Short Comment on Current Affairs at Home and Abroad Affecting New York Agriculture

Prepared personally by HOLTON V. NOYES

Commissioner of Agriculture and Markets New York State

The New York State farm of 75 years ago was an almost completely self-contained unit. It was conducted to provide practically every item to make the family comfortable living for the occupants of the farm.

Cows were kept to provide milk, butter and cheese. Horses were used for farm work and transportation. Poultry of all kinds, including hens, turkeys, geese and ducks, supplied the family table with both eggs and meat. Hay was produced for livestock feed and grain both for livestock feed and for use of the family. Wheat and corn were taken to the mill to be ground as the family needed them for table use. Hogs were kept for the meat supply. Sheep provided wool and wool was spun to make garments for use of the family, etc.

The present farming practice in New York State, in general, shows a very great contrast to the farm of 75 years ago. The tendency, particularly during the last fifty years, has been toward more and more specialization on certain lines so that today a large proportion of the farms in New York State are specialized units along some one line only, probably by far the greater portion of them are specialized dairy farms that practically produce only products that are dairy products. Even such farms do not raise enough grain to supply their own needs for dairy feed.

Other farms are devoted entirely to poultry raising, still others to fruit raising. Very few, comparatively, are devoted to sheep raising and to beef cattle raising. It seems to me that the trend toward specialization in the farm industry is going on too far in this respect. It would be better for the agricultural industry and better for the individual farmer engaged in agriculture if the farming were considerably more general than it is today. I do not mean to advocate returning to the completely self-contained farm of seventy-five years ago; I would advocate that each farmer consider the possibility of the other cash crop to lean upon when the one he is now specializing in.

It is difficult to say just exactly how such diversification as have in mind should be undertaken, because a program that would be perfectly proper for one part of the state might be quite different in another part of the state. Nevertheless, there are many kinds of farming which are included in the program of diversification, but each farmer would have to determine for himself what particular line of endeavor is adapted to his particular circumstances or soil conditions. There are a few general suggestions that can be stated. I believe for instance that farmers in all parts of the state should raise their grain raising to the extent where they at least come out somewhere near raising the grain crop that they use on the farm for their feed.

It is also to be noted that under present conditions each farmer should raise his own horses and other stock. Dairy farms should keep hogs. In addition to the general suggestions, there are many other specialties that could be taken up by farmers who are favorably situated, inclined by nature to such

Employers Must Contribute Three Per Cent. of Payroll

ALBANY — Employers subject to the New York State Unemployment Insurance Law were today reminded by Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews that all Unemployment Insurance Fund contributions on 1938 payrolls must be at a 3 per cent. rate.

Payment of the first monthly 3 per cent contribution is due February 15. The final monthly payroll report for 1937 was due January 15.

Change in the contribution rate is in line with the provision of the Unemployment Insurance Law calling for a progressively increasing rate of contribution over a three-year period. Contributions began in 1936 with a one per cent. levy on the payrolls of subject employers; were increased to 2 per cent. last year, and in 1938 became 3 per cent., which under the law is to be the contribution rate hereafter.

All Workers Over 65 Need Numbers

Workers in New York State who are over 65 should have social security account numbers. Although they do not participate in the Federal old-age insurance program, many of them are covered by the New York State Unemployment Insurance Law, under which the social security account numbers are also used.

New Chevrolet Auto Radio Has Push-Button Dial

Modern automobile accessories are designed with three major purposes in mind — comfort, safety, and convenience — and most important of these is safety, according to M. J. Douglas, manager of Chevrolet's parts and accessories department.

"The motoring public, along with civic-minded organizations throughout the country, is paying more and more attention to safety on the highways," Mr. Douglas declared. "This is largely the result of concerted campaigns which have been promoted to a large extent by automobile manufacturers themselves."

Emphasize Safety "While all automobile accessories try to effect improvements to the comfort and convenience of motoring, all are at the same time concerned with increasing motoring safety."

Mr. Douglas cited the example of the new super deluxe Chevrolet radio for 1938 as a case in point. Ordinarily it would be difficult to understand wherein a car radio could add to the safety of driving, but in this case, by eliminating the elimination of a hazard as a contribution to safety it is a different question.

The new Chevrolet radio, with its push-button station selector, permits the driver to enjoy his favorite radio program, while at the same time the selection of that program does not distract his attention from the road.

The driver may set his radio to the program of his own choice by a mere touch of a finger. The push of a button automatically tunes in the station he wants.

The attention required to change radio stations is even less than that needed to light a cigarette. The radio itself is the finest available. Mr. Douglas said, embodying all the refinements to be found in the most powerful home radios.

It is toward such improvements that accessory engineers are continually striving. Their work adds beauty, it adds comfort. It adds convenience to motoring. But the most important contribution lies in the field of safety.

ARE YOU A 3/4 WIFE? MEN because they are men can never understand a three-quarter wife who has her mind and kindling for three weeks of the month — but a hell-cat fourth. Men make up your mind, men will understand. There are certain things a woman has to put up with and be a good sport. No matter how your back aches — no matter how loudly your nerves scream — don't take it out on your husband.

For three generations one woman has had aches and pains relieved through Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, drives out the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three months of life. It turns from girlhood into womanhood. 2. In Prodigy Parade

Long Island will be represented by John Smith of Port Washington in the parade of prodigies that will broadcast in the new series of Sunday afternoon concerts by Frank Simon's Band. John, fifteen years old, is a brilliant solo clarinetist and a member of the Port Washington High School Band. He won first honors in the State of New York Solo Contest in 1937 and is a pupil of the famed clarinet authority, Gustav Langenus. The program on which he will be heard will be broadcast over a WJZ-NBC network on Sunday, January 23, at 2:30. The program is sponsored by The American Rolling Mill Company of Middletown, Ohio.

Atlantic Coast Teems With Isles of Romance SCATTERED ALONG our eastern seaboard or in the Caribbean are scores of islands, whose romantic histories are buried in the forgotten past, but whose real or legendary backgrounds loom large in the colonial beginnings of our country.

Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket were discovered by Bartholomew Gosford years before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. Long Island, for years, was a bone of contention between early English and Dutch settlers, and the nearby island of Manhattan was won from the Indians by Peter Minuit for twenty-four dollars' worth of beads, cloth and trinkets.

Cape Breton was controlled by either British or French on more occasions before it finally became British, and it bears evidence of both Norse and Icelandic visits before Columbus was born. San Salvador and Haiti, visited by Christopher Columbus on his first voyage in 1492, are stepping-stones of continental history. More warfare has been waged on Haiti than in any other spot of the Western Hemisphere when Spanish, French, British or Negro struggled for its possession. The West Indies abound with tales of the Spanish Main.

Stepped in colonial lore is the archipelago which lies off the coast of South Carolina. In 1562, long before the Mayflower arrived at Plymouth, French Huguenots settled on Parris Island, near Fort Royal, and built a fort. A few years later came the Spaniards, leaving behind them two other forts. All of them were burned or destroyed.

Centuries later the roars of the island echoed to the marching feet of U. S. Marines, preparing for service in France. Then his torians remembered its earlier

Two Recent Deaths Sadden Relatives, Friends in Hicksville

Many local relatives and friends were saddened last week by the news of the death of Charles E. Sammis of Huntington and also by the sudden death of Mrs. Charles J. Stenman of Marmaroneck, N. J.

Mrs. Stenman was the former Annie Rohrbach. Mrs. Sammis, the wife of the late Charles E. Sammis, is the former Emma Rohrbach. Both are sisters of Theresa Rohrbach of Hicksville.

Mrs. Stenman is survived by her husband, Charles; two sons, Charles A. and Herbert F.; four sisters, Mrs. William Munchausen of New York city; Theresa Rohrbach and Mrs. Jacob Newbrech of Hicksville; Mrs. Charles E. Sammis of Huntington and another brother, Rodinick Edward Rohrbach of Blue Point.

Funeral was held at Marmaroneck with burial in Greenwood cemetery, Rye, N. Y.

As he dashed into the street shouting for police, his cry was heard by Miss Chapman in the telephone building.

Onganda later found the keys to the building lying on the running board of his car. In describing the incident for police, he said he believed a fourth man was waiting at the wheel of the bandit's car. He was unable to describe the bandit's car.

Still carrying the red welts on his wrists, evidence of his struggle to free himself, Onganda admitted he had seen two of the men in his place earlier in the week. He described them as "about five feet six inches in height. One appeared to be Polish and the other Irish."

Investigating the case were: Captain Frank Kelly of the Detective force; Lieutenant James Partridge and Detectives Reginald Ballard and John Murphy of the second precinct squad at Syosset, and Captain Gordon E. Hurley, commanding officer of the uniformed force at the second precinct.

ed him to "hand over the roll." One of the trio he said, pointed a gun at him while the other two tied him to a bench, rifled the cash register and turned out the pockets of his overcoat and suit.

Take Ring Off Fingers It all took place in a few minutes, Onganda told in the second precinct. After leaving his victim apparently securely trussed up, the thugs departed by the front door, locking it behind them and leaving the ropes about his ankles and one diamond ring he had worn on his finger and a watch he carried in his pocket. The ring and watch were valued at about $300 by Onganda.

"As soon as I heard the front door lock click, I struggled with the ropes about my ankles and worked them loose. My arms were tied behind my back with my muffler. I dashed to the door and smashed it open by laying on my back and kicking."
