Neighbor Alerts Family Of House Fire

By John Garger and Cathy Greenfield

A Hicksville family barely escaped harm after a neighbor banged on their door at 1 a.m. alerting them that their house was on fire.

The Bretton family, residents of Spray Ln., was asleep in their house when their neighbor, Charles Strugatz heard the crackling sound of the fire and rushed next door to alert the Brettons.

"I was dozing, watching television and woke up and heard a crackling sound. I went outside in the yard and checked and saw my neighbor's shed on fire. The fire was through the roof. I ran over and banged on the door to wake them up." Sleeping in the house were Gary and Darlene Bretton; their two boys, Gary and Christopher; and their son's friend Adam Smith.

Smith, 11, said, "We were watching TV in the den and fell asleep on the floor. I didn't hear any noise, but heard Chuck banging on the door and yelling for everybody to get up, that there was a fire. I ran out quickly. Chris and Gary were right behind me running. We left by the front door." Smith then ran home to tell his father that he was alright.

While neighbors tried to put the fire out with a garden hose, another called the fire department. Hicksville firefighters arrived minutes later. Fire officials said the flames were 50 feet high. Nine units and 75 firefighters reported to the scene under the direction of Chief Scanlon. Fire officials said that the cause of the fire seems to be a candle that was left burning. tinguishing the blaze were hampered by access doors that were permanently fastened and when opened blocked access to other doors.

Greg Hudson, a volunteer fireman who lives nearby, also heard the popping sounds of the fire. He ran over to the house while his wife called the fire department. He helped Gary Bretton retrieve some valuables from the house before the fire department arrived.

A couple of days after the fire the Bretton family was deluged with help by neighbors and friends. "Someone just dropped off two bikes for the boys. I don't even know who it was," said Darlene Bretton. The family is staying with the Smiths, and other "people have brought money, clothes for the kids, let us use their phones, taken us out to dinner, brought over coolers of iced tea and cookies to have while we're cleaning out the house." Everybody has pitched in to help.

The Bethpage Chamber of Commerce, of which Gary Bretton is president, gave them a check to meet immediate expenses. Another family offered the Brettons the use of their house while they are on vacation. Some have even offered to help sift through the debris and help clean the house. "It is unbelievable, everybody has been great," said Darlene Bretton.

In other news fire department officials have reported a two vehicle collision between a pickup truck and a compact car at Beech Ln. and Levittown Pky.

Two engines and two ambulances responded to the scene at 5:15 p.m. The accident resulted in minor injuries to a mother and child in the car and the driver of the pickup. Another small child in a child restraint seat escaped uninjured. The victims were transported to area hospitals by fire department and police department ambulances.

Hicksville firefighters were also called to help the Syosset Fire Department with a blaze in Oyster Bay Cove. One engine, the air cascade unit, and the haz-mat team responded to an 11:44 a.m. alarm on Aug. 25.

The fire completely destroyed the mansion located on Rt. 25A. Six fire departments responded to the blaze. Eight firefighters received minor injuries.

Administrative Reorganization Complete

By John W. Garger

As part of the Hicksville School District's administrative reorganization, Superintendent Salvatore Mugavero recommended certain changes in the central office administration that were approved by the board at the Aug. 19 school board meeting.

While the reorganization saves the district money, the changes were made to better serve the educational needs of the students, according to Mugavero. The administration "revised administrative organization that best serves the needs of the students and yet takes into consideration the fact that we are in declining enrollment and trying to curtail expenses for our taxpayers."

The reorganization has created five new titles and eliminates six. Under the plan the position of assistant superintendent for business management stays the same; the position of director of instruction is replaced by the assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction; and the director of personnel becomes the assistant superintendent for personnel.

Under the area of pupil personnel and special education, the position of director of special education and pupil personnel services becomes the director of special education; the assistant director of special education and pupil personnel services title changes to assistant director of special education; and the chairperson for special education-secondary schools and the chairperson of guidance positions are combined to become the director of pupil personnel services.

Following the reorganization several personnel changes were announced. Robert Durso will assume the position of assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction. His job goal will be to administer the educational services department effectively in developing, achieving and maintaining the best possible educational programs and services.

Dr. Daniel Kremin receives a promotion from director of special education and pupil personnel services to assistant superintendent for personnel. He will be responsible for all personnel services in the district. He will work cooperatively with other administrators in recruiting, placement, and evaluation of all certified and civil service employees. He will also maintain employees' records and assist them with their professional/vocational plans.

Rosemary Planz, presently the assistant director of special education and pupil personnel services, becomes the director of special education. She will have the district-wide responsibility for the development, implementation, evaluation, administration, and supervision of special education services. Rita Schwartz was hired as assistant director of special education. She will assist the director of special education in administering and supervising district pupil personnel services. Schwartz was formerly with the Sachem School District, serving as the chairperson of special education. Carol Dahir was hired as the director of pupil personnel services. Dahir's former position was chairperson of pupil personnel services for the Sewanhaka School District. She has the district-wide responsibility for the development, implementation, evaluation, administration, and supervision of guidance, and other pupil personnel services.

Former director of personnel William Gagnon, and Guidance Chairperson Barbara Horsley resigned to assume positions with other districts.

The new administrative structure is designed to serve the needs of the district on a more specific basis in specialized areas. For example, the assistant director of special education will work out of the high school

HFD Gearing Up For Tournament

Drill Team Unveils New Class B Truck

By John W. Garger

This coming weekend the Hicksville Fire Department will host its 64th annual Labor Day parade and drill. While thousands of people will line the streets of Hicksville Sunday evening to view the parade, just as many will turn out on Monday to watch fire department drill teams from throughout the state compete in the tournament.

The HFD 15 member drill team competes in over 15 tournaments year round, traveling all over the Island and even upstate. They have placed consistently in the top 10 drill teams out of about 60 on the Island.

During the tournaments the competing teams each run through the same eight drills: three-man ladder, motor ladder class b, motor ladder class c, motor hose class c, motor hose class b, efficiency, motor pump, and the bucket brigade.

The class b events pertain to a regular factory-built truck with combination fire apparatus. The Hick's truck, a new one, resembles a pickup truck with special features to accommodate a ladder, persons standing on the sides and rear, and a pump on the side that is driven by the engine. The class c trucks are usually custom built and resemble race cars with the same special accommodations as the class b truck.

The team members take the tournaments as seriously as they do fighting fires. For many, being a part of the drill team runs in the family. Most join the drill team soon after joining the department. Rich Proffé, a member of Company number four, joined the department in 1981, the next year he became part of the drill team. Pat McGough became a volunteer in 1983 and a member of the drill team in 1986. Charles Schrieber began his firefighting career in 1962 as a junior firefighter in Elmont. He was part of the Elmont drill team and when he moved to Hicksville he brought his firefighting skills and his drill team expertise. The drill team have not only fostered friendships between Hicksville team members, it also forms interdepartment friendships. "A camaraderie forms between team members and between departments," said McGough. Proffé explained that many times after a tournament is over the departments will tailgate together.

The tournaments are run professionally, which must account for the fact that no serious accidents have occurred in recent memory. The New York State Fireman's Parade and Drill Team Captains Association governs the tournaments and publishes the official drill rules and regulations. The Hicksville team practices three days a week to prepare for the eight different events, running through each event three times. The team members are evaluated and given a specific job for one or more of the events. Up until this year a lot of their practicing had to be done in other towns because Hicksville did not have its own competition arch. But the new permanent arch that has been built on Barclay St. should aid the team in being able to practice when they want and on their own turf.

Town Renews Push For Recycling

Town Wants To Build A Materials Recovery Facility For Recycling

By Dagmar Fors Karppi

The Town of Oyster Bay continues to fine tune its recycling efforts. The latest measure is to add a Materials Recovery Facility (MRF) to separate and process recyclables.

Anthony J. Maurino, deputy commissioner of Dept. of Public Works for the Environmental Control Division, said doing so will result in a better market relationship.

"By dealing direct to manufacturers and not to vendors and middlemen, the town can deal with market gluts and find a more secure market." The town also will have the potential of making more money from its recyclable materials, he said.

Presently town residents are being told they no longer need to put their plastics in a separate bag on top of their recycled glass and metals. The vendor is doing all the separating.

Tony Maurino said for example, if the town separates the white plastic milk containers, from the recyclables, the town will get more money for the material.

Polyethylene Terephthalate (PET) sells for about $100 to $150 a ton, he said. When it is sold mixed in with other plastics, the price is not as high.

If the town does its own separating it can take the aluminum out of the waste stream, he said. The United States produces no aluminum. There is no bauxite, out of which aluminum is made, in the country; it is all imported.

In this case, recycling has a national significance, he said. "Premium companies will pay for those cans."

The hope is that they can sell direct to Alcoa or their suppliers. It will create a more secure market, he said.

The same will be true for the green, amber and blue glass bottles. Selling them direct to companies will keep the profit at home.

"Even if it's a wash, that's okay," he said. "Even if there is a small cost it is better than sending material out of state to landfills."

The Town Board is currently looking for the funds to build the MRF.

Under the provisions of the 1972 Environmental Quality Bond Act (EQBA) the town applied for, and received, $5 million for use in the construction of a resource recovery facility, said Town Councilman Tom Hogan. With such a facility no longer under consideration, the Town Board would like to have the money to help defray the cost of an MRF.

Mr. Hogan said, in conversations with DEC officials, the town has been advised that appropriations were made under two

Special Bar Mitzvah For Triplet Brothers

Congregation Shaarei Zedek will be holding a special Bar Mitzvah on Sept. 5. On that date three brothers, triplets, will be receiving their initiation into adulthood.

The brothers, Adam, Daniel, and Mathew Poswolsky will be the first triplets to be Bar Mitzvahed at Congregation Shaarei Zedek. Common to each brother is a desire to be treated equally at home, in school, and at the synagogue. Therefore the traditional services and honors reserved for a Bar Mitzvah have to accommodate this spirit of equality.

Rabbi Melvin Sachs explained that since Congregation Shaarei Zedek is strictly orthodox in its services and observances of the Jewish law, the prophetic reading, which is the minimal honor for a Sabbath Bar Mitzvah cannot be divided up. In some orthodox synagogues, when there are twins or triplets, the congregation divides itself into different rooms, each with its own prayer quorum, and has one Bar Mitzvah boy do the Haftorah and the other one or two read sections from the Torah portion.

For the Poswolsky's Bar Mitzvah, one boy will recite the Haftorah, one will read the repeat Maftir Torah reading that is assigned in honor of the Haftorah, and one will say the appropriate blessings, each one doing his part while listening intently to his brother doing the other part.

Following the formal service a lunch will be served for the guests and synagogue members. Following the meal the brothers will sing a special prayer.

The brothers' whole family is excited about this momentous occasion, especially their sister Kimberly, who is 10 years old.

Willet A Good Fit For N. Shore Program

North Shore University Hospital Preschool and Infant Development program, which is housed in the building that was Willet Ave. School, received a visit from Assemblyman Thomas P. DiNapoli, D-Thomaston of the 16th assembly district.

"This unique program, serving children and their families, had its beginning in Roslyn at the Presbyterian Church...but watching the children and their teachers, I think this Hicksville school is a great fit," Assemblyman DiNapoli commented. The program serves children from birth to five years of age living in Nassau County and identified as developmentally delayed or at risk for delay.

"The state is fortunate that we have a program that can help children at an age when it can have an impact. In the long run, the program becomes an advantage to the state fiscally and the benefit to the children cannot be measured."

HEALTH & FITNESS

Hospice Care Of LI Training Volunteers

Wonderful advances in the health field enable many of us to look forward to longer, more productive lives. Unfortunately, some of our loved ones may not be so blessed. While medical technology increases its ability to prolong life, hospice care fills the need when methods of curative treatment have been exhausted.

For those whose lot is to be a patient or caregiver in a situation involving terminal illness, hospice is a comparatively new concept which can help lessen the burden.

Hospice Care of Long Island, a New York state agency, certified in September 1988 is the first such program in Nassau County serving the terminally ill. In the four years since its inception, more than 1200 patients have been cared for, enabling families to keep their loved ones at home.

The goal of HCLI is to provide comprehensive professional support, enabling the terminally ill to remain home surrounded by their loved ones. The professional staff consisting of a medical director, nurses, social workers, home health aides, pastoral and bereavement counselors, dietician, augmented by volunteers, give emotional support and palliative care during the final period of life. Emphasis is placed on pain control, spiritual and emotional comfort for the patient and support for the family. For most, death and dying is not a subject that is easy to confront. The knowledge that there is a supportive agency staffed by caring professionals and volunteers is reassuring in time of extraordinary need.

Volunteers are an essential component of the HCLI team. Caring and concerned men and women, 18 years of age and older, are trained in the skills required for their participation in the program. Anyone interested in joining this training session should contact Volunteer Coordinator Joyce S. Friedman. The sessions are held in HCLI offices at 900 Ellison Avenue, Westbury, 6:15 to 9:30 Thursday, Sept. 24 through Nov. 5.

Specific questions about hospice care can be answered by the admissions coordinator.

Call 832-7100 for more information, Monday through Friday.

UCP Center Expanding Outpatient Services

With the opening of the Max and Clara Fortunoff Outpatient Rehabilitation Center by the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Nassau County, a more diverse range of services, specialists and hours will be offered to county residents beginning Sept. 8.

Tuesday and Thursday evenings to 8:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. have been added to the regular outpatient service hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

The new facility has modern, up-to-date equipment and technology not readily available elsewhere in the region. The audiology suite contains soundproof booths and can test hearing for individuals from birth. Services include hearing screenings, evaluations, hearing aid evaluations and follow up.

The augmentative communication laboratory provides an extensive variety of sophisticated electronic and computerized devices, funded in part by grants from the Herman Goldman Foundation, for children and adults unable to use speech as their primary means of communication. These services can benefit individuals with neurological or motor problems caused by physical disability, disease or surgery.

Other evening and Saturday services provided include physical therapy, speech therapy, occupational therapy, psychological social work and head injury services. The rehabilitation department is offering computer evaluation and training Tuesday evenings and adaptive seating on Saturdays. The dental and podiatry clinics and the Nassau Applied Technology Resource Center are open weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The high quality of services of the outpatient rehabilitation program continues to attract visitors and clients from around the world. The center conducts one of the most progressive head injury treatment programs in the area using computers and intensive training.

UCP Nassau is a non-profit health agency with an international reputation for excellence. Founded in 1948, the agency serves 1,200 children and adults with a wide range of mild to severe disabilities.

Helping Hurricane Victims

A few years ago, Long Island was battered by a storm named Gloria. While the destruction was real, it pales in comparison to what a storm named Andrew has done to the coast of Florida.

Miami and its surrounding communities, now almost two weeks after the hurricane touched down, are still trying to find some semblance of order. Residents are not sure if their homes can be rebuilt, they are being told it could be weeks until their electricity is turned on and now there are fears of outbreaks of disease due to the lack of water.

To aid in the rebuilding effort, the federal government has sent the military, hurricane veterans from Charleston have set up command posts in Dade County and nearly every relief organization is trying its best to get vital materials to the Floridians.

The Red Cross, itself a victim of a lingering recession and a series of devastating natural disasters throughout the country and the world, is in dire need of support if it is to answer yet another call. The Salvation Army has established collection points for clothing, water and food. Private industry is also lending a hand, offering its resources in whatever way it can.

Yet, as we learned here on Long Island after Gloria, there are those who see this tragedy as a chance to get rich. One report said that $200 chainsaws are being sold for $900 off the back of a truck in Miami.

As Long Islanders, one of the best ways to help the hurricane victims is to work with the Red Cross and Salvation Army. Monetary donations, at this point, will probably serve the greatest good as the organizations can direct those resources to the areas of greatest need.

If you are interested in making a donation, or getting more information, contact the Nassau County Chapter of the American Red Cross at 747-3500 or the Salvation Army at 747-4902.

A Letter from LuluBelle...

...It all started because I was thinking about waxed paper—do you remember waxed paper?—Does it still exist?...Years ago all of our sandwiches for school or picnic—and all of the leftovers were carefully wrapped in waxed paper—it came in a blue and white box and had a metal tearing edge just as boxes do now...We carefully wrapped things and made what was called a "drug store fold" where the two ends joined because these waxed papers did not adhere to each other...this was long before foil and its wonderful qualities of fastening tightly around things—in fact, the only thing approaching foil was the wrapping on Hershey bars and many of us saved it and made huge balls...and can you believe—no paper towels!...We drained the bacon on a brown paper bag and we used the dish towel for our hands...Spills were wiped up with a "dish cloth" (I have friends who still prefer them) not a plastic sponge...and there were no plastic garbage bags—we all used the brown paper bags from the grocery for our garbage, and, of course, they always leaked and tore—and it was a fiendish mess...I once went to hear an older Girl Scout leader speak, and, in the course of her talk, she said, "Can you imagine that I was a Girl Scout and we did handicrafts from objects from around the house, and that was before foil, those cute baskets that little round tomatoes come in, and plastic Clorox bottles"...You can understand that it was the dark ages!

Yours, LuluBelle

Sincere Concerns

This letter is to express my sincere concern regarding my understanding of the intentions of the school board to close the Dutch Lane Elementary School, in order to use it for a county/state funded pre-K program. It was recently brought to the board's attention that it may be illegal to realize a profit from such a program. Further, my community is very concerned that a likely future reduction in funding (given the state of the economy) will ultimately result in the closing of the program and a sale of the property.

It is well known in Hicksville that the Dutch Lane property is highly utilized by our children and teenagers for recreational purposes (Little Leagues, etc). It is therefore very valuable property to all residents of Hicksville. Further, the educational needs of all of the Hicksville children, as well as the community concerns of the residential area surrounding each of the schools, should be the primary criteria utilized in making a decision whether to close any school.

My family and I have resided in Hicksville for 9½ years and I have been attending many of the school board meetings during the past several years. I currently have two children attending Dutch Lane (K and second) and my third child will attend in four years. It appears to me that an unsatisfactory process has taken place during the past two years with respect to the topic of school closings. My concern is that the process seems to have fluctuated in the criteria adopted to reach a decision as to whether my schools should be closed or which schools will be selected for closing. I understand that over $65,000 has been expended for various consulting reports for recommendations on school closings, where the recommendation to close the largest school (to minimize the impact of redistricting) was not considered viable by the board (even though the study was done within the defined criteria).

What is the current version of the criteria? Does it change, depending on personal points of view or on how loud a particular community group within Hicksville can be at the board meetings?

I'm interested in the board taking the time to take a step back and really look close at the impact of closing any school on the entire Hicksville community. What is the educational impact on the children and on the future of the community vs. the minimal tax savings per household by closing a school?

Please look at what has happened to the East Meadow School District as a result of selling the property off Newbridge Rd. to a developer. Within a short period of time after doing this, they have found themselves desperate for elementary school classrooms and have even reached out to neighboring districts (including Hicksville) for space. Do we want to put ourselves in the same position to save just $100-$150, per year in taxes per household? I think if you polled the community, you would find that a great majority of families would be willing to accept such an increase in order to do away with the entire school closing issue and bring Hicksville back together as a community, rather than a community of emerging protesting groups who have become warriors in the battle to keep their neighborhood school from closing.

I'm positive that the entire community is fed up with it! I know I am.

Robert Hoppe

Criteria-Charade

At the board meeting of August 19, it became apparent that once again all talk of criteria, in regard to school closings is nothing more than a charade. Three of our elementary schools are not even under consideration for consolidation. We were not given reasons for this other than certain board members will not consider closing these buildings. Unfortunately different criteria was applied to different buildings as individual board members saw fit, rather than compiling one list and applying it to all buildings. This would be the only truly objective means on which to base such a serious decision.

I am appalled by certain member statements that even if East St. were to remain open they would not send other children to this building. Their reasons include: it does not fit the profile of our buildings, it is not conducive to learning, and it could be a safety hazard. They have obviously forgotten that they were elected to serve all of Hicksville, which includes East St. children. What is good for some of our children should be good for all and what is detrimental to some would surely be detrimental to all. Mr. Black stated that we at East St. balance the inequities of the building because we live close and therefore it is only a convenience to send our children there. Of course a neighborhood school is desirable, but doesn't that hold true for all of Hicksville? If this was not such an important issue, closing a school would be easy. It is however, extremely insulting to me as a parent, and I am sure to many others, to be told that I would sacrifice the wellbeing of my children for convenience. If in fact this building is as bad as these board members would have us believe, then the entire town should demand that not one child be able to attend even one day. We cannot allow this board to protect the rest of Hicksville's children while endangering the welfare of East St. children every single day.

I would also like to suggest that all parents of East St. children phone each and every member of our elected school board and let them know how we feel about redistricting. Woodland School is the only school that could be considered "in our neighborhood" and therefore is the only fair building to send our children to with the least amount of safety hazards.

We were told at the board meeting that the (continued on page 18)

Parents Can Help Youth Do Well In School

The difference between students who do well in school and those who do poorly is often determined by what parents do at home. Many educators agree that parents who take time to help may influence school success as much or more than intellectual capabilities, and students who arrive at school from a supportive home environment will ultimately fare better.

Most students welcome more parental involvement in their academic lives, according to a recent national survey of students' opinions, Voices From The Classroom, which was sponsored by Sylvan Learning Centers and the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Parents can use the following suggestions to help their youth do better in school by promoting greater physical, mental, and emotional well-being and homework efforts:

Getting Physical

Healthy students have a better chance of reaching performance peaks.

- Make sure they get enough sleep. Students generally need eight to 10 hours each night.

- Encourage exercise. What sports do they enjoy? Research shows exercise increased productivity and helps concentration levels.

- You can't always monitor diets, but you can eliminate snacks in your home that are high in fat, sodium and sugar and low in nutrition. Provide fruits, vegetables, and complex carbohydrates. A peanut butter and jelly sandwich on whole wheat bread and a glass of orange juice far surpasses the nutrition level of soda and chips.

Mental and Emotional Rescues

All school-aged youth need mental and emotional support, and middle level and high school students especially are prone to mood swings and dips in self-esteem.

- Recognize achievements and offer praise and encouragement at each opportunity.

- Focus on positive behavior. Let them know you appreciate what they have done. Their response is usually to do more of the same in the future.

- Show respect. All parents want respect from their youth, and vice-versa.

- Demonstrate confidence in their abilities.

- Plan and keep plans for quality family time.

Buckley Country Day School

Driving south on Shelter Rock Road in Roslyn one could almost miss the right turn onto the I.U. Willets Road and tree lined entrance to the former Lanning estate which in 1956 became Buckley Country Day School.

Celebrating its 70th anniversary, Buckley was originally founded in 1923 in Great Neck as the Great Neck Preparatory School. It was renamed in 1938 for B. Lord Buckley, founder of the Buckley School in Manhattan and one of the school's original trustees. Today, Buckley Country Day School has 300 children enrolled in nursery through eighth grade and boasts a reputation as one of the country's outstanding elementary schools.

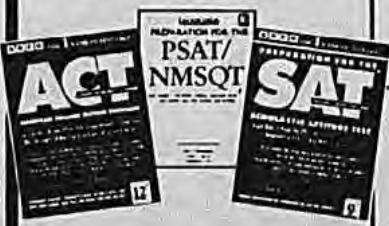

Buckley's success is due in large part to its commitment to a traditional approach to education which emphasizes scholastic achievement. Core subjects such as reading, writing and mathematics are supported and expanded with course work in social studies, sciences, computer and foreign languages. An essential part of the school's integrated program requires that all students participate in music, art and physical education courses designed to develop well-rounded individuals.

Contemporary learning set on this beautifully landscaped, 19 acre backdrop creates a combination that will surely flourish for a very long time.

When A Bright Child Has Trouble Learning

Just Seeing 20/20 Is Not Good Enough

Even children with "perfect eyesight" suffer from vision disorders that thwart their efforts to learn and doom them to failure in school. The eye chart test commonly used in schools checks only how clearly a child can see at distance. Many children with above average intelligence have 20/20 distance eyesight but lack the necessary visual skills to keep up with the demands of the classroom.

Vision Therapy is an optometric service that helps individuals develop the skills necessary to achieve more efficiency at school and play.

Our visual examination tests more than being able to read 20/20.

VFW Post 3211 Gears Up For Labor Day

By P.P.C. Carmine A. Somma

Labor Day weekend will prove to be busy for the members of VFW Post 3211. On Sunday, Sept. 6, members of the color guard and the comrades will be participants in the annual Fire Departments Labor Day Parade. This is the 64th year that the Hicksville Fire Department has hosted a Labor Day parade. Following the parade there will be a block party on Barclay St. A drill will take place on Monday, Sept. 7 starting at 10 a.m.

On Sept. 7, members of the post will put flags along Broadway and on some side streets.

This is the time of year that all committee chairmen get into high gear along with their committees. Senior vice commander, Al Vitiello, has a committee that remains busy all year round. His committee is "membership;" and his job is to collect dues and to bring in new members. If you are a veteran who has served in the armed forces during WWII, Korea, Vietnam, Desert Shield, or Desert Storm, or any current conflict, you are eligible to join the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Women are eligible to join also. For more information call Al Vitiello at 935-3560 or call the VFW Hall at 931-7843. We have meetings every second and fourth Monday of each month at 320 South Broadway in Hicksville. You must show your DD-214 to join.

Al is also the Ways and Means chairman. He is running an Oktober Festival on Oct. 3. Tickets are $22 per person. A fresh ham dinner or stuffed fillet will be served, there will be an open bar, and a DJ. Junior vice commander, Larry Colapietro, is also busy with the "Voice of Democracy."

scholarship program for the schools in the Hicksville School District. He will also be busy with the souvenir journal.

Medals awards chairman, Ed Kleniewski, reports on the Kuwait Liberation Medal by the government of Saudi Arabia. It is a designer's masterpiece and of some monetary value. All Desert Shield and Desert Storm veterans are encouraged to apply for this award. Any war veterans who received a personal military award such as the purple heart, medal bronze star, or combat infantryman's badge is entitled for the New York State conspicuous service cross. For more information call Ed at 433-3611 or the VFW Hall at 931-7843.

The VFW is looking forward to the Columbus Day parade being hosted by the Joseph Barry Council Knights of Columbus on Oct. 12.

The post chaplain, Frank T. Rienzie, reports that the following comrades and sisters and families have been hospitalized during the past month: George O'Neil, foot surgery; Danny Palmeter's wife Florence, fractured ankle.

Finally, congratulations to Nancy and Don Giacopelli, who are celebrating their 48th wedding anniversary; and to Jean and Ernie Simuro on their 45th wedding anniversary. Birthday greetings are sent out to Connie Steers, Carmine A. Somma, May and Max Bergsohn. The post welcomes the following new comrades: Richard Blauvelt, Coast Guard and US Navy; Edward McHugh, US Army (Saudi Arabia and Desert Storm); and Pete Mangogna, US Air Forces (Europe and Asia).

OBITUARIES

Eugene Staller

Eugene Staller, former proprietor of the Starlight Shop for 46 years, died on August 12, 1992.

He is survived by his wife Roslyn; his children Dan and Nancy Carazo, and Linda and John Healy; grandchildren Aaron and Darian, and his brother Ira.

Longtime Hickville residents will remember the Staller's Starlight Shop on Broadway. Opened in 1946, it featured a pleasing variety of women's clothes. Gene, as his friends called him, was a very adept tailor. It was not uncommon for Roz Staller to remember Hickville wives' sizes to make the husbands shopping easier around the holidays. Gene was also active in the Chamber of Commerce.

Louis H. Mussler

Louis H. Mussler, a retired colonel with the US Army, died at his home in Indianantic, FL at age 83.

He is survived by his wife Edith, his daughter Lois Robinson, his brother Edward, five grandchildren, and seven great grandchildren. He died of natural causes after an extended illness.

Born and raised in Hicksville, he attended Hicksville schools before serving in France, Germany, and Italy in WWII. Retired from NY Bell telephone, he was a life member of the Pioneers of America. He was also a member of the Masons, the Isaac Walton League, and the Audubon Society.

Mussler was active in Brevard County politics. He was the second mayor of Indianan and a US Marshal. He was also a chairman of the Republican Party of Brevard County. He owned the Sea Island Print Shop in Eau Gallie. He enjoyed painting the county's landscapes and writing about them in newspapers and magazines.

POLICE REPORT

The Eighth Squad reports the details of a robbery that occurred in Hicksville on July 30 at 9:20 p.m.

Two black males entered a pharmacy on South Broadway and approached the night manager with a handgun. They demanded the keys to the safe. After removing cash from the safe, the males fled on foot. No injuries were reported.

The Forgery Squad reports the details of two arrests that occurred in Hicksville on July 28 at 3:30 p.m.

Nassau County police responded to the parking lot of the Dept. of Motor Vehicles on South Broadway. Once at the scene they found a male and a female in possession of an auto that was reported stolen in New York City. The female was also found to be in possession of forged DMV documents.

A DMV inspector assisted the police in the investigation.

The female was arrested and charged with 19 counts of possession of a forged instrument, possession of stolen property (fourth degree and fifth degree).

Reorganization

she will better be able to follow the progress of secondary student special education needs; and the director of pupil personnel services will spend 20 percent of her time at the central administrative office and the rest at the schools. Mugavero summed up the reorganization effort saying, "The total administrative team and total administrative staff is on full, is in function, and we saved you money in doing it, and look for effective performance on the part of the people."

In other personnel action it was announced that the district has hired Herbert Leshay as the director of foreign languages. He previously was the district coordinator of foreign languages for the William Floyd School District in Suffolk.

Drill Team

The Hicksville drill team's most recent honor was setting a New York State record in 1989 for efficiency. The efficiency drill involves eight men with three lines of hose. They start fifty feet before a fire hydrant. While running they connect the individual hoses, connect the end to the hydrant and the front to a nozzle, and aim for a target 150 feet away. This year they hope to set a few more records and win a trophy to parade on their new truck.

Proffie points out that besides their own dedication to the department and to the drill team, the member's families show a lot of support. "Three nights a week from 6 to 9:30, after work, and trips upstairs becomes a lot," said Proffie. Schrieber mentioned the support that the department's chiefs and captains give to the team.

Long Island Heart Council Happenings

Love great food? Looking for new restaurants? The Long Island Heart Council has a wonderful evening planned for you. On Monday, Sept. 21, many of Long Island's best restaurants will be participating in a "Gourmet's Delight" at the Huntington Town House.

Guests will sample appetizers, entrees, desserts and Long Island wines supplied by top restaurants and wineries. All this plus dancing to the music of the Capri Orchestra for only $25 per person. As a special bonus, anyone selling ten (10) tickets will receive two tickets free.

For information or to order tickets, call the Long Island Heart Council at (516) 932-9360.

This is an opportunity for students to meet heart researchers from Long Island laboratories and learn about their work. The program will assist students in understanding principles of the scientific method.

Students interested in submitting a project to the Long Island Science Congress dealing with some aspect of the heart and circulatory system will have ample opportunity to discuss their own projects with the investigators.

If you're interested in attending this most informative day call the Long Island Heart Council at (516) 932-9360.

Recycling

separate sections. The majority were funded under 'Title 9' and were considered solid waste recovery and management projects. The remainder, including Oyster Bay's, were funded under 'Title 5' and were considered to be air quality improvement projects.

While the state has allowed 'Title 9' recipients to shift their appropriations to 'Title 5', no requests for changes from 'Title 5' to 'Title 9' have been received, but the state has indicated a willingness to consider the town's request.

Councilman Hogan went on to say that the Town Board feels a strong case can be made for rededicating its EQBA monies toward a recycling facility.

"By terminating plans to build a resource recovery plant (incinerator), the town is now well underway in implementing a solid waste management strategy that concentrates more on recycling, which is the direction the state has indicated it wants municipalities to take," he said.

"Oyster Bay already has a nationally recognized curbside recycling program and an MRF would greatly enhance our recycling capabilities by allowing the town to process its own recyclables and send them directly to end-users in market-ready condition."

The councilman said that a formal request to reallocate the EQBA funds for construction of an MRF will be sent to the state DEC in the next few days.

Letters

main reason for not putting new children into East St. was parent outcry. If some of Hicksville can have such an impact on our boards decisions, perhaps we can too. We must urge this board to consider the children of Hicksville first and foremost. After all, buildings are just bricks and statistics are just numbers, but our children are real people and this cannot be forgotten.

Darlene Skaeck

In Response

In response to Donna Martillo's letter of August 21, trying to garner sympathy from the general public by accusing two board members of having a vendetta against East St. School is insulting to the public. In fact, James Black voted in favor of closing Dutch Lane also. Richard Pfaender would have voted to close Dutch, had the board not voted earlier to fire special ed. teacher aides. As for Mr. Staton and Mr. Martin, the people of Hicksville were well aware of what school area they lived in when they voted almost two to one to seat these men on the board. As for the recommendations made by Bishop and Evans; the board determined at their Sept. '91 meeting that their recommendations would not be binding, but used as reference only. The time for people to dispute the wisdom of this decision was at that meeting.

Hicksville is already one of the most urban towns in Nassau County. What separates it from towns such as Hempstead is the lack of multiple housing complexes (apartments). Because Hicksville is a transportation hub, the lure of such dwellings would be irresistible, especially on properties having the size and location of OCR, Dutch, and Burns. Anyone who believes such housing, or empty mini malls and office space will not affect those homes in all areas of Hicksville is not only short sighted, but naive as well. Furthermore, it's only a matter of time before members of Tax Pac make their bid for seats on the board. Anyone who follows their actions knows that their priorities are immediate tax cuts without regard for future ramifications of means used to cut taxes. We need to protect against this type of organization.

There are those who feel that for the minimal savings realized it's not worth it to close any school. I know this will not happen, because most people of Hicksville don't attend board meetings and don't voice their concerns. I sincerely hope that the board doesn't make a decision which in the long haul will prove detrimental to the town, but emotional blackmail and vilifying the board is not the answer.

Local Artisans In Autumn Crafts Fairs

When master artisans from around the United States display their works at the autumn crafts fair in Lincoln Center, Fordham University Plaza, Long Island will be represented by three exhibitors.

Among the original designs in clay, leather, jewelry, blown and stained glass and more will be jewelry from Schlecht Silver in Southold, wood furnishings courtesy of Wildwood in Port Washington and porcelain jewelry from Endred and North in Freeport.

The three join 250 craft artisans from 34 states, selected from among 850 applicants by a jury of professional crafts artists.

The eighth annual autumn crafts festival, which opened last weekend, continues Sept. 5 to 7 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Lincoln Center's Fordham University Plaza, 62nd Street and Columbus Avenue in Manhattan.

Organizers predict attendance to exceed 150,000 this year.

"We sell to local galleries and we do exhibit at a few festivals on Long Island," said Jennifer Schlecht of Schlecht Silver in Southold. "But we've been exhibiting with the autumn crafts festival the number of years it's been in existence."

The number of years the autumn festival has been in existence? Eight, to be exact.

Along with the American crafts festival in July, the Manhattan-based festival organizers offer free admission to those interested in attending.

Wildwood Clocks and Furniture of Port Washington, which exhibited the first weekend of the event, is owned by Philip and Anne Levine. Haan Endred and Alfred North's porcelain jewelry will be shown in Booth 19 this weekend. Their work includes "high fire porcelain jewelry with gold trim," said North.

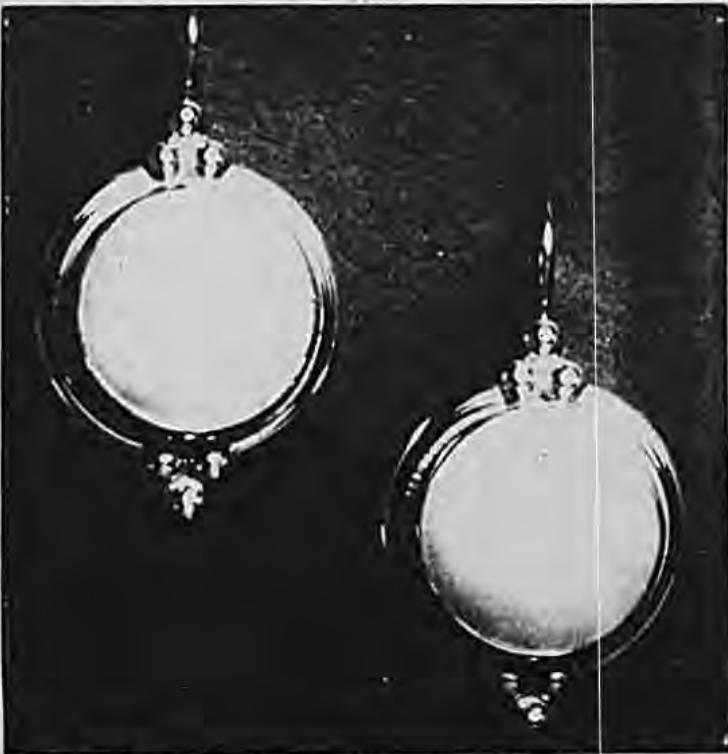

According to the organizers, the festival presents "a balanced format, expressing the full range of American crafts activities."

Breaking that down by percentage, the organizers define a balanced format as follows:

- Works in clay—20 percent
- Jewelry—25 percent
- Fiber works—20 percent
- Works in wood—15 percent
- Glass—10 percent

Miscellaneous (baskets, forged iron, handmade paper, mixed media creations)—10 percent

Among the more unusual items which visitors will find: a kiln-fired sushi tray with blown glass accessories for $225 (Booth 28, John Gilvey of Poughkeepsie, NY); an iron rhinoceros for $4,500 (Booth 75 the first weekend, Booth 51 the second, Steve Maxon, Iowa City, Iowa); and forged iron utensils, ranging from $3 for a small hook to $3,000 for a five-piece fireplace set decorated with dragons (Booth 57, blacksmith Daniel Boone of Greenbelt, MD).

Prices range considerably, but here are a couple more samples: $12 for handmade, brightly colored wooden toys by Bob Morris of Summit, NJ; $500 for a one-of-a-kind, hand-painted, batiked silk crepe and charmeuse "coyote coat" created by Scott and Lynette Meyning of NYC; and collapsible wooden baskets from $50 to $110, courtesy of Wendy and Jay Jensen of Petersburg, WV.

Want to see some craft demonstrations or performances?

The festival is the place to be in Manhattan, then. Continuous craft demonstrations and free performances are scheduled throughout the weekend. You can see wheel-thrown pottery being created, leaded glass assembled, wood relief sculpture being carved and women's wool ensembles being knit as well as hearing everything from Dixieland to country western music.

The festival features all natural food and dessert concessions. Among the offerings are garden salads, hot dishes, barbecue chicken, Chinese, Mexican and Italian specialties.

The American Concern for Art and Craftsmanship exclusively produces the crafts events held at the Lincoln Center complex. Originally conceived as an opportunity to provide support mechanisms enabling artisans to continue their work, the festivals have hosted more than 4 million visitors since 1977.

It is a non-profit organization offering free cultural exposures to the community.

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

In some deals the outcome is a foregone conclusion the moment dummy appears. Declarer loses the number of tricks he must lose, neither more nor less, and the play period is simply a formality.

In other hands the outcome is less certain and depends on how the adverse cards are divided. Suit-breaks and finesses usually determine the results of such hands.

But a third category of deals exists where declarer, by dint of sheer skill, can overcome an unlucky lie of the unseen cards.

Consider this case where West leads a club against four spades and declarer sees he may lose a heart and three diamonds. Since three diamond tricks can be lost only if East has the A-Q over dummy's K-J, South organizes a plan to try to overcome that possibility if it exists.

He wins the club lead with the king, draws two rounds of trumps, cashes the ace of clubs, ruffs a club, cashes the A-K of hearts and then exits with a heart. As a result of this series of plays, the contract becomes a certainty no matter how the cards lie.

In the actual case, West wins the heart and returns a diamond — let's say the nine. Declarer covers with the jack, which loses to the queen. East must then return a diamond or yield a ruff and discard. Either way, South is home safe and sound.

The hand is typical of one of declarer's most valuable standbys — the elimination play. Declarer clears suits one and two (trumps and clubs, in this case), and puts the enemy on lead with suit three (hearts) in order to solve his problem in suit four (diamonds).

Ebbets Takes Summer League Championships

The Ebbets Field Cafe lacrosse team the summer league playoff championship in a high pressure game 15-14.

Forget about the Gait brothers, the Beccaris brothers, Artie and Rocco, combined for five goals and six assists. Chuck Arnone tied the game at halftime with his first of three goals after a 10-shooting half.

With the game tied at the half, coach Arnone gave an inspirational speech to urge the team to win it for the "Gimp," better known as Kevin Hanifan. The team responded with all-out play, including key plays by several team members.

In the fourth quarter, down by two goals, Buckley took the ball the length of the field dodging four opponents and firing, with his defensive stick, the ball in the top corner bringing Ebbets Field Cafe to within one goal. Tom Campolattano tied the game after coming out of the penalty box. He served an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty.

Brian Ednie scored the winning goal, assisted by Mike Rogan with 38 seconds remaining. This proved to be the icing on the victory for Ebbets.

Artie Whitmarsh had four assists, won 15 of 16 faceoffs, and had six penalties. John Kearner, Billy O'Brien, and Carl Campolattano ate up all the ground balls. Defensive standouts were Joe McDonald and Jerry DeMaeo.

After the game, league coordinator John Pappas called, from his summer home in Monte Carlo, coach Arnone to congratulate him and the Ebbets team on their victory and to remind him that the team still owed $9.18 in league fees.

Fitness For The Whole Family

By Mandy Laderer

We live in a country of exercise-crazed adults and sedentary kids. As we adults go to the gym, attend aerobic classes, or jog; our children are sitting watching television, playing video games, or eating at fast food restaurants.

We adults are perpetually watching what we eat and keeping our cholesterol levels in check. But not enough of us are particular about our children's diets, which are higher in fat and cholesterol than they were in the past due to so much readily available junk food.

So what, as parents, can we do? You have a choice between spending time and energy (as well as creativity) in finding ways to help your children with good eating habits and physical fitness or let them continue that sedentary lifestyle that could doom them to becoming out-of-shape and overweight.

In your role as parents you must realize the influence and impact you have in helping your children establish healthy lifestyles and become positive role models for them. We are all aware of how children love to mimic their parents so set them good basic examples by eating healthy food, not smoking, and exercising regularly.

It is important to show your children how to grow and develop to their fullest capacity with your active encouragement. They should be allowed to move and explore and if you help them to exercise, you will make the experience a pleasurable activity for both them and you.

Physical activity for you and your children should become a daily habit as regular as brushing your teeth. The exercise should be an integral part of a child's daily routine.

The best way for you all to get started together is to launch a "family fitness program." With your constant presence and interest, such a program will greatly reinforce the family's commitment to it.

Family fitness can get underway when a parent, or preferably both parents, can share in fitness related activities designed to bring happiness, as well as greater fitness, to all participants. Fitness should also be fun.

Steps For Family Fitness

Call the family together to discuss what kind of activities should be included. Some ideas are: ice skating, skiing, walking, jogging, indoor tennis, swimming, bowling, and many more. Aside from these, go to the park simply to throw and catch balls. There are hundreds of ideas but keep in mind that you and your family should aim to get aerobically fit. To do that, choose an activity during which you would be moving for at least 20 to 30 minutes.

STARTING CHILDREN in a healthy lifestyle early on can benefit their whole life. Whether you use programs specifically designed for children or you start a family fitness program, kids should be encouraged to stay fit.

Try to do this three times a week. Switch around the forms of activity to ensure variety and avoid boredom. Get in some strength-training as well, such as bowling or throwing a ball.

To simulate your children's interest, let them feel important in having a say in what activities the family should pursue.

In working this kind of program into parents' busy work schedules, have mom undertake an activity one day and dad on another. On weekends, all join together. This way, everyone will enjoy the fitness benefits and the parents will be spending quality time with the kids.

Introduce a "wall chart of success." Such a chart, with stats showing the progress of all family participants, can be invaluable in stimulating greater appreciation of the program. I have found, with my years of experience with my family and with the children and adults with whom I have worked, that they love to watch their progress and the ongoing development of fitness programs.

In filling the wall chart, list all the activities and exercises involved and place star stickers when the activities are completed for that day. Everyone will get a kick out of watching their progress.

Try an award system. This will provide added incentives for the children. I like to give the children with whom I work prize ribbons of achievement, certificates, or little trophies after each successful week that has included at least three exercise routines. And, of course, throughout there must be proper nutrition for everyone along with the exercises.

Establish correct eating habits with your children from the start and, hopefully, these habits will stay with them for life.

Involving a child in supermarket shopping for nutritional foods as well as some of the cooking in the kitchen can also be valuable. This way, the child will want to eat what is bought and cooked. Carry family fitness from the exercise routines into the kitchen. It will become part of the family fitness fun.
