Family Size	Yearly	Monthly	Weekly
One	$ 6,474	$ 540	$125
Two	8,736	728	$168

Eight	22,308	1,859	$429
For each additional family member add	$ 2,262	$ 189	$ 44

Families with incomes at or below the amount of money listed above for their family size may be eligible for and are urged to apply for free milk and lunch. They may do so by filling in the application forms sent home in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year to the Building Principal. If a family member becomes employed, if the family size decreases, or if your family income increases by more than $50 per month or $600 per year, the family must contact the school to file a new application. The form requests information needed to determine economic need based on the income and the number of persons in the family. The information provided on the application will be confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility.

The school district, does, however, have the right to verify at any time during the school year the information on the application. If a parent does not give the school this information, the child (children) will no longer be able to receive free milk and lunch.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. A family may wish to apply for milk and lunch for them and should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy the designated official will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the designated official, he/she may make a request either orally or in writing for a hearing to appeal the decision. Director of Special Education and Pupil Personnel Services, whose address is Division Avenue at 6th Street, Hicksville, N.Y. 11801 has been designated as the Hearing Official. Hearing procedures are outlined in the policy. However, prior to initiating the hearing procedure, the parent or School Food Authority may request a conference to provide an opportunity for the parent and official to discuss the situation, present information, and obtain an explanation of the data submitted in the application or the decisions rendered. The request for a conference shall not in any way prejudice or diminish the right to a fair hearing.

The policy also provides that there will be no identification of or discrimination against any student unable to pay the full cost of the milk and lunch.

All questions on the application must be answered completely for the application to be considered by the school district for approval. In addition, the parent or guardian must sign the application form, certifying the information is true and correct.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child shall be discriminated against because of his race, sex, color, national origin, age or handicap.

A complete copy of the policy is on file in each school's principal's office and in the office of the School Food Authority District Administrator where it may be reviewed by any interested persons.

Shamrocks Beat Auburndale

By Karen Blicher

The Hicksville Shamrocks 1974 boys traveling team, led by the superb goaltending of Brian Pine, defeated the Auburndale Trojans at Cantiague Park Saturday 3-1. It marked the fifth straight win for the Shamrocks.

Hampered by ever-shifting winds, with the advantage taken away often, the offense was nevertheless explosive. Goals were scored by Matthew Pordum unassisted, Jared Jacobs on a Gregg Furst assist, and Eric Blicher assisted by Todd Meringoff. Hicksville demonstrated a super defense effort, constantly supporting each other and repelling any attack that Auburndale tried to mount.

Team members are: Chris Doyle, Matt Pordum, Brian Pine, Todd Meringoff, David Lovato, Ted Knoop, Jason Kingsley, Eddie Jacobsen, Jared Jacobs, Brian Harkins, Gregg Grusso, Gregg Furst, Joe Flanagan and Eric Blicher...great soccer players, all! Once again, thanks to coach John Flanagan and assistants Pete Knoop and Par Harkins for amassing this group of "winners".

Man Arrested For Ins. Fraud

A 24 year old Bethpage man was arrested in Hicksville at 5:55 p.m., October 12, charged with Insurance Fraud First Degree.

Anthony V. Laterza, a Land Developer, of 246, 8th St. had allegedly made a claim with an Insurance Company that his vehicle had been stolen, in an amount exceeding $1,500 dollars. He was also charged with the unlawful possession of a VIN plate for a 1965 Chevrolet Corvette. Both charges are felonies.

Children at the Hicksville Nursery School visited Flasky's Farms in Brookville where they picked their own Halloween pumpkins. On Wednesday, October 31, all the children will help carve the pumpkin, scoop out the pulp and seeds so that they can toast the seeds for their morning snack. Such early cooking experiences help to stimulate life-long interests in nature and science.

Our Children

By Willard Abraham
Ph.D.

Q. I wonder how many other families are enjoying this political year with their children. Ours are teenagers, and they're as hot on the issues as we are. My wife and I represent different points of view and party support, and so do the youngsters (they are 13 and 15 years old).

Dinnertime conversations have been a lot of fun recently (we've kept them calm — so far!), and I find myself listening and learning as much as I hope they do. They have often read newspaper and magazine articles that my wife and I may have missed, although I sometimes suspect they cite reports and surveys that they create in their own minds to support their point of view.

These discussions have helped us alert them to the fact that editorializing isn't always limited to the editorial pages, that it can evolve from the placement as well as content of a newspaper article. They also are aware that in the heat of a political campaign statements are made on all sides that are exaggerated or false, so it takes some careful analysis to check them out.

I hope this productive experience isn't unique to our family.

A. I hope so, too. With the voting opportunities young people now have, the early start you've made seems especially important. Parents can begin even sooner, of course, carefully limiting content and time involved to the children's understanding level.

Enjoyment, knowledge and reasoning abilities are among the bottom lines.

Q. Is it unreasonable to ask a 12-year-old to help around the house when there are two younger children and a single, working mother to complete the family?

It seems so obvious to me that my need requires some attention. I'm just too tired every day to carry the burden of work as well as making meals, shopping, doing the dishes, laundry and all the rest.

The little ones are 3 and 5 years old and in nursery school and kindergarten, but they still require a lot of morning and evening time.

I just need help, and hope you can suggest ways I can get it.

A. Yes, you obviously do, but it can probably best be obtained through calmness and reasonable expectations.

It is difficult to start the process when a child is 12 and that youngster's responsibilities have been limited or non-existent up to the present. However, it will never be earlier, so a start now is necessary.

With his or her assistance you might prepare a written list of household chores, and then check off which of them each of you can handle individually or through sharing. You might even include the small children in the process.

for there are some things they can do (picking up clothes and toys, selectively clearing the mealtime table and drying non-breakable items, for example).

The list can be posted and checked off each day. As time goes on, the children's responsibilities can slowly be expanded.

Rewards may have a place in all of this. An occasional movie or meal out may fit into your budget, with the older one being part of the family unit enjoying these outings or going with a friend.

Please let me know how it works out if you try these ideas or variations of them.

A high school student next door to us has offered to help out, and it wouldn't cost much.

What do you think?

A. Why not go for it? It doesn't sound like much of a gamble, if it's done carefully.

It may be a good idea for the high school student to make two contacts before starting — one with your son and the other with his teacher. The first could be to establish some rapport (not necessary, if they already have a friendly relationship) and the second to receive some guidance on the specific reading problems to deal with and suggested materials to use.

Q. I'm thinking about getting a tutor for our 8-year-old, but would like your advice before deciding.

His teacher told me that he is lagging behind in reading and really needs some help. I'm aware of that problem, too. When I sit down and read with him, he stumbles along even on easy stuff. My husband feels strongly that I can tutor him and save some money. (He's stingy about everything, but that's another problem.)

I just don't have the patience, and sometimes I lose my temper when he reads to me. It's just boring and so hard to listen to the struggling with words he goes through.

'Invisible' dental braces

Q. I have a small space between my front teeth and I have heard so much about the new invisible braces that I have considered trying them. Since I am 42 years old, I would feel uncomfortable in any brace that is obvious.

A. Are they really "invisible"? Is there any pain in having them put on and how long would I have to wear them? — L.F.

A. Invisible braces, or lingual braces, are a recent innovation in orthodontic treatment of malocclusions (misaligned teeth).

Instead of the braces being placed on the front surface, they are placed on the back surface of the teeth. This allows the teeth to be moved to the proper position without the embarrassment of showing braces.

The braces themselves are not really invisible; they just cannot be seen because they are behind the teeth.

Generally, treatment with lingual braces takes 25 percent longer than the traditional method.

The length of time for treatment depends on the nature of the malocclusion. For severe malocclusion, involving both the upper and lower dental arches, treatment may take from 2 to 3 years.

On less complex malocclusions, treatment is significantly shorter. If the problem is simply a small space between the upper dental arch, then treatment time could be as short as 3 to 4 months.

In summary, lingual braces, otherwise known as "invisible braces," are an aesthetic way for an adult to undergo orthodontic correction of a malocclusion. Total treatment time may be slightly longer and the cost may be more because of the length in treatment time.

Should you be interested in obtaining more information, I would suggest you see an orthodontist who has had training in the use of lingual appliances.

Information can be obtained through the San Diego County Dental Society or through the American Association of Orthodontics. — Dr. Joel Berger, cleft palate team and cranial-facial team, University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Q. I have found out that I have been exposed to a type of tuberculosis known as mycobacterium intracellulare. I have never heard of this disease and thought tuberculosis was rare.

Is this treatable, what are the symptoms and is it contagious? — L.S.

A. Tuberculosis remains a relatively common disorder, particularly in ports-of-entry in the United States.

However, the vast majority of patients with TB are infected with the organism Mycobacterium Tuberculosis. Such patients are contagious; but we have a number of drugs which are effective in treating them and their contacts.

Mycobacterium intracellulare is an unusual cause of tuberculous infection. This bacterium has, thus far, not been clearly shown to be capable of person-to-person transmission. It can be treated, but the treatment is less reliably effective than from M. Tuberculosis.

The symptoms with both forms of infection are the same, although M. Intracellulare tends to infect patients whose immune systems are depressed.

These two bacteria can, and should, be differentiated by careful laboratory studies. — Dr. Kenneth M. Moser, director, pulmonary and critical care division of the department of medicine, University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Your Social Security

Cost-efficient Medicare is goal

Q. I recently read something about prospective payment for hospitals. Just what is it? — R.D.

A. Until Oct. 1, 1983, Medicare reimbursed hospitals based on the actual cost of treatment of various illnesses. Under prospective payment, inpatient hospital services are paid based on the type of case, identified by diagnostic group, according to rates set by the secretary of Health and Human Services. This was another step to make Medicare cost-efficient.

Q. Am I required to answer all the questions on the Social Security application? — M.B.

A. No, you are not required to answer all the questions. However, refusal to do so could affect your right to benefits or the amount of benefits.

Q. I am staying in a nursing home and I get $25 a month SSI. I am planning to move to an apartment and be by myself. Will this affect my SSI? — E.B.

A. Living alone in your own apartment would increase your federal SSI payment to the maximum. It is important that you report to the Social Security Administration immediately when you leave the nursing home.

Q. I have just received a record of my earnings but I don't believe I have been credited for all the work I've done under Social Security. What should I do? — J.S.

A. Contact your local Social Security office and provide the following information: your Social Security number, the periods of employment involved, the wages paid you in each period and the employer's name and address. If you have W-2s (withholding tax statements), pay stubs and other proof of wages they should be submitted to the Social Security office.

Backyard Gardener

Time to think

By Patrick Denton

For those who would enjoy incorporating into their Christmas decoration this year the vibrant, festive blooms of the amaryllis, it's time now to start this satisfying project.

Amaryllis bulbs can be planted from October through April, and they are usually available at local garden centers and nurseries during that period. They take from six to 10 weeks from potting to bloom, depending on the bulb itself and the temperature in which it is placed.

For blooms beginning the week before Christmas, taking an average of eight weeks from potting to bloom, we should plan on potting our amaryllis bulbs during the third weeks of October. It's nice to have the blooms a little before Christmas day, to add to the festive expectancy, and the flowers do last for two or three weeks if they're kept away from hot sun and high heat.

Last fall, I was rather surprised by some unusual planting instructions that came with trial amaryllis bulbs right from Holland. These advised sitting the large bulb atop a cup or glass with the water level up to the base of the bulb and the roots soaking in water for five days prior to planting.

Always eager to try something new, I did this with my four new amaryllis bulbs. I trimmed away all damaged and darkened root ends first, and added a pinch of water-soluble 15-30-15 to the water. After the five days I potted the bulbs in the usual way, and never have we had such gorgeous amaryllis. This year I plan to try the same method with some of my saved bulbs.

Here is how you pot a new amaryllis bulb. Use a fairly deep flowerpot about two inches wider across than the bulb. For most bulbs a seven-inch deep pot is right. Place some broken crockery or clean gravel at the bottom for drainage and partly fill the pot with a rich but light and airy soil. I used purchased potting soil mixed and lightened with peat moss and vermiculite, with about a teaspoon of bone meal added per potful.

To place the amaryllis bulb in its pot without damaging the delicate roots, I like to form a cone of soil in the middle of the pot. Then the roots can be arranged so that they hang down evenly around this cone of soil. Holding the bulb in one hand, I then gradually sprinkle additional soil around and over the roots until they are well covered. The bulb should end up with between one-third and one-half its length above the soil level.

The soil mix should be slightly damp at this time, and it should be just gently firmed down around the bulb. Watering should not then be necessary at potting, and little water should be given for the following two weeks. If the top layer of soil appears to have dried, give just enough lukewarm water to moisten the soil and never water from below.

Your potted amaryllis should be kept in light and at warm room temperatures. Amaryllis are tropical plants, and like warm feet. Once the flower stalk begins to appear, watering can be stepped up to accommodate this rapid growth. The fat-flower stalk will grow very fast, then slow down, then unfold its flower petals. The lush, arching leaves may appear at the same time as the flower stalk, or a little later.

The tremendous speed with which the amaryllis grows offers a fine opportunity for children's project. A school-age child might enjoy starting an amaryllis diary or time line with the potting of the bulb.

On to this record, which could be decorated with the child's artistic renderings of the plant's progress, could go such events as the first green shoot appearing at the top of the bulb, daily measurements of growth, first sign of color in the buds, full bloom, end of bloom.

In next week's column, I'll be giving some guidelines for after-bloom care of your amaryllis, and explain what to do with bulbs you've saved from last year.

Eat Yourself Slim

Eating sensibly on the trail

By Shirley Bright Boody
Registered Dietitian

What kinds of food can you take on backpacking or camping trips that will give you all the nutrition you need, but are lightweight and easily prepared? Sometimes the answers to these questions seem more formidable to the inexperienced camper than any tough trails he may encounter.

Hiking, like running, is an endurance experience, and it calls for an increase in calories, especially complex carbohydrates, and an increase in liquids to prevent dehydration. A backpacker can easily burn up to 1,000 extra calories per day with the greatly increased expenditure of energy. As much as 2 to 3 extra quarts of water may be required by the avid hiker during the day.

Keeping everybody healthy and well nourished on the trail can only be accomplished if every meal and snack is preplanned. Carbohydrate-rich foods will be the main source of energy, and fortunately some of the highest nutrient foods are also lightweight and easily carried.

When planning all the meals and snacks that will be eaten in the wilderness, the easiest way is to keep them separated in individually marked bags identifying breakfast, lunch, dinner and snacks. It may take a little extra time before you leave, but when you're out there, it will save a lot of hassle.

The breakfast bags might contain such things as powdered orange drink mix, dry powdered milk, powdered eggs, instant oatmeal, dried fruit, granola, pancake mix, and syrup, jams or jellies in plastic tubes. Water is all that is needed to reconstitute these foods, and sufficient quantities should be taken. If you are lucky, you may run into clean, sparkling streams to replenish your supply along the way.

The lunch bags may contain different hard cheeses, tuna or other fish packed in plastic tubes, whole grain crackers, peanut butter, cold meats, dried fruits, rolls, powdered milk or cocoa mixes, instant breakfast mixes taken at any meal or snack. Granola bars and nuts.

For dinner, chicken or beef stews in Ziploc bags, instant noodle rice, potato mixes that need only powdered milk and water, dried vegetables and fruits, macaroni and cheese mixes, dried meat jerky, fruit leathers, instant drink mixes including fruits, coffee and milk. Crackers and potato or corn chips may come in handy.

Snacks of granola bars, nuts, seeds, dried fruits, gorp and pemmican, instant drink mixes and even some hard candies may help get you over the mountain.

What are gorp and pemmican? They are quick energy snacks made of dried fruits, nuts, seeds and almost anything else you would like to add. Here is a super fruit and nut gorp that is easily made, and put into individual plastic bags that hungry hikers can eat anytime they are hungry:

SUPER GORP

- 1 cup chopped dates
- 1 cup raisins
- 1 cup chopped dried peaches or apricots
- 1 cup dried pineapple bits
- 1 cup cashews
- 1 cup walnuts
- 1 cup almonds
- 1 cup macadamia nuts and/or dried coconut

Pemmican is similar to gorp except that the foods that are used are ground together, so a food grinder or processor is necessary to its preparation. Once ground up, the mixture can be formed into any size or shape.

It can be put into a loaf pan and stored in the refrigerator for a day or two, and then sliced like a cake, or it can be rolled into individual balls or squares (which hold up the best during a long hike). Some people use it like a jelly roll and simply slice it into patties. Any way you do it, you will enjoy its rich flavors and great nutrition.

When wrapped in airtight packages it can last for several months. Try this fruit and seed pemmican recipe. A whole season's supply is easily made in an afternoon:

TRAIL PEMMICHAN

- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1/2 cup dried figs (stems removed)
- 1/2 cup dates
- 1/2 cup currants
- 1/2 cup shredded coconut
- 1/2 cup pine nuts
- 1/2 cup sunflower seeds
- 1/2 cup almonds or cashews
- 1/2 cup sesame seeds
- 1/2 cup grape juice

In large bowl, mix all ingredients except grape juice; grind together according to directions in food processor or food grinder. Pour enough grape juice over mixture to moisten and roll into balls, adding more grape juice as needed. Let it air dry, and cover lightly with foil or paper. After three days, roll into individual balls and store in airtight jars or plastic bags.

Makes about 24 balls.

Vet Hospital
Given Approval

Oyster Bay Town Councilman John Venditto announced that the Town Board had granted a special use permit to Stephen A. Arnold, D.V.M., P.C., and the 4111 Hempstead Turnpike Corporation to operate and maintain a veterinary hospital and practice in Bethpage, subject to fifteen covenants and restrictions.

Venditto said, "the Town Board imposed the covenants to allay concerns expressed by neighborhood residents at a hearing held on August 7. The restrictions include that only part of the structure be utilized as an animal hospital and that there be no additional expansion of the animal hospital without Town Board approval."

Additionally strict requirements were established for soundproofing the facility, for odor containment and for the disposal of all animal wastes and surgical materials. Another covenant requires that the building maintain a fire detection and burglar alarm system connected to a central station service.

The property, located in a "G" (General Business) District, is a one-story building on the north side of Bethpage Turnpike (Hempstead-Farmingdale Road) west of Stewart Avenue.

Venditto added that no building permits for certificate of occupancy will be issued until a site plan has been submitted and approved by the Town Board.

This year, Senator Dunne acted successfully to exclude social security benefits from New York personal income taxes, and to end mandatory retirement based on age in most public and private sector jobs.

Senator Dunne was there to fight for the first senior citizen real property tax exemption in 1966, enacted as a means of helping the elderly keep and maintain their property, and has voted for each improvement in that law for the last 18 years.

Today, Senator Dunne is continuing his fight to extend real property tax reductions and credits to even more low income and elderly renters and homeowners.

Candidates Visit Bethpage GOP

Representative Norman F. Lent, center, who is seeking his eighth term in the U.S. House of Representatives this November, was the guest of honor at the October meeting of the Bethpage Republican Club. Lent, Long Island's senior Congressman, urged all the club members in attendance to return President Ronald Reagan and Vice President George Bush to office to finish the "outstanding job they have done in bringing America back from four years of malaise and mismanagement under the Carter-Mondale Administration." Pictured are, left to right: George Yochmann, Bethpage Republican Leader; Oyster Bay Town Councilman Sal Mosca, candidate for the District Court; Rep. Lent; Kevin Galloway, President of the Bethpage Republican Club; and Burt Joseph, candidate for Nassau County Family Court.

Club President Kevin Galloway welcomed United States Congressman Norman F. Lent, New York State Assemblyman Philip B. Healey and District Court Judge Burton Joseph as honored guests at the most recent meeting of the Theodore Roosevelt Republican Club of Bethpage on October 8. Congressman Lent (R-C 4th C.D.), who is seeking reelection in November, discussed a number of important national issues, particularly those concerning taxes and the economy. Assemblyman Healey (R-C 12th A.D.), who is also seeking reelection, discussed many important issues before the State Legislature, and commented upon his efforts to provide legislation protecting the benefits of disabled veterans and pension recipients. Judge Joseph, who is a candidate for Judge of the Nassau County Family Court, enlivened the meeting with a genial discussion of his background and qualifications. Councilman Salvatore R. Mosca, who is a member of the Club, is himself a candidate for Judge of the Family Court, and he too discussed his qualifications for such a position. George Yochmann, Executive Leader of the Bethpage GOP Organization, remarked that "Each of these men has held public office for many years, mainly because they have shown their constituents a true dedication to serve the people they represent. It really is our privilege to welcome such fine officials from all levels of government, and they certainly made it an exciting evening for us." At the close of the meeting, the candidates met and spoke informally with the more than 100 Club members in attendance, over refreshments provided by the Club.

PRAYER TO ST. JUDE
Most holy apostle St. Jude, faithful servant and friend of Jesus, the name of the traitor who delivered thy beloved Master into the hands of His enemies has caused thee to be forgotten by many, but the Church honors and invokes thee universally, as the patron of hopeless cases, of things despaired of. Pray for me who am so miserable; make use I implore thee, of that particular privilege accorded to thee, to bring visible and speedy help where help is almost despaired of. Come to my assistance in this great need that I may receive the consolations and succor of heaven in all my necessities, tribulations, and sufferings, and that I may bless God with thee and all the elect forever. I promise thee, O blessed St. Jude, to be ever mindful of this great favor, and I will never cease to honor thee as my special and powerful patron and to do all in my power to encourage devotion to thee. hN1

It's up to us.

New York State is a great state in which to live, work and raise a family. We can be proud of our place in world commerce, industry and in the quality of our lives. But one of our greatest sources of pride is often overlooked, that being our huge forest preserves, wetland and marsh areas, and abundant fish and wildlife.

Now New Yorkers have an opportunity to help protect this unique heritage of wildlife so vital to the quality of life we all enjoy. "Return a Gift to Wildlife" is a program into which you may voluntarily contribute when you complete your state tax form. By checking off Line 18 on the long form or Line 12 on the short form, you can make a contribution to the New York State Conservation Fund. Monies collected have been dedicated by the State Finance Law to the protection, management and extension of wildlife in our great state.

The Need Has Never Been Greater

Hard economic times dictate hard financial decisions. This year, the federal government has already eliminated endangered species aid, jeopardizing the restoration of a number of birds and animals native to New York. In addition, thousands of acres of grassland, wetland, marshland and forest that are critical to the survival or extension of New York's wildlife are eliminated or disrupted each year. The New York State "Return a Gift to Wildlife" program is an important step towards a lasting solution to these problems and an investment in the future of our wildlife.

Return a Gift to Wildlife

An Effective Program

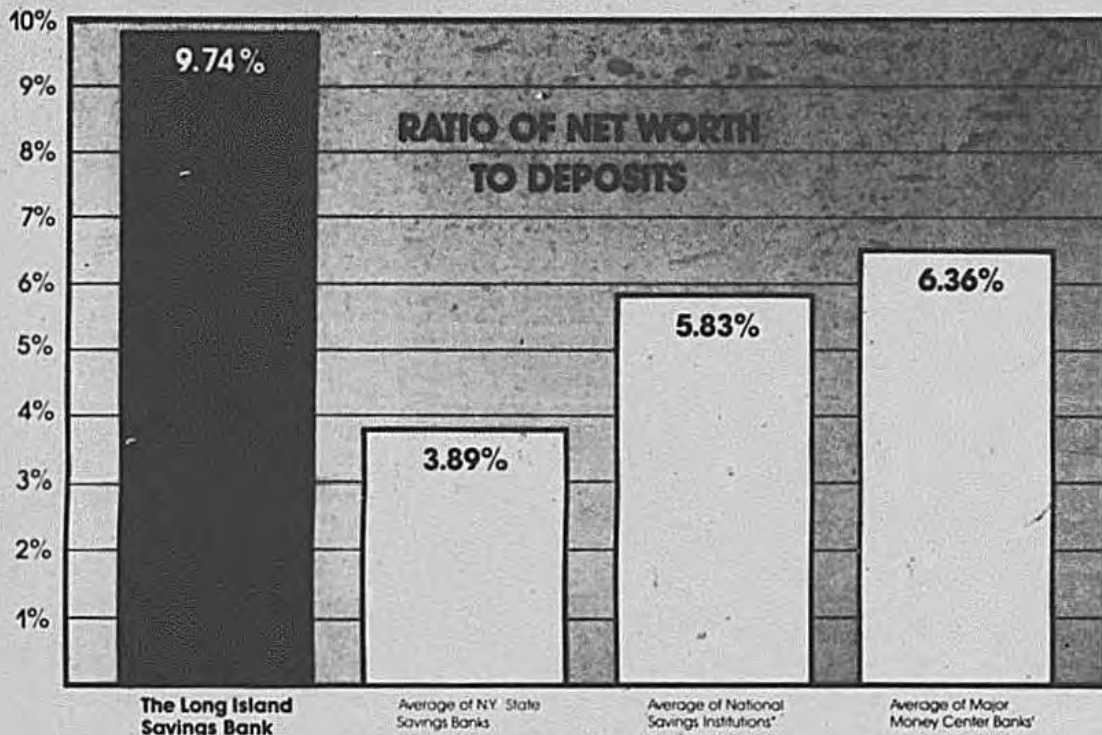

Like the environment which only thrives when the whole ecosystem is addressed, the areas of work to be addressed through tax contributions are broad and comprehensive. The largest single element is earmarked for habitat protection so critical to wildlife perpetuation. A species management program will be strengthened to help maintain all species of fish and wildlife at desirable population levels for human enjoyment. A third element is the public use program which will provide increased opportunities for enjoying fish and wildlife. Lastly, the plan calls for greater awareness development of fish and wildlife values through the creation of better educational resources and information services.

Consider the added dimension wildlife brings to your life. Won't you return a gift through a contribution on Line 18 of the long form or Line 12 of the short form of your State tax return. Your gift is tax deductible on your 1983 tax return.

Most Input Callers Think Debates Had No Effect

Most callers to Input believe that the Presidential debates will not have much effect on the outcome of the election in answer to this question: "Do you think the presidential debates will affect the outcome of the election?"

BORED STIFF

With regard to the first Mondale/Reagan debate, some people may have been scared away from voting for Reagan by his fumbling performance but most people saw "what they wanted to see". In effect, they simply had their original opinions reinforced. The bottom line is that I think most people are bored stiff by debates and would have much rather been watching the Tigers and Padres or pro football.
M.P.

HEARING AID

No, I do not feel the debates should affect the outcome of the Election. I believe Reagan faltered and stammered because of his hearing aid. I wear one and I know it is nerve racking not to hear questions thrown at you. And, vanity has our President wearing the wrong kind. In ear you can't adjust volume. We laugh with him when he says "hold on while I tune you in." Somebody better tip him off.
H.M.

READING BETTER

No, I don't think the Presidential debates will affect the Election. I don't even think that the debates are necessary. People read newspapers and can tell pretty much themselves who they're going to vote for. One fact is the economy and we're all doing better today and I think the Reagan/Bush team is a strong team and they will win. J.M.

ALREADY DECIDED

With respect to the aftermath of the Presidential debates, I believe that those who had already decided to change their traditional voting pattern will probably become even more entrenched in their decision. Deeply dedicated conservatives or liberals will certainly stick by their guns as will organized labor leaders as well as the education bloc. And, of course, the women's rights faction also have set their decision in concrete quite a while ago. There may be some vacillation among the younger breed but not to a major degree. Also, I don't believe that there will be any substantial change among senior citizens but scare tactics employed in the debates could encourage the oldest of seniors to bolt to a more promising advocacy of social security, Medicare, etc. So, my feeling is that the battle lines were drawn a long time ago and the debates have served only to encourage and harden the determination of the Mondale-Ferraro partisans and to shore up some of the weaknesses of the Reagan-Bush camp. Having watched the two debates thus far, as a show I would say that Mondale bested Reagan and Bush enjoyed an edge over Ferraro although Gerry displayed an excellent grasp of the political items she chose to zero in on. As a debate, it was more of an appeal to the sense than a judgemental weighting of comparable qualities, an almost impossible task in view of the comparison of the facts of performance in the Presidential office under fire on the one hand and glittering promises to improve that office on the other. I do believe the debates will have some effect on the outcome but not much. And, needless to say, any predictions are based on a representative voter turnout.
P.G.S.

NO EFFECT

Italian voters will not be swayed by the Presidential debates. Debates are a superficial contest with our blatantly liberal media hounds posing as impartial judges. They purport to tell the world who won based upon their own biased points of view and political partisanship. Since both candidates are thoroughly briefed and have practice debates these staged media events are hardly spontaneous. The positions of both candidates on all issues are well known in advance. One must decide whom to vote for based on these facts, not based on who has the nicest way of dressing or nicest way of speaking. Debates are conducted under pressure. To decide who to vote for or not to vote for because they stumbled over a word or lacked the time to elaborate, in depth, about their position is stupidity of the grossest kind. There are also those who would vote for a candidate simply because of their religion, ethnic group or sex. The case of Gerry Ferraro is a case in point when many women are voting for her irrespective of her position on the issues simply because she is a woman. People lack the brains to discern the issues at all. Their minds are made up and a debate will not impact upon their decision. I don't believe the Presidential debates will affect the outcome of the election whatsoever. People have already made up their minds who they are going to vote for.

NO INCUMBENTS

I do not think the Presidential debates will affect the outcome of the Election. I think most people are intelligent enough to judge each candidate's record without this TV extravaganza. We also do not need reporters opinions as to who won or who lost as if it was some sort of circus. I also feel an incumbent President should never debate. He can't win because he's in a defensive position even with an excellent record. An attacker always wins a debate.
L.C.

SOME DOUBTS

I don't believe Presidential debates will affect the outcome of this Election. As evidenced by a poll, I think it was a Gallop Poll, which came out October 15 - people who listened and watched the debates were asked questions about them. It was determined that 66% of the people called did watch, 33% did not, they said and then there was that 1%. Without having any other question to ask they decided to throw in the usual "not sure." One percent responded. Would you believe that of the people who were called and asked if they watched the Presidential debates were not sure. They didn't know if they saw the Presidential debates. Who did they think the man with the long hair was? Who did they think the one with the hawk face was? And the lady? And the guy with the glasses? Did they think they were watching Starbuck and Hutch? What's the matter with the people? I don't understand this. So that answers the question. The Presidential debates can't possibly affect the outcome of the election. One percent of the people weren't even sure they saw them and heaven knows maybe the rest of them have some doubt in their minds.

EMBARRASSMENT

The debates have been an embarrassment for all concerned. The format set by the League of Women Voters was boring. The questions posed were mostly unanswered directly and only proved the fact that politicians will always skirt the issue and never give direct answers. Surprisingly Mrs. Ferraro proved to be the most guilty of this tactic. She never really gave a direct answer. Did anyone notice this? Instead she attacked the opposition on every occasion possible. P.S. As a woman. I would call to mind the fact that Gerry looked a whole lot older than her supposed 49 years. So, if people choose to ridicule President Reagan for his appearance, take a look at her. The other most annoying thing is the wrap up afterwards by all the TV commentators and their guests. I think Gov. Cuomo should stay in Albany and try to clean up his state and act rather than pose as an "election Advisor."

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

It has been estimated that the price of a college education will reach over $100,000 for a four year education within a decade. Do you think that this will turn college back to the days when only the wealthy could afford it?

DISCOVERY

You Might Be Able To Do It Yourself

By Gerard T. Mulvihill

Don't you think the time has come to look objectively at the subjectivity of working with your hands, the much heralded phenomenon rising in popularity since the 50's? A great number of "How-To" books fill the shelves of homes, garages, and libraries; not to mention the frequent items in the daily papers and of course, the magazines wholly devoted to such matters.

A person, either sex, runs the risk of being swept into participation by all the blatant encouragement going on from this handyman and that expert. The irresistible tide caught me many years ago and I'm told millions like me form a huge section of our population today. Maintaining. Repairing. Doing.

There are those who specialize and there are people like me to tackle everything and anything. In retrospect I think one might be better off specializing. For example. How about furniture...building, restoring, refinishing? Or, if that's not your interest...auto mechanics? Maintenance...Tune-ups. Minor to major repairs or body work. Or plumbing? Fixing leaky faucets, installing a new toilet, etc. The possibilities are endless.

Of course, if you're going to get into this area of manual work for therapy and/or economy you'd better understand certain things. And since I've mentioned I'm into doing virtually everything myself, especially the cars, I think a look at my experiences might be helpful.

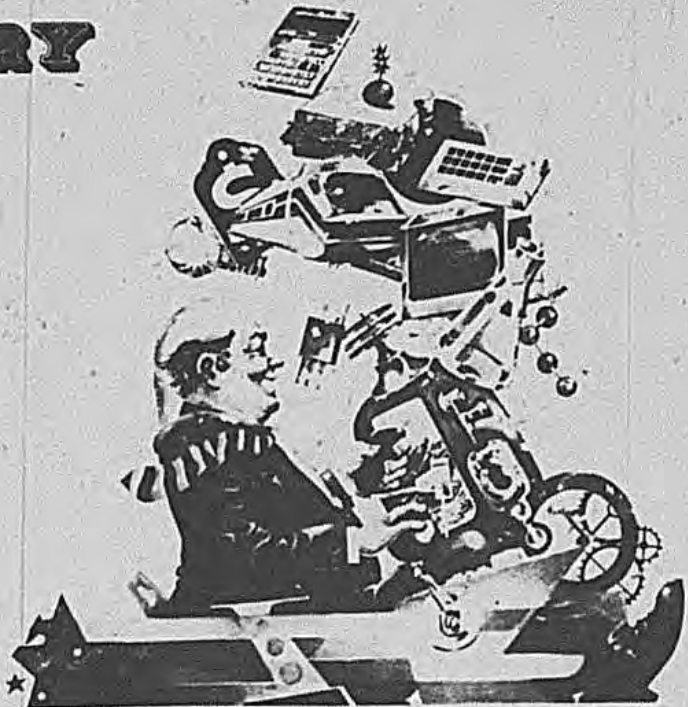

"There is great satisfaction found when I repair the family cars. My wife's car needs an oil and filter change; I do it. My car's due for a tune-up or brake job; I do it. One saves, not only money but, having to drive to the gas station, leave the car and return later. Do the work on your car in your own driveway."

The above quote could be an excerpt from a typical article on car-care found as commonly as dandelions on some lawns throughout the media. But take heed, the authors who write these tomes are not out there in the trenches with you. They're behind a typewriter somewhere thinking, or sleeping, and not available to hand you the correct wrench.

I estimate I have changed oil over a dozen times on different cars and though it's very basic, I still find it less than fun. Watch for these items:

- You back off the drain plug and it goes with the oil into the container to be fished out by hand...ugh!
 - Waste oil runs up your arm no matter how fast you are.
 - You must virtually destroy the old oil filter in an effort to remove it because someone overtightened.
 - Somehow, regardless of all precautions: drip pan, cloths, newspapers, etc...dirty oil escapes to penetrate the tarmac driveway.
 - You bang your head on the raised hood...at least twice!
- If you're contemplating replacing a part, a shock absorber or a muffler clamp for instance...good luck! The hardware is rusted to a condition that says: "Oh yeah, just try and get me off!" You soak it with penetrating oil but unlike the propaganda printed on the container the nut won't budge.

Probably the greatest problem with under the car repairing is the lack of work space. It's minimal. Even with ramps and jack stands it is no way like the real garage with a hydraulic lift. If you're claustrophobic, forget it. If you're beyond 200 pounds, with a tummy, forget it. There was a fellow spent the entire afternoon under his car...stuck! He waited for his family to return home; simply too embarrassed to holler to the next door neighbor for help. I'll never forget that afternoon!

Much is said of the money savings you reap by doing your own car repairs. Well, yes, in a sense. But on the other hand there are costs, monetary and other wise, which mount and hardly anyone indicates:

- Wear and tear on clothes and shoes.
- Hand cleaning supplies.
- A few hundred in tools.
- Laundry expense for oily and greasy shirts, T-shirts, and pants, before in aggravation you surrender them to the rag pile.
- Scratched and broken crystals of wrist watches mistakenly left on.
- Band-aids.
- Dirty finger nails for a week.
- Rusty grit in the eye (applies only but always to under car projects)
- Time...estimated to be to the 3rd power of time by a pro at the shop.

I speak for myself but I feel sure there are others who will back me up. In the alluded to articles, doing your own repairs is continually labeled as "a great feeling". In reality, more than often it becomes a great frustration.

Sometimes the family as a unit becomes involved. (Not just to extricate a person as noted above.) But the car is in demand...it's needed and you've overrun your time estimate. It's still on the ramps. Arguments and recriminations are apt to ensue. Words fly about and the scene becomes downright hostile. In a huff, the "repairman" goes at his task with renewed vigor-which is generally inappropriate. Know the old saying... "a pound of flesh"? Well in my case that was reached long ago in skinned knuckles alone. A cool temper is the first tool every mechanic should try to acquire.

Your efforts often as not have another effect, serving as entertainment for the family. When you roll out from under the vehicle for a well needed drink of water and a time-out, your beloveds sound off with things like: "Hey, a creature from the Black Lagoon!" Or: "Didn't I see you in the video "Thriller" with Micheal?" But one learns to roll with the punches (generally back under the car) still in command, until you think of "Mr. Goodhammer" and how neat and clean he remains after all day in the garage. Now that's got to be impossible!

Strangely I have a knack. By merely walking past a car I manage to get dirty. A contributing factor, I'm certain, is our kind of cars. Some enterprising guy went into business opening an outfit called "Rent-A-Wreck"...I never use his services though...I don't have to; I own my own.

"Maintenance of the automotive vehicle is essential for good and prolonged performance," some joker will write, and I'll read, "If you are at all handy simply change the oil, and filter yourself. Replace points and plugs. Check the battery, radiator and brake fluid." That's marvelous advice; I'll always at least attempt to follow, even though battery acid rots my clothing, the hot radiator scorchs my skin, and grease decorates my nose while I somehow manage to contaminate the hydraulic brake system.

Okay, so, I'm a klutz. At least I work hard at it...with both hands.

READER RATINGS

Q. Is it proper to tip soup or dessert dishes? And when is soup eaten with a spoon? I sometimes see people drinking bouillon, etc., directly from a cup. Is this correct? C.T.

A. The tipping of soup or dessert dishes is acceptable if the plate is tipped away from the spoon, not toward the eater. Soup or bouillon served in a handled cup or (Oriental fashion) small, cup-sized bowl may be drunk. If there are vegetables or other garnish floating on top, these may be in the bottom of the cup are spooned up after the liquid has been drunk.

Q. If bouillon is served in a cup do you drink it? Should you take part of it with the spoon? What if the cup has two handles. Do you use both hands? B.K.

A. Spoon up part of the bouillon before taking it up to drink. If the cup has one handle, hold it in one hand. If it has two handles, hold it by both handles. If the bouillon has solids in it, take them up with the spoon before drinking the bouillon.

MIKE MCGRADY - NEWSDAY - DEC. 25, 1983

"One thing I'm sure of, you're going to like the way DEVINS looks, the owners' goal was to achieve the feel of Edwardian England, but it is sufficiently eclectic to include accents of New Orleans and Paris.... The fish here is properly fresh and the meat is properly aged, and great care is taken in their presentations. Here, I must pause to compliment the service. No matter how good the main dishes..... the desserts are better."

We have seen the ad in your Discovery section and in a number of other places but never got around to a visit to Mitchell's Place in New York City.

Mitchell's Place is like a nightclub that has good food and that is where the real difference is, because most nightclubs do not. The steaks are really great at this restaurant.

But let me tell you what it is all like, Mitchell's Place is like going into another world. It is at the top of the Beekman Tower Hotel at 49th St. and First Ave. It is beautifully decorated and has entertainment. If you are in the theatre district, as we were, it is just a perfect place to finish off the night.

PLEASURE TO EAT
 We have been going to the Scales of Justice Restaurant for lunch for a long time. It is convenient to my work in Mineola at the county building.
 But last week my wife and I picked a Friday to try the Scales for dinner. We were so delighted with the lobster tails for just $10.95 that we decided we would just have to phone in about this fine place. It is well decorated, clean looking, and just a pleasure to eat. We rate it Grade A. G.R.

DIFFERENT RESTAURANT
 The name is different and so is the whole restaurant. I am talking about the Red Caboose. A real live old time freight caboose is hooked up to the back of the Red Caboose restaurant on Old Country Road, Westbury.
 When you enter the tastefully decorated main area you will like the intimacy of the restaurant.
 In addition the menu is Northern Italian with many fine veal and shrimp dishes. When you order a dinner entree you are given free access to the salad bar which has a good selection of items for salad and before dinner snacking.

READER RATINGS

I have two questions concerning eating fish in restaurants maybe you know the answer. L.H. How do you approach a plateful of steamed clams?

If the shell is difficult to open, abandon that clam. The others with easy-to-open shells are good ones. Take the clam out by its little neck with two fingers of one hand, while you hold the shell in your other hand. Then loosen the neck skin covering from the clam and discard that piece. The clam should be all slippery now; dip it in melted butter and then in clam broth, or in just one of these two liquids.

The hosts should provide a large bowl into which one tosses all empty clam shells. There's also a need for extra napkins at a clam feast, and for reserve moist towelettes or finger bowls to handle the sticky fingers.

What if you've never had a whole lobster before? Will I be able to eat one at a dinner party and not humiliate myself?

The restaurant is supposed to crack well the claws of a lobster or a hard-shelled crab before serving it to a guest, so don't worry. The cracker you will be furnished is just to apply the final pressure to make the lobster shell crack open easily. You will also be given a small oyster fork or nut pick to extract the delicious meat from the small claws and crevices. Each time you have a nice piece of meat on your fork, dip it in melted butter and then eat it. If you're careful in extracting the large-claw meat, it will come out in a whole piece and will require cutting.

You'll find green material (called the tomalley) in the stomach cavity, and the "coral" or roe in the female. Some people eat them; others prefer not to.

Pull the small claws away from the body and suck the ends of them to extract their delicate meat and juice.

Q. In a restaurant recently I dropped my napkin to the floor and the waiter, rather than giving me a new one, picked it up and handed it to me. Was this right? M.K.

A. The waiter should not have handed you a napkin from the floor. But you should not have accepted it. You should have asked for another one and we doubt that your request would have been denied. It would have also alerted the waiter to think before doing that again.

FRESH FISH
 The Old Lighthouse Restaurant in Hicksville is a fine place to go for a fresh fish dinner. This building which was once Frank's Alibi, is now completely changed. We had broiled scallops there last week that were the best ever. The entire restaurant is a cheerful nautically decorated place. They also have a large meat menu which includes parmigianas and many beef dishes. We learned from talking to some of the other people there that there are many groups that consist of those who believe the meat entrees are better than the fish items. But when you have a group everyone is satisfied. J.W.

FAVORITE PLACE
Villa Portofino Restaurant on Mincola Boulevard in Mineola is a favorite dining place for us. They are celebrating their first anniversary and we want to wish them continued success. Recently we had dinner there, the fish filet with their special sauce was truly a gourmet's delight. The vegetables were well prepared and fresh. In particular, we enjoyed dessert, Zuppa Inglese, which is a layer cake with fruits, rum and Grand Marnier somewhat similar to English Trifle in taste, with cafe espresso. You will enjoy the setting as well as the attentive service.

H.H.

FRESH SEAFOOD
Surfside Restaurant in New Hyde Park is a fairly new restaurant. Its specialty is fresh seafood. We enjoyed a complete dinner special, served with a freshly baked loaf of bread, and a bean salad as an appetizer. The fish was superbly prepared, the service was excellent, and we thought the dinner special was reasonably priced. We feel that we made a discovery and highly recommend this restaurant.

Bert Jones scores at halftime with winning snacks

By Muriel Buckles

Bert Jones likes the action "hot." On the football field or in the kitchen, Jones, a former NFL quarterback and popular Lite Beer all-star, looks for zest in whatever he does.

When Jones wants to make points in the kitchen of his Louisiana home, he starts with football's favorite halftime snacks, beer and peanuts. But he makes them sizzle with Cajun-style seasonings — heavy on the cayenne pepper and other Southern spices — inspired by his wife, Danielle's, Cajun heritage.

Spicy Cajun Peanut Tongue-Teasers, so flavorful that you can hardly stop eating after the first bite, and Creole Cheese 'n' Peanut Crackers, a slice-and-serve refrigerated dough that bakes into crisp wafers, are two easy favorites that Jones likes to tackle at halftime in his own kitchen.

For heartier appetites, Jones likes to serve Cajun Cornbread "Pizza," made with a cornbread dough and topped with crunchy peanuts and hot and spicy andouille sausage.

Beer is the ideal beverage with Cajun cooking, teaming beautifully with such ingredients as shrimp, crab and crawfish, which are so much a part of this unique American cuisine. You can even cook the shrimp with beer to make an interesting Shrimp Etouffe and Beer stew — a "super bowl" that can be quickly put together during halftime.

With Jones's recipes, you can stir up your own halftime action in the kitchen with beer and peanuts and score winning points with fellow football fans gathered around the tube.

CAJUN PEANUT TONGUE-TEASERS

- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- ¼ cup sesame seeds
- 1 tsp. paprika
- ½ to 1 tsp. cayenne
- 1 egg white
- 2 cups dry roasted peanuts

In bowl combine cheese, sesame seeds, paprika and cayenne; set aside. Beat egg white until frothy. Add peanuts; toss to coat. Add peanuts to cheese mixture; mix thoroughly. Spread in single layer on lightly oiled baking sheet. Bake in 300 F oven about 20 to 25 minutes, until golden. Cool. Store in airtight container.

Makes 2 cups.

CREOLE CHEESE 'N' PEANUT CRACKERS

- ½ cup butter, softened
- 2 cups (8 ozs.) shredded cheddar cheese
- ¼ tsp. each cayenne and salt
- 1 cup flour
- ½ cup oven-toasted rice cereal
- ¾ cup finely chopped peanuts

In large bowl cream butter, cheese, cayenne and salt. Mix in flour; mix in cereal and peanuts. Press dough into 1-pound butter box. Chill in freezer until firm. Unwrap and place dough on cutting board. Cut ¼-inch-thick slices, starting from smaller side.

Place on cookie sheet, spaced apart. Bake in 325 F oven 12 to 15 minutes until light golden. Transfer to cooling rack. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Makes about 3 dozen crackers.

CAJUN CORNBREAD "PIZZA"

- 1 egg
- 1 cup beer
- 1 (15 oz.) pkg. cornbread mix
- 1 tsp. leaf oregano
- 2 cups (8 ozs.) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
- 1½ lbs. andouille or Italian hot sausage, lightly browned and drained
- 1 cup dry roasted peanuts, coarsely chopped
- Paprika

In bowl, whisk egg lightly. Stir in beer. Add cornbread mix and oregano. Beat about 50 strokes by hand. Batter will be slightly lumpy. Spread batter in greased 12x15-inch baking pan. Sprinkle cheese on top. Slice sausages ½-inch thick and arrange in rows on cheese. Scatter peanuts over surface. Dust with paprika. Bake in 425 F oven 20 to 25 minutes or until golden. Cool 5 minutes. Serve warm cut into squares.

Makes 12 to 18 servings.

SHRIMP ETOUFFE IN BEER

- 1½ lbs. large shrimp or prawns
- 1 cup beer
- 6 tbsps. butter
- ¼ cup minced shallots or green onion
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 2 tps. Pernod
- ¼ tsp. each salt and cayenne
- 2 tbsps. flour
- Hot cooked rice or grits
- 1 (10 oz.) pkg. frozen sliced okra, cooked according to package directions

- ½ cup chopped parsley
- 1 tsp. dried tarragon

Shell and devein shrimp. Place in glass bowl with beer. Marinate 2 hours, in refrigerator.

In broad skillet, melt 4 tablespoons butter and saute shallots over medium heat about 5 minutes, until soft and golden. Drain beer from shrimp into skillet with butter mixture; set shrimp aside. Simmer about 10 minutes to reduce to 1 cup. Add cream, salt, cayenne, Pernod and shrimp. Simmer 2 to 5 minutes, depending on size of shrimp. Work flour into remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Stir into sauce, stirring until slightly thickened.

To serve, spoon shrimp and sauce over rice or grits. Garnish with slices of okra and sprinkling of mixed parsley and tarragon. Serve at once.

Makes 6 servings.

OLIVIA & PAUL BENSEN

Thyme is of the essence

By Olivia and Paul Bensen

Thyme is one of the favorite herbs for indoor growing. The plants grow only 8 to 12 inches high, and so are a perfect size for a sunny kitchen windowsill. Its lavender blossoms, sweet, pungent odor and thick foliage make thyme a welcome addition to any room.

A native of the Mediterranean region, thyme has been valued throughout history for a variety of qualities. The ancient Egyptians used it in their embalming process. The Greeks, who were usually very sparing in their use of herbs, made thyme an integral part of their culture. They burned it in their temples, bathed in it, made liqueurs of it and released bees near the plants to make the famed honey of Mount Hymettus.

By the 16th century thyme had been introduced to England, where, in addition to its use in cooking, the plant was valued as a remedy for diseases of the eyes, a cure for lung ailments and, in the form of tea, a source of strength and energy. The English also used thyme, along with rosemary and lavender, to dispel unpleasant odors. Elizabethan poets used the phrase "to smell as sweet as thyme" to indicate both physical and moral sweetness. Thyme's curative properties aren't mythical, either: It is still an ingredient in many cough medicines.

In Italy and Spain sheep and goats were often allowed to graze on thyme plants to improve the flavor of their meat. The Spanish also considered thyme a remedy for the pains of gout.

We generally speak of thyme as one herb, but actually there is a whole family that answers to the name. The variety that you'll find in dried form in your supermarket is Thymus vulgaris, or common thyme. Many garden supply stores and nurseries also carry French thyme, which has a pungent, pine-like odor; lemon thyme, and Herba Barona, whose scent is very reminiscent of caraway.

To grow thyme from seed, place the seeds in a flat and cover them very lightly with a half-and-half mixture of sand and light loam. Allow the seeds to germinate, well watered, in a sunny spot. When the seedlings are 1 to 2 inches high, transfer the largest ones to pots containing the same sand/loam mixture. Thyme needs plenty of direct sunlight to thrive.

Thyme goes especially well with seafood, chicken, veal, tomatoes, eggs, soups and salads. Our recipes today, Broiled Tomatoes Provencale with Thyme and Chicken Breasts with Thyme-Caper Sauce, both allow the flavor of the herb to come through clearly without overpowering the other ingredients.

BROILED TOMATOES PROVENCALE WITH THYME

- 4 large, ripe tomatoes
- 3-4 tbsps. olive oil
- ¼ cup fresh bread crumbs
- ¼ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- 2 tbsps. minced fresh parsley
- 1 tbsps. minced fresh thyme

(or 1 tsp. dried)

Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 325 F. Slice tomatoes in half horizontally and trim ends so halves will stand with cut side up. Brush tomato halves all over with olive oil and bake 20 minutes on baking sheet.

Remove tomatoes from oven and set oven on broil, placing rack about 4 to 6 inches from source of heat.

In small bowl, combine bread crumbs, cheese, garlic, parsley, thyme and salt and pepper to taste. Divide mixture among tomato halves, pressing it down as topping. Drizzle more olive oil (about ½ teaspoon each) over tomato halves.

Broil tomatoes 2 to 3 minutes, until topping is golden brown.

CHICKEN BREASTS WITH THYME-CAPER SAUCE

4 chicken breasts, skinned and boned

Salt and pepper to taste

¼ cup flour

½ cup clarified butter (directions follow)

¼ cup dry white wine

½ cup chicken stock

2 tbsps. lemon juice

2 tbsps. capers, drained

1 tsp. fresh thyme, minced (or 1 tsp. dried)

Fresh parsley and thyme springs (optional)

Pound boned chicken breasts between sheets of waxed paper with wooden mallet or back of heavy wooden spoon until about ¼-inch thick. Sprinkle breasts with salt and pepper and dredge in flour, shaking off excess.

Heat clarified butter over moderately high heat in large, heavy skillet and saute chicken 2 to 3 minutes on each side until golden brown and crisp. Remove to platter and keep warm.

In same skillet, over medium heat, add wine, chicken stock, lemon juice, capers and thyme, stirring to dissolve any brown particles. Add salt and pepper to taste and return chicken breasts to skillet, allowing them to simmer in sauce for a minute or two.

Remove chicken to serving plate, pour sauce over it and garnish with fresh parsley and thyme springs.

Serves 4.

To clarify butter: Melt butter over low heat. Remove from heat and allow to sit for a few minutes, so sediment settles to bottom. Pour clear butterfat off top. This is clarified (or drawn) butter.

VEGETARIAN VIEW

Foods to entice a vegetarian valentine

By Diane Savage

Are you languishing away for a certain someone who doesn't know you're alive?

Maybe you've tried everything — brushing your teeth with the right toothpaste, wearing your sexiest perfume (or after-shave, as the case may be) — and still no results.

What more can you do to win the heart of your beloved; to make that special he or she your very own valentine? Following are several hints from "The Folklore of Love and Courtship," a collection of traditional American love-charms edited by Duncan Emrich:

— Pluck a feather from the tail of a rooster and put it in your glove. Then shake hands with the man you want, and he will be yours.

— You can secure a girl's love by pulling a hair from her head.

— If you want a man to love you who does not like you, make a drink of the little stout roots of lady's-tresses (spirantines) and give it to him, and he will immediately love you.

— You can secure anyone you want by cutting your nails on nine successive Sundays.

If none of these methods works for you, you might have to resort to more extreme measures. Why not have the one you adore over for a Valentine's Day dinner? There are a number of edibles which popular tradition guarantees to be effective aphrodisiacs. Perhaps the best-known of these is raw oysters — unsuitable, of course to lure a vegetarian lover.

But there are many vegetables and seasonings historically reputed to work just as well. Among these are potatoes, asparagus, artichokes, onions, garlic, carrots, cumin, basil, vanilla, ginger, sage, caraway, chestnuts and eggs.

The humble bean was thought by the ancient Egyptians to be powerful passion-food — priests sworn to celibacy were not even allowed to look at them! Bean and Barley Soup should be particularly effective with a relectant valentine, since it contains no less than five of these items. Served in conjunction with the other recipes below, your vegetarian valentine is sure to succumb to your charms.

BASIL BUTTER

1 stick (½ cup) butter, at room temperature

2 tbsps. lemon juice

1 tsp dried basil, or 2 tbsps. fresh

Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

Cream butter, then beat in lemon juice a little at a time. Beat in basil, salt and pepper. Chill, if desired, and use a spread for hot bread or rolls. Makes about ¾ cup.

BEAN AND BARLEY SOUP

2 tbsps. butter

½ cup chopped onion

1 cup peeled and diced carrots

2 cups peeled and diced potatoes

6 cups vegetable stock or bouillon

Juice from 1 clove garlic

½ tsp. black pepper

1 cup cooked white beans (navy or great northern)

¼ cup barley

Melt butter in large pot. Saute onion until wilted. Add next five ingredients. Bring to boil and then reduce heat. Simmer until the vegetables are tender; remove from heat and puree in blender.

Return puree to pot. Add beans and barley. Simmer until barley is tender — 45 minutes to 1 hour. Stir occasionally, adding more stock if necessary. Serves 4.

By Desiree Vjvea

We live in an amazing age. I was browsing through an antique shop not long ago and it really hit me. For sale was a battered washboard and tub, a hand-operated ice cream maker, a wooden icebox.

You can still hear Grandma and Grandpa refer to the refrigerator as an "icebox." They actually grew up with wooden boxes that held a chunk of ice to keep the food cold. Gads! They made ice cream by turning a crank until they got an early version of tennis elbow.

Did Grandma have a blender? Fat chance. She probably whipped things up with a rotary beater. No Cuisinart to chop the veggies, no electric can opener and a stove-top percolator instead of a Mr. Coffee. How did she do it?

If you think you've got it rough, just look around you. We're living in the Gold Age of Convenience. How many of us would survive without air conditioning and telephones? We've got electric hair dryers, curlers, toothbrushes, washing machines, dishwashers, vacuum cleaners. Not to mention stereos, color TVs, cars, home computers, etc., etc. Pocket calculators and digital watches are given away with magazine subscriptions these days.

There aren't many American kitchens that don't have a common toaster on the counter. But the gadget is just beginning to make its appearance in the average Russian household. The Soviets recently opened several new factories to produce this new (to them) household appliance. One wonders how many comrades can heat up their borscht in the microwave?

The first microwave ovens hit the home market way back in 1951, and it's estimated that by the end of this year over 40 percent of American homes will be microwave-equipped. Iceboxes and pot-bellied stoves may have been quaint, but I'll take an electric fridge and a microwave any day. Yes, it's an amazing age.

SPICY GLAZED PEACHES

1 (16 oz.) can peach halves

½ cup brown sugar

¼ tsp. ground cinnamon

Dash ground nutmeg

3 tbsps. butter

Arrange peach halves, cut side up, in rectangular glass baking dish. Mix brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg together in small bowl. Spoon equal portion into center of each peach half. Dot with butter. Pour juice remaining in can into bottom of baking dish. Microwave for 3 to 4 minutes, or until butter is melted. Spoon liquid from dish over peaches in serving dishes.

Serves 4 to 6.

DELUXE CHICKEN CURRY

1 cup boiling water

½ cup shredded coconut

1 large onion, sliced into rings

¼ cup chopped green pepper

1 clove garlic, minced

1 tsp. cornstarch

2 tbsps. curry powder

¼ tsp. each salt and ground ginger

Dash pepper

1 (3 lb.) chicken, cut in serving pieces

2 apples, cored and thinly sliced

1 (10 oz.) pkg. frozen peas

¼ cup raisins

Place coconut in small bowl; pour boiling water over coconut and let stand 5 minutes. Drain, reserving coconut liquid. Pour liquid into shallow, round, 2-quart glass baking dish. Add onion, green pepper and garlic. Microwave, uncovered, 1 minute. Stir, and microwave 1 minute longer. Stir in cornstarch, curry powder, salt, ginger and pepper, mixing well. Place chicken in dish, with meatier pieces toward outside, spooning sauce over chicken. Cover and microwave 10 minutes. Add apples, peas, raisins and reserved coconut; stir well. Cover and microwave 10 minutes longer. Let stand 3 to 5 minutes before serving.

Serve over rice to 4.

MUSHROOM-STUFFED BEEF ROUNDS

1 lb. ground beef

1 egg, beaten

1 slice bread, torn into small crumbs

1 tbsp. Kitchen Bouquet

2 tbsps. ketchup

1 tsp. dried parsley flakes

¼ tsp. each salt and pepper

1 (4 oz.) can mushroom stems and pieces, drained

1 cup shredded Swiss cheese

¼ cup minced onion

Dash ground thyme

In bowl, combine beef, egg, bread crumbs, Kitchen Bouquet, ketchup, parsley flakes, salt and pepper. Mix well, and set ½ of the mixture aside. Divide remaining mixture into four Pyrex custard cups, using back of spoon to form shell in each cup. In small bowl, combine mushrooms, cheese, onion and thyme. Place equal amount in each cup, then top with remaining meat mixture, sealing at edges. Place cups in ring in oven and microwave, uncovered, 8 to 10 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

Serves 4.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens. Foods are cooked on HIGH (100 percent power) and uncovered unless otherwise specified.

Here's How

No easy solution for spotty ceiling

By Gene Gary

Q. We recently purchased an older home with cracked and peeling plaster ceilings. I scraped all of the loose paint and plaster off and filled the cracks and gouges with a prepared filler.

After two coats of paint the surface still looks awful. Every patch shows through the paint as a dull spot, slightly differing in color from the rest of the surface.

Can you give me any suggestions on how to improve the look of these ceilings without replastering? — V.R. Trace

A. The filler you used for patching the ceiling is probably absorbing the paint faster than the adjacent surface, thus creating the dull spots you describe.

There are no simple solutions. However, the careful application of some additional coats of paint may solve the problem.

Try coating the dull spots and any streaks with the same paint you used for the two coats you just applied. Use a small brush and cover only the dull areas where you patched the ceiling. Take care to brush it out to a smooth uniform film.

After letting this dry thoroughly, roll on another coat of paint over the entire ceiling area using a slightly darker shade of paint.

Or, you could use a textured paint, available at most paint stores. These products usually hide cracks and blemishes and are easily applied with a roller and brush similar to regular paints.

Q. I am refinishing a very interesting wood buffet and have stripped it to the bare wood removing various coats of varnish. I want to finish it so that the natural wood grain will show.

Can I put several coats of clear finish on it, or do I need to use a sealer first? Can you advise me on the proper procedure or product to use that will keep the wood light and enhance the natural grain? — Mrs. H.R.L.

A. You will find that clear wood finishes vary. Some have a built-in sealer, while others require that a sealer be applied first.

You could use either product called for by that manufacturer. Whichever one you use, I would recommend that you apply two finish coats.

Q. The wall and floor tile in our kitchen is dull and dingy looking. Is there anything I can do to restore the original luster of the tile and keep it looking nice? — P.G.M.

A. You can try bringing the surface back into shape by using a scouring powder paste or a strong detergent solution, plus a nylon scrubbing pad. However, never use steel wool pads because they might cause rust stains. Stainless steel wool, on the other hand, may be useful in removing stubborn soil.

For ceramic tile floors, mop a scouring powder paste over the surface and let stand for about five minutes. Scrub with a brush, rinse and wipe dry.

On quarry tile floors, you can use an all-purpose cleaner or scouring powder paste. Rinse thoroughly.

For day-to-day care use a damp sponge or cloth to clean and maintain the luster of glazed wall tile and ceramic mosaic walls. On high-gloss tiles in the stove areas this technique may leave smears.

If that is the case, use a spray cleaner such as Windex or Glass Plus and wipe dry with a cloth or paper towel.

Damp mopping with water, plus your favorite detergent, will do the job on glazed floor tiles and unglazed ceramic mosaic floors.

Occasional mopping with a weak detergent solution is all that's needed to keep quarry tile floors shipshape.

However, all tile floors, glazed ones in particular, should be swept or vacuumed regularly to remove gritty particles that might scratch them.

Q. Is there any way to keep candles straight in warm weather? I keep a pair in holders on the dining room table, but they melt and bend over during summer months. — Mrs. D.S.

A. Try applying a coat of pure, fresh, white shellac that has been thinned half and half with denatured alcohol. Frequently this is enough to keep the candles erect.

By Robert Wallace, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I've been reading your column for some time and I usually agree with your advice, but I disagree strongly with the advice you gave the 13-year-old girl who was in love with the 24-year-old guy. Why should she stop seeing this guy? Love is blind; it doesn't ask how old the lovers are.

These people need each other much more than they need your advice. Your answer should have been, "Love each other, care for each other and get married when the girl graduates from school."

Please reconsider your answer. I'm a 27-year-old guy in love with a beautiful 13-year-old girl and we plan to get married after she graduates from school. — Byron

Byron: Thirteen-year-olds should not even be dating, let alone dating men in their mid- to late 20s.

Be a nice guy and stop seeing your girlfriend. Allow her to enjoy her teen years without having some old codger hanging around.

Wait until she graduates from high school. Then if she still feels the same way, do your thing.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 17-year-old girl who made a stupid mistake.

Recently a real nice guy asked me out but I told him no. Now that I have had quite a bit of time to think it over, I would like to go out with him.

Would I be out of line if I went over to the place where he works and told him that I'm now available? — Connie

Connie: You would be out of line if you didn't.

Dr. Wallace: I am a mature, open-minded, responsible girl who happens to have a lot of common sense. I also am in the gifted program in school and my grades are excellent.

Last week a neighbor asked me if I would babysit for her on Tuesdays for three hours. My mother said I could but now my father doesn't like the idea. He thinks I should use the time to study and that making $2 an hour is not worth it.

Dr. Wallace: I'm an organized person and my grades would never suffer because of this job. I really want this job because I think it would be a learning experience for me, and I could use the money because I don't get an allowance.

My dad reads your column and he respects your opinion, so the decision is up to you. I know you will cast your vote in my favor. — Lyn

TWEEN 12 & 20

Lyn: Keep the job as long as it doesn't interfere with your grades. You will be a wonderful sitter. Your neighbor has excellent taste in her choice of a baby-sitter.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 19-year-old guy and I've been dating a super-nice 25-year-old girl. Mary is kind, sweet and gentle. We also enjoy each other's company very much.

My problem is my grandmother, who thinks I'm insane for dating an older woman. And now my parents are starting to get on my case about our age difference.

Now I'm starting to let doubt creep into my thoughts. Please give me your viewpoint. — Charles

Charles: If you were 25 and the girl was 19 I doubt if your family would say one word about the age difference.

Continue seeing this girl and don't pay any attention to your family's concern.

Dr. Wallace: I have a degree from a two-year community college and have a good paying job working at the career I trained for in college. My only problem is that I'm very unhappy in my work. I detest going to work each and every day.

I am 20 years old and I don't want to become trapped in this job, but yet I need the money to live on.

Please give me your advice. Should I hang in there or should I quit and look for work in another field? Don't forget, my apartment is $450 a month. — Betty

Betty: Start making preparations (moving back home might help the budget) to terminate your job and seek a position that you will enjoy.

Life is too short to spend 40 hours a week being unhappy.

Dr. Wallace: I am 12 and need your advice. My parents have been divorced for over five years, and I live with my mother and stepfather whom I love very much.

Whenever I visit my father, he calls my stepfather a lazy bum and says he can never keep a job. It hurts me when my dad calls my stepfather names and I'm starting to hate my father because of this.

It's getting to the point that I don't want to visit him anymore. What should I do? — Julie Julie: Explain to your father that you love him but that you also love your stepfather and you do not care to hear negative talk regarding him. If the talk continues, have a chat with your mom and decide if future visits to your dad are necessary.

Mainly For Seniors

By John T. Watts

Dear John: I live in deadly fear of breaking a bone as I understand older people are much more susceptible to doing just that. I suppose our bones get more brittle as we grow older.

Is anything being done along these lines? — Hazel P.

Dear Hazel: Yes, but that doesn't mean you can quit being careful.

One out of 50 people 65 and older breaks a bone each year due to osteoporosis. This condition alone accounts for an incredible 1.3 million fractures each year, and that rate is expected to rise to 1.7 million annually by the year 2000.

The American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons reports that after 60 years of age, two of every 100 people will fracture a hip and the hospital stay will average 24 days. It is estimated that the annual cost of hip fractures alone is close to $1 billion.

The average person consumes only about half of the needed calcium daily, making Americans prime candidates for broken bones and poor healing. And we all lose some bone mass as we grow older.

While there is a normal process of bone renewal, after the mid-30s more calcium is lost than replaced so the bones become thinner. Between the ages of 45 and 75, women lose 30 percent of their skeletal structure. By the time a woman is 80, she may have lost half of the bone mass in her spine.

Alternatives to traditional casts and crutches were discussed at a recent fracture repair symposium held in New York and sponsored by Bristol-Myers/Zimmer in cooperation with the Orthopedic Research and Education Foundation.

Many of the new directions in fracture repair were aimed at getting the patient out of the hospital and back on his feet rapidly. The savings associated with reduced hospitalization are enormous.

For example, using moveable X-ray equipment and television cameras for guidance, surgeons can slide a nail into a break from above the fracture site through to the fracture — allowing the patient to walk the morning after surgery.

Ramon Gustilo, M.D., who heads the department of orthopedic surgery at the Hennepin County Medical Center in Minneapolis and is a clinical professor of orthopedics at the University of Minnesota Medical School, explains that the nail technique, known as "closed intramedullary nailing," restores the normal alignment of the bone.

Auction buy a real bargain

By James G. McCollam

Q: We bought this chair at an auction in terrible condition for $5. We have had it completely refinished and reupholstered.

Is it an antique? Is it worth the almost $200 we have invested in it?

A: You bet your life it's worth $200! It's worth at least twice as much. This is a Victorian French Revival armchair made in the third quarter of the 19th century.

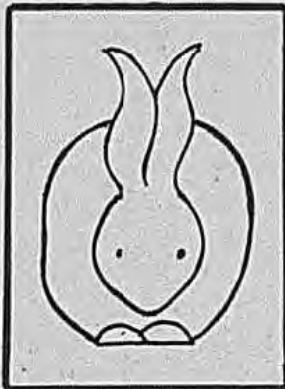

Q: This bronze figural clock is signed "Auguste Moreau." Can you tell me something about its vintage and value?

A: Moreau was a very famous French sculptor around the turn of the century. This particular lamp was probably made just before World War I.

It would be classified as Art Nouveau, a style that is very popular with collectors. It should sell for close to $2,000.

Q: I have a 7 1/4-inch plate with the attached mark on the bottom. It is decorated with blue outline drawings of elephants. What can you tell me about it?

A: This was made by Dedham Pottery in Dedham, Mass., during the first quarter of the 20th century. It should sell in the $175 to $225 range.

The company was founded by the Robertson family and discontinued operations in 1943.

Q: You say that any china marked "Made in Germany" (or any other country) was made in the 20th century. Wasn't any china marked with the name of the country of origin before 1900?

A: In 1891 the McKinley Tariff Act was enacted requiring imports to be marked by the country of origin. This was amended in 1901 to require "Made in XXXXX." Few countries complied with the 1891 law and still fewer complied with the 1901 amendment. Japan didn't comply until 1921.

Prior to 1891 china was marked with the name of the city, Limoges, Dresden, Meissen, etc. They were more interested in promoting their city than their country.

You And Your Money

By JUDITH
G. RHOADES

Q. Would you please tell me the difference between a mutual fund that is income-oriented vs. one that is oriented toward capital growth.

A. My friends think I should switch from the fund I have (the objective is income) to one which will grow faster. I am looking for a safe investment. Liquidity is not important. — M.B.

A. A fund which is income-oriented is one where the objective of the fund is to provide income to the owner of the shares. The portfolio of an income-oriented fund will for the most part be comprised of corporate bonds or government securities and maybe some preferred stock. The fund will be considered stable, because the securities in which the fund is invested are not subject to large upswings, or large declines.

A fund which has as its objective capital growth, is basically comprised of stocks which provide little or no dividend. The managers of this type of fund are seeking to earn a higher percentage return on the money invested.

The stock market, as you know, is more volatile than the bond market, hence the managers will buy and sell more often to meet their goals. If the market is bad, the fund may suffer reverses. On the other hand, if it is good, you as a share owner can earn more money on your investment.

When you own an income fund, you worry more about the fluctuation of interest rates, rather than the rise and fall of the stock market.

Your letter didn't indicate your age, or ability to purchase more fund shares. If you are concerned about safety, you might consider transferring from one investment to another based upon the financial climate and market conditions.

One of the best reasons to purchase funds which belong to a "family of funds" is just because of that transfer privilege. You must feel comfortable with your investments and even if they don't move (rise in price) as quickly as your friends feel they should, remember it's your investment, not theirs.

Whenever you are the owner of a mutual fund, the problem of liquidity is almost non-existent. If you keep the fund shares in your possession, you just mail the number of shares that you wish to sell back to the fund with a request that they be sold and the proceeds remitted to you. You may need to obtain a stock power so the fund will receive a specimen of your signature.

If you do not have the shares in your possession, then you can just write the fund requesting the sale of so many shares as is necessary to come up with the amount of money you need. You may also need a stock power for this type of transaction, but you can ask your fund representative if that is necessary.

Some funds have a toll-free number which you can call to liquidate shares also. At that time, whoever you speak with will be able to tell you if any other item is required.

Q. We are thinking of purchasing a personal computer. Can we get any kind of program that will help us do our income tax? — J.O.

A. Recently accountants from Price Waterhouse, independent public accountants, reviewed and tested a personal computer software program called HomeTax, which allows users to prepare their own tax returns (IRS Form 1040 and related schedules), as well as perform financial projections and tax-planning functions.

HomeTax is a product developed by Learning Source, Inc. (LSI) of Irvine, Calif., a company which also is establishing a franchise chain of retail personal computer stores across the country.

A report prepared by the accounting firm in Aug. 1983, states that based on its review and subject to the limitations noted in the report, the 1982 version of HomeTax "accurately performs its computations consistent with the applicable federal income tax laws and Internal Revenue Service publications as of Dec. 31, 1982."

If you would like a copy of the software program report, you can obtain one by writing to Learning Source, Inc., 17791 Fitch St., Irvine, CA 92714.

In the report, Price Waterhouse points out that they reviewed the program functions and procedures; systematically tested all functions and calculations performed by the program with both valid and invalid data; and reviewed the Reference Manual for HomeTax from a technical tax perspective. As a result, the statement indicates that in the tests, which included numerous variations and combinations of taxpayer information, no calculation errors were detected.

Points On Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Our 6-year-old dalmation recently came home smelling like a skunk! Our neighbors all had different opinions regarding what to do to rid the dog of the smell.

Since the dog is very affectionate and usually sleeps on a sun porch next to the kitchen, we are quite anxious to get rid of the awful odor. Do you have any suggestions?

A. There is no perfect solution to the problem of the odor on dogs resulting from meeting with skunks.

Probably the best method of getting rid of the offending odor is to bathe the dog in tomato juice. This should be followed by a thorough washing with dog shampoo and rinsing with water. It has been suggested that all of this should be followed by a washing with a 5 percent solution of ammonia.

These three washings will not rid your dog of all of the odor, but will make him an acceptable member of the family.

If there is an indication that the skunk's spray is bothering the dog's eyes, you should obtain an eye flush and eye ointment from your veterinarian.

Because skunks are one of the most common natural reservoirs for rabies, it is extremely important to keep dogs that are exposed to them vaccinated.

Hopefully your dog has learned the dangers of tangling with skunks and will avoid them in the future.

Q. Our 8-year-old Labrador retriever has had a sore on his left leg for a long time. He licks at it constantly. The sore and hair around it are always moist. He does not seem to have any other problems.

A. I have tried various ointments, but none seems to help. What should I do about my dog's problem?

A. Your dog most likely has a lick granuloma, commonly called a "lick sore" or "boredom sore."

These sores develop most often in large breed dogs with short hair coats (Doberman pinschers, Great Danes, Labrador retrievers, etc.) 5 years of age or older.

Dogs left alone for long periods of time or without something to interest them will often begin to lick their wrists and ankles continuously. Initially the hair is rubbed off. Then the skin becomes reddened and shiny. Usually by this time the area itches and the licking is intensified. Eventually the sore becomes hard, thick and insensitive to pressure. Usually the dog keeps the area clean by constantly licking.

There are several methods of treatment for lick sores. The simplest method is an ointment containing a corticosteroid. The ointment has to be applied several times a day.

Unfortunately the dog may lick the drug off the sore very quickly. The licking habit may be broken by diverting the dog's attention. For example, the dog's environment may be changed. More exercise, human companionship, or another canine playmate may be helpful.

Non-responding sores may require injections of corticosteroids or surgical removal of the sores. X-ray therapy has also been shown to be beneficial in some cases.

Changes to overcome boredom should be incorporated in every treatment regime for lick sores. If the sores continue to be a problem, you should have the dog examined by your veterinarian.
