H.S. Vocalist Wins Praise

One of Hicksville's young vocalists Miss June Fulton, a senior at Hicksville High School, is a member of the Madrigal Singers and the Pearl Drops. She plays bells in the Hicksville Marching Comets, and performs solos in the Modern Music Masters recitals. Miss Fulton represented the High School at the conference of the New York State School Music Association (NYSSMA) last year as well as the All-Eastern Chorus in Boston last February.

On November 27-30 of 1983, Miss Fulton once again was chosen to participate in the All-State Chorus at the NYSSMA conference at the Concord Hotel. This group of nearly 300 of the finest young singers in New York State was under the direction of guest conductor Albert McNeil from the University of California at Davis. Miss Fulton auditioned for Mr. McNeil and was selected to sing the solo part in his arrangement of "Hold Out Your Light". She sang this solo at the concert that was given at the Concord on November 30 to over 2000 music educators and friends.

Other Hicksville High School musicians who performed in other festival groups were Caroline McIntyre, Mary McShane, Harold Meltzer, and John Rubins.

East St. PTA Elects Officers

On Monday, January 16, East Street's PTA unit met to elect a new president and vice president. Mrs. Betty Kelly was elected president for the remaining year. She was very active in PTA in the Elmont School District and has worked very hard at East Street for the past two years.

Mrs. Edie Allen will become the new vice president. Mrs. Allen has held numerous positions on the Executive Board at East Street for the past six years. Both of these ladies bring experience to their new positions since they have made countless contributions to PTA.

The robber, male white, 25-30 years, walked into Vitamin World, Mid Island Shopping Plaza, Hicksville, approached a sales clerk Marion Finamore, 18, displayed a gun in his waistband and handed her a note demanding money.

The subject fled the scene on foot with $565. No injuries were reported during the incident. Second Squad Det. William Mokson is investigating the robbery.

Pre-School Prog. At East Street

East Street School's Pre-School Program will begin on Tuesday, January 24, in Rooms 101 and 102 at East Street School. Parents of children entering East Street's Kindergarten in September of 1984 are welcome to register their children at this time.

This program is an excellent head-start for all pre-K children whether they attend nursery school or not. It gives the children an opportunity to gain an important edge when they attend kindergarten next year. The children will meet once a week, for an hour, in the classrooms that they will use in kindergarten. They will have a chance to make friends with children that they will go to kindergarten with. This makes the first day of kindergarten much easier for all the children in the Pre-K program.

Interested parents should contact Mrs. Julie Guerriero at 822-4362 for further information concerning this program and registration.

Hicksville Bd. of Ed. Hears Supt's. Budget

By Valerie Pakaluk

A preliminary Superintendent's Budget for 1984-85, amounting to $37,622,487, was presented to the Hicksville Board of Education at the first meeting of the new year held on January 11.

Dr. Fenton's budget shows an increase of $1.4 million over 1983-84 including increases in the instructional budgetary code of $940,346 and $100,927 under District Transportation. The instructional area includes anticipated salary increases while the transportation item carries a Cost of Living adjustment.

According to Dr. Fenton, this figure does not represent the final budget which will be adopted by the Board sometime in March, with voting scheduled in May. However, she added that it did represent a beginning and was arrived at through consultation with the entire administrative staff.

Controversy began as the meeting opened when Trustee John Ayres requested that the Superintendent's Report, scheduled for later in the evening, be withdrawn from the agenda until further information could be supplied to individual Board members. In agreement with Ayres were Arlene Rudin and Lawrence Wolfson. However, after hearing all sides, President of the Board, Jay Schwartz, ruled against the withdrawal or tabling of the item citing Roberts Rules. Schwartz advised that only "action" items could be tabled and the Board was obligated to "hear" the Superintendent's information during that portion of the agenda so delegated.

Dr. Fenton concluded her presentation admitting that she fully realized this budget was not final and many deletions and additions were to be expected during the various budget hearings scheduled during the upcoming months. Fenton said, "it's a beginning", one she had promised the Board last August, and Trustee William Bennett, concurred adding that, in his many years as a School Board Trustee, this was finally a budget that "was not off the wall."

Meeting dates for budget information hearings will be announced by the District. All residents are urged to attend and voice opinions. Mr. Bennett is Chairman of the Budget Advisory Committee.

On a more solemn note, Trustee Thomas Nagle announced that former School Board Trustee, Neil McCormack, was hospitalized at Mid Island Hospital in Bethpage and urged cards or calls to wish Mr. McCormack a speedy recovery.

A slide presentation by Richard Evers, Hicksville's Historian, and Director of the Gregory Museum, was seen prior to the business meeting. In less than 45 minutes, Mr. Evers provided an interesting capsule of Hicksville's history with emphasis on its educational leaders. The slides can be geared to any service or community group and Mr. Evers encouraged their use as a public service provided by the Gregory Museum. In addition to nostalgic photographs, Mr. Evers supplied amusing anecdotes making the presentation very enjoyable. He can be reached at 822-7505 for more information.

In other matters, the Board approved three textbooks for use in elementary and secondary grades; voted to compensate Election Personnel at the rate of $3.35 per hour; awarded bids and approved claims and warrants. The Board also agreed to support the nomination of Richard L. Ornauer for president of BOCES. The request was sought by the Merrick School District.

The next meeting of the Board of Education is scheduled for Wednesday, January 25 at 8:15 p.m. in the Administration Building.

News From Road Runners

Local runners cross the finish line of last year's Plainview Run.

Applications are now available for the seventh Annual Plainview Police Boys Club 10,000 Meter Run, to be held on the roads of Plainview-Old Bethpage on Saturday morning, April 7, 1984. The event is once again being sponsored by the Plainview-Old Bethpage Road Runners Club in conjunction with the Plainview PBC.

The race will begin and finish at H.B. Matlin Middle School, located on Washington Avenue in Plainview. The starting gun will go off promptly at 9 a.m. on the morning of April 7.

The 1984 edition of the race will once again be administered by Finish Line Promotions and will feature a Giant Digital Clock and Place Display at the finish line. Time splits will be given at each mile marker and police traffic control will be provided throughout the race. There will be a water station at the half-way mark.

The Plainview course was professionally laid out by David Katz of Finish Line Promotions, assisted by members of the Plainview-Old Bethpage Road Runners Club. It provides a dramatic combination of demanding hills and level straightaways through some of the most pleasant and scenic roads in central Long Island, including a mile-and-a-half stretch along Round Swamp Road past the Old Bethpage Village Restoration. The course has received formal TAC certification, so that personal times achieved in the Plainview race may be used as qualifying times for TAC events throughout the country.

The Plainview PBC run started modestly in 1978 with only 125 runners. The number of runners has approached 500 in recent years, notwithstanding adverse weather conditions. Previous winners include Rick Jackofsky of Rocky Point, Bob Giambalvo of Bayville, Don DiDonato of Floral Park, Tom Childers of Westbury, and Steve Lubar of Port Washington. DiDonato holds the course record of 31:30. The women's record is 37:01, set by local Plainview speedster Kim Falkowski in 1982. Ruth Riemenschneider of Winchester, Virginia was the first woman finisher in last year's race. Race sponsors are hopeful that all previous winners will be back this year, and anticipate that many other top runners, both from Long Island and elsewhere, will be on hand to challenge them.

The number of trophies to be awarded has been greatly expanded for this year's race, as trophies will go to the top five male and top five female finishers in each of eleven age categories. Special trophies will also be awarded to the top male and female finishers who are residents of Plainview-Old Bethpage. A total of 114 trophies will be awarded overall.

There will be a post race drawing for running suits and other merchandise donated by Dolfin, Head Sportswear and Kangaroo. All race entrants are eligible to win these prizes.

Three local Long Island businesses are the major sponsors of the race: Woodbury Super Star Sneakers and Sports, Long Island Trust, and Robert Auto Leasing and Rental of Hicksville.

The entire race will be videotaped for showing at the May meeting of the Plainview-Old Bethpage Road Runners Club and on Cablevision's Channel 17.

The entry fee is $6.00 for those who pre-register and $7.00 for those who register on the day of the race. Distinctive Race baseball caps or visors will be given to everyone who registers prior to April 5, 1984, and everyone who finishes the race will receive a special commemorative embroidered patch.

For race applications or for more information, call Plainview-Old Bethpage Road Runners Club President Mike Polansky at 433-0919.

'New Image' A New Beginning

Color Guards proudly display Championship Flags during Manhattan's salute to returned Iranian hostages.

Corps Founder, Thomas R. Costa.

Fr. Rogers accepts recognition plaque for St. Ignatius Pastor, Fr. Frederic Harrer. Presenting the plaque is Director Don Graziose.

By Terry Rogers

I attended a very nicely run affair for which I received a rather impressive invitation which read: "The Saint Ignatius Girls Cadet Corps cordially invites you to its Silver Anniversary Celebration and Inauguration of the New Image Drum & Bugle Corps". Having more than a passing interest - and, now, a daughter - in the famous St. Ignatius Girls Corps, I had looked forward with much anticipation to this event, which was designed to mark a quarter century of excellence, and to officially turn the historic page, which would give birth to New Image.

New Image is a new, co-educational Drum & Bugle Corps which combines the talents of the St. Ignatius Girls with those of many newly acquired members; both male and female, in order to "Bear the Standard of Excellence for a second Generation of Long Island Youngsters" (quoting its recruitment flyer).

As we entered the Galileo Lodge (a traditional location for Corps parties), we were greeted at the door by several smiling Corps Staff Members. Director, Donald Graziose welcomed us, as Bingo Chairperson, Rachael Pohalski checked our names off the invitee list.

Diane Petrocelli, who chaired the event committee, gave us a silver anniversary commemorative pin, and Head Chaperone, Millie Melocoton, gave us a beautiful full color, 16 page booklet/magazine entitled "St. Ignatius Presents - New Image - A New Beginning". In attendance were the members of the 1983 St. Ignatius Corps, the member/recruits of the 1984 New Image Corps (these are called the "Image Makers"), their parents and representatives of several community civic organizations. Also attending were the Corps instructional staff, and some ex-drum and majors and staffers. Corps Founder, Thomas R. Costa shared a table with Mr. Graziose and Chief Instructor Carman Cluna.

The food that the committee put out was absolutely sumptuous and it in no way could be considered as what the invitation referred to as "light refreshments". There was so much, and in such variety, that one guest remarked that she had been to weddings which hadn't treated the invitees so generously, and so well. "It's just the way we do things around here" said Dominic Valente who, with Corps parents Maria Viola, Michael Petrocelli and Ida Krysz, had spent most of the day preparing the feast in the house kitchen. "We usually start out to build a Ford, and end up with a Lincoln". He then went on to say that the prevailing attitude in the entire organization is such that nothing is too good for their kids and their Corps. "We teach the kids to reach for the brass ring in everything they do" said Graziose. "The example must, of course, be set by the adults who work with them."

During the proceedings, recognition awards were presented to Brass Instructor Hy Dreitzer for giving "Of Your Heart; Not Only Of Your Talent" and to Fr. Frederic J. Harrer, Pastor of St. Ignatius Loyola Parish in Hicksville for "Support of Wholesome Youth Activity Through the Years".

The atmosphere was charged with excitement and expectation for New Image and there was just a tinge of nostalgic melancholy for St. Ignatius Girls. At 9 p.m., Mr. Graziose approached the podium to officially bring to fruition the decision he had to make one year ago. Before he could proclaim the finale to St. Ignatius Girls' and beginning of New Image, he was treated to a surprise last performance by the girls, who hastily scampered off on cue to get their instruments. It was an outpouring of emotion, and there was hardly a dry eye left in the house. When everyone's composure had been regained, Mr. Graziose called forth two members of the 1983 Corps who were dressed in the traditional St. Ignatius uniforms. To thunderous applause, they marched up carrying a St. Ignatius Competition Flag. They then turned to face the guests. The room fell silent in expectation as Mr. Graziose called forth two members dressed in the New Image uniforms and colors, which were being unveiled to the public for the first time at that moment. In a beautifully ceremonial gesture, the competition flag was passed from outgoing Color Guard Captain, Anne Riley to New Captain Cindy Melocoton. The flag was then inverted to reveal a New Image silk and colors. Flash bulbs popped and applause rang out as the emotion-charged ceremony unfolded, and the old officially gave way to the new. Also taking part in the ceremony were Catherine Kelley, a 12 year veteran who was the last girl to "age out" of St. Ignatius, and James Anglin, a brand new male member of New Image.

After the ceremony, the 1983

Corps spontaneously formed a huge circle, joined hands, and sang their battle hymn, "We are the Champions" for the last time, as twenty-five years of working and playing, and shining victories and bitter defeats, and shared laughter and shared tears for the world renowned All-Girl Championship Corps came to an end. The weight of the moment was almost unbearable.

The overwhelming impression that was left with those guests who were not intimately familiar with the Corps was one of amazement. "These people - these terrific kids and these adults who guide them - they're so intense - so close - I can't believe anything like this still exists! I tell you - they deserve all the credit in the world" said one guest as we prepared to leave. He just kept shaking his head in disbelief as we said goodbye to Mr. Graziose and the staff. "It's the discipline, that's what it is," he finally said in a flash of revelation.

"Yes, discipline is dispensed by Mr. Cluna and his instructors in no small measure, and it has been a major ingredient in that which distinguishes this organization from "ordinary" ones. But it is that and more, for here, discipline is accomplished by a discernable caring, a genuine concern, and a true striving for musicianship, citizenship, correctness, and excellence," said Mr. Costa. "It is this legacy that we hope to pass on to the future molders of our society," said Mr. Graziose.

A legacy, indeed, Mr. Graziose. Good luck to New Image!

I'm saving for retirement with a tax-deferred IRA. That's a great idea.

My bank pays 1/2% extra interest on my IRA. That's a Greater Idea.

Now, get a bonus with your tax break: Extra interest at The Greater.

Act now. You have even more to gain with these new Greater IRA accounts. We've added 1/2% to the interest rate you'll earn on time deposits of two years or more. That's 1/2% on top of the high interest we're already offering on regular 2- through 5-year accounts!

And of course, your Greater IRA saves taxes two ways on funds deposited on or before the date you file your '83 Federal tax return:

1. Working married couples can invest up to $4,000 in high interest IRAs and deduct the entire amount from their 1983 taxable income.
2. In addition, no taxes are due on your IRA deposits, or the interest they earn, until you retire (when your tax bracket will probably be lower.)

Single persons can deduct up to $2,000 yearly, and married couples with one working spouse up to $2,250. And anyone who is salaried or self-employed and under age 70 1/2 can enjoy the benefits of a Greater IRA.

No taxes until you retire. Nobody can tax any part of your IRA savings—not the I.R.S., not the State, not the City—until you start making with draws between ages 59 1/2 and 70 1/2. (Substantial interest and tax penalties will be imposed on withdrawals prior to age 59 1/2.)

This account	pays this effective annual yield	on this annual interest rate*
2 YEARS Minimum Deposit $250	11.241%	10.700%
3 YEARS Minimum Deposit $250	11.461%	10.900%

5 YEARS Minimum Deposit $250	11.683%	11.100%

*Compounded and credited monthly. All rates shown are available through 1/31/84.

Other Greater advantages:

- You don't have to deposit your maximum all at once. You can build your IRA in easy installments.
- You don't have to deposit the maximum amount.
- You can skip years if you have to.
- You never pay a management fee.
- You can get free help on choosing exactly the IRA that suits your needs.

Grandma buys love with candy

By Willard Abraham Ph.D.

Q. My mother has the strange idea that she is doing our three young children a favor by giving them big bags of candy every time she comes over. They look forward to her visits, of course, but not for herself. She doesn't realize that she is "buying" their affection.

I've tried to explain to her that she is not only doing them no favor, but actually being harmful to their health and teeth.

I don't want to hurt her feelings, but I can't let this practice of hers continue.

Q With newspaper feature articles, health columns and recent diet books so full of warnings about the dangers of excessive amounts of sugar, one can't help but wonder where she's been lately.

She apparently hasn't read the material, seen the book entitled "Sugar Blues" (available in libraries and in paperback editions) or talked to a competent physician. All could convince her of the dangers to which she is exposing the children she loves.

If she insists on bringing presents, perhaps you can suggest appropriate substitutes for the sweets, ones that the children might cherish just as highly.

I don't like to suggest that you limit her visits if she continues this practice but that is one possibility. It just depends on what your priorities are — your children's health or her good will toward you.

Q. Is it possible to get a 3-year-old to stay in bed at night when he's placed there, without tying him down? I'm so fed up with him every night that I'm tempted to do just that. I'm not kidding you.

Maybe it's a kind of child abuse, so I don't suppose I'll ever do it, but he's really impossible at nighttime.

I'm a single parent, work at a demanding job, and when I get home I'm tired out, kind of nervous, too, I guess.

So do you have any surefire suggestions for getting him to stay in bed when it's time for him to go to sleep?

A. It sounds as though the pressures on you interfere with the possibility of a pleasant time together with your little boy. He may miss your company during the long daily periods of time that you are apart, so he's making demands on you that may add to the other pressures you feel.

Do you read to him, talk to him, or watch television together for a few minutes just before bedtime? A calm period of family warmth is often a good introduction to a young child's getting ready for bed and sleep.

If any readers have other pet remedies, I hope they will send them in for me to share.

I've written separate articles for parents of young children on the subjects of the "working mother," "the single parent" and the importance of parental consistency. Just send me a stamped envelope at P.O. Box 572, Scottsdale, AZ 85252, and let me know which specific one you want.

Q. There is nothing wrong with the eyesight of our 7-year-old son, but my wife raises a rumpus and threatens to do something because his eyes are small and kind of squinty.

I actually think he's sort of good-looking, like me and some members of my family (of whom she has never been very fond).

It's kind of a dumb situation for me to deal with, and I don't want to get into a fight with her over it. But I don't want to create problems for him either.

Any suggestions?

A. If you are really sure that his sight is all right and you recognize the family reasons why she seems to have this concern, you are probably in the clear — except for one possibility.

It is related to her threat to "do something" about his eyes. If that threat should be activated in any way you may then want to get some objective medical or other appropriate advice. That step or your part could help avoid a confrontation.

Until then you might consider trying to ignore the subject. Not easy, I know, but probably worth the effort.

Merriest-Go-Round

■ When you need to meet friends at the Nassau Farmers Market in Bethpage, picking a place is simple: "Meet me at the merry-go-round."

At the center of more than 200 booths in the indoor market is a full-sized 36-foot merry-go-round, "one of the most beautiful machines of its time," according to O. "Wimpy" Zorlenzan.

Wimpy should know. Since 1935, he has been restoring and repairing merry-go-rounds throughout the Long Island area, installing this one almost 20 years ago and taking care of it ever since.

Every Friday and Saturday, from 10 AM to 10 PM, the merry-go-round turns its 30 jumping horses for delighted children—and grateful shopping parents.

The price of admission is a consumer's dream: 25 cents ($2 for a book of 10 tickets), and accompanying adults ride free.

What adds to the merry occasion is that the carousel is run by the merriest of men—a band of three grandpas, headed by Eddie Beckhans, a retired milkman, who has watched over his merry-go-round "grandchildren" for 17 years.

Beckhans, a winning, silver-haired 79-year-old, is as delighted with his kids as they are with his merry-go-round. In his ticket booth he displays a wall filled with photographs of his little customers—a sampling of "Eddie's Angels," as he calls them.

Today, some of his long-time "Angels" are now bringing pictures of their own little angels to Beckhans's gallery.

The merry-go-round has never missed a weekend in 25 years, turning out more than 100 rides a day; it has been as reliable as the smiles, gentle pats, and joking of Eddie's band.

Ron Roel is a Long Islander journalist, is the author of "How To Borrow Money (Simon & Schuster, 1983) and has written for Newsday and New York.

Video Project At Dutch Lane

The video camera rolled once again in Denise Yannone's class for children with special learning needs at the Dutch Lane School in Hicksville. While the children went about their daily routine, the camera recorded all it saw and heard. At the conclusion of one week, the children viewed themselves on television with an eye toward improving their behavior as well as focusing on the best of what they accomplished.

While the video tapes played, a tally of the negative and positive behaviors of each student was recorded. The children discussed what they saw in themselves and in their classmates. At first they felt a little apprehensive, but as they saw how they were able to maintain their attention during a social studies lesson, or answer questions appropriately while participating in a reading group, most of the children concluded that they behaved very well.

One of the youngsters was amazed to see how many times he left his seat. He resolved to be more aware of this behavior and to try and curtail it. Another student felt proud of the way he was able to maintain his self-control while some of his classmates became silly during a class discussion.

In a few weeks, the video camera will again return to Ms. Yannone's class and another behavioral analysis will take place. The children will be able to compare results to see for themselves the progress they have made. They all agree that it's fun to be the star of your own TV program!

Emergency Snow Hotline

When a heavy snowfall blankets Hicksville, will the schools be open or closed? Residents will have another source of this important information when the emergency snow closing hotline begins operation this week. A recorded announcement to inform callers has been installed on the general information number at the Administration Building, and residents may call 733-2104 to check on the status of school opening. This recording will only be in operation on mornings when inclement weather or hazardous road conditions exist, and since the announcement will be installed on this one phone line, callers are asked to be patient and call again if the line is busy.

School closing announcements will be broadcast as usual on Cablevision and the radio stations listed in the Hicksville Public Schools district calendar. If you did not receive a copy, please call the Staff/Community Relations Office at 733-2089 and request one.

HHS '34 Class Holds 50th Reunion

The Hicksville High School graduating Class of 1934 is planning a 50th Golden Anniversary reunion on June 10th 1984 at Wicker's Restaurant, Old Country Road in Hicksville.

A committee composed of Harry Guckenberger (President of the class), Helen (lehle) Guckenberger, and Charles I. Montana has been contacting the members of the Class. To date, 47 classmates out of 60 have been located. We have lost 13 members who are deceased. Of the 47 members contacted, 42 have indicated their desire to attend. The committee feels this is a great response after all these years of separation.

We would like any of the high school teachers who taught our class to contact the above committee if they can attend as our guests.

The committee also plans to ask the Board of Education if the former high school building (now the junior high) could be opened on Sunday after from 2-4 p.m. on June 10th so that our classmates might see and visit the classrooms we occupied 50 years ago.

PTA Council To Honor William A. Becker

The Hicksville Council of PTAs is pleased to have Mr. William A. Becker as this year's District Honored Guest for the Founders Day Dinner. The dinner will be held at the Crest Hollow Country Club, in Woodbury, on Thursday evening, February 16. The annual Founders Day Dinner is a way of remembering and paying tribute to the organization of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers on February 17, 1897. It is a means of honoring the memory of its founders Alice McLellan Birney and Phoeby Apperson Hearst, along with their hopes and dreams for all children. Each year PTA selects for its District Honored Guest a person it feels exemplifies the spirit with which the founders would have gone about implementing their hopes and dreams for children.

Mr. Becker has worked for the Hicksville School District for 21 years. He is a graduate of Brooklyn Technical High School and attended St. Bonaventure University, which is located in upstate New York. Mr. Becker has a degree in engineering. He served with the Army's 104th Infantry Division in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany during World War II and was awarded the Combat Infantry Medal. Before joining the Hicksville School District he was employed in industry concerning the area of plant maintenance and manufacturing facilities. His occupational duties also consisted of time and motion studies and production. Such a background was the perfect foundation for the expertise he has brought to Hicksville.

Bill Becker has tried to make Hicksville's schools interesting for our children. He has implemented many ingenious methods of giving the children in our grammar schools a sense of identity and belonging to the areas to which they are assigned. He has tried to instill a sense of pride for their schools in the students attending the secondary schools. He feels that places the children must work, learn and spend a great deal of time should be pleasant and comfortable. With that concept in mind he has brought colorful designs into our schools and has seen to it that needed repairs and replacements have been made before emergency situations occur. One only has to take a look at our new high school auditorium to understand the pride William Becker takes in his work. A tour of the schools in our district will give one the insight Mr. Becker has of the students' need for pride in their home away from home.

He is committed to preventative maintenance and energy conservation. He is proud to note that we have never had to shut down a school due to lack of maintenance. He endeavors to run the district as efficiently as a profitable organization would be operated. He is adamant in his belief that there should not be any disruption of the students' education and he strives to keep our buildings running smoothly toward that goal. It is clear that all his efforts in Hicksville are undertaken with the children in mind because he truly feels the end product is the next generation.

Bill Becker lives in Huntington with his wife, Louise. They have one married daughter, Lorraine. We are sure his family is as proud of him as PTA is to honor him.

Backyard Gardener

Some hardy house plants

By Patrick Denton

Something that concerns a lot of indoor gardeners, especially in the depth of winter, is whether a lack of bright sunny spots in the house or apartment means that one must forego the pleasure of growing houseplants.

Happily, the answer is no. There are many species, some of them quite exotic, which thrive in indirect and low-light conditions. So living in a home that receives little direct sunlight doesn't mean you can't grow beautiful, healthy houseplants.

Among the tolerant specimens is the spathiphyllum, a decorator's delight. It produces an abundance of glossy, dark green leaves on long willowy stems. It ranges in height from 12 to 18 inches.

As a bonus, the "spathe" also sends forth graceful white blossoms that closely resemble calla lilies. This plant will tolerate low light most of the year. During the winter, it should be moved to a window where it will receive filtered sunlight.

Another good candidate for low-light situations is the Chinese evergreen. Most varieties grow 2 feet or more tall, with leaves that range from 6 to 12 inches in length. The variety most commonly seen, Aglaonema modestum, has solid green, heart-shaped foliage. Other varieties have mottled green and white leaves or pewter-colored leaves flecked with silver.

Still another best bet has a touch of nostalgia to it — the old-fashioned parlor palm as it was known in Grandma's day. Kentia, also called Howea or Paradise Palm, is still very much in vogue as a decorative, easy-to-maintain, low-light house plant. The Kentia grows tall, with each set of arching fronds longer and broader than the set below it.

Another seasoned veteran which suits our purposes to the letter is the aspidistra which has the nickname "cast iron" plant because it will survive under the worst lighting conditions and almost total neglect. Place it in the darkest corner of the room and it will survive.

On occasion, this plant has also been dubbed the "beer plant" because it's often found in bars where the bartenders frequently water it with beer dregs, the most readily available liquid. The aspidistra's shiny leaves are a rich dark green, sometimes veined with white. Keep the soil moist, but let it dry out somewhat between waterings.

Our old friend, the sansevieria or "snake plant" is practically indestructible, tolerating very low levels of light and infrequent watering. Its slender, waxy leaves grow 12 to 18 inches or more in height. It gets its nickname from the appearance of its sinuous upright growth and the mottled pattern on its foliage.

For those craving color, the coleus is a good possibility in these circumstances. Too little light, though, like too much direct sun, will reduce the coloring in its leaves. An easy plant to grow, the coleus is among the most colorful variegated houseplants available.

Its quilted, ripple-edged foliage presents as many as four colors on a single leaf, running from pale to deep shades of pink, red, crimson, maroon, copper and green. Some are striped or flecked with white.

Other houseplants that survive and thrive in low-light situations include the philodendron species, the rubber tree and fiddle-leaf fig tree.

Incidentally, some time ago I mentioned that a convenient source of nitrogen to promote vigorous green growth in houseplants is that packet of Knox unflavored gelatin in the kitchen cupboard. Research has concluded that this gelatin, commonly used in kitchen recipes, helps promote fuller, greener plants and this is borne out in comments I've received from readers.

To apply, dissolve an envelope of Knox unflavored gelatin with one cup of hot tap water in a pitcher or large mixing bowl. Add three cups of cold water to make a quart. Water the plants thoroughly with this mixture on a monthly, bimonthly or semi-annual basis, according to their needs.

One word of caution, here. Be sure to use all that you mix because it will go bad in storage.

Tax Exemptions Before May 1

Veterans, Senior Citizens and physically disabled persons who own their own homes must apply for their property tax exemptions before May 1, 1984, in order to be considered for the exemption on the 1985 Nassau County Tax roll, according to Oyster Bay Town Receiver of Taxes Gary F. Musiello.

"Applications for all three exemptions are available now through the Nassau County Board of Assessment," Musiello stated. "Since verifying eligibility often takes some time, I urge people to file early to give the Board of Assessment optimum time to approve all legitimate claims for the tax exemptions."

Musiello explained that eligible veterans will receive an exemption which does not exceed $5,000 of assessment. It applied to all county, town and highway taxes, but not to school or special district taxes. He stated that once the exemption is granted, a veteran need not file a new application unless he or she receives additional qualifying payments and desires to raise the amount of the exemption up to the maximum $5,000, in which case a supplemental exemption is necessary.

For seniors, there will be a change starting with the 1985 tax roll. "For the first time, seniors with incomes between $10,500 and $13,500 will be eligible for a sliding scale exemption of between 45 percent and 20 percent with the exemption going down as income rises," Musiello stated. "Seniors with incomes of $10,500 or less will still be eligible to receive a 50 percent reduction."

Your letter carrier can save your life. If mail has accumulated for two days or more your carrier will notify the Postmaster, when you register in the Senior Citizen Alert Program. Postmaster Anthony Murello says that over 3,000 seniors in Nassau and Suffolk are involved in the Carrier Alert Program. Two lives were saved by letter carriers this year. Recently Frank Mitchell, Customer Service Representative from the Hicksville Post Office explained the Carrier Alert Program to over 100 Retired Federal Employees of Nassau Chapter #471. Carrier Alert applications were distributed to everyone.

Any senior citizen group in the Hicksville-Plainview area is welcome to contact the Hicksville Post Office at 433-7300 Ext. 24 for more information on the Carrier Alert Program.

Energy Audit Still Avail.

A free on-site energy audit is being offered by the New York State Energy Office, to non-profit community service organizations, according to Town Supervisor Joseph Colby.

"The Town recently received information from the New York State Energy Office about the energy audit, which is being offered to non-profit community service organizations, proprietary nursing homes, voluntary emergency service groups and non-profit cultural centers and museums which own their own building", Colby explained. "The audit is designed to identify changes in operations and maintenance procedures that would reduce energy consumption without significant capital expenditures."

Colby noted that while the energy audit is primarily for non-profit organizations which own their own building, groups which meet all other eligibility criteria but lease their building will be considered on a case by case basis.

"With the high cost of energy, I welcome the opportunity to publicize any program that might help cut that cost," Colby commented. "If you think your organization might be eligible for the energy audit, write or call the New York State Energy Office, Bureau of Institutional Buildings, Two Rockefeller Plaza, Albany, N.Y. 12223 518 473-4790 for further information."

M.I. Ecumenical Group Services

On Sunday, January 29, the 15 Churches in the Hicksville-Plainview-Bethpage area actively involved in the Mid-Island Ecumenical Council will hold a Service of Prayer For Christian Unity, to which all the members of the 23 churches in the area are invited. The service will be held at St. Martin of Tours Church in Bethpage and will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The theme for this year's Prayer For Christian Unity is "Called to be One Through the Cross of Our Lord". The Rev. Roland Perez, Pastor of St. Stephen's Lutheran Church, Hicksville, will be the Homilist and using texts from Luke, 2nd Corinthians and Leviticus, will speak on "Sin as the cause of our disunity".

Music will be provided by the choirs of the member churches, and refreshments will be served as a Fellowship Hour immediately after the service.

The Mid-Island Ecumenical Council (initially, Hicksville-Plainview Ecumenical Council) has been in existence almost 15 years and includes Episcopal churches, Lutheran churches from both Synods, Methodist, Greek and Coptic churches, Reformed and Roman Catholic churches.

Prayer for Christian Unity Service, Sunday, January 29, 7:30 p.m., St. Martin of Tours Church, Bethpage - Open to all.

Neighborhood Crime Watch

Our December meeting was held at East Street School on the 7th. Town Councilman Tom Clark addressed the group. He spoke of the pros and cons of Neighborhood Watches. Huntington has one of the largest approximately 22,000 members and crime dropped 65% there in a period of three years. He also spoke of other community matters such as the burned out building on Old Country Road, the cement hopper on Railroad Avenue which was finally removed, vacant land in downtown Hicksville and the time and red tape involved in trying to change various situations.

Our group is made up of many of your neighbors in the area from Kramer Street to South Elm and Marie-Plainview Road south to Old Country Road. There are approximately 250 homes in this area. There are several Neighborhood Watches in Hicksville. We are the eyes and ears of your Police Department. In addition to the Police car you see in this area there is also an unmarked car patrolling. All we do is report to 911 any strange person, car etc., giving as much information such as description, location, etc. For those of you who have not been to our meetings, we strongly suggest that you attend our February 8 meeting at the East Street School at 7:30. This is also a good time to meet any new neighbors.

Come to Metropolitan. Simplify your life.

A Subsidiary of Metropolitan Life

It's up to us.

New York State is a great state in which to live, work and raise a family. We can be proud of our place in world commerce, industry, and in the quality of our lives. But one of our greatest sources of pride is often overlooked, that being our huge forest preserves, wetland and marsh areas, and abundant fish and wildlife.

Now New Yorkers have an opportunity to help protect this unique heritage of wildlife so vital to the quality of life we all enjoy. "Return a Gift to Wildlife" is a program into which you may voluntarily contribute when you complete your state tax form. By checking off Line 18 on the long form or Line 12 on the short form, you can make a contribution to the New York State Conservation Fund. Monies collected have been dedicated by the State Finance Law to the protection, management and extension of wildlife in our great state.

The Need Has Never Been Greater

Hard economic times dictate hard financial decisions. This year, the federal government has already eliminated endangered species aid, jeopardizing the restoration of a number of birds and animals native to New York. In addition, thousands of acres of grassland, wetland, marshland and forest that are critical to the survival or extension of New York's wildlife are eliminated or disrupted each year. The New York State "Return a Gift to Wildlife" program is an important step towards a lasting solution to these problems, and an investment in the future of our wildlife.

An Effective Program

Like the environment which only thrives when the whole ecosystem is addressed, the areas of work to be addressed through tax contributions are broad and comprehensive. The largest single element is earmarked for habitat protection so critical to wildlife perpetuation. A species management program will be strengthened to help maintain all species of fish and wildlife at desirable population levels for human enjoyment. A third element is the public use program which will provide increased opportunities for enjoying fish and wildlife. Lastly, the plan calls for greater awareness development of fish and wildlife values through the creation of better educational resources and information services.

Consider the added dimension wildlife brings to your life. Won't you return a gift through a contribution on Line 18 of the long form or Line 12 of the short form of your State tax return. Your gift is tax deductible on your 1983 tax return.

Your Social Security

1983 amendment explained

Q. I understand the Social Security tax rate for employees is going up from 6.7 percent to 7 percent in 1984.

A friend told me that employees will still be paying only 6.7 percent. Which is correct? — M.C.

A. Actually both are correct.

The 1983 amendments which raised the tax rate from 6.7 percent to 7 percent also gave employees a .3 percent credit, given when the tax is deducted from earnings.

The end result is that a person who has the same earnings in 1984 as in 1983 will pay the same Social Security tax.

Q. My 16-year-old son receives benefits on his deceased father's account. I understand his benefits will terminate at age 18.

Someone told me that if he transfers to his stepfather's account he can get benefits to age 21 because his stepfather is disabled.

This would help a lot since he plans to attend a private college after high school. — E.H.

A. No benefits can be paid after age 18 in this case. Children benefits normally terminate at age 18 whether benefits are received as a result of retirement, death or disability.

Q. In a recent newspaper column it was stated that military service from 1957 on is covered by Social Security. Does this apply to commissioned officers serving during that period or to enlisted personnel only? — E.K.

A. Both commissioned officers and enlisted personnel are covered. They also receive up to $1,200 per year additional credit if their base salary is less than the maximum amount taxable for Social Security purposes. The additional credit is added when a claim is filed on the individual's account (at retirement, death or disability).

Q. My wife, age 56, wants to know if she is eligible to draw Social Security from her deceased husband's account when she is 62 even though she is married to me. They were married 25 years but divorced at the time of his death. — R.C.S.

A. She could not receive benefits from her former husband's account while she is still married to you.

Gleeb Paul Lowney

Why doesn't that lady ever speak?
She lived with chimpanzees for five years, devoid of all human contact.

And?

She spent all this time developing a symbol language with the chimps by means of a response-and-reward technique utilizing bananas.

And this destroyed her speech?

The theory is that she grew to care for the chimps more than people, so she eventually repressed her major link with humanity—her speech.

Will she ever talk again?

Two behavioral psychologists are working on her.

What's their technique?

Bananas.

The Ernest Francke Republican Club of Hicksville elected their first woman president in almost 57 years. Shown congratulating the new president, Harriet A. Maher, is the installing officer, Honorable Joseph N. Mondello, chairman of the Nassau County Republican Committee. In spite of inclement weather, Chairman Mondello and a large membership were on hand at the installation of officers and directors of this Republican Club, Friday, January 13.

President Maher, on behalf of herself and the new officers and directors, promised to continue the leadership that had been provided to the Club throughout its existence by past presidents.

Mrs. Maher has been a resident of Hicksville for 33 years, and a member of the Club for 10 years. She has a B.S. Degree in Business Management and Economics and is currently enrolled in the C.W. Post University Master of Public Administration program.

State ERA Not Supported By Local Input Callers

Callers to Input do not favor a state version of the Equal Rights Amendment in answer to this question: "Governor Cuomo has proposed an Equal Rights Amendment to the New York State Constitution. Would you support this? Did you support a Federal Bill?"

NO SUPPORT

I would not support an equal rights amendment to the New York State Constitution. I did not support a federal ERA. I feel that woman's condition today is worse than it was. Women were always able to succeed at a career in the past if they were determined to do so. Today in addition to holding a job they also have the children and a home to care for. True husbands are more helpful than in the past but the main responsibility remains with the woman. She just has additional burdens and pressures. It seems as if more of the men today are walking out on their responsibilities than in the past leaving many women to go it alone. I would hardly call these conditions an improvement. I think the ERA would result in many legal tangles and I don't think women should be forced to go into the military. There are certain occupations that require a good deal of physical strength and those women are not able to compete with men. I do not think physical or educational standards should be lowered for any person - male or female, black or white. That is what I consider equal rights. L.C.

QUALIFIED SUPPORT

I do support an equal rights amendment to the N.Y. State Constitution but sometimes I feel women go a little too far. I believe in equal pay for equal work. Therefore I believe in equal opportunities in business but it is ridiculous for women to get involved in fire departments, police etc. Even men's sports. A woman's place is not only in the home but in the business world. I also believe women in the military is absurd. A lot of women are beginning to leave their ladylike qualities and manners in the past decade. F.M.

GO TOO FAR

I will not support the ERA to the New York State Constitution and I did not support the federal ERA. I appreciate the fact that women need to be equal to men. I believe that they go too far in that they want to enforce their beliefs....beliefs that many women do not agree with. One comes to mind: women should be drafted if there was a war. There may be exceptions to the rule but women would not be equal to men in battle. I don't agree with the stand on abortion either. Women should receive equal pay in jobs where they compete with men as long as they qualify. There should be equality in the job market. I can't go along with the ERA. We have enough laws and I believe if women are capable they can achieve anything that men can without the ERA. K.S.

AGAINST

I will vote against any ERA amendment until its proponents disengage if from abortion.

ANOTHER PUSH

It does get to be a bit too much to be faced constantly with renewed and desperate efforts to pass the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. It was defeated in 1972 according to the rules and in my opinion, rightly so. It would have provided that equality of rights under the law not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex. As far as the Constitution and its existing amendments are concerned, it is a model of neutering the gender uniformly referring to people as persons except where the President is referred to as "he" although elsewhere the candidate for Presidential election is clearly a "person" as are all other references to people throughout. To answer the specific question, I didn't support a Federal ERA and I wouldn't support such an amendment to the N.Y. Constitution as Governor Cuomo would have us do. I feel that the emergence of women as a serious factor in the career sector of our society is an understandable revolution for some from their historic role as persons on the distaff side dedicated to home, family, social and community life. The transition cannot be accomplished on a completely equal basis overnight and no amount of legal suasion will speed up the process if at all. In addition, there is already adequate legal recourse to obviate sex discrimination in any area. Finally, while I acknowledge that women have every right to compete for jobs, pay and recognition on a par with their male competitors, I feel that they have got to earn it on the basis of meeting tested qualifications as they have already done in many instances. Apart from that, why do the advocates want so very much to force entry into the arena of competition while the non-advocates want nothing more than just to continue to be charmingly feminine! P.G.C.

DISCOVERY

Special Story

It's Not Always 'As Pretty As A Picture

By Ruth Van Kooy

Have you every noticed that life's significant occasions look a lot better in the photograph album than they do in real life? The photographer says "Hold it" and all talking (or pinching and shoving and shouting, as the case may be) ceases, the smiles appear, and then - Snap - junior's 8th grade graduation is preserved on film, ready to take its place in the album between baby's first tooth and sis' sweet sixteen party. A few years down the road, while leafing through the pages, we stop, we smile, we sigh, a tear comes to the eye as we think how perfect everyone looks. The baby is adorable, the graduate appears dignified, the bride and groom exude optimism, etc. But wait a minute - what really was going on just before the camera captured that moment for posterity?

I remember my 14th birthday party - the very first boy-girl party given in my circle of friends. I was absolutely DESPERATE that everything should seem very sophisticated and very grown-up. Apparently my mother was equally desperate, but in a different way. She kept popping down the stairs to see if we needed more ice cubes?...more popcorn?...were we ready for the cake? I guess she had visions of couples necking in dark corners (though the Rec. Room was square and well-lit) and of irate parents phoning the next day to register their disapproval. If only she had realized we were twenty awkward adolescents who thought it was an act of epic heroism for a boy to ask a girl to dance. Anyway, by the time Mom had popped in five or six times, I was just about mortified to death. So what was the excuse for visit number seven? You guessed it - picture time. I gritted my teeth and smiled through the daggers in my eyes. Now, years later, I look at that photo and what do I see - nineteen awkward 14 year olds and me, looking like the picture perfect birthday girl. Who says the camera can't lie? (If I didn't know better, I'd say it was the photo of a very happy young lady.)

Or take high school graduation. Alfred Snodgrass, my least favorite classmate, beat me out for valedictorian by a tenth of a point. The wonders of alphabetical seating landed me between the school's best known delinquent and the captain of our local motorcycle gang. I was not looking forward to three hours under a sweltering sun stuck between these characters. Besides, I was going through A Phase, the one when you think ceremonies and speeches and certificates are just too, too silly and boring for words. Well, tough luck for me, my parents were not going through the same phase, hence there I sat sweltering through Alfred Snodgrass' speech. But, you should see the pictures! Not a trace remains of the early morning pleading, foot stamping, tears and general theatricals. There I am looking every bit the proud, young graduate between beaming parents.

Like most people, I have an entire album devoted to my wedding day. The pictures are just beautiful. Everyone looks so happy, so hopeful, so pleased with the newlyweds. No one would guess that by the time the photos were taken we were already in the throes of our first marital squabble. The sequence of events went something like this: kiss the bride, march down the aisle, climb into the limo, then attack. What did we fight about? I don't remember, something about the photographer. He must have been one darn good photographer because no one looking at our photos would think we weren't on speaking terms.

Finally, there's the birth of my first son. We have great shots of mother and son gazing beatifically at each other. Everything looks so healthy and happy and normal. You would never suspect that Mikey entered the world during what looked like a mini-session of the U.N. I had always pictured birth as a rather dignified, private affair. Maybe that's how it is for some, but if that's what you're looking for, don't go to a British teaching hospital. There I was in one of life's least comfortable, least dignified and least modest situations while at least a half dozen strangers milled about the room. One nurse was from Texas, one from Australia, one was a Pakistani, and one was from the Netherlands. They seemed to change shifts every ten or fifteen minutes. At one point, some man walked in and asked one of the nurses what German measles were. I was told he was a visiting doctor from China whose English wasn't very good (I kid you not). By the time Mikey appeared, I'm sure I'd seen representatives from every country in the Commonwealth and then some.

It's often said a picture is worth a thousand words. Now I'm not saying photos don't tell us a lot, that they don't help us treasure and remember precious moments in our lives, but be the occasion ever so solemn, so important, so dignified, no photo will ever quite capture all those funny, crazy, chaotic things that turn formal events into the real-life experiences of human beings.

Just Right
The Scales of Justice is a very good little restaurant. It is a place that always makes you feel at home. The price is right there too. On Thursday we had the best dinner we have had in many months for the low price of $7 each. The special on Thursday was chicken cutlet parmigiana. The dinner included the open salad bar vegetable and baked potato. The food was certainly first class and everything about the restaurant is right. The Scales of Justice is at 133 Mineola Blvd. Please print this so that others can check and see what we mean.

Very Pleased
We have visited several times the Villa Portofino on Mineola Blvd. in Mineola and have been very, very pleased. We had stuffed veal which was fantastic, the mixed fish dish was great and the service was very concerned, not to mention the owners. After four or five visits we continue to be pleased and want you to really plug this restaurant because it's the best in Italian food! C.D.

"OLD RELIABLE"
We call Mahoney's in Williston Park our "old reliable" because it never fails to provide us with a good meal. Last Sunday we went there in the evening. The place was filled but we still got a good seat. Mahoney's has a salad bar equipped with shrimp, soup and mussels along with the usual items that are found at salad bars. Some members of our party had veal and some had scrod but everyone said that they enjoyed the good food at this newly refurbished old landmark on Hillside Ave. And if you want something a little bit better try their Irish coffee. Restaurant Guide

If you have Questions about etiquette or dining out you may call them in to WE 1-0027 and we will find the answer.

Q. What is the policy of restaurants when a waiter spills something on you? F.P.

A. There is no set policy except that the management usually is very apologetic. Almost all places ask to assume the cost of cleaning your clothing. Others do this and void the check for the entire meal. On small splashes they usually do what they can at once to clean up the spot. Regardless of what else it usually requires the personal apology of the one in charge.

Q. Many times I find that baked potatoes at restaurants are soggy, even the better restaurants. How come they can't bake a potato right? C.B.

A. They can bake potatoes right but the problem is that when you bake a potato it takes a long time and they usually bake a number of them at once. If you happen to hit at the right time you will get the best but later it will get more soggy. The best tip in ordering the potato is to ask the server whether they are freshly baked or not. If not better take something else.

Q. When figuring the tip for service, how is it figured, on the total bill with tax or on the bill before tax? E.R.

A. Generally it is figured before the tax is added although the amount of a tip is a purely personal thing and it ranges from 15 to 20 percent. Usually where the service is great you compute it as high as 20 percent.

 I think the Arion Restaurant in Franklin Square is about the best fish restaurant I have ever been in. I noticed the ad last week and even though we were headed for another well known seafood restaurant on Thursday we decided to give Arion a try. We'll we had salmon steaks in a complete dinner at the Arion and the cost was much less than we expected. But that is not all. The food was prepared so well and the salmon so fresh that we will never go to another restaurant for seafood again. I hope that the place will not become overcrowded by making this telephone call to you but we just had to give credit where it is due.

DIFFERENT RESTAURANT

The name is different and so is the whole restaurant. I am talking about the Red Caboose. A real live old time freight caboose is hooked up to the back of the Red Caboose restaurant on Old Country Road, Westbury.

When you enter the tastefully decorated main area you will like the intimacy of the restaurant.

In addition the menu is Northern Italian with many fine veal and shrimp dishes. When you order a dinner entree you are given free access to the salad bar which has a good selection of items for salad and before dinner snacking.

The Last Word In Restaurant Guides

Where Our Readers
Have The Last Word

This newspaper, and the seven other weekly newspapers associated with it, publishes the last word in restaurant guides - a point listing of many prominent selected restaurants in this area. While many of them have been rated by the great, and near great food connoisseurs, our readers will have the last word through "Reader Ratings".

Through a special 24 hour phone system, readers will be asked to call in their assessment of each restaurant they visit. Consensus ratings (good or bad) will be published as a continuing part of the guide.

In addition they can make suggestions, compliments or criticisms through the open phone line and messages will be sent through to the restaurant management.

(Guide to Good Dining)

You can apply to join "Reader Ratings". If your establishment has been missed, or you have not yet answered our invitation, we invite you to call Litmor Publications at WE 1-0012 for more details as they might apply to your restaurant.

Cooking Corner

Festive party that's light and tasty

By Toni Griffin

One of the tricks of entertaining with style is to have most of the work done ahead. Keep the table setting bold and simple. You want to enhance the food, so choose a color that will complement each course — and make the food irresistible.

For the suggested party dinner menu, we have built in advance preparation. For instance, the Havarti en Croute appetizer can be made days in advance. The flavorful cheese encased in rich puff pastry dough can be carefully wrapped and frozen 3 to 4 days before the party. From freezer to oven to table takes only 25 to 30 minutes. When golden brown, lift it onto a tray to be served with fresh fruit.

Continue in the same style with a dramatic lamb entree. For the Glazed Racks of Lamb, traditional racks are interlocked in an unusual way to make a pocket for the delicious fruited stuffing that cooks right along with the lamb. Glazed with a tangy apricot mixture just before serving, this is a stunning roast that is deceptively simple to cook and serve. Little else is needed to complete the main course — perhaps some fresh vegetables to balance the meat and rice. Toss a simple piquant green salad with chunks of blue cheese for accompaniment.

Lighter in calories than a traditional party meal and brimming with flavors, the entire meal is in line with today's lighter eating style.

For dessert, make a silken tart of white chocolate in a press-in-pan crunchy almond pastry shell to indulge sweet fanciers. Baked ahead and refrigerated, it needs only to stand a few minutes at room temperature before serving. Top the tart with the thin crunchy almonds at the last minute. The nutty texture adds a crisp contrast to the tangy cherry topping and creamy filling. A bowl of beautiful fresh fruits can offer a refreshing alternate to end to the meal.

After coffee, collect compliments on your dinner party filled with savory taste treats and served with flair.

White Chocolate Cherry Tart Fresh Fruits

HAVARTI EN CROUTE

7-ozs. round creamy Havarti, plain or with dill, or equal size in square bulk pieces

2 frozen patty shells (or puff pastry sheets), thawed

Butter
1 egg lightly beaten

Press two patty shells together, then roll out on lightly floured cloth to an 8-inch circle. Place cheese in center of circle, bringing edges of pastry just over top edge of cheese, forming tucks. Place in lightly-buttered 5-inch metal or foil pan, brush with beaten egg. Chill 1 hour. Brush again, then bake in preheated 375-degree oven 15-20 minutes, or until golden in color.

Remove from oven and let cool slightly in pan before serving. Or cool and chill to reheat before serving. Serve warm cut in wedges with crisp fresh fruit or raw vegetables. Other types and sizes of cheese (approximately same weight) can be wrapped and baked following this technique.

Variation: Place 1 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard on bottom of pastry together with 1 tablespoon fresh herbs. Place cheese in center of pastry and bake as above.

GLAZED RACKS OF LAMB

2 racks of lamb, 6-8 ribs each (3½-4 lbs.)

Stuffing

2 cups cooked brown or wild rice

1 cup fresh pineapple, cut in chunks or 1 (8-oz.) can, drained

1 cup sliced almonds, toasted

1 cup shredded coconut

1 cup raisins

1 (8-oz.) can sliced water chestnuts, drained

1 cup cooked green peas

Glaze

1 (6-8 oz.) jar apricot preserves

4 tbsps. water or orange liqueur to thin

Have butcher "French" the racks so the meat between rib-bone tips has been removed (approximately 1½ inches). Criss-cross the two racks, forming a pocket for stuffing. Place lamb on roasting rack to collect excess drippings. Combine all stuffing ingredients in mixing bowl. Pack mixture in lamb cavity. Roast in 325-degree oven 25 minutes per pound, or until meat thermometer placed in center of muscle registers 140 degrees for medium rare or 155-160 degrees for medium to retain its best mellow flavor. Place remainder of rice stuffing in a casserole and bake in oven with lamb approximately 30 minutes or until done. Combine apricot preserves and liqueur or water in small saucepan. Heat until warm. During the last 15 minutes of roasting, baste lamb with apricot glaze mixture. Serve remaining glaze with lamb and stuffing. Carve at the table. Makes 6 to 8 servings. (2 ribs per person).

SALAD PIQUANT

2 heads butter lettuce, washed and torn

¼ cup blue cheese, cut into chunks

Piquant Dressing (recipe below)

Optional Additions:

¼ cup toasted sliced almonds or ½ cup chunks red apple

Lightly combine lettuce and cheese in salad bowl. Dress and toss again just before serving. Makes 8 servings.

Piquant Dressing: In small bowl, whisk 2 egg yolks with ¼ cup white wine vinegar and 2 teaspoons Dijon mustard. Stir in 1 clove mashed garlic, 2 teaspoons chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon minced shallot, 1 teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper. Add slowly 1 cup olive oil, whisking constantly until slightly thick. Makes about 1½ cups.

WHITE CHOCOLATE CHERRY TART

Almond Pastry Shell

1 cup flour
2 tbsps. sugar
¼ tsp. salt
½ cup butter
¼ cup diced toasted almonds
3 tbsps. water

Combine flour, sugar and salt. Cut in butter until mixture looks like coarse corn meal. Stir in almonds. Blend in water to form crumbly dough. Pat into bottom and sides of 9-inch tart or pie pan. Chill 20 minutes. Bake in 400-degree oven 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool.

Filling

1¼ cups butter, softened
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1 (3-oz.) bar white chocolate, melted
Almond Pastry Shell (above)
Cherry Topping (recipe below)
¼ cup toasted sliced almonds

Cream butter until smooth. Gradually beat in sugar until mixture is smooth and fluffy. Beat in eggs one at a time. Blend in vanilla and white chocolate. Spoon into Almond Pastry Shell. Chill until firm. Spoon Cherry Topping over tart. Chill up to 8 hours. Remove from refrigerator about ½ hour before serving; sprinkle with toasted sliced almonds to serve.

Cherry Topping

1 (16-oz.) can red cherries
3 tbsps. sugar
3-4 tbsps. arrowroot or cornstarch
¼ cup slivered almonds
¼ tsp. almond extract or 2 tbsps. Amaretto liqueur

Combine cherries, sugar, arrowroot or cornstarch and slivered almonds. Boil 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Blend in almond extract or Amaretto.

SPRING EGGS

4 eggs, beaten
2 tbsps. butter
3 scallions, thinly sliced
1 tbsp. fresh parsley, chopped
2 tbsps. fresh basil, chopped (or 1 tsp. dried basil)
1 small pinch dried thyme
1 medium tomato
Salt and pepper to taste

Slice the tomato in half and squeeze each half gently to remove most of the seeds and juice. Chop tomato halves in small pieces.

In small frying pan, melt 1 tablespoon butter over medium-high heat and add scallions. Saute 1 or 2 minutes, until scallions are slightly soft, but not brown. Add tomatoes, stir and add basil and parsley. Allow this mixture to simmer for 5 to 10 minutes, until the tomatoes are very soft and the mixture has thickened somewhat. Remove from heat and set aside. Add salt and pepper to taste.

In larger frying pan, melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter over medium-high heat and add the eggs. Scramble until set. Remove from heat.

Add the tomato mixture and stir until thoroughly mixed. Serve immediately with toasted English muffin bread (recipe follows).

SHIRRED EGGS

4 eggs
¼ cup bread crumbs or cracker crumbs
½ cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
2 tbsps. chopped parsley
4 scallions, thinly sliced
2 tbsps. butter
Salt and pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 400 degrees.

Put 1 tablespoon butter in each of two ramekins or shallow, oven-proof casseroles. Put dishes in oven for 1 to 2 minutes until butter has melted. Remove from oven, divide scallions between the dishes and return to oven for another 1 to 2 minutes, until scallions begin to sizzle. Remove from oven.

Carefully break 2 eggs into each dish. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and parsley, dividing it between the two. Divide and sprinkle grated cheddar over parsley, then add crumbs.

Bake at 400 degrees until cooked to desired firmness (5 to 10 minutes). By gently shaking dishes during cooking, you will be able to tell if the eggs have set.

These eggs may be served in the dishes in which they were cooked, or may be removed to plates.

Serve with toasted English muffin bread (recipe follows).

Chocolate set is sweet antique

Q. My porcelain chocolate set (pot with four cups and saucers) has a pearlized finish decorated with roses.

I have attached a sketch of the mark on the bottom. I would appreciate any information you can provide.

A. RS Prussia porcelain was made by both Erdmann and Reinhold Schlegelmilch in Suhl and Tillowitz, Germany.

Your chocolate set was made around the turn of the century and would sell for $500 to $600.

Q. I have been told that the marking on the bottom of this vase indicates that is Sevres. Can you confirm this and tell me its vintage and value?

A. The National Manufactory of Sevres (France) used at least 50 different marks during their 250-year history. The mark on your vase would determine the vintage. However, Sevres porcelain was copied by many of its competitors — not just the styles but also the marks.

The only way you can be sure is to take your vase to a local museum where they can actually examine it.

Q. How do you tell the difference between a genuine Carrier and Ives print and a reproduction?

A. The original prints were made in three sizes:

Small — 7.8 by 12.8 inches.

Medium — 13 by 20 inches.

Large — 18 by 27 inches.

These measurements are for the printed area — not including the margins, which should not be cut off.

If the size is right, examine the print with a magnifying glass. The colors should be solid areas — not a series of small colored dots.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 per item to James G. McCollam.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

It's possible to paper over paneling

Q. We have some wood paneling which has grooves in it. I thought first of taking it down, but instead, with all the work involved and no use for the used paneling, I wondered if something could be put into the grooves, a sort of filler, so that we could wallpaper over the surface.

If this can be done, advise us what to use. Also, would this ruin the paneling if someone at a later date wanted to remove the paper and restore the paneling? — Mrs. C.C.

A. There is no way you can paper over the paneling without damaging the paneling to some extent.

However, papering is possible by first using a lining canvas which on drying shrinks enough to tighten over the grooves in the paneling. Then wallpaper can be installed over this lining.

Or a canvas-back vinyl wallpaper could be used without the lining.

First go over the paneling with a strong solution of trisodium phosphate, one cup to a gallon of warm water, to clean the surface and reduce the shine so the paper will adhere to the surface. Liquid sandpaper could be used.

If the wallpaper is to be removed, the paneling would need to be completely refinished.

Q. I would like to lay vinyl asbestos tile over a concrete floor which is not very smooth. Is any preparation of the concrete surface necessary before the tile is installed? — Mary O.M.

A. A resilient tile should not be applied over a rough concrete floor. This roughness can be corrected by troweling a material called "underlayment" over the surface. The product comes ready-mixed and is applied in a very thin coat. It hardens rapidly, and the tile can then be installed.

Another way to smooth a concrete floor is to go over the surface with a terrazzo grinding machine, a piece of equipment which can be rented.

Q. How is pewter polished? I have a creamer and sugar bowl of pewter that are much duller than they should be after years of use. — Betty D.

A. Some houseware dealers carry special pewter polishes. Follow label directions carefully.

Harsh, abrasive polishes should not be used on this metal because pewter is a soft alloy.

For a dull finish, make a paste of olive oil and rottenstone and rub this over the pewter surface with a soft cloth. Rinse off the paste with clear water and wipe dry with clean, soft cloths.

For a bright finish, make a paste of powdered whiting and denatured alcohol, covering the entire surface with a thin layer. Allow to dry; then rub with a soft cloth. Rinse with clear water and wipe dry with clean soft cloths.

Q. Please tell me what to use to soak and clean a shower head. It is caked with salts from hard water. — W.N.J.

A. Remove the shower head and immerse it in a strong solution of white vinegar. Then bring this solution to a boil, cool and rinse. A cleaner used for cleaning steam irons also will work with shower heads.

this remedy before, but would like to hear from other readers.

Dear John: Some time ago I read one of your Mainly for Seniors columns in which Mrs. E.B. inquired about what can be done with old, used postage stamps.

Old, used postage stamps may be sent to Brooklyn Association for Mental Health, Inc., 30 Third Ave., Brooklyn, NY 11217. — Sara A.

Dear Sara: I'm not going to make the mistake I once made and say that old postage stamps are useless. The outpouring of mail at the time told me that hundreds of agencies all over the country have ways of using these old stamps profitably.

So, you have one name and address. If you wish you may find an agency closer to home. So, Sara (who doesn't live in Brooklyn but lives in Florida), we're glad to help, too.

Mainly For Seniors

By John T. Watts

Dear John: In answer to you column, I will tell you about my husband and myself.

My husband has been blind for five years. I'm partially blind. We are both 91 years old, confined to our home. Any information you can give me will be welcome. We are living on our Social Security. — Lillie J.

Dear Lillie: I assume you refer to information about arthritis. That's about all I've been able to write about recently.

Forget about the donation I have asked readers to make to help with the handling of the huge and increasing amount of mail coming in. Let the younger folk take care of that.

After all, when you get to be 91 you should have some privileges.

Dear John: About two years ago I sent a letter to you with regards to a product called Serto. Since then I have noted that you have had numerous requests about Serto. I originally wrote to you because it helped my wife — but only for a short period of time.

My wife had cramp problems with her right foot and leg. We read several articles about a nutrition pill called Q-Vel. After one pill my wife's leg cramp has completely disappeared, acted just like the article explained. This can be purchased in drug stores — no prescription needed — or in some nutrition shops.

Five years my wife suffered with her leg. Doctors could offer no relief — except very temporary for her problem.

One Q-Vel pill did what none of the doctors — specialists, therapists — could accomplish.

The Q-Vel comes in a plastic vial — 30 oval pills for about $7. For what one pill did it should be worth a lot of money. Altogether in the last three months my wife takes a pill now and then.

I myself took some of the pills for hip pains. I don't know if they did me any good. I have a leg socket problem that requires surgery — but I do not have the same amount of pain as before. — Samuel W.

Dear Samuel: Of course you mean Certo, which does not help everybody. I keep repeating that so people won't be disappointed if it doesn't help them.

On the other hand, it helps a great many. I can testify personally to that. Arthritis in my neck began to bother me, so I tried Certo. After two or three days the pain went away and it hasn't returned. That was about six weeks ago.

My wife, however, had no luck at all with Certo. Maybe Q-Vel would do it. I have never heard of

Q. I am 46 years old and look much younger. However, my hands and feet have been a continuing embarrassment to me. They look like they belong to a much older person as they are extremely wrinkled, dry and flabby.

Can you tell me what occurred to my hands and feet? Is there any cure for my condition? — M.S.

A. It is quite true that hands do reflect age just like the face. Loss of skin elasticity and sun damage all take their toll.

Unfortunately, surgical techniques that work on the face, such as dermabrasion and chemical peel, are unsafe on the back of the hand where skin is thin anyway, and not very far from tendons that are critical for hand function.

You will have to rely on the fact that your face will capture the glances of many more people than will your hands.

Most patients who pursue surgery for aging face deformities are pleased and do not express need for cosmetic hand surgery. — Dr. Jack C. Fisher, professor of surgery, University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Q. I have had keratosis on the bottom of my feet for the past eight years.

I have been told that it is hereditary and incurable. Now it is spreading to my hands and scalp. Is there any solution to my problem? — B.C.

A. There are many conditions such as irritation, allergic reaction, eczema and psoriasis that can cause marked thickening of the skin of the palms and soles.

When it is caused by one of the above mentioned conditions, the underlying cause is treated, namely, removal of agents that cause the irritation or allergic reaction, or in the case of eczema and psoriasis, steroid cream or ointment, and/or topical tar preparation.

Another group of diseases that can cause thickening of the palms and soles are the hereditary or genetic ones. These tend to run in the family and can be managed by using cream or lotion that contains salicylic acid or lactic acid, which can help reduce the thickening.

Recently some success also has been reported by using a derivative of vitamin A, 13-cis retinoic acid. However, 13-cis retinoic acid is a potent medication which has potentially serious side effects, and as such should be used only by physicians who are familiar with the medication.

An evaluation and management by a dermatologist would be most beneficial for your condition. — Dr. Henry W. Lim, assistant professor of medicine, University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

HOLY SPIRIT YOU WHO SOLVE all problems, who light all roads so that I can obtain my goals. You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evils against me and that in all instances of my life you are with me. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Say for 3 consecutive days after which the favor requested will be granted even if it appears difficult. This prayer must be published immediately without mentioning the favor, only your initials. Thank you Holy Spirit. B.G. gcf3

By Robert Wallace

she can call him as often as she wants. I don't think this is fair. Do you? — Sandra.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 14 and starting to break out with pimples and blackheads.

My mother says that I will continue to break out as long as I eat junk food and drink soft drinks. Our school nurse says that food has nothing to do with complexion problems.

Will you please put my mother at ease and let her know she is wrong? She always reads your column.

P.S. I like junk food. — Carol.

Carol: For a long time junk food was blamed for complexion problems (acne, pimples, etc.) but we now know food is not the guilty culprit.

The secret of having a clear complexion is visiting a dermatologist. New antibiotics and topical medicines can do wonders. Nearly every complexion problem can be helped — even with one visit.

Dr. Wallace: My parents are divorced. I'm 12 and live with my mother and her boyfriend while my brother, 13, lives with our father and his stepmother.

The stepmother has four other teenagers by a previous marriage and they dress in the latest fashions, have the best clothes and shoes and the most stylish haircuts. My poor brother wears cheap clothes and instead of leather shoes he always wears cloth gym shoes.

I am sure my father isn't aware that my brother is being cheated. In fact, I'm not even sure my brother is aware that he is being "shortchanged" when it comes to fashion.

My father is a reasonable man and I know he would get my brother new, fashionable clothes if I told him what is happening. My mother wants me to have a talk with my father and I will if you also say I should.

I'm writing to you, but my mother isn't aware that I am. What should I do? — Helen.

Helen: If the decision is left up to you, don't say anything to your father about the way your brother dresses. Is it possible your brother chooses to dress the way he does?

If anyone should talk to your father about the "problem" it should be your brother.

Dr. Wallace: My mom won't allow me to call a boy on the telephone even though the boy is a friend not a "boyfriend."

My older sister (she's 15, I'm 13) has a boyfriend and Sandra: If your sister is allowed to call a boy then you also should be allowed that privilege.

Teens: Despite the fact that only 10 years ago it was almost unheard of for female students to take traditionally male courses such as shop and electronics or to participate on extracurricular all-female sports teams, a recent Seventeen magazine survey reveals that most teen girls today fully expect complete equality in all of their school's programs.

The survey, based on 1,518 questionnaires returned by the magazine's readers, revealed that Title IX has had a decided impact on what girls expect in school. An overwhelming majority of the magazine's readers felt that both boys and girls should be allowed to participate wholly in all academic and extracurricular courses and sports activities.

In the area of academics, for example, almost eight out of 10 teens (78 percent) thought it was a great idea for boys to take home economics classes. Only 2 percent felt that there was something wrong with boys who expressed an interest in studying home ec.

When asked whether their school did, indeed, place equal emphasis on boys' and girls' athletics, barely half (46 percent) said yes, 47 percent said most of the time and 7 percent said no. According to the survey, over three-fourths of the young women polled (79 percent) said they should be permitted to play on the boys' baseball team.

The poll also has some good news for the non-athletic types. An overwhelming 94 percent of the teens replied they did have equal opportunities to participate in non-sports-related high school activities such as clubs, student government, theater groups, newspapers and yearbook.

When asked how they'd feel if legislation were passed weakening Title IX, 87 percent of the teens agreed with the comment, "Frustrated! Girls should be allowed to excel in any field that interests them." Only two agreed with, "I wouldn't care, I'm a lady and I like to be treated like one."

Aunt Tilly's Corner

The other day I read about a dog named Fritz used by the police to track down criminals. Like most canines, he has a wonderful sense of smell. Fritz is apparently able to whiff a suspect's footprints in the snow, then rush off and find him!

I remember when I was a small child our family had a dog named Teddy. Whenever the dog came back from a walk we would hide and be very quiet. But Teddy was not to be fooled. He immediately sensed where we were (and it was always in a different place) and find us. He would then jump up on us, wagging his tail and licking us as if to say, "So you thought you could fool me, didn't you?"

Love,
Aunt Tilly

Points On Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. We recently purchased a male Chihuahua puppy. It appears that the puppy has only one testicle.

Should we be concerned with this? Should we take the puppy back to the breeder and request another one in exchange?

Our children are already infatuated with this puppy. We are not interested in using this dog for a stud.

A. In your question you did not state the age of the Chihuahua puppy you recently purchased. However, it is safe to say that both testicles should be evident in the scrotum by now.

In dogs, the normal age at which both testicles can be found in the scrotum is difficult to establish. Literature stating that the testicles should be in the scrotum at the time of birth or sometime during the first 14 weeks following birth is available. Testicular descent rarely occurs after 3½ months and never after 6 months of age. In other words, if the testicles are not in the scrotum by 3½ months of age, it is very unlikely that descent from the abdominal cavity will occur.

The name of the condition in which the testicles do not descend at the normal time is cryptorchidism. Cryptorchidism is very common in dogs. It has been reported in more than 68 different breeds.

The condition is more commonly seen in purebred than in mixed-breed dogs. The incidence of cryptorchidism is higher in the small breeds of dogs than in the large breeds of dogs.

In one study involving data collected from the files of 12 veterinary colleges in the United States, the eight breeds with the highest incidence of cryptorchidism were the Yorkshire terrier, miniature schnauzer, Pomeranian, poodle (miniature or toy), Siberian husky, Shetland sheepdog, Chihuahua and the standard poodle.

Cryptorchidism is reported to occur in approximately 10 percent of all adult dogs. This condition is genetically transmitted. Because most male dogs with only one testicle retained are fertile, the trait is very widespread among the dog population of the world.

Testicles retained in the abdomen are much more prone to become cancerous than are normal testicles. Secondary to this, many male dogs with retained testicles become very feminine in appearance.

Because of the genetic nature of this condition and because of the increased risk of cancer, cryptorchid dogs should be castrated. Although in the past hormonal treatment was tried to cause descent of retained testicles, it is now known that such therapy is usually unsuccessful in dogs.

You should take your new puppy to a veterinarian to confirm your diagnosis. You should also notify the breeder of the puppy of the problem so that he will be aware that his dogs have the genetic characteristics to pass the condition on to their puppies.

If you decide to keep the puppy for a pet, it should be castrated. The puppy will still become a very lovable family pet.
