Community Center Planned For Giese Park

By Rita Langdon

The Town of Oyster Bay expects to unveil plans next Thursday for what will be Hicksville's first community center.

Residents indicated through a town-sponsored poll earlier this year that such a center was needed in the area. Town officials are planning the center for Giese Park, a seven-acre parcel located on Lee Avenue.

Residents will have an opportunity to hear officials discuss the plan at the Hicksville Community Council meeting on Thursday, November 1, at 7:30 p.m.

"Our representatives will be more than happy to evaluate input from residents," said town spokesperson Kurt Ludwig.

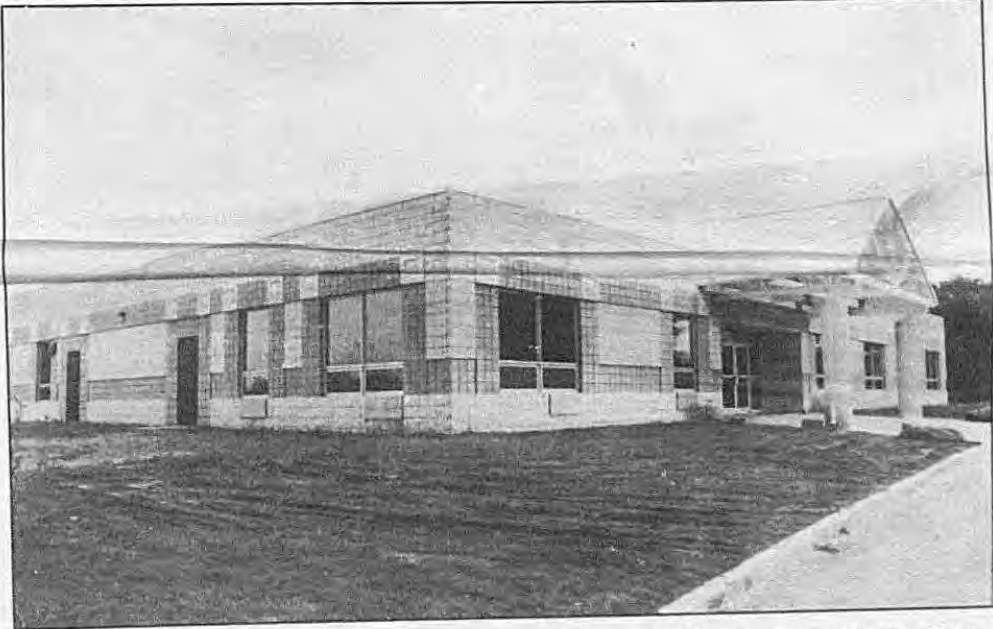

The survey—which evaluated all existing parkland—was conducted by the Hicksville Park District Task Force and submitted to the Oyster Bay town board in February 1990.

A total of 14,000 questionnaires was mailed to all Hicksville residents and 1,878 were returned—a 13 percent response. Results showed that a community building to accommodate indoor activities for senior citizens and youths was desired.

According to survey results, an "ideal location for a community building would be a school building, if one became available." However, the survey further stated that if a school was not available, the Giese Park property would be considered.

For more than a year, the Hicksville school board has been studying the possibility of closing one or two schools. However, there has been no definite decision handed down by the board of education.

"It could be several years before a school becomes available or a determination of what the cost would be," said Ludwig. "Current plans will enable us to have a functioning center in the next year which will be beneficial to the community because we believe there is a need for it," he added. Funds to build the center will come from a $990,000 bond which was established in 1986 for improvements at Giese Park. The community building will be constructed exactly like the new community center located at Syosset-Woodbury Park in Syosset. That building consists of an office, four activity rooms, two classrooms and one central room—similar to an auditorium—which is 43 feet by 39 feet.

According to Ludwig, the cost to build the Syosset building was $889,000—approximately $705,000 for construction and $171,000 for engineering. Because the plans for the Hicksville center are the same as Syosset's, the cost to construct the Hicksville building will be considerably less because the architectural designs have already been made, Ludwig said. Because the bond has already been established, there will be no increase in the park district tax rate, he added.

"The remaining money will be used for other things at Giese Park such as a playground area," Ludwig said.

The position of the community building on the property as well as a 50-space parking lot will be decided by area civic association leaders and other local representatives who will meet with town engineers.

When asked what the town would do if the residents adamantly oppose the center, Ludwig said, "The residents have already demonstrated a overwhelming support for the project. But, if at the meeting, for whatever reason indicates otherwise, we'll address that situation as it arises."

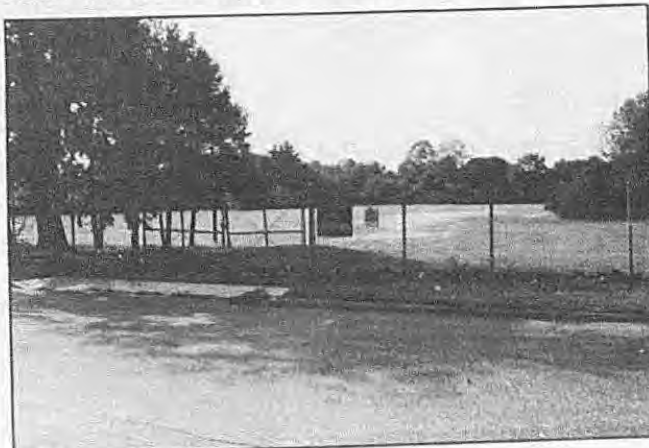

Charles Cunningham, a Jay Street resident, said he is "vehemently against" a community center on the property.

"If you put any kind of building in there, at night it's going to draw some kids who will hang out and drink." He added that it would be difficult for emergency vehicles and fire trucks to travel down the residential roads which are narrow in that area. He said that he would rather see a passive park built on the property. "I don't want to see any parking lots or permanent buildings."

Giese Park Civic Association president, Thomas McGovern, who is also a member of the Hicksville Park District Task Force, said, "Personally, I'd like the property to stay the way it is with open green space, but I realize there is a need for a community center." He added, "If it's done right it will be an asset to the community."

Irma DeStefano, director of the Hicksville-Mid Island Senior Club, said she supports the plan for a community center. "We really want a place of our own."

Ludwig said that no public hearing or vote is required for the town to build a community center. He noted that the town is constructing the building based on the task force survey which was distributed to all Hicksville homes.

Local Leaders: Protect Cantiague's Status

Residents are concerned about the deteriorating conditions of the playground at Cantiague Park. Shown is the concrete remains of what was once playground equipment. County officials said the playgrounds will be renovated.

By Rita Langdon

Nassau County officials are drafting a proposal which will protect Cantiague Park from possible commercial development.

The plan, if approved by the county's Board of Supervisors, would guarantee that the facility remain a park.

Hicksville's Northwest Civic Association members made the request after a developer sought a permit to construct a two-story office building and repair trucks on the property which is adjacent to Cantiague Park on West John Street. The residents presumed that the property, which abuts residential homes on Kuhl Avenue, was a part of Cantiague Park, according to Mary Ann Ferraro, president of the Northwest Civic Association. However, the group later learned that the developer bought the land from Nassau County under the excess land act.

Although the permit was denied by the Oyster Bay Town Board in September, residents did not want developers to attempt to take over the property or any other park property in the future. "It's inconceivable [that] this source of tranquility, beauty and recreation could someday be another warehouse, truck depot and factory," said Ferraro in a letter to Nassau County Executive Thomas Gulotta.

If approved by the Nassau County Board of Supervisors, Cantiague Park will be put into a "Park Trust" which ensures that the land can not be developed or sold, according to Kenneth Cynar, county director of communications. "We're taking the necessary steps to preserve the park so there will be no problems in the future," Cynar said. He added that under the "Park Trust," any future work would be for recreational purposes only.

Oyster Bay Town Supervisor Angelo Deligatti, who is a member of the county Board of Supervisors said, that he will back the residents' request. "It is unthinkable that any part of the property might be adversely affected by the light industry zoning," Deligatti said.

In other park matters, residents have asked county officials to renovate the playgrounds at Cantiague. The playgrounds have been neglected for more than two years, according to Mildred Jones, a Northwest Civic Association trustee. Much of the playground equipment needs to be replaced and the walking and bicycle paths need to be repaved.

A county spokesperson said that the county is aware of the situation and a program has been instituted to refurbish all county parks.

Sisters Marry In Triple Wedding Ceremony

By Rita Langdon

Usually two's company and three's a crowd, but not for a trio of Hicksville sisters who celebrated a joint wedding ceremony last summer.

More than 350 guests attended the wedding of Laura, Deborah and Geraldine Fitzgerald, Hicksville natives, who were married on July 28 in Renton, Washington.

The idea for the triple wedding came after all three girls found themselves engaged within months of each other.

"Financially, we could not do three big weddings," Ann Fitzgerald, mother of the brides, said last week. "We had relatives coming from Ireland, England, New York and New Jersey and we couldn't ask them to make three trips," she said.

"We wanted all our family here," said Geraldine. "It's been 13 years since we've all been together."

There were a total of 20 bridesmaids and ushers, five flower girls, three ring bearers and one candle lighter.

The maids/matrons of honor wore floral print dresses with three prominent colors—light teal, dark teal and lilac. Each set of bridesmaids wore one of those colors. Every part of the wedding procession was done in triplicate.

The brides' father, Maurice, walked each daughter separately down the aisle.

The youngest, Laura, 21 and her bridal party went down the aisle first. Maurice would then walk back up the aisle for the next bride, Debbie, 26, and then the next, Geraldine, 27.

The wedding vows were also said separately. The mass lasted about an hour and a half and was celebrated by two priests.

Although the ceremony was to begin at 1 p.m., the brides, grooms and their families had to meet at the church—St. Stephen The Martyr Catholic Church—for photographs. Pictures were taken between 9 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Because one of the grooms has a large family, picture-taking continued after the ceremony for two more hours and then again at the reception.

At the reception, the brides danced with their husbands to the song: "It Had to be You." Geraldine said that the only disagreement with her and her sisters during the wedding was deciding upon a song for their first dance as husbands and wives.

"We all have different tastes in music so we picked the song that my parents danced to at their wedding," she said.

When it came time for the girls to dance with their father, each had a turn during the song to dance separately with her dad. Eventually, all four were dancing together. "We were all hugging one another, mom joined us and everyone was in tears," said Geraldine.

There were four, three-tier wedding cakes and the traditional cake cutting song was played three times. The removing of the garters was done separately, although the bouquets and garters were thrown at the same time. At the reception hall, there were three tables set up for gifts. Three different colored stick-on dots were placed on the gifts which belonged to each couple.

The following day, "we had a fabulous gift opening in our backyard," said Ann. "The whole yard was an unbelievable array of gifts."

In planning the wedding, the brides met faithfully every Tuesday night for five months. Each girl was assigned a certain task. Three church rehearsals were held before the big day. The girl's other sister, Terry, who is an assistant administrator at the church where the trio was married, also helped coordinate the wedding.

There were not too many mishaps during the wedding. The brides had to settle for three limousines, "because we couldn't get a company to do that many people," said Geraldine. "Out here they usually don't have big weddings and the Good Will Games were on," she added.

Although one of the flower girls lost a tooth right before the procession and one of the ring bearers fell asleep on the pew and could not be awakened up for the recession, "we were shocked it all went so smoothly," said Geraldine. "The day was absolutely beautiful," Ann added. "Everything worked out fabulously!"

"They had a real New York style wedding," said Debra (Diaz) Yankura, Geraldine's matron of honor. "We had a blast!"

Other Hicksville natives at the wedding were Beth Ann Connolly who served as a bridesmaid for Geraldine and Christine Connolly, who served as bridesmaid to Deborah. Also attending the nuptials were Paula and Mary Keyer of Hicksville.

The brides are all graduates of Burns Avenue Elementary School. All three attended the Hicksville Middle School which at that time was called the Hicksville Junior High. The Fitzgeralds moved to Washington about 13 years ago.

Laura is the bride of James Evard Hoge, Jr. of Renton, the son of Trudy Hoge from Portland, Maine. Laura is employed by Danzas Corporation as an accounts specialist. Her husband, James, is a graduate of Portland High School. He attends the University of Washington and is an Army ROTC cadet. The Hoges reside in Renton.

Deborah's bridegroom is Jon Paige Colman, son of Ron and Johanna Colman of Kent. He graduated from Thomas Jefferson High School and is a 1990 business administration graduate of Central University. Deborah works as a special account coordinator for Danzas Air Freight. They also reside in Renton.

Geraldine married Terrance C. Garl of Renton. He is the son of the Minnie Garl and the late Ernest Garl. A graduate of Rainier Beach High School, he is employed as a truck driver for HBI. Geraldine is a text processing operator for Farmers New World Life Insurance Co. The Garls reside in Ravensdale.

County Briefs

Compiled by Michael J. Maloney Family Awareness Day

In recognition of Crime Prevention Month, Nassau County will sponsor "Family Awareness Day" this Saturday, Oct. 28, at Eisenhower Park.

The free program, from noon to 4 p.m. near parking field no. 8, is designed to educate and inform the entire family on how to fight crime and will feature martial arts demonstrations specifically geared toward children and senior citizens, and a number of other activities.

The first 140 youngsters aged six to nine will receive tickets to participate in the award-winning "Safety Town," a program operated by the Nassau County Police Department.

In addition, participants can view posters submitted by local students and county jail inmates, as well as a series of videos concerning crime prevention at the indoor Special Activities Center. Videos will run every half hour from 12:30 to 3 p.m. There will also be a number of booths displaying different aspects of crime prevention.

Eisenhower Park is located in East Meadow with entrances at Hempstead Turnpike and Stewart Avenue. For more information about the program, call 433-7573.

Help to Respite Caregivers

Nassau County has announced that the Department of Senior Citizen Affairs will extend its in-home Senior Respite Program which provides frail elderly with companionship and support, due to an increase in state funding.

Respite, or temporary care to the frail elderly, focuses on locating lower-middle income families not eligible for Medicaid-supported respite and who cannot afford standard home health care rates.

The Senior Respite Program trains workers who receive an hourly stipend for providing in-home care. In addition, the staff provides in-depth assessment, counseling, information and referral services to seniors and their families.

Caregivers in need of relief which Respite can provide, or persons who wish to work in the program, are encouraged to call 535-5861.

Help for Blind Seniors

With the help of state and county funds, Nassau County will establish a Social Integration Program for the Blind and Visually Handicapped.

The program will integrate the elderly blind population into all appropriate senior citizen programs and services. The coordinator will outreach to the blind in need of interaction with the community; select volunteers and match them to clients; accompany volunteers on initial home visits; and act as a liaison for the blind and visually handicapped. Volunteers will escort clients to appropriate centers and get them acclimated and involved.

During the first year, program activities will be targeted to four Senior Community Service Centers. Efforts will be made to recruit volunteers from among those individuals already involved at the centers, and a coordinator will assist with the integration of the legally blind population in each center.

Welfare Training Help

Nassau County will be implementing a program that will offer education, training and employment placement in conjunction with supportive services such as child care and Medicaid to enable welfare recipients to enter the work force and become independent of government subsidies.

The Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Training Program, or JOBS, will require parents whose youngest child is three years of age to participate in employment and training activities, while child care services are provided.

The availability of transitional services will make it easier for individuals to maintain employment and will ensure that they do not lose services by accepting a job.

"It's An Agreement To Agree"...

Ash For Trash Deal With Brookhaven

By George Wallace

In a move which local officials said would save the town a quarter of a billion dollars over the lifetime of the agreement, the Town of Hempstead announced Monday it has set up a mechanism to ship its incinerator ash to the Town of Brookhaven in Suffolk County. In return, Brookhaven will ship trash to Hempstead for burning.

The announcement was expected to be followed two to three days later with announcements of other bi-town initiatives for handling solid waste, according to DEC head Tom Berger.

According to the terms of the Memorandum of Understanding, called "an agreement to agree" by one Hempstead official, Brookhaven can deliver up to 200 thousand tons of solid waste a year to Hempstead's plant, beginning April 1991. In return, bottom ash and fly ash from Hempstead's incinerator, to the tune of 225 thousand tons, would be shipped to Brookhaven's double lined landfill.

"In 1991 alone, Hempstead taxpayers will reap a $14 million tax break as a result of this agreement," said Hempstead presiding supervisor Joseph Mondello. With Hempstead currently paying $137 a ton to have its ash shipped upstate to Buffalo landfills, the $115 per ton estimate for trucking it and tipping it in Brookhaven represents a significant savings.

Hempstead will charge Brookhaven $65 a ton to burn its trash.

While officials acknowledged that a SE-QRA hearing would have to be held before Brookhaven could begin accepting the ash, they were estimating that when operational, as many as forty trucks per day would be going back and forth between the two sites carrying trash for ash.

"Hopefully we'll have the trucks rolling during off-peak hours," said one Hempstead official.

While the overall danger of incinerator-produced ash is still under study, Berger noted that studies at SUNY Stony Brook and other locations were beginning to suggest that the material may not be harmful. Trial use of the material in road construction in New Jersey has begun. And for three years now, testing of artificial reefs in Long Island Sound built from the material has produced no reports of leaching of toxic materials, Berger stated. "What's happening with the reefs is excellent," he said. "Also, take a look at Stony Brook's boathouse, which has one wall built from ash. There's a lot of things going on with use of the ash."

"I wouldn't be surprised if it wasn't a raw material that people are running after in the future."

At issue, continued Berger, is getting Long Island municipalities working together on solid waste management. And in this, he and Mondello are in agreement. "Long Island Townships must work together...to grapple with the complex environmental issues of the day, and still achieve significant tax savings for its residents," said Mondello.

But Berger acknowledged that comprehensive recycling and reduction in waste production may be the keys to managing the waste problem in the long run. In particular, recommendations for creating incentives for reduced waste generation, presented to officials of numerous town governments at a C.W. Post seminar last week, struck a chord with the DEC official.

"What he said made a lot of sense," said Berger, referring to the recommendations of Dr. Haynes C. Goddard, Department of Economics, University of Cincinnati.

Among Dr. Goddard's recommendations: local user charges for garbage pickup; and volume-based pricing for garbage pickup.

New Animal Shelter In Oyster Bay Nears Completion

By Miriam Ravad

A new animal shelter that will house homeless cats and dogs awaiting adoption in the Town of Oyster Bay is scheduled to open by the end of November. Construction workers are putting the finishing touches on the new shelter, located on the site of the old facility at 150 Miller Place in Syosset.

"The shelter will be life saving in terms of animals because it will be able to hold cats and dogs longer," Councilman Leonard Symons said during a recent tour of the new building.

At one point, he was joined by Syosset residents, Melissa Kramer and Barbara Shurgin, who had come to the shelter with their 3-year-old children, to look into adopting a homeless animal.

The town charges a $2 adoption fee and $7.50 for a state license, and offers a free examination of the animal at a local veterinarian's and free inoculations. Injured animals that are picked up by the town, or brought in by owners, are medically treated at the shelter.

Charles Wodice, director of the town animal shelter, said they will hold adoptable dogs and cats "as long as there is room," before euthanizing them.

The new building will have 60 runs for dogs and a separate sound-proof room for cats, so the dog's barking will not upset the cats and make them nervous, Wodice explained. The dogs will be kept in two separate wings, with 30 kennels in each, allowing a wing to be closed when the number of dogs declines, an energy conservation feature of the shelter.

Other features include an outside exercise area, a medical treatment room, quarantine kennels, a food preparation room, and a separate administration area. Skylights and light diffusing walls will provide efficient natural lighting.

"This is a kinder, gentler environment for animals," Symons said, adding, "There is no shelter like it in the country."

The town worked with animal rights groups, especially the Pioneers for Animal Welfare Society (PAWS) in designing the new shelter, according to Town Clerk Carl Marcellino. The town clerk's office, which is responsible for licensing dogs, works closely with the shelter.

"The original shelter is old and served its purpose," Marcellino said, noting that the new shelter will give the animals more space and allow for better care.

According to Wodice, the shelter took in 821 dogs in 1989, and 70 percent were adopted or redeemed by their owners. They received 540 cats, but 463 had to be euthanized. Once an animal is brought to the shelter, by law, it cannot be put back into the street, he explained.

A showcase highlighting "the animal of the week," which is slated for the new shelter, is designed to encourage adoption. Shurgin who is interested in adopting a cat as a pet for her daughter, Ilyssa, and Kramer, whose son Zachary wants a dog, will be back to the shelter to look again.

They were impressed by what they saw even though the building is not fully completed.

"When we adopt a cat," Shurgin said, "it will be from the town shelter."

HOUSING PROGRAMS should address the needs of young families and the help that they could use to purchase homes, with the government as facilitator, not landlord.

PRESERVE COMMUNITIES and the family oriented suburban lifestyle. The decent hard working people of New York deserve that neighborhoods free of crime be maintained as a high government priority.

FIGHT THE DRUG MENACE by arresting drug users and bringing them to court, their fines would be used to fight drug abuse much like the present anti-DWI program.

Mary (Coscia) Beniamino, a longtime Hicksville resident, died this month in Spokane, Washington. She was 71.

A graduate of Julia Richmond High School, she was originally Mary Coscia of Corona, Queens.

In 1948, she came to live on South Elm Street, Hicksville with her husband, Benjamin Beniamino, who was a partner with his brother-in-law, the late Anthony Villet, in home building, during the great post-World War II housing boom.

The firm, Benvil Homes, built the Hicksville Gables development on East Old Country Road and many other homes in the Hicksville community.

Mrs. Beniamino and her husband retired to Port Richie, Florida, some 12 years ago. In Hicksville, she was active with the Catholic Daughters of America of St. Ignatius Loyola Church. She was the mother of Leigh Beniamino and Laurel Starke of Spokane. She also has three grandchildren: Curran, Sarah and Rene Ann Starkey.

The announcement was made by Venerando J. Indelicato, president and chief executive officer of the firm which manufactures telephone system test equipment and peripheral telephone equipment. At the same time, Indelicato announced that the company had signed a two-year agreement with Allen & Co. Incorporated whereby the latter, a long-established major investment banking and underwriting firm, will serve as Metro Tel's financial advisor.

Letters From Our Readers

Letters to the editor are welcomed by the editors and publishers of the Anton Community Newspapers. However, they must follow certain guidelines in order for us to print them: they should be as short as possible; we reserve the right to edit in the interest of space; they MUST be signed (a typed name at the bottom will not suffice); they must include an address and telephone number so that we can verify their authenticity.

We receive many fine letters which we would like to share with our readers, but we are unable to use them because they are unsigned or have a typewritten name only.

We cannot publish every letter we receive because of space limitations, but we try to present both sides of all issues. Personal attacks and letters considered to be in poor taste will not be printed.

School Closings

This letter is being published upon request:

Mrs. Jo Ann Miltenberg, President
Hicksville Board of Education
Administration Building
Division Avenue
Hicksville, New York 11801

Dear Mrs. Miltenberg and the Board of Education

I have some questions regarding the recommendations made by the Board of Education at their meeting of September 26. I hope the Board will give serious consideration to the following concerns and reconsider your position on the criteria for school closings.

The map utilized by the Board on September 26 ultimately divided the Hickville elementary school boundaries into six sections, only two of which had more than one elementary building. While it is my understanding that matters relating to school closings are to be discussed in a public forum, this map has yet to be viewed by the public. All Board members seemed to be familiar with the map; it was, therefore, obvious that discussion amongst Board members had taken place prior to this meeting. I find it especially disturbing when two of the schools in the areas targeted for closing have no Board members living within their boundaries. Perhaps Mr. Bennett was correct in his observation that members of the Board were protecting their own area schools. If this is not the message the Board wishes to convey to the community, then you should re-examine the isolation of school closings from four buildings and consider all elementary schools as the Board begins public discussions.

The Board agreed that Dr. Fenton should recommend the school building or buildings to be closed before they make a final decision. She stated that as Hicksville's "educational leader", her recommendation could not be based on potential real estate value. Mr. Martillo said that the real estate value should not come into play when determining what building(s) should be closed. At this point, Mr. Martillo and Mrs. Miltenberg agreed that educational criteria should be the focus of Dr. Fenton's recommendation. What is included in the Board's definition of educational criteria?

What makes one school educationally superior? Shouldn't educational opportunities be consistent throughout the eight elementary buildings? For example, computer programs are in the pilot stage in several buildings. If proven successful, all elementary schools will eventually offer this program. I assume this to be true of any program that is tax-supported.

Will test scores be considered educational criteria? IOWA and PEP scores may prove to be unreliable because they will not necessarily remain constant in one building.

Will the building with the highest academic achievement be "rewarded" for their success?

During Ad Hoc Committee on Reorganization meetings, as well as this past Spring, Dr. Fenton often indicated the educational and social disadvantages of singleton classes. Will closing a building eliminate all singleton classes in the District?

Will educational criteria address the ESL and/or minority enrollment in the District? If this is to be a factor, buildings with large minority populations seem to have already been eliminated from consideration for possible closing.

There are other criteria that the Board should study. Have you considered the enrollment of each elementary school and the effect redistricting these children will have on the rest of the District? Have you considered the building capacity of each school? Have you considered the condition and operating costs of each building? What buildings are in need of capital improvements? Have you considered the effect school closings could have on certain neighborhoods? Have you considered the impact of transportation costs and the safety of the children you will be transporting? Under austerity, what happens when children who live short of the State guidelines for busing have to walk to schools that are over a mile from their homes and cross one, two or maybe three major thoroughfares.

Do you have any plans for buildings that will be closed? Has the Board had any recent interest by outside organizations or individuals for rental of school buildings and/or property. To close schools without having alternate plans for the vacant property is a large burden for the School Board to assume. If a building is boarded up and allowed to deteriorate, you could eventually be pressured by the community to put the sale of the property up for public referendum.

There are many variables to consider in closing schools. To expect Dr. Fenton to make a recommendation based solely on educational criteria is unrealistic and not in the best interests of the children or the community.

All schools should be evaluated before redefining school boundaries. Decide which school(s) should close and then redraw these lines. Keeping in mind the Board's commitment to the concept of neighborhood schools, realize that for as many good reasons as there are to close one school there are as many good reasons to close another.

Please do not let this become a political issue as many people in the community fear. This decision could be forever and requires that you put personal interests aside as the Board of Education represents the Hicksville community as a whole.

Student Protest

The following letter is being published upon request:

Mrs. Jo Ann Miltenberg, President
Hicksville Board of Education
Dear Mrs. Miltenberg:

I am writing to express my deep concern with regard to the student protest against an austerity budget staged during school hours on Oct. 1, 1990 by students at the Hicksville High School which resulted in the destruction of both school and personal property. I agree wholeheartedly with Principal Richard Hogan that we "cannot condone students interrupting classes and abandoning education in order to protest and shout down the voices of reason and authority."

I think it is very important that we respect the viewpoints of students and that they have an opportunity to express their opinions. As I see it, students have two courses of action. First, they should express their views to their parents and if their parents feel that action is warranted, their parents should present any complaints to the school board. Secondly, through their student government association, students can make their views known to the Principal and Superintendent of Schools. In my opinion, students should not be encouraged to stage protests nor to present their complaints directly to the school board.

The school board should set very specific guidelines for speakers appearing before the Board and make them known to all parents and teachers. Students should be made aware of them in social studies classes each year.

Students in general are impressionable and lacking in experience and mature judgment. They can be manipulated by adults to further their own causes. In my opinion, this entire incident should be investigated by Dr. Fenton to determine if the students were encouraged by teachers to leave the high school building to stage a public protest. Any teachers found to be involved should be charged with unprofessional and irresponsible conduct for possibly endangering students entrusted to their care. I also believe that in the future, students leaving school without authorization while classes are in session to participate in public protests or demonstrations, should be expelled.

When parents send their children off to school, they have a right to expect that they are being guided by responsible, mature teachers.

The Early Years

The following is based on material from Gregory Museum Historian Richard Evers.

The Hicksville Gregory Museum, home of the old court house, has become a Hicksville treasure to many residents.

The museum on Heitz Place is the only earth science center on Long Island with a nationally recognized geological collection. It renders superior educational and cultural services to the large and diverse audience of Long Island.

Through its exhibits and programs the Gregory Museum not only provides comprehensive instructional exhibits within the building, but undertakes stimulating and enriching outreach program. These include slide lectures, traveling exhibits and demonstrations, workshops and seminars for public groups, organizations and schools.

Displays at the museum have included 20,000 mineral and fossil specimens, Long Island Hydrology Exhibits, Renewed Local Zeolite Collection, Historical Collection in National Historic Place, butterflies and insects.

The museum also offers in-school educational programs, in-service courses for teacher education and childrens' workshops as well as local historical exhibits and the original jail cell which is popular among the children.

Museum History

In 1961, the Gregory Museum was begun informally as a resource center for the Long Island Butterfly and Moth Society by Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Gregory at their home at 207 Cottage Blvd., Hicksville. At that time, Mr. Gregory was president of the society. A display cabinet was constructed in the basement to house several hundred specimens of butterflies and moths. Soon, four more display cabinets were constructed to accommodate several thousand butterflies and moths from all over the world.

In 1962, Mr. Gregory, director of curriculum materials in the Hicksville Public Schools began a program of illustrated lectures in the district's 11 schools. In 1963, at the request of several fourth grade teachers in the Hicksville Public School System who wanted assistance in teaching their students about rocks and minerals, the Museum facilities were extended to include specimens of rocks and minerals. A room was constructed on the rear of the Gregory's home and display cabinets were built in the room. With the construction of the addition, the Gregory Museum formally began its activities.

By the end of 1963, 338 school children had visited the museum at the Gregory home. In 1964, the museum enlarged again by moving the garage of the home forward and adding even more display cabinets.

From 1964 to 1969, the number of school visitors to the little museum on Cottage Boulevard grew steadily. By 1969, the Gregory home was bursting at the seams with exhibits and visitors. Fortunately, by then, the museum had a board of trustees and was incorporated as an educational institution.

The trustees, including people of political influence, were looking for a new larger home for the museum thanks to the efforts of Hicksville's town councilman, A. Carl Grunewald.

Grunewald was instrumental in getting the Oyster Bay Town Board to grant a long-term lease on the closed old court house to the Gregory Museum trustees.

The Nassau County Fourth District Court house, having been closed in 1967, was vandalized and in danger of being lost to the community as an historical landmark.

The Way It Was Then

My parents moved from Jersey to Jericho before I was born. We lived on Kent's estate on Jericho Turnpike on the triangle where the Jericho Cider Mill is now located. We eventually moved to Hicksville . . . First on Thorman Avenue, then to Notre Dame and then to Bay Avenue. In those days everybody rented and that's why they kept moving. They moved mostly because as they had children they needed more room—and sometimes it was cheaper to move than to pay the rent. This was during the Depression.

My mom's sister, Peggy Hattenbach and her family moved into a farm house located on Old Country Road (opposite Malvese). The house is still there. Aunt Peggy was a great cook. I've never known anyone who could make potatoes as many different ways as she could. Her son Rich and I were not only cousins—we were best friends all our lives.

One summer Richie Finnegan, Mickey Cardella, Frank Stico, Louie Sinatra, Chet Blyman and myself built a clubhouse in a small wooded area on Harrison Avenue, near Heitz Place. (Some of it is still there). Chet Blyman's father towed an old oak truck body from the Hicksville Implement Company on Heitz Place, across from Griffin and Rushmore Feed & Coal Company to the site where we were going to build the clubhouse. We used 2"x6" boards from a fence taken from the abandoned Bristle Lumber Co. on Bethpage Road. We lined the inside with large scrap pieces of linoleum (in those days linoleum was used to make countertops) gotten from the Lakeville Manufacturing Company, also on Bethpage Road. (In fact, the Lakeville Mfg. Co. was the site of one of the biggest fires Hicksville ever had). The pieces of linoleum made the inside of our clubhouse look like a rainbow with all the colors.

The only girls allowed into the clubhouse were Angie Brigandi and Dina Majeski. We used kerosene lanterns and candles to light it and a 50 gallon drum cut out with a tin chimney was used as a wood stove for heat.

Around this time of the year we would roast "mickeys" (potatoes) in small fires built with leaves pressed tightly. The fires were built close to the road. Those "mickeys" were 'out of this world'. In those days the potatoes had heavy skins and when we roasted them that way they would blacken and harden so that when you went to remove them they came off easily and revealed snow-white potato inside. That was a luxury. You can't get potatoes to taste like that today!

We also used the leaves to stuff old clothes to make dummies, which we left laying in the road to make cars stop, or put them on someone's porch. We would then knock on their door to scare them.

One night Finnegan and I decided to place one of the dummies on Jack Lent's porch. We placed it in a rocking chair with the frame near a window, tied a string on the leg and went across the road with the string and hid in the furrows between the vegetables planted there. Then came the fun of pulling on the string. We would pull so that the chair would start tapping on the window frame and then wait for the window shade to be raised. When that happened we tossed the string out into the road so whoever came out couldn't trace it to where we were hiding.

First came Jack Lent—a giant of a man. He played semi-pro football with the Hicksville Iron Men. While he was yelling, his cousin, Billy Lent, came out. While staring across the road he continued shouting that he knew we were hiding there and if we didn't come out he would come in after us. I laid extra quiet but poor Finnegan got spooked and took off towards the railroad tracks—at that time they were on the ground—with Billy in hot pursuit.

After the coast was clear I got up and ran home to hide. Billy couldn't catch Finnegan but recognized him in the moonlight. Within an hour there was a knock at my door and one of our two Hicksville cops was asking me to come down to the police booth on West John Street and Broadway. Finnegan was already in the car and he let them know who his partner was. We received a firm tongue-lashing and then after we promised not to do it again. They later complimented us on the realness of the dummy. They also told us why the Lents were so mad and that was because the mother had a heart problem and seeing the awful face looking in the window when she raised the shade really scared her.

In 1939 to 1942 Richie Finnegan and I belonged to Boy Scout Troop 91. Meetings were held in the basement of St. Ignatius School. The scoutleader was Charlie Montana Sr. Some of the patrol leaders were Bill Way, Marco Way, and another brother, Frank.

Finnegan and I were about the fastest runners in the troop and won most of the races in that mean basement with all the columns and slippery cement.

Sometimes when we were bored on the meeting nights we would break up the meetings by sending garbage cans (empty, of course) down the stairs. After two or three cans the whole troop would mobilize and come after us. They had an idea who was doing it and we knew they enjoyed the chase. At that time the yard between the school and railroad tracks was full of trees that were spaced evenly. This is where we hid most of the time. Even though we did this many times we were never caught.

In the clubhouse we used to roll our own cigarettes with a 5¢ package of Bugler Tobacco and a pack of cigarette papers. We bought a machine with a rubber belt about 3 to 4" wide which was used to put the tobacco into the paper and then roll it nice and tight. We would then wet the end and seal it.

We both went to St. Ignatius and the nuns would smell smoke on our clothes when we entered the class and asked if we smoked. Of course we denied it and said that the cigarettes we made were for the big boys. We later found out that one of the younger boys on the block told the nuns that we were making cigarettes.

We also used to catch pigeons from the top of the Griffin & Rushmore Coal tower which was very high and very steep. We could only catch them at night when they were roosting and when the old watchman, Fred, (we thought he was old—he was probably only 30) was in his apartment across the street over the Hicksville Implement Co. There were only two guys who would climb that tower. They were the Place boys: Bobby and Joey. We would also climb up on the water tower by the railroad station and catch pigeons. This tower served the steam engines used on the railroad at that time and was a much lower structure.

After we had six to 12 birds we would then take them to the farmers' auction held every week at the corner of Brush Hollow and Cantiague Roads. (The Coca Cola plant and the Drive-In Movies are located there now). We would sell the pigeons at auction and split the money up.

The reason we were chased wasn't because we were taking the pigeons—it was to keep one of us from getting hurt.

I used to have pigeons and before I went into the Navy in 1944 I gave them, coop and all, to Anthony Brigandi. Tony still raises pigeons and also races them. He informed me recently that he just won the championship with his pigeons.

In those days the army used to have their pigeons training all the time. If you caught one you'd call them up and give them the number off the band around the pigeon's leg. If the army came for it they would give you a pair of breeder homers in exchange. Jack Lent used to raise homers and was always hoping he'd catch one of the army birds.

On Friday night all of us kids would watch all the drunks in front of the courthouse on Heitz Place.

The Blyman's lived on the next street (Harrison Avenue), as did Finnegan. The Subreks lived on Park Avenue. Bobby Subrek was a bit older than us. He used to caddy at the golf course. One day a bunch of kids were standing around talking when a storm came up. Bobby was sitting on his bike and was struck by lightning and killed. A few of the other kids were burned. That afternoon when I went to the empty lots where we hung out, no one was around. I then found out about Bobby.

A lot of my childhood friends have passed away—Richie Finnegan, Rich Hattenbach, Mickey Cardella and Chet Blyman. I think about all of them often. They may be gone—but the memories I have of them will never be forgotten.

HICKSVILLE HOUSES OF WORSHIP

First Baptist Church of Hicksville

Founded on June 30, 1954, the First Baptist Church of Hicksville was only a few years old when its very existence was put in jeopardy.

The congregation of 22 members attended services conducted by the Reverend Edward G. Reinmuth, and later by the Reverend Richard Grob, in an old rented building located on 57 N. Broadway. But, in 1958, the state of New York, which planned to widen Broadway into a six lane road, ordered the building to be abandoned to make room for the expansion.

With only $1,500 in funds for a new church and very little time to raise more, the First Baptist Church was on the verge of extinction. The congregation was able to find affordable property for the new church at the corner of Liszt Street and Pollok Place late in 1957. And in January, 1958, Chester Johnson — a building contractor from North Merrick who had no previous affiliation with the church, donated his time to oversee the construction of the new church.

Church members spent every Saturday erecting the new church until the work was completed. On Sunday, August 17, 1958 the basement of the church was completed, just before the scheduled demolition of the old church, and services were held there for the first time.

On March 29, 1959 the upstairs of the church was completed. And finally on April 3, 1961, the church was dedicated.

Houses of Worship Part III

This is the third part of a series on "Hicksville Houses of Worship." We recognize that there are 17 houses of worship in Hicksville, but due to space limitations we can not feature them all.

The widening of Broadway forced the First Baptist Church of Hicksville to vacate this structure at 57 North Broadway. The church later moved to its current site.

Mr. Electric
SERVICE CO. INC.
LICENSED ELECTRICAL CONTRACTORS

SERVING LONG ISLAND OVER 23 YEARS

IN OUR CONTINUING EFFORTS TO GIVE OUTSTANDING SERVICE WE DEDICATE THIS COLUMN

Electrical wiring is not a hobby. The home wiring hazards which can result when you attempt to do your own wiring because you're handy, or hire an unlicensed electrician, can lead to serious injury or death to you and your family. Electrical work is serious business and we all tend to be lulled into a false sense of security because we wire it, turn on the power and it works—it's OK. Right? Wrong! There is more to it than that.

So, I urge you to use a professional, licensed Electrical Contractor. Remember a non-licensed (moon-lighter) or handy person is not up on the latest code changes and does not carry any insurance. That's why he's cheaper and, by the way, can sue you personally if he gets hurt while performing this work for you!

Licensing provides the homeowner with recourse by reporting the Electrical Contractor to the Municipality that you reside in when he does not perform to code standards.

Memories Of Hicksville's Days Gone By

Gus And Ben Daines Reflect On Hicksville Past

Ben Daines came into this world in a home on New South Road in 1908. He has spent his entire life living in Hicksville.

After marrying the former Augusta "Gus" Thorman they made their home in Hicksville. Gus came from Jamaica. She tells her story:

"I lived on Jamaica Creek (the marshlands) which later became Idlewild Airport (now J.F. Kennedy Airport). I was the first baby born on Jamaica Creek. My father used to carry water on a yoke. Our house (and the others) were built on stilts. When the high spring and fall tides came, the water would cover our kitchen floor. My sisters, Estelle, Henrietta, Gertrude and I would float the dishpans on the floor and pretend they were boats. It was really rural!"

Gus worked at the Hicksville (professional building) office of the Long Island Lighting Company for many years.

Ben spent his entire youth growing up in Hicksville. He recalls that 100 years ago there weren't any religious services held in Hicksville that used the English language. It was either German or Latin.

He said, "A Quaker from Jericho used to come to the Hicksville Community Church on Broadway (between East Marie Street and East Nicholas Street) to perform the service. Dr. Taliferro (Fountain Taliferro's dad) built that church which was to be used for any religious organization that needed it.

"When I was about five or six years old not too many people had a camera. If we wanted our pictures taken we would have to go to the senior John Puvogel's home to have it taken. Mr. Puvogel had a farm that had a windmill on it. It's been told that they made the best potato whiskey during Prohibition."

In 1913 John Puvogel, Jr. was the Democratic leader of the Town of Oyster Bay at the time when the town was solidly Democrat. He was then appointed postmaster for Hicksville which was then located on Broadway near East Cherry Street, (in a now-boarded-up building) across from Chroma Paints. Elsie (Puvogel) Finnegan worked at the post office as a young girl.

Interestingly enough, John also was the correspondent for Walt Whitman's The Long Islander newspaper which is now part of the Anton Community Newspaper chain. John used to deliver his copy on horseback to the Huntington office.

In the old days of entertainment John always organized what was called a Minstrel Show which members of the community looked forward to. He was called the leader who was then called 'the interlocutor'. Many of the townsfolk participated in the show. After it was over a big ice cream social was held at the Grand Hotel located on the corner of West John Street and Broadway.

After John Jr. married Tina Herzog, they had a daughter, Caroline and a son, John III. He was well-remembered because he had his own airplane while he was in high school. He was honorably discharged from the Marines after WWII and was one of the early pioneers to setup an airline in Alaska.

The Puvogel line stopped when John crashed with his plane into the Yukon River in Alaska.

Ben Daines continued, "My father worked for Jean Jeanson on New South Road. In those days when a boy got to be 12 years old he was given a 22 rifle. Nobody ever got shot—because we knew if we ever pointed it at anyone our father would 'kill us'."

He went on: "Nevada Street held the dumps. Kuhl Avenue was named after a family who lived there where Cantiague Park is today. We kids would stand on Broadway and shoot at the Model Ts that were in the hole called 'Kuhl's Hollow'. (There was nothing in the way to stop the bullets).

"The Model Ts had a gas tank under the front seat. You had to put a funnel in the gas tank and put a piece of chamois in the funnel to strain out the water in the gas. During the Depression they would have to go west of Jericho to get 10 gallons of gas for $1.00 (across the street from the M & M Garage).

"A.B. Heberer had a store between First Street and Old Country Road, (where Botto Hardware is now located). They sold gasoline, kerosene, all kinds of groceries and some cold cuts. Mr. Heberer later became a judge. He was known as $50 Heberer because anytime anyone was found guilty he fined them $50."

QUICK SALE QUERY

QUESTION: I listed my home with a Realtor on a Friday and he had it sold on Saturday. Do you think he really earned his fee?

ANSWER: He certainly has! In fact, more so than the broker who would take several months to close the same sale. If it were the other way around, you would be asking the same question. A quick sale is not a matter of luck or lack of effort. Your Realtor has built up a bank of excellent prospects through hundreds of hours of phone calls, showing homes, interviews and advertising. Annual Cocktail Party For Executives Set

The Long Island Business Executives' Association will hold its annual cocktail party and reception on Thursday, November 1, at the Rockville Links in Rockville Centre. The event, which will run from 6 to 9 pm, will honor Hempstead Town Presiding Supervisor Joseph N. Mondello as LIBEA 'Man of the Year'.

The annual reception is designed to introduce prospective members to the organization, which has been called a 'no-nonsense' business networking organization by those who operate it. It is at this function that LIBEA also honors the person that it feels has done the most to promote a healthy business climate on Long Island.

According to LIBEA President Richard DiRusso, chief administrators and decision makers of businesses throughout Long Island are invited to the reception free of charge. He noted however that reservations are required by calling (516) 627-3200.

LIBEA admits only one member from each profession or industry, precluding any competition from within the organization. Only top echelon decision makers from each member company are permitted to represent their companies, in order that business can be conducted at the group's meetings.

Presiding Supervisor Mondello will be honored for his many efforts to strengthen the Long Island economy, said DiRusso. Additionally, LIBEA will recognize him for his appreciation for the small businessperson, and for establishing a partnership with the business community through his creation of the Hempstead Town Business Advisory Council.

The Investor's Corner

COLLECTIBLES

This article could be entitled "hello sucker". There is a sucker born every minute. The collectibles market gets its share. This article is dedicated to keeping you from being one of the suckers.

Art Painting. The rich are the most susceptible here. There are some art dealers who are unscrupulous and pass off phony art for the real thing. I do not know any. This is such a specialized field that the investor must use experts to judge the quality of the painting. Whenever that is the situation, the watchword is "buyer beware".

I am not into art as an investment. If I were, my tendency would be to be suspicious of everyone. I would deal only with the major auction houses. They have to much to lose if they foist a fake on someone. I would have greater confidence buying that way.

One way to avoid even the element of risk is too buy directly from the artist. Then you know it is genuine. You may get the painting at a lesser expense. The problem is that most of the artists who are alive make the investment a gamble. Who knows if they will be highly regarded after they die? Who knows if the type of painting will be still in vogue when you want to sell? Who knows whether the theme of the painting will be what people want? No one can predict that. Today's hot items can be regarded as second class junk later on. Many people figure paintings as a sure thing to rise in value. No such luck. Paintings go through phases just like stocks do. With stocks, one year it is computers, then nursing homes, then utilities, or S&Ls or something else.

Art-Porcelains and Bronze Figures.

These are much more to my personal liking. I love porcelain figurines. My wife started us on them many years ago. They seem to have a timelessness about them. As long as they are for sale, the value rises with inflation. As a particular figurine is retired, its value usually increases. Here vogue plays a part. I know of some BOEHM figurines that have never risen in value. They have an Egyptian motif which has not been in great demand. Though they are more than ten years old, some of the original lot has not been sold. Most porcelains are good investments. Just do not break them.

I particularly like the bronze statuettes, ERTE in particular. I believe that these will be a great investment because Erte is still alive and approaching 100 years of age. He is still active and in demand (since the 1920's). When he dies his works, especially the statuettes, will vastly increase in value. If you like beautiful things, this may be a good investment for some of you. Caveat-buy from a reputable house, check the markings, know your merchandise.

Antiques — These prices have been rising for several years at a breakneck pace. If you are into antiques, be careful. The recession to be (or with us) makes this a market very susceptible to a retreat in prices. Scarcity is what sets the prices in this market. But supply and demand ultimately rule. If it is rare, usually the price will hold.

Some antiques do go through phases of acceptability. Toys, tin lunch boxes are out of vogue after years of being hot. They may come back, probably not.

Precious Metals — Gold has had a recent run-up and down. We need much more than a Persian Gulf crisis to get gold into an investor's hands. There are too many fundamentals against it. These have been discussed in other articles. Platinum has been lackluster because auto sales have been weak all over the world. That is the big platinum market for catalytic converters.

The only metal investments on my investment list are numismatic coins. These are as sure a bet as you can make. The supply is very limited and the demand has been strong for over 25 years. Investment grade coins easily have greatly outpaced inflation. They should continue to do so for the foreseeable future. Just be careful about the dealer from whom you buy. Be sure they are investment grade and real.

Dealing in Collectibles Requires Caution. Fakes abound, especially in paintings. Some older works have to be restored. This requires that there is an undetermined amount of cleaning and overpainting to be done. At what point does it lose its authenticity? That requires you to get appraisals. You need experts to help you, if you are not an expert.

Collectibles Take Time, Lots, Off It. You buy at retail and you sell at wholesale. It takes time for the prices to rise so you get a return on the investment. Do not think short term.

People Will Buy Anything. My advice with all collectibles is to buy only what you like and enjoy it. This way you get your money's worth no matter what happens in the marketplace. If it turns out to be a great investment so much the better. Your heirs will enjoy that.

A Letter from Lulabelle...

...A song I have always loved—and I have an original record!!—is Walter Huston singing "September Song"...and the days grow short when you reach September"...How true—and this time of year sets me to thinking about just how short is the time from Christmas to Christmas as you grow older...Remember when you were little and the time from one Christmas to another—or from your fifth to sixth birthday—was an eon—forever long...And here we are seeing Christmas decorations in ads and stores—and I'm not quite sure that I have finished putting away the decorations from last year!...Summers were longer in the old days, I am sure...I can remember day after day lounging around the house, going under the sprinkler, and lying in the grass watching the clouds roll by and making pictures from their billowing puffs—and I am sure that days were long, weeks were long, and summer vacation from school was forever—so long, in fact, that I could hardly wait for September to come so I could go back to school and see my friends...And even hours must have had longer minutes in them because I know that when my Mother would say on a Saturday, "When Daddy comes home from work (that was when carpenters worked half a day on Saturday), we will go for a ride and stop to have a hot dog"...Now I remember very clearly that it was an extremely long time until my Father came home and we could go on our outing...And do you remember how long it was to wait all day on the Fourth of July for it to be dark enough for the sparklers, Roman candles, rockets, and pin-wheels?—night never fell so slowly...The four years of college must have been very long because look at all the things you did, all the friends you made, all the viewpoints you changed, and how those four years affected your whole life—couldn't happen in four of these short years, could it?

Years, Lulabelle

HALLOWEEN DECORATIONS: If you're really in a festive mood, you may want to check out some of the nicely decorated houses in Hicksville. The Wilhelm family at 17 Walnut Lane really did a great job decorating their house last Halloween. But this year, they have even added more decorations. They created a graveyard on their front lawn. Designing the house this year was Scott Wilhelm, 15 and his friend, Bobby Lynch, 15. Their moms, Sandy Wilhelm and Carol Lynch also helped out. On Halloween, they hope to dress up (weather permitting) and give out candy on their front lawn. Also, pictured, Daisy the dog.

Hicksville Steamrolls Elmont in Soccer Match

The Hicksville Minutemen 1977 B traveling soccer team steamrolled the Elmont Rowdies for a 4-1 victory at Cantiague Park on October 21 to improve their L.I. Junior Soccer League record to 2 wins, 2 ties, and 1 loss, led by the great play of Andres Turcios at left inside halfback.

The first half was an evenly matched period of soccer, with each team having many opportunities, both scoring, for a 1-1 halftime tie. Jorge daSilva, at striker, put in the Minutemen tally off a feed from Brian Rigert, at left wing, at the game's 30 minute mark. Elmont came back to tie, at the 32 minute mark. The second half was Hicksville's best soccer of the season, as they totally dominated the opposition, with only a dozen saves on the part of Rowdie goalkeeper keeping the game from being a rout.

First NY Appearance In A Decade...

Pianist Van Cliburn To Perform At Tilles

Musical history will be made on Saturday October 27 at Gala X, the Tilles Center's annual fund-raising event in support of its ambitious season of international classical and popular performances. For the first time in more than a decade, the world-renowned Van Cliburn will be making a New York area appearance.

Cliburn, a legend in the world of classical piano, will appear with the Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra under the baton of Mariss Jansons. This extraordinary orchestra, generally considered to be at the very pinnacle of the world of musical ensembles, last played to New York audiences in 1973.

The all Tchaikovsky program includes two of the Russian composer's most powerful and beloved works—Symphony number 4, and Piano Concerto number 1.

Actually, the concerto is known as one that is especially associated with Cliburn's career. In 1958, at the age of 23, the Louisiana born Cliburn electrified the world when he won the first Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow. The unparalleled fame he achieved was crowned when, upon his return from the Soviet Union, he was accorded a ticker tape parade in New York City. A brilliant concertizing and recording career swiftly followed—and when Van Cliburn recorded Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto number 1 at the Tilles Center, it became the first classical album ever to achieve sales of more than one million copies.

Since the lengthy performing sabbatical of Cliburn ended in 1987, he has performed with the Philadelphia Orchestra, at a White House State dinner honoring Mikhail Gorbachev, and with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra. In July of 1989, 31 years after his initial triumph, Van Cliburn appeared to enormous acclaim in the Great Hall of the Moscow Conservatory.

As for the Leningrad Philharmonic, it was founded during the reign of the Russian Czars as a court orchestra in 1882. Since then, it has played a pivotal role in developing the careers of important Soviet composers. In 1946, the philharmonic became the first Soviet orchestra to tour the West.

For this tour, the Leningrad Philharmonic is being led by Mariss Jansons, musical director for the Oslo Philharmonic and associate conductor of this group. Jansons has guested with major symphonies throughout the world, including the Cleveland Orchestra, the Montreal Symphony, the Berlin Philharmonic, Concertgebouw Orchestra and the London Philharmonic.

Each year, the Tilles Center holds a fund raising benefit. At Gala IX in October 1989, $540 thousand was raised for the Tilles Center; including a generous gift of $50 thousand from host Bill Cosby.

Tickets for the Tilles Center's Gala X are priced at $100, $150 and $500. At $100, reserved seating is assured; at $150, there is preferred seating and acknowledgement in the Gala X journal. The $500 benefactor level includes an elegant dinner-dance immediately following the concert.

For those who attend this memorable dinner-dance, the event will be set on the C.W. Post campus, in a lavish, specially designed tent capable of accommodating one thousand guests.

For further information and ticket reservations, call the Tilles Center box office at (516) 626-3100. $500 ticket information may be obtained from Pat Moore or Nancy Shambaugh at (516) 299-2600.

Non-Profit Arts...

Exploring The World Of 'Le Jazz Hot'

By Robert J. Ost

On October 7th, the International Art of Jazz (IAJ) kicked off its 27th season of Cabaret Series at the Ethical Humanist Society in Garden City. The longest running non-profit jazz organization around, Long Islanders have the good fortune to have ready access to it over the next several weeks.

What's more, the series should be enough to wet, stimulate and renew the appetites of Jazz-lovers on Long Island. Because from Stony Brook to Sayville, and of course in Garden City, 'Le Jazz Hot' scene, non-profit style, is happening.

Take the Cabaret Series—held on Sunday afternoons from 4 to 6pm. It is set in a delightfully intimate atmosphere, with seating at long tables comfortably close to the musicians. In fact, it's hard to tell where the audience begins and the musical group ends when the music starts, because the two blend together in pure joy.

The Ethical Humanist's coffee shop is an intimate yet spacious setting for the cabaret—and despite the fact that celebrities frequently showing up to see the high-quality performers, it is unpretentious and friendly. That goes from Ann Sneed, IAJ founder and director, to the musicians, who stroll around the tables during break and inviting conversation.

The first performance, in fact, featured Angelo DiPippo, a well known 'behind the scenes' jazz accordionist, accompanied by world-recognized Phil Bodner on clarinet, George Masso on trombone and a rhythm section that included bassist Ray Kilday and Ron Zito on drums.

Believe me, there are credentials galore on these fine musicians.

Coming next to the cabaret series, on November 11th, will be Gene Bertocini accompanied by bassist Harvie Schwartz. Bertocini is a master of Jazz and classical guitar, and is said by many to have dazzling technique and tenderness in his playing. Following Bertocini, the Ethical Humanist coffee shop features Lynne Arriale Trio with Tina Fabrique (December 9); Warren

JAZZ CONCERTS AT THE ETHICAL HUMANIST coffee shop have featured such artists as (l-r) Doc Cheatham, Earle Warren, Buddy Tate and Jackie Williams. The current Cabaret Series, put on by the International

Art of Jazz, Inc., began October 7th and continues with a November 11 performance.

Chiasson Quartet (January 20); Makanda Ken McIntyre Quartet (February 17); and Major Holley Trio (March 17). All shows are 4-6; $10/8—$3 discount for IAJ members.

IAJ is the one and only organization of its kind on Long Island. Besides the Sunday Cabaret series, there's a Saturday night series at Stony Brook University and free concerts supported by local and county governments as well as corporate sponsorship.

For example, a forthcoming free Saturday night performance, an American Piano Retrospective by Frank Owens, is being held at the Sayville Library at 8pm, October 27 and November 3. And earlier in the year, the season windup of free summer jazz was held at Heckscher State Park around Labor Day. Each year, it runs for two nights, with 15-20 groups each night topped by such guest artists as Clark Terry and Ray Hanes.

IAJ also provides student education programs, sending jazz artists into schools afor the Arts-In-Education program.

The International Art of Jazz, Incorporated is a unique, one of a kind Long Island organization. For more information write or call them at 5 Saywood Lane, Stony Brook, NY 11790; (516) 632-6590.

Hofstra Stage Opens New Show

QUESTION: What show was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize, established its author as a nationally known playwright, and is the first production of the year for Hofstra's New College Theatre Group?

ANSWER: Boy's Life.

Boy's Life was last seen on Broadway at Lincoln Center in 1988, and was nominated for the Pulitzer at that time. But for the New College Theatre group, which holds its performances free at Hofstra's "Black Box Theatre," a good audience turnout will be adequate reward for their efforts, thank you very much. Boy's Life can be seen November 1-3 at 8pm at the Black Box in Roosevelt Hall.

Making his directorial debut will be Tim Erickson, a sophomore at New College.

And adding their credentials to the show will be senior cast members Tracey Strickland and Jim Jaeger.

Strickland will be known to Black Box theatre-goers for his roles in "Search for Signs of Intelligent Life in the Universe," "Through a glass, your glass, darkly," and "Dionysia '90." Meanwhile, Jaeger has appeared in "Tintypes," "The Pirates of Penzance," and "Pippin."

Boy's Life, which established author Howard Korder as one of the most exciting new talents in American theatre, portrays 1980s male behavior. Ascerbic to the quick, the play tracks the lives of three young urbanites on the make.

For information about the performance, call (516) 463-3668.

THE CLANCY BROTHERS AND ROBBIE O'CONNELL, practitioners of some of the best in Irish folk music, will appear Thursday, November 1 at 8pm at the West Babylon Junior High School. Call BACCA at (516) 422-7669 for details.

Gift Tree's Silent Auction

From antiques to handicrafts, high tea to family brunch with Santa and friends, the East Woods School Gift Tree in Oyster Bay is a creative and elegant addition to the holiday activities.

The school, located at 31 Yellow Cote Road in Oyster Bay, is inviting everyone to browse among artwork, jewelry, handmade and imported gifts and more—offered at the Gift Tree by over 20 select exhibitors from around the country. Visitors may bid on a generous variety of items, ranging from antiques to sporting event tickets, at a silent auction.

Doors open at 10am and close 5pm on November 3rd for the shopping extravaganza. A $4 admission fee will go to benefit the East Woods School. High tea, which is served at 2:30 pm, costs $15 per person.

On Sunday, November 4th, the event continues, including brunch with Santa and friends at 11:30 am ($5 for children, $10 for adults). Shopping continues from 11-5, and Monday 9-1.

East Woods School is a non-sectarian, non-profit, independent school which admits students without regard to race, religion or national origin. For information and reservations for brunch or tea at its Gift Tree, call the school at (516) 922-4400.

YOUNG 1980s URBANITES YOUR SCHTICK? If so, you'll probably enjoy Boy's Life, playing for three nights at Hofstra's Black Box Theatre.

Opening lead — nine of diamonds.

Some problems that arise during the play can be solved with complete confidence in the outcome. But there are other times when you can't be sure just how you'll fare, in which case the best you can do is to select the course of action that is most likely to succeed in the long run.

Assume you're East, defending against four hearts, and your partner leads the nine of diamonds. Declarer plays the king from dummy, but, if you're a careful player, you don't automatically win the king with the ace. Instead, you take time to survey the situation as a whole and, more particularly, your play at this point.

You shouldn't allow yourself to be stampeded into taking the ace first and then start planning the defense. That would be doing the right thing, but in the wrong order.

The first order of business is to try to decipher the meaning of partner's diamond lead. You know that the nine is not a fourth-best lead, nor can it be the top card of a sequence, since you have the eight in your hand. Theoretically, it could be the top of a worthless three-card suit, but it is far more likely to be a singleton or a doubleton.

If the nine is a singleton, it is right to take the ace and return the suit for partner to ruff. But if the nine is a doubleton, the proper play is to duck, at the same time signalling with the eight to show the ace.

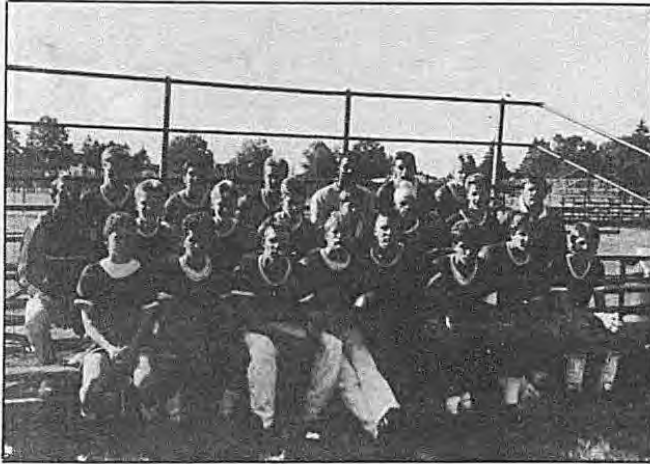

There is no good reason to assume that South has five diamonds rather than four; on the contrary, South is far more likely to have only four diamonds. You should therefore let dummy win the first trick with the king. As a result, you eventually give partner a diamond ruff to put the contract down one.

Physical Exams For High School Athletes

Physical exams are being held this Saturday for high school students who anticipate trying-out or playing on any team including next fall, 1991. Failure to attend this Saturday session will require students to obtain an exam from their personal physician at their own expense.

Those who can not attend this Saturday session due to religious beliefs, must call Pupil Personnel Services for alternate arrangements.

Candidates must pick-up a parent consent form from their school nurse's office prior to the scheduled date, have signed if by a parent or legal guardian, and returned it to be processed on the designated day of the exam.

No one will be examined without a signed permission form.

Physical Exam Schedule

The exams will be held at the following times on Oct. 27: 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. for present varsity football players (grades 9-11); 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. for girls only (including cheerleaders and kickline); 12:15 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. (boys only).

Note: Current 12th graders who have already been examined and cleared do not have to be re-examined. 12th grade candidates for winter and spring sports must be examined on Saturday for those seasons if the student has not already been medically cleared.

Hicksville American Soccer League Scores

Raiders 5—Knights 2

Hicksville American Soccer League's Pee Wee Division has reported the following game highlights:

The Raiders were lead by John Perino with two goals, John Fiorillo with two goals, and Martine Ferrario with one goal. Robbie Sullivan's excellent job in goal, even managed to stop a tough penalty shot.

The Knights goals were scored by Anton Berzins and Jimmy Powderly. It was a great team effort, but the Knights couldn't overcome the strong Raider's offense.

Note: Coaches wishing to have their teams' scores published in the Hicksville Illustrated News must contact Wendy Myron by Monday to report on the scores from Sunday games.

FIRST PLACE CHAMPS: Hicksville 1981 All Star Soccer Team won first place in its division in the Columbus Day Soccer Tournament held in Syosset. This is the fifth first place win the team has had this year. The team credits its success to their dedicated coaches Roman Musinski and Dean Camarinos. (Top row) Brett Huzar, Anton Berzins, Kevin Nolan, Chris Musinski, David Musinski, Nick Alfano, Mike Camarinos, Paul Martorano, James Monahan. (Bottom row) Martin Ferrario, Chris Sullivan, John Fiorillo, Craig Della, Michael Blomquist, Matt Walchuk, Eddie Pettei and coach Roman Musinski.
