Int. L. Leag. Starts Season

Last Saturday, Mr. Arthur Hollstein, president of the International Little League, opened the 1964 season with colorful ceremonies at the Lee Ave. athletic field.

Guest speakers were Mr. Michael Petito, Supervisor of the Town of Oyster Bay, and Mr. Lou Reiss, the Assistant Recreational Supervisor of Nassau County. Mr. Joseph Madden, Director of Recreation in School District 17, and Assistant Director, Mrs. Rosemary Walsh, also participated. Mr. Ed Farrell served as the chairman and introduced the guests.

The color guard from Charles F. Wagner Post 421 stood in awesome serenity as Mr. Hollstein spoke eloquently of the worthy values that are nurtured by America's favorite pastime. Then a score of twirlers from Our Lady of Mercy Parish School dazzled spectators with precision performances. The Eastern Military Academy Band, under the direction of Capt. Radok provided stirring music as they marched in formation. It was the kind of a day the people in Hicksville will long remember.

At noontime, six major league teams took to the diamond, and the final scores bore out "hot stove" predictions that 1964 may see the most exciting pennant race in the league's history. Although Gary Jackson pitched a no hitter for Perkins Trucking Co., a few walks coupled with aggressive base running saw the Long Island National Bank to a 4-3 victory. Billy Whiffen and Tom Curran shared the pitching chores for the winning bankers.

Two newly sponsored teams, County Cesspool and Judy Ann played a game that was highlighted by excellent pitching and defensive plays. The County Cesspool pitcher, Reginald Brunson struck out 14 Judy Ann batters while Charles Reilly and James Powers turned in impressive pitching performances for the losers in the game which ended with a 3-0 score.

McKeon Lumber Co. defeated Troiano Trucking in a 4-0 game that proved to be a thriller from the first to last out. On three occasions, the Troiano's loaded the bases, but stalwart pitching by Billy Wandell and Bobby Bersani left them stranded. On the third effort, Chuck Arone raced from shortstop to center field to pull down a Texas Leaguer in a key play for the Lumbermen. Greg Reilly went five innings for the Troiano's.

Mr. Anthony Infantino, the Executive Vice-President of the International Little League announced that the remaining thirteen games will be played at Lee Ave. on Mondays and Thursdays at 6:30 PM. Anyone interested in seeing fine baseball games is invited to watch what looms to be a fierce race for the pennant.

SIGN OF SPRING: A mother robin, whose interest in the County's park problem is notably lacking, built her nest in the wheel of a huge grader at Canliague County Park (Hicksville) now under construction. The contractor, Davis Construction Corporation, will respect her fertility rights and use other equipment until the 5 eggs in this nest have hatched.

A COMPETITOR who will be hard to beat in the 1964 "Service Station of The Year" contest now well under way in this area is Joe Radecki's Shell Service, South Oyster Bay Road and Old Country Road, Plainville.

Joe Radecki and his crew of men have been busy for weeks getting his station in top condition. It will be scored on its cleanliness and attractiveness. If it survives the Nassau Petroleum Council's eliminations, the station will be one of ten finalists to be graded by the top country winners of last year's contest.

The three best-looking stations in the town of Oyster Bay then will be judged. The first-place selection will win a silver "Oscar" and be eligible to compete for the county awards.

Bethpage Garden Club takes much pride in the design and planting of this garden and will maintain it. "Friends of the Bethpage Public Library" graciously made the monetary gift for the purchase of the plants!

THINKING IT OVER

By Robert L. Morgan

We are in receipt this week of a batch of material from Motor Vehicles Commissioner, William S. Hulst of Port Washington. The theme of the material is the moral implications of driving safely. Rightly Mr. Hulst and associates are calling upon the clergymen of the various denominations to stress the Golden Rule and the moral responsibility that drivers have in operating cars.

We had hoped, though, that Mr. Hulst might take the Golden Rule precept to heart and even consider the importance of courtesy in driving. The Motor Vehicles books all stress that courtesy on the road is an important attribute -- but in the case of the Motor Vehicles Commission, courtesy does not begin at home.

If Mr. Hulst wanted to do something without even leaving his office, he could begin to institute a courtesy campaign. All he would have to do is look over any set of forms, letters to motorists and other material put out by the bureau. He would find that courtesy is the last thing that the Motor Vehicles Commission gives to its tax paying public.

The rule seems to be never make a request of motorists if you can issue a threatening order. Such words as "please" and "thank you" seem to be forbidden from usage on forms asking (or rather telling the motorists) to fill out applications for a license.

And if you ever get a warning letter from the Motor Vehicles Commission on a small infraction it appears that you may be remanded to a dark dungeon in the near future.

This lack of courtesy from the top has filtered down to local bureaus in the state and the motorist is now the most cowed person in the taxpaying public domain. We have no quarrel with the top county echelon in the County Clerk's office, this is the one haven of refuge in the whole saga, but beyond that a motorist is a zero when he has to go to local offices for plates or changes in forms. Some clerk is as likely as not to decide that he is the person to vent his or her frustration on for the day.

The whole mess started years ago under the guise of safety. The motorist was killing innocent people and he had to be put in his place. So big motor vehicles office machinery was set up and of course anything in the name of safety is a political field day. So the rules were toughened, the taxpaying motorist was pushed and shoved but safety didn't increase -- it decreased. So now after a generation of this doesn't it seem time that the motor vehicles administration should see that the way to preach safety on the road is to start it in its own offices?

Liver Sufferers Should Abstain

By C. A. Dean, M.D.

(Q) "I hope you will answer my question in the paper. Is alcohol in any form forbidden after hepatitis? If so, why?" Mr. R.C.

(A) Alcohol should be avoided during and following hepatitis since it may produce more liver damage. The liver metabolizes alcohol so that this added burden on a diseased liver (such as hepatitis) should be avoided. It is generally agreed that alcohol should be eliminated during the attack of hepatitis and for at least a year following complete recovery.

MEDITORIAL: In a column designed for discussion of health it seems strange to write about death. Yet, it is the one thing we must all face sooner or later. We need to prepare for it as well as we prepare for life itself. This fact is impressed on us more so when we or loved ones are faced with serious illness and probable death.

A seriously ill patient nearing death usually discusses this possibility. In most cases no one listens to him. We all feel this is an expression of despair and the patients are advised not to talk about it. This is the wrong thing to do. Very often these patients have remorse, anxieties and things they want to get off their chest. To do this they must talk and the only thing they need, under the circumstances, is a good and understanding listener.

Do We Want Compulsory Congregation?

By Russell Kirk

The nonsensical and positively dangerous project of bussing children back and forth across cities to achieve "racial balance" in public schools has roused tempers to boiling points -- as anyone in his right mind should have expected. In New York City and elsewhere, this fanatic project has done more to produce racial hostility than the most malevolent "racist" demagogue could have created by a thousand speeches.

Compulsory segregation can be very harmful. But "compulsory congregation" -- that is, compelling people to associate who have no desire to mingle together -- can do still greater damage, and be more unjust. This point is made tellingly by a New York sociologist and psychoanalyst, Dr. Ernest van den Haag, in testimony concerning the "civil rights" bill before the Senate Committee on the Judiciary.

"The congregation already compelled by law has certainly not improved race relations," Professor van den Haag says; it has exacerbated relations between white and colored people, on the contrary. He points out that rates of juvenile delinquency, for instance, are higher when white and colored youth mix together in school or community; among Negro young people, there is far less delinquency in neighborhoods inhabited entirely by colored people than in "fringe" neighborhoods.

Assigning children to schools according to their race, Dr. van den Haag remarks, is in direct conflict with the theory that there should be no discrimination as to race in schools. Yet the "civil rights" bill before the Senate attempts to do both things at once -- it authorizes school commissioners to remedy "racial imbalance," and at the same time tells them to assign pupils "without regard to race." You can't have your racial cake and eat it.

Apropos of bussing children to schools to "remedy racial imbalance," Mr. van den Haag recommends to the Senate that they set their faces against this dangerous measure. "It does not seem to me that the encouragement that the bill before you will give to such demands is in the public interest. It will not foster freedom, but compulsion; and cultivates not racial peace, but resentment on both sides. Yet the bill neither defines the 'racial imbalance' to be remedied, or the racial balance to be attained. Nor does the bill indicate how school commissioners are to remedy racial imbalance -- let alone how to do so 'without regard to race.'"

Making decent public facilities available to everyone, regardless of color, is something much to be desired. But compelling congregation -- forcing people, by law and police, to give up their usual associations and mingle uncomfortably with those whom they do not understand and with whom they have little in common -- must produce fierce prejudice, and often violence. Intelligent organizations for colored people ought to recognize this fact immediately; for already, in consequence of threatened "compulsory congregation," a reaction against the claims of colored people may be discerned all the way from Seattle to Manhattan. The American people are not going to submit themselves to grandiose sociological experiments that entail a tyrannical compulsion.

When First National City moves into a community, our objectives are to provide outstanding banking service—for both residents and businessmen—and to contribute to the area's economic well-being.

Nassau has been one of the fastest-growing counties in the United States, with population having tripled since the end of World War II. It now stands seventh in total and second in per capita buying income out of more than 3,000 counties in the country.

We have assembled a nine-man Nassau Board, made up of seven leading citizens of the county active in civic and business affairs, plus two First National City officers. This Board will help us to better serve the county's economic needs of today and tomorrow.

How To Be A Successful Gooff

When the story broke several years ago about the sinecurist (people who receive pay for little or no work) on New York State legislative payrolls, it didn't surprise me one whit. Nor was I moved overmuch by the fact that some of the sinecurists didn't even bother to show up for their pay checks, but had them mailed directly to their home.

After all, the average, run-of-the-much politician is a parasite prone to give away the taxpayers' money to friends and supporters for favors performed or to be performed.

Lest you think I'm a bit cynical about this matter, let me tell you about some very successful goofoffs who owed their success not to politics, but to sheer, inborn ability to "work" without working.

A Federal Government non-working employee I knew years back was an especially accomplished goofoff. Wherever he went -- and he was only occasionally at his desk -- he carried one or two papers in his hand. He had mastered the art of LOOKING BUSY, though actually he rarely did a blessed thing except take his daily constitutional at government expenses.

The bosses never seemed to catch wise to this fellow. I think they were too busy scheming out ways and means of justifying hiring three employees when they only needed one and of explaining away the huge yearly budget of the office in case the Budget Director or some congressional committee should get nosy and ask why there was so much apparent waste in a single government office.

Once I met the young man as he was pursuing his burdensome task of lugging two 8 1/2 - by 11 sheets of paper around the building.

"Isn't it very fatiguing to carry those two pieces of paper with you wherever you go on your daily walkathons?" I asked.

The workless wonder knew I was on to him, so he didn't try to alibi by pretending he was actually working. "Sh," he said, "you'll give the whole game away. I just do this because I know most of us are overworked and underpaid, and this kind of evens the score a little."

Another worker in the same office, this one of the opposite sex, was not exactly a complete goofoff. She was merely a part-time specialist at the art. Our workday started at 8:30, an outlandishly early hour in those days. But this girl almost never began HER day much before 10 o'clock. At 8:30 she would commence cleaning and polishing her nails at her desk. That would take 15 or 20 minutes, whereupon she adjourned to the ladies' room to accomplish certain tasks. That usually took at least a half hour. But her timing was excellent. We had a coffee break at about 9:30 every morning, and she would arrive just in the nick of time for the morning break. Even at breaking cake and downing coffee, she was an expert. Everyone else took 10 or 15 minutes for the coffee break; she took a good half hour.

Unions that order slowdowns to gain concessions from management could take lessons from this girl. She would take at least an hour to type a short letter that would take any other typist in the office about 10 minutes.

At 11:30 on the dot, after having typed perhaps one or two little letters, this young lady would take her pre-luncheon ladies' washroom break. That took another half hour or so, after which she would don her hat and coat and scoot out of the building.

Right after lunch, there was another washroom break. A couple more letters were typed at a snail's pace during the afternoon, and promptly at 1:30 there was the final ladies' room break.

Her pay was $2500 a year. I once figured that she received about $500 for actual work done during the year and $2,000 for coffee and washroom breaks.

Do you see how easy it is to become a professional, eminently successful goofoff? If you want to get paid for not working, just call up your local politico and ask him if he has any sinecures that he's ready to hand out. Or, better still, why not latch onto a job with the government and map out your own plan for expert goofing off or jobless working.

As you can see, it's easy -- provided you don't have to overextend yourself by coming to the office to pick up your weekly paycheck, of course.

Odds and Ends

SCHOOL BOARD ELECTION POST MORTEM -- The spanking defeat administered to the "liberal" Committee for Better Schools candidates in East Meadow seen as a defeat of the East Meadow Democratic Party by the Republican Party.

Since the college grads elbowed East Meadow's practical Democratic politicians aside, the local Dems have become weaker and weaker and weaker.

It just shows you: While the eggheads are celebrating, the other side is busy winning elections...

HICKSVILLE ELECTORATE A STUDY IN CONTRADICTIONS -- The Hicksville school budget was passed by a narrow margin of 220 votes. Yet, School Board proxy George Jackson, one of the persons primarily responsible for the tax-hiking budget, won by almost 1600 votes.

That's what I call intelligent voting. No wonder the school bosses think all taxpayers who don't happen to be on school payrolls are stupid!

Students Named For Achievement

The following students from Hicksville High school have been nominated this year for the annual Achievement Awards Program, sponsored by the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE): Harriet Arnone, Bruce Mindich, Robert

Niemann, Daniel Robert, Joel Sachs, Hedy Zirin. For the seventh year, the Council is conducting the national Awards competition to grant recognition to outstanding high school seniors for excellence in English. The writing abilities and literary awareness of each nominee will be judged by local and state committees. NCTE will announce the winners in December, 1964 and will send their names to every U.S. college and university with the recommendation that these students be considered for scholarship assistance.

According to James R. Squire, Executive Secretary of NCTE, the Achievement Awards Program is part of a comprehensive program undertaken by the Council in cooperation with American schools to encourage improvement in English language and literature at all grade levels. The Council is also cooperating with the Project English, a national program sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education for improving English instruction: By stimulating interest in English studies and by supporting programs for improved instruction in English, the NCTE seeks to contribute to a national educational program of excellence.

THE HICKSVILLE POLICE BOYS CLUB was recently granted permission to set up display windows at the School District Annex, located on Broadway in Hicksville, and locations at the Mid Island Plaza in Hicksville. They have dressed mannequins in Nautical Cadets Uniform and a baseball uniform. Displays on other activities have also been placed in the windows.

These displays have been set up to help encourage more boys to become interested in the Police Boys Club and also to inform the public of the various activities which P.B.C. has to offer.

The Hicksville Unit would also like to see more men and women interested in its organization. Many men feel that they must be a policeman to join the club and women are under the impression that their husbands must be policemen in order for them to join the Ladies Auxiliary. Some of them also think that they must have sons who belong to the club. This is a misconception, says the P.B.C. Hicksville P.B.C. will be glad to accept any man or woman who is a good upstanding citizen of Nassau County and who is interested in the club and who has the initiative to work for the benefit of the boys.

For anyone interested in joining PBC, the men meet on the first Thursday of every month, at the Elks Club, 51 E. Nicholas St., Hicksville, at 8:00 PM. The women meet the second Wednesday of every month at the Hicksville High School, 1st floor Faculty Cafeteria, on Division Ave., at 8:30 PM.

PBC Cadets Giving Skit

The Hicksville Police Boys Club Nautical Cadets will have their annual Parents Night on Friday, May 22. At this time we cordially invite you all to attend. The boys will demonstrate the various skills they have learned this past season, but in a slightly different manner in which they have in previous years. They have worked and planned a little skit at the Hicksville Junior High School on Jerusalem Ave., 4th St., entrance, May 22, at 8:00 PM.

News Of American Legion

Tickets are still available for the Musical-Variety Show and the Physical Fitness show sponsored by the Archie McCord Post #86, which is being held to raise funds in order to expand this youth program. The show will be held at the Bethpage High School Auditorium on Friday, May 22. Curtain time is 8 p.m. and admission is $1.00 for adults and $.75 for children.

For reservations and information call PE 5-5483, OV 1-3642 or WE 5-8259.

On Saturday, May 23, members of the Post, Auxiliary and Sons of the Legion will help place flags on the graves of over 100,000 veterans buried in The National Cemetery at Pinelawn.

Letters

To the Editor: -
The Bethpage Senior Citizen's Club wishes by open letter to express their most sincere thanks to all those who voted at the school budget meeting, May 5, to grant them the use of the Powell Ave. annex building for club purposes. It was indeed the gratification of a long felt desire, and need, and will be very much appreciated.

Plans are being hurried to get the building fixed up, open, and ready for use by early summer.

Offers of help are already pouring in, for every part of the work which will have to be done. It is hoped that this will become a real asset to the community.
Again, our heartfelt thanks to all the residents of the Bethpage School District No. 21, who helped to make this possible.
Very truly yours,
Elsie F. Dwyer

West Side Story Big Success At High School

By Howard Finnegan

4,600 lucky ticket holders gave a resounding approval to Hicksville High's four night presentation of The West Side Story. Waves of applause greeted each scene as a polished company restored Hicksville to the peak of dramatic musical accomplishments among Nassau high schools.

The genuine reception justified Principal Leon J. Galloway's and Musical Director Mr. Thomas A. Buttice faith that the students could excel in the physically demanding and musically intricate morality play.

Supported by the Hicksville Orchestra the show sailed flawlessly through the haunting solos, which underscored the tragic overtones of the story, to the vigorous dance numbers.

Miss Carol Rondeau as Maria and Mr. Vincent Holzer as Tony portrayed the leads with great skill and reality. As the antagonists John Foley, Vinnie Recine and Steve Ragusa rang ominous and true.

Miss Joan Peplow was a flaming Anita scoring in singing, acting and dancing. A favorite of the audiences was Miss Kathy Walsh as Anybody's.

The difficult choreography was staged by Mr. Fred Szumigala and it was a soaring, colorful contribution to the story line. It was received with thunderous approval with the last one entitled Officer Krupke delighting all.

A full cast musical number, 'There's Going to be a Rumble Tonight' was a technical blending of music, dance and drama not before matched on a local stage.

Credit for overall direction goes to Mrs. Karen DuBin.

The production was creative from all phases. The sets were varied and artistic. The program designed and engineered by Howard Kreisner, with cover illustrations by Vickie Koumou was a welcome and startling departure from the usual credit listings. It was printed in the Vocational Print Shop.
