Teacher Hearing Voted Down

The Hicksville School Board voted down hearing teacher grievances in the School district by a 3-3 vote Tuesday evening at the annual district meeting. The teacher grievances were supposed to have been heard at an open meeting two weeks ago which was cancelled at the last minute by the School Board with the announced reason being that one of the attorneys to appear needed more time to prepare the case. Teachers and local taxpayers had called for an open meeting to discuss numerous resignations in the English Dept. of the High School and a general low morale among teachers. The teachers had complained of actions of Dr. Rouse, chairman of the English Dept. The Board had hired prominent attorney Emile Zola Berman to speak in behalf of Dr. Rouse, and it was said that the original postponement of the meeting was at the request of Mr. Berman. No reason was given for not granting the hearing. But in its place both sides were given until Friday to write out their arguments with a final decision by the board to be made on July 14.

The Board also reappointed Fred Noeth as Dist. Clerk, Herbert Backman as Treas. and Joseph Catalano as school attorney. Herbert Purick was named auditor. In addition the Board named members to act as officers for the year. George Kunz, Pres. and Cornelius McCormack, Vice Pres.

In the wake of much unfavorable publicity to many actions of the School Board last year a discussion of the possibility of appointing a citizens public relation group was considered. The group was to be made up of one person to represent each board member.

Swimming Lessons

Due to popular demand, registration for the Town of Oyster Bay's free swimming instructions program has been extended to July 10 at three of the Town's beaches announced Superintendent of Beaches Edward F. Brickell.

At present, Tappen and Stehlj Beaches on the North Shore and Tobay beaches on the South Shore are still accepting applications. Centre Island, Beekman and Florence Avenue Beaches are filled.

Those desiring to register for the swimming program are advised to see a member of the Town's Corps of lifeguards at one of the above three beaches. Two thousand have already registered for the instructional programs at the six beaches.

Evergreen Ave.

Contract Approved

A contract was awarded by the Town Board for the blacktop surfacing of Evergreen Avenue and adjoining areas in Bethpage, it was announced by Councilman Edward J. Poulos, board majority leader.

The successful bidder, lowest of several received, was Tufano Contracting Corporation of Quogue. Its bid price was $35,230. The project was recommended by Highway superintendent Norman T. Wolf and was advocated on the Town Board by Councilman Louis A. Sisia.

Included in the contract are Cypress Avenue, Floral Avenue and Place; Balsam Place, Cedar Avenue, Pine Avenue, Kunen Avenue, Adams Avenue, Park Place, Taft Avenue and part of Wilson Avenue.

LIBRARY NOTES

by Vivian L. Robinson

Hi Boys and Girls. What's new with you these lazy hazy summer days? Are you tired of cook-outs, sun blisters, muggy days and sleepless nights? If you are then the Children's room of the Bethpage Public Library is the place for you.

With school out summer reading should be a breeze—no home work! There are many new books on the shelves just waiting for you. There are books of adventure and daring like Margaret Scoggin's "Escapes and Rescues" and Eric Williams' "The Tunnel" or books of fun and laughter like Walter Brooks' "The Clockwork Twin" and Lee Kingman's "Private Eyes." To keep your wits sharp why not try one of the following, Aaron Baker's "Mathematical puzzles and pastimes," Martin Gardner's "Mathematical Puzzles and Diversions" or Charles Vivian's "Science Games for Children." All of these books are designed to make you use your brain and enjoy doing it.

Summer is always a good time to read that thick classic you have been pushing aside. It's true that most classic novels are long but you will find that once you begin the story, it will hold your attention and the time will just fly by. If you want to join the "Big Top" Summer Vacation Reading Club, now is the time! If you are a member, don't forget to come to the library and write your book reports. Thursday is a good day for your visit to the library. At 10:30 p.m. there is regular story hour. So if you want to keep cool and have a good vacation then read, read, read at your Bethpage Public Library.

Wedding

St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Hebron, Conn., was the scene on Saturday at 4 PM for the wedding of Miss Alice Anne Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wadsworth Hammond of Hebron, Mystic and Sutton, Vt., to Mr. Thomas Adolph Soininen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Gustav Soininen of Hicksville. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gordon W. Weeman.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of silk peau de soie and a Chantilly lace mantilla. Her bouquet was of white roses, baby's breath, stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Margaret Hammond, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was dressed in a gown of peach Irish linen and a picture hat. The bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Rupp of New York City, Miss Beverly Fuhrmann of Port Jefferson, N.Y., Miss Sibyl Scaife of Buffalo, N.Y., and Miss Martha Hammond, sister of the bride, wore green dresses with picture hats. They carried white roses and ivy. Amy Bocham of Moosup was the flower girl.

Mr. Gregg G. Soininen of Hicksville served as best man, and guests were ushered by Mr. Gerard Glovanello of Hicksville, Mr. Bruce Hardman of Garden City, N.Y., Mr. Reeve B. Howland of Elmira, N.Y., and Mr. Elihu Kraemer of Jersey City, N.J. Theodore Bocham of Coldchester was the ringbearer.

A garden reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The couple will reside at R.F.D., Stonington, for the summer, and after Sept. 1 they will be at home at 213 Green St., Schenectady, N.Y.

Students who have majored in Spanish at Hicksville High School, Hicksville, are shown at New York's John F. THINKING IT OVER

By Robert L. Morgan

It is not much consolation to many people in Hicksville that practically all other areas of the Township of Oyster Bay will have municipal swimming facilities, but Hicksville will just have a large scale golf course, park and recreation area instead.

We can see that it is not practical for the county which has the park site to build a swimming pool in Hicksville with county tax money without making it available for use to every county taxpayer. The pool then would be filled with people and Hicksville still wouldn't get much use of it.

But with land sites disappearing rapidly in Hicksville it becomes apparent that the Cantigue Rd. site is about the only one left where a swimming pool could go.

Why then can't the county give the Township back enough land to build a self-sustaining swimming pool and let the local taxpayers pay and use the pools? In Plainview, Syosset and Bethpage the pool projects are on a self-sustaining basis which charges all those who want to use them a rate of about $40 per season for a family. In Plainview where the first pools opened two seasons ago the only complaint is that there are too many people who want to use the pool but the obvious remedy will be to build more pools. The pool project would be a success in Hicksville, perhaps to a lesser extent because the Levitt area homes already have pool facilities, but there are still thousands of families with no swimming arrangements who would welcome the idea. So Town Board members, Mr. Petito and county officials, let's go.

Treat Allergy To Conquer Nose Problem

By C. A. Dean, M.D.

(Q) "Is there such a thing as a polyp in the nose? I have the feeling of a lump behind my right nostril and it aches all the time. I also have to bathe my eyes a lot because of itching and running. Can anything be done for this? What is the cause of the polyp if that is what I have?" S.P.

(A) Your symptoms are probably due to polyps, which are mostly due to some allergy. Treating any underlying allergy is the best treatment for polyps. However, if they are big enough and causing enough symptoms they may have to be removed.

(Q) "All my life I have been warm-blooded. During the past 10 years my feet and legs have gotten so they stay cold all the time, even during very hot weather. Others can touch my feet and say they feel cold to them too. I also notice that the color is not as good as it used to be. The skin on my legs appears more whitish. What do you think causes this and what can be done for it?" B.D.

(A) It certainly sounds like your circulation has diminished in your lower extremities. This is due, in many cases, to hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis), although there are other causes. Treatment for this condition includes proper leg exercises, medication and in certain patients an operation may help. I think the first thing you should do, if you haven't already done so, is see your family doctor for a complete examination in order to get started on treatment.

Dear Sirs:

We would like to extend to the students of Hicksville Junior High School our sincerest thanks for the Hicksville Memorial Scholarship in honor of John F. Kennedy awarded each of us recently.

Although we deeply cherish the award, foremost in our minds is the spirit demonstrated by you, our neighbors, in contributing so generously of your time to make this award possible. This could be a no greater tribute to the President, the man, or the principle he tried so very hard to establish in our hearts. Special thanks also

George, Last Of The Lumberjacks

By Russell Kirk

THIS, GENTLE READER, is a small essay in memory of the late George Gross, who lived just down the road from my place, in a little tar-paper shanty covered with roses. At his funeral, some days ago, people said that George had been eighty when he died; but I think he was past ninety, really. He was the last of our lumberjacks, and we shall not look upon his like again.

From my childhood, I had seen Big George, as we called him, quietly and cheerfully sauntering past our tall white house toward town. He was gigantic, and colored -- very. A bachelor, he lived for time out of mind in the little dwelling his mother had bequeathed to him. Strong and patient, he used to dig post-holes and trenches for us -- not disdaining honest manual labor, nor thinking that he ought to operate a mechanical post-hole digger. After a heart attack some years ago, he could work no more; but he managed well enough on his solitude.

Of a Saturday night, George would bear back from town a sack of beer-bottles, and sit tranquilly listening to his radio as he sipped his beer. Almost always a dim light burned through the night at his window: my great-aunt Frances used to maintain that George kept his lamp alight to fend off evil "ha'nts," as his mother had done before him. Sometimes I am tempted to emulate him in this, for indeed evil spirits are abroad in our world.

When my folklore-collecting friend, Professor Dick Dorson, was visiting us at Mecosta, gathering Negro folk-tales, he inquired as to who lived in that shack down the road. "That's Big George," replied my great-aunt Frances, "but you wouldn't be interested in him; he's so superstitious."

Quick as a bat out of Hell, Dick was off down the road to knock at George's door, that Saturday evening. No one had been known to gain admittance to George's den for generations past, so we doubted the success of Dick's mission. But, to our subsequent surprise, George received Dr. Dorson kindly, ushered him in, offered him beer, and apologized for the disorder of his parlor. A woman used to clean up for him occasionally, George said, but she hadn't come round for some years now. "I understand," said Dick, "being a bachelor myself."

Though George provided Dick with no narrations of ghosts and witches, he did begin to discuss life in the old lumbering-camps of Michigan. "Why, I didn't know there were any colored lumberjacks," said Dick. "Oh, yes," George told him. "There were eighty of us in one camp, all Negroes. I'll show you." Picking up a rag from the floor, George strode to one wall and began rubbing a spot on that sooty surface, blackened by the wood-stove's smoke for many decades -- as if he were conjuring up a genie. After careful rubbing, George disclosed on the wall a tintype, held there by nails. In the picture were George and his colored lumberjack comrades, the whole crew of them, photographed about 1890 or not long after, I suppose. The great pines became sawdust and planks in the last century, but Big George seemed immortal.

I hope that George has a double-bitted axe and a peavy, wherever he saunters now, and may send tall trunks spinning down the river of time, to his vast content.

DO YOU HAVE A PEELING PROBLEM?

When paint continually peels off the exterior of your house, it's usually due to moisture from beneath the surface. The moisture works its way to the painted surface and cannot get through. A blister will form, eventually break, then start to peel.

Eliminating this moisture would be one way of solving the problem. (This would be almost impossible when you consider the hot and cold changes in the weather causing condensation or sweating.)

Another way would be to use a paint whose pores would allow the moisture to pass through it and remain unaffected. This we now have. NEW ROLE-EZE. THE PAINT THAT BREATHES.

Now you don't have to wait for that dry day to do your outside painting. You paint right over damp or wet surfaces before or after it rains. (Even during the rain if you're so inclined.) is like money in the bank!

You can bank on a home freezer to stretch your food budget. With a home freezer you can take full advantage of money-saving food sales at local markets. Save on seasonal items, too. Buy them in season when prices are low, freeze them for use all year round. And a home freezer pays a handsome dividend in convenience. Saves shopping trips, multiplies your choice of menus.

Here's more money-saving news! Effective June 1, LILCO reduced electric rates by $2,400,000. This is the third LILCO electric rate reduction in the past four years, so your new freezer will cost less than ever to operate. Since 1940, the cost of living has risen 115% across the country, while the cost of electricity from LILCO has actually decreased 41%.

How The Weather man Weathers Weather

Michael Hale Storme, our local weatherman, gazed speculatively out the window as he talked.

"People expect too much of a weatherman," he was saying. "They want 100-percent accuracy at all times. As a result, we get a lot of crank calls and crankier letters.

"Once I picked up the jangling phone only to hear a very indignant woman say, 'How dare you predict a sunshiny day today with a high of about 80 degrees?'"

"The woman was one of those tenacious cranks who place greater reliance on their own senses than they do on the readings of scientific instruments. 'But it's snowing hard outside and the temperature's 38 degrees,' she complained.

"I can't help that," I said. "The best scientifically arrived at information is that there will be absolutely no precipitation today. If you think what you see with your own eyes is more believable than evidence gathered by scientists laboring in a completely scientific climate, that's your privilege."

"Other women are just as exasperating," he continued. "One day a mother called up and asked: 'Are we going to have any weather today?'"

"'Oh, I'm glad,' the mother said. 'Then it's all right to go picnicking.' With that, she hung up.

"People are generally very friendly toward the weatherman when the sun shines," he confided. "When it doesn't and the weather gets sloppy, they naturally seek a scapegoat, and you know who that is. It's the old story of fair-weather friends.

"To give you an example of how perverse people can get, one winter we predicted fine weather for the next day or two, and it snowed for three days. We got hundreds of angry phone calls, and two weathermen were actually pelted with snowballs when they emerged from the office. It was frightful."

I interposed a word: "I've heard people say the farmer's almanac is a more accurate forecaster than the weather bureau. Is there any truth to that assertion?"

"I must very reluctantly admit that there is," Storme answered. "You see, the almanac people use very unscientific methods in making their predictions. They GUESS at what the weather will be for a whole year in advance. We're not permitted to do that. We must have clear, convincing, scientific evidence before making any predictions. The result is that the almanac usually comes up with a better weather-forecasting average than we do. But I must again emphasize that their methods are very unscientific."

"Casting your isobars and isotherms aside for a moment," I said, "what's the best, most accurate way of predicting the weather for the next 24 hours?"

"I must ask you to keep this off the record," he said. "Actually, the best, most unflinchingly accurate way to gauge the weather is to open the window and take a look at the sky."

"Why open the window?" I inquired. "That's very important. Once I looked through the window and predicted a dust storm was on its way, not realizing that the window cleaner hadn't been around yet. Dirty windows can play havoc with your predictions."

"Have you any other sure-fire ways of forecasting weather?" I asked.

In answer, Storme gestured toward a flower in a box on the windowsill. "That's a scarlet pimpernel," he said. "When its petals close, you know it's going to rain. This other box contains a fuzzy, furry caterpillar. The color of his coat changes from a dull yellow to a dirty brown when bad weather's coming."

"These are Nature's way of predicting the weather. Although they're very accurate, you must discount them because Nature's too unscientific."

Michael Hale Storme got up to go. "Anybody make fun of you because of your name?" I asked.

"Sure," he replied. "They call me Hal Storme and Storme weather."

"Where do you live, by the way?" I asked him.

"Quite naturally, up on Weathering Heights," he answered as he opened the door, looked up at the sky, and returned his umbrella to its rack just before leaving.

Bethpage Splits With Merrick

Merrick won the first game of a doubleheader 3-2 and the Bethpage Kiwanis Eagles won the nightcap 2-1 in a LongIsland Connie Mack League Eastern Division twin bill on July 4th at Bethpage.

Jeff Geordano allowed 6 hits and struck out 11 in going the route in the 9 inning opener for Merrick. Greg Hebert, in a fine 2-hit performance, struck out 7 and walked none in defeating Merrick 2-1. After a hit in the first inning, and another in the second, Hebert proceeded to retire the last 17 Merrick hitters in order. Two fine catches in left field by Ron Hayden highlighted the defensive play for Bethpage in the

T-Day: For Teeth, Tuesdays and Thursdays

Statistics now show that students at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, on Long Island, have more dental distress on Tuesdays and Thursdays than any other days of the week. And no wonder! Town Board Awards Bids For Incinerator

The Town Board today unanimously approved the award of bids totaling $2,493,194, for the construction of a second 500-ton capacity incinerator plant at Old Bethpage. Supervisor Michael N. Petito and Councilman Edward J. Poulos, board majority leader jointly announced.

The new incinerator will be operational within the next two years. It will be erected about 200 feet south of the incinerator currently being used. Both sites lie within a 30-acre tract of buffer land owned by the town. The area is zoned for light industry.

M. Stark Construction Co., Wantagh, was named general contractor, for $1,462,825; Clayburn Contracting Co., Long Island City, furnaces and equipment, $531,430; Meeker Electrical Co., Lake Ronkonkoma, electrical, $300,493; James McCullagh Co., Hicksville, plumbing, $93,310, and H. Klein and Sons, Mineola, heating, ventilating and air conditioning, $105,136.

Town Board policy position follows:

JOINT STATEMENT TOWN BOARD - SUPERVISOR MICHAEL N. PETITO AND MAJORITY LEADER EDWARD J. POULOS REGARDING PROPOSED ADDITION TO EXISTING INCINERATOR AT OLD BETHPAGE

Oyster Bay -- The Town Board, the governing body of the Town of Oyster Bay, is charged with the responsibility, under the Town law, of providing adequate and efficient garbage disposal facilities to safeguard the health and welfare of the residents of the Town.

In carrying out this responsibility, the Town Board, its engineers and outside expert sanitary and engineering consultants have conducted a searching review to determine the best disposal method available. This review has also included a thorough-going cost analysis to insure not only speedy and efficient operation, but also to develop a program that would call for the least outlay of tax dollars.

In 1950, the population of the Town of Oyster Bay, according to the U.S. census, was 82,060. Five years later the population rose to approximately 190,000 and the official figures, as of January 1, 1964, placed the number of people residing in the Town at 337,491.

Early in 1950, the governing body of the Town, aware of the exodus of the people from the city to suburban areas, such as the Town of Oyster Bay, caused an engineering analysis to be made in order to be prepared to handle the rising increase of waste material commensurate with the impending population explosion. This was done to prevent what would have become a dangerous health crisis. In addition, the existing Town incinerator, built in 1937, was not equipped to handle the disposition of increased garbage and it was deemed impractical to expand this antiquated facility, both from the standpoint of economy and engineering.

Consequently, the governing body authorized the purchase of a thirty-acre tract of land in Old Bethpage to erect a modern incinerator. Construction of a new incinerator was commenced in 1955. This plant, which incorporated in its design and construction the most modern devices known to complete the efficient disposition of garbage was placed in operation in January 1957 with a burning capacity of 500 tons per day. It has been operating steadily since that time and was designed to take care of the Town's needs for a ten-year period, a generally accepted municipal engineering practice.

However, the population explosion continued and it became evident to the governing body that in order to handle the garbage disposal of the 337,491 people presently residing within the Town, and to provide for future disposal needs, plans for additional facilities must be made. The Town Board together with top experts in the field, investigated every possible garbage disposal method, including the composting method as recently suggested by some residents.

As a result of this complete and exhaustive investigation, it was the considered judgment of engineers widely recognized as experts in the field of garbage disposal that the most efficient and safest method is by incineration.

Because of some citizen interest in the composting method, the governing body feels some objective comments are necessary. The composting method is not new. It is known to all engineers. It has been tried a number of times in some small plants, a few of which are successful because they compost only selected garbage with a high quantity of organic material that is readily suitable for conversion to fertilizer.

There is no evidence that composting in the United States for large quantities of material, principally consisting of inorganic products, has any future. The experience in Europe is somewhat similar. The only operating plant at present is in Kingston, Jamaica, and this small plant, capable of 150 tons per day, is now experiencing difficulty with disposal of the product resulting from composting.

In addition, the composting method was tried in McKeesport, Pa. The results have not only been costly to the taxpayers but also failed to solve the garbage disposal problem. Further, a composting plant would cost more than $5,500,000 as compared with the cost of the planned modern addition to the present incinerator of $2,500,000.

This still leaves the question of what is to be done with the mountains of material left as a result of composting or what is to be done with the approximately 400 tons a day of garbage pouring into this plant while the other material is 'composting'?

As a result of these facts, the Town Board, its engineers and its outside engineering consultants moved forward to increase the burning capacity of the existing plant by authorizing an expenditure of several million dollars for the new addition. In this authorization the governing body has met all of the legal requirements under the law and, as a matter of fact, has gone far beyond these requirements to apprise the people across the Town of its program. Every available media of communication was used during this period and newspapers and radio stations gave extensive coverage to the program.

It must also be pointed out to the residents of the community that the New York State Air Pollution Control Board has approved the plans and specifications of the proposed addition to the incinerator. This addition will prevent what could become a major health hazard in the Town in the years to come and, contrary to some opinion, will improve existing incinerating conditions as the present plant is being operated at or close to capacity. Engineers report that this is not the most efficient method of incinerator operation because of the overloading of burning capabilities. The addition to the existing plant will eliminate this problem and assure the Townspeople of top operating procedures and efficiency at the incinerator.

Based on all of the factual engineering data available to it and the knowledge that it must carry out its responsibility, as elected officials, the governing body unanimously adopted the present policy of providing for an increase in the burning capacity of the Old Bethpage incinerator to an additional 500 tons per day.

The governing body, in its considered judgment, feels that this is in the best interests of all of the people of the Town of Oyster Bay.

Edward J. Poulos, Town Board Majority Leader

Two Homers Take Double

Al Mirando of the Bethpage Connie Mack Kiwanis Eagles clouted two homers to pace Bethpage in a Long Island Connie Mack Eastern Division doubleheader over Levittown, 4-3 and 12-5. Mirando had a field day going 3 for 5 in the opener and 2 for 3 in the nightcap. Bethpage third baseman George Dunn also had a homer in the first game, and Al's brother Mike had 2 for two in the opener.

The first game was close with Charlie Caronia and Jack Schwartz pitching for Bethpage and Levittown respectively, both giving way to relief pitchers in the ninth inning. Levittown tied the score at 3 all in the bottom of the eighth on a two run single by Penny and Bethpage came back with the tie-breaker in the ninth on a walk to Charlie Zucker who stole second and a single by Rich Leek. Greg Hebert retired Levittown in order in the ninth.

Bethpage broke the second game wide open in the second with six runs including one of Mirando's homers with three on base. A five run fifth featured by RBI singles by George Dunn, Al Mirando and Jimmie Carollo wrapped up the game for Bethpage. Homers by Giordane and Penny, one with a man on, spoiled winning pitcher Ron Hayden's shutout, but by this time Ron was coasting with a huge lead. Ron gave way to Rick Leek in the last inning and he, like Hebert, retired the side in order.

Pete Schaat, Bethpage's second baseman made several fine defensive plays including a sparkling catch of a line drive by a Levittown pinch hitter Rick Mattias.

DRIVE SAFELY

A worried mother finds her GI son... because two helpful people wouldn't give up the search

THEY ANSWERED THE CALL FOR HELP — Service Representative Greta Wharton (top) and Supervisor Eileen Beasley.

Do people in today's fast-paced world still take the time to be helpful? And do it willingly and cheerfully? Ask Mrs. Ruth Lewis of New York City.

Mrs. Lewis was terribly worried when she called her local telephone office and talked with Service Representative Greta Wharton. Mrs. Lewis' son had told her he was on his way home from an Army assignment in the Panama Canal Zone. But days had passed, and no further word had come. Mrs. Lewis was sure something had happened to her son. She wanted to telephone him, but she had no idea where to reach him. Could Miss Wharton help?

Immediately, Miss Wharton and her supervisor, Miss Eileen Beasley, started a telephone search. They called an Army information center, a replacement center and a transfer point. Finally, after many calls, they located an officer in Fort Jackson, South Carolina, who told them Mrs. Lewis' son was safe. The officer promised to have him call his mother.

Moments later, Miss Wharton phoned Mrs. Lewis. It was a grateful and relieved mother who received the good news.

Do busy people still make it part of their business to be helpful? Yes. Lots of people do. Telephone people do. We're glad when they do.

Chamber Gives Local Directory

Michael M. D'Auria, president of the Plainview Chamber of Commerce, has announced that the local organization has re-activated this directory of local business, professional and industrial firms in the Plainview area. The directory is presently being distributed within Plainview and additional copies will be delivered to the local banking institutions.

Judge D'Auria stated that this directory is the first to be published by the Chamber in five years. The directors of the Chamber of Commerce have decided that such a directory will be printed annually hereafter, as was done during the first five years of the Chamber's existence.

The new directory, according to Judge D'Auria will be a much more complete and informative booklet on the area of Plainview than has ever been attempted previously. The directory will not only contain telephone numbers and listings of various firms in the area, but will contain information concerning the history of Plainview, the development of the Chamber of Commerce, the school system, recreation facilities and the results of various surveys of the Chamber concerning the workforce and other information that would be of interest to residents, as well as potential business or industrial developers.

Residents who desire additional copies of this directory may obtain them by contacting the secretary manager of the Chamber, Mr. Charles Voorhies, at 64 Barnum Avenue, Plainview, phone Wells 1-1527.
