Hall Of Fame Inductees Lead Graduates

Leading the Class of 1992 onto McCormack Field for this year's commencement ceremonies are the most recent inductees into the Hicksville Hall of Fame. Deborah "Arnie" Arnesen and Dr. Leo Kanawada, Jr. have been chosen as role models for the graduating class.

Persons chosen for this honor are former Hicksville students who have made their marks with important achievements and contributions to their community or profession or both. Anyone may nominate a person for this honor; but it is up to the Hall of Fame Student Representative Committee to choose the person or persons most worthy for induction each year. The names of the individuals elected to the Hall of Fame are then added to the commemorative plaque hanging in the high school lobby as a tribute to their accomplishments since leaving the district's school system.

Deborah "Arnie" Arnesen

A four-term State Representative from Orford, New Hampshire, Deborah Arnesen, a 1971 Hicksville High School graduate, serves as director of the Civil Liberties Union in that state, as well as serving as a member of the Commerce, Small Business and Consumer Affairs Committee in the House. Arnie formally announced her candidacy for governor in March 1992, intent on becoming New Hampshire's first woman governor.

Arnie has been selected as one of 32 emerging state leaders chosen from across the country for the prestigious Toll Fellowship Program. The week-long seminar on policy issue and leadership development is aimed at developing the next generation of leaders from the three branches of state government.

Her platform includes most notably environmental concerns, for which the students placed great emphasis in their determination; educational aid; property tax relief and reform; the establishment of an ethical code of conduct for elected officials; and the accessibility of health insurance. She is very active in serving the plight of the jobless and has worked for many economic reforms.

A graduate of Hicksville High School in 1959, Dr. Leo Kanawada developed and taught a Humanities Program for the Gifted and Talented, and a Core Program for students with learning disabilities. He has also been a teacher in Hicksville for over twenty years and is currently at the East Street School.

Dr. Kanawada cited in the Directory of American Scholars, is a published author of Franklin D. Roosevelt's Diplomacy and American Catholics, Italians, and Jews and Something Worthwhile: The Life and Times of The Parkway Community Church 1628-1981. He has served as a member of the Faculty/Administration Educational Panel to improve the educational experience in the Hicksville Public Schools.

He has also served in Vietnam as a captain in the US Army. Dr. Kanawada has a fine list of achievements and organization memberships to his credit. He is married with two children, Kristina 19, and Sean, a current graduating senior in Hicksville High School.

When selecting persons for the Hall of Fame the Student Representative Committee looks at both the person's professional success and his or her contributions to society.

This is the eighth year that the Hicksville High School has recognized former students for this honor. The Hall of Fame review process and induction is a testament to the outstanding judgment of the students of Hicksville High School. It is the hope of the Board of Education that this ongoing project will serve to inspire current and future students and to instill a sense of pride in our schools and community.

Board Bids Farewell To District Retirees

By John W. Garger

The Hicksville Administration, Board of Education and audience members, present at the June 17 Board of Education meeting, honored the 40 retiring staff members of the Hicksville Public School system.

Superintendent of Schools Salvatore Mugavero summed up the mood of the evening by saying, "This is probably the most important meeting of our school year, the reason for that is because we get to honor those people who are now prepared to go and enjoy their retirement. These are people who have served our district, who have contributed to the education of your children, and these are the people who have made a difference."

In all 40 staff members from the district including teachers and administration were honored upon their retirement. Adding up their total years of service would equal well over 1,000 years. Twenty of the retirees were present at the meeting, where Director of Personnel William Gagnon highlighted their careers and presented them with a plaque. A complete listing of the retirees can be found in this paper.

The Board also presented the two outgoing Board members with plaques thanking them for their hard work for the past three years. James Martillo and William Collins were credited with working with the best interests of the district's children in mind.

Board Meeting

In a fast-paced meeting the Board approved the following in the Action Section of the meeting.

A food service bid was awarded to Whitson's Food Service for the upcoming 1992-93 school year. Whitson's will supply the elementary and secondary schools with a lunch program.

The Hicksville Union Free School District will enter into a cooperative bid for custodial supplies with Valley Stream Union Free School District No. 13. Assistant Superintendent for Business Stuart Opdahl explained that cooperative bidding is a common practice among school districts and will save the district money.

The Superintendent was especially proud of the MIG-I rating that the district has received from Moody's Investment Service. No other district in the county has received such a good rating. The superintendent attributed the rating to the fine work of the business department especially Stuart Opdahl and Tina Inocco, school business executive.

It was recommended and approved that the district approve the School Leaders Errors and Omissions Insurance Policy with North River Insurance Company with limits of liability of $5,000,000, at an amount not to exceed $11,550. This policy was recommended by the district's insurance consultant. It was also recommended that the Board approve an additional policy extending the claim period for twelve months at a cost of $1,538.46.

The Board was also recommended to approve the Excess Workers' Compensation and Employer Liability Insurance Policy with Employers Reinsurance Corporation.

It was announced that the science lab renovations were under way and that the contracted company has assured top quality casedwork. Other improvements include the installation of a new telephone system in the district, Intellipath II.

Several policies were presented to the Board for adoption and approval; and several textbooks were also approved by the Board.

The next meeting is a reorganizational meeting in the Board Room of the Administration Building on July 7 at 8 p.m. On July 15 at 8 p.m. there will be a work meeting of the Board of Education at the Administration Building.

Korean War Veterans Day

Oyster Bay Town Councilman Leonard B. Symons reminded residents that Thursday, June 25, will mark the second official observance of Korean War Veterans Day in New York State.

"Last year, Korean War Veterans Day was observed for the first time in New York State," Councilman Symons stated. "Unfortunately, the occasion has been getting just about as much publicity as the war itself, which has come to be called by historians and others 'the forgotten war'."

The Councilman urged residents to take a few moments to recall just what the Korean War was about. "What we should never lose sight of is that American servicemen who fought in Korea, answered their country's call... So, on June 25 let us show our Korean War Veterans that we remember and are grateful for their sacrifice, courage, and service."

Broadway Play

Tickets are still available for the bus trip to Ariel Dorfman's Death and the Maiden starring Tony-nominated Glenn Close, Richard Dreyfuss, and Gene Hackman. The trip, being planned by the Hicksville Public Library, will take place on Friday, July 24, with the bus leaving the library at 5 p.m. sharp. The combined price for an orchestra seat and the round-trip deluxe bus ride to the Brooks Atkinson Theatre is $64.

Must Be Hooked

The June 11 issue of the Hicksville Illustrated News made reference to trailers parked in the street. This paper was informed that the Town Clerk, Carl Marcellino, was correct in saying that "a boat and trailer parked in the street must be attached to a car." Trailers cannot be left unhooked on a public roadway.

A Portrait Of A Hicksville Artist

By John W. Garger

Although his name might not be well-known in Long Island art circles, Rob Sotung has made a name for himself in Hicksville. Six years ago Rob never thought he would be working out of a gallery painting portraits, but that is just what he is doing today.

A product of the Hicksville High School Art program, Robert Sotung has done over 150 portraits since he discovered his talent for drawing in the 12th grade.

A 1987 graduate of Hicksville High School, Rob took four years of architectural drafting and mechanical drawing. When he ran out of classes in those fields he decided to take general drawing in his senior year. It is in that class that he got his start. He ended up receiving the Best Artist Medal from the high school art department.

After discovering his talent he would watch Andre Bouche, a portrait artist, who used to do drawings at the Broadway Mall and other major Long Island Malls. Rob says that Bouche was definitely the inspiration that got him started in portraits. "When I went shopping around the holidays I would find myself watching Bouche instead of buying presents."

Rob started doing portraits for family members and friends; then his business grew by word of mouth. "I enjoy what I do; after I complete a portrait, knowing that I made someone happy makes me love my work," said Rob.

He now works out of the Broadway Gallery located in the Austin Drugs Shopping Center. He started there in November of 1991. During the Christmas season his business really started to take off and it hasn't slowed down since. Ray Ramotar, proprietor of the Broadway Gallery, a picture framing shop, said of Rob, "As a framer in the business I get to see portraits done by other artists and none compare to Rob." He said that is the reason why he offered Rob space in his shop. Ramotar had received requests from other artists, but never thought they were good enough.

Although a majority of his work has been portraits, Rob has also been involved in painting backgrounds for animation cells. He has also gotten requests for paintings of family pets, boats, cars, and musicians. He works from photos and primarily uses charcoal and pastels, but will use oils upon request.

Rob has been attending Pratt Institute of Technology in Brooklyn, where he is studying Industrial Design. His course of study will prepare him for designing products and market renderings of products, all having to do with the arts and design field.

In the future he plans on entering Rotational Art Exhibits and getting more exposure throughout Long Island and possibly the city.

His artwork is on constant display at the Broadway Gallery, 200 Old Country Rd., at the Newbridge intersection in Hicksville. Shop hours are from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays, and Sundays noon to 5 p.m. Ramotar likes having Rob work out of his Gallery and feels his customers do too. "They walk in with a photo and leave with a framed portrait."

Just like Bouche, Rob may never find his work hanging in the Museum of Modern Art next to Picasso's, but then again Picasso's paintings aren't found gracing the walls of living rooms all over Long Island.

District Nabs Illegal Registrants

By John W. Garger

Since last August nearly 60 students have been prohibited from attending Hicksville Public Schools because of tightened eligibility for attendance regulations.

At the June Board of Education meeting the policy for "Eligibility for Attendance Regulation" was adopted by the board in order to insure that only those children who legally reside in the Hicksville School district are given access to the educational system. According to the policy, "...Regulations have been developed in order to regulate student enrollment within the Hicksville Public Schools and to provide a mechanism to ensure that the district's educational programs and resources are provided to only those students who are legally entitled to benefit from them."

Superintendent of Schools Salvatore Mugavero said that although not all school districts have a policy this specific, most districts do have some guidelines for dealing with "illegal registrants." At the superintendent's urging illegal registrants were pursued and to date almost 30 have been denied enrollment in this district and another approximately 28 have been investigated and found to be attending Hicksville schools illegally.

Although a major concern about illegal registrants is the cost of educating extra children, whose parents or guardians don't pay Hicksville school taxes, an even more pressing concern is the discipline problems caused by some illegal registrants. To curtail problems caused by illegal registrants at the high school, a letter was sent to parents of high school students asking them if they knew of persons attending Hicksville schools illegally. Anonymous phone calls helped in revealing some 28 illegal students.

Reasons for students attending illegally are numerous and sometimes not fully known. According to the Superintendent some illegal registrants live just outside the Hicksville School District boundary and want to attend the same school as most of their friends. Others might have had problems in their original district and therefore choose to enroll in another school. These students in turn may pose discipline problems at the high school.

Superintendent Mugavero expressed concern about the discipline and atmosphere

Aquacade Relocates Hicksville Pool Store

By J. W. Garger

Aquacade swimming pools is a real Hicksville success story. Started in 1965 by Fred Vevante the swimming pool company grew from a backyard operation to a large incorporated business employing over 30 people.

Aquacade chose its new location at 200 Levittown Parkway because of a need for more space and better parking facilities. Its previous location was on South Broadway and old time Hicksville residents might remember another store being next to the Church of Christ on North Broadway. Aquacade's motto is "Everything for Swimming Pools" and they certainly stand by it. Besides a vast array of pool supplies they also offer pool and spa service, building, consultation, and maintenance.

Fred Vevante believes that you have to "treat people right. It is best to be honest." That is certainly why his store has continued to grow and they have continued to service pools from as far east as the Hamptons and as far west as Brooklyn.

Fred Vevante has a long history of service to the community. He had a service station for 11 years before going into the pool business and has become involved with community organizations.

Aquacade has a dedicated group of employees, including eight road crews. Fred's son Kevin serves as the company president, his son Skippy is in charge of service, his son Berry is in charge of building, and his nephews David and Fred work in the service department.

Fred Vevante sees a surge in the pool industry because of the change in the weather, so if you're looking for a pool or need yours serviced stop by Aquacade at 200 Levittown Parkway. Store hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Students Bring Characters To Life

The children in Mrs. Pfizenmayer's second grade class performed a delightful play, The Magic Bookshelf for their parents and friends during Hicksville's Spring Expo Festival on Wednesday evening, June 3. The children also performed on Monday and Tuesday, June 1 and 2, for their schoolmates.

The Magic Bookshelf takes place in the home of Tim and Sally, brother and sister who no longer believe that book characters are "real pretend" people. With the help of their fairy godmother, the children realize that through reading and by keeping the magic of childhood alive, our favorite storybook characters can really become "real pretend."

The cast of characters were played by Tara Kelly (Sally), Adam Mosebach (Tim), Catherine Sharkey (fairy godmother), Dominick Messapesa (Peter Pan), Stephanie Palmer (Wendy), Monica Chuchon (Tinkerbell), Thomas Bell (Captain Hook), Heather Kaplan (Cinderella), Catherine O'Brien (first step-sister), Christine Cassagne (Alice in Wonderland), Kimberly Bartlett (Sleeping Beauty), Nicole Mosiello (twelfth fairy), Melissa Ezcurra (Queen),

East Street Staafest

The 11th Annual Windows of the World "Staafest," a festival displaying the cultural attractions and historical sights of six European countries, occupied the third floor of the East Street School in June.

Student-led groups from Mr. Hilsky's and Dr. Kanawada's sixth grade classes represented Great Britain, France, Spain, Germany, Italy, and Russia. Six classrooms were transformed by the students into not only exhibits portraying maps, flags, costumes, essays on prominent leaders, architectural wonders, travel brochures, classical and romantic music, but also traditionally decorated restaurants serving at least one hot entree and various desserts. When the day came to a close, over 60 parents and family members, teachers, and administrators participated, each looking forward to their own personal visit to Europe in the near future.

Helen M. Lafferty recently visited Mrs. Radjewski's first grade class at the Lee Avenue School. She was delighted that the children read to her this time. On a previous visit in the fall, Mrs. Lafferty read to the children. After working so hard on their own books, the children were able to read to Mrs. Lafferty on this visit.

Fork Visits Library

The English as a Second Language students at the Fork Lane School and their teacher, Mrs. LaBarbera, visited the Hicksville Public Library on Friday, May 29, 1992. Mrs. Doerler's Kindergarten classes joined the ESL students on their trip.

The children saw a movie, listened to the Children's Librarian tell them about the library, and received a library card. Each child was able to borrow two books to get started on a summer of reading fun!

St. Ignatius Top May Students

Many students of the month are being honored at St. Ignatius School during June. The students in grades one to three were chosen by their teachers for their effort, achievement, and good conduct. Each child received a certificate at an assembly on June 3.

The students of the month of May are: Jill Berner (class 1-1), Kathleen Shea (class 1-2), Eric Magalona (class 2-1), Jessica Carrillo (class 2-2), Jennifer Manley (class 3-1), and James Monaco (class 3-2).

Congratulations to each of these students for their outstanding effort.

Children Share With INN

During this past Easter season the children in Ms. Gallagher's fourth grade class at the Woodland School gave Easter baskets to the Hicksville Interfaith Nutrition Network. The class made and decorated baskets and filled them with homemade brownies.

problems these students cause in the high school, but he also feels these new regulations will go a long way in improving that problem. He also said, "I think taxpayers should only have to educate their own children, not those that do not reside in Hicksville."

The new regulations, drafted by Dr. Kremin, Director of Pupil Personnel Services, call for new registrants to provide the district with proof of residence, proof of birth, and proof of parental relationship. The regulations also provide for students in custodial care of a Hicksville resident and for students attending Hicksville schools on a tuition paying basis.

Fun With Language

The boys and girls in Mrs. Ratnor's reading class have been having fun with the English language. They have been studying idioms (for example, "It's raining cats and dogs") and illustrating them in a humorous way. Some children have written funny, imaginative stories about how the various expressions originated.

Furthermore the second graders in Mrs. Ratnor's reading class have worked hard at learning all their reading sounds. They celebrated by making illustrated booklets and by having a party.

Kindergarten Orientation

The East Street Kindergarten Orientation was held on Tuesday, May 26. Many students and their parents attended. Songs were sung, information was distributed to parents and the new students, and many anxieties were relieved in a question and answer session. Many new, happy, and beautiful students will be entering East Street School this coming fall.

Music Month

Music In Schools Month

In order to celebrate "Music In Our Schools Month," the third graders at the Fork Lane School worked on their version of the opera Hansel & Gretel. Under the direction of Music Teacher Mrs. Haddock, each class was responsible for learning all of the songs, dances, dialogue, costumes, scenery, and props. Mrs. Grib's class performed the opera for the afternoon kindergarten class and Ms. Bergeron's students performed for the morning children. It was a great musical experience for all involved.

HFD Fire And Accident Report

A house fire on Laura Drive in Westbury (part of the Hicksville Fire District) caused considerable damage when grease in a frying pan ignited and spread throughout the kitchen. The fire also damaged the dining room and the living room areas.

The lone female occupant stated that the smoke detector alerted her and saved her life as the fire spread quickly. Hicksville firefighters had the fire under control in 20 minutes. There were no injuries. Seven units, 65 members, responded under Chief Patrick Scanlon. The alarm was reported at 8:22 p.m. on June 5.

Auto Accident

Four people were injured when a taxi swerved in front of a vehicle on Andrews

Road by the Sears Service Center. One vehicle rolled over on its roof. There was a minor gasoline spill from a punctured fuel tank. The Jericho Fire Department supplied an ambulance to assist the Hicksville Fire Department. The alarm was reported at 12:22 p.m. on June 11.

Another accident at the Levittown Parkway and Stewart Avenue intersection happened at 12:41 p.m. on June 10. This intersection has been the site of several accidents in the last few months. One driver was injured in the accident on the 10th. Hicksville firefighters responded and transported the injured female to Central General Hospital.

Can It Be Prevented?

A woman approaching a four-way intersection glanced to her right, saw the car coming from her right, and, ignoring a stop sign, proceeded through the crossing. The other car slammed into her fender. The incident, fortunately, did minor damage to both cars.

Stepping from her auto, the woman asked the other motorist irritably, "Why didn't you stop?" "Why should I bother," he answered, "when you didn't. We both had stop signs."

Ludicrous as this sounds, this happened in our presence last week. We wish we could tell you it's an isolated incident. The fact is, an increasingly large number of drivers appear to be ignoring stop signs completely. The Nassau Police—that doesn't include the villages—report that between 75 and 100 accidents take place on an average day—more in inclement weather—and these accidents result in between 30 and 50 injuries every day.

Frightening statistics. What can we do?

Most accidents, safety experts claim, can be avoided. If you're going to work or an appointment, plan to leave five or 10 minutes earlier. Don't speed up to "beat" the red light. If it's yellow, you won't get through the intersection before it turns green for the other side. Going shopping? On the way home? Better to arrive five minutes later, safe and sound. Radio on too loud? It may block the sounds of approaching emergency vehicles.

When we learned how to drive many years ago, we recall that the instructor's first words were his most eloquent: Always drive as if everyone else on the road is a blithering idiot.

And there's the most important rule of all: Bring your common sense and a good dose of courtesy with you when you get into your car.

How To Be A Better Storyteller

By Ed Walsh

Storytelling, as old as the human race, has been passed on from one generation to another. Why? Because the skill satisfies our desire to create and entertain. The only limitation on this natural ability is our individual imagination.

"People are hungry for storytelling because we live in an age preoccupied with technology and science," said Jay O'Callahan, the former dean of a Boston secretarial school. This modern Homer has captivated countless audiences of all ages from Maine to California. During one 12-month period, he told his repertoire of over 40 tales to some 50,000 people. Teachers claim he inspires children to read.

You don't have to have the talents of this latter-day Hans Christian Andersen to tell an entertaining tale to family and friends. Author Bel Kaufman, granddaughter of Yiddish humorist Sholem Aleichem, says the art of storytelling is "a matter of seeing life in a certain way and communicating it amusingly, dramatically, sometimes even memorably."

To be a better teller of tales, train yourself to observe what others take for granted so as to transform everyday incidents into adventures. Nearly everyone can tell an acceptable story if the person would take the time to learn, stated Caroline Feller Bauer, a University of Oregon professor who had her own weekly storytelling program on a Portland TV station.

Bauer's Handbook for Storytellers (American Library Association, Chicago, 1977) has helpful hints and resource material for you to become a better teller of tales. You may borrow the book from your library. In the meantime, here are some suggestions for enhancing your skill.

1. Tell only those stories you personally like. You can find out by reading a story aloud at least six times over a period of a few days. Do you still enjoy it? Then add it to your repertoire.

2. Pick a story that will appeal to your listeners' background. For beginners, folk tales are best because they're simple. Keep in mind the age, attitudes, interests, comprehension and special circumstances of an audience.

3. There's no right or wrong way of learning a story, but you must master the list of events. Think logically and you'll learn logically, notes Bauer. Grasp the main incidents in order and fix the characters firmly in mind. Live with these make-believe people till they become real for you. No need to memorize. Instead, write out the stories and practice telling them to yourself. Or you can have a friend tape record the stories and learn by listening to them over and over.

4. Analyze each story's component parts. The introduction creates atmosphere and sets the pace. The body of the story provides a series of action-packed events leading to a climax, which should have a surprise element. The conclusion winds things up with a few sentences. Don't add a moral. Let listeners learn to draw their own from the tale you've told.

5. Breathe your own personality into the activity, but do not "act out" the story. Unless you've had voice training, don't use your voice to convey characterization. Maintain eye contact and speak slowly and clearly. Use colorful phrases. Be dramatic and enthusiastic but don't overdo the gestures. They can distract listeners.

6. If you're worried, you'll forget key incidents; keep a copy of the book with you for ready reference. Take your time and memory may bridge the gap. Another technique is to use index cards with plot outlines and key words.

7. Use humor, especially with kids. Sylvia Ziskind, author of Telling Stories To Children, suggests that your first tales involve mainly humorous plots and incongruous characters. "Nonsense shared between storyteller and listener creates instant rapport," she writes.

8. A well-told tale will make children think, feel and laugh. It will have the same effect on adults. "A story should leave a single impression: a punch line that really punches, or a moment of quiet recognition," explains Bel Kaufman. "A good story is larger than the sum of its parts; there is more there than meets the ear."

Storytelling may tire you or make you tense. If so, try these exercises suggested by Sylvia Ziskind. Swallow five times in succession. Hum very softly with lips barely touching: first high, then low, then in between. Stretch, yawn and swallow. Close your eyes and let your head drop forward like a dead weight. Rotate your head slowly to the right, then to the left. Look in the mirror and make faces with your lips.

To improve, practice reading aloud every day. You can also learn by listening to master storytellers on radio or TV. Study their techniques. What makes them so effective? Your local librarian can also provide tips for developing your talent. Don't hesitate to ask for questions.

Storytelling is a skill that can last a lifetime. One adult, looking back on his childhood, remarked, "I don't think a home is a home without a story hour." And when a listener says, "Tell me another story," recognize that you've been paid the ultimate compliment.

Correction

In the "VFW Memorial Day Report" article on page 14 of the June 18 issue the student speakers were incorrectly identified. The speakers from the high school were Colleen Bartley and John Butt. Jon Christ and Liz Jurgensen played Taps.

A Letter from Lulabelle...

Now that so many folks are "into" physical fitness, a whole new world of businesses, schedules, and conversation has come into being... And who can complain about people taking care of themselves?... But if you're one of those not in the current phenomenon, it's interesting to sit back—after a short walk, we hope—and watch what's going on... It's completely amazing to me that kids who hated to get up every morning of their lives in their school days, will now get up very early, go to the gym, and come home to shower and dress before going to work... And even on vacation, they find the location of their gym branch and continue their arduous schedule... And then, there's the many health clubs or whatever they call themselves that have proliferated—there's one for everyone—glamorous, utilitarian, expensive, cheap—whatever... And not even considering all the equipment in the gyms, how about all the equipment that people buy to have in their home spas?... There are such things as weights and pulls and bicycles, and steps—I asked why one couldn't do the step thing on the stairs of one's home and I was told in a rather supercilious tone that it wasn't the same and it was necessary to buy the steps... And how about the clothes—and the sneakers?... I imagine the sneaker people never had it so good... Maybe these gym shoes shouldn't be called sneakers when one considers what they cost!... And how about the leotards and tights and sweat suits and sweat bands and jogging bras and the mats to lie on for the exercises?... And then the conversation... Much talk about how much one can "bench press" and how many miles on the exercise and how many sit-ups and push-ups—and I can't even get into those conversations—I don't think I can do one of any of the above... If this sounds as if I'm criticizing—I'm not—I have an idea I may be jealous!... I used to be the champion head-stander in my school!

Yours, Lulabelle

Care During Storms

What do fishermen, boaters, swimmers, farmers, golfers and ball players have in common?

They all face a high risk of being struck by lightning because lightning is drawn to three things: water, metal and the tallest things standing in open fields.

There are 100,000 thunderstorms in the United States each year and lightning from those storms is one of the leading causes of weather related deaths. Stay safe by following a few simple rules during an electrical storm.

"If the sky darkens with storm clouds, get to a large building quickly. Do not stand next to a tree or near bicycles, golf clubs, tractors, fences or any other metal object. If you are caught in a field, the best thing to do is to crouch down. Your car may also offer protection against lightning. So stay in your car until the storm passes."

Avoid using the telephone as lightning can easily travel through phone wires.

Some severe storms can damage the appliances inside your home, so turn off televisions, computers or other appliances.

Stay away from faucets, sinks and bathubs during the electrical storm because plumbing is also a good conductor of electricity.

Cancer Workshop

"Look Good - Feel Better," a free program to help cancer patients look and feel their best during and after cancer treatment, will be held at Winthrop-University Hospital in Mineola on Monday, July 27, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Hoag I Conference Room.

Professional cosmetologists will teach special techniques to minimize the effects of radiation and chemotherapy, including application of makeup, use of turbans and scarves to best advantage, and appropriate choice and care of wigs. Complimentary cosmetics and skin care products will be provided by co-sponsors of the program - the Long Island Division of the American Cancer Society, National Cosmetology Association, and the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association - to enable participants to work with their makeup at home.

Coordinated by Barbara Kissin, Winthrop's Director of Social Work, the program also includes participation by Kathy Wallace, RN, and Annie Spinner, RN, nurses who specialize in the care of patients with cancer.

Seating is limited and reservations are required. For further information or to reserve a space, call 663-2341 before July 13.

Raccoon Safety

As summer approaches, the Nassau County Department of Health is issuing a warning to all residents to stay away from wild life and to inoculate their pets against rabies. The rabies epidemic continues to spread throughout New York State, and experts predict that due to Nassau County's large population of raccoons it will soon spread to our area.

"Some people may think raccoons are cute, but that misconception may cost them their life. Raccoons are just big rodents and, if infected with rabies, can be deadly. We must learn to avoid these animals and take every precaution to prevent them from coming in contact with humans or household pets," said Nassau County Health Commissioner George Pickett, M.D., M.P.H.

Outdoor recreationists should never feed, handle, or lure wild animals to where they may come in contact with people or pets. Campers and picnickers should place food and garbage in an area that is secured from animals.

Homeowners are advised to keep garbage in trash cans with tight fitting lids, cap chimneys with screens and seal openings in attics, basements and under porches.

Pet owners should keep pets confined or restrained at all times, since raccoons will readily fight with dogs. Pets should be fed inside and cats and dogs should be inoculated against rabies.

"The raccoon should be looked at as nothing more than a rat with more hair and a bushy tail. Parents must educate their children to stay away from these animals. We can't prevent rabies from infecting wildlife, but we can protect our own," Commissioner Pickett said.

Post Office Closings

All post offices in the Long Island Division (115, 117, 118 and 119 Zip Codes) will be closed on Saturday, July 4, in observance of Independence Day. On Friday, July 3, post offices will observe a Saturday schedule. All retail window operations will close at 1:00 p.m. except for the main post office at 185 West John Street in Hicksville, which will remain open until 5 p.m.

There will be normal home mail delivery on July 3. On July 4, there will be no delivery service except for Express Mail.

Award Winning Revived Math Team

This year, the Hicksville Senior High School was able to revive its math team after a break last year due to the austerity budget. And revive they did! Under the guidance of coach Fred Healy, the team completed a very successful season. The young team learned a great deal and developed its skills at the kind of intellectual competition that the teams encounter.

Hicksville, one of 48 schools to attend the Nassau County Interscholastic Mathematics League 1991-92 36th Annual Awards Summary, was pleased to announce that Mark Haddad received the prestigious Honorable Mention award and was selected to the Nassau County Mathematics Honor Roll. Award recipients included Michael Chang, Mark Haddad and Joe Rizzo (Gold Pin); Joaquin Ezcurra, Rahul Puri, Sonia Enriquez and Chetan Trikha (Silver Pin); and Ross Michaels, Elizabeth Fichtner, Connie Young, Brian Bluth, Dana D'Amelia, Judy Woo, Linda Thomas and Anie Uckardes.

Additionally, the Long Island Math Fair, held in mid-March at Hofstra University, was well attended by Hicksville students. Math students presented research reports on mathematical topics in a juried competition. Representing Hicksville was Dana D'Amelio, Neha Patel, Rahul Puri, Connie Young, Helen Woo, Judy Woo, Joaquin Ezcurra, Michael Chang and Jennifer Yost.

THE VIEW FROM MELVILLE HALL, the officers' club of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, and the site of the Great Neck Chamber of Commerce's food festival called "A Taste of Great Neck," June 30, 6:30 p.m. (Photo: B. Rosenzweig)

Serving A 'Taste Of Great Neck'

By William S. Dobkin

The Great Neck Chamber of Commerce is placing one of Great Neck's noteworthy assets before the public — its rich abundance of food services including gourmet restaurants and food shops.

The event, called "A Taste of Great Neck," will take place at the Officers' Club, United States Merchant Marine Academy on June 30, 6:30 p.m. and will feature a rich buffet of main dishes and desserts for a charge of $25 in advance and $30 at the door.

Great Neck is the home of more than 50 restaurants and two dozen gourmet food shops and bakeries. Great Neck's established restaurants and food shops enjoy a region-wide reputation. Many of them are participating in the event including Tabachnick's, Javarone Bros., Pasta E Pescce, Giovanni's, Piccolo Paese, Amore Piatto, Larry and the Red Head, North Shore Steak House, North Street Grill, Pancho's Border Grill, Tarabba, Golden Woks, Bruzell's, Los Porches, Chalet Bakery, Sweet Temptations, Ristorante Giulia, Muffin Lady, and Bruce's.

The participants will be showcasing their specialties in a building which was once the mansion of the Broadway and silent-screen star Thomas Meaghan. Now called Melville Hall, it houses the officers club, which has huge picture windows overlooking a panorama of the East River, the Whitestone and Throgs Neck Bridges and the Long Island Sound. Because the event was scheduled to conclude at sundown, the participants will enjoy a spectacular view and sunset.

While some of the offerings will be "classic American," the event will have an international flavor because many of the restaurants and food shops in Great Neck specialize in ethnic foods. The broad spectrum of offerings will come from Italy, China, Japan, Korea, Iran, Israel, Turkey, Greece, Mexico, and Spain.

Dave Neyman of Pancho's Border Grill will be there with a sampling of Tex-Mex and Mexican food. Diners will learn the distinction between the former which uses corn bread and the fajitas of the latter, which is filled with marinated chicken or steak, peppers and onions. Tortillas, filled by the diners themselves with refried beans, cheese, lettuce, tomato and pico de gallo (a spicy relish) will all be featured.

Golden Woks' owner, Steve Chang, is preparing a special selection for the event, which will include fried dumplings and fantail shrimp, cold noodles with sesame sauce and two cold appetizer platters in the shape of a butterfly which will demonstrate the restaurant's artistic presentations.

Ristorante Giulia will be represented with a wide selection of modern and traditional Italian and international delicacies including cold antipastos, pansotti pasta with vodka sauce, chicken roulade, monk fish provencal, roast veal with shiitake mushrooms, hazelnut cake and strawberry in chocolate.

The Muffin Lady's Cheryl Bain says her samplings will all be low-fat and low-calorie and include chips and dips and sugar-free muffins and loaf cakes.

Chamber President David Lurie explains the purpose of the event: "This is a very special way of raising funds for the Great Neck Chamber of commerce to support its efforts on behalf of the business community and all of Great Neck; and to present the special talents of our restaurants and food shops to residents in all parts of Long Island and the metropolitan region who might not otherwise realize the abundance and richness of the offerings in Great Neck that rival Manhattan's with the added advantage of offering the same dining and shopping in a tranquil suburban atmosphere."

Those considering participating in the event, either as a provider or diner and need more information, should call Richard Stancati at 466-8288.

Opening lead — queen of spades.

This deal, sent by a reader, is a variation on an old theme. South is in five hearts and West leads the queen of spades. How should declarer proceed after he covers the queen with the king and East discards the seven of diamonds?

It's a difficult problem to solve, but that's because it features a play you've probably never seen. At first glance, it seems you must lose two diamonds and a club, come what may, and so go down one. However, there's a simple solution to the problem, and it does not matter whether or not you see the East-West cards.

It is obvious from East's failure to trump the first trick that he has no spades or hearts. It follows that West must have started with nine spades and three hearts, and that his only other card is either a diamond or a club.

All this is very reassuring, since it means you can now guarantee the contract. All you have to do is to overtake the king of spades with the ace at trick one! You then draw three rounds of trumps, cash the A-K of clubs and ace of diamonds, and exit with a spade.

West is forced to win and return a spade. On this trick you discard a diamond from dummy and a club from your hand. When West continues with another spade, you discard dummy's last diamond as you ruff in your hand. As a result, you make the contract, since dummy is now out of diamonds and you are out of clubs. That's all there is to it!

Head Count, Brian Duffy, G.P.Putnam's Sons, 235 pp., $19.95.

Head Count is a first novel by Brian Duffy, the assistant managing editor of U.S. News & World Report and it is a dandy. Duffy's area at the magazine is the intelligence community and national security affairs and he uses his expertise in his novel to good effect.

Readers who enjoyed those Graham Greene novels that he called his "entertainments" will be delighted with Head Count. The novel takes place in Fado, a fictional country in southern Africa, formerly a Portuguese colony. Humberto Gub is the Portuguese-blooded chief of detectives of Fado, a country that is run by a vaguely communist government and constantly disrupted by the activities of bandits.

One morning a group of women, "coconut ladies," as they are called because they sell coconuts from a street stall, are horrified to find a human head, hair and eyebrows shaved off, lying in the Avenida Vladimir Lenin where they set up their stall. The woman name the head "Vladimir Lenin" for obvious reasons and call Detective Gub to remove it. He does so but soon human heads begin to appear all over town—on the fashionable hotel's diving board, in the elevator of the town hall and even in Gub's refrigerator.

This is obviously an attempt to cause chaos in the capital city and start the fall of the government, but who is behind it? The reader soon finds that there is a Romanian, formerly a secret agent in the employ of the Ceausescus, who has devised the plot to distribute the heads and that he, Nicholas Sturua, is acting on the orders of Viktor Alleja, a Portuguese who had fled Fado when the current government took over. Alleja would like to return and become the power behind the throne of a revolutionary government and he has hired Sturua to foment trouble.

Meanwhile we are introduced to Tom Mireiles, another former resident of Fado. Fifteen years earlier, Mireiles had been the closest friend of Detective Gub and the chief of detectives in Fado when he had been taken hostage by bandits and held nearly three weeks before Gub managed to rescue him. The episode made him decide to leave Fado and emigrate to the United States. Because of his language skills and police background, he eventually became an F.B.I. agent. Tom has married an American and is the father of ten-year old twins. With a house in Locust Valley and a job he loves he should be perfectly happy, but there is a vague malaise that troubles him.

When Gub calls him and tells him about the troubles in Fado he decides that he owes it to the old friend who had once saved his life to return and try to help him. Perhaps then he will find peace within himself.

Head Count, like Graham Greene's novels, is difficult to summarize because the plot sounds almost comically absurd but the book is anything but that. Duffy has the facility for making the most unlikely situations seem absolutely believable and he is a master of the art of suspense. Among his characters are provocateurs, political hacks, arms merchants, wheeler-dealers, medicine men, mad-dog bandits and even a golf-club wielding Franciscan priest. With them, the reader careens down the roads of Fado toward a dramatic climax.

Before he was an editor of U.S. News & World Report, Duffy was an investigative reporter for The Miami Herald, and was twice nominated for the Pulitzer Prize. We look forward to reading more of his fiction.

Flamboyant Gypsy Slinks Into Town

By Margaret Whately

The memoirs of the first burlesque Queen Gypsy Rose Lee is the basis for this delightful musical that opened last week at the Plaza Playhouse, 712 Old Bethpage Road, Old Bethpage.

The book by Arthur Laurents, music by Jule Styne and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim stars Stephanie Long, Kevin Kranznick and Lisa Morris. The musical, billed as a "musical fable" is directed by Kevin F. Harrington and Karen Yelaney. Yelaney, using the stage name Karen Moore, created the original Baby Louise opposite Ethel Merman, in 1959, and stayed with the run for 15 of the 24 months it ran on Broadway.

The play portion of the musical is based on Mama Rose and her obsession with show business, as she tries to push and show her young daughters, via vaudeville, to Broadway.

Set in the 1920s and '30s, times were tough, especially trying to get anyone to hire "Baby June," who opens up every audition with "Let Me Entertain You" with the "Newsboys," Baby Louise being one of the Newsboys. But, that did not stop Mama Rose, she forged ahead against all odds.

In her travels she meets Herbie, played by Kevin Kranznick, who is perfect as the long suffering love. Luckily he is a former talent agent, who is able to open at least a few doors for Mama Rose. They fall in love and he continually plagues her to marry him and she finds one excuse after another to put him off.

The musical starts out with Baby June and Baby Louise as little girls, played by Michelle Long and Jamie Sigler, respectively. They are both very good, Michelle Long playing the typical stage kid, with Mama, played by Stephanie Long, doing all the numbers and lines along with them. This usually results in Mama being thrown out of the theater, while the girls audition. Jamie Sigler is an appealing little girl and you really don't want to believe that she will blossom into Gypsy Rose Lee. However, who knows, Gypsy Rose Lee was probably just as adorable and as vulnerable when she first started out!

Then, practically, in front of your eyes they grow into teenagers. This is a very clever piece of staging, done with strobe lights and music, as the girls are substituted. It is done so well that you hardly realize what is happening.

When the switch takes place June is played by Suzanne Martin-Brenner and Louise by Lisa Morris. Both young women have beautiful voices and both are excellent actresses, as they try hard to deal with Mama, as evidenced by their duet "If Momma Was Married."

Mama continues on her ruthless pursuit to "make my babies" stars, always favoring June and pushing her out in the forefront, feeling that she has the most talent and is the prettiest, leaving Louise lost in the background.

However, Mama gets the better of June with all her bossing and pushing, as June tries very hard to have her own life and a love for Tulsa, who is played very well by Scott Maskell, one of the "farmboys" in the act now called "Dainty June and Her Farmboys." June wants to move on, so one morning they find a note to Mama, announcing that they have eloped and are going to pursue the legitimate theater.

Mama is set back, but only momentarily. She realizes that she still has Herbie and Louise, which prompts them to break into a rendition of "Together." The three of them Stephanie Long, Kevin Kranznick and Lisa Morris all have wonderful voices and the scene is light and lively.

Mama bounces back fast with a new act, "Louise and The Hollywood Blondes," as she belies out the most famous number from the show, and still a definite show stopper, "Everything's Coming Up Roses." Stephanie Long has a beautiful, strong, full voice and sings this marvelous number with the same verve as Ethel Merman.

Mama insists that all the girls in the act become blondes, including the most unlikely blonde of all, Louise. In any case, this makes for hilarious dialogue and a great number. The "Toreadorables" played by Jodie Ann Bianca, Theresa Hoffman, Brooke Shiffman, and Justine Tafuri, of course, the whole act is the "brainchild" of Mama Rose.

Herbie books them into a theater and when they arrive they find out that it is a burlesque theater, with few "other" acts sprinkled in.

The girls become friendly with the "burly" girls and the number with Mazeppa, Electra and Tessie Tura is outrageous! It is so funny. It revolves around teaching the younger girls the art of "bump and grind;" as they sing and bump their way through "You Gotta Get A Gimmick."

Suddenly, everything does "grind" to a roaring halt, as they come to the realization that vaudeville is dead. The Hollywood Blondes are given money and sent home by Herbie and Mama, because there is no money and no work.

Mama sees no other out but to marry Herbie and Louise is thrilled because it looks like they have a chance for a normal life.

However, one of the "regular" strippers is sick and unable to go on and the manager of the theater asks Louise to be a stand-in. Louise balks, but Mama pushes and Louise, always wanting to please Mama, takes the job. At which point the wedding plans and Herbie are out the door.

The rest is history. In a short time Gypsy Rose Lee, a name they made up on the spot before she goes on stage for first time, soars to the top, touring the world. Louis, makes a vain attempt to free herself of Mama, as Mama sings "Rose's Turn," but to no avail. In this brief, poignant moment, we see that "Rose" truly was the talent, but never took the time to develop it, she was too busy pushing her "babies."

Every aspect of the show is very professional and the theater, because of the way it is set up, lends itself to musicals. The orchestra is not in the usual "orchestra pit" instead it is cleverly stashed behind the audience, covered by a thin mesh curtain, that may be seen through for cues. This is perfect because there is no distraction. The group is excellent and, although not listed on the Playbill, it is the Show Orchestra of the Nassau Pops led by Director H. Celine Williams. Choreography is by Diane Lichtenberger with sets by Charlotte Leslie. Costumes are by Barbara Kirby, who brings a definite flair to the production. And, Glen Davis performs miracles with the lights.

This is truly an enjoyable, gay and fun night and is suitable for the whole family and most especially as a summertime treat.

Ticket prices are $16 for Fridays, $18 for Saturdays and $15 for Sunday matinee. There is a senior citizen discount of $1 on Sundays only. Tickets may be purchased over the phone with a Visa or Mastercard, or in person at the box office between noon and 6 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday. Gypsy will run from now through July 18. Museum Exhibits Unique Collection

When, in the span of only eight years, two baby-boomers amass a sharply focused art collection that commands museum attention, curators are apt to sit up and collectors tend to marvel.

So it is with Dr. Robert Nowinsky and his wife, Connie, whose collection "20th Century Master Watercolors, Drawings and Sculpture" is a current exhibition at the Nassau County Museum of Art, on view until Aug. 9.

A native of Brooklyn, Dr. Nowinsky, now 46 years old, translated his professional experience as a biochemist into the creation of three health care companies headquartered in Seattle, from where he and his wife fanned out eight years ago to find masterpieces ranging from the crayons of Degas and Van Gogh to pencil drawings by Klimt, to watercolor by Klee and sculpture by Rodin.

Founded as much on personal taste as intrinsic value, the Nowinsky collection reveals stylistic preference as well as the recognition that drawings and watercolors are frequently the most sensitive creations of an artist's hand and mind. Together, the Nowinskis share a love of Matisse, represented in this show by "Femme Torso," charcoal on paper dating to 1942. By the same token, Connie Nowinsky has her own favorite—Degas as represented by two charcoal drawings and a pastel.

Focused though it is, the Nowinsky collection does not rely on a centerpiece. Instead, the show evokes the phasing out of the Belle Epoque with Degas, the world-weary mood of Klimt and Schiele in the early 20th century, the color explosion of Matisse and Klee, and the new expressive forms of such varied talents as Picasso and Dali. And almost as an accent stand several sculptures by Rodin, including his "Man Falling from the Heavens," dating to 1882, along with sculptures by Archipenko, Csaky and Moore.

The Nowinsky collection is on display concurrently with "An Ode to Gardens and Flowers," the museum's other show. The entrance to the Nassau County Museum of Art is on the north side of Northern Boulevard (Route 25-A), two traffic lights west of Glen Cove Road. For further information, please call 516-484-9338.

VFW SCHOLARSHIP Committee Chairman Bill Bennett honors David Chung and his family as the VFW Scholarship winner from Hicksville High School.

VFW Scholarship Winners Announced

The Wm. M. Gause, Jr. VFW Post No. 3211 held their 1992 VFW Awards Night Ceremony on Friday, June 12, at the Post, and its VFW Scholarship Chairman, Bill Bennett, introduced and presented the scholarship awards to the winners.

David Chung, of Hicksville High School, was awarded the 1992 VFW Scholarship for Community Service, and was recognized for his contributions to the Youth Group, as its president; his volunteer work with the Hicksville Inn Soup Kitchen; and his involvement in many school activities as well as his academic achievements and artistic talents. David will be attending Boston University this fall. Mr. Bennett and Commander Vincent Ferrara presented David with a $500 check and wished him well in his pursuits in the field of computer graphics.

Timothy Glover was the winner of our Albinus A. Hanlon 1992 Scholarship. Tim was selected by a panel of three judges and will be graduating with honors from Hicksville High School on June 24. Tim received the outstanding Scholar-Athlete Award, as well as the US Marine Corps Distinguished Athlete Award in 1991. He is a member of the National Honor Society, as well as the Spanish Honor Society. His father, Timothy Glover, a member of our VFW Post, along with his lovely wife Eileen, proudly stood at their son's side as Mr. Bennett and Commander Ferrara presented the $1000 Albinus A. Hanlon Award to its 1992 recipient.

Mr. Bennett thanked and praised the three judges of the Albinus A. Hanlon Scholarship Committee. They were Seig Widder, Carol Wolf, and Joe Jablonsky.

VFW Commander Vincent Ferrara, along with Post Quartermaster William Froehnhofer expressed their appreciation and thanks on behalf of the officers and men of the Post, to the largest participation in the VFW Scholarship process ever by our young seniors. A total of eight candidates were judged on their scholastic record, character, personality ratings, and good citizenship. All the candidates measured up to the task. Our three panel judges are only allowed to select one winner, and two alternates. The alternates are James Fitzsimmons, from the Hicksville High School, and Terrance O'Neil, of the Earl L. Vandermeulen High School in Port Jefferson. Both outstanding seniors were honored along with last year's Albinus A. Hanlon winner Jessica Hand.

Rally To Raise Funds For Local Child

The generosity of Hicksville High School students has been very evident this year. The theater group regularly has special performances for senior citizens for each of their productions, the music groups have sponsored recitals, and who can forget the Senior Citizen Prom. A couple of weekends ago the students came together again for a good cause.

Hicksville High School students rallied to raise money for five-year-old Laura Krumenacker by holding a car wash which netted $1,000. Forty high school youngsters and two PTA members worked from 9:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. washing cars, and the PTA supplied the refreshments for the day. Mrs. Krumenacker recently met with Nancy DeSorbo, student advisor, and Richard Hogan, principal, to graciously accept the donation.

Laura is a Hicksville child who has cystinosis, an inherited metabolic disease that damages the kidneys at a young age. Cystinosis always leads to renal failure if untreated, and therefore the need for dialysis and/or a kidney transplant. Treatment is available to correct most of the metabolic abnormalities that occur by using a variety of medications. It is estimated that approximately 400 children in this country have this disease.

The district has been working with Mrs. Krumenacker to help offset the costs of Laura's treatment. Flyers from the Cystinosis Foundation featuring facts about the disease and Laura's picture have been distributed throughout Hicksville recently. Through this publicity, it was discovered that another Hicksville child, Janice Finn, is also a victim of cystinosis. Mrs. Krumenacker has been working hard to make the public aware of this disease that strikes these two youngsters.

The Cystinosis Foundation offers parental support, education, and research support to the public. The foundation is a member of the National Organization of Rare Disorders (NORD), which furthers the cause of those with rare diseases, and the Alliance of Genetic Support Groups.

For additional information, fund-raising inquiries, and charitable donations, please write to the Cystinosis Foundation, 17 Lake Avenue, Piedmont, CA 94911 or call 415-601-6940.

Boys Major Division

Pirates vs. Mets. The Pirates, managed by Joe Koloski, pulled it together for a win over the Mets. The fourth inning was crucial for the Pirates, they captured the lead and held on. A triple by Adam Smith got the momentum going. Following were singles by Danny Koloski, Russel John-Baptiste and Jason Basso as well as a perfect bunt by Josh Stugatz. In the fifth inning more action increased the Pirates lead. Mike Ciocia's sacrifice fly drove in Ciocia and then Andrew Coppola slammed a double which hit the fence. One more foot and it would have been a home run. Adam Smith, who pitched all six innings for the Pirates, got another hit to drive in Andrew. Final score 6-3, good job Pirates!

Pirates vs. Mets. Last Thursday saw a close game for the Mets and Pirates again. A triple smacked by Andrew Coppola in the fifth inning got things going for the Pirates, who had been behind 2-0. Adam Smith walked to first then stole second. Daniel Koloski's at bat was successful, driving in Andrew. Next, Russel John-Baptiste drove in Adam tying the game at 2-2. A run scored by the Mets in the bottom of the sixth ended the game. Nice effort from all the players on both teams.

Pirates vs. Bluejays. Joe Milt's Pirates played the hard hitting slick fielding Bluejays on Saturday, May 30. The game started out as a defensive struggle with outstanding plays made by Ciaran O'Sullivan, Joseph Ahern, and Michael Walsh to help and keep the Pirates in the game.

The Pirates bats finally came alive when Jeffrey Leyser beat out an infield hit to start the Pirates rally (way to leg it out!). Joseph Yacobellis went 3-3 along with Michael Kalos, Peter Shykin, Anthony Weber, and Joseph Armenio. The big hit came from Ciarna O'Sullivan, a bases loaded double to clear the bases. Outstanding plays in the field were made by Jesse Spindler, Eugene Pietrzak, and Steve Verbell. To all the Pirates and Bluejays, outstanding game guys, way to go. Last but not least, Frank Milito sat this one out with the chicken pox, hurry back Frank.

Yankees vs. Pirates. The Yankees, sponsored by the Hicksville Fire Department almost had to call up their sponsor to put the fire out in their bats. Matt Hasbrouck was awarded game ball for his first three hit-game and his outstanding play at second base. Brandon Serrallat had three hits and also made some fine plays as the pitcher.
