SNOW AND FREEZING RAIN failed to discourage over 800 avid Democrats in the Town of Oyster Bay on New Year's Day, as they ignored the elements and thronged to a Reception and Cocktail Party honoring the new Supervisor of the Town of Oyster Bay, Michael N. Petito of Plainview, at the Four Seasons Country Club in Woodbury. Event Chairman Louis Schultz, Democratic Zone Leader of Hicksville South (right) beams as he discusses the size of the cheering crowd with Petito and County Executive Eugene Nickerson. Town Board Studies Ways To Economize

The Town Board authorized a management survey to implement its policy of giving the people the most efficient and economic service for their tax dollar.

Mc Kinsey & Co. Inc., 270 Park Avenue, New York, a nationally known management consultant for State and local governments, was unanimously chosen to make the survey and recommendations, starting immediately under contract, not to exceed $7,000 a month. The contract will require a report and recommendations within two months, and it has provisions for continuation and followup as the Board may require.

Councilman Edward J. Poulos, Majority Leader of the Board, said that a survey by a firm with the outstanding calibre of Mc Kinsey is necessitated by the rapid growth of the Town, now second in size in the State, with more than 300,000 population, and its complex Town Government structure which requires upward of 900 employees. Mr. Poulos noted the Town is continuing to grow and expand, and the demand for its public services is increasing.

The Bethpage Club has invited members of the Junior Woman's Club of Plainview to be guests at this meeting which will be held at the Bethpage Library on Monday, Jan. 13 at 8:15 p.m. Refreshments will be served by the co-hostesses, Mrs. Robert Jacques and Mrs. Thomas Carmody.

LEONARD FABIAN, of 3 Grant Court, Hicksville, had a narrow escape from death Friday night when a part of a pole pierced his auto narrowly missing him by a fraction of an inch. It was a two car and pole accident, just west of the Hicks Nursery bridge on Northern Parkway in Westbury. The eastbound lanes were blocked and it was two hours before traffic was back to normal. Photo shows boy inspecting the pole through the windshield of Fabian's station wagon. Fabian is married and the father of 3 children. He was on his way home from work at Manhattan Color Laboratories in NYC. He was driving in the outside lane when a car mowed the pole down in front of him -- then collided with the Fabian car after it pushed part of the pole through the windshield and out the right rear door missing Fabian's throat by a fraction of an inch.

LIBRARY NOTES

Home owners and home purchasers now have access to an authoritative collection of books on how to buy and care for a home, at the Bethpage Public Library, according to Library Director Henry R. Meisels.

The set of twenty-five books is a gift donated to the Nassau Library System by the Long Island Home Builders Institute.

A brochure, "Your Home - How To Buy It and Care For It," is also available for reference at this library. It lists and describes the books according to subjects including "building and buying," "maintenance," and "furnishing and decorating." "We designed the collection to help purchasers and owners derive greater enjoyment and fulfillment from their homes by making available expert guidance," explained A. Henry Schroeder, president of the Long Island Home Builders Institute.

Representative of the titles are "Choosing the Right Home for Your Family," "Buying or Selling Your Home," "Thrifty Home Ownership," "America's Handyman Book," "Complete Guide to Interior Decoration," and "Interiors for Contemporary Living."

"This gift," declared Mr. Meisels, "represents part of an extensive program of our library to enrich the resources of our community. The Long Island Home Builders Institute is among other public service agencies, such as the Nassau-Suffolk Arthritis Foundation and the Nassau Mental Health Association, with whom we have engaged in community programs."

Mr. Meisels and Mrs. Lillian Van Mater, director of the Nassau Library System, joined in expressing gratitude to the Long Island Home Builders Institute for its "worthwhile donation" and in praising it "for its policy of meeting basic human needs and advancing community betterment."

Thinking It Over

by Robert L. Morgan

The bus situation in Nassau County is presently the subject of much heated debate and in many cases of little thinking. The entire fracas centers about a $38,000 report prepared for County Executive Nickerson by a survey company.

Most local residents will agree that the bus service in the County could be improved, but most will also agree that a blueprint of County ownership and subsidy is far from what they want.

The survey prepared for the County Executive has this as its eventual goal with the present consolidation of all of the lines into three companies and then ownership to the County and subsidies by the County treasury.

But this is really no solution at all. You don't need a survey company to tell you that if you want to subsidize unprofitable bus routes out of tax money that it is the answer.

While the idea of a tax supported transit system may be in some ways justified in the densely populated areas of New York City where the majority of people use public transportation, it is impossible to make a similar case for it in Nassau County. Most people here pay their own transportation costs and only a minority will ever ride the buses. The solution is not to add public transportation that he will seldom use, to the taxpayer's bill, but to find out how the bus companies can better their service and clamp down on those companies that do not want to improve themselves. This can easily be done by failing to renew their franchises.

While County Executive Nickerson may feel that he must go all the way with this survey for political reasons, we do not see it that way. He can now take credit for getting the bus companies to a point where they know they must toe the line to stay in business and he should capitalize on this by renewing franchises with provisions that the companies do improve themselves. But he should at this time renew franchises for five years so that the bus owners can at least get favorable bank credit. If Mr. Nickerson does this he will turn the bus fiasco into an asset. If he favors socialism he is doomed and so are the County taxpayers.

Sneezing Or Wheezing? Look To The Bird Cage

By C. A. Dean, M. D.

Editorial: Pet parakeets and canaries are being found in more and more homes and their popularity seems to be increasing. They are fine pets and people get much enjoyment from them. However, for certain persons, they are more a source of discomfort. I am speaking of those who are allergic to their feathers.

Any case of asthma deserves an investigation as to the specific cause. Commonly the patient is allergic to pollens, fungal spores or dust. In a certain percentage the cause is never found. In this group further detective work is often rewarded by uncovering a pet parakeet as the source of trouble. If a pet bird is suspected as a cause, skin testing will help prove the diagnosis. A concentrate of the parakeet feathers is made and injected into the skin. The usual feather extracts in use today have a mixture of down and feathers so that a parakeet sensitivity may be missed. Redness and swelling at the injection site indicates a positive reaction.

In a recent report from New York, 5 patients with asthma were found sensitive to parakeet feathers. All symptoms disappeared when the birds were removed. Of 59 other patients with a mixed down and feather sensitivity, two-thirds had a reaction to parakeet or canary feather extract. This means that many of the patients with feather allergies, unimproved by changing pillows and removing other obvious sources of feathers, should look toward the canary cage for relief. It is best to remove birds from the household.

Barry Goldwater's Charge

By Russell Kirk

WITH THE NOISE OF HIS FAVORITE jet plane breaking the sound barrier, Senator Goldwater has burst into his campaign for the presidential nomination. On January 3, at Phoenix, he announced his candidacy, in a characteristic speech. This was followed, next day, by a "Meet the Press" television interview; and on January 6, by a major address at Grand Rapids, the most consistently Republican of all cities. Some of my columnar colleagues — who have been disseminating the baseless rumor that the Senator would drop out of presidential competition altogether — ought to have red faces now. Several weeks ago, this writer predicted that Mr. Goldwater would run — and with greater determination than ever.

Senator Goldwater remains by far the strongest of the Republican competitors. The recent Associated Press poll of Republican state and county chairmen shows that Mr. Goldwater has more supporters than Messrs. Nixon, Rockefeller, Soranston, and Lodge combined. Attempts to interpret this poll as a sign that Goldwater is slipping are little short of ludicrous. For this latest poll, unlike its predecessor, tested the strength of Mr. Nixon, which cuts somewhat into the Arizona senator's support. Even so, Goldwater leads Nixon among Republican leaders by 601 to 279.

The Senator's most powerful announced rival, Governor Rockefeller, has only 101 Republican leaders behind him — less even than Mr. Lodge, the most unlikely potential nominee. In New Hampshire, private polls indicate, Goldwater's strength among Republican voters is about double Rockefeller's — and the primary in only two months away.

More astonishing is the result of a private poll just completed by one of the three biggest American pollsters. This tests the popularity, in New York state, of Governor Rockefeller against President Johnson. It turns out — read these figures and gasp — that if a national Presidential election were held now, Johnson against Rockefeller, Johnson would take the Governor's own state of New York away from him. By how much? Mark this: Johnson would get 69 per cent of the vote, Rockefeller only 9 per cent — with the rest undecided. So even if the Governor should win all the undecided voters, still President Johnson would beat him almost 7 to 3, in his own state!

This indicates that Mr. Rockefeller's hope for the nomination is virtually extinguished. Although Goldwater presumably could not carry New York, either, he certainly would carry a good many states in which Rockefeller has no chance. The only strong case which Rockefeller could present to Republican convention delegates was that he might secure the Northeast for his party. No one believes this now. It is scarcely conceivable that Rockefeller could produce a deadlock at the convention, blocking Goldwater's nomination.

Only Mr. Nixon seems to have a chance of amassing enough delegates to compete seriously with the Goldwater bloc. And Mr. Nixon is handicapped by enjoying no real base of operations.

Because Senator Goldwater strictly observed the political moratorium by remaining silent for a month, his strength declined comparatively. But now that he is running hard, and lambasting President Johnson, one may expect to see his popularity grow rapidly with both Republican voters and Republican leaders.

Hicksville High will give a clear indication of its 1964 basketball status when it entertains Clarke of South Westbury tomorrow night (Friday) on the home boards.

The Orange and Black opened the league campaign with a 7 point win over plainview on the Gulls Court. It was very impressive and some 250 Comet supporters were elated when the Orange swept into a 19 point lead in the third period.

Tom Kumiga and Bruce Damm were the big guns as the Comets hit consistently in the first half and the issue was never in doubt.

Coach Ed Petro cleared the bench and the home team seemed to come on in the late minutes. Petro then inserted Bob Walker to control the ball and he was successful in sinking 4 of 6 foul shots to preserve the comfortable margin.

Clarke has a small, well drilled and aggressive team with sparkling outside shooting. This Section One pennant is already flowing in the Syosset domain according to the experts but Hicksville should make a good run for it if it can put down the Rams.

Coach Petro continues to amaze as he overcomes some very valid shortcomings in personnel with a unit that gets the job done at the right time. Damm is settling down to become a valuable floor and scoring weapon. Kumiga moves well under the nets and teams strongly with Paul Calanoso for some rebounding power.

Emergency!

The outside temperature is in the teens... and your heating unit just conked out! Maybe it's out of fuel, or one of the many moving parts broke down, or perhaps the sticky fuel itself gummed up the mechanism. Ordinary heating unit failures can be caused by a lot of things that just can't happen when you heat with clean, dependable Gas.

A Gas heating unit has fewer moving parts than ordinary units, so there are fewer breakdowns and fewer costly repairs. No delivery problems with Gas, either. It's piped directly to your home. And Gas Heat is clean... clean before you use it, clean after you use it. Never throws off an oily residue that coats walls, ceilings, furniture with a thin film of soot.

Why take chances on ordinary fuels — converting to Gas Heat is often just a 9 to 5 job. Call these numbers today for further information: in NASSAU PI 7-1041, in SUFFOLK MO 6-5300 or HA 3-3600. Or mail the coupon below.

Keep your mind on the road, not on your troubles.
Don't worry about business, the family, or what may happen tomorrow. Keep alert to what's happening now. Good driving's a full-time job requiring an alert mind and body. If you must worry, do it in your leisure time.

WHEN YOU DRIVE...

Think now, complain later. "Mad" at someone or something? Turn it off when you turn your ignition on. Anger, no matter who or what it's directed at, can color your whole driving attitude, making you a menace to other motorists on the road.

THINK

Think wise... think cagey... think careful, cautious, cheerful, courteous driving. Good driving is the responsibility of every motorist. A cheerful attitude toward others on the road will get you to your destination more relaxed than if you find fault with every driver along the way.
Think careful driving when you're behind the wheel. And, when you think of protection against the hazards of other not-so-careful drivers, think of State Farm, the careful driver's insurance company.

Who buys more Savings Bonds?

As statistical-minded as we are today, the Treasury Department can't answer that question.

The Treasury does know that U. S. Savings Bonds are owned by tens of millions of families. So it might be safe to assume that people in every walk of life belong to this "savings club."

This is a happy fact for the United States, and for the free peoples of the earth. For Savings Bond dollars are playing an important role today in the making of history.

This $46 billion reserve in the government's hands is working vigorously today to help our country in the major struggle to defend freedom.

At the same time, Savings Bonds help build your personal purchasing power by paying good interest and providing a method of saving that's unconditionally safe and readily cashable. And the higher your purchasing power, the better it speaks for our system.

It all adds up to one of the best ways you can save money and at the same time help your country. Start buying Bonds next payday—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or from any bank—and see if you don't feel pretty good about it.

Quick facts about U. S. Savings Bonds

- You get $4 for every $3 at maturity
- Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, stolen or destroyed
- You can get your money anytime
- You can save automatically on Payroll Savings

Keep freedom in your future with U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

The Hicksville Theatre, The Meadowbrook Theatre, and the Mid Island Theatre will present a special matinee Saturday, and Sunday for a showing of "Little Red Riding Hood" from the wonderful world of the Brothers Grimm. Children's seats will be 50¢.

Do-It-Yourselfing Is The Bunk!

By Edward J. Van Allen

When I moved to suburbia to lead that heralded "quiet, bucolic existence," I thought a kind of cow-cuddling contentedness would envelop me and mine.

That was before I learned that a suburbanite is supposed to be his own home handyman, a do-it-yourselfer absolutely disdainful of the professional home mechanic.

The rude awakening came one morning as I was out brushing the dew off the grass. (When a neighbor eyed me suspiciously, I told him I was merely letting my own brand of dry humor come to the fore. Actually, I had heard that if you let grass stay wet too long, it develops rust.)

The little woman interrupted my grass-drying chore. "Why not put up that new TV aerial yourself?" she asked. "All the men around here do little jobs like that without bothering to call in service men."

"I'll even break my neck for you, dear," I said.

"You don't have to do it with break-neck speed," she answered. "Just do it."

Acrophobia, or fear of height, is my one great dread. Yet, somehow or other, I managed to affix the aerial to the peak of the roof. Then I strung the wire down to the first floor window sill and on into the living room.

As I walked in to finish the hookup, the wife said: "I want the television set on the other side of the room." "I'll have that done tout de suite," my too-sweet one," I said. I'll just run the aerial under the rug."

The whole job came off so spiffily that I stood back admiring it as a neighbor bounced in.

"I was looking at that aerial you just put up," he said. "You ought to have a lightning rod attached to it to protect the house."

"Lightning rods are passe," I scoffed. "We don't need it."

"All right," he said, "but I wouldn't take a chance."

Three days later, a thunderstorm struck. Lightning hit my newly installed aerial, followed the wire into the living room, and sliced the rug in two as neatly as though a huge guillotine had suddenly descended upon it.

Other do-it-yourself jobs have turned out just as disastrously. Once I built a dry well in the middle of the cellar floor to drain off the sudsy waters of the washing machine. Why build a dry well in the yard, I reasoned, when you can do it right in the cellar?

Shortly afterward, the electric-meter reader tripped in my dry well and broke a tibia or a fibula, the medical man said, as the lawyer man gave me a paper that angrily claimed I had rendered his client sick, sore, lame, and disabled, all to his damage in the sum of $50,000 by building a trap in my cellar.

From the tone of the document, you would think I had built that dry well solely and exclusively for the purpose of tripping that lawyer's client.

Many of my neighbors, on the other hand, have fared no better than I as do-it-yourselfers. One decided he could raise the roof and build a shed dormer without bothering to hire $5-an-hour carpenters. He did it too, except that when he was through, his house sported the waviest, edgiest roof in the whole area.

Until he hired $5-an-hour carpenters to smooth out the undulations, we called his place "Waffle-Roof-Manor."

In wiring his own outside light, another neighbor acquired the uncanniest incandescent on the block. When he turned on the light, it went on. But when he turned it off, it stayed on, to the amazement of everybody, including the amateur electrician.

I myself can thank the one-eyed monster for finally curing me of the do-it-yourselfing mania. After I had fixed and refixed and refixed my own set, I found it would only play if I faced it against the wall. (Maybe it was too self-conscious, what with people staring at it day and night.)

"How are we supposed to watch it that way?" my wife asked casually.

"Easy," I said. "In my younger youth I used to build my own periscopes. I'll just throw one together in a jiffy, and then we'll probably be the only family in the world and points up owning a TV set boasting a visual aid in the form of a periscopic viewpiece."

"Take that idea to the Navy if you want to," she said. "But leave the TV fixing to the expert TV fixers."

I gulped a bit at that. But on reflection, I had to admit she was right. Now we call in professional mechanics for everything.

But I'm still very handy around the house. I tell all repairmen what not to do. Believe it or no, they benefit from my experience, for everyone of them does the job right the first time.

You save more than money with U.S. Savings Bonds

What happens if you don't cash in your Savings Bonds when they come due?

You pay $37.50 for a Series E Savings Bond and in 7 years and 9 months it grows to $50.

But what if you don't cash it in?

Fact is it keeps right on growing.

At the current interest rate, when it's 10 years old it will be worth $53.68. At 15 years its value will be $64.52. And at 17 years and 9 months, $72.50.

There's no trick at all to letting your E Bonds work overtime for you this way. You don't even have to remember to renew them. The Treasury Department does it automatically.

And while your growing Bonds are making you richer, they're helping keep America strong in a world where strength to stand up to the enemies of freedom is imperative.

Buy Bonds where you work or bank and see if you don't feel pretty good about it.

Important facts about U.S. Savings Bonds

- You get $4 for every $3 at maturity • You can get your money anytime • Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, stolen or destroyed • You can buy them where you work on the Payroll Savings Plan

Looks like I'm in the money. Recently I received the following note from a banker friend for whom I have done a couple of little favors: "This is to let you know that you have on deposit with me two fine favors - accumulating interest and compounding constantly - which may be drawn at any time from an account which will always have a balance." (O.K., we shall see, PAL!)—"You're terribly extravagant," complained a husband, "if anything should happen to me, you would probably have to beg." His wife shut his trap with, "I'd get by, look at all the begging experience I've had." — A Mid-Islander recently resigned from a rather exclusive club with the simple, chilly explanation: "I don't want to belong to any club that would accept me as one of its members." — I'm a patient guy: Two lads, parked in a model T Ford on the edge of 25-A, signaled me to push them. Assuming that they were out of gas, I eased in behind them and started the old car rolling. After five miles we reached a filling station, but their car did not turn in. I got out and asked why they didn't stop for gas. "What for?" one of the wise-guys said. He raised the hood of the Model T and of course, there was no engine. Honest, I didn't say a word. I just drove away. You see, I'm a very patient fellow. — Sign in a Roosevelt Field store window: "Evening Gown Cut Down Ridiculously Low!" — Chuckie's over his double-mumps — Departing baby-sitter to parents: "By the way, I promised Jamie that if she'd go to bed without any fuss you'd buy her a pony in the morning. Happy New Year." — We hear that Tam O'Shanter Golf Club, Brookville, has been purchased by Pan American Airways, for an executive club. — Beauty shop sign in Hicksville: "Home Permanents Corrected Here." A driver near Levittown made a prohibited left turn, and an officer waved him to the curb. When the policeman got near enough to see that the driver was a priest, he said in a rich Irish brogue, "That'll be three Hail Marys, Father, for the left turn." — Chic Farmer has signed one of the best chefs in America for the 2000 Club Restaurant, opening soon after the first of the year, at 2000 Jericho Turnpike, New Hyde Park, near Herrick's Road. — We hear David Huschle's doing very well with his renovated Maine Maid Restaurant — Country Club Restaurant, Lake Success, booked solid for New Year's Eve — A few years ago William Lyon Phelps told us the following. I've used it before and I hope to use it again: "Every person in the world may not become a personage. But every person may become a personality. The happiest people are those who think the most interesting thoughts. Interesting thoughts can live only in cultivated minds. Those who decide to use leisure as a means of mental development, who love good music, good books, good pictures, good plays, good company, good conversation — they are the happiest people in the world." — If You Please, Happy New Year
