BEAUTY SECRETS

By Victor of Vilu

An Important Announcement For Home Hair Stylists

We are pleased to announce the opening of a new department in our beauty parlor, dedicated to the many women who supplement their visits to our salon with home care. Our new "do-it-yourself" department features all the nationally advertised brands of hair preparations, hair dyes, permanent and beauty products - at cut rate prices.

Why should a Beauty Salon encourage home care by making these products available to our patrons? For many reasons, among which is our recognition of the importance of following up your regular visits for professional services by our stylists, with supplementary care and attention. Hair and skin care is not a once a week job, but a daily "must" for today's beauty conscious women.

What better place to purchase the supplies that make this home work possible, than in the beauty parlor itself? Our beauty specialists are on hand to give you the benefit of their professional knowledge in helping you select the right product for your individual requirements and showing you the "right" way to use it. No two persons' needs are the same for beauty maintenance is a personalized problem, needing a personalized solution.

In addition to this individual service and attention, you'll pay 'much less' at your favorite beauty parlor than at any other store in the neighborhood. We buy right, and we sell at cut rate prices - an important consideration during these pre-holiday days when your spending money is at a premium, because of your gift purchases, that take up most of your spare money.

Yes, you'll save money, save time -- we have a skilled specialist ready to serve you, and you'll look your very best because we have dedicated ourselves to helping you take care of your "home work" with skill and direction. Drop in and see for yourself how we help you help yourself. For questions or consultation call or see Mr. Victor at Vilu, OV 1-8760, 534 S. Broadway, Hicksville.

Local Dems Hold Huddle

A proposed tax study, the sale of Mississippi bonds and a slate of officers for 1965 set off sparks at the regular meeting of the Levittown Democratic Club last Thursday at Levittown Hall.

Warmth which greeted guest speaker, County comptroller-elect Peter Rocchio quickly changed as nominations were opened to the floor by club president Frank Schwartz following presentation of the official slate. Disqualification of his nomination of blind veteran Democrat Ken Bruning brought charges of "railroading" from Committeeman Irving Gold, perennial thorn in the side of Democratic leaders here.

Gold also derided a resolution advising assemblyman-elect Herbert Sachs to sponsor a non-partisan study of the overall tax structure, denouncing it as "window-dressing, political inaction and contrary to the 'ability-to-pay' tax platform upon which Democrats were elected."

A resolution "deploring" First National City Bank's purchase of Mississippi state bonds as "condonment of lawless violence and racism" made by Gold was defeated by a motion to table it for future consideration.

Not to be outdone, committeeman Gold placed his own name in nomination for club executive board member-at-large. It was seconded without challenge.

500 Protest Apartment Bid

A bid to build 80 one and two bedroom apartments on a five acre plot east of Broadway Hicksville at Bethpage Road was met with protests by 60 people who presented the Town Board with a petition signed by 500 names Tuesday. The group represented the Midland Civic Association.

Some Hicksville Senior Citizens appeared in favor of the project and said that facilities for the aged are badly needed.

If the Town Board granted the request of Spiegel it would have to down zone the land from residence to garden apartment use. Spiegel also wants a general business zoning so he can build from three to seven stores.

The Midland Civic Assn. says the change would downgrade the neighborhood and increase the traffic in the area.

The Board reserved decision.

THE HICKSVILLE POLICE BOYS CLUB, held it's annual Christmas Party for approximately 100 boys, at the American Legion Hall, Nicholas Street, on Wednesday, December 16.

The boys who attended, had previously worked on selling candy at the past candy sale held in November. The highlight of the evening was the appearance of Mr. Gary Fiedler, renowned Magician. Mr. Fiedler delighted his audience once again with some new magic and kept the boys guessing most of the evening.

Many gifts were given out and the menu consisted of hot dogs, soda and Carvels. It was obvious that the boys had a wonderful time and will be looking forward to the next party.

Many Sponsors and members of the Ladies Auxiliary turned out to assist Patrolman Director Frank Darcy, in carrying out the many details connected with the party. Once again the American Legion showed it's interest and community spirit by donating the use of the hall to the Hicksville Police Boys Club.

Mr. Gregory also presented slides he had produced, explaining geological formations.

Lions Continue Upward Trend

The up and coming Bethpage Lions continued to show sharp improvement by beating the Jets 13 to 8 in the Connie Meade Basketball League for boys 9, 10, 11. Jimmy Callahan and Bill Cole each had two baskets for the Lions. Steve Hiller and David Mackey led the Jets.

In the second game the powerful Knicks turned on the Blue Hornets 16 to 9. Paul and Al Gross started the game off with back to back baskets and the Hornets could not catch up. Bob Cantwell and Bob Rothman played very well for the Hornets.

THINKING IT OVER

By Robert L. Morgan

Our issue this week is published one day earlier than usual to allow staff members to enjoy the Christmas holidays. Some late news has necessarily been eliminated, but will be included in next week's editions.

We visit all of our readers, advertisers and friends a happy Christmas and we also want to remind the many children who read this newspaper that our Christmas present to them this year is our first annual children's show at the Prudential Hicksville theatre. This show is free to all boys and girls who present a ticket found in this newspaper or reprint tickets from many local stores and newsstands. This will be a full two-hour show including a full length presentation, "The Three Stooges Meet Hercules" and five color cartoons. This show will go on at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, December 29 (a holiday from school). We urge everyone between the ages of 4 and 12 to be there at opening time because we are expecting a crowd and we do not want to disappoint anyone.

We'll see you there.

Pulmonary Emphysema Doesn't Require Operation

By C. A. Dean, M.D.

(Q) "I have been informed that I have a mild case of pulmonary emphysema." Is this condition progressive? Will an operation eventually be necessary? I tire and become short of breath easily."

Mrs. T.H.

(A) Pulmonary emphysema is a progressive disease in most cases. As I have mentioned before, all smoking must be stopped. Operations are not part of the treatment, but breathing exercises and the use of positive pressure breathing machines are often effective in helping patients to "hold their own." A specialist in the treatment of this disease should be consulted.

MEDITORIAL: A reader recently sent me a copy of a label from a bottle of sodium fluoride (the ingredient used in fluoridation of public water supplies). In addition to the usual warning found on bottled chemicals which can be poisonous in large enough doses was this admonition: "Do you wish to drink some of this deadly poison with every glass of water? If you don't, fight against fluoridation..." "How about this?" the reader asks.

Such labels are used to frighten people unfamiliar with the facts. To imply that water becomes poisonous with the recommended amount (one part per million) of sodium fluoride is ridiculous and untrue. Fluorides are normally present in the drinking water of most parts of the country. Some areas have water containing fluoride levels of two, three or more parts per million and residents do not suffer from any ill health or disease.

To say that drinking some water with sodium fluoride in it is like taking poison is the same as saying taking aspirin is like taking poison. Millions of aspirin tablets are taken daily and everyone knows that aspirin can act as a poison only when taken in too large a dose. The same applies to sleeping pills. The recommended dosage never hurts anyone, but an overdose results in death.

Socialism Must Pay It's Way

By Russell Kirk

"The Labor Government of Britain necessarily is becoming the least socialistic of Socialist administrations. No sooner had he assumed the post of prime minister than Mr. Harold Wilson discovered that he cannot deviate markedly from Tory policies.

Although Mr. Wilson says he will proceed with a gradual and partial nationalization of the steel industry, already he has been compelled to give up the scheme of meddling with the oil industry. We will hear little more about nationalizing land. In foreign policy, no break with Conservative measures is yet discernible.

What gave the Labor cabinet a rude shock was the perilous situation of the pound sterling less than a month after he had won the general election. The pound was saved from devaluation only by the help of foreign governments and foreign bankers. Labor's grandiose talk of vast new "welfare" expenditures, and its dubious budget, promptly undermined confidence in sterling's stability. For socialism, like every other form of political organization, must pay its way; and if government expenditure produces inflation of currency, no one will trust that government's bonds and money.

Devaluation of the pound would inflict great injury, in the long run, upon British capital; and it would be a confession that the Labor government cannot manage the economy effectively. With Mr. Wilson's tiny majority in Parliament, devaluation might bring a new general election -- and a Labor defeat -- within months.

So the Wilson cabinet is likely to refrain from measures and language which would alarm investors and the great middle class which really dominates British society. Mr. Wilson already is finding it necessary to repress the doctrinaire "left" within his own party. Despite the support he has enjoyed from that left, his government will not be more radical than the sort of socialism represented by the late Hugh Gaitskell.

Yet despite Mr. Wilson's involuntary moderation, probably the pound will have to be devalued, before many months are out. Inflation of wages and prices has been proceeding for years, and Wilson inherits the economic difficulties which the Macmillan and Home governments tried to check. This commentator writes from London, where the cost of food and lodging and nearly everything has risen drastically over the past five years. Clearly, the pound is not really worth the $2.78 which is its nominal exchange-value; compared with the Swiss franc, the French franc, and the German mark, sterling is a "soft" currency. To compete in the foreign trade which is Britain's life-blood, eventually -- and probably soon -- the pound will have to sink to a realistic ratio -- $2.50 in dollar exchange, or even lower.

In the days of the Attlee government, doctrinaire Socialists proclaimed that their government could follow whatever fiscal policies it might fancy, and that the United States would be compelled to underwrite the British economy, willy-nilly. They soon were taught their error. The United States and other governments will not repeat the subsidizing of sterling which they volunteered a few weeks ago. And it is most improbable that any abrupt Labor program of governmental economy and emphasis upon "hard work" will be developed to decrease costs and prices, and so prevent devaluation.

Thus socialism, after all, is governed by certain iron laws of economics. A socialist government cannot lift itself by its own bootstraps, nor interfere radically with the modern industrial system. Wilson finds himself confronting the dilemma which overwhelmed Attlee and Bevan in the post-war years.

Oddments and Endments

A young man fresh out of college applied for work with a trust company. Told he must take a group of tests, he willingly answered all questions genuinely concerned with aptitude. But when he got to some very personal questions about suppressed desires, sexual appetite, etc., he threw down his pen, got up, handed the papers to the personnel manager and said, in words or substance: "If I have to demean myself so much as to answer outrageously personal questions like these, I simply don't want the job." With that, he stomped out of the office.

Apparently that young man doesn't know that today human beings are merely computerized ciphers. Why should the science that can blow man to smithereens, burn him to a crisp, or transform him into nothingness be concerned with the dignity of man, the sanctity of his soul, or his birthright of privacy?

After all, can a science without a soul be expected to have a conscience?

A neat this same subject, a Manasquan, New Jersey, mother who objected to a local psychological test given to 600 members of a freshman class which invades family privacy elicited the response from the state director of school psychology that the test in question is not a psychological test at all.

The local school psychologist then was quoted as saying that students given the test were asked to check off problems that concerned them. The problem check list is often another name for the personality profile type of psychological test.

Clearly, someone is lying here, and it certainly isn't the mother of the school child subjected to the snoopy psychological test.

Next the psychologists would have us believe that tests of the psyche have nothing to do with the human brain.

Best statement I have heard of late on this whole subject was that of the wife of an Elwood, Long Island, school board member, who, on being told that a psychiatrist has said that nine out of ten cases referred to him by school children "there's absolutely nothing wrong with", answered: "Yes, but think of the ten percent!"

Ten percent accuracy and 90 percent quackery. And this in the halls of education?

Cabbageheadery on the upswing? Reports have it that a "safe cigarette" developed from lettuce leaves is imminent. Look for the tobacco industry to strike back promptly by inventing a tomato and tobacco-leaf sandwich on toast, with or without mayo.

Gromyko extends velvet glove at United Nations while Russian leaders slam the U.S. NATO policy.

Just another sample of the Russians' blow-hot-and-cold war -- based upon the lessons of Pavlovian psychology, no doubt.

I hear the U.S. is asking the Indonesians to pay for the damages caused when they burnt up a U.S. Information Service library of 27,000 volumes.

Since we have given the Indonesians millions of good old U.S. money over the years, why ask for any of it back?

Besides, haven't the Indonesians proved that they can burn up our money with what was heretofore thought to be the unmatched facility of the D.C. variety of Washingtonians?

Derby Time Regis. Drive

By Ted Isoldi
The world's greatest amateur racing event will soon be here again. Race date for the Eastern Nassau Soap Box Derby has been set for early July. In order to give the greatest number of boys ample time to plan and build successful racers, the Derby Committee, headed by Ray Beers, has announced that early registration will take place during Christmas week at Frog Hollow Chevrolet, Hicksville Rd., Bethpage. Important to boys between the ages of 11 and 15 is that they must be accompanied by a parent or guardian when they register. Local derby activity, sponsored by Chevrolet and co-sponsored by this newspaper, begins for the youngsters immediately after they sign up and doesn't end until each contestant races on Derby Day for the opportunity to represent Eastern Nassau at the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio this August 13th. There the local representative will compete for thousands of dollars in college scholarships. Locally, participation awards will be given to each boy who completes a racer and competes on Derby Day, aside from the sizeable trophy awards given to the first five places. The top award carries a free expense trip to Akron for both contestant and parent, plus a $500 bond donated by Chevrolet.

The time to enter the Soap Box Derby is now. Upon registering, boys will receive monthly newsletters keeping them posted on derby developments as they unfold. Presently, a soap clinic, headed by Gerald Viola, father of two past local champions, is being planned. The clinic will provide a facility where derby entrants and their parents can receive aid in developing successful derby racers. Announcement of dates will be made later.

Win or lose, an experience is to be gained by entering the derby. For a boy it may develop into something personal. A father-son relationship may be born out of working together solving a construction problem. Individuality may be realized out of creativity. Identity may come with achievement.

When his own 180 pounds fell backwards on his arm twisted behind, Saturday, it was the most damaging scrimmage play Hicksville High has had in basketball in many, many years.

For Guy Van Wagenen emerged with a broken wrist and will be sidelined for six weeks. He will be back for the final month's drive if Hicksville can hold on to be within reaching distance of a play-off berth.

It is reported that coach Ed Petro will move six-three, 185 pound Jim Webb into Van Wagenen's spot to help share the load with Bill Corrigan. Webb is a transfer from Alabama. He is reported capable of doing a good job but will have to learn the restrained Nassau County game. If he cannot curb the free style, aggressive game allowed down South the Nassau officials will pounce on him like tigers.

The loss of Guy made the assignment against Long Island Lutheran, fresh from a Christmas tourney victory in Chicago, Illinois, impossible. It would hardly seem that coach Petro and assistant Gus Alfieri can rally the Comets for their Christmas week tourney at Great Neck South.

The Orange and Black opens Monday with the host South team on Monday night. It is a very difficult assignment with the edge to the Blazers on their home boards.

Travel Tip: Hicksville fans who have never been to Great Neck South can find the school easily. It may be reached by the Long Island Expressway or the connecting service road. It stands on a high hill on the South side. Take the first exit after New Hyde Park Road, make a left under the bridge and a demanded left again and you are in front of the school.

It would definitely be an upset but this team is capable of following Petro's game plan and he has had a look at Great Neck South. That is enough to give Hicksville a crack:

Hicksville 36, Great Neck South 33

After three successful years against the Alumni team the Faculty was a bit short-handed for the annual game at Hicksville High and it was the wrong night.

The Coletta brothers - Chris, Vincent and Frank -- answered the Alumni's call for help in the fund raiser for the annual sports dinner and they graciously traveled from their present home in Rhode Island to participate.

Bitter temperatures, and a previous game held the crowd under four hundred, but they saw an explosive first quarter. Combining with the Colettas were New York Jet Jim McKinstry and Billy Luft.

Popping from all over the Alumni ran to a 13-4 lead and a 23-11 quarter lead. The final score was 66-52.

Gus Alfieri, who has always made himself available for these Alumni and PTA games, tried hard for the Faculty, but he did need a bit more help.

Following the contest the Alumni members held a dance for the students in the gym.

Ex-Hicksville High star, Paul Calasano had a six minute part in the St. John's University Frosh 72-56 victory over Rutgers Freshman, Saturday. It was the preliminary contest to the 76-72 victory over Notre Dame. Alumni Hall has become a Saturday night mecca for Hicksville fans with more than 200 there Saturday night.

If You Please

By Peter Pettibone

Here's how to color flames in your wood-burning fireplace to order: Soak pine cones or pieces of wood in the following chemical solutions for two minutes, then dry in a warm room. For green flames: To one gallon of water add one pound of boric acid. For blue flames: Mix one gallon of water with one pound of copper sulphate. To one gallon of water add one pound of strontium nitrate and you'll get red flames. These chemicals can be purchased at most any drug store...Some-time ago two members of the Syosset Kiwanis Club, Mike Dane and Don Betts, wrote a poem about this columnist: they call it "Yakity Yak!"

Your gossiping never ends
You know the score on everyone,
Including all your friends.
But what would really shock you
And stop your gabbling too
Is just to hear what others say
When they start in on you!

Listen fellows, I don't print gossip. I only print gags, gimmicks, facts, observations and short stories. This is strictly confidential, don't tell a soul. Why I could see them plain as day. Far be it from me to criticize, but keep this under your hat. How does she have the nerve? I knew something funny was going on...Imagine...Where there's smoke there's fire, therefore, I must admit - it's true about Zsa Zsa...Centerport's Al Mele swears he heard one of customers say, "If she wasn't my wife, boy, could I go for her!"...My pal 80-year-old John Punton, during one of our Rothmann's coffee-breaks, gave a quote from his friend the late Teddy Roosevelt: "I am only an average man, but John, I work harder at it than does the average man."...A Southampton father speaks: "We have had bad luck with our children, they have all grown up."...Son Chuckle's gem of the week: "Look Dad, those dead leaves are doing hand-springs on our lawn!"...From the Grapevine: Prejudice: (1) Being down on anything you are not up on. (2) A vagrant opinion without visible means of support. (3) The difference between prejudice and a conviction is that you can explain a conviction without getting mad...I think I've read this somewhere before, but it was sent to me by a Hicksville reader and bears repeating, because so few of us really know what the various "Isms" are all about. She calls it "Parable of the Isms." Socialism: If you have two cows, you give one to a neighbor. Communism: If you have two cows, you give them to the government and then the government gives you some milk. Fascism: If you have two cows you keep them and give their milk to the government; then the government sells you some milk. Dictatorism: The government shoots you and takes the cows. Capitalism: If you have two cows, you sell one and buy a bull... I sincerely hope the readers of this and all other columns, newspapers, magazines and the bible are having a delightful Christmas Season and will have a wonderful 1965...If you Please, God..
