Treading Down The 'Path To Excellence'

By Victor Caputo

"It is with a great deal of excitement and anxiety that we begin the new school year. We must face every single problem we may come across as a chance to do something creative and make things happen. Even from lemons, you sometimes make lemonade!" said Superintendent of Schools Salvatore Mugavero, kicking off the Staff Orientation Day on Sept. 3.

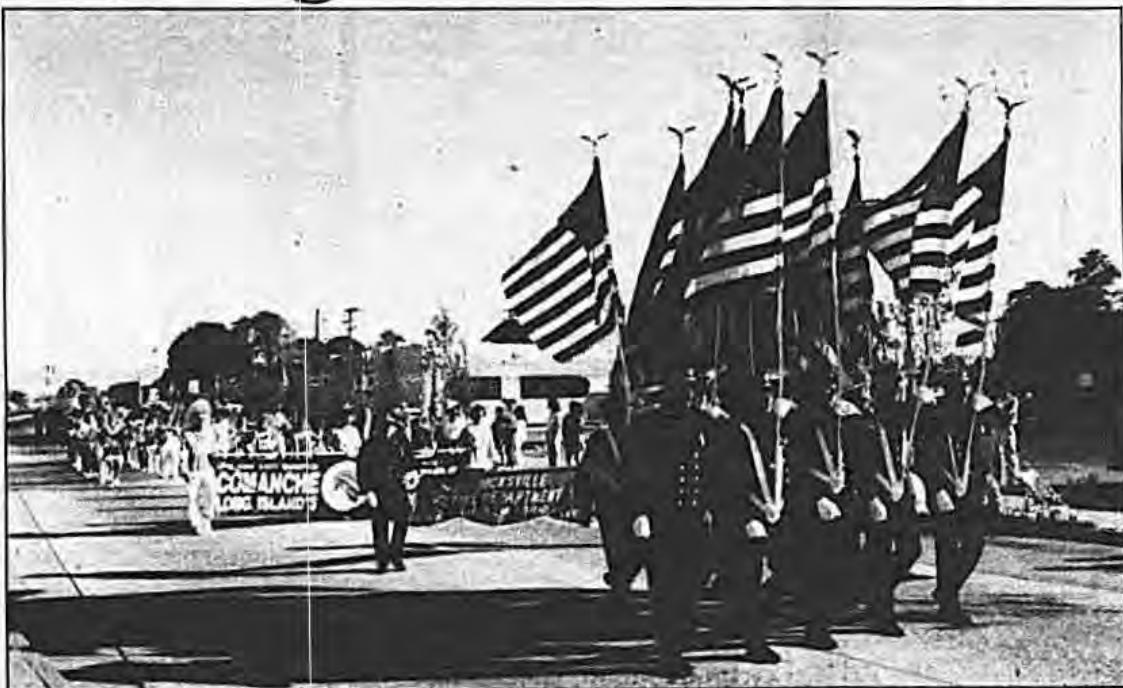

School is now a week old and teachers and administrators are trying to stay on the "path to excellence" that Mugavero has made for them to follow.

"My goals are simple, clear and direct. My first goal is to encourage active learning. The average attention span for a youngster, even in senior high school, is 12 minutes. It is important that we do not lose our audiences' attention after that time span.

"My second goal is to see more interaction between teachers and students. To see them work together and form a mutual respect. My third goal, which some people might not be very fond of, is accountability. All of us must be responsible for our actions

EPA Begins Anchor Chemical Site Study

By Victor Caputo

Residents packed the community room in the library to hear representatives from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) disclose their plans to study the old Anchor Chemical site at 500 West John Street, Hicksville.

The study will entail many tests to determine the extent and nature of soil and groundwater contamination which might have occurred when Anchor Chemical was in charge of the site.

"The building space was used for the blending and packaging of chemicals for the graphic arts industry," said Dorothy Allen, a representative from the EPA. Chemicals were stored in tanks that were underneath the building.

The first signs of any chemical release from the tanks came in 1975, when it was found that chemicals might be leaking into the dry wells and quite possibly the groundwater.

"In 1981, Anchor received notice from the Nassau County Fire Marshal that they had not tested the chemical tanks. When the tanks were tested, five tanks failed. In 1982 and '83, additional testing was called for by the Nassau County Department of Health and showed that there was a leak in one of the tanks. In 1983 the site was placed on the Hazardous Waste Site listing. In 1986, the site appeared on the National Priorities List," said Allen.

The responsible parties have agreed to do the work necessary to fix the problem, said the EPA representatives. They said that the investigation will be finished by the spring of 1992 and a report about what was found on the site will be released that summer.

After the short opening by the EPA, the floor was open to questions from the audience.

The first question asked by a resident was who allowed all the wells to be placed in the ground? "I would imagine the local government which gives the local permits," said Melvin Hauptman, a representative of EPA.

"What risk are we and our children at right now?" asked a resident. "Most of the sites do not present an immediate short term risk to people," said Hauptman.

"Why is it taking so long to clean up these sites? I moved here for clean air and fresh water and I find that I am getting poisoned," said another resident. "If we had unlimited funds we could be able to do the job faster," said Hauptman.

As the meeting continued into the night, residents showed concern over the quality of the drinking water. "The Hicksville area has been the target for many chemical plants. As soon as organic chemicals show up in the water, the water district takes those wells off the line and when a feasible treatment plan is set up they are put back on line," said a retired water district employee.

Frank Gorben, who is presently running for Town Councilman, said "Hicksville has become the dump of Nassau County. Hicksville needs some action now!"

Several residents asked why a member of the Town of Oyster Bay was not present at the meeting. According to Phyllis Barry, a spokesperson for the Town of Oyster Bay, a representative was at the EPA meeting to listen and take notes about the site and relay that information back to Supervisor Angelo Delligatti.

President of the Northwest Civic Association Mary Ann Ferraro wanted to know what the long-term effects of chemical pollution on the site may be. "The long-term effect is basically the longer you wait to clean the site, the more polluted it becomes," said Hauptman.

A big concern that was brought up by one resident was the sump which is located down the street from the Anchor Chemical site. The resident pointed out that water from the dry wells on the site is pumped out onto the street and flows down to the sump. Hi

Maureen Pfaffe and James Reinheimer

They're Engaged!

Mr. and Mrs. James Reinheimer, of Hicksville and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pfaffe of New Hyde Park, are happy to announce the engagement of their children, Maureen Pfaffe and James Reinheimer, which occurred on Aug. 3, during a beautiful sunset at Jones Beach.

Maureen is a 1988 graduate of New Hyde Park Memorial High School and James is a 1987 graduate of Hicksville High School. A fall wedding is planned.

From Flo (Caruso) Gries . . .

Speaking with George Thomas he said that when he was a kid he used to ride his bike on the Old Motor Parkway which ran all the way out east. He and Al Adessio were discussing the Old Motor Parkway and Al said that my dad, Mike Caruso, who owned an auto wrecking (junk) yard during the Depression would, every Monday morning, drive all the way out east on the Old Motor Parkway in his 1907 4-cylinder Locomobile, (fitted with a homemade truck body—the first car my father bought to be used when he started his business) picking up tires and tubes to be repaired and sold.

Mike's 'Junk Yard' was one of the most famous yards around. At one time or another he owned some of the most valuable cars in the world today. Among them were two Isotta Fraschini, a Model 28/95 Mercedes of the early 1920s, a few Model A's, Duesenbergs, a Pope Hartford, a Brewster Town Car, a Mercedes racing car, Bugattis, Pierce Arrows, Renaults, Fijats, Stutz's, Wills Sainte Claires, and three Silver Ghost Rolls Royces—to name a few.

In fact, in 1951 when Joe and I were getting married my dad sold a 1939 two-door Mercedes Benz 540K for $800 to pay for our $901 wedding reception held at the Wheatley Hills Tavern. That car was recently sold for half-a-million dollars.

Al said "Mike would buy his cars from the owners of the estates on the North Shore. Some of the cars he had in his yard are owned today by some of the richest car collectors in the world."

The Hicksville Fire Department and Veterans of All Wars were on hand to win Hero Awards for the fine service they have given. The weather cleared in time for the event and all who attended had a good time.

Town Incinerator Plans On Hold

By Victor Caputo

The Town of Oyster Bay and American Ref-Fuel's plan to build a garbage incinerator in Old Bethpage has stalled due to a stay of proceedings placed on the application by a state agency.

The Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) has issued the stay on the permitting process until the two parties can show they have secured a suitable ash disposal site. According to the controversial resource recovery plan, a facility would be constructed by American Ref-Fuel near the landfill in Old Bethpage at which the town's waste would be burned and converted into energy. At question is where the resulting ash would be disposed.

Town Supervisor Angelo Delligatti said that he is not discouraged by the recent stay in proceedings.

"We do not view the stay imposed by the Administrative Law Judge as an adversarial action. Waste management issues are often complex and reasonable people can disagree," said Delligatti. "This is evidenced by the fact that while the D.E.C. Albany staff that initially reviewed American Ref-Fuel's application was satisfied that all standards had been met, Judge Dickerson apparently was not. The town remains committed to going forward with a plan that meets all regulatory standards and is acceptable to all parties involved."

Delligatti said that he views the implementation of the waste management plan, which includes the permitting of a "technologically sound resource recovery facility" as a "cooperative undertaking by the town and the DEC."

Plans for the construction of the incinerator have been in progress for several years, and have been met by the considerable opposition of a number of environmental activist groups. Organizations such as the New York Public Interest Research Group, Inc. (NYPIRG) and the Nassau Suffolk Neighborhood Network have called on the town to abandon the incineration option and to increase its recycling program and look at other alternatives such as composting and off-site trucking.

"The town could immediately save money by utilizing off-site trucking," said Steven Romalewski, a spokesperson for NYPIRG.

Vincent Cioci, executive director of the Neighborhood Network, said that the town should also pursue commercial recycling. "These businesses use high grade paper but none of it is being recycled," said Cioci.

In a recent letter to Delligatti, NYPIRG requested that the town pull out of the deal with American Ref-Fuel.

"The lack of ash disposal capacity calls into question Oyster Bay's overall incinerator proposal. It makes no sense to build a multi-million dollar plant without first securing a long-term commitment for a safe, authorized ash site (or sites). American Ref-Fuel first applied for a permit to build the Oyster Bay incinerator in August 1988. If American Ref-Fuel has failed after three years to prepare ash disposal plans that meet state regulations, then it is highly unlikely the company will ever be able to comply with these requirements," the letter read.

Among those who have spoken against the incinerator is State Assemblyman Lewis Yevoli, who is seeking the Town Supervisor seat on the Democratic ballot this November. He feels the town should further its recycling efforts.

"They have had such great success with recycling so far, why not proceed with that? It is an environmentally and economically sound way to go," Yevoli said.

Yevoli is also opposed to the proposed location of the incinerator. "It will be in an unremediated hazardous toxic waste site," he said, in reference to the environmental damage resulting from the landfill.

Delligatti said that the incinerator is not the sole component of his overall waste management plan. Delligatti said that his interest in an expanded recycling program began when he was a councilman and that a major theme of his acceptance speech in 1987 when he was elected Supervisor in 1988 was that the town would embark on a comprehensive recycling effort.

"At the same time the application to build a resource recovery facility was submitted. The NYS Waste Management Plan has called upon the municipalities in the state to do what the town has done and is doing, reduce your wastestream, recycle what you can and recover what is left over," Delligatti said.

The supervisor said he has promised to continue with the town's recycling programs as well. Recently, the town board approved a contract with Marcal for the purchase of town paper which will be recycled into tissues.

"We have been selling paper for a long time, but the big factor that we faced is recycling residents' old magazines," said Delligatti of the contract. "This is the first time somebody has bought magazines that were, until now, treated as regular garbage. The savings to taxpayers will be great if we can get everybody to recycle their old magazines. You will have a lot less weight to ship out. In 1992 we will be paying approximately $125 a ton in shipping. By reducing the tonnage, we have been able to reduce the budget."

The Neighborhood Network counters that there will not be a savings with the resource recovery facility, saying that American Ref-Fuel will charge taxpayers $165 for each ton of garbage burned so that the company can meet the high costs of ash disposal. Yevoli agrees that the town will pay more to burn garbage than it would shipping and recycling it.

The opposition argues that the incinerator contract contains a minimum tonnage guarantee which could end up penalizing town taxpayers if 600 tons of garbage are not supplied to the facility each day.

There is also a difference of opinion as to how much garbage the town actually produces.

"The town is producing 400 tons of garbage a day right now," said Cioci. Yevoli sets the figure at 750 tons per day. According to the town, the average tonnage is 1,000 tons per day.

Town officials also say that residents will not have to pay for the construction of the incinerator and that the costs will be the responsibility of American Ref-Fuel.

"The taxpayers are the customer. The incentive for a company to build a resource recovery facility is that they have a guarantee customer who will pay a guaranteed price," said Delligatti.

Delligatti said that the taxpayer will bear the cost for the disposal of the garbage, but that the taxpayer already pays that in terms of a shipping fee. According to Delligatti, the cost of disposal at the resource recovery facility will be less than the present shipping expenses.

"We will have a guaranteed means of disposal. Right now we are at the mercy of states such as Pennsylvania, Ohio and even New York, who accept out of town garbage," he added.

Opponents are also concerned that an oversized incinerator will invite solid waste from other municipalities. Delligatti did not cancel out that possibility altogether.

"To say we would never cooperate with another town, well I can't say that that might not happen," he said. "We will not, however, have any New York City garbage shipped to Oyster Bay. Glen Cove has handled some of our garbage in the past. The town would have a moral obligation, if not a legal one, to take some of their garbage if necessary."

What will be the facility's impact on the environment? This question has plagued residents who do not want to see more pollutants added to the air:

"We have worked very hard and have gone to extraordinary lengths to make sure we meet and exceed air quality standards. We are concerned with the environment, but we also have to dispose of our garbage which affects the environment as well," said Delligatti.

"The last link in the garbage disposal chain is to incinerate. We have a citizen advisory committee, called the Environmental Control Commission, of which no member is a town employee, and they support the idea," he added.

A number of groups feel composting is a viable answer to garbage disposal. Delligatti said that the town will continue its yard waste composting program which he called "an integral part of the town's solid waste management plan." According to Delligatti, the town composted nearly 11,000 tons of yard waste in 1990 and anticipates composting all yard waste, which comprises more than 10 percent of the total wastestream, by 1997.

"As far as expanding our composting efforts to include mixed solid waste, at the present time this technology remains unproven and not feasible on the large scale required for the Town of Oyster Bay," said Delligatti. "These types of operations require a large amount of space and have severe odor and other environmental problems, including the crowd was festive and full of spirit as they lined Broadway holding balloons.

The parade judges stood at the intersection of Broadway and W. Nicoli Street. All participants were judged on neatness, colors, color guards, spacing and appearance as well as the demeanor of the firemen while marching.

Path Of Excellence

and deeds on a daily basis," said Mugavero, laying out the ground rules for the staff to follow.

He stressed the importance of instructional time. "The most important time within education is the time a teacher and student spend in a classroom. I have asked the administration to curtail any activities that break into instructional time," he said.

The open door policy is now in effect in the Superintendent's office. He encourages people to give their input into decisions, but he does not promise to agree with everything people will tell him. He does promise to listen to complaints, disagreements, but he also wants to know if people agree with certain plans because that is the only way to know if the community agrees or not.

"I have heard the question, what is the superintendent's style? My style is to be out of the office and in the classroom throughout the day. I ask the administrators to do paper work after school hours and spend the days in the classrooms and halls. We owe students a sense of purpose," he said.

Teachers, Mugavero promises, will be honored for accomplishments with students. "We must honor those who work with students on a daily basis, that is the teachers," he said.

The classroom is a place of learning and development and is not a market place, Mugavero stressed, as his opening speech came to an end.

"It is time that we seek out the voice of the classroom teacher in making decisions and listen to that voice carefully," he concluded.

The stage was then passed to Dr. James Fillbrandt, the guest speaker. He spoke of the great responsibility people in public education have. He paid tribute to the Hicksville School District for doing so much with programs while having minimal funding from the state.

"I believe that you need strong leadership on every level of the public schools. We must also set up a model for good followership. You can't have a strong organization if you don't have a strong followership to support the decisions of the organizational leaders.

Fillbrandt encouraged teachers to be proud that they are educators and to tell people what a wonderful place the public schools are to work. He asked them to keep in mind the tremendous responsibility they have.

"You create an environment that fulfills dreams. What more could you want, spending your time teaching children when most people do not want to do it," he said, closing the open lectures.

Into the first week of school, Mugavero was asked how things were going. "School is going beautifully. Educationally I am very impressed. We started in and got right down to business. I see a lot of great things coming to the Hicksville schools in the future. Expectations are high as rightfully they should be. The teachers want to get right down to the business of instruction and they have done so. I am very excited."

"We still have some things that have to get straightened out, such as transportation. That will come though. It will take a little time but it will be fixed," he said.

With austerity behind them, the Hicksville School District is pushing forward on their path to excellence in the hope of a successful and smooth school year.

emission of chemical and biological pollutants. Another critical flaw is the fact that, at this time, there are insufficient reliable markets for the end product of mixed waste composting."

Delligatti said that a facility in Dade County, Florida was closed earlier this year for those reasons. He added that another report states that a similar facility in Oregon is experiencing these same problems.

The incinerator debate, which has been the subject of numerous meetings over the past several years, is far from over. If the town and American Ref-Fuel are granted permits for the plant, construction will take an estimated 2 1/2 years.

Until that time, recycling and off site shipping of garbage will continue. If approved and constructed, the town has pledged that the resource recovery facility will be used as the last link in the solid waste disposal chain.

Proud Resident Of Hicksville

In a recent Newsday article, a Syosset resident protesting the proposed opening of a K-Mart store in his community, cited as his objections, a possible increase in crime, traffic, and Hicksville shoppers.

On 8/4/91, I attended the Make A Wish Foundation Hicksville Baseball/Softball Tournament. I met scores of Hicksville residents who had donated both time and money to raise thousands of dollars to fulfill the dreams of terminally ill children.

A week earlier, a large group of Hicksville residents volunteered their time and energy at two fundraisers for the benefit of the Hicksville Youth Council. The funds raised were desperately needed to offset a drastic reduction in state aid and to enable the HYC to continue to serve the children of Hicksville.

Next month, residents of Hicksville will be conducting a garage sale to raise funds for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Events such as these are commonplace in Hicksville. They reflect the warmth, concern and generosity of its citizens.

Our friend from Syosset should not judge our community based on its affluence but on the character of its people. Perhaps then he would understand why so many of us are proud to be residents of Hicksville.

Angry At Judge's Decision

This letter is in response to the story regarding Judge Morrison's decision to dismiss the Town of Oyster Bay's court action against Twin County Recycling.

While we are not surprised that the Judge refused to close Twin County for being a public nuisance, we are outraged at certain statements contained in his decision. In ad-

A Letter from Lulubelle...

... Here we go again with our "do you remember"—are you old enough to remember "truant officers"? . . . In the old days, in order to keep all the kids in school—and at a time when some families weren't at all convinced that education was really important—schools employed people to serve as truant officers to chase after kids who were not in school and who were referred to as truants. . . . It was very different from today when the school nurse or attendance person calls the house to see why Johnny isn't in school. . . . Oh, no—first of all, most families didn't have telephones. . . . and if they didn't really care if their kids were in school, they wouldn't tell the truth. . . . Now my grandmother was one of these truant officers. . . . In the beginning of her employment, she walked, but soon she bought a Model T Ford, "Tin Lizzy". . . . and she went scooting all over the little Long Island town trying to get all the kids to school. . . . I remember when I was too young for school myself riding with her to houses where the lady of the house would come to the door to say her child was ill while we could see him helping his father in the back lot. . . . And then there was a day when my Grandmother heard that several boys had cut school to go to a local theater. . . . Since she was also a deputy sheriff, she went to the theater manager, showed her badge, and requested that he stop the movie and turn on the lights. . . . And, there in the front row, were her several truants, saying, disgustedly, "There's no use to hide from her—she can find you any place!!". . . . She chased them winter and summer for all of the months school was in session, and had one of the best records in all of New York State. . . . and, for this, she received the princely sum of four hundred dollars a year. . . . Sometimes, even today, I'd like to see "truant officers" to lower the absenteeism we hear of so often by actually chasing those kids who, smart alecks (does that phrase still communicate??), are cutting classes and sabotaging their futures.

Yours, Lulubelle

dition, there are other facts and comments in the article that need clarification.

It appears that Judge Morrison has either missed the point or lacks the guts to make a hard decision. The Town's case was not tried on the basis that Twin County is either a health threat or a violator of EPA regulations. The Town's case was simply that the business has consistently deprived neighboring residents of the comfortable enjoyment of their lives and property. Their operation should thus be considered a public nuisance.

Instead of focusing on this single most important point, the Judge has based his opinion on other facts:

- The Town has presented no expert testimony to establish a health threat to the area. (This was never the Town's contention.) Violations were minimal and happened early in the plant's history. (This is untrue since violations have occurred as recently as last year.)

- He also said the powers of observation and recollection of the witnesses were filtered through a lens of determined opinion. (In other words, the people who testified only believe their problems are as severe as they stated and are assuming the problems are being caused by Twin County.)

- Twin County recycles used asphalt and therefore "provides a product of significant social utility at considerable savings, conserves landfill space and minimizes the use of non-renewable petroleum products and energy" (While we agree this may be true, why can't they make their product of significant social utility somewhere else instead of in the middle of two residential areas?)

- An expenditure of $250,000 has been made to improve the plant. The Judge seems to be saying that it does not matter if a business is a cancer to the community as long as it spends some money on improvements. Never mind that the business didn't spend a cent on improvements until after litigation was initiated by the Town.)

- "The violations claimed have been largely cured and improvement continues." Someone should remind Judge Morrison that he should not believe everything he hears.

- The impact of Twin County on the neighboring residents "is the predictable result of residing in close proximity to an area which the Town has zoned for light industry and in which the Town has permitted the operation of an asphalt recycling plant." I interpret that as the saying, "I do not want to be the bad guy, I'll blame the Town of Oyster Bay for the people's problems."

- The Judge also said that "...the Town possesses its own remedy for any significant violations in the future." I can only take that as the Judge telling the Town, "Don't renew in '92."

One final comment. The article mentions that Twin County's attorney promises the same kind of service and responsibility toward the community that they have shown in the past.

I love a guy with a sense of humor.

Workshop On Serving Physically-Challenged

A workshop on serving the physically-challenged senior citizen is being presented by the Nassau County Department of Senior Citizen Affairs in the department's offices, Room 216, at 400 County Seat Drive, Mineola, Sept. 20, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

This workshop will educate participants to the special needs and abilities of the physically-challenged senior citizen and will recommend adaptations, assistive devices and resources available to help them live independently and enhance their opportunities to participate in society.

The workshop is presented without cost in cooperation with the Nassau County Office for the Physically Challenged and the Long Island Center for Independent Living, Inc.

Pre-registration is required. For registration or information, call 564-6923.

Helping Handicapped Become Horsepeople

LIRHA (Long Island Riding For The Handicapped Association) will begin its fall session of classes on Sept. 23. Volunteers are needed to help continue providing therapeutic and recreational riding for handicapped persons.

Three one-hour classes are held on Monday afternoons at Pine Hollow Farm at Gold Coast in Old Brookville. Volunteers assist by helping students to mount, and walk along side giving support and encouragement, and leading horses. One hour of volunteers time helps another handicapped person to become a horse person.

There will be a training session Sept. 16. For further information call Peggy Neice at 676-5366 or Betty Valentine at 481-1370.

Tutor Training Fall Workshops

Literacy Volunteers of America-Nassau County, Inc. on Fulton Avenue in Hempstead will be the site of both a Basic Reading and an English as a Second Language Tutor Training Workshop. The former will train volunteers in techniques for helping an adult learn to read and write. Improving spoken English and survival skills is the focus of the ESL course. Material in both is presented through audio-visual aids and demonstrations by experienced tutors. Time is set aside for small group practice sessions. Upon completion of all required sessions, each volunteer is matched with an adult with whom he will work on a one-to-one basis or in a small group at a place and time convenient for all.

The eight session Basic Reading course will meet on Mondays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. beginning Sept. 16. The additional dates are Sept. 19, 23, 26, 30, and Oct. 3 and 7. Oct. 8 marks the beginning of the ESL training which will meet on the following Tuesdays and Thursdays (Oct. 8, 10, 15, 17, 22, 24, and 29) from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Registration for both courses is now open. Prior teaching experience and knowledge of a foreign language are not necessary. All Nassau County residents are welcome.

For more information call 486-2789 from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Eating To Your Heart's Content

On Oct. 7, the American Heart Association will hold its second annual culinary salon competition at the Long Island Marriott in Uniondale. Appropriately titled "Eat To Your Heart's Content," the competition attracts Long Island's finest chefs who have been asked to prepare several dishes according to Heart Association guidelines.

The food will be judged by a panel of culinary and nutrition experts and first, second, and third place awards will be given in the following categories: appetizer, entree, dessert, overall presentation, and people's choice. Then the event—and the food—will be opened to the general public from 5-8 p.m. for the admission fee of $25.

The funds raised at "Eat To Your Heart's Content" assist the American Heart Association as it continues to support lifesaving cardiovascular research and education programs for Nassau County residents. But another goal of the competition, according to the event's co-chairpersons Stephen Bello and Alex Gousseff, is to educate the public about the value of proper nutrition as it relates to the prevention of heart disease.

For ticket information, call (516) 741-5522.

"Homeless Experience" Takes The Stage

The Nassau-Suffolk Coalition for the Homeless, Inc. (NSCH) as part of its efforts to combat homelessness on Long Island, have formed an improvisational players group called "The Homeless Experience."

The group is offering its program to any interested school or community group. The goal is to help the audience examine its attitudes and responses to homelessness, to offer them the opportunity to walk in the moccasins of a homeless man or woman, and to explore with them possible solutions to the phenomenon of homelessness.

At present, NSCH is recruiting people interested in the problem of homelessness who would have day-time availability and who are willing to take part in a training workshop.

For further information, call the coalition coordinator, Rose Marie Blake, MSW, at (516) 742-7770.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	2 ♠	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass

Opening lead — seven of hearts.

Here is a difficult defensive problem. You're East and, after South gets to four spades, your partner leads the seven of hearts. You cash the K-A of hearts, declarer and West following suit, and continue with the jack of hearts.

South ruffs with the ten of spades, your partner discarding a diamond, and plays a club to dummy's king. Declarer now leads the jack of trumps from dummy, and the question is whether you should play the ace or the queen.

It would be easy to slip at this point and make the wrong play. But if, as a conscientious defender, you try to visualize the kind of hand South is likely to have, you can come up with a fairly accurate analysis.

You should conclude that South started with six spades to the K-10-9, the ace of diamonds, and perhaps the queen or jack of clubs. It would be wrong to credit South with seven spades to the king, because that would make it impossible to defeat the contract. It would also be wrong to assume that West had the nine of spades, because in that case declarer would surely have led the eight of spades rather than the jack from dummy.

All of this should lead you to the conclusion that your only real chance to defeat four spades is to assume that your partner has the seven of trumps! Accordingly, you cover dummy's jack of spades with the queen.

This play sinks the contract. Declarer can do no better than win with the king and return a trump to dummy's eight. You win with the ace, lead a heart, and poor South — whose trump holding now consists of 9-6-4 — cannot prevent your partner from scoring the setting trick with the seven of trumps.

We're putting our money where our mouth is to preserve Long Island's water supply.

Long Island's water supply is the finest in the nation. At Slomin's we're taking positive steps to help preserve it.

Specifically, we've established a special financial assistance program to help subsidize the cost of complying with the new regulations regarding buried fuel oil tanks.

Under this program, you will be able to purchase our environmentally safe, 280-gallon fiberglass tank for a price that is truly below our cost.* There are also economical options available for above ground storage tanks, starting as low as $100 installed.

We realize that even with our subsidy, replacing your tank may be a financial burden, so we're offering low monthly payments with no interest or finance charges.

As a leader in the fuel oil industry, we feel a responsibility to invest in our community... to put our money where our mouth is, so to speak. We're proud to be working with our Long Island neighbors to preserve our fragile environment.

For more information, call Slomin's in Nassau at 932-7000, in Suffolk, call 242-4888.

Legendary Science Fiction Art In First-Ever Viewing

By Matthew Rose

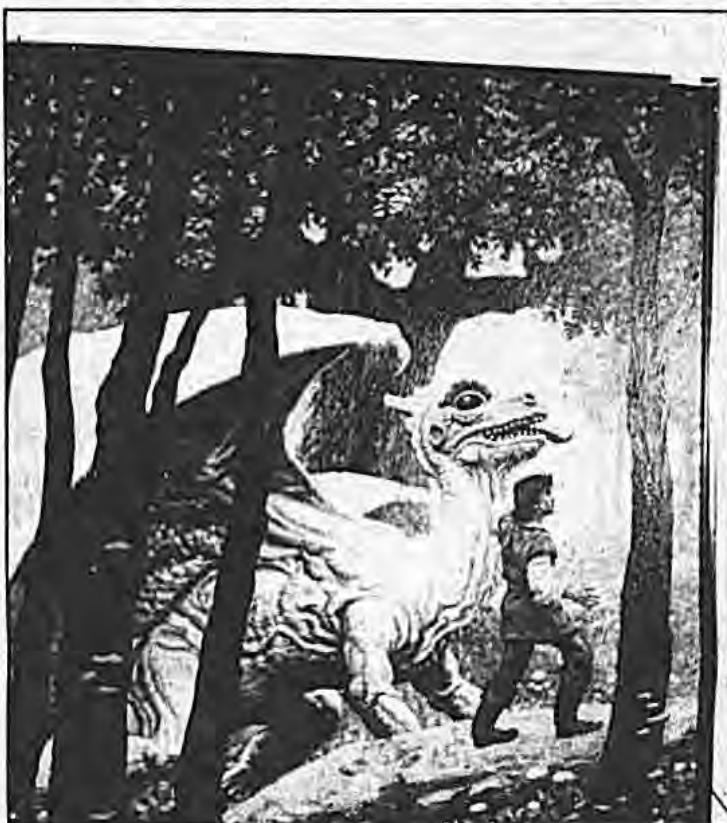

Tim Hildebrandt began his life-long fascination with the art of fantasy at the tender age of four. Having discovered Walt Disney and his cartoon inventions of Fantasia, Hildebrandt was hooked.

Some fifty years later, there exists something of a cult following around Hildebrandt, who has become a world-renowned artist and illustrator. His art has come to be synonymous with fantasy and science fiction.

More than 30 paintings by Hildebrandt will be seen for the first time in a retrospective of the artist's work at The Plaza Gallery in Locus Valley, New York. Hildebrandt will host the opening on Sunday, Sept. 15 at 1 p.m. and discuss the allure of the fantasy aesthetic.

On view (and for sale) will be some of Hildebrandt's most well known works, including the large canvases he created for several calendars based on J.R.R. Tolkien's The Lord of the Rings. In addition, original art from his science fiction book cover illustrations and original drawings will be on view. Highlighting the exhibition will be Hildebrandt's 1990 Bleeding Earth, created for a United Nations and the New York Society of Illustrators exhibition on Art and the Environment this past year which brought together some of the world's top illustrators. Hildebrandt's painting, which greeted visitors, appropriates Leonardo da Vinci's fresco, The Last Supper and depicts the planet bleeding as it hovers over the Passover table, empty of Jesus and his disciples.

Tim Hildebrandt was born in Detroit in 1939 and has been making art "ever since I saw Pinocchio," he says. Heavily influenced by the great illustrators—N.C. Wyeth, Howard Pyle, Maxfield Parrish and even cartoonist Hal Foster (creator of Prince Valiant), Hildebrandt and his twin brother Greg were swept into the science fiction genre of the atomic age in the 1950s. Together they feasted on the wild imagination in science fiction classics like War of the Worlds and Forbidden Planet. At 15, they built film sets in the family garage in Detroit, and taught themselves animation, using an 8mm Brownie, then graduating to an 8mm Keystone. "I remember one set where we filmed a Martian machine sweeping through a city, destroying the buildings which were held together with about 1,000 feet of wire.

EVER TAKE A WALK THROUGH THE WOODS with a dragon? If not, but you're the type that enjoys reading about such sci-fi and fantasy adventure, there's a good chance you'll be interested in the upcoming Tim Hildebrandt exhibit.

To achieve the desired effects we scratched film itself with a pin and magnifying glass!"

After attending Meinzinger's Art School in Detroit, Tim worked for an industrial film company where he designed sets, painted backgrounds and animated films, several of which earned him the Golden Eagle award. He continued in film, producing documentaries for Bishop Fulton J. Sheen; he also began illustrating children's books at the time. In 1976, he answered an ad on the back of a Tolkien-illustrated calendar to illustrate future Tolkien calendars.

Soon he was illustrating The Lord of the Rings.

Among his more notable film poster credits: when George Lucas' Star Wars captured the imagination of a generation of movie-goers, it was Tim Hildebrandt's poster that ushered them to their seats.

"We see the exhibition as a landmark of sorts that will hopefully establish not only the science fiction and fantasy genre in a gallery setting, but also set a standard for exhibiting such work," says Paul Andersen, Plaza Art Gallery owner/director.

Tim Hildebrandt's work will be on view through October 12. Gallery hours: Tuesday through Saturday, 10-5 p.m. More info: call 624-2471.

HICKSVILLE ILLUSTRATED NEWS SPORTS

Athletic Workshop A Rousing Success

The Nassau County Athletic Workshop on Athletic Sportsmanship held at the Hicksville High School recently was a tremendous success. Almost 1,200 people came to hear guest speakers and participate in the day's events.

Defensive Tackle for the New York Jets Dennis Byrd was on hand as a guest speaker to give encouraging words to the athletes in the stands.

The emcee of the program was Patrick

Pizzarelli, the Hicksville Supervisor of Physical Education and Health. Superintendent of Schools, Salvatore Mugavero, was also on hand to lend some inspiring words. President of the High School Athletic Association Jerry Jewell spoke about the workshop concept and Tim Browne of the New York State "Dreamer and Doer" organization gave a student perspective of the workshop.

The entire evening was a success and there was plenty of fun for all who attended.

RONNIE PARK AND LINDA GORNEY from girls cross country are all smiles at the Athletic Workshop held in Hicksville High School.

Fall Soccer Registration Underway Now

Hicksville American Soccer Club intramural team registration has begun for the fall season.

The fee for the first child to sign up is $75, for the second child $50, for the third child $25 and there is no charge for a fourth child in a family who signs up to play.

Fees are paid at the time of registration. Registration fees include accidental medical insurance.

It is the parents' responsibility to determine the physical readiness of the child and parents must list any unusual medical conditions on the registration form.

Further general information can be obtained by calling Terry Bruno at 735-7194 or Dean Camerinos at 931-8610. Sign-up information for children between the ages of seven and 12 can call Gary Bretton at 938-2359.

Sign-up for children between the ages of three and six years can call Rich LaPolla at 931-0739.

The league is also looking for volunteers to help in various jobs within the league.

PAL Fall Sports Registration Underway

PAL fall basketball registration for boys, ages 7-15 and girls, ages 8-15, will start on Monday, September 23 and Wednesday, September 25 at Woodbury Lanes, South Oyster Bay Road and Woodbury Ave. It will also be held on Tuesday, September 24 and Thursday, September 26 at the Hicksville Library, Jerusalem Ave. and Second Street.

Registration times for all days is from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. The basketball programs run from November through March.

Basketball is not the only thing kids can register for on the above days and times. Judo is offered from October through April for boys and girls, age 6-18. Registration is on a first come, first serve basis, until all classes are filled.

Summer baseball and softball registration for the summer of 1992 will be held at the same time and places as the basketball registration. Boys baseball is for boys age 8-15 and girls softball is for girls age 8-15. The season runs from approximately July 4 through Labor Day.

Lacrosse, for boys in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grade, registration will be held at the same time and place as the basketball registration for the upcoming school year. Fall 1991 registration is the only one for lacrosse. There will not be another registration for lacrosse in the spring, 1992. Teams will have limited membership size.

Karate registration will take place at the same time as the basketball registration for the October through April boy's and girl's leagues for age 10-18. Registration is on a first come, first serve basis.

Weekend Golf Reservations At Eisenhower Park

Weekend waiting times at the Eisenhower Park golf courses will be a thing of the past, say Nassau County officials, when the county's Parks Department implements an innovative reservation system on September 16.

Starting that date, golfers will be able to call a special number—542-GOLF—to reserve starting times at two of the three 18-hole courses for a fee of $4 per person. The courses will be rotated, but one will always be available for traditional non-reserved play.

The new system, which will be in effect 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday, will eliminate waits that sometimes build to three hours or more, and allow golfers the convenience of reserving their starting times by phone earlier in the week. The procedure, open only to county residents with valid

Leisure Passes, will be evaluated on a regular basis and may be expanded to include more hours and other days if it proves successful.

Under the plan, golfers who wish to make Friday reservations will call on the prior Monday; Saturday reservations on Tuesday and Sunday reservations on Wednesday—all between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Golfers may call on Thursdays between nine a.m. and noon to reserve untaken weekend time slots.

Only one reservation per weekend per cardholder will be accepted, and can include an entire foursome. However, players who do not present a Leisure Pass at sign-in time will be required to pay a non-resident fee.

Singles will be matched with other twosomes and threesomes and all golfers must report to the cashier's desk at least 30 minutes prior to the reserved time.
