free. Yes, tax free, not tax deferred. You do not ever have to pay any tax on it.

The most important rule is that the bonds to be used for educational purposes must be in the name of either parent. They cannot be in the name of the child. They cannot be in the name of a different child who turns them over to the brother or sister. They cannot be "cash-ed" by a brother or sister for a sibling. They can only be in the name of the parent and "cash-ed in" by them to pay a college or other educational bill.

One client had told me that she believed that there was an income level to negate this provision. I checked with the Federal Reserve. There is no ceiling, no bracket restrictions. Regardless of income, the tax is exempt. This is good news.

The second rule is that they must be purchased by the parents, in the parents' name, after January 1, 1990. Forget any EE bonds purchased before 1990. They will continue to be tax deferred, but not tax exempt for educational purposes. Grandparents cannot buy the bonds in their children's name and then have the bonds be used for the grandchildren at education time. The income will not be tax exempt. They must be purchased by the parent.

The grandparents can gift their children the money and then have the money go to purchase EE bonds. The drawback to this is that your children may not use the money for the grandchildren's education. Control of the money is lost. That becomes a matter of faith that your children will use the money as you intended.

The other benefits of EE bonds remain. Right now it is paying 6.98 percent, adjusted every six months. The rate is a floating rate based on 85 percent of competitive government bond rate. There is a floor of 6 percent. This means that over the life of the bond you will not receive less than 6 percent. To state this another way, you will receive 6 percent minimum tax deferred with a higher rate possible if the interest rate goes up. You cannot purchase more than $15,000 a year for any one person.

Do not forget that there is $10,000 per person per year gift ceiling. My article of 8/28/86, "U.S. Savings bonds," is available and relevant. Write to the paper for a copy.

A second method is to buy what is known as "zero coupon bonds" in the child's name. Timethem for the college year tuition bills. The drawback is that the child may not go to college and the money is theirs. The other drawback is that the increase in annual value is taxed without you receiving any money to pay the taxes. This is known as "phantom income." Also, any child under 14 pays the taxes at the parent's bracket. (A popular misconception is that this raises the parents' tax bracket. Not true. The rate is the parents' the money

A Letter from Lulabelle...

... The holidays are over and even I have taken down the decorations and the tree... I put it up about the second week of December and keep it until Epiphany so I do get a long run of enjoyment... but how I hate to take it down and accept that it's really over!!... All those boxes that are awaiting the ornaments are not really empty, of course... that's just the things we didn't use this year, and heaven help anyone who suggests that we should throw away even one of those precious things — a bit of fake holly or a tattered ball — all are special and, even if they didn't make it to being used this year, they do have a future... The house looks strangely empty and stark without every corner being draped and every table top covered with some kind of decoration... It's rather sad — but also rather refreshing to be back to normal — and to have the wonderful memories of another lovely holiday... All the good boxes are saved for another time and all the others, meaning those that fold flat and never seem to stay open while you put the ribbon around, are long since on their way — to recycling, maybe?... And now it's time to write the thank you letters and to try to send those Christmas cards which were returned with the wrong address or "forwarding expired"... We have to contact our faraway friends so that they don't think they have joined the long list of those crossed out on our Christmas card list!!... If you had a real tree, you can be vacuuming pine needles until next July, but for those of us who have given up and bought a fake, there's not even that good smell left from all the festivities... but it was such a great holiday... I hope you can say the same!!

Yours, Lulabelle

credited is not added to the parent taxable income.)

A third and last method is to place money with a college now to pay for the tuition in the future. The college invests the money in a zero coupon bond (their income is all tax free) and the future tuition is paid, guaranteed. It sounds great because we all want our kids to go to the same college we did, so why not make it possible. There are some drawbacks to this approach. First, the college could go out of business. Forget the money. Second, if your child does not go to your college for whatever reason, you will get back your tuition contribution without any increase in the value. You do not get a deduction for the lost value increase. There is no guarantee that your child will be accepted or want to go where you went.

Need postage stamps and the post office is closed or you don't feel like going to the post office?

The Postal Service has introduced a new program that makes purchasing stamps as easy as a trip to your corner store. The supermarkets are now selling $5 stamp booklets.

"We are happy to be working with another member of our community to expand our stamp sales to non-Postal retail units," said Donald D. Dillman, acting general manager/postmaster, Long Island division.

"This program makes postal retail services more convenient for our customers. Stamp consignment is another way the Postal Service is meeting its customers' needs."

ROBERT R. McMILLAN'S

Direct Line

"Legalize drugs?" That is the latest cry of a misguided federal judge who would look the other way as all forms of drugs eat away at the social fabric of this nation. Other public figures, including conservative columnist William Buckley, have been just as foolish. Remember back to the sixties and early seventies. Some lame-thinking ideologues were advocating the legalization of marijuana. They maintained that there were no consequences to smoking pot. No consequences — just brain deterioration, fetal damage for pregnant women, and a path to the use of hard drugs such as crack and cocaine.

To give up on drugs would be a surrender of national will. To abandon a greater portion of our citizens to a life of despair and frustration is morally indefensible. Some drugs cannot be experimented with. Crack is addicting. I cannot believe that America is ready to give up to the drug lords and leave this issue to the direction of criminals. And, how would those in favor of legalization handle drugs for the poor — through "drug stamps?"

Public safety has been threatened by drug use. Planes and trains have crashed. The losses have been high to both businesses and individual families.

We are lost in a maze of "averaging out." As soon as the nation accepts the lowest common denominator in dealing with the drug menace or any other aspect of our society, we might as well be dead. The United States has never settled. "Averaging out" should not become a national norm. The lowest common denominator should be rejected. Our quest should always be for excellence! Climbing the highest mountain should not translate into nestling down in a pleasant valley.

National efforts should be directed to raising standards for all — not lowering them because of a few. For those with both an economic and structured family advantage, drugs are a sign of family fragmentation and society's failure to reinforce the values of right and wrong. To some extent that failure has always been with us. But, drugs have accentuated the deterioration. They have made it impossible for many families to overcome peer pressure.

For others, if there were opportunities instead of walls, drugs would not be the focus of life. People are often rejected because of perception. And the perceptions are elongated, because we do not deal with the underlying factors. The ferocious gyrations of race relations, drifting moral values, and generation after generation of welfare families make it difficult for many to lift themselves from the swamp of their realities. The generalities which follow build the walls. The walls build the frustration. Our national policies fail to educate, fail to uplift, and prohibit many from having the opportunity to fully participate. The result is that drugs for many of our poor and minorities become the only way out.

Rather than legalize drugs, we should reinforce programs to deal with the underlying problems and hit harder those involved in drug trafficking. Values must also be reinforced.

There is a drug "war" going on. People are getting killed every day — on the streets of Colombia and the United States. The courts are overworked. The hands of law enforcement are tied in many respects. Yet, the police and federal agents keep fighting.

Surrender now? That notion should be rejected, and the answer must be a more effective "war" coupled with a sustained and upgraded attack on the underlying reasons for drug use — both among the affluent and the poor. Legalization will not deal with one underlying reason for drug abuse. It will only perpetuate a growing underclass.

Are you searching for a new BUSINESS SERVICES opportunity?
How about helping to clean up the GOOD EARTH from the messes we have made? This is a very big NOW problem of crisis proportions. Mountains of trash accumulate everywhere daily.
We can't keep on killing Lake Erie, poisoning the Mississippi River, ruining the oceans, making smog of the air we breathe, polluting our water supply, burying our garbage only to have it work its way back to the surface, disease laden, rat infested.
Consider discarded plastics. Microorganisms in the soil won't eat this stuff and rats have more sense. Smart, those rats! They smell poison before they touch it.
Pogo said it best: "WE HAVE MET THE ENEMY AND THEY ARE US."

If you love our beautiful America, if you would like to help home owners and businesses, industries and manufacturers "get their act together," then announce your new services proudly to everybody.

Where? In the classifieds. In the BUSINESS SERVICES.
Are you ready for recycling services? Glass? Metal? Paper? Plastics? Reclamation?
People believe what they read in their newspapers. Always have. You can attract a steady stream of appreciative customers from your ads in BUSINESS SERVICES classifieds.

President Kennedy once said, "Don't ask what your country can do for you. Ask what you can do for your country."
Those little 2 line classifieds won't do the job. You need a more complete message about your new services, what you do, how you work.

The EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) is doing all it can to inspire us to save ourselves. They have scads of information on helping you get started.
Like most Americans, you can join Bradward in thanking God on bended knee every day that we are not getting nearly so much government as we are paying for.

Martin Burns — Talking Straight

I don't suppose that I am breaking any new journalistic ground by pointing out that more often than not when the officials of the federal government speak, they often do so in cautious and bureaucratic terms. Very rarely do you find the new head of a federal agency willing to criticize its past performance, regardless of how atrocious it might have been.

It appears that Gwendolyn King, the new Commissioner of the Social Security Administration (SSA), is such a rare commodity. In the past, the SSA has been accused of removing individuals from disability benefits with little compassion or even regard for due process.

There are approximately 4.4 million people in the United States receiving disability benefits. To qualify for these benefits, in addition to the medical evidence, an individual must show that he has assets less than $2,000 and earns less than $9,852 a year.

During the early years of the Reagan administration, many people were arbitrarily removed from the disability rolls, although a significant number of these people won reinstatement through legal action, the policy did irreparable damage to our most helpless citizens.

In a nation-wide satellite hook-up, King spoke to SSA employees around the country. She certainly laid her cards on the table: "Let me say this in the most direct, unambiguous way possible, I will not tolerate this happening again. If one, just one, beneficiary, is wrongly denied his or her benefits, that is a tragedy, nothing less. We will not permit such tragedy to take place."

King has been praised for her actions by several senators including, David Pryor (D-Ark.), the chairman of the Senate's Selection Committee on Aging, and Daniel Patrick Moynihan, the chairman of the Senate Finance Subcommittee on Social Security.

The road ahead for King will not be smooth and there is much that she must do to put the SSA back on course. Nevertheless, she has made a fine start by reminding her employees that they are there to serve the public — and not the other way round.

When he accepted the Republican nomination for the presidency, George Bush said that he wanted "a kinder and gentler nation." It appears that King is doing her best to make the president's words a reality.

During the 1988 presidential campaign, the then vice president George Bush said that he would be a president who truly cared about the environment. He pledged that during his administration there would be "no net loss" of wetlands. Wetlands are considered by environmentalists to be vital to the maintenance of ecosystems. In addition, they also play a very useful role in naturally maintaining water quality through a filtering action.

It appears as if the Fish and Wildlife Service took the president at his word and produced a comprehensive plan to protect tidal swamps, estuaries, and other types of wetlands. Many attribute this plan to the service's new head, former Wyoming state legislator, John Turner. Turner has strong conservation credentials and his appointment was widely hailed by environmental interest groups.

The wetlands plan produced by the Fish and Wildlife Service contained some sobering statistics. The authors of the plan argue that unless strong wetlands preservation is put into force now, the United States will lose forever approximately 4.2 million acres. One observer points out that this area is larger than the states of Rhode Island and Connecticut combined.

This ambitious wetlands preservation program has apparently been shot down by opposition from the Interior Department. In "bureaucratized" it has been downgraded to a "proposal." The Department of Energy is reported to be concerned that it could have crippled oil development plans for Alaska's north slope.

None of this means, of course, that George Bush is any less committed to the cause of wetlands preservation than he was during the presidential campaign. Sometimes the president has a difficult time getting the bureaucracy to do what he and the Congress wants it to do. Any good bureaucrat knows that presidents and members of Congress come and go, but the bureaucracy remains.

This may be one of those times when the problem lies in bureaucratic implementation. The administration took a significant step in the direction of wetlands protection when it got the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Army Corps of Engineers to agree on guidelines for wetlands protection. These two agencies of the federal government are usually not on very friendly terms. Some strong presidential action is what is needed to put the policy back on track.

Russians visit Economic Times

Call their trip a success

by Ellen Cooke
ECONOMIC TIMES of Long Island

As part of their four-week tour of the United States, 30 senior-level Soviet executives recently visited the offices of the Economic Times of Long Island. The Russians are all members of the State Agrochemical Association of the Soviet Union, Russia's first trade association with approximately one million members. This was the group's first trip to the United States, for the express purpose of studying U.S. management styles. However, according to Spencer Ross, president of the National Institute for World Trade (the organization that, along with the Trade Department of PTC Ltd., sponsored the trip), it certainly will not be their last.

"We hope to play an active part in future trips," said Mr. Ross. "We'd like to make Long Island a center for this type of East-West trade stimulation and training." As far as the current trip is concerned, Mr. Ross stated that Long Island is rich in the types of business and educational resources necessary to make a trip of this sort a success. He said that while it might at first glance, seem unusual to have a group from the agricultural/minerals sector meet on Long Island, "You don't have to be in the middle of a phosphate mine in order to conduct trading and training operations."

Most of the companies the Soviets visited were on Long Island. They went to such diverse locales as Hofstra University, the Long Island Association, Edwards & Angell, American Ref-Fuel, SUNY Stony Brook, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and Computerland. The group also visited the New York Stock Exchange and was scheduled to go to Washington D.C. and St. Louis to finish up their trip. According to Mr. Ross, "All of the executives had technical and management backgrounds; on this trip, they were primarily interested in marketing, labor/management relations and planning. These areas are receiving particular emphasis during our program which covers many technical, cultural and business subjects." From the reactions of group members themselves, the trip has helped them move closer to their goals.

A Primary Objective: Enhanced U.S./Soviet Trade
The group's recent visit to the Economic Times of Long Island consisted of a lecture on the workings of a weekly business publication and a tour of the Anton Community Newspapers sales offices and typesetting and printing facilities. The Soviets expressed a great deal of curiosity and interest regarding the staffing requirements and costs of producing a newspaper in the United States, as well as the targeted audience for a weekly business publication on Long Island. (Russia has various daily, weekly and monthly trade and business publications of its own, including the Economic Gazette, a Soviet version of The Wall Street Journal).

They were also interested in learning about the demographics of Long Island and on a broader level, how U.S. companies feel about doing business with the Soviet Union. They are seeking to pave the way for future U.S./Soviet business partnerships and ventures by making Americans more informed about how to do business in Russia and by learning more about the American way of doing business. Said Mr. A. Polishka, Director General (C.E.O.) of Uralkaly (Industrial Corporation), "We wanted to learn more about the American people, their way of life and how they organized management at their firms. Our objective is to accept all of the developments related to better efficiency and quality.

One group member, Mr. V.A. Kaitmazov, director general of Phosphates, expressed optimism on this score: "I believe that the near future will bring about especially rapid progress in trade between the two countries." And Mr. Ross agreed that, "Almost overnight, barriers to U.S./Soviet trade are being lowered."

When asked, specifically, what Soviet developments or technology might be interesting to U.S. companies, Mr. V. Zhizhin, director general of Tech Energochimprom, replied, "We believe we can offer technology and equipment to process toxic wastes from industrial plants, including haloid-organic compounds; also chlorine-based compounds, phosphorus, fluorine, sulfur and other chemicals."

Optimism About the Future
As they return to the Soviet Union, the group takes back some very favorable opinions of America and the prospects for enhanced trade relations. Mr. V. Starodubtsev, Director General of Chardjow Chemical Works, described a friendly exchange that could lead to future business opportunities for both sides: "During the first ten days of the program we have already had discussions with a large group of American specialists and we met many American common people. We are under a most favorable impression about American people.

"Our discussions have been frank and friendly. Our group is interested in management and trade principles. We are interested in environmental practices and also in items like joint venture establishment, trade and the other directions of mutual relations."

Financial Review

Orange juice from Great Neck?

Orange juice is one of the most competitive products in the supermarket. Quite a bit of juice is sold as frozen concentrate, but the real battleground seems to be in the chilled juice area. More specifically, we're talking about the premium priced not-from-concentrate products. This upper-echelon segment of the U.S. fruit beverage market is dominated by Tropicana, a unit of Seagram Co., and Minute Maid, part of the Coca-Cola Co.

An innovative Great Neck-based company has managed to produce a superior-tasting juice product while steering clear of the marketing battles between the juice giants. The Fresh Juice Company, an over-the-counter traded company was founded just four years ago by Steven Smith who was then the general manager of Elmhurst Milk & Cream. Mr. Smith told me he tasted some fresh-squeezed juice just shipped from Florida and was surprised at the difference in taste, even with the premium chilled juice products. It seems that the taste difference is caused by the pasteurization process.

Unlike dairy products, citrus juices don't have to be pasteurized to kill harmful bacteria. The only reason chilled juice is pasteurized is to extend shelf life. Smith found a way around this problem. By placing the fresh juice in sealed plastic containers, then quickly freezing the juice, the product's shelf life was extended without using pasteurization.

The company is so sure of its ability to extend shelf life that it doesn't process juice throughout the year. Instead, processing takes place only five-to-six months per year. This way the company insures that only the highest quality juice oranges are used. Although this creates a risk that inventories won't match up with orders during the off-season, so far Fresh Juice has managed to forecast product demand correctly.

The product is sold under the name "Just Pik't." I recently tried both the orange and grapefruit versions (apple and lemonade are also available), and I thought the taste was great. My only complaint was that although the package is designed to expand when frozen and then contract when thawed, the cap didn't contract at the same rate and was too loose to provide an adequate seal.

The company has grown at an extraordinary rate. For the three months ended August 31, 1989, Fresh Juice Company earned $150,000 on $1,285,000 of sales. This compares with $23,000 of earnings on $929,000 of sales during the same period last year. Shareholders haven't been rewarded yet for this growth. The shares (FRSH, Nasdaq) had traded as high as 6 7/8 in 1987, and 5 3/8 in 1988, but now seems stuck in the 1 1/2-1 7/8-range.

I think Fresh Juice is really on to something. Their product has a good distinctive taste. They've already received patent protection for the process of preparing frozen fruit juice from fresh unpasteurized citrus fruit juice. For now though, I don't think Tropicana or Minute Maid has anything to worry about. For one thing, I haven't seen Just Pik't in large containers, only single servings. Another problem was price. An 8-ounce container of juice cost ninety cents, while the same store sold a 12-ounce can of soda for seventy cents. The problem of price isn't insurmountable, but heavy marketing needs to be done to convince consumers that this premium product is worth the premium price.

It will be interesting to see what happens with this company. Mr. Smith says he doesn't need additional financing to grow. Others in the beverage industry have found that once their company has grown to achieve some measure of success, a merger partner is needed to gain access to large-scale distribution channels. The most recent example of such an acquisition was the purchase of Soho Natural Soda by Seagram in March.

With a good product and strong growth prospects, we should be hearing more about The Fresh Juice Co.

Goldome purchase by Manufacturers

ECONOMIC TIMES of Long Island

In what is the largest acquisition of deposits in U.S. banking history, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company recently completed the purchase of 11 Goldome branches in the New York metropolitan area—four of which are on Long Island (Dix Hills, Garden City, Hauppauge, and Manhasset). The purchase includes approximately $1.2 billion in deposits.

William Buckingham, executive vice president in charge of branch banking at Manufacturers Hanover said that, "The acquisition provides MHT with a substantial increase in lower-cost core deposits without growth in assets and associated capital requirements." He added that, "The new branches will expand our highly profitable network in the metropolitan area and increase our market share of consumer deposits."

According to Martin Grossman, vice president in charge of MHT's Long Island branches, "Manufacturers Hanover has had a long-standing tradition of offering quality service to our retail and commercial customers on Long Island. With this acquisition, we are expanding our network into markets where we have been looking to establish a presence." He also said that "we are excited about the opportunity to provide our new clients with the wide range of products and services on which we have built our reputation."

Stop Auto Accidents Before They Happen

The more experienced we become as drivers, the less attentive we tend to be to the basic rules of highway safety. Instead of concentrating on safe driving, we allow our minds to wander to an upcoming business meeting or what's needed from the grocery store. Lack of attention causes many needless highway deaths and injuries each year. The next time you get into the car, concentrate on these basic rules to assure your trip is a safe one.

5. Don't follow another vehicle too closely. The three-second rule is a safe standard to follow. Watch when the car in front of you passes a certain point, then begin counting — one-one thousand, two-one thousand, three-one thousand. If you've already passed the same point, you're following too closely.

1. Be mindful of everything in front of you for at least 100 yards, including other vehicles, signals, signs, crosswalks and roadside activity. Be ready to react to anything that may change the pace of traffic.

3. Always signal and be sure the lane is clear before changing lanes or making a turn. Watch for other drivers who are turning or changing lanes.

6. If it's near dusk or raining, turn on your headlights. Increased visibility means increased safety.

2. Look in your rear view mirror every 10 seconds to remain aware of positions and speed of approaching vehicles.

4. When stopped at a red light, keep your eyes on the car in front of you, not on the light. Keep your foot on the brake until the vehicle ahead begins to move.

7. Drive at or below the posted speed limit and adjust your speed according to weather and traffic conditions.

High-speed ground transportation our future?

by Martin Burns
ECONOMIC TIMES of Long Island

The Coming Crisis

According to many experts, our nation faces a growing transportation crisis. Anyone who travels on a regular basis would probably agree that congestion in our airways and roadways is increasing on a daily basis. It has been predicted that in 2005 highway vehicle delays will amount to 12 billion vehicle hours. The cost of delays in air travel will amount to $60 billion dollars.

The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) has come to the conclusion that the answer to this problem is not the building of more roads. In its most recent report to Congress, the FHWA concluded: "An estimated 11,000 to 15,000 additional lane miles ... beyond what is considered feasible for capacity addition by today's standards, must be added to maintain the overall ... conditions on both the rural and urban portions of the Interstate System."

High-Speed Ground Transportation: A Definition

One of the means that is mentioned as a solution to this transportation problem is high-speed ground transportation (HSGT). Before going any further, we must define what we mean by HSGT. There are two types. The first is known as steel wheel on steel rail, for example, the French National Railroads' Train a Grand Vitesse (TGV) which has a cruising speed of 187 m.p.h. and has been tested at speeds of over 200 m.p.h. For a point of reference, Amtrak's Metroliner from New York to Washington travels at approximately 125 m.p.h.

The second type of HSGT is known as magnetic levitation technology, most often referred to as maglev, a revolutionary form of transportation; in many respects it is a fusion of automobile, railroad, and air transportation. This new technology propels a train on a magnetized track at speeds up to almost 300 m.p.h.

Photo supplied by High Speed Rail Association

Will we ever see this high speed train streaking down the center of the LIE? The next decade will provide an answer.

Invention of Maglev

For those who live on Long Island, the history of the invention of maglev is especially relevant. According to one observer, maglev technology was first envisioned by Dr. James Powell as he was stuck in an enormous traffic jam on the Whitestone Bridge in February of 1960. Along with an associate from the Brookhaven National Laboratory, Dr. Gordon T. Danby, Powell presented the first paper on maglev technology in 1966.

Importance of HSGT for the Northeast

Either form of HSGT could make a major difference on travel in the northeastern region of the United States. Although one may be able to travel from airport to airport in a relatively short amount of time in the Northeast, arriving at your destination in the metropolitan area is often a different matter.

Often it takes longer to travel to the airport than to fly to Boston or Washington. HSGT offers the hope of reducing the time of door-to-door transportation.

Development of Maglev Technology

Although it was invented in the United States, we now lag behind in the development of maglev technology. In 1975, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) announced that maglev research was no longer a priority matter. Resources were diverted to more conventional rail transportation.

At this time other countries, such as Japan and Germany, were pursuing maglev technology with sustained interest. In 1972 the Japanese developed a maglev model and by 1979 they had tested a vehicle propelled by maglev at speeds approximating 320 m.p.h. The Japanese and German governments have provided extensive funding to maglev research and development through the years.

Public Policy Issues and HSGT

What has the federal government done to encourage the development of HSGT? Last year the Congress exempted from federal income tax revenue received on bonds which are issued for "high-speed, inter-city rail facilities." These types of bonds are widely known as exempt facility bonds.

One of the most enthusiastic proponents in the Congress of maglev technology, Senator Daniel Moynihan (D-NY) has introduced S.

221 which would give the various states the authority to use right-of-way along federal aid highways for the construction of maglev systems.

The federal government has also been involved in funding research and development of maglev technology. The fiscal year 1990 Energy and Water Development Appropriations Bill includes funding of $1 million for the Army Corps of Engineers to develop a research and development plan for maglev.

Maglev and Long Island

Many experts feel that the Long Island economy is in a period of restructuring in light of sharply reduced defense spending. Long Island has all of the factors which would enable it to become involved in making maglev technology a fact of life. Companies such as Grumman have the experience and expertise to become competitors in this field. The United States has lost out on the first generation of maglev technology. The question is whether or not we will be able to "leapfrog" back into competition.

The Future of Maglev

In 1843, the United States made a small investment in what was then a developing technology—the telegraph—as it provided funds to construct a telegraph line from Washington to Baltimore. This small investment led to the development of a communications industry which is preeminent in the world. An investment by the federal government in maglev may very well lead to the United States' playing a decisive role in the development of a truly revolutionary technology.

Without leadership from the federal government, history may write an ironic judgment on American efforts in this field. As Senator Moynihan puts it, "Fifteen years from now, when you settle in to your seat for the one-hour run from Chicago to Detroit, have a look under your seat cushion. My sincere hope is that you will not find a small tag that reads 'Maglev: invented by American scientists, made in West Germany.'"

There's work to be done on the railroad

By David Braverman
ECONOMIC TIMES of Long Island

I recently found the Long Island Railroad's monthly newsletter on the seat of my morning train to Manhattan. Inside, the railroad announced that its planned reconstruction of Jamaica Station was being scaled back. Instead of an extensive overhaul of the tracks and switches, which could have allowed express trains to bypass Jamaica at close to full speed, riders will be treated to a new pedestrian overpass. That's it. Not that I'm knocking the overpass; it's an improvement that eventually had to be done since it allows for handicapped access to the station. However, the new elevators at Jamaica don't help the handicapped that much if there's no way to get to and from the platforms at Penn Station.

The railroad says that since rush hour platform space at Penn Station is already at full capacity, faster switching at Jamaica isn't a real priority. The trains would only queue up near Manhattan.

This isn't the first time the railroad has changed its mind about a capital project. When my family moved to Suffolk County in 1967, my parents were under the mistaken impression that vast improvements to the LIRR were in the works. In fact, I remember a sign back then at the Northport station promising extension of electric train service. It didn't happen, and eventually the sign fell down.

In the 1970's, Port Jefferson branch riders were told that if the transportation bond issue passed, electric train service would be built. The bond issue did pass, and high level platforms were constructed. But the electric trains didn't come. The railroad said funding was insufficient to electrify to both Port Jeff and Ronkonkoma, so Ronkonkoma got the nod. The LIRR is now planning to use new dual powered locomotives and coaches in its diesel territory which can run throughout the system without requiring passengers to change trains.

These days, I'm one of the 4,000 who park their cars at Ronkonkoma and take the new electric train. It's a big improvement, shaving about 20 minutes on my commute to lower Manhattan. But it doesn't go far enough to meet Long Island's growing transportation needs.

The LIRR argues that extensive improvements to expand rush hour capacity aren't needed since demand for rush hour commuter service to New York is flat. I'm not sure I buy that. It seems more likely that ridership isn't growing because the service is capacity constrained. A look at Ronkonkoma tells the story. Ridership there seems to grow as fast as the amount of available parking. Recently, the railroad added a new 800 car parking lot which is now almost completely filled.

In case you're wondering what impact all this has on you lucky folks who live close to your Long Island jobs, just think about the potential improvement in property values if your home was suddenly 15-20 minutes closer to Manhattan. In my office, I work with people who commute to the Princeton-Trenton area. This region is further from New York City than Yaphank, but because the NJ Transit/Amtrak service moves at speeds above 100 mph, the train ride is under one hour. This becomes a critical factor in deciding where to locate your home or business. Like it or not, we are in competition with other sections of the tri-State area.

Improved train service could also expand Long Island's labor pool by making "reverse commuting" easier. With much of the railroad single tracked, most service moves west in the morning, east at night. So for what it's worth, here's my wish list for future LIRR capital spending:

Electric train service to Port Jefferson and Patchogue. The planned bi-level coaches and dual powered locomotives (to be provided in lieu of electrical service) are an okay compromise, but won't provide service as fast as the electric trains. Many passengers will keep driving a little further (crowding the roads) and continue to take the crowded Main line.

New East River tunnel to Grand Central. This would provide sorely needed platform space in Manhattan and relieve crowding on the number 7 Flushing line which services LIRR passengers at Hunterspoint Avenue and Woodside.

Third track from Jamaica to Hicksville, second track Hicksville to Ronkonkoma. This would give the LIRR added capacity to serve reverse commuters.

To accomplish this costs big money. Probably over $1 billion. But the costs of not upgrading this vital link in our transportation system could be much greater. ♦ Hicksville's Hank Queen, one of the chefs at the Long Island Marriott in Uniondale, stands proudly behind an edible facsimile of New York's "Times Square" which he created from a variety of cookies, candies, chocolate morsels, cereals, nuts and shredded coconut. This building is just a part of the whole "View of Manhattan" Gingerbread Village, that was baked and assembled by the chefs at the hotel. Located in the lobby of the Long Island Marriott, the beautifully decorated city, on display through Jan. 3, 1990, was donated to St. Christopher-Ottillie, a foster care and adoption agency at 99 North Village Avenue in Rockville Centre, N.Y. Other spectacular gingerbread sites include the Statue of Liberty, Rockefeller Center, Twin Towers, St. Patrick's Cathedral, Central Park, the Empire State Building, World Trade center and even the Queens Midtown Tunnel.

Duffy Park Civic Hosts Annual Party

Children enjoy the antics of Mr. Funn the Clown at the Duffy Park Civic's third annual Christmas Party.

Duffy Park Civic Executive Board elections were held in November and the members will serve a one-year term. Front, kneeling: Artie Ulich, Sergeant-At-Arms; Second row, L-R: Janet Von Bergen, Vice President; Dave Staton, President; and Laura Staton, Treasurer. Back row, L-R: Eileen Puerta, Corresponding Secretary; Marianne Wojciechowski, Recording Secretary; Karen Urschel, Member-At-Large. (Not pictured: Kathy Del Rossa, past President and Member-At-Large; Joe Pokorny, Member-At-Large.)

Last month, the Duffy Park Civic Association held its third annual Christmas Party at Old Country Road School. The party was a huge success as nearly 100 kids, Moms, and Dads turned out to enjoy being entertained by Mr. Funn the clown, meeting Santa Claus and getting a gift, and sharing some good holiday fun. The fund-raising activities were a big success, too, as raffles and a bake sale raised more than $150 for the civic association's planned beautification program, starting next Spring. The Duffy Park Civic wishes to thank everyone for their support and hopes to see many of the same folks at their meetings this year.

"This is a very positive development in our fight against these two companies." He added, "On behalf of all the people who have had to endure the disruption of their lives because of asphalt fumes, I thank the Town."

Staton is president of the Duffy Park Civic Association, which was formed in 1987 for the sole purpose of fighting the effects of the Twin County asphalt plant.

"As long as Twin County and Zara have the right to continue to operate in our Town they will adhere to our standards. Residents in adjacent areas are entitled to a dust-free, odor-free, aesthetically acceptable neighbor and I intend to see that their rights are met," said Delligatti.

It's Their Fourteenth

Rita and John Hanifan received a pre-Christmas gift from their son Kevin and their daughter-in-law Stacey Hanifan. Stacey gave birth to their first baby Megan Anella on December 19 at 8:15 p.m. in Central General Hospital.

Megan is the first grandchild of George and Ann Krause and the fourteenth of John and Rita Hanifan all of Hicksville.

Godparents for Megan will be Terri Hanifan and Mark Krause, both of Hicksville.

Editor's Note: I was speaking with John the other day. He was so happy that they had another happy, healthy baby—but he's still waiting for one of his sons to present him with a grandson . . . "Because," John said, "That will be the only way this grand ol' name of Hanifan will be carried on." (He has five grandsons from his daughters). O.K. daughters-in-law—it's up to you now.

How Much Smarter . . .

Two Hicksville students were recently inducted into the Golden Key National Honor Society at Boston University. Steven Olive, majoring in Biology and planning a May 1991 graduation, and Brian Otten, a May 1990 graduate majoring in History, were both ranked in the top 15 percent of their class to be awarded this honor. During the school year they will participate in such activities as tutoring local students and working with Boston-area schools to promote drug awareness.

Calavetta-Bruno Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Calavetta of Hicksville are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Loretta, to Thomas Bruno, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bruno of Islip.

Loretta was a 1983 graduate of Hicksville Senior High School and a 1987 graduate of S.U.N.Y. Farmingdale with an Associate-Degree in Advertising Arts. She is employed as a Graphic Artist for C.M.P. Publications in Great Neck.

Thomas Bruno is a 1982 graduate of Holy Trinity High School. He received a bachelor's degree in fine arts in 1987 from C.W. Post. He is employed with Video Classics in Great Neck as an editor.

The couple plans to wed in July 1990 at New Covenant Church in East Meadow, L.I.

Danny Says: 'It's About Time'

One-year-old Danielle Moskos is pleased to announce the engagement of her godparents, Patti Smith, to John A. Tramosch.

Patti is the daughter of Peg and Charlie Smith of Carle Place. John is the son of Norma and John Tramosch of Hicksville.

John surprised Patti with her beautiful engagement ring early Christmas day, to the delight of both families . . . especially Danielle.

No immediate plans have been made for the upcoming wedding.

Birthdays

"We would like to wish Katie Myron a very happy fifth birthday. Born on January 12 she is our princess. Love always, Mommy and Daddy, Christopher and Thomas."

THE SCHOOL NOTEBOOK

At Saint Ignatius

Each year, the Nassau County Commission of Human Rights, Mineola, runs a contest to perpetuate Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s ideas and ideals. Children in grades 4 through 12 are encouraged to enter.

Jason Amplo an elementary student at St. Ignatius Loyola School will be presented with a certificate of merit for his poem An American Dream. This poem will be published in a booklet in Dr. King's honor which will be available in Nov. 1990.

An American Dream

By Jason Amplo

There was once a man
So gentle and kind
Whose ideas in his mind
Was to see the beauty of freedom.
He had a dream
Like flowing in a stream
To banish racial discrimination
To provide better education
To see better housing
To form drives for black desegregation.
He fought for the equality of races
He believed in a non-violent pace
He followed his instincts
His ideas were distinct.
Love one another
For we are all brothers
Understand one another
Anger leads nowhere.

He was an American clergyman
A leader of American civil rights movements
A believer of non-violent principles
A truly great and highly respected leader...
He was... "Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr."

'Stop World Hunger'

Students from grade five at St. Ignatius School entered the World Food Day Essay Contest in Oct. 1989. The contest is sponsored by "Stop World Hunger," an organization in Far-mingsdale. The students received certificates for participation. Winners of this contest will be announced in April 1990.

At Holy Family

Holiday Fun Keeps Students Busy

The Christmas season began at Holy Family School with Father Ernest Robinson blessing the School and classroom Advent wreaths during a special Prayer Service.

Next, Santa came to visit and had breakfast with hundreds of children, parents and grandparents at Holy Family's annual Pancake Breakfast with Santa. The school cafeteria was beautifully decorated with elves, angels and poinsettias made by the Kindergarten and Pre-Kindergarten children. Santa arrived with gifts for the children and Happy the clown had balloons for all.

The lobby windows of the school were painted by the seventh and eighth grade students under the direction of art teacher Mrs. Mary Murphy. The students received many compliments about the beautiful windows.

Mrs. Betty Rodgers, Geri Palamara and members of the Parents Association next transformed the cafeteria into a Christmas Store where the children could do their "secret" shopping for parents and family.

The Pre-Kindergarten children had so much fun making their Gingerbread Houses with Mrs. Vetter and Mrs. Jacob. The gumdrops and icing were delicious to sample. Each day saw them eagerly bringing home another project to decorate their homes for the holidays. The Kindergarten children were also very busy making gifts and decorations for their families. They were so proud of their "gold" macaroni wreaths which were hung as soon as they were brought home.

Before the children left for their Christmas vacation, the true meaning of the season was seen in a beautiful pageant directed by seventh grade teachers, Mrs. Costa and Mrs. Griffith. Each class participated by putting some symbolic "hay" in the manger for the Christ Child while singing "Happy Birthday, Baby Jesus."

Dressing up for the holidays, Holy Family Eighth Graders Joseph McHugh and Colleen Young put finishing touches on some of the school's windows.

At Our Lady of Mercy

After months of hard work and many hours of practice, Our Lady of Mercy's Christmas plays were a great success. Sister Mary Beth and Miss Pardini brought out the talents of many first grade students in "The Littlest Christmas Tree".
Sister Jeannine and her fabulous cast made the story "The Velveteen Rabbit" come to life.

Sister Mary Winnifred accompanied the actors, actresses and dancers with their many musical selections.

Everyone enjoyed the Christmas entertainment.

Christmas Celebrations

Our Lady of Mercy students performing in "The Littlest Christmas Tree" are Santa (Donald Miller), Mrs. Claus (Elizabeth Laranth) and the Littlest Tree (Kathryn Paul).

Hicksville Legionnaires Enjoy Holiday Fete

By Richard Evers

Men and women who have led in veterans and child welfare programs of the Hicksville Charles Wagner Post of the American Legion enjoyed a holiday dinner at the Old Lighthouse Restaurant. Present for the party, under the leadership of Commander Arlene Howard, were many long-service legionnaires and post-Auxiliary leaders who have contributed to Post 421's more than 70 years of service to Hicksville.

Post 421 was named for Charles A. Wagner, who died while serving with the American Expeditionary Force in France, during the First World War. The post had its clubhouse on East Nicholas Street until the mid-eighties when the building was sold to the congregation of the Chinese Abundant Life Christian Church. Post 421 has its clubhouse today in the West Village Green shopping center, and its long-time activities continue the well-established programs which have distinguished the Hicksville American Legion.

Among the long-standing programs of Post 421 are: veterans' wealth and health guidance; counseling and intercessory efforts for widows and children of veterans; patriotic and memorial observance leadership; children and youth programs in the Hicksville schools involving such activities as: annual elementary school awards for excellence in American history study and good school citizenship; American Legion Oratorical Contests; the nationally-esteemed Boys and Girls' State Programs, each June. Post 421 provides Eagle Scout Citizenship Awards, participates in the Hicksville Veterans Monument projects, provides leadership in the John F. Kennedy Memorial Flagpole maintenance and flag service program as well as making many generous financial contributions to various Hicksville causes and civic projects. The Satellite Program of Services and Counseling for Vietnam War Veterans was created and conducted for many years by the Charles Wagner Post.

The Hicksville American Legion has an active membership recruitment program and welcomes all veterans who enjoy the camaraderie of those who have served America in the military and who would like to provide service to their community. Post 421 holds its meetings on the first and third Mondays of each month at 8 p.m. in the Legion Hall, 36 West Village Green, South Newbridge Road.

And here are the Gambles! Ray is a two-term past-commander and Marie a past-president of the Post 421 Legion Auxiliary.

Past-Commander Arthur and Mrs. Rutz. Arthur, current Post-Treasurer, served twice as commander, and is an outstanding post newsletter editor.

Joan and John Rizos. John is a past-commander and Joan is past president of the Post 421 Legion Auxiliary. John has long service as leader of the Post Color Guard.

Connie and Lou Braun are in a festive mood for the holidays. He is a two-term past-commander and his lovely lady is a past-president of the Post 421 Legion Auxiliary.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Bellacera are always a welcome sight at Post-421 affairs. Tony, a retired banker, was a natural as post treasurer for many years.

Frank and Mrs. Governale have brought good cheer to many Charles Wagner functions over many years.
