Town Set For Snow This Winter

The Town of Oyster Bay will reactivate its highly successful snow and ice emergency alert center, it was announced by Councilman Edward J. Poulos, Board Majority Leader.

The Board received a report from Highway Superintendent Norman T. Wolf that this year for the first time in many years town personnel will not control snow and ice on most state roads in the township, although there remain upward of 800 miles of town roads to be kept open.

Mr. Wolf said that the number for residents to call for emergencies on town roads is WA 1-6030, which will connect with three special phones in the snow alert center at the highway department headquarters in Locust Grove. The center will be manned in inclement weather until April 1.

Superintendent Wolf hopes that residents accustomed to call the town emergency center for state road problems will make a note that they should call WE 5-6111, the state snow center.

Roads which have been switched from town to state snow-ice control are: Route 107 from Glen Head, southerly through Hicksville to Merrick Road in Massapequa; 52A, from Greenvale to Glen Cove; Route 24, Hempstead Turnpike from Suffolk County line to Hempstead Town Line; Route 109 from Suffolk County line, Farmingdale, to Hempstead Turnpike; Route 106, Newbridge Road, from Hicksville to the Hempstead Town Line, and Route 25, Jericho Turnpike from the Suffolk County Line to the North Hempstead Town Line.

"Heretofore," said Superintendent Wolf, "the Highway Department of the Town of Oyster Bay assumed the responsibility for snow and ice control of these roads under contract with the State of New York.

Amer. Legion Aux. News

By Margaret Strong

Members of our unit had a very busy week-end and a very gratifying one - On Saturday, November 7, Mrs. John Mazzie, Mrs. Antonio Finamore and Mrs. Wayland Strong Jr. were our representatives to the Annual Fall Conference of the Nassau, Suffolk and Queens American Legion Auxiliaries at Frank Freidel's Riverside Restaurant in Smithtown, N.Y. About 300 members from the three counties plus Honored guests of the Department Auxiliary of N.Y. attended. The conference started at 10:00 a.m. with speeches from many interesting guests. A delicious lunch was served at 12:30 p.m. Several awards were presented to deserving units. Everyone went home with much more knowledge than they went with and satisfied knowing that their work was appreciated.

Other members went over to Charles Wagner Post #421 in Hicksville, to pack bags of fruit, cookies and candy for 1200 veterans and 300 children at Kings Park Hospital. They were Mrs. Jennie Lauman and Mrs. Vincent Busuttil.

Sunday, November 8, Mrs. Adele Corrigan, Mrs. Jennie Lauman, and Mrs. Wayland Strong Jr. joined seven members of the Archie McCord Post #86, members of the Charles Wagner Post #421, and their auxiliary in our annual Kings Park visit.

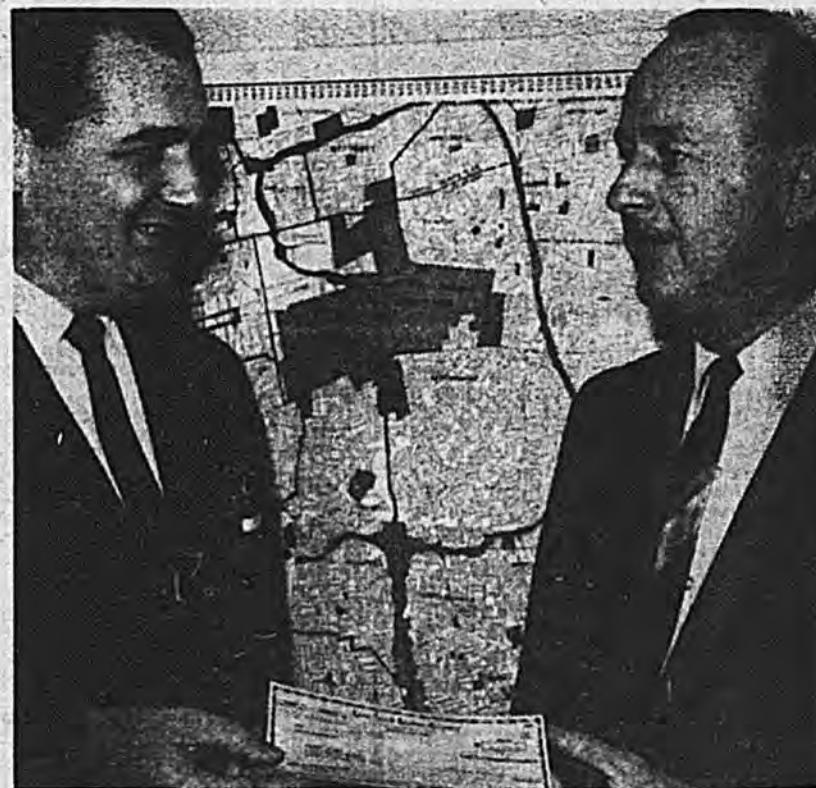

Thirty of our auxiliary members baked 64 dozen cup cakes to be distributed to the veterans and children along with the fruit, cookies and candies from the Posts. The men also received cigarettes. It was a very satisfying day as six ladies went thru the wards and delivered a package and cupcake to each child there. We came home a little sad but happy that we could bring them a little happiness.

Sons Of Legion Present Dance

On Sunday, Nov. 22, boys and girls of the Sons of the Legion and Junior Auxiliary of the Hicksville American Legion Post will present a dance and musical revue at the Hempstead Legion Post Hall. Under the direction of Mrs. Michael Cladelia the children will entertain patients from Kings

GAIL GRUBEL of Hicksville and Martin Weiss of Levittown, co-Chairmen of the Service Committee of Integrity Chapter, B'nai B'rith Young Adults, smilingly present a check to Cheryl Gelfand, President of the Young Adults Group. The check is the proceeds of a dance run by the group for the benefit of the United Epilepsy Association.

FRANK J. HYNES (right), Receiver of Taxes for the Town of Oyster Bay, receives Long Island Lighting Company's $753,974 check in payment for the first half of LILCO's 1964-65 school taxes. Delivering the check for Nassau and Suffolk's largest taxpayer is Lawrence J. Fitzgerald, Manager of LILCO's Levittown District Office.

Park.

This is in conjunction with the rehabilitation program sponsored by Hempstead Post and Auxiliary. Mrs. Cladelia reported that the children have been rehearsing very diligently and have plans to entertain the residents of Jones Institute at their annual visit to the Home for the Aged for the Holiday season.

THINKING IT OVER

by ROBERT L. MORGAN

It is now fashionable to try to analyze how and why the election results came in as they did. And why in this county where the GOP leads in registration it did so badly in the County Executive race.

The answer to this question may lie in the regular outpourings of releases from the County. Whereas the GOP campaigns only at election time, County Executive Nickerson is campaigning every day. Week after week, we receive many photos of Mr. Nickerson in all types of poses. Many of the photos are just plain newsworthy without a political angle... and so most editors looking for something interesting to fill the paper will use them. From time to time we have been told that we must be leaning to Mr. Nickerson because we use so many of his pictures. Our election endorsements, however, shattered any of these illusions. We think Mr. Nickerson is a good man, but we think John Burns is a bit better.

But how often did we get anything in the human interest vein from Mr. Burns -- not often enough for it to make any impact and now that the election is over Mr. Nickerson is not through, he keeps them coming, but most top Republicans are just sitting around waiting until next year.

And there is the issue of the tax increase for Nassau County. This news would have had a great impact on the voters and it is natural that Mr. Nickerson would not reveal it of his own free will, who would? But why didn't John Burns brook beat this out of him in the many debates?

These points along with the silly attitude of the Rocky adherents who thought they would fix Goldwater has fixed the GOP in this county. If there is any analyzing to be done by the Republicans it had better be done with the kid gloves off.

Clotting Is Nature's Built In Tourniquet

By C.A. Dean, M.D.

MEDITORIAL: The inquisitive mind of a ten-year-old patient is partly responsible for today's column. While in my office last week with a large cut on his arm, he observed, "Gee, my blood gets hard real quick and easy. Why does it do that? Does the blood ever get hard inside?" Even though these questions seem simple, they have a good point.

What my little patient was referring to, of course, was clotting, nature's built in tourniquet. Without it we would all bleed to death the first time we received a good-sized cut. The clotting process is initiated by certain chemicals which are released at the site of injury. Nature wisely has counteracting chemicals to stop clotting once it has accomplished its goal. Otherwise clotting would progress to involve the entire content of the vascular system. This, obviously, is incompatible with life.

The boy's second query pertains to clots that occur inside a blood vessel (thrombosis). These can be quite serious and can occur in any part of the body if the conditions are right. Thrombosis may complicate operations, injuries, infections or hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis). This latter group includes coronary thrombosis which leads to heart attacks. Because of the importance of heart attacks, blood clotting mechanisms have been studied extensively in many centers. New knowledge has led to greater understanding of the complex character of clotting but much more still needs to be learned. Once clotting is completely understood, conquest of heart attacks should not be far behind.

Races And Manners

By Russell Kirk

Much of the antagonism between white and colored people in this country is caused by the behavior of disagreeable neurotics of either race. These eccentrics are simply misbehaving human beings who give vent to their frustrations and bad tempers by abuse of anyone who looks different from themselves. But too often the victims of such insult mistake mere personal defects for some "racial" vice.

Allow me a true anecdote. At Chicago's O'Hare Airport, a few days ago, I was waiting outside a women's restroom where my wife, the beautiful Annette, was rearranging her black hair. As I puffed on my pipe, I was startled by the sound of frantic pounding. A middle-aged white woman was banging hysterically at the restroom door. "It's locked! Unlock it, unlock it!" she screamed to the world.

Within a few seconds, the door was opened from within, and the angry woman disappeared behind it. Still my dilatory wife did not emerge. After some interval, out came the furious woman again, screaming, and followed by a good-looking colored girl who was the washroom attendant. "I'm going to report you and get you fired!" the virago screeched. She looked wildly about the corridor for someone in authority.

"You stop that, or somebody's going to get hurt!" retorted the colored girl, sufficiently angry herself, and somewhat bewildered.

At this juncture, two air-line pilots strolled along the corridor. Fixing them with her glittering eye, the enraged white matron poured out to them a long tale of woe, culminating in the demand that the washroom girl be dismissed on the spot. But the pilots extricated themselves, and the suffering plaintiff scurried around the corner, seeking more efficacious assistance. The colored girl withdrew to her duties.

When at last my Annette had finished her gilding of the lily, and rejoined me in the corridor, she added some details of the great restroom controversy. Once admitted within the portal, the white woman had screamed abuse at the colored attendant--an amiable-looking and neat young woman. "How had she dared to lock the door?" the patron demanded. The colored girl replied that, on regular instructions, she had locked the door for a few moments until she could finish mopping the floor. Still livid with rage, the white woman darted into a cubicle. "She called me 'nigger' twice," the attendant said to my surprised Annette. Then out burst the virago again, with more imprecations against the colored girl; and the scene I had witnessed in the corridor ensued.

Such mad aggressiveness is encountered as often among Negroes as among whites. Not long ago, on Detroit's Michigan Avenue, I noticed a tall white man, looking into a shop window, brush unintentionally and very slightly against a passing colored man. Cursing, the Negro half drew a razor, and might have used it, if I had not moved toward the pair. The white shopper was astounded to find that he had given offense.

"It is manners that keep the bowie knife from our throats," said James Russell Lowell. Often enough, the relationship between the races is less strained, even nowadays, in the southern states than in the northern cities. For manners--both white and colored manners are more regarded in the South, and tend to smooth sharp edges.

Whether their skins are white, black, brown, yellow, red, or sky-blue-pink, some people will seek to forget their own deficiencies by bullying, hectoring, or injuring folk of another hue. No ingenious Congressional legislation can put an end to such human depravity. In this, as in much else, our only hope for peace is in the Golden Rule--and in old codes of civility, too much neglected in this brash and scurrying time.

BEAUTY SECRETS

By Victor of Vilu

Your Hands Tell a Story

Take a look at your hands. Are they rough and red from housework? Or are they white, soft and smooth? The difference is not in the amount of work we do with them, but rather the care and attention we apply. A woman can take care of her children, scrub floors and scour dishes in an average, busy day and yet, when her chores are at an end, her hands can look soft and pampered. Many of us fail to realize that a fastidious woman is never careless about how her hands look, because beautiful hands are an important part of a beautiful woman. "But how can I use my hands in hot water, greasy soap and at the end of a splintery mop, and yet end up looking as though I never did an honest day's work with them in my life?" You may ask. Here are a few suggestions:

1. When washing dishes, use rubber gloves. They will offer you complete protection. Use work gloves in the garden and leather gloves when you drive. Gloves are a hand's best friend.

2. Use hand lotion often and use it generously. Keep a bottle near where you work. It will restore the necessary oils to dried out skin and make your hands tingle with life.

3. If you've really had a rough day shoveling snow or changing your husband's flat tire, don't despair. The damage to your poor hands can be repaired almost instantaneously. Just rub in some rich cream to soften them up, then wear cotton gloves to bed. Repeat the process if the redness and roughness persists. When your skin is restored, let your husband do the heavy work!

4. At least once a week, treat yourself to a professional manicure at Vilu. Even though your hands may be as soft as baby's, your nails must look well trimmed in order to look their best. A professional manicure is only a small luxury, yet what a big difference it will make in your beauty makeup.

Follow these simple steps and your hands need never give away the fact that you do not enjoy sleepless nights! For questions or consultation call or see Mr. Victor at Vilu, Ov 1-8760, 534 S. Broadway, Hicksville.

David Huschle's Maine Maid Inn, Jericho, has a good thing going for it Sunday afternoons, too. That's when his N.Y. Giants fan club gather. After the game about 35 or 40 members gather to eat, drink and discuss their Giants. Win or lose, they're all ladies and gentlemen. David Huschle wouldn't have it otherwise...Nassau vocational adviser to a young man: "Your vocational aptitude test indicates that your best opportunities lie in the field where your father holds an influential position..." Suffolk beauty shop sign: "Home Permanent Corrected Here" ...East Hampton's Bob Gerred said: "People wouldn't get divorced for such trivial reasons if they didn't get married for such trivial reasons." (Reno, everyone?) ... A Riverhead doctor, picking up his car at a filling station garage, was highly indignant at the size of the repair bill. "All this for a few hours work!" he yelled. "Why, you charge more for your work than we of the medical profession do!" The mechanic drawled: "Well, now, the way I look at it, we got it coming to us. You guys been working on the same old model since time began, but we gotta learn a brand-new model every year." At Carl Hoppl's plush Westbury Manor (WPJX) and the beautiful Mrs. Tillman, were amused at the question asked of an oil company tycoon: "How can you tell, when you build a service station on the corner, that you are going to strike oil there?" ... Note from a teacher: "With so many married students in college these days, unusual situations are not infrequent. Still, I was a bit amused to read the following excuse for absence from my Tuesday-Thursday class: 'Please excuse my absence Thursday. I am in the hospital having a baby. I will be back in class Tuesday!'" At the bar: "I really don't get it. You see this guy asked me if I could dance. I was dancing with him when he asked me." (poor thing)... Manhasset's John Tillman: "Too many people who have passed their driving tests think they can pass anything..." A child shall lead: A little girl of our acquaintance composed the following fable: "Once there was a boy and girl and they loved each other very much, but they couldn't get married because they didn't have any money. They talked it over, and finally decided to be good and not make any babies until he could earn some money. That same night on the way home he found a purse containing a million dollars, and so they got married right off. And the very next day she had twins, which proves that virtue brings its own reward." (Dear Mr. Editor, I didn't change a word!) ... Sign language in a Queens post office: "Send your gifts early--besides facilitating the mail, it gives the receiver a chance to reciprocate." LONG ISLAND PICTORIAL REVIEW

CINDERELLA: Stefanie Osborne, 15, of Bayshore, was transformed into a glamour girl by two beauty godmothers during Teen Age Beauty Day, at The World's Fair Clairol Pavilion. The transformation was part of a demonstration for teen age girls to educate them in basic beauty techniques and hair care. (Graphic News Photos.)

And in the "Miss Italian-America" contest, at Palisades Amusement Park, N.J., Maria Carlucci, (34-25-34), 20-year-old 5'8" resident of N. Bellmore, won the crown from more than 1,000 Italian-American beauties. Camille Bonanno, right, was 1963 winner. (Graphic News Photos)

L.I. College Grid Title Is Toss-Up

The three top college grid teams on Long Island—Hofstra, C.W. Post, and Kings Point—are more equally matched this year than in previous years. Hofstra, weakened by injuries and lack of depth, will try to better its 8-6 win-loss campaign of 1963. C.W. Post with 21 lettermen returning, had a 6 and 3 record in '63, and plays Hofstra on Nov. 26 at home. Kings Point, whose forward wall was depleted by graduation, scored a 5-3-1 record in '63. They face C.W. Post on Oct. 19 at home, and Hofstra, at Hempstead, on Nov. 14th. (Graphic News Photos.)

Joe Sconnella, new coach at C.W. Post, leads chalk-talk session in field house classroom. Play on board was discarded (for security reasons) after photo was taken.

Coach Howdy Myers, in his 15th season at Hofstra, faces roughest year since he left John Hopkins U., to become one of the winningest (109-49-3) coaches in the East. Dick Swanson 190-lbs., 6'1" speedster from Bayshore, whose '63 season was halved by an appendicitis operation will be a quarterback for "The Dutchmen."

"Chuck" Mills, new Kings Point coach, runs over the lineups with Bill Nakos a 200 lb. 6-footer, a senior, from Oceanside, captain of "The Mariners" who has been moved to fullback to bolster the running attack.

Against that splendid autumn setting Farmingdale always affords a Hicksville visit, the Orange and Black once again found the balm for a punishing season with a traditional 19-7 victory over the Dalers.

It was Hicksville's twenty-second win as against nine losses in this consoling series and it brought the Comets campaign to a close with a mathematically respectable 5 won and 3 lost.

Hicksville finished third in the Section One conference. Since it left the competition of Nassau elites such as Garden City, Mineola and Port, four years ago, Hicksville has not won outright in the fledgling league.

And the gall of the season is that even though it staggered Clarke of South Westbury 32-6, in a sea of mud, the Rams beat Hicksville out in the standings.

The game started 11 minutes early and only 32 persons were in the Hicksville stands as the Comets immediately consumed 73 yards in 7 plays. Larry Wesolko batted three times, Pat Argento ran 43 and Dennis Yastras nailed Bill Corrigan with a vital 9 yard completion. Yastras rolled out for the last 8 yards on a quarterback keep.

Wesolko plunged for the extra point and Hicksville lead 7-0.

The school buses arrived with the Hicksville booster and cheerleaders after that, but they had to wait until late in the third period before the Orange went over the line again.

Farmingdale was hanging in 7-6 when the Comets were confronted with a fourth and four on the home 42. After a time out conference with coach Jim Grantham, Yastras pulled the most sparkling play of the season.

He jumped straight up as if to toss a short pass over the line to Corrigan. He came down with the ball and Corrigan but on a burst of speed for the endzone and Yastras dropped back and tossed a long aerial for the score.

A short while later Sal Pascarella broke the game wide open.

The Farmingdale spirit was never in more evidence than it was Saturday morning. The Dalers rose up and prevented an undefeated season for the Hicksville Jay Vee with a strong 7-0 victory. The winners scored on the first play of the second half with a roll up and 74-yard pass play.

Hicksville ace Jeff Doolittle threw on target repeatedly but could not get the receivers to hold on.

A telling factor was the inside practice of the team for the past three weeks. Sophomore's get out of school at 6:10 p.m. and cannot take the field in the dark. The timing and sharpness of the club was missing.

The annual Thanksgiving Eve Faculty - Alumni basketball game has been canceled this year due to the PTA scheduling a game just five nights before. This 15-year old event had become a fixture in the community but has now been moved to as yet an undecided night in December.

LIBRARY NOTES

By Elizabeth K. Clawson

Everybody is nowadays stumped by new scientific or technological terms. If we finished our schooling some years ago, some new sciences were not yet heard of; if we graduated recently, science has become so specialized that no one can even recognize terms outside his own field. If you find yourself bewildered, or in need of information, your Bethpage Public Library has an excellent selection of recent reference books to help you.

The first book to consult might be "Van Nostrand's Scientific Encyclopedia." Its third edition (1958) reports, in one large volume, on all the sciences from aeronautics and astronomy to statistics and zoology. It defines and explains about 15,000 terms used in science and technology. The entries are arranged alphabetically with extensive cross references.

A very different concept is presented in the "Harper Encyclopedia of Science" edited by James R. Newman, published in 1962 in four volumes. Here the editors favored long integrated articles rather than multitudinous dictionary entries, and laid emphasis on explanation rather than cataloging of facts. It is written with a minimum of jargon, and even articles on highly technical subjects devote at least an initial paragraph to a simple layman's resume. A good deal of bibliographical material is included, as are instructive illustrations. An index directs to information not in the main headings.

More coverage is provided in the "McGraw Hill Encyclopedia of Science and Technology" published in 1960 in 15 volumes and kept up to date by year books. Its editorial policy was "to provide the widest possible range of articles that will be understandable and useful to any person of modest technical training."

The subject matter of the various disciplines is organized systematically: a general article provides a broad survey of the field, and a number of separate articles cover its main subdivisions and more specific aspects. The longer of the 7,200 articles begin with a definition, and go on to increasingly complex and detailed considerations. A reader thus needs to proceed only as far as his inclinations and requirements dictate. 60,000 cross references and an index filling a whole volume help guide the reader to facts not under a main heading. It is well illustrated.

If your needs go beyond that of the layman, your Bethpage Public Library can help you also. The "International Dictionary of Physics and Electronics" (Van Nostrand, 1956) covers its field in one big volume. It is excellent when all that is needed is a definition, a formula, or the brief description of the laws, relationships, equations, basic principles and concepts. If you need more than a dictionary definition, you may want to consult the "Encyclopedic Dictionary of Physics" published in 1963 by Macmillan. Its scope can be grasped by a look at the Index, which fills the whole eighth volume, and gives "all reasonable variations of the 15,000 terms listed." It is a serious scientific work with each article signed by a specialist in his field.
