Special Collections For Christmas Trees

The Town of Oyster Bay sanitation department and highway department will cart away discarded Christmas season trees and trash this week Wednesday through Saturday.

Home owners in the areas served by the town departments were requested particularly to place discarded trees at the curb on their regular refuse collection days and on those days highway department trucks and men will pick up the trees and properly dispose of them.

Villages and private refuse carting companies have made other plans to eliminate the tree-burning danger. The town arrangements were made by Highway Superintendent Norman T. Wolf and Sanitation Superintendent Louis A. Kappstatter.

BEAUTY SECRETS

Need a Morale Booster?

Feeling low is anybody's prerogative and most women take full advantage of this human right. It's a rare husband who hasn't come home after a rough and tumble day at the office, looking forward to peace and contentment at home, to find a melancholy lady confronting him who has been brooding her day away.

Singing the blues may of course be the by-product of many human ills, both physical and mental. Since I am no psychiatrist, and am endowed with only an ordinary man's small knowledge of the mysteries of the female mind, I can offer no permanent cure to a woman suffering from real ailments that require the services of a competent doctor. But I do know enough about women to realize that if her mood is just a simple case of the blues, there are many ways to right the situation and bring on a new lease on life. Diamonds of course, will work wonders. But my solution is a whole lot cheaper.

My advice, young lady, is to take yourself to the nearest beauty parlor -- mine isn't too far from your home -- and ask for our special morale booster therapy. Here's what I usually recommend. First and foremost, a new hair styling, cut and even a change in color if you're really in need of help. We both discuss the various new settings available, and if I get a laugh or other positive reaction to any one of them, then that's it!

It's amazing how quickly a melancholy attitude changes to one of pure joy as we go to work on a woman's hair. When the job is done and the mirror placed in front of her, I don't usually have to resort to Treatment No. 2.

But if the mood still lingers on, and this happens every once in a while, I recommend a facial. Now there's a real morale lifter! Today's beauty salons have many ways to bring out the natural freshness and glow of a woman's skin to give it a radiant glow it should have but doesn't. A facial is a beauty salon's gift to a woman's charm, and for a lady in need, nothing matches it for spirit lifter.

If these two items don't change the day from gray to blue, and the mood from gloom to joy, then sister, you had better try a psychiatrist -- it's later than you think!

High Growth For Savings Unit

An ever-increasing demand by Hicksville residents, shoppers and commuters for the services of Central Federal Savings and Loan Association has resulted in a phenomenal rate of growth in 1964 for this institution, according to an announcement by Central Federal President, Theodore Ornstein, and Hicksville branch Manager and Vice President, Peter Amoroso. Total assets rose 15 1/2 % to nearly 80 million dollars, representing a rate far greater than that generally enjoyed by comparable financial organizations.

The primary reason for this unusually high growth rate is "an awareness by this shopping and transportation area's increasing population that Central Federal's savings and loan policies provide for benefits that are as good as, and better than, most institutions in the New York metropolitan area". Mr. Ornstein noted.

With Richie Kowalchuk leading the way, the Drifters won a very close decision from the previously undefeated Jets by the score of 24 to 20. Richie took over the scoring lead also by pumping through 14 points. The Jets were led by Dennis Hand who hit for 10 points.

In other games the Black Arsons led by Ken Hertling with 10 points beat the Chargers in a low scoring game. Ken Suarez assisted Hertling by hitting for 7 points and playing well on defense. Chuck Chertiza and Don Hilton led the winless Chargers. The Jets beat the Black Arsons in another league game with Ken Hand with 8 points and Ray Glover with 6 points leading the way.

THE APPOINTMENT OF STANLEY B. ARONSON as vice president in charge of sales has been announced by the Berko Electric Manufacturing Corp., Jamaica, N.Y. The appointment, effective January 1, 1965, reflects an expansion in Mr. Aronson's duties and responsibilities since Berko's recent acquisition by the Well-McGraw Company of Michigan City, Ind.

Mr. Aronson joined Berko as sales manager in 1952, after a number of years in the electrical industry. He has been an active participant in many industry-wide programs designed to stimulate the growth of electric heating. His early efforts with the National Electrical Manufacturers Association (NEMA) led to the creation of the NEMA film on electric heating that proved a major factor in making the electrical trade and the public aware of the benefits of electric home heating.

A resident of Bethpage, Mr. Aronson is married and the father of two boys, Mark and Sherman. He is active in the Boy Scout movement and charitable fund raising activities. His wife, Goldie, is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Bethpage Jewish Community Center, has served previously as president of its Sisterhood, and is also active in the affairs of the National Women's League.

THE HICKSVILLE POLICE BOYS CLUB Junior Division Basketball schedule moved through the second week schedule at the Woodland Avenue School with the Drifters with a 2 win and 0 loss record holding down the top slot.

THINKING IT OVER

By Robert L. Morgan

It will be nearly a year before work is started on the sewer system which eventually will service Bethpage, Hicksville, Plainview, Syosset, Jericho and other communities in this area but the plan will come before the County Board of supervisors very soon.

To answer many questions posed to us about local sewers we are giving this brief summary of what is going to happen.

The sewer system which will take in this area will be called Sanitary Sewer Dist. No. 3. There are already two other sewer districts operating in the county although they are much smaller. Although work on the new sewer system will start next December the project will take 20 years or so to complete. The sewer system will mean the levying of a graduated property tax over the 20 year period for people using or not using the system. An estimate of what the tax increase will be is about $1.50 per $100 of assessed valuation or about $60 per year for a house assessed at $4,000. But the increase will be a gradual one over the 20 year period rising each year.

The paying of the tax will not mean that you can get any benefit out of the system but will mean that at your own expense that you can connect to the system. It will not be mandatory for a homeowner to use the sewer system until his cesspool or septic tank breaks down.

The disposal plant site is tentatively located in Seaford and it will be through this disposal plant that a system of purifying water can be made to help out the water shortage on Long Island.

So sometime within the next 20 years you can stop worrying about the cesspool running over and have water available for the lawn in the summer. But you can start worrying how to meet the new tax bills right now.

Multiple Sclerosis Hits Nervous System

By C.A. Dean, M.D.

EDITORIAL: Multiple sclerosis is a chronic disease of the central nervous system characterized by alternating periods of activity and quiescence. As yet the cause is unknown. Current research on its etiology is focussed on possible causes such as allergy, infection, circulation defects and heredity. Some authorities suspect viruses, bacteria and other germs as responsible, but none so far have proven to be causes of the disease.

Multiple sclerosis may strike the whole nervous system from the brain down through the spinal cord; thus, symptoms will vary greatly from patient to patient. At first the symptoms may be fleeting and hardly noticed by the patient. Later on they become more steady. There may be headaches, dizziness, blurred or double vision, pain around the eye, neuritis, low blood pressure, numbness and tingling sensations, speech defects, muscle weakness, urinary difficulties, etc. The symptoms are so varied that the diagnosis of multiple sclerosis may be very difficult at its onset. As the name implies, multiple sclerosis means sclerosis or scarring at the nerve tissue in multiple areas.

Young adults between the ages of 20 and 38 develop multiple sclerosis most often. Both males and females are affected, females somewhat more frequently. Multiple sclerosis is not as serious as some diseases such as cancer, but it does cause various degrees of weakness and crippling similar to that of arthritis. The life expectancy in many cases can be approximately that of an average individual.

Since the cause is not known, there is no specific treatment. There are, however, many forms of supportive treatment. Maintenance of adequate nutrition including all vitamins, the proper use of physical and rehabilitation therapy and avoidance of chilling and physical and emotional strain are important.

The Virtue Of Political Persistence

By Russell Kirk

How does one get ahead in the practical politics of a democratic society? Young people often ask this commentator that question. Most professional politicians in these United States are fairly honest and fairly diligent; yet many of them exhibit no conspicuous talents for public leadership.

To put the answer very succinctly, the great requisite for the would-be politician is persistence. A friend of mine maintains that anybody -- just anybody -- can obtain public office, if only he desires political distinction sufficiently -- and is willing to persist in his ambition. "If you 'want' it enough, you're elected."

In 1932, a group of youthful Michigan wags, who called themselves (impromptu) the North Lansing Young Men's Democratic Association, determined to ascertain whether (as the leading spirit among them declared) just "anybody" could be elected to office. They chose the most improbable candidate they could find, an old carnival hand who specialized in diving from a high springboard into a terrifyingly shallow pool. This exercise had added his wits; but the North Lansing wags began to address this political neophyte as "Senator" -- because that was what they meant him to become.

Recognizing that the public must become acquainted by degrees with an aspirant to the United States Senate, however, they resolved first to elect the carnal hand as one of the two drain-commissioners of Ingham County; such success would afford "public exposure." Though their candidate invariably made a fool of himself, they exhibited him at Knights of Columbus picnics, popular taverns, fashionable restaurants, and Lord knows where.

Obviously surrounded by a band of hard-working young enthusiasts, the high-diving "Senator" began to be noticed by Democratic office-holders, who solicited his support in their own campaigns. Since high-diving is a rare skill, and fairly lucrative even in depression times, the "Senator" spent some money with an eye to his political prospects. His name became familiar; and sure enough, on primary day he won the Democratic nomination for the office of county drain-commissioner.

Intoxicated by this success, however, the North Lansing wags overreached themselves. Posing the "Senator" in fantastic situations where he could play the clown to their merriment, they gained for him altogether too much "public exposure". Suspicious, on election day, 1932, the Ingham County public rejected this Democratic candidate -- even though a Democratic landslide overwhelmed nearly every other Michigan Republican candidate in that fateful year.

Yet with a slightly smaller indulgence of the jocular, the North Lansing wags might have pushed their unlikely candidate up the political ladder. It will not do to become patently ridiculous in the public's eyes; then, vainly clutching at office after office, such perennial candidates as Mr. Harold Stassen fall abruptly from favor.

The ridiculous aside, however, all that matters, for many public offices, is persistence and keeping one's name known. A Detroit judge used to be celebrated for the astounding severity of his sentences; yet he was re-elected time after time, the public having become familiar with his name through the newspaper headlines which declared the ferocity he had visited upon some culprit unlucky enough to be haled before his bench. "Everybody knows I'm a cantankerous old son of a gun," the judge told an admiring lawyer. "But you don't have to be loved to be elected -- all you need is to have your name 'known'."

Beginning with obscure little local contests, aspiring young politician, simply but persistently have your name printed on some ballot. Nine cases out of ten, the public eventually will reward your presumption with public office.

Amer. Legion Aux. News

By Margaret Strong
 The ladies of the Arch-le McCord Unit #86 wish everyone a very prosperous New Year for 1965. They are looking forward to doing an even better year worth of good deeds than in the past. We have numerous very important programs which need the help of all eligible ladies who can spare a little time to aid in this worthy project. A little time isn't too much to give for those boys who risked their lives to keep us free from the oppressor.

We Need You! Our meetings are only one Thursday each month. Our next meeting falls on January 21 at 8:30 p.m., in the American Legion Hall on Washington Ave., Bethpage. Many interesting evenings are planned for future meetings. January is legislation & national security month - let's all get back of this great Country of ours & do our duty. When asked to send a letter to our Congressman or Senators to back a bill - please do. Your support is needed because the Legislation program of the American Legion is all planned with you in mind. Improvement of the VA services for the disabled veterans and their families, pensions; education for the children of deceased veterans, and the GI Bill of Rights are but a few examples of what Legion sponsored Legislation has done for you and yours.

The National Security program urges security through strength, security for our citizens, security through savings & sharing security worldwide.

Belated birth wishes to Miss Sharon Mazzie on Dec. 28 and to Mrs. Stella Finamore on Jan. 1st.

In the opening game against St. Plus, St. Ignatius displayed a well-balanced scoring attack. Accerra was top man for the visitors with eight points while Kenneally led the home team with nine field goals and six fouls.

In the championship game, St. Ignatius was on the wrong end of a 16-2 count at the end of the first quarter. A change in defense, plus a determined team effort enabled St. Ignatius to hold Christ the King scoreless for the second quarter, while it tallied 23 points.

They are all members of Girl Scout Troops and actively participate in its program, as well as with the Drill team.

A very satisfactory troop profit was realized from the sale of the 1965 Girl Scout Calendars by the troops in the Bethpage Plainedge area. A total of 4,247 calendars were sold and since almost 50% of the selling price of each calendar goes into troop funds, this will provide a wonderful start for troop activities in the New Year.

Troops in the Bethpage

- Plainedge area, Neighborhood VI, have been actively engaged with mother's teas, investiture and rededication ceremonies since beginning their Scout activities for the year. These ceremonies, along with regular program activities have made for a very busy schedule.

On Wednesday, Dec. 2, Girl Scout Troop 640, which meets at the Charles Campagne School, conducted a special candle lighting ceremony, which the girls planned in order to invest four new members into the troop. The girls invested were: Karen Hergenroether, Kathy Peck, Susan Schindler, and Mindy Shangold.

Girl Scout pins were also presented by the leaders: Mrs. Renee Book and Mrs. Alice Lindemann to the Troop Committee Mothers. These ladies who contribute their services to the troop in various ways are: Mrs. N. Coppola, Mrs. B. Kretschek, Mrs. J. LaMarca, Mrs. C. McIntosh, Mrs. F. Schindler and Mrs. C. Werring.

Brownie Troop #415, held its investiture at the John F. Kennedy Memorial Jr. High School on Wednesday, December 9. Twenty new members became a part of the Girl Scout Movement, as they were pinned by their leaders: Mrs. Joseph Langdon and Mrs. Joseph Smith. Refreshments were served, and carols were sung as a concluding part of the event.

As part of their community service and in keeping with the time of year, the girls caroled for the Senior Citizens of Bethpage on Thursday, December 17 and at the Bethpage Library on Wednesday, Dec. 23.

Twenty new Brownies became part of Troop #142 in an impressive Investiture Ceremony held at the Central Blvd. school on Thursday, Dec. 17. Mrs. Edward Moore, the leader, was pinned by the organizer, Mrs. K. Lindeman, followed by the girls making their promise and being pinned by Mrs. Moore.

The Color Guard for the occasion was: Denise Stewart, Theresa Paladino, Linda Williams and Cheryl Zahac. The girls welcomed the new Brownies into the Troop and the Friendship Circle which all present became a part of at the closing ceremony. Taps was sung and the magic wish passed around the circle. Refreshments were served by the Committee Mothers which included two new members who were also pinned: Mrs. Joseph Rehill and Mrs. Paul Rooney. Carols were sung around the Christmas tree and Santa Claus made a surprise visit just before the girls headed for home. The gifts they had been making for others, in order to spread a bit of cheer, along with their hand-made Christmas cards were also delivered.

Cadette Troop #49 invested Diane Schlavetta at their rededication ceremony last month at which time their leaders Mrs. Francis Dempsey and Mrs. John Brock were pinned by the organizer, Mrs. Kenneth Lindeman. The troop participated in the recent "Good Grooming Course" which was given through the cooperation of the Gertz Department store, and have since been engaged in the making of some very attractive jewelry. The troop is acting as Santa's helper by taking care of a needy family for the holidays.

Two Junior Girl Scout Troops, #123 and #563 meeting at the Central Blvd. School have also had investiture and Rededication ceremonies recently. They meet on the same day, so have joined forces and caroled at the Bohack Center in Bethpage, on Wednesday, December 23. They have also adopted needy families in the area for the holidays.

Jr. Troop #276 on Thursday, December 17 at the John F. Kennedy Memorial Jr. High School, held their Rededication ceremony and invested Diane Urban and her mother, Mrs. Roy Urban. The troop will be in the Bethpage area caroling with their leaders, Mrs. Harold Hall and Mrs. Roy Urban, and lending a helping hand where needed.

Jr. Troop #4 have been busily making items for hospital patients at Central Islip. These gifts have been delivered and were very gratefully received by the Director of volunteer activities, Miss Genevieve Carolan. There is a big need here - and it takes so very little to bring the patients a bit of cheer.

The girls recently completed the Cycling Badge, with the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Eichorn, whom they would like to thank for their efforts.

Mrs. Alan Kawaters, the leader of Troop #4 will be leaving us and moving to New Jersey. We shall miss her. Good luck Anne, and much happiness from all of us in VI. Mrs. F. Toomey and Mrs. J. Day will continue to carry on the troop program. Brownie Troop #215 and Jr. Troop 331 which meet in the Bloomingdale school at the same time each week, have been working together on a service project involving Korean children. Our girls are eager and interested in the project and have been doing a wonderful job on it. We commend the girls and leaders for their time and efforts on this endeavor.

Senior Mounted Troop 411 of Bethpage attended the 81st National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden in Nov. These girls participate in breakfast rides twice a month with their advisor, Mrs. L. Catalano. They are all active members in the Mid-Island Council G.S. Riding program in addition to attending and participating in a regular scout program. They have recently completed addressing several thousand envelopes for the Easter Seal Society as a service and collect needed items for Central Islip Hospital. Jane Heilig and Carol Lindeman also gave service on the Girl Scout Fund Drive by delivering finance letters and brochures to all the business areas of Bethpage. Several girls also give of their time, energy and knowledge as Sr. aides in younger troops. This is an eager and enthusiastic group of young adult scouts, who truly live their promise and laws.

Our December birthday girls in the South-Central area are: Sue Ellen Bornemann, Jane Caldwell, Christine Dempsey, Lynn Eichorn, Stephanie Gangl, Renee Glasser, Claire Gross, Elena Gulliano, Jane Heilig, Carol Lindeman, Janet Loderhose, Christine Scantlepleco, Linda Smith, Stella Strong, Lynda Titus, Theresa Volavka.

Mid-Island Council and all of us Scouting extend to one and all - happiness and the blessings of good health throughout the coming year.

To the Editor:

At a recent School Board meeting, four copies of the book "None Dare Call It Treason" were donated to the Junior and Senior High School libraries by a citizen. The Board voted to accept the gift, provided that, in the judgement of the administration, the book met the standards set forth under current School Board policy. After consideration, the Superintendent of Schools and the Supervisor of Social Studies recommended that the School Board reject this book on the grounds that it was inaccurate. (The Board policy provides that materials be judged for accuracy, fairness of treating controversial material, objectivity, that no material be written by a Communist be accepted and that a controversial author's work be treated under items 1, 2 and 3.) In the past, when this policy was adopted approximately two years ago, during the controversy engendered by the Textbook Review Committee, TEACH took the position that this policy was too rigid and would hamper students in their pursuit of Truth. In keeping with this stand, the Executive Board of TEACH voted to send the following resolution to the Board of Education: "In view of the recent controversy regarding the book "None Dare Call It Treason" we, the Executive Board of TEACH restate our position that any material to be used in our schools should be judged solely on the basis of its educational value.

We believe that the present School Board policy setting forth criteria for the selection of books and teaching aids should be changed to the single criterion of whether or not, in the judgement of the educators, the material contributes to the student's total educational experience. Gifts too should be judged by this criterion. We also believe that controversial material should be admitted provided that all sides of an issue be represented. The suggested change in School Board policy would permit such materials to be acceptable. For additional information contact: Mrs. Richard Melrowitz, OV1-2891.

At Random

By Edward J. Van Allen
Out of the Mailbag

Since the release of my book, "The Branded Child," last April, a host of persons, mostly mothers, have written me concerning their own experiences in the anti-school-snoop which the book has helped provide ammunition for.

One mother, from California, wrote to tell me the school district in which she and her family live doesn't date subject her children to psychological testing without her and her husband's knowledge and consent.

"I merely served notice on them that such tests violate our religious beliefs," she wrote, "and that if they used them on our children without permission, they would do so at their peril."

One of the most interesting letters of late comes from a mother whose fight against snooping in the Manasquan, New Jersey, schools became a national story via the Associated Press.

The woman, Mrs. John F. Bannigan, wrote to the governor and the state commissioner of education complaining that her son John, a high school freshman, had been subjected to a privacy-invasive test asking him questions about whether he has a happy family life and about how well his parents get along. (Incidentally, both the New York and New Jersey State Education Departments have bought copies of "The Branded Child.")

Besides rapping the tests as an invasion of privacy, Mrs. Bannigan charged that psychological tests are being used to cover up lazy and inefficient teaching.

The AP quoted Dr. J. Kirk Seaton, State Director of School Psychology, as denying that the tests are really psychological. Dr. Seaton, said the AP, called them "general surveys to help plan a better curriculum."

From the mere description of the tests, I know the questions come from either a personality inventory or a problems checklist, both forms of psychological test.

But public school officials do not take oath to tell the public the truth; hence they can tell a gullible public anything that sounds halfway plausible.

Mrs. Bannigan, in a recent communication, has some compellingly interesting things to say about the nature and quality of public education in America. Says she:

"Teachers should teach. Our complaint should become a main issue in all elections. It is about time parents woke up to what is going on. Everybody should write to Rep. John Ashbrook, House Office Building, Washington, D.C., and get a copy of the stuff he placed in the Congressional Record showing the rotten things that are being done in Education today.

"I am asking the voters of New Jersey to get out and vote against school budgets that contain any provisions for guidance counseling or school psychologists. We must root out this cancer right now. Taxpayers should not have to pay to diagnose tempers sons inherit from their fathers -- the treatment of which is an admitted present function of New Jersey's educational system.

"We may eventually have to require a paid parent's attendance in every classroom in the United States (put parents on the education staffs) to check on what teachers are teaching. People forget what education is for. There was a day in the past when kids were kept home; if necessary we can do it again. I feel sorry for genuine, sincere, good teachers, but I am kind of sick at the full-paid ads of teachers' organizations now that I know what they have permitted to go on in their field. It is about time parents organized.

"In New Jersey, the law requires nudity groups -- kids are required to take showers in common, although most of the kids may take their daily baths at home. They can't pass boys, ed. unless they do. Religious beliefs dictating modesty are ignored.

"People have requested me to keep going on this. I am asking my fellow townsmen and women, whether parents or not, to come to my home and look at the documents that people have so kindly sent to me from all over the United States showing the disgraceful events in 'education' today. Please do the same in your community. Make your One-A-Day telephone call or send a letter to a stranger and ask for responses. Help save our kids. Help save our family life. Help get God back into the schools. Help get rid of juvenile delinquency, crime, and the god-awful growing army of mental cases -- stamp out guidance counseling and all it stands for. Make our teachers teach!"

Mrs. Bannigan's reaction to having her family life laid bare by one or more school officials who have attempted to make her child a psychological guinea pig and an unwitting object of brain-prying experimentation is hardly unique. There is an ever-growing army of angry parents who oppose making schools mental health laboratories and kids mere captive victims of a cult of mental health prac-tioners a step above witchdoctors. In Staten Island a committee called Mothers on the March is leading the fight. In South Carolina a pastor's wife is one of the leaders. She teaches her Sunday School children not to answer snoopy questions asked in schools. In California opponents of privacy-invasive in the schools helped elect a conservative state superintendent of public instruction. In the State of Washington at least one legislative hearing has been held on psychological testing, and readers of "The Branded Child" are leading the fight for corrective legislation.

The child is not the mere creature of the state," said the United States Supreme Court. The school snoops are now being taught the meaning of that simple statement. But to give the guinea-piggers their due, they're learning the hard way.

PBC Seniors Win Tourney

The Hicksville Police Boys Club Seniors set a new record for the annual Christmas tournament held at the Farmingdale Lanes, on December 29, 1964, by compiling a total of 2753 pins for a three game series. This record of total wood is exceptional considering the oldest boy on the team is 15 years of age. Competition was at its peak with many other good P.B.C. teams rolling in this Police Boys Club Tournament. Joe Brintz of the Hicksville Unit averaged over 200 per game, with scores of 235-197-182 for a 614 series. Joe was ably assisted by Billy DeVoe who rolled games of 166-202-220 and a fine 588 series. Other members of the team and their scores are Fred Schwartz (161-209), Mark Rothman (170-180-156) Frank Masterson (182-131) and Mike Miller (187-175).

To the Editor:

Transparent attempts of a handful of old-line bosses to seize control of the state legislature deprive the people of Long Island and the state of genuine representation, and make a mockery of the democratic process. Particularly distressing is the 'degrading spectacle' of a supposed young Turk like Nassau Democratic Chairman English working hand in glove with the Tammany-type Buckley-Crotty-O'Connell clique, who engineered the shaky Steingut-Erway coup.

Since their first responsibility is to the voters who elected them, state assemblymen and senators would be permitted to hear and question those nominated for speaker and majority leader, and to exercise the right of free choice in the best interests of their constituents, not as dictated by self-appointed political gaudiers.

In truth, what English calls a "log-jam situation" is a direct result of his own machinations and dictation to Nassau's new Democratic legislators, who he likes to think he has in his back pocket.

Unbossed and Independent Democrats should repudiate such leadership and encourage Assemblymen-elect McDougal, Sachs and Thorpe to disassociate themselves from unprincipled deals, and vote their own conscience on January 6th and thereafter.

Yours,

Irving Gold, Member Democratic Committee of Nassau County

SPORTS

by HOWARD FINNEGAN

It was a long, cold, fruitless trip for Hicksville High fans as they made the long journey to the Holiday basketball tournament at Great Neck North. Still regrouping from the loss of six foot six inch Guy Van Wagenen, Hicksville lost its steam in the second half and lost the first round match to the host school, 67-55.

Bill Corrigan rallied from the foul line but was off from the field and he could not pull the Comets through alone. He garnered 19 points. Great Neck went on to defeat Manhasset by 15 points for the tourney crown.

Hicksville wrapped up the consolation match by beating Clarke of South Westbury 48-40. Corrigan paced the Comets with 14 points and Glen Olsen had 10. The well balanced attack saw Jim Berg-holtz and Bob Fink contribute 11 a piece.

Coach Ed Petro and Asst. August Alferie were pleased with the well rounded attack and will build this aspect to counter the loss of Van Wagenen. It would be too early for their efforts to prevail in time for this Friday's assignment at Syosset. The Braves have the same championship team as last year which represented the division and knocked heavily favored Westbury out of the County championship.

The tall timber starts at 6-6, 6-5, 6-4 and 6-3.

This is a lot of height for any team to cop.

The Comets should do better against Farmingdale Tuesday night. Both contests are travel dates.

Hicksville fans should not miss the performance of the Hickville Jay Vee. Many are arriving early just for that purpose. Coach Stan Kellner has a fine squad which moves the ball with amazing precision.

On the team are Mike Bannon, Jack Spinella, Brian O'Leary, Ronald Block, John Burke, Frank Mulligan, Phil Mazzullo, Mike Masciello, William Doherty, Jeff Doolittle, Robert Hart, Rich Fordyce, William Fyfe, Frank Gillbowski and Dee Grilly.

Hicksville fans who were horrified at the proposed re-alignment of the North Shore Athletic League - The move to have Herricks replace Clarke in Section One has been scrapped by protests from school's in other divisions and Section One will stay as it is.

It is fortunate that a true weak sister tab will not be able to be placed on Section One football.

instilled in them a sense of fair play and sportsmanship. Mr. Millevolte has given generously of his time and effort to promote the welfare of children and youth in our community, which is truly in keeping with the major objects of P.T.A.

Mr. John Maher (Principal of Willet Avenue School) will be Toastmaster.

Chairman of the dinner is Mrs. Harold Gorlin, and the members of her committee are: Mrs. William Gannon, Mrs. Martin Polsenski and Mrs. Aaron Stein.

The tickets are $4.50 per person, and may be obtained from the council delegates at each school as follows: -
