Rep. Norman F. Lent, recently presented Congressional Citations of Merit to Police Officers Brian Dunker and William Baker. Officer Dunker, a Hicksville resident, is assigned to the 7th Precinct in Seaford. Officer Baker, who resides in Garden City South, is assigned to the 8th Precinct, which covers the North Massapequa and Farmingdale areas.

Lent, citing the two Police Officers for heroism above and beyond the call of duty, presented each with a Citation commemorating their "Meritorious public service and commitment to the goals and principles of the Nassau County Police Department."

Abe Seldin, chairman of the Nassau County Board of Assessors, was the guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Mr. and Mrs. Club at In Plainview YM/YWHA.

Seldin spoke about how property is assessed in Nassau County and recent changes in state law governing assessment, including modifications of the laws governing exemptions. He also answered questions from the audience.

Seldin is shown explaining a property record card like the one on file for every piece of property in Nassau County to club president Dave Latman of Wantagh, center, and vice president Harold Klein of Plainview.

Reservations for speaking dates are now being accepted. Program chairpersons or presidents of service clubs, civic associations and other community based organizations who wish to arrange a free program on assessment should call 516 535-2490 or write the Speakers' Bureau, Nassau County Department of Assessment, 240 Old Country Road, Mineola, 11501 at least one month prior to the planned meeting date.

Halloween Mask Museum Workshop

Halloween's "trick or treat" youngsters can learn to make "daring dinosaur" masks that glow in the dark at the Hicksville Gregory Museum, October 19 and 20.

The Museum is offering a childrens' workshop in the fun craft of making their own Halloween masks this year. Registration is now taking place for three hours of fun and creativity on Friday afternoon, October 19 from 3:30 to 4:30 and Saturday, October 20, from 2 to 4 p.m.

The workshop is open to the first fifteen 8 to 12 year olds to sign up. The fee is $3.00. Call 516-822-7505 for workshop reservations.

This will be a learning as well as a fun program. All dinosaurs were not the same, as we know.

Teachers Union Circulates Letter

The following letter is being circulated in the District by the Hicksville Congress of Teachers. Dear Friends:

On October 16, 1984 another attempt at resolving the Contract impasse between the Hicksville Congress of Teachers and the Hicksville School District will take place.

While it is true that the issues have been reduced in number, the gap existing between the sides over the outstanding issues remains as wide as before, in spite of numerous attempts on the part of the HCT to narrow these gaps.

The financial package is not tentatively settled, as you have been told. Moreover, our commitment to our profession and our interest in the quality of education in Hicksville makes acceptance of the District's demands impossible.

You read that the HCT "had issued a release committing to offer movement on all of the outstanding issues...and that the Board of Education is encouraged by that statement."

The absence of a similar commitment on the part of the School Board is sad and disappointing.

Sincerely,
Bob Zaleski, President
Elayne Kabakoff,
1st Vice President
Stuart Blummer,
2nd Vice President
Gail L. Ash, Treasurer
Robert Pownall, Secretary

Hicksville Post Office Safety Fair This Sunday

"The Safety Fair is a first for the Postal Service on Long Island", says Hicksville Postmaster Anthony M. Murello. "We wanted to put together something to benefit the community and we hope everyone will learn a little more about the Postal Service and pick up some safety tips as well."

The fun starts at 1 p.m. Sunday, October 7 at the post office on 185 West John Street.

This is the first time the community can take a tour of our mail facility, eastern Long Island's largest and most advanced mail processing center. You will be able to see the optical character reader and bar code sorter as they process letters at split-second speed, the multi-position letter sorting machine, facer/canceller operation, flat sorting machine and more.

Postal workers will compete in a roдео where they maneuver a prescribed driving course in the 1/4-ton, 1-ton, 5-ton and tractor trailer categories.

There will be over 40 safety and health displays by the Nassau County Police Department, Hicksville Fire Department, Nassau County Medical Center, American Cancer Society, Nassau County Traffic Safety Board, National Safety Council and many other organizations.

WGGB will transmit live from the fair.

There will be free refreshments, rides for the children and drawings for safety prizes. The winners of the Hicksville Post Office Safety Poster and Essay Contest will be awarded prizes by master-of-ceremonies Ray Heatherton, the "Merry Mailman"

To the Editor:

Bravo, Mr. Ciacchio, for daring to bring up the matter of school bus transportation in our Hicksville Schools. After we purchased our home in Hicksville two years ago, I was appalled to discover my daughter would not be eligible for bus transportation to the Junior High School. Our home was just short the minimum 1 1/2 mile rooftop measurement to qualify. (2 miles minimum for the High School). Unfortunately, my daughter does not walk over roof tops. Even the shortest route proved both long and hazardous. To begin with, her path took her across Woodbury Road, literally through trenches created by Zara's never-ending sewer connections, and dodging rush hour commuters challenged by their employers' time clocks. The next point would be shortcutting under the Long Island Railroad trestles, faced with the possibility of confronting one of those vagrants that Hicksville has acquired. Onward, then, across to route 107's speedway and its right-turns-on-red. And then one last lap across Old Country Road and a wave to the half-empty school buses carrying the lucky ones.

Why, also, in light of the current overwhelming problem of child-snatching, are we subjecting our children as young as eleven years old to chance. Like anything else, will it take a tragedy to insure the proper supervision of our children.

I was recommended to Mr. Ciacchio by Dr. Fenton that he contact Mr. William Bennett of the Hicksville School Board. As yet, Mr. Ciacchio has not received a response from his letter of August 10. Perhaps Mr. Bennett is too busy chaffering his children to and from school.

In response to the question that many of you may be asking, I had no choice but to allow my daughter to walk. I work full time, by necessity, as do many of the other mothers that this burden has fallen upon. It is a sick feeling to be far from home wondering if your child has made it to and from school safely. We wouldn't allow our dogs to cross these streets unsupervised. Why are we allowing our children.

If Mr. Ciacchio would be kind enough to advise us where, I urge every resident to contact him and let us join to solve this problem before a tragedy occurs.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Ciacchio's address is 1 Joseph Lane, Hicksville, N.Y. 11801.

To the Editor:

This Sunday we had the honor of greeting 17 visitors from Rome, Italy. The students (15) and their teachers (2) will be staying in Hicksville attending our high school for the next three weeks as part of our participation in the American Field Service program of exchange students. All this could not be possible without the warmth and generosity of the Hicksville parents who have opened their homes and hearts to our visitors.

May I extend my thanks and those of the school board to these families: The Vior Family of 51 Deer Lane, The Hogan Family of 10 Marie Court, The Cheslock Family of 7 Irving Street, The Whaley Family of 18 East Avenue, The Garbus Family of 18 Hope Lane, The Aristizabal Family of 239 Acre Lane, The Delio Family of 4 Holly Street, The Villalta Family of Miller Circle, The Rothchild Family of 173 Blueberry Lane, The Jonason Family of 18 Westmoreland, The Zukowsky Family of 132 Dean Street, The Dane Family of 22 Crown Street.

Mary Sue Carr, Chair of our Physical Education Department, and Fr. Dominic Cianella, Pastor of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church are the gracious hosts of the teachers chaperoning the students.

My sincere thanks are also extended to all those community members and administrators who have assisted in organizing this complex project. The experience should enrich all our lives.

Sincerely,
Catherine J. Fenton

Hicksville Beats Kings Park

By A. Bliker

The Hicksville Shamrocks (U-11) traveling soccer team visited Kings Park in Suffolk County last Saturday, convincingly defeating the Cougars 6-2 for their third straight regular season victory. The Shamrocks exhibited outstanding versatility, with all 14 players taking turns at various offensive and defensive positions with equal flair.

They were led by striker Matthew Pordum who, in a short period, scored four goals including one unassisted. He was aided by Todd Meringoff, our dynamic right wing, who scored one goal and assisted on two others. Left wing Jared Jacobs continued his hot scoring with one goal and an assist. Ted Knoop, playing a strong fullback, sweeper and halfback, chipped in with two assists. Eric Bliker had a strong game at striker, wing and half. Chris Doyle displayed his savvy at fullback, striker, half and wing. Joe Flanagan exhibited versatility at centerhalf, stopper and fullback. Gregg Furst played a strong half and fullback. Gregg Grusso was sharp at fullback and moved up to wing for some crisp passes at that spot. Brian Harkins had his usual determined, gritty game at sweeper and right wing. Eddie Jacobsen played aggressively at fullback before returning as goalie in the second half. Jason Kingsley played left wing as well as his tough, unpenetratable stopper position. David Lovato was outstanding at halfback, covering the field with terrific results. Brian Pise had a great half as goalkeeper before switching to halfback with an admirable performance.

Congratulations to the hard-working Shamrocks as well as to coach John Flanagan and aides Pete Knoop and Pat Harkins for a much-deserved victory.

Smile, It's Pizza Day! One of Fork Lane School's biggest hits is Pizza Day each Tuesday, followed by Frank or Soup Day on Thursdays, along with a subsidized milk program. Entirely staffed by Fork Lane PTA moms, this has been a popular staple with all students. Pat Burns, left, and Madeline Senn, Lunch Program co-chairpersons prepare to load pizza.

In Service

Joel D. Portuese, son of Francis R. and Dolores F. Portuese of 31 Seth Lane, Hicksville, has been officially accepted into the U.S. Military Academy's Corps of Cadets as a new member of the class of 1988 during the annual acceptance parade.

The parade followed six weeks of rigorous basic cadet training at the West Point, N.Y., academy. Training in military customs and courtesies, drill and physical conditioning, tactical exercises and the firing of weapons introduced the basic cadets to military life with special emphasis on leadership, duty, honor and country.

The academy is a four-year educational institution graduating men and women to serve as career Army officers. In addition to military training, the academy offers athletics and an academic curriculum which includes basic and engineering sciences and social sciences and the humanities.

Another Win For Shamrocks

On Sunday, the Hicksville Shamrocks soccer team completed the 2nd part of their weekend "doubleheader" by besting the North Shore Cosmos 3-1 in Glen Cove.

Led by defensive whiz Chris Doyle at stopper, fleet-footed David Lovato at wing and a super effort by Teddy Knoop at full-back, the Shamrocks faced their toughest competition this season. Goals were scored by Chris Doyle on a penalty shot, Gregg Grusso on a Chris Doyle-Eric Blicher assist and David Lovato on a Matt Pordum pass.

Once again the Shamrocks switched positions, demonstrating the versatility and hustle which enabled them to win their fourth straight league game. In addition to the above mentioned players, congrats also to the remainder of the team for passing, heading and dribbling like pros: Joe Flanagan, Todd Meringoff, Gregg Furst, Brian Harkins, Jared Jacobs, Jason Kingsley and goalkeepers Eddie Jacobsen and Brian Pine for their sure-handed saves. Thanks to coach John Flanagan for his encouragement and guidance, ably assisted by Pete Knoop and Pat Harkins.

Confused about vitamins?

By Shirley
Bright Body
Registered Dietitian

Do you take vitamins? How do you know what you need? Are you taking big doses of some vitamins, yet neglecting others?

If you are confused about vitamin supplementation, you are not alone. Most people have little or no knowledge about this important part of their own health. Others may be depending on either old information, or "mythinformation," that only further distorts the problem.

We all have seen the ads that promote the magic of a specific vitamin, and many folk will rush to buy it, in the hope of relieving "stress" or to make their hair grow or for a glowing skin or whatever. Will they work that way? Are these people helping themselves by taking that vitamin? No. Vitamins do not work in that way, no matter what the ads say.

At a recent conference of nutrition editors that was sponsored by the Vitamin Nutrition Information Service, a guideline of general rules for the use of vitamin supplements was developed. Dr. David B. Roll, professor of medicinal chemistry at the University of Utah, offered these "rules of thumb" to help the average person make better choices.

1. Healthy young adults eating adequate amounts of a well-balanced American diet generally do not need vitamin supplements. (A well-balanced diet means four servings of fruits and vegetables, four servings of breads and cereals, two servings of meats, fish or poultry, two servings of milk and dairy products every day.)

2. People who have deficiencies of vitamins or have increased physiological needs will benefit by taking a daily multivitamin supplement.

3. There is no advantage to so-called "natural" or "organic" vitamins, and the use of such preparations not only increases the cost, but they may decrease effectiveness.

4. Vitamin potency varies from one manufacturer to another, and some deteriorate in the bottle, so only reputable brands with expiration dates on the labels should be purchased.

5. Avoid preparations that contain substances for which there is no known nutritional need, such as inositol, choline, PABA and RNA. (Effects of overdoses are unknown.)

6. A daily multivitamin formula should contain no more than the recommended dietary allowance of recognized known nutrients. (Excessive amounts of some vitamins are toxic, especially A and D.)

7. Preparations containing only small or token amounts of known nutrients (usually calcium and phosphorus) should be avoided. (Don't pay for something you are not getting. Ask a pharmacist.)

8. Vitamin supplements are prescribed for specific nutritional deficiencies or for medical therapy. (Don't diagnose and treat yourself with overdosing on an array of vitamin pills. They are not all excreted if not needed, some are cumulative in the body. Kidney stress and the formation of some kidney stones have been blamed on excessive and irrational self-treatment.)

When taking vitamins or putting any other foreign substances into your body, why take chances with possible toxic reactions? If you don't know what you are taking or what it can do to you, find out from someone who is qualified to tell you, a doctor, pharmacist or a registered dietitian. Never rely on the advice of clerks who want to sell you often inferior and overpriced products.

Vitamins do not make up for a poor diet. They are not innocuous little cure-alls that will keep you in perfect health. Some vitamins have druglike effects if taken in huge quantities.

Nowhere are these facts more important than when vitamins are given to children. They simply cannot tolerate huge doses, and parents must guard against giving excessive doses. It can happen easily, and without anyone even being aware of it.

For example, the pediatrician may prescribe some children's vitamins, but the mother thinks if a little is good, twice as much is better, so she doubles the dosage. In addition, she buys cereals and other foods that have been "enriched" with more vitamins, then she may have those cute little "chewable" vitamins around the house that kids think are like candy, and who knows how many they may eat?

If the child becomes ill and is rushed to the hospital, who would suspect vitamin poisoning? Not many people, but unfortunately it can happen.

Don't give children huge doses of vitamins.

It's up to us.

New York State is a great state in which to live, work and raise a family. We can be proud of our place in world commerce, industry and in the quality of our lives. But one of our greatest sources of pride is often overlooked, that being our huge forest preserves, wetland and marsh areas, and abundant fish and wildlife.

Now New Yorkers have an opportunity to help protect this unique heritage of wildlife so vital to the quality of life we all enjoy. "Return a Gift to Wildlife" is a program into which you may voluntarily contribute when you complete your state tax form. By checking off Line 18 on the long form or Line 12 on the short form, you can make a contribution to the New York State Conservation Fund. Monies collected have been dedicated by the State Finance Law to the protection, management and extension of wildlife in our great state.

The Need Has Never Been Greater

Hard-economic times dictate hard financial decisions. This year, the federal government has already eliminated endangered species aid, jeopardizing the restoration of a number of birds and animals native to New York. In addition, thousands of acres of grassland, wetland, marshland and forest that are critical to the survival or extension of New York's wildlife are eliminated or disrupted each year. The New York State "Return a Gift to Wildlife" program is an important step towards a lasting solution to these problems... and an investment in the future of our wildlife.

An Effective Program

Like the environment which only thrives when the whole ecosystem is addressed, the areas of work to be addressed through tax contributions are broad and comprehensive. The largest single element is earmarked for habitat protection so critical to wildlife perpetuation. A species management program will be strengthened to help maintain off-species of fish and wildlife at desirable population levels for human enjoyment. A third element is the public use program which will provide increased opportunities for enjoying fish and wildlife. Lastly, the plan calls for greater awareness development of fish and wildlife values through the creation of better educational resources and information services.

Consider the added dimension wildlife brings to your life. Won't you return a gift through a contribution on Line 18 of the long form or Line 12 of the short form of your State tax return. Your gift is tax deductible on your 1983 tax return.

YOU CAN'T BEAT IT!..

Our Children

A worthy ambition

By Willard Abraham
Ph.D.

Q. My daughter has been preparing to become a teacher of handicapped children, and she has had our full support toward her reaching that goal. But now she tells us that she has "refined" that objective. The kind of children with whom she wants to work are those who are terminally ill.

It strikes me as a terrible choice of a career, and I have tried to talk her out of it. Neither my reasoning with her nor her father's losing his temper when he discusses this matter with her has done any good at all.

She has one year left in college, and we are tempted to tell her that we can no longer pay her tuition and room and board if she insists on sticking to this newest objective of hers.

I wish you could give us some ideas we can use in trying to convince her what a big mistake she is making.

A. Your letter reminds me of two situations that seem to relate to your concern. One was from a father of a severely mentally retarded son who told me that he received more satisfaction of the minute accomplishments of his retarded boy than of the brilliant achievements of his other children. Examples he gave were tying a shoe lace, feeding himself and sipping an ice cream soda through a straw.

The other was represented by the famous novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, "Magnificent Obsession." In it the main character performed great services for many people, but wanted no recognition for them.

Your daughter seems to be one of those rare ones who will derive immense pleasure from bringing whatever joy she can into the brief lives of the children she teaches.

Each of us presumably is on the Earth for some purpose, and hers is so worthy.

I wish I could discuss this serious matter with you in more detail. Perhaps your minister, priest or rabbi can do so.

Q. One thing I never anticipated in having three children was the fact that two of them would gang up on the third one. They are all boys, aged 9, 12 and 14. The oldest and youngest do the ganging up.

My husband and I try not to play favorites, although I'm frequently tempted to go to the rescue of that middle one. When he cries because of their attitude toward him, it really breaks my heart. I try to sympathize with him as much as I can.

Your suggestions will be very welcome.

A. Are there any groups of brothers and sisters who get along well all the time? Well, maybe some, but conflict, rivalry, envy and jealousy seem to be natural ingredients in many families at least some of the time.

So it may help a little to recognize that sibling abrasiveness is far from uncommon. However, that doesn't make it any easier to live with. What might ease the situation is to realize that it doesn't necessarily last into adulthood, although that seems such a long way off.

A serious conversation by both parents with the other two boys may be useful. So could recognition, compliments or small rewards when they do "lay off." The "rewards approach" is controversial and must be handled carefully.

I've sent you a copy of my article titled "Brothers and Sisters Getting Along Together." It's available to other parents who request it and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Q. Our children's school seems to test out the kids every time we turn around. If it isn't an IQ test, it's one to indicate what their achievements are in different subjects or personality factors or who their best friends are or for what job they ought to prepare. It goes on and on endlessly, to the point that I sometimes wonder when they have time for teaching.

Don't you think this kind of stuff can be overdone? I certainly do.

A. School testing is of value only if some concrete action is taken as a result of it. So it seems to be time for you to raise some questions with those who should have the answer.

Your youngsters' teachers and counselors ought to be able to help out.

Your Social Security

Should number be divulged?

Q. Recently I've noticed that whenever one opens a bank account, credit account or fills out almost any kind of application one's Social Security number is requested. Must I furnish my Social Security number? — F.P.

A. Some non-government organizations use Social Security numbers for record keeping. Such use is neither required nor prohibited by federal law.

While you are not required to give your number, the organization is not required to provide you service if you do not. Knowing your number does allow these organizations to get information from your Social Security record.

Q. I will be 65 years old June 19, 1985. I am five years older than my husband.

Would I apply on my own work record or wait until my husband reaches age 65 to get the larger amount on his salary record? — B.McN.

A. You may apply for benefits on your own record up to three months before your 65th birthday. Your Medicare protection will start the month you reach 65.

When your husband becomes entitled you may then apply for wife's benefits. You will receive whichever is the larger of the two benefit amounts.

Q. I was 70 years old Jan. 26. I understand that I can earn as much as I want this year and that Social Security will re-figure my benefits.

I'm not earning as much now as when I started receiving my Social Security. Does this mean I will receive less Social Security? — B.J.

A. No. Your benefits will not be adjusted downward. The additional earnings would only be added if they would increase your benefits.

Q. I turned 62 on Feb. 20, 1984. I have been employed by the post office for 17 years.

I'm told that because I was not eligible for retirement from the post office before December 1982, any benefits that I may be entitled to on my husband's Social Security record would have my pension deducted dollar for dollar. Is this true? I do not have enough quarters to receive Social Security on my own account. — E.M.F.

A. The Government Pension Offset provision was enacted into law in 1977. Originally, the offset was dollar for dollar. But beginning July 1983 the new rule is that the offset will be two-thirds the amount of the government pension for people becoming eligible to the pension in July 1983 or later. The offset is applied against dependent and survivors' benefits that could be payable. It is not applied against the benefit you could receive based upon your own work history.

Backyard Gardener

Starting plants from cuttings

By Patrick Denton

On a recent visit to my mother-in-law in another city, my wife and I were surprised and delighted to see throughout her house many thriving plants. Several of them were from a collection we had given her for Mother's Day three years ago.

These plants have brought more than just personal pleasure. Small snippets have been freely shared with friends, neighbors and relatives over the past three years, so that their sprightly charms have graced many homes with fresh life.

In very little time, and with a small amount of money, you could begin producing a collection of small plants for giving this Christmas. Small pieces from the tip growth of ivies, coleus, impatiens, begonias and geraniums easily can be rooted to make small plants. African violet leaves can be used to start new plants.

Spider plant, piggyback plant and strawberry geranium grow baby plants at the end of runners. These can be potted while still attached to the mother plant, and severed when established.

The containers you choose for gift plants do not have to be expensive. The collection we gave my mother-in-law were individually potted in small containers we already had in the house — teacups with hairline cracks; small ceramic and china sugar and cream servers purchased over the years at secondhand stores.

An alternative is to pot the new, small plants in plain plastic pots, and set them in a more decorative container later. A young ivy plant set in a small basket with a red ribbon tied to its handle makes a charming Christmas gift. Several young ivies or begonias, each one in its own small plastic pot, could be grouped on a bed of damp peat in a shallow ceramic pot with moss over the tops. I'm sure that if you have a good look about the house you'll find good container possibilities among items you no longer use.

Most of us already will have in our homes several plants from which we can make new plants for giving. Let's take a look at how to take cuttings from some of them.

Before actually snipping away a shoot tip from the parent plant, decide how you will root it and have the containers and rooting medium ready. To save labor, I set the cuttings directly in the gift container. Since these usually have no drainage holes, I place a layer of clean gravel or small pebbles into the freshly scrubbed container before filling it with potting mixture.

I find cuttings root best in purchased, sterilized potting soil that I aerate and lighten with about one-third vermiculite or perlite. I fill the small container and firm the dampened mixture down lightly leaving a half-inch between soil and container top for easy watering later. Then with a pencil I poke a hole in the middle to receive the cutting.

I prefer rather short cuttings, about 3 inches long. I make the cut with a sharp knife or kitchen scissors just above a leaf shoot on the parent plant, to help retain its shape. The cutting is trimmed again to just below a leaf, and the lower leaves are removed before the cutting is inserted into the potting mixture and gently firmed in.

This method of directly potting cuttings works well with plants that have dry-textured, slightly woody stems like ivies, geraniums, Christmas and orchid cactus. However, I've found that houseplants with more succulent, watery stems are best rooted in water before being potted. Examples are coleus, impatiens, fibrous begonias.

African violet leaves, with some stem left attached, will root in water or in a soil mixture. Fibrous begonias that have formed a good clump can be divided by slicing a piece from the outside of the clump with a sharp knife, removing it complete with roots and potting it.

Keep newly potted plants and cuttings warm and humid but out of direct sun while they are rooting. A clear plastic cover or tent will help keep them from wilting.

The bicyclist, Constance Luca, 10 years old of 258 Ninth Street, Bethpage, suffered a broken leg as a result of the accident. THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

There are numerous areas in parking lots that are set aside for disabled. Do you think enough motorists are respecting these areas? Do you think the present enforcement is adequate?

Call 931-0027 24 Hrs. a Day

Ground Rules

You are not limited to the above

but may talk on any subject of interest to readers.

•One subject to a caller per week•

Simply dial 931-0027-24 Hours a Day and follow these simple rules:

1. Wait for the beep.
2. Confine your INPUT to one subject.
3. Limit your opinion to five minutes (make notes before calling)
4. Leave your name and telephone, or simply use a pen name. (your message can be anonymous)
5. Publishers reserve the right to edit, modify or omit any and all material.

Divided Ideas On Effect Of Religion In Politics

Most callers to Input believe that the religious issues will have some effect on the outcome of the Presidential election although most do not think those issues will be deciding factors in answer to this question: Do you think that religious issues will affect the outcome of the Presidential election? Here are some of the answers:

SOME VOTES

No. The religious issues will change some vote totals but they will not have an effect on the outcome of the election. I believe that most people will vote for Reagan because of the economic issues and that will decide the outcome. Some additional people will vote for him because of the religious issues but that will be crossed out by people who will go to Mondale because they do not like Reagan's stand on those issues. G.F.

SEPARATES PEOPLE

I don't think there is any question about it - religious issues will have a definite bearing on the election. I am sorry to see it though because it has the unhappy tendency to separate people along specific lines into identifiable groups, a tendency which in recent years had been fading to the advantage and togetherness of the nation as a whole. Actually, those in government or running for office should show more sense and leadership than to instigate a delicate religious issue and keep it alive when it is plain that it can only be divisive and not in the overall interests of the general public. We pride ourselves on being the world's greatest democracy but we quickly forget the damage that vote-getting rhetoric can do in perpetuating and enlarging schisms using religious arguments to gain a political advantage. Furthermore, it provides the opportunity and the encouragement to those militant special interest groups who feel that their causes deserve front-page and prime-time attention. People have their personal religious beliefs and generally are quite content to live their lives in accordance with those beliefs. But, some politicians have their own fish to fry and pursue the well known strategy of first things first - win the election and worry about the truth and consequences after that. Too bad - there are enough complex problems to face without turning the elections into a religious forum! P.G.S.

TOO BAD

It is too bad that the religious issues have to be weighed in the number of votes they will bring or lose. The reason is that to me the abortion issue is too serious a matter to be decided on the basis of the number of votes it will bring. I would rather that an educational campaign to win people to the anti-abortion side would be started so that any decision would be a sincere one rather than a crass weighing of votes. K.R.

NOT CLOSE

If this were going to be a close election the religious issues might have a bearing on the outcome. The Presidential race so far is so lopsided that it will have little effect and should not be the issue. I think that possibly Ferraro has lost some of the added votes she might have brought because of the abortion issue but this was an issue with her before she ran for the V.P. office. And the people nominating her might have thought it would be helpful rather than otherwise. But this small loss of votes will have no effect at all on the outcome of the election. J.R.

BIBLE BELT

If you mean the entire religious issue, the work of the Bible belt in supporting Reagan in the election then I will say that it will have a great effect on the outcome of the election because this work started long before the campaign and has been an important factor in putting the south in the Republican column. The later skirmishes have had little effect. Y.T.

PRESS CONTROLS

No it is not the religious issue that has been controlling this election. The press with its unfair criticism of John Zaccaro has ruined the campaign for the Democrats. It was just getting off the ground when they started nit picking at him while speaking liberally in their editorial columns. TV and the press are the true controllers. E.W.

NOT SHAPING OUTCOME

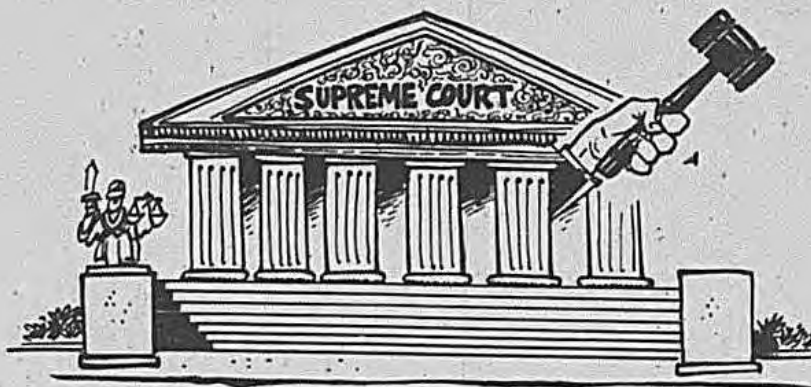

No. The religious issue is not going to shape the election. I for one am glad to see that the issue has been brought into the limelight. The abortion issue is too important to have decided in the political halls and in platform committees that do not ever have the opinions of the public in their policy making. The Democratic party is the largest party and yet it has all-minority interests in its platform. After this election it will have to change or break into the many parties it really is. K.R.

WIDE VICTORY

I think that Ronald Reagan has been influenced politically by the religious issue and that it will help him to be re-elected. He has been able to add a large bloc of votes to his conservative theme and it will mean a wide victory but it is not a good thing because there is no gauge of sincerity in those issues and he may do whatever he wishes if re-elected. F.T.

DISCOVERY

You Can Beat City Hall If You Try!

By Jerome J. Niosi, Ph.D.

"You have failed to respond to a summons for violation of the Motor Vehicle Law. You are adjudged guilty. You must pay a fine of $20 and a statutory penalty of $5." The judgment came from the New York City Parking Violations Bureau and we had not the foggiest notion what it was talking about. We had just returned from a trip through the lovely English countryside and were sifting through the accumulated mail of three weeks when we came across the formidable official correspondence.

As it is with any government document, such official notice was disconcerting. But what infraction? And why guilty? The automobile's license was correct, but when did this violation occur? It must have been some time in April; it was now near the end of May.

Normally, our attitude would be to pay the fine and forget it. Most people violate one regulation or another with impunity. Perhaps some official saw something done inadvertently but which could have been illegal. Yet, where was the summons? Our licenses were "clean" up to this point. The thing to do would be to return the correspondence and request a copy of the summons. It was now May 18.

Six weeks later came the official response: "Guilty as charged"; the judgment, $35. There was no other comment. The implication was clear. A citizen was trying to "stonewall" the citation. We were guilty until we could prove our innocence.

Could someone in the family have driven the car, destroyed the summons and deliberately neglected to mention it? Absurd, everyone had his own car. With the burgeoning penalties, one alternative was based on the old TV comedy skit: "pay the two dollars". Another was simply to ignore the summons. It was well known that the state would do nothing until three violations had been accumulated. Besides, what was the alleged violation? And it did not seem right to do nothing.

All the correspondence was returned with a letter detailing our absence from the country and urging that a copy of the summons be forwarded. It was now July 21.

From a third office came the reply: "Guilty"; and additional penalties. However, we could consider appealing the decision provided the fine and penalties were paid. There was a further threat. Unless the fine and penalties were paid, a citation as a "scofflaw" would be entered against us followed by a search through official records to turn up possible other ignored summons. But the request copy of the summons was included.

An examination of the barely legible document indicated that the cited vehicle had been improperly parked on the alternate side of the street at 11:33 on April 5.

Trying to recall the events of two months earlier resulted in the verifiable and publicized luncheon of the New Hyde Park Women's Club to which I had driven my wife. The car could not be on "Pacific Street" at the time the summons was issued.

Accordingly, another letter detailing the findings was sent to the Administrative Law Judge. Although the license number was correct, a mistake must have been made by the meter maid. But was this proof? Perhaps when the car had been brought to the repair shop in April, the mechanic could have parked it on one of the crowded streets across the city line pending retrieval, saw the summons, destroyed it and said nothing. Where was "Pacific Street", if, indeed that was the street. But this did not jive with the luncheon date and the summons' date of issue. It was now August 4.

Back came the response: "Guilty; the penalty, $45. Instead of responding to our letter of inquiry, there were threats of issuing warrants for our arrest. But with the threats came a larger, clearer copy of the original summons.

It became immediately apparent that the cited vehicle was, in fact, a Gold colored Van bearing an inspection ticket due to expire in March. The summons had been issued on Pacific Street in the 77th Precinct. A cooperative telephone operator said that the precinct was located in the Bedford-Stuyvesant area of Brooklyn. My car was a 1981 white, 2 door, Aries K, bearing an inspection ticket good through August. It was another car, but with the same license number.

Once more the judgment with the voluminous correspondence was returned, this time to the Director of Motor Transportation. The file was supported by a copy of the automobile registration. It was August 15.

At long last, on August 18, the Appeals Board unanimously reversed the guilty decision of the Administrative Law Judge. "Evidence submitted warrants reversal." Characteristically, the three signatures were barely legible.

A second declaration came September 7. "Our investigation confirms your claim of error. We regret any inconvenience this may have caused you and assure you that our records have been corrected."

We had proved our innocence! We won the fight! We beat City Hall!

GREAT EXPERIENCE
We were pleasantly surprised with Gerlich's Restaurant in Glen Head last week. The restaurant is in a mansion setting with accompanying spacious garden grounds. We were especially thrilled with it at this time of year and on a nice day it is great.

The interior of Gerlich's is another fine experience. We were seated in the area they call the greenhouse and had a delicious meal. One dinner was of scrod and the other of roast beef. Both were delicious. In addition to the regular continental dishes we noticed some fine German ones that undoubtedly are of good quality.

As a special attraction a pianist sings and plays tunes in a wonderful rollicking, but not disturbing way. A night at Gerlich's is an experience your readers should not miss.

Worth A Call

The Scales of Justice is a good friendly restaurant near the court houses in Mineola. I have been going there for a long time for lunch. And it has always been a good place for conversation including its nice bar.

Recently we tried the 'Scales' for dinner and found out that it has a great menu at night. We had a fine shell steak there on a recent Monday. It included an open salad bar, vegetable and potato and all for $7.95 for a tremendous steak. This is something to call in about and we decided to do so.

Q. Why aren't bus boys in hotels and restaurants tipped? G.H.
A. Because the waiter for whom he clears the tables shares his tips with him. In resort hotels, however, student bus boys are tipped.

Q. What are the rules adults should remember about napkins? C.H.
A. The large dinner napkins need to be only half-unfolded; the smaller luncheon napkin must be spread out completely on the lap. Never return the napkin to the table until you leave it. Even if everyone has long finished eating and people are lingering over coffee at the table, keep your napkin on your lap.

EXTRAORDINARY
 We had dinner at the San Remo Restaurant on Old Country Road in Westbury the other day and found it to be extraordinary. All our dinners were excellent. It is not necessary to go into New York City to enjoy haute cuisine. The prices are quite modest for what the restaurant has to offer. M.M.L.

READER RATINGS

Q. I have a friend who always wants to know what type of wine is being served even when at a banquet or wedding. Is this right? K.Y.

A. Well, it's hard to tell what you mean by asking "Is it right?" It is right to be curious and want to know what brands and flavors of wine are being served. In this way it is possible to know what types of wine to order when out. Most waiters would not be offended in telling you what brand or anything else you wanted to know about a wine.

Q. When older people go to restaurants they frequently cannot eat certain things that are on menus as part of a dinner. Should they ask for something else? J.D.

A. Yes, unless the menu specifically says that there can be no substitutions they should ask for alternatives. Many restaurants readily provide things like cottage cheese and apple sauce as substitutions to older diners. And we think more ought to be doing this because it would not cost more, overall, and would make for fuller enjoyment of older people who do not have a choice and must turn down specific foods that doctors have warned them against eating.

Q. Does one open one's napkin in the lap as soon as sitting down at table, or is it proper to wait until the food is served? A.P.

A. Guests wait until the hostess has taken up hers before placing their own, entirely open if they are lunch size, or in half if they are dinner napkins. Napkins are tucked in only for guests' napkins at the end are gathered and laid casually to the left of the place setting. Overnight or longer guests return napkins to rings and leave them on the right.

Q. My husband insists on pouring gravy all over everything on his plate. I feel this is bad table manners. What do you think? DTA.

A. Gravy—unless it is a gravy in which meat, fish, or other protein is incorporated (rarebits, curries, blanquettes, chilis, etc.) is never poured or ladled onto rice, noodles, or other than meat on the plate. It is an insult to the cuisine to inundate everything with gravy or that American favorite, catsup. If you want to eat your potatoes with gravy, dip a forkful into the gravy that has escaped from the meat.

EDITOR'S NOTE TO CALLERS: Individual criticisms of restaurants are sent in memos directly to the restaurant mentioned unless they are recurring discrepancies. Restaurants consistently not up to standard will be dropped from listings here.

ONE OF THE BEST

LaMarmite is one of the best restaurants that we have ever been to yet there is not much publicity about it. This old mansion located on Hillside Ave., Williston Park is a great place for fine food and exceptionally good service.

We have gone there several times and always found such entrees as filet mignon, filet of sole and many types of fish were prepared in the most delicious style. Granted one reason LaMarmite has wonderful food is because they use the freshest but the cooks still deserve praise for the splendid job they do.

The prices are slightly higher than at regular restaurants but it is well worth it for us to have a truly enjoyable meal. We recommend LaMarmite.

The Last Word In Restaurant Guides
Where Our Readers Have The Last Word

This newspaper, and the seven other weekly newspapers associated with it, publishes the last word in restaurant guides - a paid listing of many prominent selected restaurants in this area. While many of them have been rated by the great and near great food connoisseurs, our readers will have the last word through "Reader Ratings".

Through a special 24 hour phone system, readers will be asked to visit in their assessment of each restaurant they visit. Consensus ratings (good or bad) will be published as a continuing part of the guide.

In addition they can make suggestions, compliments or criticisms through the open phone line and messages will be sent through to the restaurant management.

BANQUET PLUS

The other night we were thinking about going out to dinner and someone suggested the New Hyde Park Inn. A funny thing is that we have been there many times and enjoyed the Inn for banquets and testimonials but never went there for dinner before.

I am calling to tip off your readers that Willy Rueck's New Hyde Park Inn is a great place to go for a regular dinner at any time. There is a fine dining room and the menu is complete with entrees of all types of meat and fish. We had a most enjoyable time there last week and everyone of our party of four said it was the best ever. H.L.

It's mustard mania

Who cares about mustard, you say? Isn't it just that bright yellow stuff relegated to the back of the refrigerator that gets hauled out for grilled hot dogs or hamburgers?

Not anymore.

This ancient seasoning, cultivated by the Chinese for more than 3,000 years, has been rediscovered by sophisticated '80s cooks. Americans consume more than 30 million gallons of mustard every year. Worldwide mustard consumption totals about 700 million gallons annually.

Mustard — ranging in color from pale gold to burnished bronze — is available in more than 200 varieties today.

Because of the new focus on mustard, manufacturers have begun experimenting with variations by adding tarragon, basil, honey, sherry, champagne, red and white wine, green peppercorns, peanuts, lemon, olive, raspberry, wheat germ and honey, chili and horseradish.

The hot and sweet mustard is one of the most popular new flavors.

Experiment with the many varieties available or try making your own. (Some mustard recipes follow.) Mustard making is simple and the flavor variations are limitless.

When using dry mustard, note that mustard's "heat" is the result of enzyme action that starts when liquid is added to the powder. These mustards must be prepared at least 30 minutes to an hour before use to allow for the full development of flavor.

CHICKEN IN MUSTARD CREAM

- 4 half chicken breasts
- 2 tbsps. flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. paprika
- 3 tbsps. butter
- 1 tbsp. oil
- ¾ cup herbed mustard (made with finely chopped fresh herbs such as tarragon, thyme, basil or dill)
- 1 medium onion, finely chopped
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- ½ cup dry white wine
- ½ cup heavy cream
- 1 tsp. lemon juice
- 2 tbsps. minced parsley

Dust chicken breasts with flour, salt and paprika. Sauté in heavy skillet with butter and oil. Remove, spread each piece liberally with mustard and place in shallow baking dish. Sauté onion and mushrooms in fat remaining in skillet. Add wine, heat to boiling and pour over chicken. Bake in 350-F oven, basting occasionally, 30-35 minutes, or until chicken is tender when tested with fork. Remove to serving dish, cover and keep warm. Skim as much fat as possible from juices in baking dish. Bring juice to boil, whisk cream into the sauce and lower the heat. Simmer sauce 5-10 minutes until slightly thick. Whisk in lemon juice and parsley. Pour sauce over chicken and serve with rice.

Makes 4 servings.

ITALIAN SPAGHETTI TOSS

- ¼ cup oil, preferably olive oil

- ½ cup chopped onions
- 4 ozs. pepperoni, thinly sliced
- 1 (10 oz.) pkg. frozen chopped broccoli
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 tbsp. spicy deli mustard
- ½ to ¾ tsp. garlic powder
- ½ lb. spaghetti, cooked and drained

Parmesan cheese (optional)

Heat oil over medium heat in medium-size skillet. Add onions and pepperoni; cook until onions are tender but not brown. Meanwhile, cook broccoli according to package directions. Add broccoli, ½ cup cheese, mustard and garlic powder to onion mixture. Toss with spaghetti. Serve with additional cheese if desired.

Makes 4 servings.

HORSERADISH MUSTARD

- 1 cup dry mustard
- ½ cup granulated sugar
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ cup tarragon vinegar
- ¼ cup olive oil
- ½ tsp. lemon juice
- 4 tbsps. bottled white horseradish, drained

Put all ingredients in container of blender or processor fitted with steel blade. Process 1 minute. Scrape down sides of container with rubber spatula and process 30 seconds longer. Keep in a well-sealed container and allow to stand overnight before using. Use as spread on cold meat or seafood. Makes approximately 1 cup.

AMERICAN SWEET MUSTARD

- 2 ozs. dry mustard
- 2 cups wine vinegar
- 1 egg, beaten
- ½ cup sugar

Mix mustard and vinegar in glass or enamel bowl. Let stand 4-8 hours. Blend in beaten egg and sugar and cook in top half in double boiler, stirring frequently, until thick. Keep refrigerated. Makes about 1 pint.

COUNTRY DIJON SALAD DRESSING

- ¼ cup Dijon mustard
- ¼ cup salad oil
- ¼ cup wine vinegar
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1 tbsp. chopped onion

¼ tsp. sugar

In blender or food processor, combine all ingredients. Blend until smooth. Chill several hours or overnight. Serve on salad greens of choice. Makes about 1½ cups.

FROM OUR KITCHEN

OLIVIA & PAUL BENSEN

Asparagus — a versatile vegetable

In ancient Rome, if something was to be done in a hurry, a common idiom was to "do it in less time than it takes to cook asparagus." Perhaps the Romans had a special secret for speeding up its cooking time, which today is generally from 10 to 18 minutes, depending on the thickness and the "woodiness" of the stalks.

A special problem in cooking asparagus is the fact that the tender tips and the tougher stems cook at different rates. There are two happy solutions to this problem, either of which will result in both parts of the stalk reaching the desired tenderness simultaneously.

If the stalks are to be served whole, peel the stems, tie the stalks with string in bunches of six to 10 and cook them upright, loosely covered, in enough boiling water to cover the tough parts of the stems, allowing the more tender upper parts to steam rather than boil.

If a recipe calls for cut-up asparagus, simply boil the stalks and steam the tips until they are tender. Whichever method of preparation you use, cut off the very bottoms of the stalks, which are almost always tough and fibrous.

A bit of melted butter and some salt and pepper are all that you really need to bring out the full flavor of cooked asparagus. Any of a wide variety of sauces — especially hollandaise or vinaigrette — will turn it into an especially elegant vegetable course.

FRIED ASPARAGUS IN BEER BATTER

- 2 lbs. asparagus, tough bottoms removed
- Sufficient vegetable oil to deep-fry asparagus
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- For Batter:
 - 1 cup flour
 - 3 tbsps. melted butter
 - ½ tsp. salt
 - 1 cup beer
 - 2 eggs, whites and yolks separated

Mix flour, butter and salt in bowl. Whisk in beer gradually until smooth. Gently whisk in egg yolks and allow batter to stand an hour or more at room temperature.

Blanch asparagus 4 minutes in boiling water to cover, with 1 teaspoon salt. Drain stalks and dry them with paper towels.

Beat egg whites until they begin to form peaks. Stir whites into batter and dip stalks in it one by one.

Deep-fry asparagus in hot oil until batter is crisp and golden brown. Serve immediately.

Serves 6 to 8.

CREAM OF ASPARAGUS SOUP

- 1½ lbs. asparagus, trimmed
- 6 cups chicken broth
- 2 ribs celery, chopped
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 3 tbsps. butter
- 3 tbsps. flour
- ½ cup heavy cream
- Salt and freshly ground white pepper to taste

Dash cayenne (optional)

1½ tbsps. freshly chopped parsley (for garnish)

Cut tips off asparagus and simmer tips in small amount of water until they are tender. Drain and set aside.

In large saucepan, heat chicken broth, asparagus stalks (sliced), celery and onion and simmer, covered, 30 minutes. Allow to cool slightly and blend in blender, in batches, until smooth. Return blended mixture to saucepan.

In small saucepan, melt butter, whisk in flour and allow to bubble over moderate heat 2 to 3 minutes. Slowly whisk in heavy cream, stirring, until thickened, then add this mixture to blended stock mixture, stirring constantly. Add asparagus tips and heat soup until very hot but not boiling.

Season with salt, pepper and cayenne, and garnish with parsley. Serves 4 to 6.

A jewel of a box

By James G. McCollam
Member, Antique
Appraisers Association of America

Q. This jewel box was brought over from England, about 100 years ago. It is veneered with a beautiful wood that I do not recognize; the drawers have fine brass pulls and the drop front is beveled glass.

Can you tell me when it was made and its value?

A. Your jewel box was made in the late 19th century and should sell in the $500 to $600 range. It is an exceptional antique.

The wood appears to be Circassian walnut.

Q. This pitcher is 9 inches tall, is cream colored, hand painted and trimmed in gold. The logo on the bottom is "Germany — R.W. — Rudolstadt."

I am told that Rudolstadt was re-established in the late 1800s after being closed for many years.

I would appreciate any information as to age and value that you can provide.

A. Your Royal Rudolstadt pitcher was made in the early 20th century. Rudolstadt is the name of a porcelain factory in Rudolstadt, Germany.

There was an early operation in the late 1700s and then in 1854 it was reopened by Ernst Bohne.

The Rudolstadt porcelain that was imported by Lewis Straus of New York was called "Royal" Rudolstadt.

Q. The attached drawing shows the mark on the bottom of my glass cracker jar. It is also signed M.W.

I would appreciate anything you can tell me about it.

A. You have a find here! It is a Royal Flemish cracker jar made by Mount Washington Glass Co. in New Bedford, Mass., during the 1880s.

It is worth at least $1,000 — probably more.

Q. I always thought that all Belleek china was made in Ireland. However, I have read in your column that some of it was made in America. Would you please explain?

A. The original Irish Belleek was and still is made in County Fermanagh, Ireland. Its creamy-yellow pearl-like glaze was imitated by Ott & Brewer, the Ceramic Art Co., Willets Manufacturing Co., all of Trenton, N.J., and several less well-known companies.

Logic would tend to suggest that original Irish Belleek would be more valuable than its American imitations. That is not quite true; Irish Belleek is plentiful, while American Belleek is quite scarce.

In 1929, the court forbade anyone except the Irish company to use the name "Belleek."

Dining room table balks at expanding

Q. Our dining room table sticks when we try to open it up for expansion by adding new leaves. It even becomes a family affair; half pulling on one side and half tugging away on the other.

What can we do to remedy the problem? — Anna J. T.

A. Don't despair. The cure is quite simple, costs but a few cents and should last about 10 years. So don't rush out to buy a new table or even bother to call in a repairman.

The elementary wooden mechanism of most of these tables that take extra leaves is quite easy to understand. In order to have them extended to considerable length and still be sturdy and free of wobbles, heavy, solid free-sliding but closely fitted support must be placed under the tabletops.

If you will look under your own table, you will see these pieces nested closely together. The trouble starts when these pieces start rubbing together, creating the friction that interferes with easy sliding.

The thing to do is to eliminate the friction. The table should be extended its full length so that the sides of the sliding pieces are exposed as much as possible. While in this position, coat the sides with ordinary petroleum jelly or Vaseline.

There is nothing else quite as good for this job as it is clean, won't dry out and won't harden. It is best applied with a soft rag or brush, and very little is required.

After the application, open and close the table several times to ensure an even and thorough spreading of the lubricant.

Q. I am surrounded by fake stuff such as bathroom fixtures that used to be made of porcelain in the good old days and now is made out of something that after a couple of years of use never looks clean, although I have been using Soft Scrub.

What else can I use to make the surfaces look clean without damaging the surface? — Bertha M. K.

A. I suggest you try some of the following methods, but I regret there is no guarantee they will work:

Try removing stains with a strong solution of oxalic acid, available at drugstores, using a dish mop to apply the acid. Then rinse well with clear water.

The second method is to make a thick paste of scratchless scouring powder and peroxide, adding a small amount of cream of tartar. Rub on the stains and allow it to remain about one hour, then rinse off with clear water.

Or try a solution of two-thirds cup trisodium phosphate, one-third cup detergent, one quart household bleach and three quarts warm water. Scrub briskly with this solution and then rinse well.

Q. We put wallboard over plaster walls that were in bad shape. We filled the joints between panels with plastic spackling compound. Now I notice the cracks are getting wider.

Can it be the wallboard was damp and is drying out, or did the compound cause this? — Eyan Joe. M.

A. The wallboard may have been damp, as you suggest.

However, an additional step should have been taken when filling the cracks: That is to cover the cracks with a perforated tape made for this purpose, and then apply the spackle. This gives a much more satisfactory result.

It is easy to do and any hardware dealer or masonry supplies dealer can quickly demonstrate how to use it.

Mainly For Seniors

By John T. Watts

It's a racket jungle out there

Dear John: It seems to me after watching TV and perusing some of the scandal tabloids in the grocery store, that everyone is out for your buck — particularly if you are a senior citizen.

And you would think there are cures for everything in the world, including falling hair, sexual inadequacy, arthritis and obesity.

A fellow in a truck stopped by the house yesterday. He had an out-of-state license. He said he could see I needed a new roof and better get it before the rains came. He wasn't in business here, said he just happened to have a surplus load of roof material on his truck and would repair my roof for a ridiculous amount.

He said all it needed was oil, that it was drying out and would be cracking.

What kind of a chump did he take me for? Was there some secret sign on the front of my place that said easy mark, pigeon or maybe senior citizen? — S.E.G.

Dear S.E.G.: It's true that senior citizens seem to be marked. There's a jungle out there, so far as animals are concerned who want to take your money.

What you can do about it? Keep yourself as well informed as possible. That one about oiling your roof surprises me. It's a real old racket and was specialized in by a family who changed their name practically every day. It would serve no purpose to repeat it here.

Health rackets are perhaps the crudest of all. There's no cure yet for such things as arthritis, although the scientists are supposed to be working on it. Just the same, it makes me cringe when one of our readers writes in for the arthritis leaflet, referring to "your cure." To repeat, there's no such thing.

Our little inexpensive home remedies will give relief to many sufferers, sometimes quickly, sometimes not so quickly. If you want to try them, fine. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to this column. They're free, but donations are appreciated to help with the Mainly for Seniors printing and handling.

But don't go buying any land on the moon yet.

Dear John: I am looking for a remedy for allergy. My nose drains most of the time.

It is taking my strength. I sneeze, have a sore head with hives, earache and pain in my throat.

I can't afford the doctors' prices, am 78 years old and live alone. Have no relatives around. Maybe you don't need all this, but will appreciate any information. — Cleona K.

Dear Cleona: Surely you have Social Security and/or SSI and can find a doctor who will accept what they pay.

There is no way that your condition could be explained by long distance, even by a dermatologist. Sometimes the pollen in the air causes sneezing and nose running. People even have been known to move to get away from it.

Dear John: Millie W. should try coating her lips, tongue, etc., with milk of magnesia several times a day. Don't swallow it, though.

I cured a much less severe similar case with it. It's alkaline. Also, many could be helped by a book. I was put on disability with severe gastric enteritis. I also have arthritis. Neither responded to treatment.

The book is "The Allergy Self Help Book," by Rodale Books, Rodale Press Inc., 33 E. Minor St., Emmaus, PA 18049, at $16.95. (I am not being paid to write this.) I suggest everyone with problems that aren't responding to treatment try that book. — Quintin P.

TWEEN 12 & 20

By Robert Wallace, E.D.

Dr. Wallace: I would like to respond to your column where you state that "clothes make the person."

I agree with your views as such, but thank you and your readers should consider other factors, as well.

I am the fourth of 16 children, and we were extremely disadvantaged economically. I wore hand-me-downs, and clothes purchased at the Goodwill and the Salvation Army. The first time I had new clothes and a new pair of shoes was after I graduated from high school and was making my own way in the world.

My clothes were always clean, neat and well pressed, but you would not believe the amount of constant teasing and criticism from fellow students to which I was subjected, especially in junior high and high school.

I was called "ragpicker," "white trash" and worse. I could count on the fingers of one hand the people who, in my teenage years, were able to look beyond the fact that I was poor and only had two dresses and one pair of shoes but yet I was a bright, sensitive, talented human being with many good qualities.

— Marge
Marge: Amen! It's not the quality or value of one's clothes, it's the manner in which they are worn that is of importance.

Dr. Wallace: I am a grandmother but I'm a faithful reader of your column. If you permit, I'd like to do a personal response to parents who smoke and teens who encourage them to stop. In our case, at least for my husband's sake, it ended on a happy note.

When our son was 15 he pestered his father to quit smoking. His dad did quit for a couple of short times but alas he always started up again.

When our son was 20 he died unexpectedly and his father gave up smoking forever on that day "because Larry wanted it that way."

My husband had been a heavy smoker for over 30 years and today he can't stand the smell of smoke. So — teens, keep on nagging your parents if they are smokers. When they quit, they will love you for it. — Irene

Irene: Thanks for taking the time to help a teen. Your message will also make a lot of smoking parents "THINK."

Dr. Wallace: My mother won't allow me to wear contact lenses because she said they are bad for one's eyes.

I hate wearing glasses. Can you convince her that contact lenses are OK? — Beverly

Beverly: According to a report published in the Journal of the American Optometric Association, two-thirds of the teens who switched to contact lenses enjoyed improved social and athletic participation and 60 percent said they received significantly higher grades.

Ask Mom to please make an appointment with an optometrist who will give her the good word on contact lenses.

Dr. Wallace: I really need your help.

About a month ago my boyfriend and I ran away from home, but we were caught and returned to our parents.

Now my parents are being very strict. They made me take down all the posters and sexy pictures from my wall. Next, they took away all my albums because they said they were a bunch of devil worship. Then they took away my black jacket and tight jeans.

To me, it feels like the end of the world. Also, I'm grounded.

My mom says that the only way to get some of my privileges back is to give of myself until it hurts. I'm confused and don't know what to do. Help! I'm tired of being in trouble. — Greta Greta: What Mom means is that you've got to change your way of living — and she is right. Start incorporating honesty, trustworthiness, loyalty, understanding, forgiveness and sharing into your everyday life, and most of your troubles will melt away. It's worth giving it a try to see if I'm right.

Dr. Wallace: My mother has been divorced four times and at this moment her boyfriend is living with us.

I am 17 and love my mother very much but I hate her boyfriend. He is crude, filthy and, I'm sure, an alcoholic.

I have a chance to move in with my grandmother in another town, but it would mean that I would have to move to St. Louis and graduate from a different and strange high school. Actually, I don't have a boyfriend and making new friends is easy for me.

Should I leave home and the mother I dearly love or should I put plugs in my ears and just "hang in there" until I graduate? — Coleen

Coleen: Since you are going to leave home in a year anyway, eliminate this disgusting, despicable nightmare of a man now. Move in with Grandmother as soon as possible.

WIN A BIG PRIZE!

DRAW A LINE TO CONNECT EACH PAIR OF THINGS THAT GO TOGETHER. THEN COLOR THIS CONTEST PICTURE.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Autumn has arrived and with it, of course, the falling leaves. How pretty they are to see, with their bright colors and interesting shapes! Still, leaves can be dangerous. When they get wet they become slippery and sometimes they cause bikes to skid. Leaf piles can also tempt little people to play in the street.

So, please, enjoy the leaves, but also remember that they have certain dangers for yourselves and especially for younger children. Your special friend,
Aunt Tilly

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are Jennifer Cerrone and John Baker.

BOYS AND GIRLS:
Here is your chance to win One Dollar ($1.00) - to spend or to save.

Here's all you have to do:

- Contest is open to children 4 to 12 years of age.
- Entries must be received by Friday, October 12, 1984
- Paint, watercolor and crayons must be used on the above.
- Decision of the Judges will be final.

Points On Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. A permanent guest in our home routinely uses sleeping pills. We are worried that our very curious 3-year-old Pomeranian will find and eat some of them.

Are sleeping pills poisonous for pets? What should we do if the dog ingests some of them?

A. Ingestion of sleeping pills can be very serious in dogs. The seriousness of the situation depends on the nature of the particular pills and the number of pills ingested.

If you believe the dog has eaten sleeping pills you should take the dog to a veterinarian immediately. This is a serious emergency situation.

If you cannot take the dog to a veterinarian immediately, you should try to make the dog vomit. There are many ways to make dogs vomit.

One method is to mix equal parts of hydrogen peroxide and water and then administer orally at the rate of 1½ tablespoons for each 10 pounds of body weight. Vomiting should occur within a few minutes.

If you do not have any hydrogen peroxide, you can dissolve 2 teaspoons of table salt in a cup of warm water. Another method is to dissolve 1 tablespoon of mustard powder in a cup of warm water.

You should not try to make an unconscious dog vomit. If your dog has lost consciousness, take him to a veterinarian at once.

Of course the best treatment for poisoning by ingestion of sleeping pills is prevention. Perhaps you could keep your dog out of your guest's quarter.

Q. What are the signs of rabies in dogs? Our neighbor girl recently was bitten by a rabid dog. The dog did not act very unusual. Are there any signs that all rabid dogs display?

A. Many rabid dogs do not exhibit signs that are very unusual. During the latter stages of the disease most rabid dogs are extremely lethargic, "dumb rabies," or extremely aggressive, "furious rabies."

Dogs with furious rabies usually are irritated by everything that moves or makes noise, will race around chasing their tails and attack anything that moves.

These dogs are very alert and anxious and usually have dilated pupils.

Dogs with either furious rabies or dumb rabies can sometimes transmit the rabies virus several days prior to exhibiting any of these behavioral signs.

The first signs of rabies may be no different from those seen with digestive upsets, injuries, poisonings or many infectious diseases. A sharp change in behavior usually precedes signs of either the dumb form or the furious form. A very friendly, pleasant dog may become extremely irritable and an excitable dog may become quite subdued.

Rabies is a disease of the nervous system. It is caused by a virus that is transmitted in the saliva of rabid animals.

The most usual way humans or dogs get rabies is through the bite of a rabid animal. Contact of infected saliva with any skin sore or lesion can transmit the disease. You should never go near any animal thought to have rabies. Animal control officers should be contacted to capture any animal thought to have rabies.

Rabies is an extremely serious disease and very few animals or people having the disease survive. It is a gross understatement to say that prevention is the best treatment. Humans, that work in occupations where exposure to rabid animals is a possibility can be vaccinated against the disease. All dogs and cats should be on rabies vaccination programs.
