Representative Norman F. Lent (R-East Rockaway) recently met with John Kary (center), Administrative Assistant, and Alfred Peck (right), Executive Director of Help-Aid-Direction, the only Vietnam Veterans counseling center located in Nassau County. Among the topics discussed were a variety of bills passed in this session of Congress augmenting existing veterans' benefits.

John Kary, blinded during his service in Vietnam, was hired under the Emergency Veterans' Job Training Act of 1983 as a counselor and coordinator of the Center's programs. The center offers veterans individual and family counseling, vocational, job search and medical assistance. Help-Aid-Direction is located in Hicksville.

'Trading Places' At Library

On Friday, September 28, at 8 p.m., the Hicksville Public Library will show the film, "Trading Places". Dan Aykroyd plays a snooty young blue-blood who runs a Philadelphia brokerage house, and Eddie Murphy plays a con man - beggar who disguises himself as a blind, legless Vietnam veteran. The two don't exactly trade places; they're traded, by a pair of heartless, rich old brothers (Ralph Bellamy and Don Ameche) who have made a heredity - versus - environment bet. The film comes to a rousing, slapstick finish with the younger guys rich and the old skinflints punished. This film will be shown in the Community Room. There is no charge for admission and everyone is invited.

Family Fair At Eisenhower

Help for the visually impaired will be offered by Help-Aid-Direction (HAD), a Hicksville community service, at Nassau County's Third Annual Family Fair, Eisenhower Park, Sept. 30, 10:30 a.m. - 4 p.m. These particular services are funded by the Town of Oyster Bay.

Visually impaired people and their families and friends are urged to visit the HAD booth. Visually impaired counselors will be available to discuss individual and family counseling and career direction.

HAD, a non-profit counseling service also is funded by the Nassau County Dept. of Drug and Alcohol Addiction to help people with drug and alcohol problems.

Community Mourns Elery Bean

Elery Bean

Elery Bean of Hicksville, a civic and educational leader for over forty-five years, died on Sunday from complications following heart surgery. Active until recently in community leadership as President of the Hicksville Public Library Board of Trustees and as a Trustee of the Hicksville Gregory Museum, Mr. Bean is well remembered as Director of the Adult Education Program of the Hicksville Public School District during the 'fifties and 'sixties.

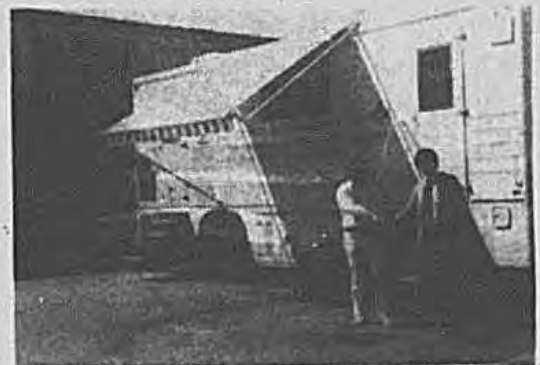

He was born in Elizabeth, New Jersey and came to Hicksville as a child, attending the local public schools. For over 50 years a member of the United Methodist Church, Mr. Bean's adult career embraced various aspects of adult training and education of the handicapped.

He served for close to twenty years as Director of Training for the Human Resources school for the handicapped at Albertson. In addition, he was a Vice-President of the American Society of Training and Development, an institute training men and women for executive leadership in business.

In Hicksville, Mr. Bean made significant contributions as a volunteer and elected trustee of the Public Library, working for many years to develop the building plant, staff and services of one of the finer Nassau libraries.

Mr. Bean is survived by his wife, Josephine. Funeral services were held on Thursday morning conducted by Pastor Richard Smeltzer.

The Family Medpractice, a community health facility, along with surrounding business groups in Hicksville collected twenty-six pints of blood, recently, from employees. Their units of blood were processed within hours of their donations and distributed to Long Island hospitals. From left to right: Mike Onietus, of the Family Medpractice, is congratulated by Stephen Brady, a Long Island Blood Services field representative, for his valuable efforts.

'Best Boy' Library Film

Saturday, September 29, at 8 p.m. the Hicksville Public Library will show the film, "Best Boy". "Best Boy" is a feature length documentary about a 52 year old mentally retarded man named Philly and his aged parents. The film follows Philly's long overdue progress toward independence - at school, at summer camp and finally to a residence for retarded adults - after spending almost all his life with his extremely protective parents. This film will be shown in the Community Room. There is no admission charged and everyone is welcome.

Last month, Hicksville High School's Marching Comets, under the direction of Dan DiStefano, spent 3 days at Band Camp in Honesdale, Pennsylvania. Above we see the band hard at work.

To the Editor:

I am a resident of Hicksville, and a parent of four children. I am disturbed over the Hicksville school systems, school bus transportation guidelines. The distance that the children of the Hicksville School district have to walk to school are much longer than other school districts on Long Island. I feel that the safety of our children is not being considered. It seems, everyday when I read the newspaper or listen to a news report, the report is of a missing child, abused child or an adolescent who has become the victim of a vicious crime. I feel that the students of the Hicksville School district, having to walk great distances to and from school, are vulnerable to these negative situations. Hicksville is a wonderful town, of which I'm proud to be a resident, but the unique fact of Hicksville, is that many transients work and commute in Hicksville. My concern is not so much of the residents of our community but of the people who are passing through. It is my belief that if the distances that our children have to walk to school were made shorter and a larger portion bussed, the chances of a tragedy happening would be lessened. This would also lessen the chances of a child being struck by a vehicle, while crossing a main intersection, walking to school. The baby boom is behind us, and many schools are over-staffed. Also, the Hicksville schools have abundant curriculums with many services available to students, with many elective programs available. If these were cut-back in these areas, we would have money to insure the safety of our children, by more additional busing. I feel the number one priority of the Board of Education, is to get our children to and from school safely.

I have written similar letters to Dr. Catherine Fenton, the Superintendent of the Hicksville Schools and the Department of Transportation of the Hicksville school system. They answered my letter and referred me to the Hicksville School Board. On August 10, I wrote a letter to Mr. William Bennett of the Hicksville School Board. I have yet to receive an answer.

I'm writing this letter to the Editor, hoping other concerned parents who feel as I do, would mail me a post card with their names, addresses and phone numbers, so we can organize to get changes for the safety of our children.

We must remember this is 1984 and we must deal with today's problems. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Thank you,
A concerned father
Albert Claccio

To the Editor:

The passing of the older generation of Hicksville leaders continued with the death this past week of Elerly Bean. A civic leader with strong educational and cultural interests, Elerly was a very fine gentleman who was admired by many and loved by his intimates.

He was characterized by near-unique qualities, as a physician attending him in his last gallant days remarked. Those privileged to know and serve with Elerly in community work would understand his special nature. As this writer and eight year associate with him at the Gregory Museum saw him, Elerly was a realist but one who guided his life by high principles and ethics. He was progressive as an educator and courageous as an administrator, but temperate in judgement and fiscally prudent.

Admirable was his balance as a man, so capable of leadership and yet ready to serve as a committee or board member. Many will recall fondly the large and excellent Adult Education Program he long directed for School District 17 during the 'fifties and 'sixties; others know of his two decades in Albertson or, more recently, his Presidency of the Hicksville Public Library Board.

But Elerly Bean could serve as a team member with equal readiness and effectiveness, as many will attest. His presence was marked by affability, courtesy, an absence of petty backbiting, freedom from the cynicism that demoralizes and a mature insight into community causes and leadership.

He leaves a considerable legacy to Hicksville in which he lived most of his 72 years. His long and close relationship with Director Ken Barnes helped to make the Hicksville Public Library the superior Nassau service it is.

I personally appreciate his years of service as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Hicksville Gregory Museum. He gave loyal support to his fellow trustees and to me, as Director, through all the problems of a difficult transitional period. His charming smile, that perpetual pipe in hand, his attentiveness as a listener, and the wit and economy of his remarks made his company so very pleasant, indeed.

In retirement, Elerly was vigorous almost to the end; he was playing some tennis in his late sixties until bothered by eye trouble. In recent years, he would stroll for miles on his daily jaunts through the village, so like the gentleman he was: genial; community-minded, without pretense or personal complaint.

A credit to his faith, a delightful companion, Elerly Bean was, indeed, an exemplar.

Richard Evers

To the Editor:

The Board of Trustees and staff of the Hicksville Public Library deeply regret the passing of Elerly H. Bean, Trustee of the Hicksville Public Library since 1955. As President of the Library Board for many years Mr. Bean displayed leadership and concern that was an example for the library staff and Board alike. He was very active on the Board serving as President for many years and was instrumental in planning and executing the library's two expansions. Elerly Bean served the community in a variety of ways, as a Trustee of the United Methodist Church of Hicksville, head of the Adult Education Program in the Hicksville School System during the 1950's and Trustee of the Gregory Museum since 1978. Wherever he served he impressed his colleagues with his dedication and keen sense of responsibility. He loved the community of Hicksville, where he lived since 1919 and he will be sorely missed by a whole host of friends.

Sincerely,
Clara Bennett, President
Board of Trustees

To the Editor:

In the September 14, Mid-Island Times I noticed that the Junior High School, had 1394 students and the Senior High School had 1598 students. I understand that the Junior High School has one assistant principal for that difficult age group and the Senior High School has three assistant principals.

This makes little sense to me. Does anyone know why this was done?

Yours truly,
A. Mack

Three Arrested In Vodka Heist

Three youths with a taste for Vodka have been arrested by the Eighth precinct with the help of the fact that the brand they like can only be found in one place.

Police Officers Charles Seich and Kenny Meyer responding to a report of disorderly youths drinking, found a group standing around a vehicle and a bottle of Vladiver Vodka lying on the ground. Earlier in the evening the officers knew their had been a Burglary at Jolly Roger Liquor, 4111 Hempstead Turnpike, Bethpage, in which the front window had been broken and three bottles of Vladiver Vodka (a store brand) had been stolen. Some of the youths had run away, but two were brought to the Eighth Precinct where after an investigation by the Eighth Squad three were arrested and charged with Burglary Third Degree.

Bike A Thon To Fight Drugs

On Sunday, October 7, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., People, the Bethpage Adolescent Development Association, will join other community agencies at Eisenhower Park for the first annual Bike-A-Thon to raise funds to fight drug abuse in Nassau County.

The People organization has been providing drug abuse treatment and youth and family counseling services to Bethpage and surrounding communities for over ten years. During this time, the agency has assisted hundreds of adolescents and young adults in overcoming drug dependencies, emotional problems and delinquent patterns of behavior.

For the past several years, People has been faced with serious financial problems. Government cut-backs and escalating program costs have placed the continued existence of People in severe jeopardy. The Bike-A-Thon of October 7 is an attempt on the part of People and its co-members of the Joint Coalition of Community Service Agencies of Nassau County to provide a means toward raising the funds needed to continue the important work being done to fight drug abuse in the community of Bethpage.

In order to accomplish this task, People is seeking the aid of the concerned citizens of Bethpage. Cyclists and sponsors are needed to make this event a success. Tee shirts and valuable prizes will be awarded to those cyclists bringing in the most amounts of money from their efforts on October 7. Everyone is requested to support this event and to help this worthwhile cause.

For sponsor sheets, details and information, call 433-5344 Monday through Friday from 12 Noon to 10 p.m.

ARMY. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

Our Children

A guide to prevent abduction

By Willard Abraham
Ph.D.

Q. We often read those scary stories about the abduction of children, and they worry me to death about ours. They are little, just 4 and 6 years old, and not at all aware of what can happen to them.

A. I don't want to worry them unnecessarily, but I do hope I can teach them to be cautious with strangers.

Can you give me some help with this problem?

A. The most useful source I have seen recently is a brochure written by Ken Wooden who started an organization called National Coalition for Children's Justice. The title is Child Lures: A Guide to Prevent Abduction.

It lists nine lures (and suggestions for their prevention): Affection/love; assistance; authority; bribery; ego/fame; emergency; games and fun; jobs; threats/fear.

You can secure a copy of it by sending your mailing address and $1 to Child Lures, Ralston Purina Co., Breakfast Food Division, Checkerboard Square, St. Louis, MO 63164.

Q. Our 20-year-old son is away at college, but when he comes for weekends he sometimes brings his girlfriend with him. (I'll bet you know the problem before I tell you!)

We have a lovely guest room, and I always have it prepared for her — clean sheets, flowers, lamp, radio.

He tells me that since we have no control over what he does when he's away it's hypocritical of us to make it so apparent that they are not to sleep together in our house. Yes, as you can imagine, he calls us "square."

My opinion is that this is my house, and as long as it is, he'll behave in it as I want him to.

Am I being too narrow-minded? What do other parents do in this situation? I've always had a close relationship with my son, and I don't want us to get upset with each other over this situation.

A. I tend to agree with you, but perhaps that's because we've been involved in a similar matter and I see it from a parent's point of view.

Although your position seems valid, I, too, would like to hear what other parents think about it. The reactions of young people themselves also might be revealing.

Q. My 2-year-old is very active, sometimes to the point that I lose my temper and can't stand it anymore. My husband says he has the answer: coffee. He read somewhere that it can be very helpful in toning down hyperactivity.

What's your opinion in this matter?

A. Three reactions: 1) It may be helpful, but the research in this area is still incomplete; 2) 2-year-olds often are quite active, but that doesn't necessarily mean they are "hyperactive;" 3) you might want to get an objective, professional opinion because it is so difficult for most parents to evaluate their children fairly.

Your family physician could be the right person to talk to about your youngster.

Your Social Security

First wife also may collect benefits

Q. My young daughter and I are receiving benefits on my deceased husband's Social Security number. He had one marriage prior to ours. Can his former wife receive on his record also? — G.L.

A. It is possible that she also could be entitled on your deceased husband's account provided she is unmarried, is age 60 and was married to the deceased 10 years or more.

Q. I retired May 1 at age 65. At that time I had already earned $6,000. Now my former employer wants me to return to work. If I do go back to work I'll earn over the exempt amount. Should I notify Social Security now? — S.T.

A. You should report the expected change in earnings at once to your local Social Security office. This can be done by telephone, mail or in person, whichever you prefer.

Q. My wife died Oct. 4, 1983. Last month when I became 60 I inquired about widower's benefits on my deceased wife's Social Security and was told I couldn't collect because I retired from the federal government and was drawing a pension. Is this true? J.W.R.

A. Yes. The Social Security amount you would be entitled to as a widower would be offset or reduced by two-thirds of your government pension.

Q. My former husband, to whom I was married to for 14 years, is still working. I understand that the law was changed so that you can receive a wife's benefit even if your former husband is still working. Is this true? — A.B.

A. Beginning January 1985, the divorced spouse of an eligible worker can be entitled even if the worker delays retirement provided that both are of retirement age. You must have been divorced not less than two years.

New advances in diabetes treatment

By Shirley Bright Boody
Registered Dietitian

People who have diabetes are treated in dramatically different ways than they were as recently as a decade ago.

What's so different? New ideas in the use of simple and complex carbohydrates, high-fiber diets, new insulin delivery systems and exercise can combine to make the life of today's diabetic vastly more flexible.

The use of carbohydrates is now broader. The common belief was that there are just the two major classifications: simple (sugars) and complex (starches), and that diabetics who are concerned with fluctuations in their blood sugar levels must avoid the sugars, and use only the starches. These ideas were so widely accepted that very few researchers ever studied them or tested their validity.

However, new studies have shown that there is a whole spectrum of blood sugar responses to foods that overlap so much in the "sugars" and "starches" groups, that they cannot be distinguished as separate. For example: potatoes and bread (starches) elicit a similar blood sugar rise to glucose (sugar), yet rice, beans and lentils (starches) do not cause such rises. Fructose (a sugar) does not cause a rise in blood sugar as do other sugars.

These different metabolic responses to both simple and complex carbohydrates now seem to be largely related to the digestibility of the starch component of the food, which is probably influenced by a variety of factors unique to the individual food.

The content of fat, sugar and fiber, and enzyme inhibitors, as well as the form of the food, seems to affect the blood sugar levels.

In addition, the food processing, handling and preparation have been shown to have an effect upon the body's response.

Rice flour produces a much greater glucose and insulin response than plain whole rice. Pureed apples cause a bigger rise in insulin than whole apples, and wheat in the form of bread causes a greater rise in blood sugar than wheat in pasta. This means that just changing one factor, the form of the food by cooking or processing, can actually alter the body's response to it.

At present there are no specific analyses that can predict with any certainty the actual physiologic response (the fluctuation of blood sugar and insulin levels) to the digestion of different foods. In fact, some starchy foods seem to release their carbohydrate digestion products more slowly than other starchy foods. There is always the possibility that the individual reactions may vary, and the self-monitoring of blood glucose levels now makes it possible for diabetic people to evaluate their own reactions to specific foods.

In general, higher-carbohydrate diets are being used today, but the emphasis is on those that are high in fiber, are minimally processed and legumes (peas, beans, lentils) are recommended.

One study reported in the New England Journal of Medicine in 1983 showed that glucose and sucrose (table sugar) when taken within a meal did not cause any greater rise in blood sugar than did the complex carbohydrates with which it was being compared. On the face of this, it seemed that diabetics could eat ice cream or other sweets with meals without worrying about it. However, I would strongly recommend that no diabetic person make any such changes on their own, or without the advice of their physician.

Increased fiber in the diet seems to have some benefits for diabetics. In some studies, blood sugar levels and insulin responses were improved when guar gum or pectin were added. High-fiber diets (about 50 milligrams per day) allowed some people to decrease or discontinue insulin or oral drug therapies in recent studies. Such diets also have decreased cholesterol and blood fat levels.

Before adopting such a high-fiber diet for whatever reason, remember that there are some possible negative side effects. Diarrhea, flatulence and abdominal fullness may occur. However, they are apt to decrease in time.

More serious are the potential vitamin and mineral deficiencies that may occur because the high fiber decreases the absorption or increases the excretion of calcium, iron, zinc, magnesium and folate. Again, the diabetic person is well advised not to make significant diet changes without medical supervision.

Exercise, on a regular basis, is known to lower blood sugar levels and decreases insulin requirements in insulin-dependent people. Caution is advised when diabetics embark upon an exercise program because of the high incidence of "silent" cardiovascular disease. Another potential problem may be an exercise-induced drop in blood sugar. Jogging or other exercises that may injure the feet or eyes should be discouraged.

New, improved insulin delivery systems have been developed. One is intensive conventional therapy that involves frequent insulin injections based on the home serum glucose monitoring. Another is a battery-powered pump that provides a continuous subcutaneous or intravenous insulin delivery to insulin-dependent individuals.

While new advances in the treatment of diabetes are extremely encouraging, it must be remembered that it is a serious disease that can neither be ignored nor taken lightly.

Backyard Gardener

Storing veggies for winter

By Patrick Denton

In these days of prepackaged, super-sanitized, instant and ultra-refined pseudo-foods, we who use our containers and garden plots to grow whole, living food for our families do indeed merit a little special consideration. Certainly it's a happy time of the year for vegetable gardeners.

Because potatoes are one of our family's most cherished crops, we dig and store them with care. Potatoes for storage should be dug when their tops have died back. This is an important point for good storage, for the tubers must have matured fully and their skins ripened off.

Care in digging the potatoes also is important, as bruised or pierced tubers will not only keep, but they will be a source of spoilage to the potatoes stored with them. Any damaged ones should be removed to the kitchen for use as soon as possible.

After they are dug, the potatoes should be placed out of the sun but in a dry spot until their skins are dry and free of soil. Then they are ready to store. I can't tell you exactly where in your house or yard to store your potatoes, but I can describe for you the ideal conditions for good storage so that you can match those conditions as closely as possible with some likely spot — a cool basement room perhaps, a frost-free garage, a crawl space.

Potatoes in storage need a cool spot above freezing. Around 40 F is ideal. If allowed to drop too close to freezing, the tubers tend to take on a most undesirable sweetening.

The storage area must be dark, since light will promote both greening and sprouting. Humidity in the air should be high, around 90 percent. And since good air circulation around the tubers is very important, using slatted boxes really is best. If you are using bags or sacks, avoid piling the potatoes high, perhaps by filling a sack just half full and laying it on its side.

Under ideal conditions, storage potatoes should keep for five to six months. But as with all stored garden produce, they should be checked periodically during the storage season for signs of spoilage or sprouting.

After potatoes, our second main storage item is onions. As with the potatoes, onions for storage must be harvested when fully mature — that is, when the tops have flattened and withered.

Onions, too, need a period of drying. I place ours in shallow boxes in the sun, turning them frequently over a period of about 10 days to dry each bulb evenly. As with the potatoes, any damaged onions are removed to the kitchen for immediate use, along with any whose tops or "necks" have not fully withered.

The drying, or curing, process is complete when all bulb surfaces are completely dry and they rustle when you pass your hand over them. Then they are ready to store. The key conditions for good storage are cool, dry and dark, along with good air circulation.

I braid the ones with the strongest dried tops, and store the rest in shallow layers in bags and boxes in the coldest room of the house. A cool room in the basement is quite satisfactory as long as the onions can be kept dry and dark.

Let the beets for storage mature in the ground for as long as possible but do lift them before freezing weather. Brush the soil from them and trim or twist off the leaf stalks. Any damaged roots should be set aside for early use and not stored with the others.

Root vegetables like beets, carrots and parsnips may be kept in plastic bags in the refrigerator, or stored close to but above freezing buried in some medium that can be kept damp. Clean, slightly damp sand is probably the best. Just layer the roots with sand in the container, beginning and ending with a layer of sand. The sand may have to be sprinkled occasionally with water should it begin to dry.

National Merit Semi Finalist Winners

High School Winners have been announced in the National Merit Semifinals by the National Merit Corp.

The Merit Program is conducted by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (MNSC), an independent privately sponsored organization, which was established in 1955 to honor academic excellence. Each year over a million high school juniors take the qualifying test for the Merit Scholarship for college undergraduate study. Of these, about 15,000 semi-finalists continue on to the final competitions. Approximately 5,500 of these will be awarded Merit Scholarships in 1985, worth over twenty million dollars.

I'm catching a cold. You can avoid it.

How?

Strengthen your immune system and it will do what nature intended it to do—kill off the invading viruses.

How do I strengthen my immune system?

Relaxation and a happy frame of mind.

It's hard for me to relax when I'm not happy.

Pretend you are happy.

Pretending won't solve my problems.

What will?

Nothing at the moment, but catching a cold gives me an excuse for not facing them.

"At the rate I was going, in ten years I'd have about $2000 saved."

I have a pretty good job. I've never been out of work. I've received regular promotions. The only thing I've never been able to do is save money.

One day I overheard my secretary talking about how much she'd saved buying U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. I was astounded.

Then I looked at my bankbook. I figured out how much my average yearly savings had been since I'd been working. And I almost cried. At the rate I was going, in ten years I'd have about $2000 saved.

Oh, some years I'd save three or four hundred (nine hundred one year), but it didn't last long. Something would always come up and I'd take it out and spend it. I always figured one of these days I'd bear down and build up a nest egg.

Since nothing else seemed to work, I decided to give the Payroll Savings Plan a try. I should be able to save as much as my secretary. If it worked for her it should work for me.

It turned out to be very easy. They take a little out of each paycheck toward Bonds, so that's a portion of your pay you're not tempted to spend. Not only is it easy but it's safe. The Bonds are piling up and so is the interest. And, by the way, the interest is guaranteed.

I never thought much about Bonds before but it's hard to find a better return on such a small, initial outlay.

When I get enough saved I may look into other things. But as for right now, it's the best, easiest way I know of to save. Actually, it's the only way that works for me.

I started late, but better late than never.

Hicksville resident Claudette Clark (right), a freshman at St. Michael's College in Winooski, Vt., is shown above with her parents moving into her room in Lyons Hall September 1. Clark was among 516 new students chosen from the largest number of applicants in the college's history to attend the Catholic, liberal arts and sciences institution in northern Vermont. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clark of 28 Chance Street, Hicksville. Clark, her classmates and 59 transfer students were welcomed to the college in a special four-day orientation program September 1-4. The "Welcome Aboard" program provided a variety of social, educational, athletic and cultural activities designed to familiarize students with one another, with St. Michael's and the surrounding area, and with the vast resources available to them on campus. Clark, a graduate of Holy Trinity High School in Hicksville, will concentrate her studies in biochemistry while at St. Michael's. Classes for all students began September 5. Saint Michael's College, founded in 1903 and headed by President Edward L. Henry, is Vermont's largest Catholic, liberal arts and sciences institution. Located in Winooski, the four-year, co-educational college has an enrollment of 1,600 undergraduate and some 500 graduate and international Student Program students.

The Hicksville teachers are once again working without a contract. On Thursday, September 13, Tom Carey, State Mediator, came to the School District in an effort to get each side to work towards a resolution of the problem. The teachers turned out in record numbers, estimated at 90% of the total staff, to picket at the Administration Building during the meeting with Mr. Carey. When asked to comment about negotiations, President Zaleski said, "The Hicksville Congress of Teachers is committed to offer some movement of all outstanding issues. It awaits the same commitment from the School District." A mediation session has been scheduled for Thursday, September 20.

Board Members Attend Seminars

Hicksville Board of Education members have begun the school year by participating in state sponsored seminars to improve and expand their skills as board members.

Lawrence A. Moor and Daniel C. MacBride attended a seminar for new members on September 8 and 9 in Albany which addressed such issues as school finance, legislation, and employee relations. Also on the weekend's agenda were group discussions and case studies of school board situations.

Board President William P. Bennett and Vice President Arlene J. Rudin were among the nearly 200 persons attending the Eleventh Annual Leadership Workshop, also sponsored by the New York State Boards Association (NYSSBA), in Albany on September 14 and 15.

The workshop opened with a welcome from NYSSBA President Grace McIver, followed by a "Cracker Barrel" session led by State Education Department Counsel Robert Stone. Topics included "whistleblower" legislation and the relationship between discipline and grading policies in the public schools. Participants also viewed a film titled "Board Action", which focused on the relationship between the school board and the superintendent as well as their roles and functions. A discussion about the ideas presented followed.

Principal topics covered at the workshop sessions included parliamentary procedures, working with disruptive individuals, policy issues and working with the press. Workshop leaders included Dr. James Grissinger of Otterbein College; Peter Huyler, past president of NYSSBA; Ed Dague, Editor of WNYT Television in Albany; and William Stevens of the United Press International in Albany.

'Sweeney Todd' At Beth Library

Stephen Sondheim's "Sweeney Todd", the smash hit of the 1979 Broadway season, is being presented in an exciting new production, directed by Harold Prince, by the New York City Opera. The Bethpage Public Library is offering a bus trip to Lincoln Center for a performance of "Sweeney Todd", on Saturday, November 17. Sondheim's award-winning music drama has been hailed as "total theater, a brilliant conception and a shattering experience." He has taken the gruesome tale of a demon barber seeking revenge - which has its origins in the medieval French legend and which became a favorite of Victorian audiences delighting in bloodcurdling melodramas and fashioned around it an endlessly inventive, highly expressive musical score with brilliant and abrasive lyrics. The New York Times called "Sweeney Todd", "an extraordinary, fascinating, and often ravishingly lovely effort". Douglas Watt concluded his Daily News review with, "Joy to the world, dear children! Sweeney Todd is here to enrich your nightmares. A triumphant occasion, indeed!"

The schedule for the Bethpage Public Library bus trip is as follows: the bus will leave from in front of the library promptly at 3:30 p.m. There will be ample time for dinner at any of several restaurants in the area (ask for a list of suggested dining spots when you register) before the 8 p.m. performance. The bus will leave shortly after the performance. The bus will leave shortly after the performance ends, arriving back in Bethpage by about 11:45 p.m.

Registration is $26.25 per person, which includes seating in the Third Ring (box-office price, $20.) and round-trip transportation on motor coach. Register at the library, or mail check, payable to: Bethpage Public Library, to the Library, at 47 Powell Avenue, Bethpage, N.Y. 11714 (please include day/evening phone number). The deadline for registration is Tuesday, October 16 - registration cannot be accepted after noon on that date. To avoid disappointment, early registration is suggested.

Parola Visits Bethpage GOP

New York State Assemblyman Frederick E. Parola (R-14th A.D.) addressed a "standing room only" crowd at the most recent meeting of the Theodore Roosevelt Republican Club of Bethpage, held on September 10th.

Assemblyman Parola, whose district includes the western half of the community, spoke about many issues currently before the State Legislature. He particularly discussed his efforts in drafting a bill that will provide property tax relief for homeowners, and emphasized that he will do all that is possible to see to its passage. Assemblyman Parola explained that a tax cut by the State is very feasible because of the budget surplus it currently is operating with.

George Yochmann, Executive Leader of the Bethpage GOP Organization, presented Club Members Sibyl Hagan and Mina Narucki each with a "Certificate of Award" for their exemplary effort in researching and preparing a written account of the Club's history. The report was presented at the Club's May meeting, together with a display of old news articles and Club memorabilia, dating back to its formation in 1920.

The meeting ended with a surprise Birthday Party, as Leader George Yochmann (b. 9/10/0) was presented with a big birthday cake by his wife, Dorothy. After George blew out the question-mark shaped candle that rested atop the cake and cut the first piece, Club President Kevin Galloway adjourned the meeting so that everyone could join in celebrating George's day... and feast upon the sumptuous cake to top off the evening!

Hicksville Rotarians were treated to an interesting talk on varied subjects and experiences of guest speaker Mr. Hasso Moeller, a prominent businessman from Mannheim, West Germany. The occasion was his visit to his family in the United States which includes his son-in-law William Heyday who is a Hicksville Rotarian. Shown above, left to right are Rotarian Heyday, Mr. Moeller and club president Harry Feltz presenting the club's certificate of appreciation.

With the help of her coordinators, Gold has been conducting walk-throughs of her district in an attempt to meet as many constituents as possible before the November 6 election.

Quality Or Quantity?

When you advertise in a subscription newspaper you get quality readership. You know that EVERY copy of the newspaper has been invited into the home and three to four people will most likely read it.

When you buy quantity the only thing you might be sure of is that it has been hung on door knobs or thrown on lawns all over the neighborhood.

With our newspapers YOU ONLY PAY FOR COPIES that will be read. It is this quality that produces results. Do not waste money on wasted copies. Advertise here and get results.

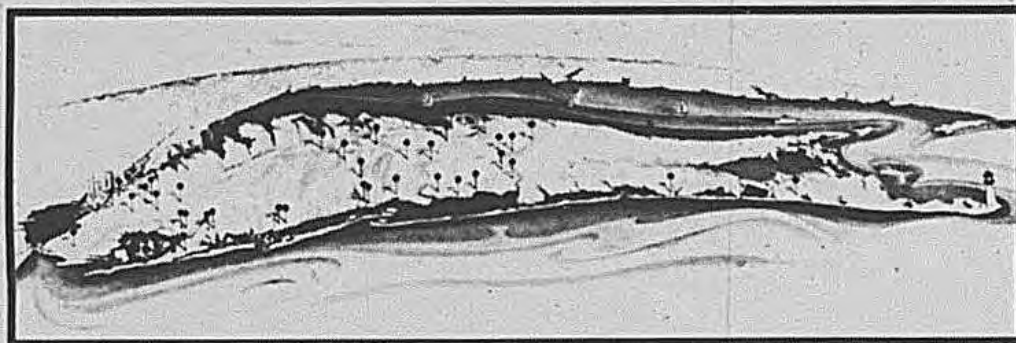

Our (not so secret) ingredient
Readers = Results is the reason we are preferred over the largest metropolitan newspapers and the many throwaways.

Mixed Reaction To Use Of Lie Detectors For Jobs

There were mixed answers to this question: "Do you think applicants should be obliged to take lie detector tests to gain employment?" Here are some of the answers:

AGAINST DETECTORS

No. I think this is an infringement on civil rights for some employers such as drug stores and banks to make prospective employees take these tests. The fact is that lie detectors have been proven to be unreliable in tests and no court accepts this information. It should be against the law for employers to demand this information. J.Y.

INTRUSION

I was very surprised to find that certain drug chains on L.I. were requiring this type of thing to be forced on applicants for jobs. In fact I have decided that I will not patronize stores that use this form of intrusion on people who are simply seeking honest employment. I hope others will follow suit. L.J.

ON WAY

It is all right to use a lie detector test because it is only one way of checking on a person being hired. If the test did not come out perfect it probably would be set aside if there was no other evidence to substantiate the lie detector report. F.R.

SHOULD STOP

I am fully against lie detectors with their lack of reliability being used by force on people who are trying to get a job. In fact I believe that a monetary penalty should be invoked on business places using these tests who reject someone for failing it or refusing to take it. Many of these employers will do whatever they wish if no one stops them. L.W.

BETTER WAYS

People who have something to hide will not want to take a lie detector test that is for sure. But shouldn't the employer have some better information than just this testing machine that has been ruled not eligible for court cases. Because after all a job might be extremely important to someone rejected. So why do we allow it? K.R.

USE SPARINGLY

I would have no objection to having a lie detector test on myself but I have heard of some people who have a certain personality which works against a lie detector and therefore the answers are not reliable. This machine should be used very sparingly. L.E.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

The normal procedure is to obtain confidential reports from previous employers of an applicant as well as references from educational institutions. That plus the expert analysis of the personnel director in examining the individual's personal dossier and in head-to-head interrogation should be enough for a character rating. Perhaps a lie detector test might be added as an extra precaution in the case of highly sensitive or classified work but from what I have read, it is not an exact science and perhaps not even admissible in court as evidence. Many years ago, in my relations with a Dutch firm which I held in high regard, I learned that it was always their custom to have the applicant's handwriting analyzed by a graphologist. The company had excellent results from this procedure and it avoided the obvious shortcomings associated with direct confrontation. Frankly, people responsible for an organization's human resources should be sufficiently qualified to make reliable analyses and to insure proper handling of whatever responsibility may be involved. I see no reason to lessen the pressure of that responsibility. P.G.S.

PAST ISSUES

EQUALITY FOR WOMEN

The day has arrived when American women may come into their own potential, and achieve the equality they have for such a long while struggled and yearned for. The upcoming national election provides the forum and opportunity for every woman to vote herself that part of America she has so long been denied. There may be some prerequisites and if there are, the first to be considered would certainly be registration. Since America has finally realized the potential of its women and provided a woman candidate for high office in our great land, with all this strength we can turn opportunity into success on polling day. Geraldine Ferraro came up the hard way, the American way. Even as a child, after school, helping her widowed mother make ends meet, then to night school and after graduation continued education to become a teacher. Then more studies to become a successful lawyer, then to Congress and now candidate for the high office of Vice President of this great country. That's experience and qualification too. That's Geraldine Ferraro. Some persons say she's liberal. Isn't that astounding. She's a liberal and has done such good work up to now, so I would like to be a liberal and have her accomplishments behind me. We certainly need a kind heart in Washington and the polling booth is the high road to equality. Let us use it. T.B.B.

Grandma Remembers

By Marjorie Wolfe

When vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro and Gov. Mario Cuomo spoke of their immigrant roots, it struck a responsive chord in millions of Americans. The Great Hall of Ellis Island will begin a $128 million renovation. From its opening in 1892 to its closing in 1954, Ellis Island processed more than 17 million newcomers. Lillian Fogel was one of them.

Lillian, 84-year-old mother of Rabbi Daniel Fogel, of Syosset, New York, landed at Castle Garden on July 4, 1923. Her self-published book, "My Journey to a Golden Land," is told in a series of heartwarming anecdotes and observations. It covers her life from her "khalner" (small) shtetl in Samotevich, Russia, to the present, and is a vivid portrait of one grandmother's desire to share her family "roots" with her loved ones.

Excerpts from the books are shown below:

•A great writer I am not. I started to write for my grandchildren. Children and grandchildren are anxious to know their heritage....My advice, especially for grandmothers, is to start to write for your children. It will give them the best gift of all.

•I was born in a clayn (little) shtetl in Samotevich, Russia. Samotevich had about 500 families.

•Our own family consisted of six brothers and two sisters. I was the third born child, with two brothers born before me. Parents were not the happiest when a girl was born because it was harder; you had to start as soon as possible to save for her dowry. But when a boy was born, there was rejoicing.

•A typical dowry was about 300 rubles. With that sum of money one was able to open a little store in the main business district.

•Samotevich was a very pretty village. The houses were made from logs and had straw roofs. We had one synagogue--orthodox. My father was the main "hazen." Our shtetl had a bathhouse. The men used it on Friday; the women, on Wednesday. The price for getting into the bathhouse was three kopecks for adults and one kopek for children.

•Winter in Russia usually began around the first of November and was so severe. The snow stayed for 6 months and some of it was never removed during the duration of the winter.

•The "chedar" was held in our home--and in other homes. Children from three to fifteen were given religious training by a Rebe.

•In addition to raising nine children, my mother, Zipa Chafkin, worked fifteen hours a day to help my father provide for the family. The business included leasing seven acres of land from rich landowners and cultivating and planting all kinds of vegetables. My family would then sell the vegetables to the peasants and to the people from the shtetl.

•In 1914, when the war broke out, life changed drastically. My oldest two brothers, Max and Sam, had left for the United States to escape the Czarist military service. We stopped getting mail from them. Murders were being committed every day--all over Russia--and in our shtetl....gangs of bandits were everywhere, especially in the villages. People were moving to safer communities. I was twenty years old and considered one of the beautiful girls in the shtetl.

•When the monstrous Revolution began in 1917, they took away the little that my parents possessed. It was called "speculating." Anyone caught with the smallest amount of goods of any kind would be sent to a labor camp.

•During the winter of 1920, I was fortunate to get a teaching job. My salary was not paid in money. Once a month I received 40 pounds of flour, one pound of kerosene and enough material for a coat. I made a long blue coat....and the whole world was mine. The coat lasted until I came to the U.S. I received a pair of shoes annually.

•At the end of 1921, the emigration restrictions to the United States were lifted and my brothers started to send letters and affidavits for us to come to the States. At last my mother could see her beloved children.

•It looks as if I am now becoming one of the wandering Jews--running all over the country getting permission to leave. The first step in preparing to leave Russia was to get a birth certificate. In our shtetl we never had anything like a registration. We had a Jewish magistrate, who was called a "starosta." Moische Bar made out the certificates in order to get the visas. Another one of the requirements was for my parents to have eye examinations. We traveled by horse and buggy for three days.

•In the summer of 1923 we started to prepare for the voyage to the U.S. We sold our house for 350 rubles. We also sold some of our furniture and gave the rest of it away. The potatoes and the flour were given to some of our relatives. On our trip to Moscow we carried the chicken fat in gallon jugs. We baked 100 pounds of bread, sliced it, and carried it in sacks.

•We arrived in Riga and a committee of kind people from HIAS (Hebrew Immigration Aid Society) took us to one of their hotels.

•We paid $200 for the visas and made the journey to Lubova. The HIAS people again met us at the station. Imagine our dismay to find out from the U.S. Embassy that the Russian emigration quota was filled and would be closed until July 4, 1923. We would be stranded for six months. Our money was gone and we had to ask my brothers for help.

•At last, on June 19, 1923, we were able to board a huge boat, the Polonia. Before boarding, the HIAS people took us to a bathhouse and gave us a steam treatment. Even our clothes were steamed to protect us from lice. We traveled third class and it was not comfortable. The cabins were small and crowded.

•Hurray! The Polonia landed in the U.S. on July 4, 1923, and the immigrants were received at Castle Garden. It was the last walk to reach the gates of freedom. Inside Castle Garden we entered a massive hall and broke into dozens of lines, each divided by metal railings. There they put a big white chalk mark on my shoulders and took me out of the family line. Others needing further medical checking were marked "H" for heart, "K", hernia, "SC" for scalp, and "x" for mental defects. What a heartbreak not knowing where the inspector was taking you. I knew that this was a place where families were separated because of minor medical and physical conditions. An official took me to a room on the upper floor and closed the door behind me. I waited about five hours and worried about what was happening to my family. A nice girl came in, handed me a Russian book, and told me to read. How amazed she was to see how well I read. She said she thought I was illiterate because I failed to answer questions asked of me. My mind must have been on my father's physical exam; I was hoping that he would pass it.

•I was overjoyed. We were on our way to being reunited with our loved ones. How can I describe the happiness at seeing my brothers? Can you imagine how my parents felt after not seeing their sons for 10 years?

•After the war and the Revolution in Russia, we were finally at the entrance to the "goldeneh medinah" (Golden Medina)--where the streets were paved with gold. All of our relatives and friends were standing and waiting at the gates of Castle Garden--waiting to welcome us to the land of freedom and opportunity. What a reunion!

GROWN BETTER

Wiegel's Place at 100 Herricks Road in Mineola is a restaurant tavern that has grown better with time. This restaurant is one that we visited back when it first opened. It was nice then featuring its wood paneled interior and good service.

As time has gone by it has become a favorite of ours for lunch. It is a place you can always count on for good service and either a full meal or a lunch. It is a tavern like setting, but the bar does not intrude on the rest of the restaurant. It is a place many of your readers would enjoy and we want to pass on the endorsement. J.E.

CHARMING EXPERIENCE

The San Remo is a new small restaurant on Old Country Road, Westbury. We went there last night and found it to be a charming, cozy experience.

San Remo features Italian cuisine presented in delicious style. We had the fish special at San Remo which consists of lobster, squid, mussels and several other marine delicacies. The dinner was wonderful. It started with a mixed green salad that presented all of the delicious greens imaginable in a fine Italian dressing.

The attentive and helpful spirit of the staff makes a dinner at San Remo an unrushed wonderful event. We recommend it highly to your readers.

READER RATINGS

If you have questions about etiquette or dining out you may call them into WE 1-0027 and we will find the answer.

Is it ever correct to have one's elbows on the table when one is eating? I was brought up to think it is not. J.P.

It is not correct to put one's elbows on the table when one is eating but it is permissible to rest them on the table between courses.

Is it proper to apply lipstick at the dinner table? W.C.

You don't do it in anyone's home. You may, however, apply lipstick and a dab of powder at a restaurant table. If you are traveling abroad, applying cosmetics at a restaurant table is often considered gauche. If you are with a party of Americans, on the other hand, you may wish to follow your own custom in the matter. It is wise to be discreet.

When you're at someone's house for dinner and you're standing around the table, who sits down first?

Wait until the hostess sits. If she's busy bringing in things from the kitchen, she'll motion the guests to sit down without her, or else the host will tell everyone to be seated.

If you're at a large buffet party and people are taking a long time to be served and seated, you don't have to remain standing at your little table. Sit down - and you may also begin eating, while the food is hot. If your hostess should suddenly arrive to sit at your particular table, the men should either rise or make a motion of rising out of courtesy. Usually the hostess will take her seat so quickly the men won't have the time to get up to help.

When do you begin eating at a large seated dinner?

Usually, when you are served. At a large dinner party, the hosts want their food enjoyed at its best moment - when it is piping hot. Usually the hostess will urge the people on her right, who have already been served, to start eating at once.

A young person should not begin eating until the adults around him do. In many families, there's often a rule that no one begins to eat until the parents are served and begin to eat themselves. This is good training.

Should a clergyman who's a guest in one's home be asked to bless the food before anyone eats, or does that embarrass him?

Invite the clergyman to bless the food as you approach the table. Everyone should remain standing until the blessing is finished.

UNANIMOUS
Being Italian myself, I am sometimes hard to please at the many Italian Restaurants that have sprung up all over. Last week we went to the LaCisterna Restaurant in Mineola. Our party tried out many things and I can truthfully say everyone was complimentary about the food, which included tender veal, fettucine matricana and excellent pasta. The salads were also fine with very fresh ingredients. There were six of us for dinner last week and it was unanimous that they told me to call and recommend LaCisterna. A.DIP

FIRST CLASS
Pappas Restaurant in Williston Park is a first class restaurant. It has the freshest seafood you can find. We went there last Thursday night and found that they had wonderful broiled shrimp and the best bluefish that can be found. The way the restaurant has been furnished with its beautiful wooden floors and nautical decor make it a credit to the area. The restaurant is large, light and a delight. The food is great and to top everything off it is moderately priced. We recommend that you tell your readers not to miss this great place. R.K.

Cooking Corner

Crepes for all occasions

By Olivia and Paul Bensen

In France, crepes are truly a food for all occasions, and can be anything from a fast-food snack to an elaborate gourmet creation. Parisians can stop at any hour of the day or night and buy a crepe wrapped in paper from one of the many street corner carts where crepe makers toss the light-as-air pancakes in cast-iron pans — or they can step into a three-star restaurant to sample elegant seafood crepes served flaming in a copper chafing dish.

A food that plays such an important role in a nation's cuisine naturally figures in its folklore, as well. It is a traditional belief in France that if you toss a crepe on New Year's Day while holding a coin in your hand, your wealth will multiply each day of the coming year. On Candlemas (Feb. 2), if you count the stars in the sky while tossing a crepe, you will find the same number of eggs in your henhouse the next morning. Good luck is supposed to follow if you give the last crepe of the batch, made from the final bit of batter, to the family dog.

Crepes are very easy to make, and need only three basic ingredients — eggs, flour and milk. Depending on your choice of fillings, they can become an elegant entree or an unusual dessert. Dessert crepes often have a bit of brandy, rum or liqueur in the batter to complement their sweet filling. Both dinner and dessert crepes should be paper thin and very light.

At one time, crepe pans had handles a yard or more long for use over an open hearth. Today, the standard handle length is 7 to 8 inches, and the pan itself usually measures 9 inches across the rim. You can make crepes without a special pan, though — all you need is a well-seasoned frying pan of suitable size that is heavy enough to distribute heat evenly and light enough to handle easily. We have had good success using pans with a non-stick coating such as Teflon, but many purists feel that only cast-iron pans produce perfect crepes.

A little organization can make your crepe-making go much more smoothly. Before your first crepe goes in the pan, you need to have close at hand a metal spatula, a small bowl of melted butter or oil and a plate for the finished crepes. Heat the pan over medium-high heat, coat it lightly with melted butter or oil and pour off any excess. Heat the pan again and drop in a few drops of the batter. If they do not sizzle immediately, increase the heat a bit.

Pour into the pan enough batter to barely cover the bottom — so that the crepe will be very thin. As you pour in the batter, swirl the pan, shaking it at the same time, so the batter coats the bottom of the pan evenly. This "swirl-and-shake" motion takes a bit of practice, but it is the key to producing thin, even crepes.

Cook the crepe for just 10 seconds or so, until the side toward the pan has browned, then flip it over with the spatula and cook it for another 10 seconds or so.

If the crepe is too thick, add a bit more milk to the batter. If the crepe splits when you turn it, whisk in a little more flour.

Once you've mastered the basic technique, which doesn't take long, you'll turn out perfect crepes every time. The possibilities for fillings are endless — most cookbooks contain a wide variety, from breakfast crepes to dessert crepes.

BASIC CREPE BATTER

- 1 cup flour
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 cup milk
- 3 eggs
- 2 tbsps. melted butter or oil
- 5 tbsps. melted butter or oil for frying

Sift flour into bowl. Make well in center of flour and add salt and 1/2 cup milk. Whisk flour from outside of well, a bit at a time, into milk. Continue to whisk until batter is smooth. Whisk in eggs, 2 tablespoons melted butter and half remaining milk.

Let batter stand, covered, for an hour or more (it may be kept for up to a day in the refrigerator). Just before using batter, stir in enough of remaining milk to give batter consistency of heavy cream.

Coat crepe pan lightly with butter or oil and heat, over medium-high heat, until drop of batter sizzles immediately. For each crepe, add 2 to 3 tablespoons batter to pan, swirling pan so batter coats bottom evenly. Cook about 10 seconds on each side, until lightly browned. After each three or four crepes, or if crepes start to stick, coat pan again with butter or oil.

Makes 12-14 crepes.

SPECIAL CHICKEN FILLING FOR CREPES

- 4 tbsps. butter
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced scallions
- 2 cups chopped tomatoes, skin removed
- 1/4 tsp. dill weed
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley
- Salt and pepper to taste

- 2 cups cooked chicken, diced
- 1/2 tsp. tarragon
- 1/2 cup chicken broth
- 1 pt. sour cream

Melt 3 tablespoons butter in saucepan over medium heat and saute scallions for 1 to 2 minutes. Add tomatoes, dill, parsley, and salt and pepper to taste. Simmer until sauce is quite thick (20 to 30 minutes, depending on how much moisture was in tomatoes). Set sauce aside.

In another saucepan, melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter and toss chicken in it. Add 1 cup of tomato sauce, tarragon and chicken broth. Simmer until chicken has heated through and liquid has evaporated. Stir in 1/2 cup sour cream.

Fill each crepe with about 1/4 cup of chicken and sauce mixture, roll it up and top with spoonful of remaining tomato sauce and small dollop of sour cream.

Makes enough filling for 10 crepes.

MUSHROOM-ALMOND PASTRY LOAF

PASTRY:

- 3 cups wholewheat flour
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 1 egg, beaten (for glaze)

FILLING:

- 3 tbsps. butter or margarine
- 1 large onion, diced
- 2 large cloves garlic, minced or pressed
- 1/4 lb. fresh mushrooms, washed and trimmed
- 2 cups finely chopped almonds
- 1 cup grated Swiss cheese
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2 tbsps. lemon juice
- 4 tbsps. fresh chopped parsley
- 1 tsp. ground nutmeg
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 4 hard-boiled eggs
- 1/4 cup grated cheddar cheese

To make pastry, sift flour and salt into large bowl. Cut butter or margarine into flour with pastry blender or fork until well blended. Press mixture together to form dough and refrigerate. While pastry is chilling, prepare filling.

Melt butter or margarine into large frying pan and saute onion over medium-low heat until translucent but not browned, about 10 minutes. Add the garlic and saute 2 minutes longer. Take pan off heat and stir in remaining ingredients except hard-boiled eggs and cheddar cheese. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease 9- by 5-inch collapsible loaf pan. (If you do not have one that is collapsible, line regular loaf pan with tin foil, and grease foil well. This will help ease the loaf out after baking.)

Roll out three-quarters of dough and ease it into pan. If the pastry breaks in places, simply press it back together again. Spoon in half filling mixture, top with hard-boiled eggs which have been sliced and grated cheddar cheese. Cover with remaining filling mixture.

Roll remaining pastry into a rectangle which will fit top of pan, and press into position. Trim and flute edges, decorate top with pas-

CREPES SUZETTE

- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/4 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1 tsp. grated lemon zest (see note)
- 1 tsp. grated orange zest (see note)
- Juice of 1 orange
- 1 tsp. lemon juice
- 1/4 cup rum or curacao liqueur
- 8 prepared crepes
- 1/4 cup brandy

In large frying pan, melt butter until it begins to sizzle. Be careful not to let it burn. Wisk in confectioners' sugar, add lemon and orange zest, juices and rum or curacao. Whisk all ingredients together. Roll or fold crepes and place in sauce, spooning sauce over them until they are coated.

Meanwhile, heat brandy. Transfer crepes with all their sauce, to heated serving plate. Just before serving, pour heated brandy over crepes and ignite. Serve as soon as flame has died down.

VEGETARIAN VIEW

try trimmings, if desired, and brush top with beaten egg. Make several small holes in crust to allow steam to escape.

Bake for 30 minutes at 400 degrees; turn oven to 350 degrees and bake 30 minutes longer. Remove pan from oven and allow to cool 10 minutes. Remove pastry loaf carefully from pan. Serve with Mock Hollandaise Sauce, if desired. Serves 6 to 8.

MOCK HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 1/4 tbsps. prepared mustard
- 3 tbsps. lemon juice
- 1/4 tsp. paprika
- Dash white pepper

Combine all ingredients in a small saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat until heated through. Makes 2 cups sauce.

BROCCOLI CREAM SOUP

- 1 small onion
- 1 stalk celery
- 1 carrot
- 3 tbsps. butter
- 1 lb. (3 large stalks) broccoli

- 1 1/4 cups light cream
- 1/4 tsp. dill weed
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. white pepper

Finely chop the onion, celery, and carrot. Melt butter in large pot and saute vegetables over medium heat, stirring often, about 5 minutes.

Wash broccoli thoroughly. Cut off the buds; peel stalks, and coarsely chop them. Add the chopped stalks to sauteed vegetables in pot, then pour in vegetable broth. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat to simmer and continue to cook for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Add broccoli buds and cook 5 minutes longer, until just tender. Puree soup in blender, about 2 cups at a time, until all soup is pureed. Return to pot and reheat over medium heat, about 10 minutes. Just before serving, stir in light cream and seasonings. Serves 6.

For once, family tradition is true

By James G. McCollam
Member, Antique
Appraisers Association of America

Q. What can you tell me about my pine and wrought iron trunk? It is 30 inches long, 29 inches wide and 22 inches high. The wrought iron straps are fastened to the trunk with large-headed brass nails.

A. Family tradition suggests that it dates back before the Civil War.

A. For once family tradition is right; your trunk was made about 1840 to 1850.

It is much more desirable than the canvas-covered trunks with oak slats that everyone is buying today. This one would sell in the $250 to $350 range.

Q. Behind the pendulum is the following label, "Patent Clocks Invented by Eli Terry. Made and sold in Plymouth, Conn., by Eli Terry and Sons." It keeps perfect time.

Please give me particulars about this clock.

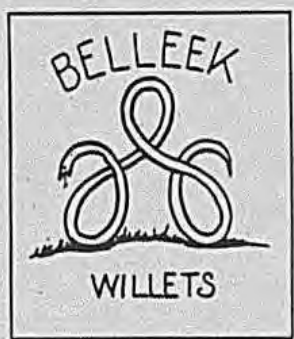

A. This is a very fine example of a Pillar and Scroll clock, invented by Eli Terry.

It was made between 1818 and 1834; it should sell in the $1,500 to $2,000 range.

Q. This mark is on the bottom of my cream pitcher. It is decorated with leaves and flowers and has a snake for a handle. Can you tell me when it was made and its value? I would also like to know what "Willets" means.

A. Your pitcher is not Irish Belleek. It was made by the Willets Mfg. Co. Trenton, N.J., around the turn of the century.

Strangely enough, it is just as valuable as authentic Irish Belleek and should be worth from $275 to $325.

Q. I have a chocolate pot with the enclosed mark on the bottom. It is also marked No. 28 and "Silesia."

Can you tell me who made it, its vintage and value?

A. This is the mark of Old Ivory china made in Silesia, Germany, during the late 19th century. No. 28 is the pattern number. It should sell in the $225 to $275 range.

Q. You have frequently stated that clocks with wooden movements were made in the early 19th century. I always thought that wooden movements were very old and made before metal movements.

A. Clocks dating back to the 14th century had metal movements. They took months to make and were very expensive; only the wealthy could afford them.

Late in the 18th century, it was discovered that clocks with a wooden movement could be made in a day or two and sold for less money. These were the first mass-produced clocks. Toward the end of the first half of the 19th century, machinery was devised to mass produce metal clocks and brought about the demise of wooden clocks.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Why paint 'wrinkles'

Q. How can I avoid getting a wrinkling effect on an exterior paint job? This happened to me on a similar job I did a couple of years ago. I am anxious to get on with the job as soon as possible. — Glenn J.F.

A. Wrinkling usually occurs when paint has been put on too heavily and not brushed out uniformly.

It also takes place when paint is applied during cold weather, under 50 degrees, or when the weather turns cold immediately after the painting is finished. Outdoor painting should not be attempted until the thermometer stays above 50 degrees both day and night.

At lower temperatures, the paint does not flow smoothly, and goes on in thick coats that sag and rarely dry satisfactorily. It also uses up more paint than necessary.

Assuming you attempt to brush out the paint properly this time, do not go to the other extreme of over-brushing, which can result in what are known as "thin spots" on the surface.

Q. In one of our recently vacated apartments we found a bad stain on one of the hardwood floors, evidently from dog urine. We do not know how long the stain has been there, but it is quite dark, indicating it has been there for some time and maybe it will be more difficult to remove.

Can you tell us if and how the stain can be removed? — P.P.A.

A. On a chance that the stain has not penetrated the wood, try the easy way first.

Try removing the stain with dry steel wool, about No. 1 grade.

If this fails, add a little diluted synthetic detergent, scouring with the steel wool.

If the stain has penetrated the wood, make a poultice of one part sodium citrate crystals to six parts water with an equal volume of glycerine. Make into a thick paste with whiting and apply over the stain about one-half inch thick. Cover the paste with plastic, which will keep it moist overnight, and then rinse with clear water.

If this doesn't take the stain out, it may be necessary to sand the floor and refinish.

Q. Our house has a cold water pipe running across the basement that sweats during the summer. I want to make this part of the basement into a recreation room, but cannot go ahead with the job until I find some way to stop the constant dripping from this pipe.

Can you give me some suggestions? — H.O.S.

A. There are several ways to prevent condensation on pipes carrying cold water, which causes the dripping. Wrapping the pipe with several thicknesses of newspaper is generally quite effective, but we would not recommend this if the pipe is left exposed.

There are several commercial products made especially for this purpose, both heavy wrappings and thick liquids that are painted directly on the pipe. Check with your hardware dealer about these.

Q. I would like to know how to repair cracks in the wood in the window sills of our house before we repair. — Sarah M.H.

A. First, fill all surface cracks. Use an elastic caulking, rather than a hard-drying type, so the wood remains flexible. Prime with two coats of oil-base primer and finish with house paint. If a sill has already badly deteriorated, or if it takes more than a normal beating from the weather, you can completely cover it with a fiberglass process that waterproofs the wood for many years.

The process, in two parts, uses a special mastic and a reinforcing fiberglass fabric. Unlike conventional crack fillers and caulking compounds, it dries to a finish that is pliable in all temperatures.

are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Do you know why nearly everyone asks for self-addressed envelopes? It's not only the time involved in handling hundreds of letters in the mail, but we in this generation don't write too plainly.

I wanted to get these things off my chest and your note was sort of a catalyst. Now we'll go on with other people's letters.

Dear John: I would like to join the club Mainly for Seniors. I am 69, 6 feet tall, 230 pounds, with grayish hair, blue eyes, nice complexion, easy to get along with.

I don't smoke or drink. I like to make friends, go places, most all sports. I have never married. I am lonesome for friend. Anybody interested please write. — Don H.

Dear Don: Sorry we can't give your address. The last time we did that everybody was unhappy. And Mainly for Seniors isn't a club. It's open to all. We'll forward any mail marked for Don.

paper, but now they can't find it, or words to that effect.

So we devised the leaflet, which is available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the column. At first Copley News Service was very kindly printing these for me, but the demand got too much and they couldn't keep up with it.

I found a printer closer to home who gives overnight service. Last week's run was 2,000 leaflets. Of course they have to be paid for and if it weren't for the donations of readers, I couldn't continue it.

Since I started this column 14 years ago, when I retired as the editor of a newspaper in Southern California, I have tried to write about the things that interest my readers. The only way I know is by their letters.

During that first year, one day when I wrote about arthritis I received 3,000 letters.

That let me know what many people in our age-group were interested in.

Then there was loneliness. I got a series of letters from readers, mostly widows, telling graphically about being alone. I could close my eyes and mentally see a forest of lonely people across the breadth of the United States.

So I started the Pen Pal list, hoping that might help. It's hard to tell how effective it is, but I do know that it resulted in at least one marriage. The Pen Pals I also print at my own expense and they

TWEEN 12 & 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: Last night my best friend and I went shopping for some back-to-school clothes and I saw my girlfriend stuff a sweater into her pocket-book. I wasn't near her so she is not aware that I saw her swipe the garment.

I'm totally shocked. I never dreamed this girl was a shoplifter. She is my best friend but I don't know if I should let her know that I know.

Please tell me what to do. — Theresa

Theresa: Tell your friend that you observed her steal a sweater. Express your concern and shock and encourage her to return the item to the store.

Make her aware that if she ever shoplifts again and you find out, your association with her will come to an end.

Dr. Wallace: I am 18 and in love with my "brother." My mother remarried last year and my stepfather has a son, Jeff, who is 19.

Now Jeff and I are in love and we plan to get married in a couple of months if we are not breaking any laws. Can we legally get married? — Jennifer Jennifer: You can be married legally — anywhere — since in actuality you are not related by bloodlines.

Dr. Wallace: My uncle is into cocaine.

I really like this guy and I keep telling him that he is going to ruin his life and possibly end his life if he continues to use the stuff. All he does is laugh at me and say he has never heard of anyone dying from an overdose of cocaine.

Please tell me if this is true. — Brian

Brian: Your uncle is both foolish and misinformed.

The American Medical Association estimates that over 100 human beings die every year in the United States from the overdose of cocaine. Please let me explain.

Taken illegally, cocaine is either injected, swallowed, smoked, mixed with liquor or, the most popular method, snorted.

Respiratory collapse and death occurred most quickly among those who injected cocaine directly into a vein. Among those who sniffed (snorted) it or swallowed it, the reaction was delayed as long as an hour, then the victim had a sudden seizure and died.

Medically, cocaine is used as a blood vessel constrictor, local anesthetic and as a central nervous system stimulant.

Please relay this information to your uncle. And soon!

Dr. Wallace: I'm an 18-year-old girl and I have been feeling guilty for the past six months. Please give me your advice.

About a year ago I was feeling a bit depressed because all of my girlfriends were dating super guys and I felt left out because no one was asking me for a date.

To help my ego, I told everyone, even my family, that I was dating a real neat guy named Steve. When my girlfriends bragged about their guys, I bragged about Steve.

I kept this story alive for about six months when I finally got tired of acting. I told everyone that Steve and I broke up. Now that I look back on the "adventure" I really feel stupid and guilty for telling all these stories.

I'd like to confess and tell all my friends about my fabrication but I'm not sure I could take being labeled a liar. Please tell me what to do. Already I feel a little better confessing to you. — Polly Polly: Confessing to your family and friends that you were fantasizing about Steve is the thing to do ONLY if you will feel a lot better after the confession. Personally, I'd advise you to say nothing.

Dr. Wallace: I have two good friends, Mary and Alice. Mary and I do a lot together but when we call Alice, she never talks to us. If she isn't home we ask her mother to have her call us but she never does. In fact, the only time Alice calls is when she wants to take a swim in my pool.

Do you think that I should keep Alice for a friend? — Barbara Barbara: Yes, but don't allow Alice to dictate when she swims in your pool.

The next time she calls and wants to take a dip, inform her that you do not plan to swim that day, but you will call and invite her over the next time you plan to swim in the pool.

This way, you control the situation, not Alice.

Mainly For Seniors

By John T. Watts

Dear Sir: Please find enclosed stamped envelope. Send me your arthritis leaflet. Although I doubt if it is worth 40 cents. — Reader

Dear Reader: I have kept your note on my desk these weeks. Frequently I would look at it and wonder how you feel by now.

If you have tried the two home remedies to ease arthritis and you still want your money back, drop me a line. I will send you the 60 cents in stamps.

I have never said the Certo or the apple cider vinegar would help everyone. But many they do help and I have the letters to prove it. Also, let's get something else straight — they are not cures. There is no cure, yet.

That's one thing the Arthritis Foundation and I agree upon. But little else. They say your diet has no affect upon arthritis. Many of my readers say otherwise. Mrs. A.S.B. volunteered her diet, which keeps her excruciating pain away. But she says she realizes she must keep to the diet the rest of her life. It is included in the leaflet. It's rough ... cod liver oil and strict eating practices.

Some readers have asked me to rerun the essential information of the leaflet in this column. Some even say it would be a good idea to do that once a month.

Believe me, I have run it and rerun it and people still write and say they clipped it out of the

I NEED SINGLE MEN
to give me advice. I will soon be opening a social club for men & women, most of whom will be single, divorced, separated or widowed. It will not be a dating service. People of similar age and interests will be going out in groups for dancing, dining, theater, travel, sailing, hiking, fishing, etc. Each will be paying their own way and no one will be a "date". We feel this is a less stressful way of enjoying a social life and meeting new people without becoming too close - unless that happens overtime by mutual consent. How would men react to this type of social togetherness? I'm a woman, so I don't know. Your advice will be appreciated. Write to Gentle

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Last weekend I went to the country with my family. It was raining Saturday, but Sunday was a beautiful day.

The sun was shining, but there was a nip in the air and the leaves were starting to turn. Also, my little bird friends who used to waken me every morning, had apparently flown away. Someone must have told them it was almost fall!

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are John Conte and Ann Watson.

More than half of the pets sleep in the same bed with a member of the family.

Ninety-nine percent of the owners talk to their pets. Most of this chat takes place in a conversational way or as brief words or commands.

Half of the respondents felt that getting a pet had increased conversation and compassion of living things.

Two-thirds of the owners reported their pets make them feel more secure, and nearly half said that having a pet made them feel safer from crime.

Half of the owners keep pictures of their pets in a wallet or on display at home or in the office.

Six out of 10 people said that their pet was "extremely important" to them, and an additional three of 10 considered it "very important."

Aaron Katcher, associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania, identified seven ways pets benefit humans. They provide companionship, something to care for, something to keep a person busy, something to touch warmly and fondle, something to watch, something that makes you feel safe and something that provides a stimulus for socialization and exercise.

dents, most of whom were women. 88 percent owned pets and 12 percent did not.

The survey indicated that overall, the pet owners were more satisfied with their lives, past and present. Three-fourths of the respondents feel that a pet creates added fun and laughter within the family.

Dogs and cats are by far the most popular choices in types of pets. These are followed by fish, birds, rodents, rabbits, reptiles, horses and other animals.

When asked why people have pets, an overwhelming majority of respondents stated "for pleasure or companionship." Protection and "for the children" also were frequently mentioned.

Eighty-nine percent of the readers who responded to the survey had pets while they were growing up, and 97 percent believed that children should have pets.

The three main benefits, they stated, were providing companionship of pleasure, learning gentleness and learning responsibilities. Seven out of 10 respondents felt that pets help prepare young couples for parenthood, mainly by getting them used to daily responsibilities and having a living being depend on them.

Following are additional findings of the Pets and People survey.

Points On Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. My husband and I have argued over a long period of time about whether we should obtain a family pet. We have three small children.

I was raised in a "non-pet" household. I do not believe that owning a pet would have made our lives any richer or fuller. However, my husband argues that studies indicate that pet ownership does add a great deal to family life and that families owning pets are generally happier and closer.

Your comments will be greatly appreciated.

A. There are a lot of factors that should be carefully considered prior to accepting the responsibility of owning a pet. With only a few facts, it is impossible to tell you whether your particular household would benefit by owning a pet.

Your request for information regarding the advantages and disadvantages of pet ownership is very timely. The results from what is believed to be the largest in-depth attitudinal study of pet ownership was recently reported in Psychology Today (August 1984; pp. 52-56). The Pets and People survey was based on responses to a four-page questionnaire published in the April issue of the magazine.
