Chamber Installation Kicks Off New Year

By John W. Garger

The Hicksville Chamber of Commerce kicked-off its 63rd year with an Installation Dinner that highlighted the groups' past achievements and laid the groundwork for another successful year.

During the evening the 1992-93 officers were installed by County Executive Thomas Gulotta, new members were inducted, awards were given to various members, and the president of the chamber gave her yearly report.

In her report, Chamber of Commerce President Beth Dalton commended the whole chamber on their efforts in both business and charitable activities on behalf of Hicksville. She mentioned the Business Expo '92, which not only brought business to the people on a personal level, but also brought businesses to businesses; and said that the chamber is looking forward to a renewed Business Expo '93. The past year also marked the opening of the new chamber office at 10 West Marie St., right off Broadway, which keeps the chamber in touch with the community. Another successful chamber effort is their scholarship fund, which provides a local student with $1,000 each year.

Other chamber activities that have benefited the community have been the anti-graffiti campaign, and the placement of trash cans in the downtown Hicksville area. Spearheading the trash can project was Marc Ramirez of Mr. Electric Service Company.

A special presentation during the evening was the Citizen of the Year Award, which was given to Henry Brengel. Brengel, a "son of Hicksville" and longtime businessman was honored for his continuous efforts on behalf of the community. He has served as president of the chamber and even while retired continues to serve on committees and stay involved.

Brengel, along with Charlie Montana, of Montana Associates Insurance and Real Estate, and Fran Antonelli, of Central Federal Savings, received the chamber's Meritorious Service Award for giving of themselves and their time to the chamber, especially for their part in organizing the Hicksville Golf Outing.

The officers that were installed for the 1992-93 term were Beth Dalton (Thomas F. Dalton Funeral Home), president; Don LeCompte (Antun's), vice president; Duane O'Neill (The Map Man), secretary; and John Giunta, CPA, treasurer. Dalton is serving her second term as president.

The evening, held at Antun's Hicksville was attended by over 125 business people and residents of Hicksville; kicks off a year that will see more of the same great efforts by Hicksville's small businesses on behalf of the community.

Group Home Discussed At CC

By John W. Garger

The state's proposal to establish a group home on Ketchams Rd. in Hicksville brought a number of people to the first meeting of the Hicksville Community Council's new year.

Letters had been mailed to residents in the area explaining that the Long Island Developmental Disabilities Agency (under the auspices of the New York State Office of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities) has proposed a group home for about four or five adults at One Ketchams Rd. Community residents have until Oct. 12 to comment on the application.

The town will schedule an open meeting at the Woodland School for community residents to voice their concerns or to have their questions answered. According to Councilman Thomas Clark, the only way residents could block a group home is by proving "saturation" of such facilities in a community. Presently there are four other group home sites in Hicksville. The councilman also pointed out that no case trying to prove saturation has been won in Nassau County. He also stressed that the town has not experienced major problems between residents and agencies operating group homes or the group home residents.

Residents will be notified of the upcoming meeting with agency officials.

Plans for the Hicksville Fire Department's 100th anniversary were also discussed at the Community Council meeting. Festivities are being planned for Jan. 10 through 13, 1993. So far a parade, a block party, and souvenir journal have been planned. Any organizations that would like to get involved with the anniversary activities are encouraged to contact the fire department.

Councilman Clark also discussed a proposal to establish a "Golden Age District" in Hicksville. This senior citizen housing proposal would provide affordable housing for Hicksville's senior citizens. Under the proposal each acre of land could be developed with 25 senior citizen units no more than two stories high. Fifty one percent of the units would have to have at least two bedrooms, and certain side yard and rear yard allowances would be required. The town is looking at certain sites on West John St. that could possibly be rezoned to allow this type of development.

Other topics discussed in the Town of Oyster Bay Report was the proposed development on Barter La. and Newbridge Rd; and the proposal for movie theaters at the Broadway Mall. Both developments are in the planning stage and no specifics have been decided.

The Community Council 32nd Annual Dinner will take place on Oct. 1. The next regular meeting will be Thursday, Nov. 12.

"Not since the proposal by the Town of Oyster Bay to construct a community park ... has any single action by elected officials created a like-type rift in our community."

LI Community Is Ray Of Hope

By John W. Garger

Responding to the need for hurricane relief, the State Bank of Long Island has coordinated efforts collecting goods from the communities they service to be delivered to a community in Florida that was one of the hardest hit by Hurricane Andrew.

It has been a real community effort helping another community, said Rocco Reda, a vice president with State Bank of Long Island. The effort has seen State Bank branches in New Hyde Park, Oyster Bay, and Jericho, a flooring store in Hicksville, and a trucking company pitch in to bring a tractor trailer load of food and clothing supplies to Homestead, Florida.

Reda and other bank personnel wanted to be able to help, but were not sure how to reach the victims in Florida. He contacted the Red Cross, which gave him guidelines on what to collect. Reda then started to make inquiries in the Florida community of Homestead. He faxed messages, twice a day, to three different banks, but did not receive a response until about one week later. The president of the Homestead Bank finally responded and told Reda that anything that could be sent would be "welcome beyond belief."

Reda and other officials thought it would be a nice idea to reach out to a bank in Florida. He said they wanted to be sure that the supplies they collected definitely arrived. That is why the collection project became a real community project here on Long Island. The neighborhoods serviced by the State Bank of Long Island responded "tremendously" according to Reda. At first they thought they would be able to mail what they collected, but after they were inundated with supplies, they came in contact with a trucking firm which donated the use of their truck, and Pyramid Floor Covering, Inc., which donated warehouse space on Charlotte Ave. in Hicksville. The Town of Oyster Bay also got in the act by donating the use of trucks to collect the supplies at the banks and dropping them off at the warehouse.

In all nearly 20 skids of food and clothing was collected; $800 was donated to purchase flashlights, batteries, and aspirin; and 20 bags of clothing were collected and distributed through the Salvation Army. Reda, who oversaw the project, heard about problems with getting supplies to the victims and wanted to be sure that the people of Homestead received what was sent. To make sure and to witness first hand the extent of the damage, Reda flew to Homestead to meet the truck as it was unloaded.

The devastation in Homestead is worse than imaginable, according to Homestead bank officials. People do not refer to their homes as homes, instead they go home at night and sit by their rubble. The army has put up tents for the people and serves food at certain times during the day. To discourage looting, there is a curfew from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. Power isn't expected back for at least another month.

Anticipating the shipment of supplies, the bank has set up a "bank store" in a warehouse across the street from its main branch, where they will distribute all supplies received. "A ray of hope has been that a community on Long Island is sending down help," said the Homestead Bank president. The devastation is so bad that many people are finding it hard to live day to day, but the food and clothing shipment provides encouragement that they will get through this tough time.

Effie Krogmann Marries Leonard Urschel

On Saturday, Sept. 12, 1992 Effie Caroline Krogmann wed Leonard F. Urschel at Redeemer Evangelical Lutheran Church in Hicksville.

The happy couple shared this message with all their friends who joined them to celebrate their union. "Our hearts are filled with joy in the presence of our wonderful family and friends. This day for us, is a culmination of a journey in faith. God has, indeed, led us into the sunshine. Thanks to all of you for your prayers and good wishes, and for sharing this wonderful day with us."

Effie was attended by Lorelle Krogmann Wuerz, the matron of honor, and Leonard's best man was Glen Curtis Urschel. Officiating clergy were the Rev. Richard G. Krogmann, the Rev. Dr. Theodore S. Grant, the Rev. Henry J. Wuerz, and the Rev. Nancy L. Ruckert.

The following is a poem that the bride wrote in June of 1991. "Shall I write this day of new love?"

Is it really new.....
Or just a new emotion for old lovers?
New love knows no age;
A wonderland discovery to the young;
The enigma amidst mid-life dilemma;
A rebirth of living for the mature.
For all, the world is no longer cold.
.....Young or old, alive!

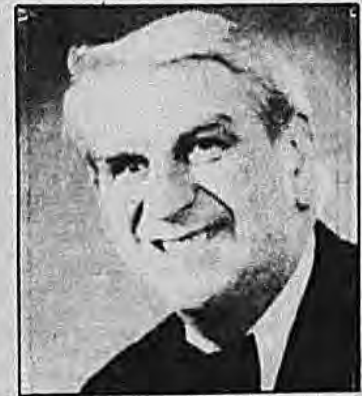

Someone cares!
A touch, a look, a stroke....
Tokens of love brought to the altar of life.
So strong, so gentle, so everlasting, so God!

SCHOOL SHORTS

News From BOCES For Adult Learners

If you want to improve your reading and math skills, get a high school diploma or develop a personal career plan, you can accomplish your goals at BOCES Nassau Tech. Most programs are free, because Nassau Tech is part of the public school system. Classes are offered in the morning, afternoon and evening, so you can attend at a time that's convenient for you. They meet at the centrally located Nassau Tech Center

Basic Education

These classes will help you improve your reading and math skills—and better skills can help you get a job or a promotion. You can attend from six to 30 hours a week, depending on your schedule. Classes are small and you get individual attention from the teacher.

High School Diploma Programs

Free courses are offered in reading and writing, math, science, social studies and literature—the areas covered in the test for the high school equivalency diploma. You can progress at your own speed, and when you're ready, you will take the General Education Development (GED) test. When you pass this test, you will receive a high school equivalency diploma from the New York State Education Department. This diploma is considered legally equal to a regular diploma issued by high schools in the state.

If it's difficult for you to attend classes—if, for example, you are disabled, responsible for the care of a young child, or a shift worker—you may take advantage of a home study program called GRASP. If you enroll, you will talk to teacher specialists on the telephone; they'll provide guidance, assistance and instructional materials as you study for the high school equivalency test at home.

Another option is the External High School Diploma Program. If you are over 21, you can obtain your diploma by demonstrating skills you have learned on the job or at home. You must demonstrate competence in "life skills," such as writing a resume, reading and understanding warranties or comparing sources of consumer credit. In addition, you must show you are competent in a special skill area, such as photography or home management.

Career Planning Workshops

If you're interested in making a career change or in getting a new job, BOCES offers a series of workshops that can help you make important decisions. In seven two-hour sessions you will learn how to assess your abilities and interests, how to set goals for yourself and how to conduct yourself in a job interview. There is no cost if you are already enrolled in a Nassau Tech program. For other enrollees, there is a charge of $50 for the seven sessions.

If you are interested in enrolling in any of the Nassau Tech programs for adult learners, you may call 742-5300 or you may come to the Nassau Tech Carle Place Center, 234 Glen Cove Road, Carle Place, any weekday between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Capture The Rainbow Effect

What you find at the end of your meal at Rainbow Restaurant may not be a full pot of gold, but be assured that what you will find is a fully satisfied appetite.

Rainbow Restaurant, Glen Cove's new Chinese restaurant, located at 18 Village Square, Glen Cove offers a garden-like atmosphere while bringing a hint of a garden scent with fresh flowers on each table.

Manager Victor Tu is excited to be in the Glen Cove area. Tu and his staff have brought much of the quality and talent from Tu's highly rated Sino Rama Restaurant in New Jersey to Rainbow Restaurant.

Although this establishment has exchanged hands and ownership in recent years, Tu is prepared to keep Rainbow high above the rest. And that will not be too difficult to do with the food and service provided.

With dinner moderately priced from $8.95 to $12.95 Rainbow continues its garden and "rainbow" motif as your generously portioned entree is colorfully decorated. Rainbow has a nice selection of appetizers and brings to its menu Special Health Food and Early Bird Selections.

Available for catering, Rainbow's secluded upper-level entertainment area can accommodate up to 40 people. By making arrangements in advance Rainbow will bring a colorful time to any party.

Visit Rainbow in Glen Cove or call for more details at 676-6818. And tell them the Cuisine Connection sent you.

Exhibit Takes Viewers Into City Landscapes

The spectator is the only person in Richard Estes' silkscreen prints

By Regina Marcuzzo

Those taking a ride on the "D Train," one of Richard Estes' silkscreen prints on exhibit at The Museums at Stony Brook, will be the only passengers on the spotless subway.

They'll also be the only ones entering the scenes of 30 other "super realistic" prints, which are devoid of people, by Richard Estes at the museums through Nov. 8.

"It seems very perfect and again unreal," said Elaine Cobos, curator of the exhibit, "Richard Estes: The Complete Prints," which represents three series of prints completed between 1972 and 1989, Urban Landscapes I, II and III.

"I felt that it would be a very good strong exhibit for the area," she said.

Stony Brook is the first venue of the traveling show, which will find itself in numerous states over the next couple of years. But those seeing it in Stony Brook will most likely enjoy it the most since many of the scenes are from New York City.

Checking Perspective

In fact, visitors can spend a good deal of time at the exhibit trying to figure out the location of the scene, deciphering where the viewer is actually standing with the many reflections represented in the prints and imagining the very same scenes with people.

"The audience can become fully involved," Ms. Cobos said. She noted that the level at which the paintings are hanging visitors can just walk into the scenes.

Mr. Estes' works are dominated by doors and windows that invite the viewer into linoleum shops, supermarkets, shoe stores, bus interiors, shopping malls, the litterless streets of New York City and a glass shop with the reflection of St. Mark's Square in Venice in the background. The square, of course, is devoid of people. Visitors can also look into a restaurant at one of the levels of the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

"He is a master of reflection," said Ms. Cobos. "He captures it beautifully," she said of the artist, whom she describes as "a meticulous draftsman."

His skill is demonstrated well in "Holland Hotel," a print depicting an empty New York City street. With the Chrysler Building in the foreground, the scene places viewers somewhere on the east side of the spotlessly clean, empty city. The only debris in sight is that which sits neatly in the garbage baskets placed on the sidewalk.

"Holland Hotel" is one of the silkscreens in the exhibit, Richard Estes: The Complete Prints, on display at The Museums at Stony Brook through Nov. 8.

The reflections of buildings and cars in the windows of the buildings is highly detailed and colorful.

Mr. Estes is well-known for his mastery of the art of silkscreen printing, which requires a process of stenciling in layers to create colorful details. One of his prints, "Qualicraft Shoes," uses over 100 colors.

"Qualicraft Shoes" is represented in three different large prints at the exhibit. The prints demonstrate his increasing mastery of the skill, with colors becoming more and more distinct and refined.

What does remain unchanged in the three prints is the dated contents of the scene. The style of the shoes in the window of the store is not all that gives away the period of the painting. The price of the shoes, which are on sale for $6.98 and $7.98, date the painting as do the 1960s model cars reflected in the glass.

According to Ms. Cobos, the artist "pushed the silkscreen process to extremes." It was Mr. Estes who took the process from using a few primary colors to using as many as 200 tones.

Although the artist lives in New York City, his prints are created at a silkscreen shop in Filderstadt, Germany. For each print Mr. Estes creates a painting that serves as a full-sized maquette, which is shipped to the shop in Germany where it is broken down into colors and cut into corresponding stencils. Mr. Estes works with the printers to modify the details.

After closing at The Museums at Stony Brook on Nov. 8, the exhibit, which was organized by the American Federation of the Arts, will travel to Ohio, Vermont, Louisiana, South Carolina, Missouri, Alabama and Tennessee.

A visit to the exhibit is not only worthwhile for admiring Mr. Estes' skill and trying to recognize buildings, but it's actually a lot of fun.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♦	Pass	2♣	2♦
Dble	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — ace of diamonds.
 The question of whether or not to overcall an opponent's opening bid, or the response to an opening bid, is more a matter of common sense than flat rules.

For example, if you held the South hand in today's deal and your right-hand opponent as dealer bid one diamond, you should surely overcall with one spade. You have the values for an opening bid, a reasonable trump suit, and good distribution. You don't expect to make game (though it's possible if partner has good trump support), but there's a good chance of making a partscore in spades or clubs while stopping the opponents from making a partscore in hearts or diamonds. Stated differently, it's better to compete against one diamond than to pass.

But the situation is totally different if West opens one diamond and, after North passes, East responds two clubs. To enter the bidding now with two spades is tantamount to suicide, since you have little to gain and a lot to lose.

It would be unrealistic to argue that you have the values for an opening bid and are entitled to express them. Such an attitude would indicate that you pay attention to only the 13 cards you're looking at, and completely ignore the values shown by West's opening bid (at least 13 points) in addition to the 10 or more points ordinarily indicated by East's two club response. This does not leave much in the way of high cards for your partner, and there is furthermore no assurance he is going to have support for spades.

The deal and the bidding shown actually occurred in a 1980 team match between Canada and the United States. The Canadian South bid two spades, got doubled, and paid the piper to the tune of 1,400 points!

A MESSAGE FROM

MAYOR JOHN M. LENTINI

I urge all civic association leaders to attend the organizational meeting at North Hills Village Hall on Sept. 30, 1992. Your Bi-Partison Nassau County Public Officials Committee has reached an impasse with the Dept. of Transportation. Only you, united and organized, can prevent this disaster. The five public officials that have the power and influence to save or doom Nassau in this crisis are U.S. Senator D'Amato (R), Governor Cuomo (D), Senate Majority Leader Marino (R), Speaker of the House Weprin (D), and Chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee, Senator Levy (R). YOUR VOICE AND YOUR VOTE IN THE COMING NATIONAL ELECTION WILL TURN DEFEAT INTO VICTORY.

PAL Fall Registration

The Hicksville unit of the Nassau County Police Activity League will be holding its fall '92 registration next week. Registration for basketball, judo, baseball, softball, karate, and lacrosse will take place on Tuesday, Sept. 22 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Woodbury Lanes at the corner of South Oyster Bay Rd. and Woodbury Rd. Other dates include Thursday, Sept. 24 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Hicksville Public Library on Jerusalem Ave. and on Saturday, Sept. 26 from 10 a.m. to noon at Woodbury Lanes. Parents must be present at registration.

The basketball program will be for boys ages 7 to 15 and girls ages 8 to 16. The seasons will run from November to March. Judo classes are held from October to April for boys and girls ages 8 to 18. Registration for these classes is on a first come first served basis. The instructor has a black belt. The summer softball and baseball programs run approximately from July to September. Both programs are for ages 8 to 15. Karate classes are held from October to April and are filled on a first come first served basis. Boys' lacrosse is for youths in grades 3, 4, 5, and 6 (during the 92-93 school year). The season is from April to June. Since teams have limited membership size there will only be the fall registration for lacrosse. There will be no spring lacrosse registration.

Bowling registration for September to April, boys and girls ages 6-18, is at Woodbury Lanes during regular operating hours. There are Saturday Leagues and also weekday leagues. Call 938-3100 for bowling information.

Tobay Beach Boat Show

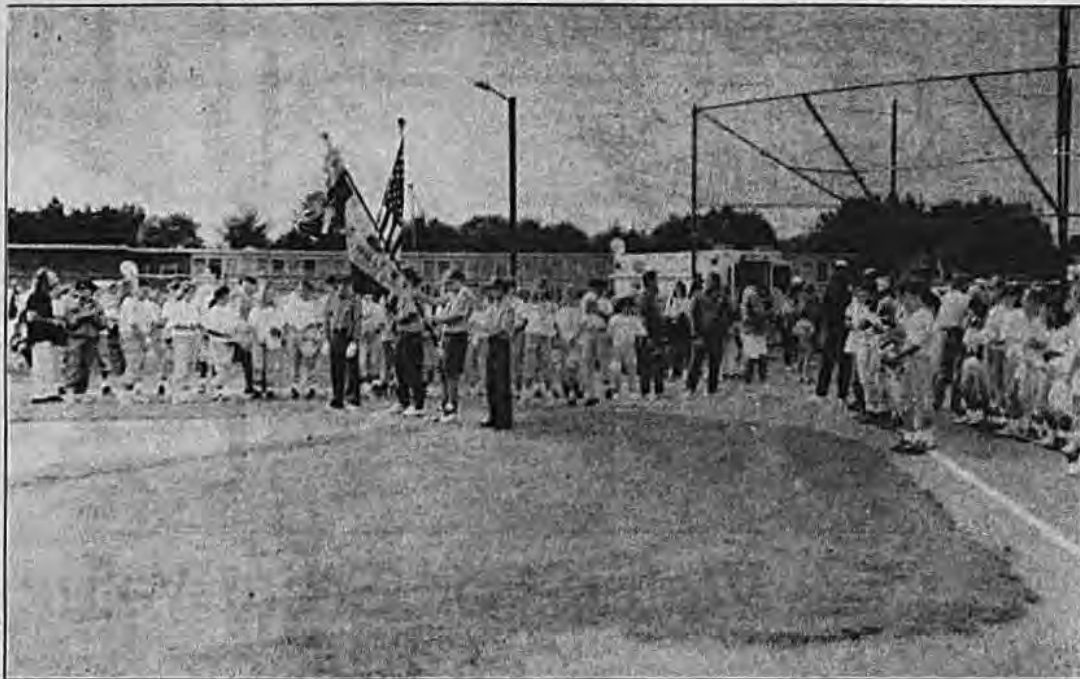

While other recreational industries are scaling down as the summer draws to a close, the upcoming Tobay Beach Boat Show will be held Sept. 25 to 27 and Oct. 3 and 4, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Tobay Beach Marina.

"Boaters want more value for their money," notes Ben Pulvidente, president of the New York Marine Trades Association. The 64-year-old non-profit organization stages the show each year in cooperation with the Town of Oyster Bay.

Making the region's largest in-water and on-land boat show even bigger is quite a challenge, even to veteran organizers like Pulvidente and his associates. Hundreds of models will be coming in from the world's top manufacturers; many new '93s will be making their first appearance at Tobay Beach. The show will feature inflatables, runabouts, sport boats, fishing boats, cruisers, and motor yachts. Manufacturers' representatives and local dealerships will be on hand.

The boat show is traditionally the time when manufacturers offer their dealers special incentives and this year is no exception. "This will be the best time to buy; the largest selection all in one place, combined with the lowest prices. It's an unbeatable combination," said Pulvidente. The Tobay Beach Boat Show is located on Ocean Parkway, five miles east of the Jones Beach Tower. Admission is $7 for adults, $5 senior citizens and children 3-11. Children under three admitted free.

Charity Game Provides Wishes

THE SIXTH ANNUAL Hicksville Charity Game for the Make-A-Wish Foundation was held this past weekend under clear skies. Thirteen-year-old boys and girls played softball and baseball, while parents and family cheered them on. Opening ceremonies were attended by several town and county dignitaries, and presentations were made to the Make-A-Wish Foundation. Here the players line up just after being introduced.

Gold Medals For Local Athlete

Down to earth and back to school after international competition in Ireland, a team of physically challenged New York youngsters is ready for classes with gold medals and golden memories to match.

Meghan Coutieri, a key performer in the Long Island games and nationally acclaimed as the 1992 March of Dimes poster child, took home three gold medals and a second place silver prize. Meghan won first place for her category in the 60 and 40 meter races and the club throw and finished second in the wheelchair slalom.

The first and only program of its kind in the nation, the Games for the Physically Challenged offers competition in a variety of adapted sports, plus fitness and training workshops for young people with physical challenges. Initiated by Governor Mario M. Cuomo in 1985, the program is free to athletes and spectators through the New York State Office of Parks, Recreation, and Historic Preservation and supported by the unselfish efforts of loyal volunteers.

The competition with Ireland has become an annual home-and-home series as top athletes from the Emerald Isle come to New York to match talents against boys and girls

In turn New York State sends a team to Ireland for a 15-day good will tour, highlighted by participation in track and field events at the annual Physically Challenged Games in Dublin.

Kristy Newell, a sight-impaired 14-year-old from Rochester, emerged as the top winner among the US participants with four gold medals, one for every event she entered.

The American athletes in all, acquired 20 gold medals, 14 silver, and six bronze.
