HAPPY NEW YEAR

GREETINGS TO ALL

Christian Mothers Christmas Party

The parochial school basement was transformed into a beautiful red and white setting for the annual Christmas party of the St. Ignatius Auxiliary of Christian Mothers. After a few brief announcements, President Madelyn Gough dispensed with the regular meeting. The clergy, sisters and mothers settled down to a very pleasant social evening highlighted by Satna's distribution of gifts.

The men of the Glee Club outdid themselves with several beautiful selections in addition some of their clever parodies.

Mrs. Jane Schrieber won a Dark Horse prize of $30. Other lucky winners of prizes were Gloria Moore, Imelda Davis and Joan Korb. Sister Mary Warren won a gift certificate.

Chairladies Grace Way and Winifred Lillis are to be congratulated for the beautiful decorations and the efficiency of their committee of helpers.

The Skating Party will be held on January 21 at Roosevelt Field Ice Rink. All are invited to attend. The next regular meeting will be held on Monday, January 25 at 8:15 p.m. Eileen Riols of the Catholic Speakers Guild will be the guest for the evening. Her topic will be "Saints, Sinners and Ourselves".

In Service

Seaman apprentice WARREN R. SCHUSTER, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Schuster of 48 Meeting Lane, Hicksville, is participating in a convoy training operation called "Fast Express" while serving aboard the attack cargo ship USS Union, enroute to the Far East.

The exercise is designed to test the protection capabilities of a simulated merchant ship convoy under simulated wartime conditions. Simulated wartime conditions of submarine attack and airborne nuclear attack will exist.

First Lieut. THOMAS L. GRIST, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Grist of Route 2, Marietta, Ga., has completed the U. S. Air Force special training course for combat aircrew members at Castle AFB, Calif.

The lieutenant is a graduate of Marietta High School. His wife, Myra, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Giansante of 126 Lee Ave., Hicksville.

WILLIAM P. BOYCE, seaman apprentice, USCG, son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Boyce of 57 Burns ave., Hicksville, is serving aboard the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Westwind, operating out of the New York Naval Shipyard, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The icebreaker Westwind recently returned to the shipyard following a six month deployment in Arctic waters. While in the Arctic, the Westwind replenished the supplies of Arctic area military bases on Greenland, Iceland and Newfoundland.

Pvt. THOMAS F. LANCER, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Lancer of 23 Sheridan Ave., Bethpage, has completed Army basic training at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

Pvt. Lancer has been assigned to the 25th Aviation Battalion, Wheel-er Air Force Base in Hawaii. The 22 year old private is a graduate of Bethpage High School.

MANY OF HICKSVILLE'S SENIOR CITIZENS were cheered by the renditions of the Hicksville Junior Mixed Chorus, under the direction of Miss Florence Bowmar, when they recently met at Levittown Hall. Richard Been, also of the Junior high music staff, accompanied at the piano. The Senior Citizens' Group is one segment of Hicksville's Adult Education program.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER T. GORRY, of Plainview, have announced the engagement of their daughter Patricia Sharon Gorry to John Stephen Dougherty, Jr.

Mr. Dougherty, Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Dougherty, is president of Sound Electronics Corp. A July wedding is planned. Photo by Charbonnet.

Junior High Helps Charity

The 8th and 9th grade girls of the Hicksville Jr. High School home economics department recently conducted a jelly apple sale, as a result of their implementation of what they had learned in their cooking classes.

The proceeds were used to bring cheer to less fortunate girls at Madonna Heights School for Girls in Huntington. The 'home' girls were, thereby, afforded an opportunity to do for others. Mrs. Mrs. Clifford, Miss Fischetti, Mrs. Snyder and Miss Leibowitz's classes participated in this project.

Little League Prepares For 1965

THINKING IT OVER

By Robert L. Morgan

This is the last of the holiday issues and as last week our deadline has been stepped up one day to allow for the curtailment of the mail delivery on New Year's and for the holiday for our employees.

The end of the year is usually the time for making wishes and reviewing what has taken place in the past year.

We will not be especially happy to see 1964 go, nor were we happy to see 1963 go by either. Both of these years have been good ones for our newspapers. Our circulation and advertising volume are at a high point and we must number them as record years.

But time goes on and we believe 1965 will also be a good year for the communities we serve and for our newspapers.

We are planning some major improvements in typography in the next few weeks and we believe the change will be met favorably by our readers and advertisers who have stayed with us through good and bad times. The theory behind the small community type newspaper is that it must present as much of the news of its area as it can cram into its pages. And our newspapers have led the way in doing this, with news about the little events that cannot find their way into the large metropolitan type newspapers, but are important to the area. We also feel that the opinions of the people in our area must be given vent and only a local newspaper can have room for this. In the past we have always geared our policy to these principles and we will continue to do so in the years ahead.

Happy New Year,

Bird May Spread Viral Disease

By C.A. Dean, M.D.

(Q) "My husband and I have recently purchased a parakeet and are now worried about it spreading infections. We read something about such a possibility and wonder if it is true."

D.M.

(A) It is possible for parakeets to spread a viral disease called psittacosis. This particular virus produces an illness very similar to pneumonia. It can be quite serious. The disease, if present in the bird, is spread via droppings or a bite. Reputable dealers usually check their stock for illness, prior to any sale.

MEDITORIAL: Diagnosis of tuberculosis leaned heavily on chest X-rays in the past. Although this is still a very useful method, emphasis is now being placed on skin testing. One reason for this is to minimize unnecessary X-ray exposure. Skin testing, as an initial means of detecting tuberculosis is useful in low incidence groups, such as in children. The skin test can be easily applied and read without discomfort to the patient. If a positive test is discovered, then a chest X-ray is taken. By reserving the chest films for patients with positive skin tests, there is less X-ray exposure.

The Public Health Service is now recommending skin testing as the first step in the diagnosis of tuberculosis. In this way chest X-rays can be done selectively, rather than on a mass community-wide basis.

Do you have a medical question? Write Dr. C.A. Dean in care of this newspaper.

A World Architecturally Mad

By Russell Kirk

Despite the technological genius of our time, our taste in architecture -- and even our technique in architecture -- is low. The buildings of our age are vastly dull, and will starve the imagination of future generations. But we cheerfully demolish fine buildings of the past to make way for our dreary creations.

Also some of our most pretentious new buildings are wretchedly designed. I think, for instance, of the new city hall in Newcastle, England. This is a twelve-story monster of glass and steel -- mostly the former. But, in the grimy town of Newcastle-on-Tyne, no provision has been made for washing the monster's gigantic expanse of windows! The outside of the panes can't be reached from within; and there is no means by which a window washer's platform can be lowered from the top of the building. So presently, it appears, the city hall's glass will be black as the coal which gave Newcastle its prosperity.

It seems sufficiently paradoxical that we erect these towers of brittle glass in the age of the guided missile and the blockbuster bomb, which would kill everybody inside with glass splinters. But something in the modern temper seems to detest any substantial edifice. Anyone who happened to walk through the sumptuous lobbies of the Savoy Plaza Hotel, in Manhattan, would have expected this handsome and luxurious building, many stories high, to endure for another hundred years, anyway -- until a few months ago. But now it has been announced that the Savoy Plaza is to be demolished (after all, it was some four decades old, you know) to make way for a mediocre glass office-building. I shouldn't be inordinately surprised to learn that St. Patrick's Cathedral, or St. John the Divine, had been supplanted by a flimsy shopping-center. (Though I'd best not put ideas into promoters' heads.)

In Stockholm, once among the most interesting and beautiful of capitals, Swedish builders are rapidly destroying the good architecture and charming old streets of that city of islands. Vaguely "international" structures, out of scale and unrelated to Swedish culture, glassy and garish and boring, have become the architectural order of the day.

In Britain, "development trusts" are rapidly devastating the cathedral cities and county towns -- having already spoilt the big industrial and commercial centers. Exeter has been ruined in recent years by these promoters; the center of old Worcester is now as flat as if it had been blitzed, awaiting the shoddy and featureless new office buildings and "multiple shops" to be erected by the development trusts. The heart of medieval York is menaced by the same impersonal and unscrupulous organizations, controlled by stockholders who never see the towns they uglify.

In a Scottish town I know well, Kirkcaldy, the local authorities have just demolished all the houses in the old Nethergate, which could have been rehabilitated at moderate cost, and which were testimony to good Scots building over three centuries. Hereafter, the unfortunate residents of Kirkcaldy will be housed, in increasing numbers in immense municipally owned towers on the waterfront, as if Kirkcaldy could become Manhattan. Huxley's "Brave New World" comes closer every day.

My friend, Max Picard, the Swiss philosopher, writes that the modern age is the world of "the flight from God." Our new buildings, he remarks, look as if they were part of this flight, prepared to vanish at a strong puff of wind. "I'll huff and I'll puff and I'll blow your house down," says the diabolical wolf to the three little pigs. There's many a symbolic truth in nursery tales, friends.

Jets End With Win

The Bethpage Jets closed out the first half of the Connie Meade Basketball League for boys 9, 10, 11, by nipping the Knicks 14 to 12. Charlie Wilgozz and Steve Hiller led the Jets while Richard Pietzok led the Knicks.

In the second game the Bethpage Hornets defeated the Lions 15 to 4. Tommy Campbell and Bob Cantwell with 6 points led the Hornets while Jimmy Callahan did all the scoring for the Lions. In a very well played 'Bantam' game, boys 10 to 12, St. Boniface of Sea Cliff turned back the Bethpage Comets 36 to 24. Dan Martin and Frank Lusi teamed up to almost catch St. Boniface.

The Bethpage Raiders 10 to 12, defeated St. Ignatius "B" of Hicksville 13 to 10 in a low scoring contest. Steve Flanagan got the Raiders away in front and St. Ignatius never could catch up.

High Average School Students

At the end of the first marking period, the following number of students appeared on the various Honor Rolls at the Hicksville Jr. High School:

Principal's List (Average of at least 95% or over) - 19

Honor Roll (Average of at least 90% or over) - 254.

Honorable Mention (Average of at least 85% or over) - 483 Total 756

The total of 756 represents approximately 25% of the Junior High School students having received an average of at least 85% or over.

Rosary Society Meets Jan. 4

The first meeting of the new year of the Our Lady of Mercy Rosary Society will present Acting Judge Michael M. D'Auria as guest speaker. The subject matter will be on his experiences with juvenile offenders in Nassau County Court.

The next meeting will be held, Monday, January 4, 8:30 p.m., in Our Lady of Mercy School auditorium, So. Oyster Bay Road, Hicksville.

Lantern Theatre Performs Jan. 22

The Lantern Theatre Inc., will present the controversial drama "A Clearing in the Woods" by Arthur Laurents on January 22, 23, 24.

Mr. Laurents, in some of his finest writing, takes his tormented heroine through her entire emotional life until she finds peace in the midst of anguish.

Tickets for this stirring, taut fantasy are $1.50. For reserved seats "Upstairs at the Bowl", 4115 Hempstead Tpke., Bethpage, call PE 1-6863 or LI 1-1407.

LONG ISLAND PICTORIAL REVIEW

L.I. COMBINE OF HOMING PIGEON FANCIERS

THE CARE, BREEDING, AND RACING of homing pigeons which has been an expensive hobby on Long Island for several generations, is a growing interest according to the Long Island Combine of Homing Pigeon Fanciers, composed mostly of men and women "who grow up in the sport." The Combine stresses that homing pigeons cannot be categorized as pests as they are bred to race and return to their homes without stopping in populated areas. Below, James Greenleaf of Seaford releases a prize pigeon in a race which records flights of more than 50 miles per hour. (Graphic News Photos.)

FROM YOUTH: Combine claims enthusiasm in the sport starts at youth, as here with Kevin Ryan of Freeport.

NEST WORTH: A pigeon coop, with apartment-like accommodations for fast-flying birds. Coops and lofts are expensive part of sport.

PAYOFF: Fondling "Major," the champ, Mr. Greenleaf discusses the bird's trophies with Mr. Benincasa, and Joseph Oliva of Lakeview. National Pigeon Show, in November, is top event of sport.

U.S. MERCHANT MARINE ACADEMY NOW A L.I. TOURIST ATTRACTION

The 65-acre U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, at Kings Point, on Long Island Sound, a quasi-military academy training cadets to be "capable seamen in time of peace and courageous defenders in war," has been added to the list of tourist attractions offered by Long Island. The 1,000-cadet Academy (on a par with West Point, Annapolis and U. S. Air Force Academy) is headed by Rear Admiral Gordon McIntock, who welcomes groups of visitors "if they've made advance arrangements." (Graphic News Photos.)

REVIEW: The Academy holds colorful regimental reviews on Saturdays, and is a photographer's paradise.

TRIBUTE: To the 210 Cadet-Midshipmen and Kings Point graduates who perished in World War II.

TESTING: Innovations in nautical equipment often receive their initial tests at Kings Point, as this new-type life raft.

REVERENCE: Cadets attend services in the Interfaith Chapel built in 1961 by a committee of citizens headed by a prominent banker, William A. Kielmann, who lives near the Academy. Serving the three major faiths, the chapel honors 6,000 Merchant Marine personnel who died in service.

BEAUTY SECRETS

By Victor of Vilu

What Is Your Personality Type?

By Victor of Vilu

You may not believe it, but your personality is revealed in the kind of hair-do you select. If you are the athletic type, you'd never select a coiffure that is too fragile or feminine. Similarly, a severe, combed down look for a woman who is completely feminine, is out of character.

If you remember that your hair-do is a vital part of the personality picture you present to your friends, then it is important for you to take the time to know what you are before you select the coif that is designed to express that "you" to the public. You don't need a psychoanalyst's couch for the study, simply a few minutes of your thinking time. To help you, we list four common categories to help you reach your decision:

First, the high fashion type. She's the woman who is apt to try all the latest styles and creations before they become the property of the general public. Her accepted mission in life is to look different, dramatic and glamorous in everything she wears.

Second, the distinctive type. She is conscious of the latest styles and yet her choice is apt to be along more conservative lines. Quality and not quantity, elegance and not ostentation; simplicity rather than boldness, are all trade-marks of her type.

Third, the conservative type. She consciously avoids anything that will make her stand out in a crowd. Of good taste, she is apt to cling to the traditional style in clothes, the standard colors rather than the vibrant ones, the simply cut garment to the dashing one. She is a conformist, but decisive and selective.

Fourth, the casual type. She is apt to dress for comfort and mobility. Her clothes are selected to give the impression of suitability, practicability and becomingness.

If you are the high fashion type, your hair-do will be original, often daring, never inhibited. The quietly elegant or distinctive type will select a coiffure with harmonious, blending lines, without accents or any effort to appear different. The conservative type leans toward a hair arrangement that expresses her individuality without being obtrusive. The casual girl wants a hair style that is simple and easy to keep in place, an arrangement that has a soft, natural and shapely look.

Whatever your personality type, let your hair-do express your individuality. For questions or consultations call or see Mr. Victor at Vilu, OV J-8760, 534 So. Broadway, Hicksville.

College Notes

MARGARET M. LONGO of Plainview, a senior at Ithaca College, has been selected to have her biography included in the 1964-65 edition of "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges." She was chosen by a committee of Ithaca College deans to be honored by the national publication on the basis of scholarship, character, extracurricular activities, and service to the College.

Miss Longo, who is enrolled in the School of Music, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Longo, 93 Nassau Ave., Plainview.

Names of University of Cincinnati men, most of them freshmen, who have been pledged by fraternities were announced by the office of the dean of men. Included are: Beta Theta Pi: Burt Lowlicht, 47 Elliott Dr., Hicksville. Sigma Alpha Mu: STEVEN RIFKIN, 128 Grace Street, Plainview.

Cuisine's The Thing In Dog-Walking
John the professional dog-walker was Christmas early. An inveterate drinker, his way of celebrating Christmas was to get even more uproariously drunk than was his custom on practically every other day of the year.

Christmas was still two days off, and already John was "feeling no pain," as the saying goes, when he took his five charges in tow. At the other end of the leashes were two French poodles, Mimi and Fifi; a boxer denominated John L.; a dachshund understandably called Lowlife; and a Spitz named Whitley, but redubbed Expectorate by the dog-walking pro.

If any of the canny canines entertained any uncomplimentary notions about John's bibulousness, not a one was heard to yap about it.

After staggering along the street for five blocks, John tied the five dogs to a post outside a diner. "Wait right here," he said, as though afraid the three male dogs were about to elope with the females of the species.

The dog-walker stumbled on the steps of the diner, thrust open the door, and half fell and half walked in. The counterwoman smiled soberly at John, who grinned back at him.

"What will you have?" the counterwoman asked.

"Want five hamburgers," John said. "One cheeseburger with ketchup, a hamburger with pickles but no onions, another with onions but no pickle, an order of ham and eggs with the eggs sunnyside up, and a knockwurst with mustard. To go."

In short order, the short-order cook had the "gustatory delights" ready. "I almost forgot," John said. "I want two side orders of French fries." And napkins, plenty of napkins."

The dog-walker took the completed order, somehow found his way out the door, and approached his "clientele." Carefully he spread a napkin in front of each dog, yelling, "Hold still!" as the dogs frisked about his legs; then he unwrapped the food, speaking to each dog in turn:

"For you, Mimi," he said, "I have a hamburger with no onions." Mumbling to himself, he added: "There's nothing worse than a dog with halitosis."

Turning to Fifi, he said: "Yours has onions. You remind me of a friend of mine -- you're a real dog. Besides, you don't have to worry about halitosis. You lost your chance when that male French poodle down the street moved away."

Lowlife's turn was next. "The worst thing you can do is knockknockwurst," John told him as he proffered that delicacy.

John L. swung his lithe body upward and planted his huge paws against John's chest, expectantly.

"I know, I know," the dog-walker said. "Boxer's need strength. So you get the ham and eggs. Lots of protein," John muttered as he placed the renege before the boxer.

The counterwoman, who had been staring out the diner window, rubbed his disbelief eyes and stared some more. "Now I've seen everything," he said to himself.

After the dogs had undaintly gulped down the food, including the French fries which John whacked up among all five, the dog-walker took the napkins and wiped each canine's mouth in turn. Then untying the leashes and taking his charges in tow once again, he headed for the nearest bar where he ordered "beer for all hands."

An obliging bartender, laughing to himself, poured beer into a basin and set it down in front of the dogs. The dogs, apparently "old hands" at such things, lapped it up thirstily.

An hour later, John left the tavern. By now he had the blind staggers, but it really didn't matter. For the dogs, which were lagging behind him as he bumbled along, were plainly just as drunk as the dog walker.

Next day, John reappeared at the same bar, this time without the dogs.

"What happened to your four-legged friends?" the bartender wanted to know. "I dropped them off at the AA when I found they couldn't hold their liquor," John said nonchalantly.

Actually all five dogs were at the local vet's. He was treating them for a "big head," which he judiciously diagnosed.

If the truth be known, the veterinarian wouldn't dare get the professional dog-walker fired, mainly because John was unintentionally responsible for throwing a tremendous amount of local business the vet's way.

If You Please

By Peter Pettibone

A well known ad agency executive has a well-deserved reputation as a wolf. For several months a new secretary in his office firmly refused all his invitations. So he was delightfully surprised the other day when she agreed to have dinner and supper with him. He was even more amazed, when after dinner she invited him to her apartment for a night cap. Soon after they arrived there she excused herself to change into something more comfortable. A few moments later she called through the door, "Why don't you come in here, John?" He rushed right in, and was greeted by a chorus singing, "Happy New Year Boss!" -- and there stood his entire office staff. (Wait'll his Manhasset and Plandome Golf Club friends hear about it)...Wendy Barrie defines a bachelor as, "A man who wouldn't take 'yes' for an answer."...Chic Farmer, host at Carl Hoppl's plush Westbury Manor, will be on Joe Franklin's "Down Memory Lane" show, WOR TV Channel 9, again Tuesday, Jan. 19th...One Queens night club revue is a lot of ham and legs...Motel sign: "Rooms with adjoining towels."...One Roosevelt Field store has this sign, "Complaint Department Closed for the Yuletide Season." (That's the spirit)...From the London Times: "America claims to have invented the lie detector-- I married one."...Quickie: Joe: "How's your insomnia?" Dick Eschmann: "Worse, can't even sleep when it's time to get up."...Port Washington textile tycoon Harold Applegate was in a taxi creeping slowly through Manhattan traffic, he was in a hurry. "Please," he said to the driver. "Can't you go any faster?" The cabby answered, "Sure, I can, but I ain't allowed to leave the taxi."...A Levittown doll in filling out her application entrance-form to the University of Pennsylvania came to the question, "Are you a natural born citizen of the U.S.?" She answered: "No - Caesar-ean."...A mink coat draped over the back of a chair in Carl Hoppl's Lavendar Room, Baldwin, bore a large inscription on the label: "Paid for by myself." Now they've got a portable bar that contains a three-quarter bed, no doubt for guys that are three sheets in booze..Wish you'd answer my 9-year-old-unmarried son's stumper: "Dad, why is it that the economy size means the large size in soap flakes and the small size in automobiles?"...The young volunteer receptionist in a big Nassau hospital had notice an old gentleman who had been sitting in the lobby for over an hour. Finally the gentleman came over to her desk and asked whether Mr. Charles J. Jones could receive visitors. The receptionist checked her card index and said, "No, I'm sorry." The old gent asked, "How is Mr. Jones getting on?" He was told that Mr. Jones card showed he was progressing nicely. "I'm glad to know that," said the elder gentleman. "I've been up in that room ten days and couldn't find out a darn thing from my doctor. So, I dressed and came down here to find out, I'm Charles J. X. Jones and I'm getting out of here now and going home for Christmas." If You Please, thank you Santa...
