

Budget Review Sparks Community Interest

With the threat of schools closing as well as the enormous proposed budget increase, many more residents are becoming involved with school board proceedings.

While the conference room in the Administration Building was more than sufficient for the less than 10 residents who attended the Jan. 17 Finance Committee meeting, more than a hundred turned out on Feb. 14, forcing the meeting to be held in one of the high school cafeterias.

The Finance Committee supersedes all other board committees during the months of January, February and March as the Board reviews the Superintendent's Proposed Budget. With the exception of Code 2000, Instructional Services, all budget codes were reviewed line-by-line in January. Several capital projects were presented in depth by administrators at the Feb. 14 meeting. Code 2000 was not reviewed line-by-line as time became a factor. Assemblyman Fred Parola also spoke to residents concerning proposed State Aid cuts.

Board Trustee William Bennett, as Finance Committee Chairman, officiated at the meeting. Board Trustees Patricia Rooney and Jo Ann Miltenberg also sat at the Board table and participated in discussion. Board President Mark Cardella was detained at work and Vice President Daniel MacBride was excused. Board Secretary James Martillo and Trustee William Collins were in the audience. Superintendent Catherine Fenton took the opportunity to make several announcements.

Jaco Transportation

On Feb. 26, Jaco Transportation (a new subsidiary of Educational Transportation Company) will replace Harran Transportation as the District's major bus supplier. Letters to parents, as requested by Trustee Rooney, will be sent notifying them of the change.

Fenton said that it is anticipated that most of Harran's drivers will be hired by Jaco and run the same routes. Unless there are new bus drivers who must familiarize themselves with the routes, no delays are anticipated. Regular drivers will wear ID badges with their pictures and names. Substitute drivers will wear ID's but there may be instances when pictures are not available.

As previously announced, monthly meetings will be held with the drivers at which time Hicksville administrators are welcome to share complaints and advice. Drivers will be aware of all State and Hicksville regulations and buses will be affixed with decals advising of a complaint phone number.

Harran drivers must submit new job applications. Two residents volunteered to serve on an application review committee, but legal counsel has advised that there might be a conflict of interest with the people who volunteered. On Feb. 26, when the board is given the names of the drivers, this list will become available to the public.

Middle School

Discussion was held at the Board's Special Meeting on Feb. 7 regarding moving the sixth grade to the Middle School. It had been announced at that time that Gerald Klein, Middle School principal, would be preparing a report to be presented to the board about the educational program which could be implemented there.

On Feb. 14, Fenton said that she would not be making a recommendation to the board to move the sixth grade to the Middle School for September 1990. She explained that over a year's time and preparation was needed before the Junior High was converted to the Middle School in 1987. Recently, the Middle School was recognized as a "School of Excellence" by New York State.

Fenton said she was asking Klein to present the idea to a variety of people, including staff, supervisors, elementary principals, parents and community members, to get their input. She concluded by saying, "We will not be ready for such a move in September."

Gymnasts Take County Title For Second Year

Sophomore Wendy Marshall led Hicksville in all events, scoring a total of 35.7 out of a possible 40.

By Michael J. Maloney
Sports Editor

Just as they had done all year, the Hicksville High School Girls Gymnastics team performed better than their opponents, winning the Nassau County Gymnastics Championship for the second straight year.

Hicksville's score of 156.05 fell short of their goal of 160, but led their closest competitor, Oceanside, by more than 10 points (145.65). Massapequa was third with 144.75 and Great Neck North's 135.85 earned them a fourth-place finish in the eight-team tournament held at Great Neck North High School Feb. 13.

Wendy Marshall, who two days later won the Nassau County Individual Championships, led Hicksville in all events, scoring a total of 35.7 points out of a possible 40.

Laurie Pease, Melissa Kugler, Kacey Knauer and Narda Mastropiero followed with fine performances to round out Hicksville's main performances. Good performances by Dale Hoffmann, Dawn Kotowicz, Kathy Knauer, Melissa Watkins and Stacey Schroeder contributed to the effort as well.

According to first-year head coach Tricia Varialle, the gymnasts who do not always get the headlines are the ones who make this team so great. "They are always there too," she said. "Their scores never go below the 7.0 range. They are always up there. They are always consistent."

Varialle is also very proud of her own performance in her first year as head coach. "You want to keep that title," she said. "There is always someone coming up from the bottom. There is the pressure to keep that title and to keep everyone else below you."

After winning the championship last year, the future of the team was uncertain because the team's best performer, Tamie Marshall, Wendy's older sister who now attends the University of Massachusetts, graduated. On top of that, there would be a new coach.

It made everyone work harder, said Wendy

Marshall on the pulling together of this year's team. "We all knew that we could do it. We were really psyched for county's."

Hicksville won every event except the vault, where they were second with a score of 39.2. Their scores in the other events were as follows: 39.5 in the uneven bars, 36.55 in the beam, and 40.8 in the floor exercise. To some Hicksville gymnasts, their scores were less than they had hoped for.

"We could have done better," said Marshall. "Seriously, we all had a bad meet."

"I did well this whole season, except for this meet," echoed Pease. "I thought I did a good job, but the judges didn't."

Obviously, the judges liked Hicksville's performances enough to think that they deserved to be the best in Nassau County for the second straight year.

costs for 1990-91 (currently estimated at $2.5 million), Fenton said that the board at its next meeting, would be asked to consider "going to bid" in the next month for asbestos removal during school months, instead of only in the summer. The District's architects and consultants have suggested that it will be "half the cost" to undertake removal during such time.

Since most schools are seeking contractors for the summer, demand increases the expense during that season.

Fenton explained that asbestos removal would take place during long weekends or recess breaks and not while students were in school. Air quality tests must be done during and after removal, before students are allowed back. Work such as re-insulating may take place while students are in school.

Fenton suggested that the board "see what the bids come in as" and then consider putting a cap of $1 million. An application to the State would have to be filed for a change in Hickville's Management Plan.

In response to a question from Miltenberg, Fenton said only jobs that could be done within a short time span would be put out to bid.

Rooney questioned the reliability of contractors, mentioning the problems this year with roofers at Burns Avenue and oil burner repairs at Woodland Avenue. In order not to pay higher prices, Fenton said you are "stuck with certain inconveniences".

Residents questioned the types of asbestos, where it was located, the need to remove asbestos, State mandates, the reliability of contractors, the bidding process and the possible floating of a bond issue. Fenton said that while the district is removing fuel tanks "conservatively", asbestos removal must be handled "prudently" by the board to protect the district in terms of liability. The bulk of East Street's asbestos is cementitious, with a low chance of friability and the Middle School's is in thermal insulation according to Thomas Shaw, Director of Facilities and Operations.

State Aid

Assemblyman Fred Parola addressed the residents concerning Governor Cuomo's proposed $2,000,000 cut in state aid to Hicksville.

Parola suggested mobilizing forces and sending letters to both the Governor and Speaker of the Assembly Mel Miller asking that they "give a fair consideration to Hicksville and districts on Long Island". According to figures quoted by Parola, 52 percent of the proposed $240,000,000 increase in state aid will go to New York City, which has 38 percent of the State's population.

In addition, Parola spoke of the need for lottery reform and the higher costs of education on Long Island. He said the situation was so desperate that he was willing to consider allowing "gambling" in the Catskills in order to generate more money for education.

In response to a question from Miltenberg regarding why Levittown's aid would be increasing by $300,000 and Hicksville's aid is dropping, Parola explained that two criteria are used: income and property tax wealth. Hicksville has a higher property tax wealth per student, making it seem like a wealthier area. Levittown qualified for "high tax aid" which was implemented in 1979 while Hicksville does not.

Parola said that while Cuomo "can relate to Harlem" he "can't understand how desperate our situation is".

In response to resident Pat Love's question, regarding the state mandating pre-school and/or full-day kindergarten, Parola acknowledged that this was a "popular item" but unlikely because "we have to feed what we have first".

Science Labs

Gerald Hirschstein, Science Department Chairman for grades 7-12, presented an overview of a 5-7 year science improvement proposal. The 1990-91 proposed budget includes $100,000 for capital improvements earmarked for science labs.

According to Hirschstein, Hicksville's labs are 30 years old and not up-to-date in basic safety requirements. Biology classes are cramped and improved safety and ventilation, as well as storage space, is needed. There is also the need for lab aides, updated books, and additional supplies. Slides, featuring modern labs at Seaford High School, were shown. The cost of modernization is estimated at $100,000 per room. The proposed budget would provide funds for one such lab.

Computer Program

Frank Brown, Supervisor of Business and Computer Education, discussed plans for updating the District's computer program. At the Middle School, the proposed budget seeks an additional 30 Apple IIGS computers in the library media center. A 30-unit Macintosh lab, to be shared by various departments including math, science, foreign language, language arts and social studies, is proposed for the high school. Nineteen Apple computers already owned by the District could then be utilized by the Special Education Department and Old Country Road School and Woodland Avenue School. Brown said "hopefully" the new computers would last five years before having to be replaced as technology improves.

Brown added that additional staffing would be needed to assist with these computers: Middle School and High School would each require a full-time teacher assistant and two part-time aides; two full-time teaching assistants would be hired for the elementary schools.

They've Been So Busy

I met Dorothy Wesnofske the other day. I hadn't seen her for a few years. She told me that she and her husband, Bob, retired from Grumman last January and they haven't stopped going since. They just returned from a lovely trip to Woodloch Pines in Pennsylvania. They went with the Grumman Retiree Club.

Bob is an old high school friend. I went all through school with his sister, Marcella. When we were in school there were so few in a class that when we were in junior high or high school you got to know everyone in the school—cause everybody had brothers and sisters—so you got to know them too. It was great. We all have lots of good memories, don't we Bobby and Marcella?

They're Really Proud

Paul and Maria Malvese are so very happy. They received word that son Matthew, has been elected vice president for finances of the 6,000-member Student Association at State University of New York at Plattsburgh.

Chosen for this post in a campus-wide election, he will be the chief financial officer for the administration of a budget totaling more than $850,000. In addition, he will manage inventory totaling nearly $450,000.

Matthew is a sophomore business management major and on Feb. 1 was selected by College President Charles Warren as one of two student members of the Plattsburgh College Foundation general membership. The foundation is a private corporation that raises private funds for SUNY Plattsburgh.

An all-around student, Matthew is currently treasurer of Tau Kappa Epsilon (TKE), a social fraternity, and participates in intramural football, softball and soccer.

Dad, Paul Malvese, is president of George Malvese & Co. on Old Country Road in Hicksville. (Long Island's oldest distributor of power equipment). Matthew's two brothers, Peter and John are just as proud of him as are his parents.

Looks like Paul Malvese will have someone really capable to take over the business when he plans retirement, doesn't it? Keep up the good work, Matthew.

TO YOUR HEALTH

By RICHARD H. BLAU, M.D.

Neck Pain May Result From Arthritis

A common medical problem referred to as a rheumatologist is chronic neck pain. Neck pain may affect many Americans some time in their life.

Frequently, neck pain results from arthritis of the spine, spasm of the neck muscles, inflammation of the joints in the neck, or pressure on the spinal nerves. This pain can occur at rest, or with movement, such as turning the head. In fact, anything that puts pressure on the spine may result in neck pain.

The discomfort of neck pain may be only an occasional dull ache, or a severe, sharp, debilitating pain. Most acute neck pain resolves by itself. However, if the pain is very severe, persists, or is associated with pain or numbness in the arms, you should consult your physician.

Proper treatment can only begin once the cause of the neck pain is known. A comprehensive examination, including a complete medical history, and a physical examination are usually required. X-rays, as well as blood tests, may be needed to aid in the exact diagnosis.

Fortunately, most neck pain can be successfully treated without the use of surgery. Depending on the diagnosis, and if your symptoms do not improve, you may be referred to a rheumatologist (a specialist in arthritis and muscle disorders).

Your rheumatologist can establish an individualized medical program. This may initially involve rest, analgesic medication, and local heat. Specific anti-inflammatory medications, special exercises, and physical therapy may also be required if the pain is persistent. You should keep in mind that most neck pain will improve with proper medical management, and needless pain could be avoided with prompt medical attention.

THANKS FOR BEING A GOOD S.O.R.T.

On Saturday, January 20th,
400 Oyster Bay Town residents braved a winter outburst of snow and rain to help place 11,000 recycled Christmas trees along the dune line at Tobay Beach.

Many thanks to all of those volunteers - those named below and those whose names we did not get - as well as the thousands of Town residents who contributed their discarded Christmas trees for helping to make this recycling/beach conservation project an outstanding success.

Our thanks also to the private sector organizations who donated time, goods and services to the project.

They found a unique new installment loan called Homeowners Edge,™ which not only gives you a great rate, but 100% of the interest may be tax deductible.*

New customers also found two of the most remarkable ways to save money. With Priority Savings,™ we not only offer one of the highest rates in town, we give you unlimited access to your money. Day or night. Our new Priority CD is the only CD that goes up with interest rates and doesn't go back down. It's the only CD you'll ever need.

Better yet, we offer free checking with both Priority Savings and Priority CD.** There's more.

Over the last year we added sixty new branches, giving us the largest, most convenient suburban branch network in greater New York. Over fifty of our branches offer full service banking on Saturday and most are open Thursday or Friday evenings. Which means you can now find us in more places open more hours than ever before.

So why not visit one of our more than 240 convenient locations.

Something's happening at The Bank of New York. Maybe you ought to be in on it.

"Saturday hours simplified my life."

"Finally, an installment loan that's tax deductible."

"My Priority CD rate can only go up."

"I never knew I could get a rate like this on liquid savings."

"Now I can get an answer on a loan in 60 minutes or less."

"There are so many ways to get free checking."

We're making it hard to bank anywhere else.

Want To Go To Boston????

The Glen Cove-Hicksville-Syosset Mercy League are planning a three day trip throughout New England leaving April 27. The tour includes 2 nights hotel accommodations at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel, two breakfasts and two dinners; all sightseeing and admissions, roundtrip transportation, all taxes, etc. Cost of this: $299 per person.

They will be visiting Lexington and Concord, Boston, Plymouth and the Rock where the Pilgrims landed in 1620. They will be touring a replica of The Mayflower. There will be a guided tour of Boston and many other enjoyable events. If you call Mimi at 433-8781 she'll be able to tell you more about it.

Mimi said, "We welcome singles and couples. If you come alone you'll be welcomed and made to feel comfortable. Usually everyone who joins a Mercy League trip always has a good time and comes along the next time we plan a trip."

I've visited Boston and I absolutely loved it. It's a city—but not a city. If you decide to go bring your walking shoes because there is so much to see. I would have loved to stay there for a week. I remember walking through the beautiful park—going to antique shops, going down to Faneuil Hall, and most of all—going on the subway (which really didn't seem like a subway) to the ball park. That was a thrill. There is no place to park at the ball field so everyone comes by subway. Along the way vendors are selling hot dogs, sausage and peppers, etc. It was my first live baseball game—and the Yankees won. It was great. I can't wait to go back.

The Hicksville Council of PTAs celebrated Founders Day with its 37th Annual Dinner held at the Crest Hollow Country Club last Thursday, Feb. 15. This year's District Honored Guest was Terry Moehringer, president of the Hicksville Council of PTAs.

William Bennett, Hicksville Board of Education Trustee, described Mrs. Moehringer as a hard worker committed to the children of Hicksville and their education. which she dedicates herself in support of the aspirations and dreams of our students in this wonderful school district of Hicksville."

Along with Mrs. Moehringer, 33 other dedicated men and women were honored from the district's 11 units. PTA Council Vice President Linda Colton presented Honorary Life

Kiwanis Key Notes

Two New Members Installed

The Hicksville Kiwanis Club added two new members to its roster at the Feb. 7 luncheon meeting at the Milleridge Inn. Newly installed members are Susanne Wischnesky a sales representative with McBee Systems, and Douglas Lake, district manager of First Investors Corporation. Wischnesky was sponsored by Patricia LeCompte, and Lake was sponsored by Robert McGuinness.

Installing officer was Past Kiwanis President Dr. Keith Pastuch.

Traffic Safety Lecture

Frank B. Hynes, a traffic safety service representative from the Automobile Club of New York was the guest speaker at the Feb. 7 luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

In his opening remarks, Hynes said that driving a car is more difficult than flying a plane and that many pilots have agreed with him. He referred to the crowded highways with fast-moving vehicles, the effect aging has on the eye, the onset of arthritis on the ankle and key joints, the varieties of inclement weather, the close proximity of cars, trucks and buses, and how they all work together to force drivers to make split second decisions to avoid accidents. He also spoke about the problems of maintaining safe driving practices in light and heavy rain, as well as driving in snow and icy road conditions.

Hynes distributed two brochures: Defensive Driving and The Complete Guide of How To Go on Ice and Snow. Both brochures are available from local AAA offices or from the Traffic Safety Department, American Automobile Association, Falls Church, Virginia 22047.

Hicksville's Prized Pets

Lifelong Hicksville resident Jennie Pesinkowski has been blessed with the companionship of her 9-year-old cat Holly.

Holly is a joy to be around, according to Jennie, who says that her cat never wanders off her property and that all the neighborhood kids come to play with Holly.

Jennie's son, Felix, got the cat from Bide-A-Wee, but because he moved into an apartment and couldn't take the cat, Jennie took her in at six weeks old.

In the photo Holly (see arrow) enjoys a birthday party for George the dog (background), who turned 16 years old last year. When this photo was taken, George, along with Spice the dog and Fred the cat, were visiting Jennie's house while their owners were on vacation. All three animals are donned in 'Happy Birthday' hats for George's special occasion.

At Fork Lane

A number of fifth grade students from Mr. Pisani's class at Fork Lane dramatized a well-known story for young people. The script they read was entitled King Midas and the Golden Touch.

The students did an outstanding job. Not only did the cast perfect their speaking parts, but they also designed their costumes and scenery. The special sound effects through musical instruments were a super touch to the performance.

The students performed in front of Mrs. Rieger's class. Her students include the following: Cara Baum, Michele Bray, Ryan Ferraro, William Jacobsen, Kathleen Larson, Patrick McGowan, Christine O'Connor, Keith Wilcha and Sean Sullivan.

Mr. Pisani's students said it was a pleasure to perform for such a wonderful audience.

Everyone involved in the production learned a valuable lesson that it's better to give than to receive.

"Culinary Hearts"... Better Nutrition for Healthy Hearts

By Wendy S. Whelan
St. Francis Hospital

People are eating better these days. From leaner meats to high-fiber foods, selecting the foods we eat involves more of a thought process than it ever has. This heightened awareness, dietary experts say, has established nutrition as one of the latest methods of preventive medicine.

The fear of clogged arteries is enough to motivate most people to reduce their cholesterol levels. Factor in a family history of heart disease, and you've got little choice but to orient your body toward more healthy foods.

For many, the notion of preventive nutrition is long overdue. A lifetime of high-fat, high-sodium foods may have taken its toll on the heart and blood vessels. For those who have either had a heart attack or surgery to correct the effects of heart disease, eating right can provide a new lease on life.

Strong interest is being shown by community residents in local health and fitness programs of all types. For tips on incorporating healthier foods into their diets, more than one thousand local residents have participated in the Culinary Hearts course, a 10-hour educational program (four 2½-hour sessions) offered at St. Francis Hospital, The Heart Center, Roslyn.

The course is taught by a registered therapeutic dietitian of the hospital, using nutritional guidelines advised by the American Heart Association. It is designed to assist anyone who wishes to improve upon their eating habits and includes practical information on selecting the proper foods, reading nutritional labels, planning menus and preparing healthy foods.

Heart Healthy meals are deliciously simple when you've learned how to prepare them at a Culinary Hearts Kitchen Program. Grains, beans, vegetables, chicken and fish provide low cholesterol, high protein alternatives.

Many of the participants in the program are interested in preventive nutrition, while others are former patients of the hospital who have suffered from heart ailments. The program is also popular with the families of heart patients with families of those with high cholesterol levels, and with people who have diabetes, are overweight, or just want a healthier diet.

Classes are no larger than 20 students and serve as an interactive forum, whereby students can ask questions and receive personalized attention.

Practical in every sense, the course also discusses how to read and evaluate the nutritional labels of food products. Students are encouraged to bring in labels of foods that claim to be "light" or "low-cal." "Very often," says Linda Dunn, course instructor, "these products are not necessarily healthier for you than the traditional products on the supermarket shelves."

Taste-testing new foods, learning how to interpret nutritional labels and menu-planning are the most popular aspects of the course. Once the fundamentals of a low-cholesterol, low-fat, low-sodium diet are imparted to the students, they are encouraged to get creative in the kitchen. During an end-of-the-course party, each student has the opportunity to share healthy recipes of their own.

Anyone interested in registering for the Culinary Hearts Course is asked to call (516) 562-6190 for more information. Discounted course fees are provided for more than one family member registering and for senior citizens. Morning and evening classes are available.

Mushroom Salad

Yield: 8 servings
Approx. Cal./Serv.: 141

- 3 cups mushrooms, thinly sliced
- 1 cup diced celery
- ½ cup diced green pepper
- ½ cup diced red onion
- ½ cup diced pimientos
- 2 teaspoons red wine vinegar
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup vegetable oil

1. In a bowl, combine the mushrooms, celery, green pepper, red onion and pimientos.

2. In another bowl, combine the red wine vinegar, garlic, Worcestershire sauce and salt. Add the vegetable oil in a stream, whisking as you mix.

3. Toss the mushroom mixture with the dressing. Serve as is or on a large lettuce leaf.

Mediterranean Chicken

- 1 chicken, 3 to 4 pounds, cut up, skin and visible fat removed or 3 whole chicken breasts, split, skinned, trimmed of fat
- 4 cloves garlic, peeled and sliced in half
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- ¼ cup dry red wine
- ½ teaspoon dry basil
- ½ teaspoon dry oregano
- ½ teaspoon black pepper or ¼ teaspoon red pepper flakes
- 2-3 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley (preferably Italian fat-leaved variety)

1. Preheat oven to 350°F.
2. Wash chicken and pat dry. Place in a shallow baking pan. Sprinkle garlic around and under chicken pieces. Pour oil and wine over chicken. Sprinkle with basil, oregano and black pepper. Cover baking pan tightly with foil.

3. Bake 45 minutes. Remove foil. Bake, uncovered, for an additional 15 minutes. Sprinkle with parsley just before serving.

A Pinch of Salt

If you're on a sodium-restricted diet, you'll want to cut your use of products which contain high levels. The ones over which you have the most control are salt, monosodium glutamate (MSG), baking powder, baking soda and brine.

Here are some other tips for cutting excess sodium from your food:

Use only the amount of salt you must in cooking, and try whenever possible to eliminate it, substituting herbs, spices and other flavoring ingredients in its place. When your food has been flavored in this way, you can leave salt off the table. Do not add it to canned or processed foods; most have already been seasoned with it (probably also with MSG).

Use baking powder and baking soda to make your own baked goods, but the latter should not be used as a remedy for indigestion or in cooking vegetables. If you bake your own breads, a little salt will control the action of the yeast. When baking, seek out recipes which use the smallest amounts of baking powder, baking soda and salt.

Stay away from foods that are very salty, cured with salt (cured ham) or kept in brine (pickles, olives, etc.). Steer clear of regular canned soup or stew (for example, a 10-ounce can may easily contain 2200 to 9000 milligrams of sodium).

Sodium in Water

The average adult uses 2 to 2½ quarts (8 to 10 glasses) of water each day for drinking, in coffee, tea and other beverages and in cooking.

Drinking water contains a number of minerals, including sodium. The amount varies greatly from one water supply to another. Depending on its source, water may contain 1500 milligrams of sodium per quart and sometimes more.

Ask your doctor or Health Department about the sodium in your local water supply. Your American Heart Association office may

THE WHOLE TOOTH

by Laura Selub, D.D.S.

CLEARING THE AIR

You'd be surprised — or perhaps you wouldn't — by the number of totally unsupported dental opinions, or assumptions, that continue to prevail despite all the evidence against them.

For example, it's generally believed that we can expect to lose permanent teeth as we advance in age. The aging process itself does it. You grow older, you lose your teeth.

Nonsense. Excepting accidents and conditions we're born with, we lose teeth due to conditions that can be intercepted before they become serious. The villains are decay and gum and bone disease, and they have no natural immunity to sound, prompt professional treatment.

It's up to you. Neglect your teeth, and they'll pay you back in spades, with serious problems. Time will tell.

Neglect takes many forms. Let's say you have a toothache. You ignore it. After a while, the toothache stops. You're relieved. Nothing wrong, after all, you think, and you put the pain behind you, happy not to experience it anymore.

That's unwise. Pain is the body's message that something is wrong. Would you ignore severe abdominal pains that "go away?" Hardly. You would take them seriously. Please do the same when it happens with your teeth. And visit your dentist.

Also, don't believe the over-the-fence opinion that loading up on calcium, as by drinking lots of milk, obstructs tooth decay. Everyone needs calcium. It's essential for building sound teeth and bones, but that's as far as it goes. Calcium is in at the creation of your teeth. Later on, drink all the milk you like, decay can proceed undisturbed — if you take it for granted.

Heart Healthy Cooking

The Culinary Hearts Kitchen cooking course, designed by the American Heart Association for people who want to learn how to cook exciting low-fat, low cholesterol foods, will be offered on an on-going basis at the Mineola offices of Cardiovascular Medical Associates at 173 Mineola Blvd., in the "heart" of Nassau County.

The three-week course shows step-by-step methods of cooking American favorites as well as international and ethnic foods. Students will learn how to cook meals low in fat, cholesterol, salt and calories, yet retain the natural flavor and zest of each dish. The course offers a wide assortment of recipes and each step in the course is illustrated by more than 250 slides of mouth-watering foods that are easy to prepare and good for your heart. Sessions are included on cooking meats and poultry, breakfast foods, soups, fish, vegetables and baked goods. We will actually be preparing and sampling dishes during the class sessions.

"Culinary Hearts Kitchen is the ultimate course for anyone interested in a healthier lifestyle," say our registered dietitians, who will be teaching the course. "It's not just for heart patients, but for anyone who wants to learn how to take his or her favorite recipes and alter them so that they are really good for you."

The six-physician practice, consisting of board certified cardiologists, is dedicated to the prevention and treatment of heart disease. The physicians believe that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Towards that end, they have developed a full diagnostic screening program of exercise stress testing, cholesterol checks, nuclear cardiology, Holter monitoring, Cholesterol Screening, pacemaker follow-ups, nutrition counseling, and a comprehensive behavioral medicine and biofeedback program for non-pharmacological treatment of hypertension and chest pain. The physicians are pleased to report that they have been successful in discontinuing medication on hypertensive patients through the use of behavioral and stress medicine training and education. A weight loss and stop smoking program has also been successfully implemented.

Doctors Goodman, Harnick, Sussman, Stein, Sporkin and Cavanagh, and their dedicated staff of registered nurses, medical technologists, dietitians, behavioral medicine therapists and management team are constantly striving to improve their services to the surrounding community, in an effort to fight heart disease.

Cardiovascular Medical Associates also maintains an internal medicine practice in Garden City. That location is equipped with an x-ray facility, blood drawing station, Holter monitoring, sigmoidoscopy lab, and is staffed by two board certified internists.

The Culinary Hearts course meets on consecutive Thursdays from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., and includes instruction, copies of all recipes and taste-testing each sample recipe. For reservations or more information please call Anita Thompson at 516-741-2776.

Hummus (chick pea spread)

Yield: 8 servings
Serving Size: 1/4 cup
Approx. Cal./Serv.: 202

2 cups chick peas, drained (reserve liquid)
1/4 cup lemon juice (preferably fresh)
1/4 to 3/8 cup water
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 cloves garlic, peeled and crushed salt to taste (1/2 to 1 teaspoon)
3/4 cup tahini (ground sesame paste)

1. In a blender, puree chick peas with lemon juice, adding as much canning liquid or water as needed to keep machine running.

2. Add remaining ingredients and puree to a creamy paste. The consistency should be similar to a smooth, creamy peanut butter. NOTE: Tahini is available in Middle Eastern and some health food stores. You can make your own by grinding sesame seeds and ad-also have this information. (Nassau Chapter, 741-5522). You can also have the water from your supply analyzed by a commercial laboratory. When the sodium content is known, your doctor can tell you if it is all right for you to use it or if you should use distilled water.

Home installed water softeners should not be used for drinking water, since sodium is often added to the water in the softening process. When having a water softener installed, ask the plumber to connect a faucet at the kitchen sink to a cold water line which bypasses the water softener and use this water for drinking, cooking, making ice, etc.

Soft drinks, either regular or low-calorie, may be made with water high in sodium. The terms "soda" and "soda pop" do not refer to the sodium content, but only to the effervescence of these drinks. Low-calorie beverages often contain sodium saccharin. Some companies can supply information through their consumer information department about the amount of sodium in water, syrup and other ingredients used.

Many people today drink seltzer water or club soda as a low-calorie alternative to sugary soft drinks. However, as a general rule, club soda has a high sodium content, while seltzer is low. Carbonated natural waters vary from very low to high in sodium. Whenever possible, check the labels for sodium content and look for low-sodium varieties of all bottled drinks.

Medicines and Dentifrices

Certain types of medicines contain sodium—sometimes enough to interfere with your diet. Check labels on over-the-counter medications, and always check with your doctor before you use any unprescribed medicine, even a headache remedy. Here are some of the medicines that may contain sodium:

"Alkalizers" for indigestion (such as bicarbonate of soda), antibiotics, cough medicines, laxatives, pain relievers, sedatives. NOTE: some antacids are now available in low-sodium forms.

Toothpastes, tooth powders and mouthwashes may also contain large amounts of sodium. Don't worry about this; just be sure to rinse your mouth well with water after brushing your teeth or after using mouthwash.

Adapted from "Your Mild Sodium Restricted Diet," American Heart Association.

Yield: 6 servings
Serving Size: 1/4 cup
Approx. Cal./Serv.: 183

1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 10-ounce package frozen raspberries, thawed and drained

Understanding Angina Is The Secret To Controlling It

For more than 2.4 million Americans, running to catch a bus or disagreeing with a spouse doesn't just leave them out of breath or angry, such physical exertion or emotional stress can trigger an attack of severe chest pains.

It's a condition called angina, and it afflicts about 300,000 Americans each year.

Angina, or angina pectoris, is a symptom of a condition known as myocardial ischemia, an inadequate blood flow to a part of the heart muscle. Angina occurs when the heart muscle gets enough blood for normal heart needs, but not enough to accommodate the heart when it is under moderate stress such as during exercise.

The discomfort of angina occurs most commonly during exercise or with emotional stress. Although the pain lasts only a few minutes, the symptoms can be frightening—heaviness, tightness, oppressive pain, burning, pressure or squeezing, usually behind the breastbone. The pain can spread to other parts of the body such as the arms, neck or jaws. Numbness in the shoulders, arms or wrists is also associated with angina.

Angina is not a heart attack, although inadequate blood flow to the heart is common for both conditions. The overwhelming cause of these conditions is narrowing of the artery caused by arteriosclerosis. Not only is the pain of a heart attack usually much more severe and prolonged, a heart attack causes permanent damage to the heart muscle—angina generally does not. Also, angina is a temporary reduction in blood flow to the heart muscle. Heart attack is caused by permanent blockage of blood flow through a coronary artery to the heart muscle.

Angina can be treated with drugs that affect the supply of oxygen to the heart muscle or the heart's demand for oxygen. Others cause the blood vessels to relax.

There are also surgical techniques to relieve angina by improving the blood supply to the heart.

Angina in itself can be a warning sign that a person is at risk of having a heart attack. It is important to consult a physician if you have experienced angina, so you will know how to keep it under control. If you or someone you know has angina, here are a few suggestions to keep in mind:

- Stay under your physician's care.
- Control your physical activity. Be aware of what physical activities bring on your angina and avoid them if possible. Remember that angina is brought about by the strenuousness of the activity rather than the duration. Try to pace yourself and not over exert.
- Avoid emotional upsets.
- Adopt good eating habits. Digestion causes the heart to work harder and to require more blood. Avoid heavy meals and rich foods. Relax for a while after eating.
- Don't smoke.
- Control your high blood pressure.

"with angina, the flow of blood to part of the heart muscle is not enough for those times when the heart is called on to do more work"

WHIPLASH

Whiplash (or hyperextension/hyperflexion injury) is usually the result of a backward and forward or sideways motion of the head and neck which is often caused by a forceful impact from behind or the side. It can cause injury to the bones and connective tissues of the neck. There may only be mild stiffness or soreness or symptoms can be more severe; pain, tingling, numbness in the neck, shoulders, arms and hands as well as headaches, blurred vision and nausea.

Whiplash occurs most frequently in the neck area, but may also strike other areas of the spine such as in the low back or lumbar spine.

What causes whiplash? A whiplash can happen to anyone. A car accident, a bad fall, a sudden blow in a football game or a fight, a roller coaster ride all have this potential for causing whiplash.

How do you know if you have whiplash? Many mild whiplash injuries cannot be felt immediately. Frequently, hours, weeks or even months may go by before any symptoms surface. In other cases, pain and other symptoms appear immediately after the impact and then lessen with the passage of time. Later however, severe reactions may reappear caused by the long-term effects of the injury.

By the time some whiplash injuries are recognized, the lapse may nullify any automobile insurance that would have covered the cost of correcting the spine and the victim must pay the expense himself. Therefore, after every accident, even though minor, it is a wise idea to have a spinal examination.

Physical Activity... Motivating Kids is a Challenge

According to recent studies, children's body fat has increased significantly in the past twenty years. The same studies indicate that activity levels are one of several variables in this trend. While regular physical activity has been found to have significant bearing on cardiovascular well-being and all-around health, motivating children to exercise regularly or develop a regular habit of physical activity remains a constant challenge.

Cornell Cooperative Extension offers these ideas to help you inspire your children to be active:

- Exercise with your children. Incorporate regular physical activity, together, into your daily schedule. How about an evening walk (with or without dog) around the neighborhood?
- Build your children's excitement for seasonal activities: swimming and hiking in the summer, skating and snowball fights in the winter. Start a new family tradition such as Sunday touch football games. Mark the dates and activities onto a family calendar.

- Encourage children to walk or ride a bike to school, the park, the library and other local attractions.

- Have active rainy day activities available: a Ping-Pong table, gymnastic mat or dance music could make for hours of physical fun.

Understanding Heart Murmurs

by Michael K. Jason, M.D., F.A.C.P., F.A.C.C.

A heart murmur is created by turbulent flow of blood across a heart valve, within a cardiac chamber, or through a great vessel such as the aorta or pulmonary artery. A heart murmur can be caused either by a hyperdynamic circulation or an anatomical variation of a heart valve, cardiac chamber, or great vessel.

Innocent heart murmurs caused by turbulent flow and minimal anatomical variation of a great vessel, heart valve, or cardiac chamber are often asymptomatic.

If an anatomic variation becomes complicated by significant hemodynamic alterations, cardiovascular symptoms may develop. Symptoms of significant clinical problems include "chest pain" (at rest or during exertion), "shortness of breath" (at rest or with exercise), "palpitations," "lightheadedness," "syncope" (blackouts), right upper quadrant "abdominal pain" caused by liver enlargement or "ankle swelling" (edema).

The proper evaluation of a heart murmur begins with a comprehensive history and physical examination by a qualified physician. An electrocardiogram is helpful in determining if there is evidence of cardiac chamber enlargement or a cardiac arrhythmia or conduction disturbance. A chest x-ray determines gross cardiac enlargement or pulmonary vascular congestion.

In the last fifteen years, evaluation of cardiac murmurs and cardiovascular symptoms has been expanded to include non-invasive cardiovascular techniques which more accurately assess anatomic valvular abnormalities, cardiac chamber enlargement, heart wall thickening, and great vessel anatomic abnormalities.

The M Mode and 2 Dimensional Echocardiogram (Echo) are the most sensitive and specific diagnostic techniques in determining anatomic variations and abnormalities of the cardiovascular system. The Echo helps to determine not only the specific cause (etiology) of a heart murmur, but also can determine the hemodynamic consequences and complications of a heart murmur.

To understand more about your heart murmur and the clinical findings on physical examination, EKG, chest x-ray, Echo, Holter, and ETT, please speak to your personal physician.

Letters From Our Readers

Letters to the editor are welcomed by the editors and publishers of the Anton Community Newspapers. However, they must follow certain guidelines in order for us to print them: they should be as short as possible, we reserve the right to edit in the interest of space; they MUST be signed (a typed name at the bottom will not suffice); they must include an address and telephone number so that we can verify their authenticity. We receive many fine letters which we would like to share with our readers, but we are unable to use them because they are unsigned or have a typewritten name only. We cannot publish every letter we receive because of space limitations, but we try to present both sides of all issues. Personal attacks and letters considered to be in poor taste will not be printed.

Firefighters Recognized

An open letter to all in the Hicksville Fire District:

I grew up with the thought that the only certain things in life were death and taxes...however, after just reading a copy of the Hicksville Illustrated dated Feb. 1 (I receive it a week later in Maryland), I know one more thing that is certain and that is the men and women too of the Hicksville Fire Department. When we first learned of the plane crash in Cove Neck late last month, every TV newscast I saw showed a lot of volunteer firemen on the scene from all adjacent communities and it wasn't too surprising to see some from Hicksville, as well. The various pictures and articles in the Illustrated proved that the Hicksville Fire Department was indeed there helping in every way.

I sometimes wonder if the people of Hicksville really appreciate these volunteers and what they do for the good of others when called upon or do they just take them for granted? These people are well trained and can handle any situation when it comes to firemanics and emergencies and willingly do it...even at 2 o'clock in the morning or a Sunday afternoon and sometimes putting their own lives in jeopardy! I was certainly proud of seeing the pictures showing these men on the scene at the crash. Isn't it a good feeling to know that they are in town 24 hours a day, 365 days a year keeping vigilant and protecting our community?

I may be living outside of Hicksville, but I still remember the good things and the Hicksville Fire Department with its men and women are still in my mind.

A Letter from Lulubelle...

...In a recent letter to Lulubelle, the question was asked, "Do you remember the organ grinder and his monkey?"...And of course, I do...In our village, he was always there on Saturday, which was the "go downtown and walk around and look in the windows" day...and he almost always stood just between Kresge's and Woolworth's, which were right next to each other...He would stand and smile and grind away and the tunes sounded wonderful to us...and the little monkey was dressed in a suit and a little round pillbox hat like a bellman...(Do you remember "Caaall foor Phillip Moooris")...The monkey would scamper around and take off his cap and we would put a penny in it and he would take it from the cap and put it into his little pocket and continue around the crowd gathered to watch his antics...My Mother was always looking a little worried because she wasn't sure that the monkey was being carefully treated...and I don't know about that...He didn't act scared...I don't know what happened to the organ grinder and his monkey, but I haven't seen one in many years anywhere that I have traveled...Have you?

Years, Lulubelle

GREENSPAN VERSUS BUSH

Recently President Bush and Federal Reserve chief Allan Greenspan had a meeting. It was as confrontational as it could get. The president wants interest rates to go down (who doesn't?) Mr. Greenspan is having none of that, thank you.

People wonder why the Federal Reserve system does not have to do what the President says. The truth of the matter is that the fed is truly independent of the federal government because the President has no power of removal of any governor. Once a governor has been appointed and confirmed by the Senate there is no control. The President cannot even reappoint a governor after the term expires.

It is a crazy system, unique in the world. All other governments have the head of the central bank as a member of the government. They serve at the pleasure of the chief executive. The only saving grace for us is that the system works well. (On 8/11/88 I wrote an article about this relationship if you want a copy).

There is not a president who does not want the good times to keep rolling. Lower interest rates stimulate an economy. It is good for opinion poll ratings, it does good things for a president and the president's party at election time.

Unless business cycles have been repealed, I believe that President Bush is making a political mistake by not allowing a recession to happen now. It is one of the few areas where he has not followed President Reagan's example.

If you will, remember the dark days of 1980-81. Fed chief Paul Volker and President Reagan brought on one of the worst post-WW II recessions. It broke the back of the high inflation we were experiencing. President Reagan went on to unprecedented popularity. That recession and deflation followed a classic pattern of presidents. Get the bad times behind us early. Reap the rewards later.

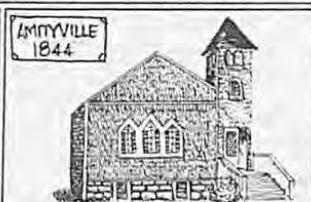

The Federal Reserve has a different agenda. They are responsible for the health of the money of the United States. Secondly they are responsible for the economy of the United States. Whenever push comes to shove, the Federal Reserve will come down on the side of protecting the money, its value and stability. This means that they will fight the inflation dragon before they will stimulate the economy with lower interest rates. This they have demonstrated time and time again. The president can turn red, white and blue with rage and the fed will not and does not have to budge. That's our system.

I believe that we will eventually have a recession (how brave I am with this startling prediction). How severe I do not know. The longer the recession is delayed, the more President Bush will regret the delay of its start. If it comes at the wrong time (before the 1990 election or his re-election campaign), it will hurt his administration and election plans.

He cannot expect much help from the Federal Reserve as long as inflation keeps creeping up. That is what the fed will fight first. This has been demonstrated in recent weeks.

In early December you heard nothing in the media, especially from the TV economists, that left any doubt about interest rates falling.

Everyone said the economy was sliding into recession. The economy needed stimulation. The president said so. The problem was discussed with Mr. Greenspan.

The fed responded by forcing the rates up, more than one percent. The economy has not nose-dived, it has slowed. Inflation has increased. The fed has made its choice. The president has to live with that. Next week we will go into this problem further.

ROBERT R. McMILLAN'S

Direct Line

Before we get carried away in the finger-pointing process of casting blame for high taxes on Long Island, it would be a good idea for many of us to take a look in the mirror. There is enough blame to go around. With unparalleled growth in the late 1970s and 1980s, payment of taxes wasn't given too much thought. The "Midas touch" was all around us. We went in twelve years, from 400,000 jobs to over a million. It was a "go-go" economy.

Then, suddenly, it started to come apart. There were warnings about electric rates, the length of time it takes to develop a piece of property, the price of starter housing and tax rates. The voices, at first, were hardly audible over the din of expansion. I can remember personally in early 1986 urging that more be done to create housing for people earning under $50,000 a year. I said then and repeatedly afterwards that the failure to provide such housing, coupled with high electric rates, taxes and impossible development timetables (not the strict standards) would mean slowed expansion here and a resulting depression in the housing market. Well, guess what? Prices are down, and if you had looked at the value in your home as a partial ticket to a better life in retirement, you very well may have to forget it.

The tax fright has enough blame for everyone. As for school taxes, we have been so paranoid about pampering our children that any expenditure in the name of better education received a green light. We have often equated dollars spent per student as the highest sign of quality — when in fact that quality can only emanate from caring teachers and not from masses of bureaucrats or palaces for schools.

School boards and school administrators are now on the defensive, because there is a growing focus on school taxes. And overall that is probably good in the current climate. "Consolidate school districts" is the cry from some quarters. Before we get carried away, let's look at the facts. Consolidation will provide only momentary relief and will weaken community support for our schools. Are we ready to bus school children for miles? Cosmetic catchwords will not go to the heart of increased school taxes.

Increasing the size of classes is also not the answer. We should however take a look at centralizing the purchase of supplies and services. We should reduce administrative staffs and take a close look at Albany-mandated local expenditures. From AIDS education to sex education and fire safety, over one hundred state programs have been dumped on local educators in the last ten years without extending classroom hours or providing state aid commensurate with the expanding cost of education. In fact, state aid, as a percentage of school district expenditures, has gone down. The result is a higher percentage of school expenditures coming from real estate taxes.

The approach suggested by Congressman Tom Downey to look at ways to reduce local taxes should be examined carefully and must cover our schools as well. The selection of a panel of Long Island experts to look at ways to reduce taxes makes sense. And there appears at this time to be bipartisan support for the commission.

The public focus on the process of preparing the commission's report could help the public understand alternatives to achieve implementation of changes which will make a difference. We must go beyond taxes. Other challenges denying Long Islanders the opportunity for continued economic growth such as lack of housing, electric rates, and bureaucratic delay in approving new projects will have to be addressed as well.

At Our Lady of Mercy

December brought many happy occasions for Our Lady of Mercy students. One of these happy occasions was being chosen Student of the Month. The "Mercy Spirit" was the main factor in choosing the person to represent their class.

Gearing Up For Graduation

Holy Family eighth graders are now realizing that their graduation is coming upon them very quickly. They received their school pins at a recent ceremony attended by parents, faculty and Father Ernest Robinson. After a brief introduction given by Sister Eileen McMahon, principal, and Maureen Buckley, an eighth grade student, Father blessed and presented the pins to each future graduate. After the pins were put on by each parent, the children then presented their parents with a red rose, the symbol of love. The service was followed by a small reception.

Spelling Bee Winners

The School Spelling Bee took place on Jan. 29. The winners were Jeanine Fergie (eighth grade) and Victoria Wilkie (sixth). Alternate was Sean McKenna of the sixth grade. These students will represent Holy Family School at the Zone Spelling Bee in the Spring.

Art Workshop

On Jan. 22 15 seventh graders and 15 sixth graders went to the first workshop at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. A special program has been set up with the Museum by Ted Otis to teach students the culture and values of other countries. The children were split into three groups, each led by a lecturer. During the day some students created drawings of statues or clothes of the day, along with poetry writing—again reflecting the culture and values of that time or group. It was a most enjoyable and exciting trip!

Nutrition Presentation

There was a Nutrition Presentation, a Boces program given by Mrs. Boehl to the second and fourth grades. It was pointed out how they make choices every day and how advertisers try to get them to choose their products. Mrs. Boehl then discussed being a smart consumer and the classes did their own "shopping" from food ads.

Becoming Storytellers

Saturday, April 28 is the date for the Nassau County Storytelling Contest. This contest is open to students in grades 4 and 5.

Mrs. Carol Shapiro, librarian at Bethpage Public Library, came to Our Lady of Mercy recently and entertained students with her marvelous storytelling and invited the students to participate in the contest. Twenty-four boys and girls from OLM are now on their way to becoming storytellers.

Workshops are being provided by Mrs. Shapiro at the Bethpage Library. There will be three each month through March. The first one was great fun for all.

Budget Review

Brown estimated equipment costs at $180,000 and said in order to participate in "mass purchasing" with other districts, he needs a commitment from the board and decision on how to purchase. He explained that a 14 percent savings could be obtained by purchasing through BOCES. If financed over a three-year period, an additional $21,568.32 would be incurred.

The District's current ratio for computers is 1 for every 17 students. If the new computers are purchased, the ratio will drop to 15:1. The district's goal is 10:1.

A resident suggested the district look into leasing computers with a buyback provision at the end of three years. He suggested that the system could then be upgraded at a nominal fee. This will be looked into, according to Assistant Superintendent of Business William Hall.

Resident Dori Bernardo questioned additional staffing costs at time when the district was looking to close schools and cut staff. Brown said, "It's not a good time for me to be up here" addressing residents and said figures were not yet available on additional teacher assistants and aides. Other residents questioned the value of computers in the elementary schools.

Pre-School Education

Dr. Daniel Kremin, Director of Special Education and Pupil Personnel Services, presented a "revenue" plan to provide an educational program to pre-schoolers. The responsibility for identification and provision of Special Education services for children ages 3 through 5 had belonged to the Family Courts, but is now the responsibility of individual school districts. This program is fully funded by Nassau County.

Hicksville may opt to send its eligible students to a program outside the District or it may apply to operate a program within its own buildings. Having the program in Hicksville would allow students to have a "normalized, regular school setting in their own hometown," according to Kremin.

He estimates tuition received from the County would approximate $15,000 per child and could generate a total of $300,000, which "would more than cover the cost of the program".

The plan calls for having a 4-day, 2 1/2 hour program for 3 year olds in the morning and a 5-day 2 1/2 hour program for 4 year olds in the afternoon. A kindergarten-type classroom with a bathroom is required. Start-up costs are estimated at $18,000. Kremin needs a decision from the board by the beginning of March in order to begin the application process.

Projected Enrollments

In reviewing projecting enrollments, Fenton said, "We have discrepancies across the district in class sizes".

Woodland Avenues' kindergarten this year is at the district maximum (28), which according to Fenton "concerned parents." In projecting class sizes for 1990-91, Woodland is forecast to have 26 kindergartners in one class. Fenton said Old Country Road and Burns Avenue have the larger minority populations in the District. Class sizes have been split at lower numbers in these schools because as many as 10-12 non-English speaking students can occur in their primary classes. "We accommodate that in projecting class sizes because the odds are it will continue," Fenton said.

In response to a question, Fenton said "ideally" kindergarten class sizes would range from 18 to 22 students as explained at the board's Feb. 7 meeting.

Fenton stated the district is using a "pretty good formula" in projecting enrollment. Actual enrollment in Hicksville public schools is now 4,401. Projected figures for this year were 4,390.

Parents spoke regarding class sizes and breaking up classes in the event of redistricting. Fenton acknowledged that a "different teaching style" is necessary in conducting a class of between 28 and 30 and said there is "no easy solution."

Budget

Bennett said the budget has generally increased 5-7 percent a year or approximately $1.5 to 3 million. Citing this year's projected $9.8 million increase which could rise to $12 million with the loss of state aid, he said "the board has to go through each and every [budget] code".

In an interview with Assistant Superintendent of Business William Hall, this newspaper raised a question regarding the possible duplication of a budget item for English as a Second Language instruction. This will be looked into and could result in as much as a $500,000 decrease in the projected budget.

Residents questioned liability insurance coverage, the district's legal fees and why an additional assistant principal was still retained after the two-year transition period at the Middle School was over. Fenton explained that Mrs. Marshall as Assistant Principal meets with the teams at the Middle School on a daily basis, providing supervisory and instruction guidance. The board, she said, had decided to continue this position beyond the two-year period.

Resident Tom Voss offered his perspective on the budget, expressing concerns with maintaining an underoccupied Middle School while closing elementary schools. Regarding computers, which he called "excellent tools", Voss said he was unwilling to have his children "at too early an age become too familiar with tools that take the place of critical thinking". He said a general purpose computer as a word processor was like "using a cannon to open a door... We're going to have to look very hard at every dollar we spend".

Board Meetings

As the meeting drew to a close at 11 p.m. with insufficient time to review Code 2000, Bennett asked Fenton to include an item on the board's next agenda to have all future budget review meetings conducted as official board meetings in order that action could take place with respect to the budget. He expressed his concern that Cardella and MacBride had not attended the Finance Committee meetings in January and February.

The next meeting of the board of education is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 27 at 8:15 in the Administration Building. However, it is very likely that this meeting will be moved to the High School. Fenton is expected to suggest a special meeting date at that time for the board to continue its discussions regarding redistricting and/or closing schools.

The Home Improvement & Energy Expo Starts New Decade

The largest Home Improvement and Energy Expo returns to the Nassau Coliseum on March 1-4.

This home improvement "supermarket-place," now in its 11th year, has turned thousands of Long Island homeowners' dreams into reality.

In the past, when a homeowner wanted to do a home improvement project, they went from one company to the next, or from showroom to showroom in search of that certain look, usually coming up empty-handed. The consumer found this to be a frustrating and time-consuming experience.

To quote one very charming lady on a recent News 12... "I wasted my last four Saturdays running from one shop to the next and never found what I wanted, but here at the Home Improvement & Energy Expo I found everything I was looking for under one roof and I made just one stop!" Another homeowner was heard telling the cameras... "I'm pleasantly surprised to find such a variety of products and services here at the Coliseum. Every type of home improvement I could possibly want is right here at the show... it's great!"

"The Home Improvement & Energy Expo is obviously a favorite of Long Islanders," said Rick Stuts, the show's producer. "This is substantiated by a marked increase in attendance each time this show returns to the Coliseum. Many homeowners make this 'super marketplace.' A twice-a-year ritual as they improve their homes one project at a time."

The Nassau Coliseum Home Improvement & Energy Expo opens on Thursday, March 1 and runs through Sunday, March 4. Products and services of the more than 200 exhibiting companies will be of great interest to every homeowner. This year's show promises to provide the most diversified selection of windows, greenhouses, skylights, doors, home improvements, custom decks, spas, hot tubs, building materials, flooring, basement waterproofing, insulation, woodworking equipment, kitchen cabinets, ceramic tiles & marble, wood & coal stoves, window treatments, boilers, security systems, bathroom refinishing, interior design, water purification, vanities, custom closets, chimneys, security shutters, a free cooking show, home improvement financing, investment info and much, much more, for the do-it-yourselfer or those who would like it done for them. Come see what's new for the 90's.

Homeowners from miles around attend the Home Improvement & Energy Expo seeking the countless show specials offered here. Over the past 10 years, the Home Improvement & Energy Expo has grown to be the most diversified Home Improvement & Energy Show and sale in the Northeastern United States. The show's producer, Rick Stuts, is a member of the National Association of Exposition Managers, National Association of the remodeling industry, and the Long Island Association, just to name a few. Mr. Stuts takes great pride and satisfaction in presenting Long Islanders with the most up-to-date products and services available in the home improvement industry. He is constantly in search of new and innovative concepts to preview at the Home Improvement & Energy Expo. With this commitment to excellence, you can be sure that if it has anything to do with home improvements or energy... you will see it at the Home Improvement & Energy Expo.

Hofstra Museum Presents By Rhoda Sherbell

The Hofstra Museum presents "Rhoda Sherbell and the Fragile Environment," Feb. 20-Apr. 1 1990 in the Hofstra Cultural Center Gallery, 10th floor of the Axinn Library. The exhibition will contain 27 pieces from a series of heads completed by sculptor and Westbury resident Rhoda Sherbell since 1980. A reception will be held on Mar. 4 from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Cultural Center Gallery.

Sherbell has travelled around the world collecting shells, coins, horns, beads, coral, and other natural objects. Her travels have taken her not only to Europe but to Egypt, Africa and the South Pacific as well.

"This ensemble of art works represents my outlook on the world and my feeling of mutual respect for the seven continents. The world is in actuality one home that all mankind and its creatures share. I revere and hold dear what I have been born into and I want to encourage the feelings of inspiration and positive energy through my art," Sherbell said.

She begins each work with a realistically sculpted chalkware head. She then cuts, paints, adds and imbeds decorative pieces into them. Each head takes on a life and history of its own. Her art has always tried to capture the human condition and to provide psychological insight about the different cultures that inhabit the earth.

The Hofstra Museum is fully accredited and is a member of the American Association of Museums and the Long Island Museum Association.

The Hofstra Museum hours are: Tues., 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Wed., Thurs., and Fri., 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sat. and Sun., 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The Hofstra Museum is closed on Mon. and some holidays. For more information, call 560-5672.

Positive Parenting: The School-Age Child Offered at North Shore

Are you concerned about the amount of television your children watch? Does homework cause battles in your home? How do the stresses of modern day life affect your children? How do you cope with the sometimes overwhelming responsibilities of parenthood? These are just some of the issues that will be addressed in "Positive Parenting: The School-Age Child," a three-session course designed for parents, grandparents and caregivers of children ages five to 12. The series will be held at North Shore University Hospital-Cornell University Medical College on three consecutive Wednesday evenings, Feb. 28, March 7 and March 14, from 7:30-9:00 p.m.

The course will be taught by professionals from the hospital's Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry who will offer practical parenting tips and strategies, along with ample opportunity for audience participation. The focus of the first session, "Stressed Children"; scheduled for Feb. 28, 1990, is helping children cope with difficult life events, such as separation, divorce, loss and the changing family. "Harried Children", on March 7, will stress helping children manage after-school activities, homework and television. The March 14 session is entitled, "Harried Parents", and it will cover coping with the conflicting demands of parenthood, economic pressures and the myth of the super parent.

This program is being offered by the hospital's Department of Health Education/Community Affairs in cooperation with the New Leadership Division, a committee of the hospital's Board of Trustees dedicated to community education. The cost is $10.00 per session or $25.00 for the entire series and pre-registration is required. For additional information, please contact the Department of Health Education/Community Affairs at (516) 562-3045.

Bon Voyage!

with Edythe Shepard

Before beginning this week's "Bon Voyage" column, let me thank those readers who sent letters. Your comments, advice, opinions, etc. are always welcome, as are your questions. Mrs. H.B. in Roslyn requested information about a Caribbean vacation she wanted to take and asked me what island I could suggest.

For you readers who are undecided about where in the Caribbean to visit, all I can say is, it depends on how you want to spend your vacation. Unfortunately, this column is too short to give you a full run down on the Caribbean, island by island (which description would help give you a good picture of what to find on which island). But let's give it a try.

The area covers over a million square miles, from the Atlantic Ocean to the Caribbean Sea; north to the Greater Antilles, south to the coastlines of Panama, Colombia, and Venezuela, Lesser Antilles on the east and Mexico's Yucatan, west. To try to lump the area together is impossible; each island is as diverse as it is delightful: from volcanic craters to palm-fringed beaches, rugged coastlines and mountain peaks to lush rain forests, cactus-filled desert and verdant jungle vistas.

There is the informality and quietude of Monserrat's black volcanic sand beaches and the jet-set excitement of Jamaica's Montego Bay. There's the tiny, placid island of Tobago and the calypso stimulation of its sister island of Trinidad; the isolation and rustic beauty of St. Barthelemy and Dominica and the spirited action in Puerto Rico. There are islands offering the tranquility and relaxation of solitude on secluded beaches and others with a myriad of sports, shopping, and nightlife activity. To pinpoint the area culturally is impossible, as European, African, and American cultures and ancestry mingle to produce a vast array of people, customs, styles, and language.

Inhabitants of Barbados (where areas remind a traveler of parts of Scotland) speak English with a delightful lilt, and over 300 years of British tradition are seen in the natives' courtesy and grace. In Curacao, the flavor is Dutch, with buildings and windmills reminiscent of Holland, and the official language and currency is Dutch. St. Barthelemy (St. Barts) sports a touch of Sweden and a mostly blonde, blue-eyed population. Martinique and Guadeloupe are truly Gallic in appearance and character, with French language, cuisine and currency. St. Thomas retains its old world Danish charm (often hidden by hordes of shoppers eager to take advantage of its generous duty-free customs allowance). St. Martin is divided down the middle between the Dutch and French sections, and visitors, free to move between them, are afforded a taste of each culture. Much of San Juan's old Spanish flavor has given way to sleek high rise hotels, except for the city's old walled historic seven-block area, which still retains the charming aura of the Spanish Empire.

Back a few years, even Christopher Columbus, in a letter to Queen Isabella, "I saw so many islands that I could hardly decide which to visit first." So today too, the tourist must decide the type of atmosphere and activities he/she wants in the Caribbean. Is it trendy Ocho Rios in Jamaica, with its clubs and discos and raggaee music? Is it offbeat locales you want, with sunning, sports, and solitude, as offered by the British Virgin Islands of Anguilla or Nevis or the British Windwards and Grenadines, Salt Cay and North and South Caicos. . . all are an adventurer's paradise for those who enjoy being "the only ones around".

To return to more people, lively activity, sightseeing, shopping, gourmet dining, and entertainment, vacationers have a wide choice of Caribbean islands: colorful Martinique, where you can gamble the night away; Guadeloupe, home of the beguine and merengue; Aruba's roulette, craps and blackjack; San Juan's splashy casinos and after-dark spectacular musical revues. . . and more.

There is so much more to the Caribbean: from voodoo and beauty to steel bands and scuba diving. . . whatever your pleasure, it awaits you here; a region of sun-drenched beaches, turquoise waters and azure skies, spectacular scenery and year-round warm temperature.

GULOTTA, HALPIN CALL FOR REGIONAL ECONOMIC INITIATIVE

Nassau County Executive Thomas Gulotta and Suffolk County Executive Patrick Halpin announced they will join forces to help the Long Island economy as it moves from a defense-oriented job base. In their third annual appearance at the Long Island Association's Economic Summit, held on February 7, Gulotta and Halpin said they have agreed to form a Bicoounty Peacetime Economics Adjustment Council comprised of the Island's leading government, business, civic and labor leaders to help Long Island plan and implement the transition to a peacetime economy. This group will work on such aspects as garnering funding for a high-technology incubator at the State University of New York at Stony Brook and attracting businesses to relocate to Long Island. Shown are (l to r) Patrick Halpin, LIA President James L. Larocca and Thomas Gulotta, addressing the 1,000 attendees at the Economic Summit.

Happy Birthday Girl Scouts

March 12 is the 78th anniversary of the Girl Scouts—the world's largest voluntary organization for girls. Since 1912, millions of girls have had the opportunity to make new friends, learn new skills, and become confident individuals through Girl Scouting.

As the world changes and becomes more complex, Girl Scouting moves with the times. The organization continues to find new ways to help girls and young women develop a sense of values and make meaningful contributions to society. The all-girl experience of Girl Scouting presents girls with a world where they can take the leadership position. It provides an environment—maybe the only such environment a girl will encounter during her formative years—where the special needs and interests of girls come first.

Girl Scouts of Nassau County provides an opportunity for you to mold the future. By becoming a Girl Scout volunteer, you can help today's girls face the challenges of today's world. You can help them grow and develop their full potential, preparing them to become tomorrow's business, education, government and religious leaders. You can make a difference!

There is an activity just for you to match your time and talents.

A few hours? Do a workshop, write an article, chaperone a trip. One day a month? Assist a troop leader, make phone calls, design a flyer, assist girls in career exploration. One day a week? Be a troop leader or assistant leader, coordinate the cookie sales for a group, help girls face the challenges of today's world.

Why not give yourself a gift for the Girl Scouts' Birthday and become a volunteer? The rewards are many—a sudden smile, a warm hug, the satisfaction of a job well done. Call Girl Scouts of Nassau County at 741-2550—you'll be so glad you did!

At the Nassau County Museum of Art in Roslyn Harbor, the exhibition "Egon Schiele: A Centennial Retrospective" opened on Saturday evening, January 27, with a gala reception. Participating in the festivities were Hon. Robert I. McDonald, Deputy County Executive and Arnold A. Saltzman, Chairman of the Museum's Board of Trustees. ## The Environmental President?

By Martin Burns

During the 1988 presidential campaign, George Bush frequently expressed his concern for the environment and his desire to go down in history as "the environmental president."

Environmentalists were thrilled and surprised when the president announced his intention to nominate a bonafide environmentalist, William Reilly, to be the head of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). If this weren't enough, the president was also committed to work towards updating the Clean Air Act. To some environmentalists it looked as if he might really become the environmental president.

During the 1988 campaign, Bush was very outspoken on the issues of global warming, also known as "the greenhouse effect", and protecting our wetlands. He pledged to deal aggressively with the issue of global warming saying that he would use "the White House affect" to deal with it. On the wetlands issue, he promised that during his administration that there would be "no net loss" of wetlands.

Wetlands are environmentally valuable because they naturally filter pollution, recharge ground water sources, and act as nurseries for the young of many species of fish and wildlife. The greenhouse affect or global warming is the phenomena, according to many scientists, that pollution in the air is trapping heat on the earth's surface, thus warming the planet.

In recent weeks, two key developments have led many to question George Bush's commitment to these two environmental issues. The EPA and the Army Corps of Engineers had adopted a wetlands protection policy that was designed to implement the president's "no net loss" policy. This week the administration backed off this landmark policy and adopted a policy which one EPA official has been quoted as saying would permit "damage to wetlands from the North Shore of Alaska to the Everglades."

In a speech at Georgetown University, Bush retreated from the position he had on global warming during the presidential campaign. He said, what we need now on the global warming issue is more study. One has to wonder what happened to "the White House affect?"

What has happened to George Bush and his commitment to the environment? Many observers in Washington feel that Bush is listening too much to his chief of staff, John Sununu, the former governor of New Hampshire. Sununu has admitted that he rewrote the president's speech on global warming. He was long known to oppose the wetlands agreement designed by the Army Corps of Engineers and the EPA. Furthermore, the actions taken by the administration on the wetlands and global warming issue seem very consistent with Sununu's record of governor of New Hampshire.

George Bush seems to have some pretty good instincts when it comes to the environment. He really should listen to them and not his chief of staff.

'Swords into Plowshares'

By Martin Burns

When former President Jimmy Carter left Washington in January of 1981, he left without much recognition and little respect. In the past few years, Carter's activities as a former president have slowly been winning him a measure of the respect that eluded him as president.

Through the Carter Center, which is a public policy institute associated with his presidential library, former President Carter has sought to remain active on international issues. Studying the world's international organizations, Carter noticed that very few of them were equipped or designed to deal with the type of civil war that is all too common in the third world today. With this in mind, he sought to fill this void.

For over a quarter of a century, a brutal civil war has been raging in Ethiopia between the government and the Eritrean People's Liberation Front. The Eritreans are fighting for the independence of their homeland, which is located in northern Ethiopia. According to one estimate, the war and the famine it helped to create have cost a million lives.

Recently, officials from the Ethiopian government and the rebels have begun to meet in Atlanta, with former President Carter acting as mediator. Carter made a series of visits to Ethiopia last year and convinced both sides to bring the issue to Atlanta.

Two previous attempts at mediation between the Ethiopian government and the rebels have broken down, so there is no cause for unbounded optimism. Nevertheless, most practitioners of international diplomacy would argue that negotiations are almost always preferable to not talking. On a more positive note, the representative of the Ethiopian government has been quoted as saying that his government approaches the talks with "a new spirit of broad-mindedness."

The Constitution does not spell out any particular role for a former president. Indeed, what do you do once you have been president of the United States? I suppose that you can join the boards of major corporations or go on the talk shows and lecture circuit. At any rate, helping to "beat swords into plowshares" seems to me to be a most noble occupation for a former president of the United States.

Mrazek Pays Tribute

Rep. Robert Mrazek (D-NY) took to the floor of the House of Representatives to commend the 37 fire and rescue companies and the 12 hospitals across Long Island which responded to the crash of Avianca Flight 52 in Cove Neck. According to Mrazek, those who helped to deal with the results of this awful tragedy are "living practitioners of the finest instincts which reside in each of us."

In addition, Mrazek had inserted in the Congressional Record a letter from New York Governor Mario Cuomo commending Long Islanders for their courageous response to the tragedy.

Where the Grass Is Greener

It is one of those situations which seem to happen only to the federal government. The government administers 307 million acres which are used by cattle ranchers and spends about $63 million each year to administer this huge amount of land. In order to use this land to graze their cattle, ranchers pay a total of $22 million to the government.

You certainly don't have to be an expert in agricultural policy to figure that the government is losing money under this current arrangement. If this weren't enough, the government is lowering the price it charges ranchers to graze their stock, from $1.86 per animal unit a month to $1.81 beginning in March.

This story may have a happy ending for all of us who pay taxes after all. Rep. George "Buddy" Darden (D-GA) has introduced a bill, H.R. 775, which would require that ranchers pay fair market value for grazing rights on federal lands.

An Unusual Development

By Martin Burns

In what can be safely regarded as an unusual political development, New York Governor Mario Cuomo has come to the defense of Senator Alfonse D'Amato (R-NY), who is presently under investigation by the Senate Ethics Committee for using his influence to help friends, relatives and political allies to win federal housing benefits and/or contracts.

Speaking at a meeting with New York Post editors and reporters, Cuomo said that, "As soon as he [D'Amato] gets vindicated, he'll go up so far, it'll change everything." Cuomo was meeting with Post reporters and editors the day after it seemed that State Attorney General Robert Abrams (D) indicated that he might be interested in challenging D'Amato for reelection in 1992. Abrams is thought by some to be an impressive enough senate candidate that he might scare some lesser known Democrats out of the race. There is a perception among certain Democrats that D'Amato may be far more vulnerable in 1992 than he was in 1986.

When asked by a Post editor if he was assuming that the Senate Ethics Committee would find D'Amato innocent of any wrong doing, Cuomo replied, "I hope he will be. He's my senator. What do you hope — he gets convicted of something?" Cuomo went on to add that, "He's [D'Amato] been very good to us. I know him. I like him."

Cuomo and D'Amato have long had a politically symbiotic relationship that has both fascinated and puzzled political observers. In 1986, Cuomo was criticized by some Democrats, including Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan (D-NY), for not doing enough to help Mark Green, D'Amato's 1986 Democratic challenger.

In a letter to Cuomo, D'Amato thanked the governor for his "vote of confidence" and for rising "above partisanship...to touch for my integrity." D'Amato, in a telephone interview, expressed his hope that the Senate Ethics Committee would finish its deliberations as "quickly as possible", but acknowledged that this might not come until May or June. The senator went on to add that he had pledged to cooperate fully with the Ethics Committee and to express his forceful conviction that "the facts will demonstrate that I have fought for all of my constituents."

An Editorial

Passage from Ezekiel

By A.M. Rosenthal

The wonderful work of Covenant House must not slow down—the young people on the street can't wait until the authorities decide whatever they will decide...but the work must continue. With Cardinal O'Connor and Mr. Rosenthal, we urge all who have supported Covenant House to continue and to increase their support...The kid who is cold tonight can't wait.

The words across the front page read: "Times Square Priest Probed: Former male prostitute cites 'gilt'."

"Too cold out there," Teri Thorpe says. "No good for the bones. You are young, life to lead!" The young man nods, says thank you for the sandwich and the hot chocolate was just fine. He says he will stay at his aunt's place in Brooklyn, he is just fine, fine. He steps out of the passenger van at a corner.

Then he walks away but she knows he is not going to his aunt's place in Brooklyn. She knows him; she knows so many young people who come out into the streets at night.

Sometime during the night he will wander back, cross the street again to the docks and offer himself to one of the men waiting in the cars—for $20, maybe $10, depending on how desperate he is getting.

Now here is the van cruising slowly down Broadway, so late that only trouble is walking the streets. Eight young men, late teens, early 20's, are leaning against store windows, and they rush forward.

Teri Thorpe knows almost all of them and so does her partner, Coddington John. They put sandwiches in the hands reaching through the windows, then get out to talk.

They pass out cards with an address and phone numbers and ask the young men to come around the next day, maybe something can be worked out for them so they can get off the streets. Maybe two or three will show up, maybe none.

Some of them have been on the streets for four and five years.

Where do you go, where do you sleep? Here and there, here and there.

Money? Well, you know, any way. Look, some drugs, and we take things. Yes, sure, we work together, one of us pushes the guy, the other turns him around and grabs. We don't like to hurt them, but sometimes, you know...

Ms. Thorpe, driving slowly and using the car phone like a radar set, manages to track down two teen-age girls she has been looking for—runaways. One is pregnant. Both carry knives and razor blades. She arranges for beds and food and help tomorrow.

Every night Ms. Thorpe and Mr. John look for young men and women who are prostitutes or addicts or thieves or all three, or just lost—the untouchables of the city.

No sentimentality, just a sandwich, a cup of chocolate, offers of help to those who understand what help means, and courtesy. Every drug-ridden prostitute on the docks is a sir, every lost girl a miss. About 500,000 young Americans live in the streets month after month, year after year. They have much in common.

Almost all were sexually or physically abused. Most cannot write well enough to fill out a job application. They would not know how to go to work if they had work.

Many will die in the streets or in jail. Some of them first will kill other people in the streets.

Ms. Thorpe and Mr. John devote their lives to looking for the untouchables. They work for an organization called Covenant House. So do 3,000 other staff people and volunteers in 10 American cities and 6 abroad.

Some man crisis centers where young people of the streets can walk in for a bed or a meal. Others run hostels for young mothers or residential programs where every year 25,000 young people, with enough strength and will to try, can go through education or job-training programs for 12 months. Covenant House was founded 20 years ago by the Rev. Bruce Ritter, a member of the Franciscan order.

Father Ritter's personal appeals raised scores of millions for Covenant House. Other good organizations dealing with the lost and addicted sometimes look on wistfully as they struggle for funds.

Father Ritter praises the intensive therapeutic communities like Phoenix House and Daytop Village. He says Covenant House can be a bridge to them from the streets.

The headline and story appeared in The New York Post a month ago. They were based only on the word of a young man whose own father later said he was a habitual liar. Now the young man has turned himself into a psychiatric clinic. Father Ritter has denied the allegations.

Since the story, contributions to Covenant House have fallen off 25 percent. Work on new projects around the country and abroad has halted.

The purpose of this column is to remind the thousands of Americans who have supported this fine organization of the words from Ezekiel on which Covenant House was founded:

"I bound myself by oath. I made a covenant with you...and you became mine."

From The Islander Files:

Week In Review

Week ending Feb. 11: With 62 points, the New York Islanders remain in first place in the Patrick Division after an unbeaten (2-0-1) three-game road trip this past week. All three games were played into overtime... On Tuesday, February 6, the New York Islanders defeated the Pittsburgh Penguins 8-7 in overtime. Pittsburgh scored two quick goals to start the game but the Islanders soon tied the score with goals by Pat LaFontaine and Derek King. Paul Coffey put Pittsburgh ahead 3-2 with a power play goal, but the Islanders regained their one goal lead with two power play goals by Patrick Flatley and Derek King. At the start of the third period, Pittsburgh scored three straight power play goals to take a 6-4 lead while Alan Kerr was serving a five-minute major penalty for high-sticking and a 10-minute game-misconduct penalty. Once again, the Islanders rallied to capture the lead with three straight goals by LaFontaine, LaFontaine again, and Derek King. Pittsburgh tied the game at 7-7 with a power play goal by John Cullen sending the game into overtime. With 32 seconds left in the five-minute overtime period, Don Maloney scored to win the game for the Islanders. Mark Fitzpatrick played an outstanding game in goal for the Islanders stopping 37 shots. LaFontaine and King both scored three goal hat tricks in the game for the Islanders... On Thursday, February 8, the New York Islanders tied the Philadelphia Flyers 5-5 in overtime. The Islanders took the first lead in the game with goals by Randy Wood and Bryan Trotter, but the Flyers followed with three straight goals by Tim

Kerr, Kjell Samuelsson, and Scott Mellanby giving them a 3-2 lead. Jeff Norton tied the game with a power play goal and the Flyers scored two more goals for a 5-3 Philadelphia lead. The Islanders tied the game 5-5 with two goals by Hubie McDonough and Doug Crossman. Glenn Healy started in goal for the Islanders and made 34 saves... On Saturday, Feb. 10, the New York Islanders were victorious over the Boston Bruins by the score of 4-3 in overtime. Boston scored the first goal of the game by Dave Poulin and Randy Wood scored to tie the game. 2 ♠	3 ♦	3 ♥	4 ♦
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Double

Opening lead — two of diamonds.

Many seemingly normal leads turn out to be very expensive. Consider this deal from a team of four match where South got to four hearts, doubled at both tables.

At the first table, West led a diamond and South had an easy time of it. He ruffed in dummy, led a club to his ace, ruffed another diamond, then discarded both his spades on the K-Q of clubs.

After ruffing a spade, declarer trumped a third diamond in dummy, after which he discarded his last diamond on the jack of clubs. West ruffed with the heart five and also got his A-K of trumps, but South made the contract for a score of 590 points.

The deal illustrates the overwhelming power of a crossruff. South made ten tricks even though he and dummy together had only 17 high-card points to the opponents' 23!

At the second table, where four hearts doubled was reached on similar bidding, West decided to lead the king of hearts in order to take a look at the board. This proved to be an inspired move when West, noting dummy's dearth of diamonds, continued with the ace and another heart.

South was now in sad shape. He could neither cash dummy's clubs nor ruff any of his diamond losers in dummy. All told, South lost two spades, two hearts and four diamonds, making only five tricks where the previous declarer had made ten! He lost 900 points with the very same cards with which the first declarer scored 590.

Not that the second South did anything wrong. The difference was that at the first table West innocently led a diamond and thus cost himself 1,490 points.

Hicksville Vs. Hicksville in Soccer Tournament

By A. Blicher

The Hicksville Minutemen, the 1977 B travelling soccer team, entered two teams in the Oceanside Indoor Tournament Feb. 11, and came home with first and second place trophies, as the two teams faced each other in the Championship game.

The red team had Jorge da Silva in goal, supported by Robin Blicher, Tim Dalton, Brian Rigert, Anthony Noya, Andres Turcios and Robert Wagner. Their first game was a 1-1 tie against Oceanside, with Turcios putting in the score. Their second game was a breathtaking 4-3 win over Elmont, on goals by Rigert, Turcios, and two from Noya. The third and fourth games were tough 1-0 losses to Floral Park and Valley Stream. However, their head-to-head win over Elmont placed them in second place in Division "A" and led to a semi-final against the Division "B's" first place team, Valley Stream. In their best game of the day, they defeated Valley Stream 1-0 on a goal by Dalton.

The white team had Declan Healy in goal, supported by Kenny D'Introno, Jason Brown, Bobby Braun, Mike Whitman, Tracy Koeller, and Danny dePinho. Their first game was a 0-0 tie against Amity. Their second game was a 4-0 loss to Valley Stream. The third game was a 4-0 route over Floral Park on two goals by D'Introno, one by dePinho, and another by Braun. The fourth game was a 2-0 victory over Oceanside, with Braun putting in both Hicksville tallies. Their record of two wins, one loss and one tie put them in Second Place in Division "B", setting up a semi-final game against Floral Park, who was first in Division "A". They won 2-0, led by two D'Introno goals.

The red team and the white team faced off for the tournament championship, and the reds completely outplayed their teammates for a 4-1 victory. Noya scored two goals, while Dalton and Rigert had one apiece. Whitman had the white's lone tally.

Coach's notes: Congratulations to my "red" team for a morning of interesting, winning soccer. Congratulations also, to the "white" team for their great effort. Special thanks to my Assistants, Tony dePinho and Pete Whitman, for their help in coaching the latter team.

Doyle Baseball Registration Underway

Doyle Baseball is on the move. In every corner of the United States and many parts of Canada, the Doyle staff will be conducting Satellite Schools. The program is geared to developing players of all ages by improving their basic skills.

The Satellite School program has grown because it reaches everyone involved in an organization. Parents, coaches, and players all benefit from the program provided by Doyle Baseball.

All Parents are welcome on field during a Satellite School. They are welcome to video the program, take notes, and follow their player through each of the sessions. They are then able to work with their player at home or at the field with a purpose. Best of all, parents are able to monitor progress and be a positive influence as their youngsters grow as players.

Coaches benefit from the specific program

Doyle provides as they are instructed in basic fundamentals in a unique atmosphere. Doyle Baseball's Coaches Program is not a "sit down take notes clinic". Each coach listens to the instruction and performs the basics of each skill being taught. They also work on the field during the player's school and learn to recognize player problem areas and make corrections. Each coach will also receive the Doyle Baseball manual, "Developing The Successful Coach".

If your son or daughter is involved in baseball or softball, attending a Doyle Baseball Satellite School is your best educational effort. Not only will they learn baseball, but discipline and strong work ethics are emphasized. Doyle is being hosted by St. Ignatius CYO and is open to all youths in Hicksville. Join Doyle Baseball on March 17 and 18. To register call Audrey Andrews 933-0887 or Joan Famiglietti 935-6369.
