Fork Lane Spotlights K

On Spotlight...Cake decorator extraordinaire Ginny Romano instructs kindergarten class at Fork Lane in the fine art of cupcake decorating. A "Spotlighted" child asked Mrs. Romano to be a guest during the youngster's special week at school. (Photo by K. Blicker)

Mrs. Davan's kindergarten class at Fork Lane School have embarked on a "Spotlight" program. Each week a different child in the morning and afternoon session is highlighted.

For five days, the child may bring in, to share with his or her fellow students, anything of interest to the youngster. Children have brought in pets, favorite stuffed animals (and even gull-Cabbage Patch dolls), books, records, etc. In addition, if a parent has an interesting profession, he or she is also welcome to come to kindergarten and peak to the youngsters.

Also, each child completes a "Marvelous Me" poster, with clippings from magazines or newspapers pertaining to the likes of the spotlighted child. Also, at the beginning of the spotlighted week, the child brings in photos from home, chronicling various stages of development in his or her life. This is featured on a bulletin board. At week's end, the child is presented with a flower made by his or her classmates.

Each Fork Lane kindergartner has a chance to be somebody special, thanks to "spotlight".

School Bd. Continues Talks On Silent Meditation

Special to MID ISLAND TIMES

By Valerie Pakaluk

The February 8 meeting of the Hicksville Board of Education attracted over 200 residents while discussions on eliminating silent prayer or meditation continued. In the second, of three stages, the Board heard opinions and comments from the audience prior to the final vote on the matter scheduled for February 29.

In opening comments, Vice President William Beanett outlined his position on retaining the "tradition" in Hicksville schools. He noted that the changes in policy he had suggested were in keeping with current New York State Education laws. The Board majority - John Ayres, Arlene Rudin, Honey Singer and Lawrence Wolfson - contend that the change, at this time, will not thwart a law suit by parent Sharon Rubin and the American Civil Liberties Union. In addition they feel that since the opening school exercises are not adhered to in every school building in the district, the practice, therefore, cannot be considered "tradition". School attorney Joseph Campanella has advised the Board that legal costs could range in the neighborhood of $200,000 if the district decides to challenge the courts.

Hicksville residents waited patiently until 11:30 p.m. for their turn to speak. And speak they did. One after the other faced the Board with their comments, pro and con. Frank Grimmer, reminded the Board that the meeting, that night, began with a prayer and pledge of allegiance. "If it's good enough for adults", he said, "it's good enough for children". Charles Cunningham, a retired New York City policeman, now teaching, pointed out that there are many children who come from "Godless" homes and should be allowed the opportunity to learn about these things in school. Larry LaMarca, a teacher and resident asked the Board if they realized the definition of meditation was "thought or thinking" and he disagreed with the removal of that opportunity from a student's school day. Leaders of the Knights of Columbus, Veteran's of Foreign Wars and American Legion vowed group support if the district chose to fight the ACLU action. Joseph Normandy said "We're behind you 100%". A 266 signature petition was submitted by a resident of Plainview Road, also in favor of retaining the moment of silence. Runhild Wessell, a retired teacher of 42 years with the Hicksville school system, read a prepared statement in opposition to retaining the moment of silence. She said parents should pray with their children at the breakfast table. Miss Wessell's comments can be found under the "Letters to the Editor" section of this newspaper. And, with Board approval, a non-resident and representative of the American Jewish Congress, read the group's position favoring abolishing the practice in public schools.

Requests to place the matter on the ballot as a separate referendum were also voiced. School counsel Campanella explained, however, that such matters can only be considered "advisory" by the Board and the decision did not mandate the Board to comply with the voting results.

June 13 has been chosen for the annual District 1984-85 School Budget election. Two seats on the Board of Trustees will be up for election on June 30. They are those of John Ayres and Jay Schwartz.

Linda Hild, president of the Teachers Aide Group, protested the methods of handling correspondence addressed specifically to the attention of the President of the Board of Education. Mrs. Hild opposed the mail being opened by the Superintendent of School's office prior to being forwarded to Mr. Schwartz. Both Schwartz and Supt. Fenton answered Mrs. Hild's remarks by saying that this is routine procedure and has complete Board approval.

Renee Lesez, a foreign language teacher for 27 years, gave a brief presentation on the elementary foreign language program which she designed and has instigated in Hicksville. An angry resident, Joan Bolhoffer, wanted to know what happened to the resounding voter defeat of the foreign language program in last year's election. Superintendent Fenton reminded Mrs. Bolhoffer that the program that was eliminated was not a working one and Mrs. Lesez had designed a curriculum that can be incorporated with regular classroom activity.

The Board plans to meet next Wednesday, February 29, at 8:15 p.m. to finalize the controversy of silent prayer or meditation. The meeting will be held in the senior high school auditorium to hold the anticipated crowd.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Opposite the Telephone Building on West Barclay Street were four large trees about twenty to twenty-four inches in diameter at the curb by their parking lot.

Today they are cut down! There is a small pile of sawdust and a few twigs laying around.

Can you tell me what happened in a few hours that took nature over twenty-five years to do?

John Thorsen

To the Editor:

At the February 8 School Board Meeting, the issue of "Silent meditation" in our public schools was emotionally debated. It was gratifying to see so many people take the time to come and voice their concern, especially as they had to wait till after 10:30 p.m. before being allowed to do so.

It was also ironic that this very same board, who saw fit to vote out silent prayer for our children, chose to begin their school board meeting with a prayer!

It was quite evident that the vast majority present were in favor of keeping the 22 year tradition of "silent meditation" in our schools. However, the fact is that the school board, by a 4-3 vote, and on the objection of one parent, has already voted it out. The only way this can be reinstated, is by an amendment to be made to the board that this be put back in. And regardless of the obvious community support for this, the plain and simple truth revealed to us last night, was that in Hicksville, "the majority does not rule" - the School Board does!

The board seemed unaffected by the urging of many to take this emotional issue to the community for a vote. Their main objection to this issue seemed to be the fear of being involved in a court case and the expense such a court case would involve, and the fear of losing the case. Yet, I ask, where does the money to run our school district come from - the very people who are fighting to keep this in - the taxpayers of Hicksville.

And if avoiding a court case is the main objective, perhaps the School Board should ask themselves this question - would they rather fight the Civil Liberties Union or the enraged people of this community who may decide to take their own School Board to court. Many communities have been forced to do just this, when a School Board chose to "dictate" rather than represent their community.

To avoid such a calamity in Hicksville, our only hope seems to be to try to reach the hearts and minds of those board members who voted to take silent prayer out. For those of you who favor prayer or silent meditation in our schools, I urge you to remember the power of prayer and the many miracles it has wrought. And I urge that we all join together and pray that the hearts and minds of these 4 board members will be softened, and that they will search within their hearts and honestly ask themselves this question, "am I voting for what I want, or for what those in my community want?" Remember we only need one more vote to get silent meditation back into our schools.

So, don't give up. Write letters to the newspapers and school board, talk to your friends and neighbors, attend the next Feb. 29 School Board meeting, but most important of all, "don't forget to pray."

Phyllis Hundertmark

To the Editor:

The public outcry over the elimination of our "Silent Prayer and Meditation" policy continues to build in our community, as was clearly demonstrated at our Feb. 8 Board Meeting.

During that meeting, the board majority made up of Mr. Ayres, Mrs. Singer, Mrs. Rudin and Mr. Wolfson, astonished us all by voting to have our annual budget and school elections on June 13 rather than May 2, without consulting the Superintendent, her staff, or their fellow board members - Why?

By their actions they have placed in jeopardy the educational needs of the students under their care. In the past, Mr. Ayres, Mrs. Singer, Mrs. Rudin and Mr. Wolfson all purported being advocates for education, but for whatever reason, they have derailed a very sound carefully prepared educational plan for 1984-85, that was undertaken by the Superintendent, her staff, the board and its committees. Now we are faced with the uncertainties of purchasing much needed textbooks, supplies, and materials in time for the start of school next September.

By their hastily conceived plan to hold the election on June 13 they will cause great hardship and confusion in the selection of staff for the next year by compressing the time factor in notifying staff of any changes.

By their act they have placed in jeopardy our summer school program by only allowing two weeks time in preparing programs and properly staffing the needed subject areas.

It is my hope that they were not counting on the community forgetting the February Silent Prayer or Meditation issue come Mid-June. For I have every intention of having that issue placed on the ballot, in the form of a Proposition, come June 13 or any other date.

Please continue to write the Board of Education on this issue, address your letters to the President of the Board, Mr. Jay M. Schwartz, Division Avenue, Hicksville, and please make every effort to attend our February 29 board meeting, when the final vote will be taken.

In this instance, "Silence is not Golden!"

Sincerely,
Bill Bennett
Member, Board of Education

To the Editor:

Enclosed is a copy of the remarks I made last night at the Board of Education meeting. I would appreciate it very much if you would print them in the Mid Island Times. Thank you.

Very truly yours,
Runhild E. Wessell

I am here at the invitation of Mr. William Bennett who urged teachers to come to this meeting and speak out. My name is Runhild Wessell. I am a retired H.H.S. teacher and began teaching here in 1936 and retired in 1973. I taught a total of 42 years and have lived in Hicksville for 48 years. For the past 8 years of my retirement I have been working as a volunteer tutor in the Nassau County Jail.

I understand parents' concerns about religious training for their children, but I am opposed to silent prayer and meditation in our schools. It is illegal: Calling it meditation is merely glossing over the issue. Prayer is prayer, silent or oral. How can we teach children to obey the law when Board members flout it? The separation of Church and State is guaranteed in the Bill of Rights to the benefit of both. No Board member can take this away from us. Religion is too important to be trusted to the State. All the Supreme Court has said is that the State may not tell you how and when to pray. That is the province of the church and home; thus religion is actually strengthened by this ruling.

I was appalled by some of the ideas expressed in letters to the editor in the last issue of our local paper. I have four points to make and a conclusion.

1. This issue is not a matter of one parent taking any rights away from us. This is a matter of one or two parents calling our attention to the laws that should be obeyed and are not. This is a matter of making sure that the religious rights of all are respected, that is, kept separate from the state. Barring prayer from the schools is not a restraint in the practice of religion. People can still practice religion as they choose but cannot impose their beliefs or practices on others.

2. The question was raised, "Should we also do away with all mention of God or religion in our history textbooks?" The writers must be joking. History is full of the important part religion has played in our history. Besides the many religious wars over the centuries from the Crusades down to the present struggles in Ireland and the Middle East, we teach the positive influence of the church in keeping learning alive in the Dark Ages. In American history we teach the part that religion played in getting education for all so that people could read the Bible. Eliminate all of this and you eliminate much history.

3. Another person writes, "I believe what is needed are school boards who recognize that the decay of morality in America has a very strong relationship with a concomitant banishment of God from the school life of students." I thought God was supposed to be everywhere at the time and in us. How can we banish Him?

4. Another person wrote, "The recent decision of the Hicksville School Board to end a morning moment of meditation is at best a sorry concession to the ongoing trend of Godless education in America." This is an insult to the many fine teachers in Hicksville and in many other cities across the nation. I do not say this lightly because I was active in the classroom teacher association movement since the end of World War II and am still active among retired teachers. One thing I have always been proud of is being a teacher. I have known many hundreds of very fine teachers on the local, county, state, national and international level. Is the writer saying teachers have no influence? Come on! Silent meditation or prayer has become a dreary, repetitious routine rather than the meaningful time it is in houses of worship or around tables before meals.

Perhaps the point is the meaning of the word religion, and along with it the meaning of citizenship and spiritual enrichment, mentioned in another letter. If these terms mean only praying, then I say your religion is in your mouth. Religion also means how you live your life and how you treat your fellow man. Service is prayer too. Does any one think that teachers don't perform this daily by example and by talking to students? When I was teaching, I called parents up frequently when there was a problem and almost always received the great cooperation from them. I respect the parents of Hicksville. This is religion too, if not organized religion.

Now for my final point. I have a suggestion that will keep all of us within the law and satisfy differing points of view. Pray or meditate with your children at home at breakfast time before they go to school. Then you give the day a good start and by your example reinforce them in their religious faith, encourage them by your religious training and provide them with religious worship.

Runhild E. Wessell

To the Editor:

I attended the school board meeting of February 8, and listened to all the concerned people of Hicksville that were present. One group was led by their crusader, leader Bill Bennett, a member of our school board. Mr. Bennett would like us to believe that if we deprive our students of a minute of meditation it will not only be un-American but devastating to them. Another speaker felt once we stop silent prayer, students will lead a life of sin. Whether or not I agree or disagree with a minute of meditation, I find it hard to believe that eliminating it would lead to moral decay or devastation.

We had various outraged citizens speaking out in favor or against prayer in school. Some haven't had a child in school for at least twenty years. There were parents that have children attending parochial school, but insist they have the right to also monitor ours. One assistant pastor from a church in Plainview spoke out as usual about our ungodly behavior. Mr. Alvin Dorfman from the American Jewish Congress began to speak against prayer in school, and was told to be quiet. We even had a group show up with insignia on their jackets from the Knights of Columbus, informing us they were seven hundred strong in Hicksville in case we weren't yet intimidated.

Mr. Campanella, our school lawyer tried to explain it was not worth fighting this in court, because we would lose. This was met with an outburst of insults. When other board members suggested that time be set aside in the morning before school for prayer, they were booted. Mr. Wolfson another board member and also a lawyer, informed us it would cost about one hundred thousand dollars to bring this to trial. It was then an outraged group began shouting, what is a hundred thousand dollars when we have so noble a cause.

This meeting resembled a rerun of the Scopes Trial. When you mention prayer or sex in Hicksville, you are sure to get a crowd. Unfortunately not too many of these concerned citizens attend meetings that are important to our children. Recently we had a meeting on drug and alcohol abuse and twenty concerned parents and their children attended. Students from the junior and senior high enlightened us on the drugs now being used in these schools. We had a speaker from HAD who informed those parents of the wide spread use of drugs in Hicksville.

There is no drug and alcohol abuse programs in our schools, even though we have a drug problem. Our health education course is a disgrace to any intelligent community. Now we have three members of our school board, and a group of outraged citizens who believe throwing away one hundred thousand dollars to fight something that is against our Constitution, will make our community a shining example.

If we keep up the good work, Island Trees will be out of the lime-light, and Hicksville can become the next laughing stock of the country.

Yours truly,

Mrs. Constance Mullin

Kaufer-Hertel Wedding

On February 6, 32 youngsters with emotional, learning and behavioral disabilities sang for vision-impaired residents of the Holly Patterson Home in Uniondale. It was the first time that the 9 to 12 year olds, all students at Nassau BOCES' Pasadena Elementary School in Plainview, had performed outside the school.

"It's important for these students to learn that they can give to other people," points out Dr. Herbert Feingold, principal of the elementary program, "and going out into the community this way also helps break down stereotypes about handicapped children and about how much they can do."

The audience was made up of the home's Sunshine Club, an organization run by volunteers, which provides activities for the elderly members. These wheelchair-bound senior citizens, including a resident 107 years old, heard a spirited rendition of "Fame", the children's favorite, along with a selection of Broadway hits, including "Memories" from the long running show "Cats".

"It was a fantastic experience for the students, who got a chance to talk and share refreshments with the elderly residents afterwards," reports music teacher Julie Gregorio. "They all want to go back."

The Pasadena Elementary School provides individualized instruction for Nassau County school children who have learning, behavioral and developmental difficulties which interfere with their ability to function within a local school district. In addition to academic and pre-academic programs, the school offers a full array of remedial and related services including speech therapy, adaptive physical education, art and music.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Kaufer of Haverford Road, Hicksville, take pleasure in announcing the marriage of their daughter Nancy Ellen to Mr. Gary Hertel of Northport. Mr. Hertel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hertel of Bellmore. The marriage took place on January 28, at Monte's Town and Country, Hempstead.

Ms. Robin Kaufer of Hicksville was the maid of honor, Ms. Jaime

Hertel of Port Jefferson was the flower girl and Ms. Alison Heller of Oyster Bay Cove was a Jr. Bridesmaid. Mr. Michael Berevin of Port Jefferson was best man and Mr. Michael Esposito of Brooklyn was the ring bearer.

The new Mrs. Hertel is a graduate of the Hicksville School system and is presently a Special Education teacher at Hicksville High School.

The prestigious Paul Harris sustaining Membership Award (named after the Rotary International founder) was presented to three Hicksville club past presidents in a special ceremony held at the club's weekly luncheon meeting. This coveted award is given in recognition of distinguished Rotary Service rendered to the club. The three recipients are (left) Joseph Trebits, Arthur Pettorino and Paul Martin (right). Current club president William Howarth (2nd from right) made the presentation.

Central General Completes Expansion

"Central General Hospital has had a most rewarding year," announced Robert J. Bornstein, Administrator for the 300 bed Plainview facility.

In addition to increasing its medical services to the community, the hospital has completed an ambitious development effort - a $2 million dollar plant expansion program to meet growing demands.

Admissions in 1983 totaled 13,434; 1,278 were younger than 19 years, 9,070 between the ages of twenty and sixty-four years and 3,086 were above the 64 years of age. Also, there was 6,017 operations performed of which 4,255 were considered to be major and 1,762 minor operations.

The emergency department treated 35,109 patients during the year. Many of these were brought by Police and Fire Department rescue vehicles and a large number resulted from accidents on the network of major roadways surrounding the hospital.

Statistics show that the hospital treated the highest number of residents through its obstetrical and surgical departments.

Quality Or Quantity?

When you advertise in a subscription newspaper you get quality readership. You know that EVERY copy of the newspaper has been invited into the home and three to four people will most likely read it.

When you buy quantity the only thing you might be sure of is that it has been hung on door knobs or thrown on lawns all over the neighborhood.

With our newspapers YOU ONLY PAY FOR COPIES that will be read. It is this quality that produces results. Do not waste money on wasted copies. Advertise here and get results.

Our (not so secret) ingredient is the reason we are preferred over the largest metropolitan newspapers and the many throwaways.

Readers = Results

YOU CAN'T BEAT IT!

Eat Yourself Slim

By Shirley Bright Boody Registered Dietitian

Dear Shirley: I have been a big coffee drinker all my life and now my doctor tells me I have an ulcer. Was that caused by drinking coffee?

I don't know how I can give it up because I keep a pot going all the time on the stove, and if somebody drops in I always offer them some. I live in a mobile home park and I have a lot of neighbors who like to sit and drink coffee with me, so how can I stop that?

I can't stand the thought of eating baby food either, if that's the kind of diet I have to eat. I also like to drink beer, and I refuse to stop drinking because it seems to me that I can't do anything that's any fun now.

I hope you will tell me some other way to eat besides giving up everything I like. I always read your column and I think you help a lot of people. — Mr. T.M.

Dear Mr. T.M.: Please don't feel that you can't have any fun anymore because you have an ulcer. It can be healed, but you will have to help do it, or it could get worse.

I hope you will continue to entertain your neighbors and enjoy them, but you must take care of yourself too.

Coffee and alcohol have not been shown to cause an ulcer, but they do tend to aggravate it. Cutting down on them may help a lot. You can dilute them with water which will lessen the damage.

Keeping a pot of strong coffee going all day is a bad habit for anyone to get into, and many people don't realize just how tense and nervous it makes them.

You don't have to eat baby food unless it was specifically ordered. Just try to eat non-irritating regular foods. Avoid pepper and highly spiced food, eat more frequently so you don't get too hungry and drink a lot of plain water to help dilute the digestive juices.

Some people react to excessively hot or cold temperatures of some foods, and find that eating them closer to room temperature is more comfortable during an ulcer problem.

I hope you will try and relax and enjoy your friends, but don't let bad habits make you sick. A medication called Tagamet does wonders for ulcers today.

Dear Shirley: I have been reading about the dangers of drugs interfering with certain nutrients lately.

Is that something new? What nutrients are they talking about? How does the average person know what to take or not to take? Are some things more dangerous than others?

I take a lot of vitamins and minerals to help keep me in good health, but my doctor didn't say anything about whether I should take them or not, he just sort of ignored it. Now, I don't know whether I should take such big doses of supplements because I am also taking three different kinds of medicines that the doctor prescribed for me.

Do you think I should continue what I am doing or could it cause me to have a problem? I sure don't need any more, so can you give me some advice. — Mrs. M.N.M.

Dear Mrs. M.N.M.: Yes, and your pharmacist can also answer a lot of questions about the side effects of certain drugs when they are taken along with dietary supplements.

Of all the major nutrients, vitamin A is probably the most likely to produce bad side effects such as headache, nausea or even profound psychiatric symptoms if taken in megadoses.

The interest in nutrient-drug interactions has only been around for about 10 years, but many physicians still tend to ignore the possibilities and never ask the patient what supplements they may be taking. Sometimes, symptoms that develop as the result of such an interaction, may be attributed to a side effect of the drug, which then may be discontinued or the dosage adjusted.

The scope of nutrient-drug interaction is far greater than was formerly thought to be, and next week I will tell you more about it in my column and I hope you will read it.

Dear Shirley: Can you explain a little bit about diverticulitis and what kind of diet is used when one has it?

I think I have it, but I am not sure yet. I have been having some pain in my lower side and I have to go and have X-rays next week to make sure what it is.

I am willing to change my diet if it will help, but I really don't know what I should eat. I am a 70-year-old woman and have been quite well. — Mrs. P.F.W.

Dear Mrs. P.F.W.: You must first get an accurate diagnosis to be sure of what it really is, before you change your diet.

Diverticula, or little pouches often develop in the intestinal wall, especially as people get older. A diet that is high in fiber helps because it absorbs more moisture which produces a larger, softer evacuation and is less irritating.

Constipation and/or diarrhea, abdominal pain and gas are often symptoms of diverticulitis. If this is your problem, use whole grains, lots of fruits and vegetables, especially those with edible skins and you can add Miller's bran to other foods. It is easily available in many markets.

Drinking a lot of water will help you too.

Students View Dali Art

The Challenger Class pupils from the Bethpage elementary schools were treated to an introduction of Salvador Dali's surrealistic art form recently, as the guests of Mr. John De Guardi, Chairperson of the Art Department at the Bethpage High School.

Mr. De Guardi has obtained seventeen lithographs of Dali paintings from C.W. Post College which were displayed in showcases in the main lobby of the high school for three weeks. As part of their tour, the elementary students were delighted by Mr. DeGuardi's humorous stories of his famous artist's eccentric lifestyle and behavior. They were also introduced to the process of lithography through visual aids prepared to facilitate their understanding of the process.

Ms. Dolores Hartmann and Ms. Ann Gladstone, teachers of the Challenger classes reported that their pupils appreciated the opportunity to view some of the works of this prestigious artist.

Our Children

No easy answers to drug problem

By Willard Abraham
Ph.D.

Q. I would like to know if you can help me with my 15-year-old son. He is using drugs, refuses counseling treatment, dropped out of school and is in the streets all the time with the wrong crowd.

When he was arrested for having five joints on him, the police said he was selling it. He spent three nights in the local juvenile hall.

All the police seem to be waiting for him to commit a crime so they can pick him up again.

He smokes marijuana in front of my 12-year-old, gets aggressive toward him and breaks things around the house.

His father has no interest in them at all since I divorced him, he even changed his phone number so he won't be bothered. I am a single parent, and have to work six days every week to provide for them.

What can I do? How can you help me or my son before it is too late?

We have no family life anymore. He is pulling away from us. I can't accept this.

I love my kids, but what else can I do? I would appreciate anything you can tell me that will help. By the way, I am going to "Tough Love" meetings.

A. I showed your letter in the strictest confidence to a professional person who has worked closely with situations of the type you described. I am sharing his suggestions with you. Because he doesn't know you or your son personally, these ideas are provided just for your consideration.

1. Continue in the "Tough Love" community group.

2. Avoid negative reproaches as much as you can, and give a lot of hugs and expressions of love and concern for him as a person. His behaviors are separate and drug-affectuated.

3. Look for the teenage drug abuse treatment program that is in-patient, treating the whole family, also. (Suggested possibility, one called "Palmer Drug Abuse Program.")

4. Do not scream and yell at him. Allow him to take personal responsibility for his behaviors and consequences. Possibly the more he hurts the closer he will be to accepting treatment.

5. Leave him on the streets until he is picked up by the police, and don't rescue him. Allow him to suffer HIS consequences for HIS behavior.

6. Allow him home only if he is willing to follow YOUR LIMITS.

7. The "Rocky Road Creed."

— I am willing to learn to take charge of my life.

— I am willing to take total responsibility for my choices, behaviors and feelings.

His growth and recovery are a process that takes time. There is no immediate cure.

I feel very deeply about what you are going through, and hope so much that the tide will begin to turn soon.

Other readers who have survived the kind of traumatic experiences this mother has had may have other suggestions. Those sent to me will be forwarded to her.

Q. Our 11-year-old daughter has beautiful curly hair, just like her mother's. To her it is both a pleasure and a problem.

My wife has instilled in her the feeling that water and hair just don't mix, that water makes it more curly and more difficult to manage.

Our daughter turns down a lot of opportunities to be with other kids, both at the beach and in the school pool.

Do you have some suggestions that can help convince my wife that her approach is wrong?

A. Just to be on the safe side I asked my wife about this issue. (She, too, has "beautiful curly hair.")

She said that a competent beautician or hair product salesperson can probably advise your wife and daughter how to control hair without sacrificing the enjoyment available through water activities.

Your Social Security

Credits earned are never lost

Q. From 1940 to mid-July 1956, I was on payrolls and contributing to Social Security.

I understand from reading and hearing other discussions, because I left a career to have and raise a family thereby not returning to the work force, all Social Security benefits are forfeited. — J.O.

A. Not true. You never lose credits earned in employment covered by Social Security regardless of the length of time since you last worked.

Based on your years of work you will be entitled to a retirement benefit starting as early as age 62.

Q. I would like to know what will happen to my Social Security disability. My wife took my son and a great deal of money and other valuable things and ran to California to stay with her boyfriend, I guess. All I got was a note left on the "John" over a year ago. — G.B.

A. Nothing will happen to your monthly check as long as your disability prevents you from doing any substantial gainful work.

Your wife and son may continue to receive benefits, but this will not affect the amount of your monthly benefit.

Q. When I was 52 my husband died and I applied for Social Security. I received a lump sum death payment but was told I had to be 60 to qualify for widow's benefits.

When I'm 60 do I start receiving widow's benefits or do I need to re-apply? — H.I.

A. You must apply again. For one thing you have to make a decision about accepting reduced benefits at age 60 or waiting for full benefits at age 65.

Social Security has no way of knowing your wishes in this matter until you get in touch with them.

Q. I am 62 years old and have been totally disabled since 1979. My wife is 60 years old and is totally disabled with heart disease.

We are unable to obtain hospital and medical insurance on her due to her heart disease. When if ever, will we be able to obtain Medicare for her? She is unable to obtain it on her own work record. — P.Z.

A. Your wife won't be eligible to receive Medicare coverage until she is 65. If you are receiving a monthly Social Security check she will be entitled to hospital coverage on your account.

She will also have the option of buying medical coverage at age 65 — an option available to everyone at 65 with or without Social Security coverage.

Amendments to the Code of Ordinances Chapter 20

Discontinuance of Water Supplies

Be it ordained, by the Town Board of the Town of Oyster Bay, County of Nassau, State of New York, that Chapter 20, Article I of the Code of Ordinances of the Town of Oyster Bay, be and the same is hereby amended by adding a new Section 20-6(a) thereto entitled, "Discontinuance of Water Supplies" to read as follows: "Sec. 20(a). Discontinuance of Water Supplies.

The Town of Oyster Bay is vitally concerned over the adequacy and suitability of its water supplies and resources and in the measures undertaken to preserve the safety and healthy quality of the uses thereof. The discharge of waste and other materials into the existing disposal systems which may eventually reach the levels of obtainable water resources is a prime interest of the Town of Oyster Bay in the fulfillment of the public policy of the State of New York as declared in Article 15, Title 1, Section 15-0105 of the Environmental Conservation Laws. Since Water Districts have been duly constituted to furnish adequate and suitable water to the consumers of the Town of Oyster Bay, it is proper and necessary that said Districts, pursuant to Sec. 215, Subdiv. 19 of the Town Law of the State of New York, be delegated the authority to preserve and contain acceptable qualities of our water resources. In accordance therewith, all Water Districts in the Town of Oyster Bay, established and functioning as Special Improvement Districts by authority of the Town Board of the Town of Oyster Bay, shall be empowered, subject to the conditions hereinafter set forth, to terminate and discontinue water services and supplies to any domestic, commercial, industrial, agricultural or other non-municipal enterprise or user thereof which has been found by the governing authorities of said Water Districts to discharge or permit the discharge of directly or indirectly, into the water disposal systems or upon any property in the town of Oyster Bay, any pollutants, contaminants or any other substances deemed to endanger the health, safety and welfare of the community and its inhabitants.

The termination and discontinuance of water services and supplies shall be predicated upon a determination of the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation that the said discharge or discharges are in violation of prevailing laws, rules, regulations and criteria under Article 15 of the New York State Environmental Conservation Laws; then the Water District governing authorities shall thereupon seek and obtain a judicial determination and order from a court of competent jurisdiction to grant said authorities the right to discontinue or terminate water supplies".

I'm saving for retirement with a tax-deferred IRA. That's a great idea.

My bank pays 1/2% extra interest on my IRA. That's a Greater Idea.

Now, get a bonus with your tax break: Extra interest at The Greater.

Act now. You have even more to gain with these new Greater IRA accounts. We've added 1/2% to the interest rate you'll earn on time deposits of two years or more. That's 1/2% on top of the high interest we're already offering on regular 2- through 5-year accounts!

And of course, your Greater IRA saves taxes two ways on funds deposited on or before the date you file your '83 Federal tax return.

1. Working married couples can invest up to $4,000 in high interest IRAs and deduct the entire amount from their 1983 taxable income.
2. In addition, no taxes are due on your IRA deposits, or the interest they earn, until you retire (when your tax bracket will probably be lower.)

Single persons can deduct up to $2,000 yearly, and married couples with one working spouse up to $2,250. And anyone who is salaried or self-employed and under age 70½ can enjoy the benefits of a Greater IRA.

No taxes until you retire. Nobody can tax any part of your IRA savings—not the I.R.S., not the State, not the City—until you start making withdrawals between ages 59½ and 70½. (Substantial interest and tax penalties will be imposed on withdrawals prior to age 59½.)

This account	pays this effective annual yield	on this annual interest rate*
2 YEARS Minimum Deposit $250	11.241%	10.700%
3 YEARS Minimum Deposit $250	11.461%	10.900%
4 YEARS Minimum Deposit $250	11.572%	11.000%
5 YEARS Minimum Deposit $250	11.683%	11.100%

Compounded and credited monthly. All rates shown are available through 2/17/84.

Other Greater advantages:

- You don't have to deposit your maximum all at once. You can build your IRA in easy installments.
- You don't have to deposit the maximum amount.
- You can skip years if you have to.
- You never pay a management fee.
- You can get free help on choosing exactly the IRA that suits your needs.

Busy Schedule Reported By Fire Dept.

The Oyster Bay Town Board has approved the adoption of a new ordinance which will permit local water districts to discontinue water service to those who have been found by a court to be violating New York State Environmental Conservation Laws.

Oyster Bay Town Supervisor Joseph Colby said that "after a public hearing held on the proposed ordinance on February 7, the Town Board voted to approve its adoption. At the hearing," Colby continued, "representatives from several of the Town's water districts spoke in favor of the ordinance which would permit the locally elected Commissioners of the water districts to take violators to court, which they previously did not have the authority to do."

The amendment to the Town's Code of Ordinances provided that any water district in the Town of Oyster Bay would be empowered to terminate or discontinue water service and supplies to any domestic, commercial, industrial, agricultural or other non-municipal enterprise after it had been found by the governing authorities of the water district and the courts to be discharging pollutants in violation of New York State Environmental Conservation Laws.

Colby added that "by adopting the ordinance, the Board has given the water districts more control in their effort to prevent the discharge of pollutants into the water disposal systems or on any property in the Town which could at some future time cause possible contamination to public water supply wells for which the water districts are responsible."

Fire Loss

On January 2 Hicksville Firefighters responded to a house fire at 51 Tip Top Lane. A bedroom fire, caused by smoking, damaged one room on the second floor. There were no injuries.

On February 2 Fire destroyed a house at 85 Woodbine Drive, Hicksville. The delayed alarm (No Smoke Detectors) came in by alarm box at 2:06 a.m. Sub freezing weather froze up nearby fire hydrants and firefighters were hampered by low water supply in the early stages. First chiefs on the scene minutes after the box alarm reported fire out first floor windows spreading to the roof and second floor. All occupants - somehow - evacuated safely.

The fire tied up all Hicksville Engines at the scene. Bethpage supplied a back up engine at the scene while Jericho stood by at Fire Headquarters. The loss was estimated at $100,000.00.

Later on that morning a general alarm fire at the Auto Mat Factory at 225A No. Park Ave. kept vamps busy. An overheated boiler set fire to the roof of the boiler room. Fire damage was confined to the boiler room with minor smoke damage in the plant.

On February 5 fire, caused by a leaking flue pipe caused an estimated $5,000 damage to a home at 19 Libby Ave. That home had a smoke detector with no battery. Damage was confined to the kitchen and flue pipe area. Chief Owen Magee was in charge at the above alarms.

Smoke Detectors - A Necessity (An Opinion from the Fire Dept.)

Time and again in the media, and in our annual letters to our residents we have stressed the need for smoke detectors. In Hicksville a life was lost in July due in large part to the absence of a smoke alarm. Fire destroyed a home in February because the fire gained considerable headway because there was no smoke alarm. In Bellmore an entire family of SEVEN died because they did not heed safety rules. They left kerosene heaters operating unattended and had no smoke alarms.

What will it take to wake the public at large? One would think death would open people's eyes but it hasn't. Hicksville Chief Owen Magee will propose to state lawmakers an ordinance mandating smoke alarms in all dwellings. We force public buildings, hotels, motels and landlords to provide detectors why not the single family home owner in essence he is the landlord.

Enforcement will not be easy - but not impossible. There will be no door to door inspections. When you have a fire and it is found that there are no smoke alarms you will be fined. Against your constitutional rights you say! - What about the innocent victims - the children - children suffer the most. By and large the adults escape, the kids die.

It is time to stop the slaughter of innocent victims. If the 7 family members in Bellmore died in a motel with no smoke alarms the owners would have been brought to trial. It is a two way street - you own a dwelling where others sleep - you provide a working smoke alarm. It might be good to get the insurance industry involved - no detectors - you don't collect your damages.

It is obvious at this stage - the General Public has to be forced fed fire safety. Because innocent lives are being lost. Firefighters suffer also. Once you pull a dead child from a burning building you never forget it. You take the horror and the hurt to your grave. Its like the old motto - "Lead, follow or get out of the way - but do something."

The law, if enacted will do something.

Smoke Detectors On Recall

An estimated 770,000 battery-operated residential smoke detectors are being recalled by their manufacturer, Honeywell, Inc.

The reason: They might not sound an alarm when smoke is present. The recall involves Model TC89B and TC89C detectors produced in 1977 and 1978. The model numbers are found inside the detector on a piece of gray cardboard along with a date code ranging from 7601 to 7820. The detectors can be tested by checking the battery, then blowing out a candle nearby to create smoke. If the alarm does not sound, call Honeywell toll free at (800) 328-8194 for a replacement.

LI to LA: The Olympic Torch Relay

When the last of several thousand runners brings the flame to the XXIIIrd Olympiad in Los Angeles this summer, it will mark the longest Olympic Torch Relay in history—and Long Island will be part of this record-breaking moment.

Through the sponsorship of the Nassau Farmers Market in Bellmore, a 13 youth between the ages of Rand 17 will run one kilometer in the 15,000-kilometer Olympic Torch Relay which starts in New York City on May 8.

The LI youngster, either a boy or girl, will be chosen from a pool of qualified runners who complete a course measuring one kilometer (0.6 miles) around the Nassau Farmers Market in less than 7 minutes. Qualifying participants will then be entered in a drawing to be held at the Farmers Market on Sunday, March 4.

Registration to participate in the qualifying runs will take place on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 17 and 18, and again on Friday and Saturday, February 17 and 18, and again on Friday and Saturday, February 24 and 25, from 11 AM to 8 PM at the "Olympic Booth" (Number 313, Aisle B) in the Farmers Market. The registration fee is $1 and parental consent is required.

The races will be sanctioned by the Athletics Congress and administered by the LI Road Runners Club, under the direction of Jack Dowling.

The winning runner will receive a $100 gift certificate toward purchases from any of the 200 merchants at the Nassau Farmers Market. In addition, the Market will make a $500 contribution to the winning youngster's school to help support athletic activities. Second and third-place runners (also selected from the drawing) will receive $50 gift certificates for purchases at the Farmers Market.

Jerry Spiegel, owner of the Nassau Farmers Market, said that the event was in keeping with "the spirit of the Market as a focus of community activity." The sponsorship of a kilometer in the Torch Relay is one of several activities planned this year in celebration of the Farmers Market's 30th birthday, he said.

Besides receiving a $100 gift certificate, the winning LI runner will be officially designated a "Youth Legacy Kilometer" torchbearer. The youngster will receive a limited-edition 1984 Olympic Torch with the bearer's name engraved, a Relay uniform, and a commemorative certificate.

Arthur Sanders, President of Spiegel Associates, said that he hoped the Torch Relay would "help young people generate within themselves the kind of enthusiasm and commitment that the Olympic Games symbolize."

Mr. Robert A. Dublin, Metro New York Manager of Calvert Distillers Co., was the guest speaker at the February 8 meeting of the Hicksville Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Dublin spoke about the ingredients, processes, and procedures involved in making Irish whiskey available in the United States. He also brought along a sample of his company's product for the members to taste if they cared to.

After the discussion and sampling, Mr. Dublin raffled off the remainder of the generous sample. He also brought along a mirrored clock advertising his product for another raffle. This was won by Kiwanis Past President Sieg Widder who is shown in the photo, on the right, accepting the clock from Mr. Dublin.

The children in Denise Yannone's fourth-fifth grade class at the Dutch Lane School are observing and studying worker ants in an ant farm colony they have set up in their classroom. The students have learned that ants work very hard, but they also like to sleep and play. Did you know that ants like to play baseball? They will roll one tiny birdseed back and forth and they also like to pass the seed to each other. Ants like to have wrestling matches too. Ants from the same colony rarely have real fights, but they like to spar with each other. Ants like to have meetings and sometimes they all gather together for a "party." Each ant has its own special job in the community. Some ants dig tunnels, others gather food. Ants are very strong for their size, and some workers can carry loads that weigh hundreds of times more than they do.

The children observed that ants survived well because they all work together. The community as a whole can prosper when each member does its job and each contributes his or her own fair share. The students are learning some good lessons in democracy by observing the ants. They respect each other's rights and they are always ready to help each other. The students are also learning to respect and safeguard life in the animal kingdom, no matter how small it is. Each student has a turn to give food and water to the any colony. The class has learned that ants can be very interesting and educational.

Rotary Club Adds To 'Life' Donation

The Rotary Club of Hicksville announced it has given an additional $1,000 donation to the Gift of Life. This brings the Club's donations to a total of more than $2,700 for the Rotary year, according to Augie Cassella, the Club's Gift of Life Chairman.

The program recently gained national attention when Nancy Reagan brought two Korean children back to the United States with her and the President on Air Force One. The children were successfully operated on and have returned to Korea. Mrs. Reagan will also be the guest of honor at a Rotary Fund raising ball to be held at the Waldorf Astoria on February 21.

The Gift of Life program was started by the Manhasset Rotary Club in 1975 and has developed into a District-wide project. In cooperation with St. Francis Hospital in Roslyn and doctors who donate their services, the program arranges for open-heart surgery for children. More than 200 children have received treatment as a result of the funds raised by Rotarians in this area.

In addition to Gift of Life, Mr. Cassella indicated that Hicksville Rotary also gives scholarships to four local high schools and distributes Christmas baskets to the needy, as well as participating in other community service projects in the Hicksville Jericho area. The club meets every Thursday at 12:15 p.m. at the Milleridge Inn in Hicksville. Anyone interested in joining can contact the President of the Hicksville Club, Harry Peltz at 433-2000.

Takapausha Hosts Dutch Lane Classes

Children huddled in a darkened and chilly room. They dared not breath and sat perfectly still. All of a sudden, as their eyes grew accustomed to the darkness, the flutter of wings could be seen. "It's a bat!" someone cried as the black creature moved from its perch.

It might well have been a vampire's cave in the mountains of Transylvania, but instead the classes of Denise Yannone, Adrienne Rosenberg and Ninon Lapidus visited Takapausha Museum and Preserve on Long Island's south shore. Mrs. Pelle, their warm and enthusiastic guide offered an extremely informative presentation about bats. The children viewed slides, touched various exhibits and even observed a real live bat - in a cage, of course! Driven by keen interest and curiosity, the group asked scores of questions, each of which Mrs. Pelle patiently answered. Did you know that some bats have fur on their wings to keep warm? The vampire bat does indeed feed from blood, but other types of bats are vegetarians, and bats aren't blind at all!

The children embarked upon a tour of Takapausha which encompassed touching a snake and a turtle as well as viewing fish, owls and a parrot. "Touch and feel" boxes offered a real hands-on approach which delighted the students. A display about dinosaurs and early cavemen provided an opportunity for the children to shine as they answered questions asked by the guide. The trip was so exciting that the students forgot to get hungry as lunchtime drew near!

Sure we'd like to shelter
$4,000 of last year's income
against taxes.

But how?
And where?
And when?

With an I.R.A.
At Ridgewood.
Now.

Tax savings on last year's earnings? Absolutely . . . if you act before April 15, 1984. You and your spouse can shelter as much as $4,000 from the tax-man by opening an I.R.A. at Ridgewood Savings Bank.

You could even claim that deduction now . . . file early to get your refund sooner . . . and you'd still have 'till April 15th to open your account.

Ask any expert on personal finances, and we'll bet he tells you that an I.R.A. is the best move you can make. For immediate and future income tax savings. For high-yield, tax-deferred earnings. For a secure and prosperous retirement. Best of all, you'll never pay Ridgewood a fee for starting your I.R.A. or managing it for you.

Today, every wage-earner is entitled to establish a tax-deferred I.R.A. Including working spouses. Including people who already have pension plans.

Including self-employed people . . . even if they already have Keogh accounts. A qualifying individual can deposit up to $2,000 of annual income . . . a husband and wife who are both employed: $2,000 each, or a total of up to $4,000 . . . a wage-earner with a non-working spouse: up to $2,250. Income tax on funds deposited and on the interest that they earn will be deferred until they are withdrawn after retirement, when most people's tax rates are much lower.

Wouldn't you like to know how much a Ridgewood I.R.A. could mean to you when you retire? Could it be worth a million dollars . . . or even more? It's easy to find out . . . and we think you'll be amazed! Just stop in at your nearest Ridgewood branch and ask for a free, personalized computer projection—based on your age and the tax-sheltered deposits you expect to make. And be prepared for a very pleasant surprise!

It's smarter than ever to bank with your neighbors.

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Hicksville School Dist. is being challenged by the ACLU on retaining a rule mandating a moment of silence each morning in the schools. Do you think the district should continue the policy?

ED. NOTE: Because of the universal interest in the Question, residents of all districts are invited to answer this question.

As a Supreme court Justice I need God's help in deciding if prayer should be in schools, Miss Jones.

Most Input Callers Favor Jury System

Most Callers to Input favor the jury system in answer to this question: "Do you feel that (1) a panel of judges or (2) the jury system is the best for obtaining justice?"

ORDINARY PEOPLE

I believe the jury system is better because it allows people who are ordinary people to understand and pass judgement on others rather than judges who are always thinking in terms of legal jargon and cannot see the human side of the thing. J.L.

JUDGES BETTER

The jury system is not good because it allows lawyers to play on the sympathy and sometimes the prejudices of people on the jury. Whenever there is an accident case juries always award bigger amounts to the one injured especially if the suit is against a large company. Justice is not always served best by a jury that is biased in favor of the individual against the company.

UNDERSTANDING LAW

As a lawyer I would prefer a panel of judges such as in the Appellate Court. It often takes some cold understanding of the law to give a just verdict. One that is tempered with emotion may be harmful to the other party. Judges have an understanding of the law and can immediately spot when a prosecuting or defense lawyer has run out of facts. The jury system works somewhat but it is not the system I would prefer. C.W.

JURY BETTER

If I were an accident victim I would prefer a jury because they could understand my suffering and other related complaints. I do not think that judges could relate to the case so I feel that a jury is a needed system and should remain a basic part of our court system. N.R.

MERIT SYSTEM

The problem with more panels of judges is that so many judges are picked because of their political standing and so little importance is placed on their legal ability that I think the jury system will always be needed in spite of some problems with it. Until there is really a reform in the selection of judges and a merit test given, we cannot depend on judges to have complete control. G.K.

NEED JURIES

I think our jury system including the Grand Jury is important in this country. I think it must be continued. There are so many appeals courts without juries that any wrong that is done through the jury system can be reversed. But without that system we would lack the participation of the general public and we would soon find that our courts were remote from justice as we know it. G.H.

LEANS TOWARD JURIES

I guess it's six of one and half dozen of the other - so much would depend upon the make-up of the judicial panel and the members of a comparable jury. Probably on balance, the system which is fairest to the defendant, the prosecution and society is the jury system. If anything, it tends to be weighted in favor of the defendant and I think that's why it should be on the presumption that one is deemed to be innocent until proven guilty. It is also presumed that the presiding judge is experienced, unbiased and familiar with the laws applicable to the type of case being tried thereby providing the essential balance for both sides. Generally speaking, I feel that jurors are proud of their responsibility and apply common sense and their best judgement to reach an honest verdict. I often worry about the caliber and social dedication of the lawyers involved, but once again the outcome of the trial is the result of a combination of efforts involving the lawyers, the jury and the judge. Finally, if the wheels of justice don't spin fast enough to keep up with the backlog of cases, I believe we would have no choice but to resort to judicial panels as the speediest means of dispensing justice. Under these circumstances, it is my contention that the Sixth Amendment under the Bill of Rights lends sufficient emphasis to the "right to a speedy and public trial" as to permit a trial by a judicial panel to be construed as one "by an impartial jury" fully within the intent of the amendment. P.G.S.

AGAINST JUDGES

It is imperative that the jury system be continued. This is most important in civil cases. Particularly where a person is involved in a lawsuit with a large corporation or large organization of any kind. It is perfectly possible, in some cases, for a person with a lot of money or political influence to "buy a judge". It's a little more difficult to "buy" an entire jury. E.G.

PAST ISSUES

ANTI REAGAN

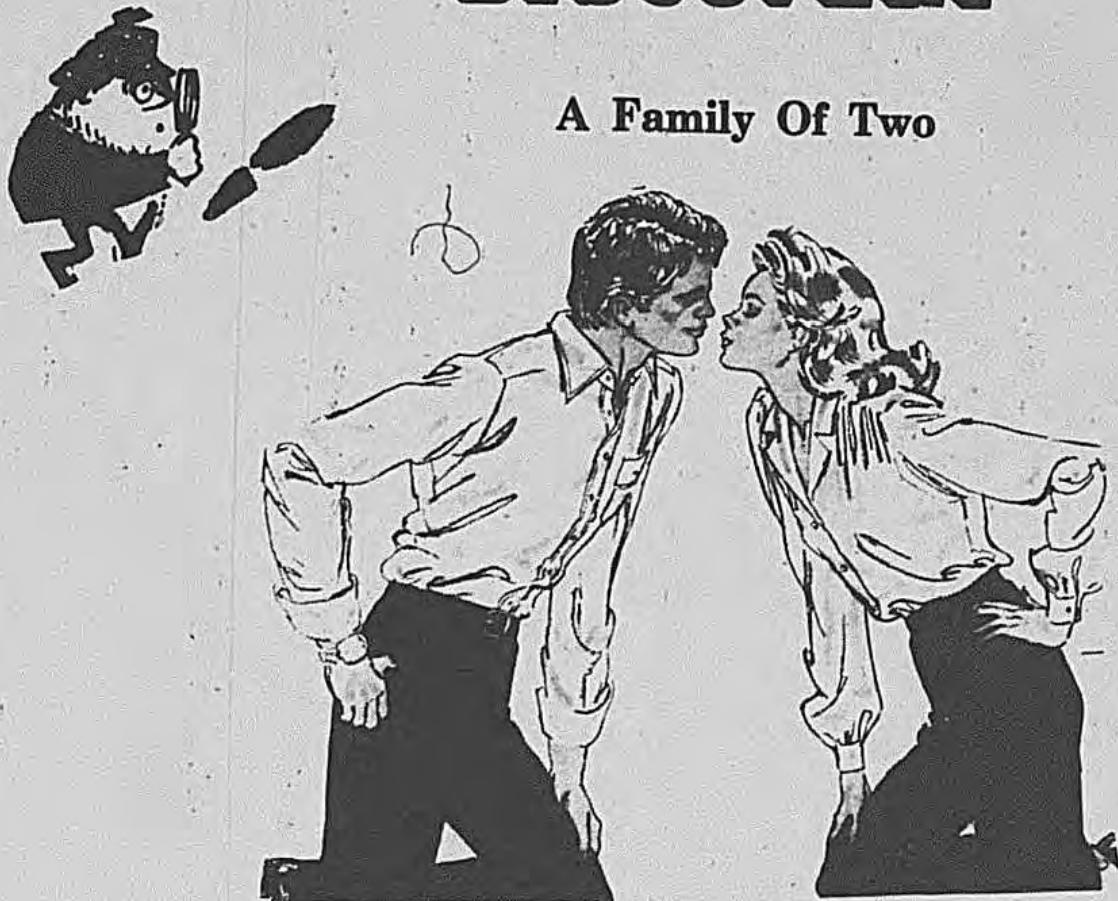

I pray that Reagan will not be reelected. He promised to balance the budget but instead he saddled us with the largest deficit in history. He spends billions on armaments, military build-up and cuts all social programs. He really has his priorities mixed up. He is so busy attending to subjects such as abortion, and school prayers, that he neglects the essentials. He has antagonized most of the world against us and he is a master of deception. The only praiseworthy thing I can say about him is that as a B actor he sure has improved his acting ability, especially on TV. P.V.

BAD ECONOMY

In reading the responses to your survey on the chances of President Reagan's reelection I was most impressed with R.J.'s answer in that in spite of Reaganomics being a complete failure his charm and Hollywood charisma will undoubtedly win the election for him. His stand on such small issues as Right to Life, Birth Control, School Prayer, School Busing, Affirmative Action, Welfare, etc. is enough to convince enough of the upper and middle class people that his way is better. Unfortunately, according to most economists, including his own, his huge defense spending with the resulting new deficits will eventually bankrupt the economy. C.K.

DISCOVERY

A Family Of Two

"We view children as an addition to our family, not as the creators of it."

by Denise Stamp Yannone

More and more couples are delaying the birth of their first child in favor of pursuing careers, building a solid nest egg and making sure their marriage will work. Some couples have decided to forego having children for a variety of reasons. One of the most intriguing of these is one that my friend Nancy mentioned to me over coffee not too long ago. It is what she calls "the family of two". Though Nancy and her husband Steve do plan to raise a family in the future, they do not feel compelled to do so. "I've felt from the beginning of our marriage that Steve and I are a family," says Nancy. "We view children as an addition to our family, not as the creators of it. We both feel that children will not strengthen our marriage or create a special bond between us because we already share a very tight bond. Children will be welcomed into our home as people in their own right - people who will one day go their own way. But Steve and I, we are the basis from which all else comes. It will be the two of us when the children are grown."

This concept of the family of two fascinates me. It has encouraged me to look at my own marriage in a totally different light. Yes, a man and woman can very definitely be a family; caring for each other, nurturing and supporting. They can help each other to grow in separate areas as strong and independent people. If there is truly a family of two, then neither parent will live through the children or vicariously derive pleasure that should be coming from their spouse.

I asked Nancy about holidays such as Christmas which I always felt belonged to children and augmented by having the little ones' bright eyes around the tree. "Holidays are a very special time for us," says Nancy. "Steve and I have begun many traditions that we carry on from year to year. We spend time decorating the house and doing special things for each other. We always have a fire going and we even wrap gifts together."

"If there is truly a family of two, then neither parent will live through the children."

Theirs certainly does sound like a fairy tale marriage, but not if you believe in the concept of the family of two. "When we have our first child," adds Nancy, "it will not be because either of us feels unfulfilled or empty. It will be because we are both so full of love that we want to share our wonderful family with another person. Our child will have his or her place in our family - a strong family that has had time to develop. No child can make a house into a home. Steve and I are a family in the deepest sense of the word."

Perhaps if more couples viewed their marriage as a family, more families would remain intact, and more children would grow up to be healthy, well-adjusted adults. I can't wait to see the kind of children Nancy and Steve raise!

FAVORITE PLACES

Last Saturday night, we enjoyed a most delightful Italian dinner at Ricky's Ristorante in Roslyn Heights. We have patronized this neighborhood restaurant for many years; in fact it is one of our favorite places. We enjoyed live entertainment, with Rosalie who has quite a repertoire. (She sings in French and Spanish as well as English) and it was such a fun evening, no one wanted to go home and we stayed quite late. The menu is varied serving Northern Italian cuisine. The portions were ample, the service was great, but most of all the friendly atmosphere made the evening absolutely perfect. If anything, this restaurant is even better with the new ownership. We heartily recommend it to your readers.

GREAT SALAD BAR!

Last Saturday we went to the Camelot Restaurant at the Pickwick Motel in Plainview. This is really a great place.

They absolutely have the biggest salad bar on Long Island. Included in the salad bar are hot and cold dishes such as barbecue spare ribs, fried chicken, plenty of shrimp, salad greens and just about anything you can imagine.

The salad bar is included with regularly priced entrees that are moderately priced from about $9 to $16. Included with the entree is soup and coffee, and potato.

Camelot features an organist with a large range of music on Saturdays. We would have to rate this as one of the best. R.G.

IRISH COFFEE

You have Mahoney's Restaurant listed on your page and it tells all about the seafood, chops, etc. and salad bar. But what no one seems to print is that Mahoney's has the best Irish coffee this side of Ireland. The other night I was talked into having Irish coffee, the first since I came back from a trip to Ireland two years ago. I think that Mahoney's captures the Irish Coffee blend better than some pubs in the old sod. Tim

Restaurant Guide

If you have Questions about etiquette or dining out you may call them in to WE 1-0027 and we will find the answer.

Q. Is it all right if you're trying out all the famous dishes in a certain restaurant for everyone to order different things and then give everyone else a taste? A.M. A. Yes, provided the different portions given to others at the table are not meted out from an already used plate or with an already used fork or spoon.

Arrange in advance to have the waiter bring each person an extra little plate onto which each of you spoons with a clean utensil a bit of this and a bit of that. Otherwise it looks sloppy - and somewhat unsanitary.

Q. Aren't people who never order dessert (and who pooh-pooh others who do) awfully rude when they lean over to "have a taste"? A. Yes, they are. Constant "tasters" are a big bore for everyone. If they want to taste something so badly, they should order it for themselves.

Q. When you're eating in a coffee shop or at a drugstore counter, what are you supposed to do with the paper containers you used for mustard, sugar and things like that?

A. It's nice to fold them neatly and deposit them in the ashtray, if it's not being used. Otherwise, one may deposit them on the saucer of the coffee cup or under the rim of a plate.

Q. I was always taught that when a man who is not "loaded" takes a woman to a restaurant, his date should order very lightly. Is this true today?

A. Yes, and it's equally true if a woman is footing the bill for a male guest. It's just basic good manners when you're someone's guest to order modestly. If your host insists you have something grander, and says he or she is "going to have the fillet of beef" this evening, you as the guest may certainly follow suit.

If the guest orders first, it's nice to go easy, if one doesn't know the personal situation of the host.

A person in business is severely called to task if the expense accounts are too high, so don't think that just because there is one the sky is the limit.

ENJOYABLE PLACE

Ming Garden at 200 Garden City Plazas is an exceptional Chinese Restaurant. We have been there for several dinners and always feel that it is the best restaurant of its kind in this area. We have had all different dishes from the menu which includes Szechuan, Hunan and Cantonese dishes.

We have had shrimp, lobster, steak and chicken in all of our visits to Ming Garden and we have never been disappointed. Last week we had a new dessert called fried ice cream and this too was a lot of fun.

Ming Garden is a medium sized restaurant that we think most of our readers will enjoy.

GOOD PLACE

Your Place or Mine is the name of a new restaurant we visited last night. It has a somewhat funny name for a restaurant but we found the food and service to be nothing to make fun of. We had the best steaks we have had in some time at Your Place and Mine. The food is prepared in a continental style and they were just very delicious eating specials.

The vegetables were prepared well and the baked potato was right as though it has been popped in the oven when we came to the restaurant.

The price is fair and we think the decor is nice. We recommend this restaurant located on Hillside Ave., Williston Park to anyone who likes good food. H.R.

NICER THAN OTHERS

I don't normally do this but I was in a new Japanese restaurant last week in Woodbury. It's so much nicer than other Japanese restaurants that I thought your readers would want to know about it. The name of the restaurant is Kokura II in the Woodbury Commons. I eat a lot of Japanese food and I thought the place was really unbelievable. The food was super and there were specials you'll never find on Long Island. F.K.

Wine Talk

A melon is a grape

By Dan Berger

The label says "Melon," so you might expect the wine to be made from melons.

It isn't, however. Melon is a grape variety that grows in the Loire Valley area of France and is used to make Muscadet — the "fish wine," as I once read it was called.

Melon — which also has been thought to be Pinot Blanc — is a rather neutral grape variety. And so obscure that ampelography books (books on the study of wine grapes) rarely list it. When it is mentioned at all, some books say, "Also called muscadet," because the variety is so closely linked to the wine it makes that the grape has lost its own identity.

One characteristic of Melon is its ability to lend a slightly steely, fresh quality to an otherwise nondescript variety. When grown in the Loire Valley, it helps to make a crisp, tart wine that complements oysters and other seafood. Muscadet once was more popular in the United States because it was an inexpensive alternative to Pouilly-Fuisse and other white Burgundies.

However, for reasons I can't figure out, Muscadet isn't as popular as it once was, and thus the appearance of a wine by Beaulieu Vineyards called Melon is even more of a curiosity. Still, I was surprised at the high quality of this wine.

BV calls the variety of grapes it has growing in the Napa Valley "Melon de Bourgogne." BV's original owner, the late Georges de Latour, brought over Melon plant stock from France in the late 1930s and planted it.

In the early 1950s, a disease wiped out the entire block, but a few unscathed vines were salvaged, and sent to UC Davis to be "cleansed" in the university's "clean stock" program, in which virus-ridden plant material is converted into virus-free growing stock. BV subsequently replanted the variety.

In 1982, BV finally had enough of a crop to produce a 100 percent varietal wine, and when I tasted it, I was surprised at the similarity to Muscadet — given the usual difficulty anyone has of duplicating the style of a French variety.

The BV Melon is very crisp and tart yet not austere. It has a light, pale color, a light, clean and uncomplicated aroma, and a mouth feel that does in fact complement fish dishes well. At $8, it may be slightly expensive, but for those seeking a change of pace it's an intriguing dinner wine.

Harriet Lembeck is a tiny lass who has the energy of a lumberjack. We have attended seminars together and judged on the same tasting panels, and always she's anxious to get somewhere to do something else.

One of those things, on which she has been working for the last couple of years, is the seventh edition of Harold J. Grossman's classic book "Grossman's Guide to Wines, Beers, and Spirits" ($29.95, Scribner).

The Grossman book is a reference work, originally conceived and written for those in the wine, beer and spirits trade. The first edition was released in 1940 and revised periodically since then. I bought my first Grossman in 1967, the fourth revision. It was 508 pages.

Lembeck's seventh edition is 638 pages, and the pages are larger than earlier editions. Much of the work reflects the latest in research for the beginner looking for a textbook into alcoholic beverages.

This definitive work is not filled with adjectives. It is not something to sit down and read for pure enjoyment. But as a basic reference work, I can think of nothing better.

The photos are utilitarian, all in black and white, but informative. The writing is clear, concise and precise, and the appendices in the back of the book are exceptional — such charts as a Quick Guide to Wines and Spirits, vintage data, principal vineyards, explanation of alcoholic fermentation, wine laws, and a fine bibliography.

Much of the technical data in the book, as well as many of the charts and maps, were done by Harriet's husband, William Lembeck, an engineer by trade, and the clarity of the text is enhanced by these technical clarifications that other books leave out — probably because the author couldn't tell you that 75 liters is equal to 25.4 ounces.

Cooking Corner

Ah, the glorious eggplant

By Toni Griffin

At a time when fancy squashes, mushrooms and salad greens are stealing the culinary show, the plain, peasanty eggplant seems to remain resolutely out of fashion.

However, Americans are slowly but surely catching on to this dark, lustrous vegetable. They're slowly but surely discovering the versatility and good taste that make cooks in many countries call the eggplant one of their favorite foods.

Eggplants are available in the United States all year round. Though most in the marketplace are the medium-size, dark purple variety, there exists a dazzling spectrum of colors (near-white, yellow, red and striped) and shapes (pear, cucumber- and ball-shaped).

When buying eggplants, select pieces that are firm, well-colored, shiny and free from scars, cuts and bruises. They should be heavy for their size and should not be flabby or shriveled. Since eggplants are delicate, do not pile anything on top of them in the grocery bag. Since they do not keep well after being cut, plan to use the whole thing for one recipe, and select the size accordingly.

Eggplants may be stored for a few days at room temperature. However, since their bitterness increases with storage time, they should be refrigerated if kept any longer than that.

There are two common controversies surrounding the preparation of eggplant.

One: To peel or not to peel. The eggplant's glamorous purple skin is usually left intact to add flavor, texture and color to the finished dish, but the skin of older, larger eggplants can be bitter and should be peeled before cooking.

Two: To salt or not to salt. Many cooks insist that the salved or chopped eggplant should be generously salted, left to drain, then pressed to remove as much moisture as possible before being cooked. Others say that this process is not necessary.

One thing that all agree on is that the eggplant should not be cut ahead of time as the flesh discolors quickly.

By itself, eggplant is remarkably low in calories, having just 38 calories (and small amounts of various vitamins and minerals) in a hefty one-cup serving. Most of its most traditional sidekicks — like tomato, lamb, garlic and onions — are also low in calories.

With the help of these international recipes, the home cook can turn out dishes that will taste as good as this important vegetable looks.

SULTAN'S DELIGHT An eggplant cream to serve with grilled and roasted meats

1 1/2 lbs. eggplant
Juice of 1/2 lemon
2 tbsps. unsalted butter
3 tbsps. all-purpose flour
1 cup hot milk
1/4 cup grated Parmesan or guyere cheese
Salt

1. To give the eggplants a good smoky flavor and still have time for other kitchen work, start them off in a preheated 375-degree oven to bake for 20 minutes, turning them midway. Then set over a gas flame or over hot coals and cook until they are completely soft and their skins are black and blistery. Rub the black parched skins off under cold running water then squeeze to remove any bitter juices.

2. Mash the eggplant with the juice of 1/2 lemon until smooth. In a saucepan melt the butter, off heat stir in the flour. Cook, stirring until the flour turns light brown in color. Whisk in the milk and continue to cook until smooth. Stir in the cheese and the eggplant and cook 5 to 10 minutes longer over low heat, stirring often. Season with salt and serve at once.

MOUSSAKA (Baked meat and eggplant casserole with yogurt sauce)

2 lbs. eggplant
1 1/2 lbs. ground lamb
5 tbsps. butter
1 onion, grated and drained
1/2 cup tomato puree or 3 red ripe tomatoes, peeled, seeded, and chopped
2-3 tbsps. chopped parsley
Freshly ground black pepper
2 pinches of ground cinnamon
Oil for frying
3 eggs
2 cups plain yogurt, beaten until smooth
About 1/4 cup grated kefalograti cheese
Grated nutmeg

1. Peel the eggplants and cut into 1/2-inch rounds. Salt them and leave to drain in the colander 30 minutes.

2. Brown the meat in 4 tablespoons butter with the onion. Add the tomato puree, parsley, salt and pepper to taste, and the cinnamon. Simmer gently until all the liquid evaporates. Allow to cool.

3. Rinse the eggplant slices, squeeze gently, and pat dry with paper towels. Heat the oil in a skillet and fry the eggplant slices until brown on both sides. Drain and set aside.

4. Thoroughly beat the 3 eggs. Slowly stir in the yogurt. Mix in the cheese. Season with salt, pepper and grated nutmeg.

5. Preheat the oven to 375 degrees.

6. Arrange half the eggplant slices in one layer on the bottom of a buttered oven dish. Cover with a layer of cooked meat and a final layer of eggplant. Pour the sauce over the top and dot with butter. Set in the oven to bake 1/2 hour until the top is swollen and golden brown.

Serves 6.

1 tsp. sugar
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Peel and dice the eggplant and sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt; let stand 10 minutes. Drain. Heat half the oil in a skillet; brown the eggplant in it.

In a saucepan, heat the remaining oil, mix in the tomatoes and celery; cook over low heat 15 minutes. Add the olives, capers, vinegar, sugar and pepper; cook 15 minutes. Add the browned eggplant and cook 15 minutes longer. Taste for seasoning; chill. Garnish with additional capers and olives, if desired.

FROM OUR KITCHEN Make your own curry powder

CURRY POWDER

1/2 cup cumin seed
1/2 oz. black peppercorns
2 cups coriander seed
1/2 oz. fenugreek
1/4 cup cloves
1/4 cup cardamom
1 1/2 cups dried red chili peppers
1/4 cup cinnamon
1/4 cup mace

NOTE: All measurements given in this recipe are by VOLUME, not weight, so that a measuring cup may be used for all ingredients.

In a flat pan in the oven, roast the cumin, black peppercorns, coriander seed and fenugreek at moderate (225 to 250 F) temperature until a pleasant aroma is given off. After roasting, allow to cool, then grind finely and set aside.

Finely grind the cloves, cardamom and dried red chili peppers.

Add to these the cinnamon and mace. Both are readily available in ground form, though you may use stick cinnamon and grind it yourself if you prefer.

Mix all ingredients well and store in an air-tight jar, preferably in the refrigerator. So stored, your curry powder will keep indefinitely.

CHICKEN CURRY

6 chicken breast halves, skinned and cut in half

3 medium onions, cut into eighths
2 carrots, cut into 1-inch chunks
3 stalks celery, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 apple, cored and cut into 1-inch pieces
2 large cloves garlic, chopped
2 to 3 tbsps. curry powder (recipe above)
1 hot red chili pepper, seeds removed
2 heaping tbsps. sour cream
Salt and pepper to taste

In a Dutch oven or large deep skillet, saute the chicken pieces until they are brown on both sides. Remove from the pan. To the pan, add the curry powder, red chili pepper and garlic, and saute, stirring, for 1 to 4 minutes. Add the onion, celery, carrot and apple. Pour in the broth and stir. Return the chicken to the pan and simmer, partially covered, for 60 to 75 minutes.

Remove the chicken with a slotted spoon and set aside. Remove all the vegetables and the apple from the sauce and puree them in a blender or food processor. Return the puree to the broth a few minutes before serving. Whisk in the sour cream and add the chicken pieces. Heat until very hot and serve with rice or boiled new potatoes. Serves 4.

'Stormy Weather' may bring sunshine

By James G. McCollam
Member, Antique
Appraisers Association of America

Q: This mark is on the bottom of my Hummel figurine of a little boy and a little girl under an umbrella. What can you tell me about its vintage and value?

A: This is "Stormy Weather" with Trade Mark 2 (Small Bee). It was made in 1956 and is selling for at least $400. The distinguishing part of this mark is that the wing tips are in line with the top of the "Vee."

This figurine is very much in demand as a companion piece to the 1975 anniversary figurine which is decorated with the same figures.

Q: On several occasions, you have stated in your column that a violin marked "Stradivarius" is a fake.

How can you be so sure that it is not authentic and worth over $100,000?

A: In the first place, international experts are of the opinion that all violins made by Antonio Stradivari have been accounted for.

Second, if a violin is labeled "Stradivarius - Made in Czechoslovakia," it's a fake. Stradivari lived over 200 years ago and made violins in Cremona, Italy. Czechoslovakia didn't exist until 1918.

Stradivari produced only a few hundred violins in his lifetime; in the last 150 years, there have been over 1 million fake or copy "Stradivarius" violins made. Some have sold new for less than $3.

Q: This Ansonia clock is supposed to be over 100 years old. What can you tell me about its vintage and value?

BOOK REVIEW: "Country Pine Furniture and Accessories with Prices," by Robert W. and Harriet Swedberg; Wallace-Homestead Book Co.; 1912 Grand Ave.; Des Moines, IA 50305; $12.95, plus $1.25 postage, or at your local bookstore.

This book is packed with information every collector should know, now that country has moved to the city. It has over 400 photos that show the best of rural collectibles; every item is priced. This book is a must for all collectors and dealers.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and $1 per item to James G. McCollam.

A: It is at least 100 years old; it was made in the third quarter of the 19th century. The value would be in the $225 to $275 range.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q. We have a red brick patio and walkway and a problem with moss, which poses a hazard when wet or damp. The bricks were laid on sand, with sand between them.

We have tried using vinegar in water to remove the moss, but only with limited success. Do you know of a better way? Thanks for the consideration of this problem.

— Fred M.

A. If the mossy paving stays shaded and damp most of the year, you should treat it with strong sterilizing chemicals.

Salt is an old and well-tried answer. You can use rock salt, granular salt or one of the commercial sodium mixtures available at garden supply stores. Spread the dry salt over damp paving or mix it with water in a sprinkling can. Do not use salt where it can reach other vegetation and kill it.

Your salt solution may leave a white residue on the paving, but this is only temporary and soon washes or blows off.

Copper sulfate, also called bluestone or blue vitriol, is a chemical you can use to get rid of moss with a minimum chance of harming grass or garden plants nearby. It is sold at feed stores and some nurseries and is available in both powdered and crystal form.

The powdered is the easier to dissolve in water. Mix one pound of it in 20 gallons of water and either spray or pour it over the mossy area. Copper sulfate may seem to be staining your paving, but the color is easily hosed off.

Ammonium sulfamate is another chemical used to kill moss, but do not use it if there is a likelihood of its touching other vegetation. One application of this is usually enough.

Q. My mobile home is wired in such a manner that the automatic dishwasher and the bathroom wall outlets are all on the same circuit, which is protected with a "ground test" type of circuit breaker.

Some months ago the dishwasher went bad and, in the process, caused the circuit breaker to go off. Both were replaced.

Since that time, and when I use my electric razor in the bathroom, the circuit breaker will trip off about one-third of the time.

Several months ago, the circuit breaker also would trip occasionally when the dishwasher would shut off as, of course, it does sev-

Would you please advise me as to what is causing this annoying situation and what can be done to correct it? — Robert E.H.

A. Call a qualified electrician. Complicated electrical problems need the personal attention of the experts in this field. It is possible you may have faulty wiring, and if so, prompt attention is advised to avoid a possible fire.

Q. I would like to know what can be done to solve a mildew problem in the ceiling of our bathroom. We used bleach on it, and then had the ceiling painted, but it still comes through in black spots.

There is no window in the bathroom, and I do not use the fan. Would that have anything to do with it? — David F.

A. Mildew is usually caused by too much moisture and a lack of ventilation. The use of a fan should help correct the problem.

After cleaning the ceiling area, paint again with a mildew-resistant paint. Also spraying with a mildew-resistant spray which is often used in closets might help.

With no way to eliminate moisture in a bathroom, it may be difficult to solve your problem. A dehumidifier could help.

Send me your Pen Pal list (add my name and age, 62, if you please will and of course the address).

Please also send in same envelope (enclosed) your leaflet on Certo.

In 1966 I had arthritis very severely and could hardly walk due to hip and knee pains. Finger joints were swollen to where I had to give up wearing my lodge ring and I prepared for the end. For some unexplained reason it cleared all up within two years. Now I infrequently have very mild hip and finger joint pains.

Have you any explanation for this? Your other readers might be interested and could shed some light on the subject. — Thomas S.

Dear Thomas: I've heard no explanation of why arthritis sometimes comes and goes. Pen Pal list on the way.

Sorry, no apple pies, either. Enclosed in self-addressed envelope for your information on Certo. — Mrs. B.C.

Dear Mrs. B.C.: Glad you sent the envelope. Some new readers do not understand that it is necessary on account of our huge volume of mail. Also, this is a good time to thank all those readers who have been sending in donations to help with the handling of our leaflets.

Honey and vinegar were referred to by other readers and some have asked for recipes of how to use them. Sorry, but we have no further information on these treatments for arthritis.

Dear John: I had read in the News-Press of people asking you about taking Certo mixed with grape juice and how much to take and how often. Could you please let me know?

One time I was in the store and a lady came in and bought about 12 bottles of it and said it had helped her arthritis.

How long would one have to take it before they felt some relief? — Eleanor D.

Dear Eleanor: That depends on the individual. It has been known to bring relief in 30 minutes. On the other hand, some people don't seem to be helped at all.

Dear John: Read and enjoy your column very much. Will you kindly

Doctor's Forum

Q. My sister is 24 years old and has been diagnosed as an agoraphobic with a psychotic obsession. She is terrified of leaving her home due to the agoraphobia and her obsession has to do with other women. She will not let her husband out of her sight except to go to work.

Exactly what is a psychotic obsession? Where can we go for help for her problems? — N.S.

A. Agoraphobia is a condition which has become increasingly recognized in the past decade. Recent surveys document it as one of the most common mental disorders in the United States.

Although it can affect both sexes, it is far more common in women. Its severity is highly variable. In its severest form it is extremely disabling.

The untreated agoraphobic is a prisoner of her fears. She is afraid to leave home and go anywhere, but especially to place herself in any situation — a grocery checkout line, an elevator, an airplane — from which she can not readily escape.

She is afraid she might panic. Panic is an extreme form of fear in which a person completely loses control and is overwhelmed with painful terror.

Two forms of treatment are currently in use and both are somewhat effective in different ways.

For some reason, anti-depressants are effective in eliminating the panic, but not the anticipatory fear of panicking. Some anti-anxiety agents help with this anticipatory lower grade of anxiety. The anticipatory anxiety itself limits the functioning of the victims, since they are afraid to risk straying from the "safety" of home.

Generally, drug therapy is only effective while the person is on it. The anxieties tend to return in full on the cessation of the course of treatment.

The other form of treatment is a nationally organized group support approach in which fellow agoraphobics meet with professional consultants to encourage gradual return to normal everyday functioning. The agoraphobic, with the help of other agoraphobics, gradually confronts the fearful situations until she can again live her life normally, despite her fears. The fears do gradually diminish, if not disappear.

The cause of this condition is not known. Many psychological and biological theories have been advanced, but none have been proven.

She suffers a very serious illness and is in need of sophisticated treatment by a psychiatrist and/or psychologist with experience in this area. — Thomas N. Rusk, M.D., associate clinical professor of psychiatry, University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Mainly For Seniors

By John T. Watts

Dear John: We hear that there are more and more older people living longer and longer.

Yet I don't see where anything much is being done in a scientific and medical way — hospitals, for instance — to take care of this older population. If you ask me, this country is still youth-oriented.

— J.T.

Dear J.T.: Things are beginning to start. The number of older voters makes anything else impossible.

For instance, on Feb. 13-14 a conference will be held in San Diego by the Hospital Research and Education Trust's Office on Aging and Long-Term Care.

I'll grant you that conferences usually don't get much done besides talk, but it's a start. In this case, the subject is quality health care for the elderly and meeting the financial challenge that involves.

Sponsors of the conference say that limited resources and changes in payment systems are problems to be considered.

Dear John: I read your article about Certo and grape juice, which I would like to know about. May I have a leaflet on it, please?

Yes, I have tried honey and apple juice for two years. It did not help me any. Some it helps and some it doesn't.

Today, the taste of apples or apple juice just doesn't agree.

Notice

HAVE YOU
A HIDDEN TALENT
that has yet to be discovered in print?

We are looking for articles, not exceeding 3,000 words, on local topics, opinions, ideas, nice places to visit on Long Island, and even fiction. In our magazine section, we will try to "Discover" one new feature length article and writer per week. If you want to be published and be part of an issue of Discovery - you may submit your article to:

Litmor Publications,
81 East Barclay Street,
Hicksville, N.Y. 11801

GRANDCHILDREN MOTHERS-FATHERS

You've heard Grandma and Grandpa bragging about their wonderful grandchildren, and it is now time to give credit where it is due. Send in their photos - and nominate them to be the 'World's Greatest Grandparent or Grandparents'

We will, as space allows, print the pictures as part of our magazine feature - and as a reward, we will send you the printed clipping, in permanent form, for you to keep. To enter the contest, simply send a small (preferred) photo to:

Discovery Magazine,
81 East Barclay Street,
Hicksville, N.Y. 11801

A few words about Grandpa and/or Grandma will help the judges. Remember, if you want the photo returned, please write the name and address on the back.

GRANDPARENTS...
HERE IS YOUR CHANCE!

You have been telling everyone you meet that you have the 'World's Greatest Grandchildren'. You've been carrying pictures around with you and finding people to look at them. We have a better answer!

Each week we will run photos of the World's 'Most Beautiful Grandchildren' (in the eyes of the grandparents) and for each photo selected, we will send, as a prize, a permanent version of the way it appeared in the newspaper for you to keep.

To enter the contest, simply send a small (preferred) photo to:

Discovery Magazine,
81 East Barclay Street,
Hicksville, N.Y. 11801

If you want the photo returned, you must print your name and address on the back.

ATTENTION
PET LOVERS

If you feel that you have the 'Most Precious Pet in the World' it is time to let the rest of the world know about it.

Discovery Magazine wants to show your pet to everyone in its reading area.

To nominate your pet as the 'Most Precious Pet' send in a photo to:

Discovery Magazine,
81 East Barclay Street,
Hicksville, N.Y. 11801

Please put your name and address on the back of the picture to facilitate returns. The publishers guarantee that they will take reasonable care in returning your photo.

We're Honored.

That a greater percentage of subscribers renewed their subscriptions in 1983 than to any daily newspaper in Nassau County.

This is the prize we cherish

By Robert Wallace
Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: Jimmy and I went steady for two years and talked about getting married. About six months ago we mutually decided to break up and a month later we both had new "partners."

Last month my new boyfriend, Paul, asked me to get married this coming June and I told him yes. I'm 18 and he is 20.

About a week ago I found out that Jimmy and his girlfriend are going to get married in May and I'm really crushed. All of a sudden I got those "old feelings" again and felt like I still loved Jimmy more than ever.

No, I wonder if I should go through with my marriage with Paul. Please tell me what to do. I'm really confused. — Peggy Peggy: The marriage vow should be taken by two people who are totally in love and totally committed to each other. Since you think you might love your old flame, don't even consider marriage to Paul — at least not in the near future.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 17-year-old senior and I've had my driver's license for over a year and a half and I've never been in an accident or received a ticket. I am a good safe driver. My house is about five miles from the high school but my parents rarely allow me to drive the family car (we have two) even if I have an early school meeting.

When my older sister was in school she was allowed to drive the same car at least three times a week to school. Don't you agree that I should have the same treatment? — Beth Beth: If your sister drove the car to school three days a week then you should be allowed the same privilege — that is there are no great differences between your sister's and your driving.

Dr. Wallace: I met a really super guy at church. He is everything a girl could desire, and, to make things even better, he asked me out. Since then I have gone out with him four times, and I care very much about him.

Now that I know him better, he tells me he also is dating another girl who attends his high school. He also says he would like to continue dating me every Friday night and that he will be dating "Jennifer" every Saturday night. When I asked him what Jennifer thought about this, he replied that she didn't mind one bit.

Dr. Wallace: This is a most unusual arrangement and I don't know if I like it or not. Please give me your thoughts on my "problem" and, if possible, I'd like to hear from your teen guest writers. — Peggy Peggy: If you enjoy his company, a steady Friday night date with a super guy "ain't too shabby." But, make him aware that on Saturday nights you will be dating Bob and Mike and Steve and Kirk and Brian and.

Dr. Wallace: I recently turned 17 and want to become a model. I have the perfect shape but do have one blemish — or should I say 10,000 blemishes? — freckles. I really don't mind them but I'm sure that those who hire models will.

Is there any way I can have the freckles removed — permanently? — Brenda Brenda: Freckles cannot be removed. The pigment is permanent and becomes more pronounced when in direct contact with sunshine.

But, according to leading model Cate Tuttle, there are times when freckles can be an asset for a model. Sooooo ... hang in there and go for it.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 14-year-old girl who had a bad case of acne, pimples and blackheads. I started breaking out on my face, neck and back when I was 12, and I was embarrassed to be seen in public. Every morning when I looked into the mirror I cried.

Finally I convinced my mom to take me to a dermatologist. I thought my problem was too much junk food but the doctor said no. He prescribed a medicine called accutane and within five months my face was almost 100 percent free of blemishes.

I know many teens suffer from acne and I want them to know there is help available. I'm so thrilled about me that I just had to tell you, Dr. Wallace, so you can tell the millions of teens who need complexion help. — Deloris Deloris: Thank you for your testimonial. I contacted a local dermatologist and was informed that accutane has been doing wonders for those who have acne.

Teens, if you do have a complexion problem, the best advice anyone can give you is to visit a dermatologist. Help is available.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Recently I was reading about a special series of games which will be held next June in Nassau County. It is an event nobody dreamed about a few years ago: a sports contest for the disabled.

I think this is a great idea. It is fun for the young people taking part in it. It is also good for the non-disabled to see in a vivid way that the handicapped enjoy the same activities as the rest of us. They surely do not wish anyone to be sorry for them. They wish to be accepted for what they are: human beings.

Lots of luck to everyone taking part in the games and especially to the students who chose the name for the mascot. They are calling him Dan D. Lion. Isn't that a great name?

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are Danielle Sparks and Justin Byczek. Congratulations to you both! You'll be hearing from me soon.

Points On Pets

Some bones OK to give dogs

Q. Is it safe to feed dogs bones from the dinner table? Our dog always begs for these and seems quite content with one for hours.

A. Large beef bones are generally satisfactory for dogs. However, if the bone has a hollow center that may hook over the large incisor teeth of the dog, it should not be given to the dog.

Chicken bones or other bones that may splinter should never be given to dogs. Bones that splinter easily may injure the dog's mouth as he chews on them or may cause internal injuries if swallowed. Small bones may choke the dog.

With proper precautions, bones can be a source of enjoyment for a dog for many hours.

Q. Our 8-year-old male boxer has developed a most embarrassing habit. The dog frequently passes gas from his rectum. This is quite annoying because we keep the dog inside a great deal of the time. Of course, it is quite embarrassing whenever we have guests.

What is causing this problem and how can we correct it?

Q. The condition which you described is called chronic intestinal flatulence. Intestinal flatulence is common in dogs, especially large dogs.

As you have stated, this problem can be quite annoying and embarrassing for dog owners.

There are many causes for chronic intestinal flatulence in dogs. Flatulence is indicative of excessive bacterial fermentation and putrefactive or digestive processes in the bowels of the dog. Many bacteria within the intestines act upon food to produce gas.

Foods high in carbohydrate content often produce excessive gas whenever digested. Potatoes, root vegetables, beans, cabbage, cauliflower, and onions also produce gas. Cereals, especially those in a cellular membrane which delays digestion until the cereal is in the intestinal tract, often produces excessive gas. Milk and candy often cause digestive upsets and subsequent gas formation.

Illnesses such as infection of the pancreas may also cause flatulence. The gulping of air may also be a factor in dogs that tend to eat their food too rapidly. Boxers often have this problem.

A thorough physical examination of your dog by your veterinarian should help determine the exact cause of this very annoying problem. Your veterinarian may suggest drugs to alter the pH of the dog's intestinal tract, antibiotics and changes in the diet.

The dog must be kept from getting into garbage cans, eating spoiled foods, and ingesting bones and foreign material. A high-quality, higher digestible diet is essential.

Your veterinarian can help outline a program to correct flatulence in your dog.
