Library To Dedicate 'Bean Memorial Wing'

The dedication of the Elery H. Bean Memorial Wing of the Hicksville Public Library has been set for June 30 at 3 p.m. Everyone is invited to join the Board of Trustees and the Library staff to observe the official opening of the library extension, which provides space for some 25,000 additional volumes, and a Local History and Conference Room. Construction which began in October is now virtually complete. Refreshments will be served by the Friends of the Library.

Oyster Bay Town Supervisor Joseph Celby, right, was one of the many guests at the 32nd anniversary dinner dance of the Hebrew Academy of Nassau County. He presented a special citation in honor of the occasion which was accepted by Rabbi Sheldon Chinnales, principal for religion at the Plainview campus of HANAC, and Rita Goldman, principal for general studies at the Plainview campus.

Mrs. Waldman's third grade class at East Street School has been involved in studying about the regions of the world. Mrs. Phoebe Witte, Art Teacher, worked with the children to make two realistic models of jungle life and the arctic areas. The children made life size reproductions of the animals in each habitat.

Hicksville Schools Summer Schedule

The Oyster Bay Town Board has denied a request for a special use permit to operate and maintain a car waxing business in a "G" general business district in Hicksville, according to Town Councilman Douglas J. Hynes.

Hynes said, "following a hearing held on March 26, 1985, a petition by John DeMarco, Henry Praus, Grand Prix Performance, Ltd. and Joseph Frizzell, for property located at the corner of Broadway and Farm Lane, the Board determined that granting a special use permit would adversely affect the adjacent residential areas. Concerns centered around the emission of loud machinery noise, dust, odors and debris common to the activities of compounding, buffing, polishing and vacuuming automobiles.

"Residents who attended the hearing," added Hynes, "also cited concerns regarding stagnant puddles of water from the washing of cars and hazardous safety conditions generated by the additional volume of traffic."

Hicksville Dropout Rate Low According To Supt.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Catherine J. Fenton has set the Hicksville School dropout figures at 3.6% and noted that one-third of the students considered dropouts in 1983-84 returned to school during the 1984-85 school year. The estimate for 1984-85 is 2.5%, with 46 drop-outs as of this date compared to 82 for last year.

The State Education Department issued a report to local districts indicating figures received and asking Superintendents to verify the numbers by June 30. Before this deadline, however, the figures appeared in a newspaper as 6.3% resulting in public concern over the inflated percentages, according to Dr. Fenton who issued the following report:

Hicksville High School Principal Richard Hogan pinpointed enrollment and attendance data procedures as the source of the error and noted that for at least five years, a report issued by the school's attendance office to the State included the number of all students withdrawn from school for a variety of reasons. A portion of this number reflects students who actually dropped out of school. However, students who move out of state or to other Long Island districts or who transferred to the Evening High School were also included in the total, as were students who withdrew to enter the armed forces. Other students listed had registered for school but never attended, and some withdrew due to serious illness. When the list was analyzed according to reason for withdrawal, the figure of 3.6% emerged as the accurate drop-out rate.

Hicksville school officials addressed the problem years ago, establishing procedures for dealing with students having attendance problems or indicating a desire to leave school. This process included the involvement of the deans, assistant principal, guidance counselors, and the attendance teacher, who work with the student to resolve the difficulties. Appropriate forms were designed and prepared in cooperation with the Office of Pupil Personnel Services. The last step is a meeting between the principal, the student, and parents to review the problem and discuss such options as summer school or the Evening High School.

The Alternative School, now in its third year, has saved at least 25 students per year from leaving school, according to Dr. Fenton. This program provides educational opportunities to students who were not successful in the regular school program. Specialized classes staffed by a caring team of teachers working with individual students' needs offer a chance to complete school to students who were potential drop-outs.

Another factor in the reduction of Hicksville's drop-out rate over the past years is the attendance policy instituted by the Board of Education and announced to all secondary students and their parents or guardians. This policy set high standards for attendance: students missing 10% of class periods are withdrawn from the class and given a new schedule of courses. They are denied credit for the course missed and they are prohibited from repeating the course in summer school, since lack of attendance is not considered a legitimate reason for remediation. The class must be repeated during the regular school year. "This procedure puts a real commitment on attendance," states Mr. Hogan, noting the positive results of the new policy.

The High School also established a Drop Out Committee in October 1984 to identify students having attendance problems beginning in the ninth grade and to work out difficulties before a student reaches the point of leaving school. Members of the committee include guidance counselors, the attendance teacher, social worker, Alternative School teacher, and the administrator in charge of the Alternative School program. The work of this committee is aimed at maintaining attendance standards and continuing to reduce the number of students leaving school.

At the Junior High School, a new program implemented this year has resulted in significant progress in attendance and attitude among students participating. Titled PREP (Program to Restore Educational Progress), this project is aimed at students who have shown poor attendance over the years. The objectives are to get the student into school, have the student remain in school, and provide a climate to build positive attitudes toward being in school. Sixteen students entering eighth and ninth grade were selected for the 1984-85 school year after a meeting with the parents last June.

A minibus picks the students up each morning and brings them to school, where they are greeted by their teachers. They remain in a self-contained classroom for four periods each day, with one teacher for math and science and another for English and social studies. The fifth period is spent with a physical education/health teacher. At the end of the fifth period, the students are returned home on the same minibus. This abbreviated day alleviates the frustrations and confusions of dealing with a large number of teachers, some of whom may not be prepared to deal with a child having problems which contribute to their attendance difficulties. The two teachers involved in the program were hand-picked on the basis of their superior teaching ability and their personalities, which are compatible with the type of child requiring this kind of help.

In addition to the special teachers, the program is monitored by the attendance teacher in cooperation with the guidance chairman. She provides guidance and counseling and calls home if any student fails to appear in school. If the child is not ill, she visits the home to bring the student to school. All of the components of the program have demonstrated to the students and parents that the district cares about each child and that the correlation of school attendance and educational progress is important. Of the 16 youngsters participating in PREP this year, two had perfect attendance, 7 made great progress and showed better than average attendance compared with the general school population, 5 improved somewhat, and only 2 showed no improvement.

Attendance teacher Mrs. Glanzer, currently serving as president of the New York State Attendance Teachers Association, and Guidance Chair Charles Wayne, made a presentation on the program at their annual conference, and many other districts have asked for help in setting up such a program for next year.

Letters

To the Editor:

I guess I am classified as a "Special Interest" according to President Reagan.

I am a Social Security recipient. I am semi-retired. I have been taxed, not voluntarily, since the first day I was employed. I had no choice but to pay these taxes but was told it was to insure my old age benefits. Now they tell me I am too costly. They now want to reduce my benefits so that we can buy more weapons, pay salary increases to Federal Employees, increase the costs of handling my social security benefits, increase my medicare costs, etc. I can prove that the Social Security Administration is inefficient. It took Congressman Lent's help to recover thousands of dollars that the Social Security Administration insisted was not an error.

I am taxed through building assessment and school assessment to support those services the Federal Government will not support. I do it willingly although here too, it is by law. I am, my brother's keeper. Now President Reagan wants to tax this too. Double taxation.

He must think I and you, are awful dumb when he tells us that corporations are taxed for our benefit. All they do is add it on to the cost of doing business and we pay their taxes for them with everything we buy. Isn't it strange how little the Defense Industry pays in taxes? We pay it for them. Do you remember how little taxes President Reagan paid because he had tax free holdings. Now he wants us to not have any tax free holdings. Who can afford it more? I believe he can better afford to pay higher taxes.

Remember all his TV promises? "I will not touch Social Security." "I believe in education," etc. How many of our local residents can afford the kind of education his associates can afford?

Yes, I am a special interest. I want to avoid going on welfare. I want to avoid seeing my neighbors and friends taxed out of their homes and our community.

I refuse to apologize for being a "special interest" and I will let those who cannot see it my way know it at the ballot box.

Sincerely,

A. Allan Goldstein

To the Editor:

Hicksville's School leadership has been diminished considerably with the death of Willet Avenue School's principal, John Maher. One somehow accepts the retirements of familiar school leaders and veteran teachers when they occur, no matter how one regrets the departure of the familiar faces and the skills which long served Hicksville.

But the unexpected passing of a man such as John Maher who served the community's children and parents for 30 years as a teacher and administrator is very hard to take.

This writer recalls numerous congenial meetings with John, over the years, in the course of delivering the Annual American Legion school medal awards for the Charles Wagner Post. Always he was affable, and interested in rewarding worthy youngsters. His quick wit enlivened every yearly encounter.

Whatever was good for children and advantageous to the cultural climate of this community of which he was a resident, John Maher supported. In recent years, he gave the greatest of encouragement and help to the preservation of the Gregory Museum as a Hicksville resource.

He did not seem well in the last year, but he carried on steadfastly in the school with which he was so long associated. John's friends in the school district, fellow administrators, his teachers and many parents knew him as a man of fine Christian education, keen intelligence, progressive educational outlooks, honesty, and forthright utterance.

There were, indeed, genuine tears and grief in abundance at the large turnout for John Maher's Requiem Mass at Holy Family Church on May 29.

Sincerely,
Richard Evers

To the Editor:

Mr. Jennett is retiring from his job as principal of Fork Lane School. Every time I requested assistance from Mr. Jennett when problems arose, he always responded in a very nice way. I am especially grateful to Mr. Jennett for coming to PTA executive board meetings.

Good luck to Mr. Jennett.
Sincerely yours,
Karin Frey

Math Teachers Symposium

On Friday, May 31, the Nassau County Mathematics Teachers' Association and the Nassau County Association of Mathematics Supervisors co-sponsored the Seventh Annual Student Symposium in Mathematics. Approximately 800 students in Grades 5 through 8 from schools throughout Nassau County attended this unique event at Nassau Community College in Garden City.

Students and their teachers had a rare opportunity to investigate and enjoy a wide variety of new and exciting mathematics concepts ranging from probability to working with the latest in micro-computers. Over 40 of the area's leading educators and mathematicians presented hour-long workshops designed specifically to enrich and enhance students' appreciation of mathematics.

Dr. Donald J. Haggerty, Secondary Math Chairman, of the Hicksville Public Schools conducted a workshop on "Zip Zip, and other Forms of Subtraction." Dr. Haggerty and his fellow speakers at the Symposium share a common bond--to generate excitement about mathematics because they are genuinely interested in making mathematics enjoyable for students. Hicksville students who attended the symposium included seventh-graders Michelle Eger, Marilyn Wood, Ellen Young, and Andrea Zuzzolo, and eighth graders John DiPaoli, Stephen McNicholas, Maria Paradiso, and Cheryl Zukowsky.

Museum Workshop Last Call

The last in a series of spring nature workshops for children being offered by the Hicksville Gregory Museum will take place this Saturday afternoon, June 15, in the Community Room of the Hicksville Public Library from 2:30 to 3:30.

Children from ages 9 through 12 are invited to take part in the program which will involve experiments, demonstrations and slide pictures. The registration fee is $5 and once again Mrs. Joan Scancarelli of the Gregory Museum staff, will involve the youngsters in the craft and "hands on" activities she does so well.

"The Ways of Water" program is taking place in the Hicksville Public Library this Saturday, in as much as the Gregory Museum is closed temporarily as a result of some fire damage to its power system.

FRANKLIN NEW YORK TAX-FREE INCOME FUND

Given the choice, however, choose more. If you live in New York State and you're in the maximum tax bracket, surely you would welcome the $430 you get to keep if you earn $1,000 from a fully taxable investment. But should your choice be to keep the entire $1,000, invest in this Fund. Because the Fund invests in New York municipal bonds, you pay no federal or state taxes on your monthly dividends. So, a return of 8.79% is equivalent to a taxable yield of 20.44% for investors in the maximum combined state and federal tax bracket.

*Current distribution rate based on June 10, 1985 offering price and dividends paid during the last 12 months. The distribution rate will vary because of changes in the Fund's income and offering price. The Fund uses a commonly accepted accounting principle known as equalization. The value of your investment at redemption may be more or less than your cost.

THE TOWN held off passing its open container law this week. The law contains a "presumptive" clause which says that possession of an open or unsealed container of an alcoholic beverage shall be evidence of the intent to consume the contents. The law which is supposed to stop people from drinking beer and wine and whiskey in public will be difficult for the clergy who may be transporting partly consumed bottles of altar wine from one location to another for services. We do have separation of church and state and it looks like the Town is going to separate the clergy from the state by putting them in jail....NOW is the time for backyard barbecues but remember both liquid gas and charcoal are dangerous. ## Our Children

She's under pressure to join work force

By Willard Abraham
Ph.D.

Q. I wish I were the wife of the man who wrote to you protesting his wife's desire to go back to work. I have the opposite problem. My husband doesn't want me to stay home.

I want to be mother to my three children, 15, 14 and 6, and wife to my husband. However, my husband wants me to go to college (which I have been doing now for two years to receive an associate degree in office management) and then to work full time as an administrative secretary in order to bring home a decent income.

I have been married since I was 18, right out of high school with no work experience, and never have wanted to work outside our home. I believe that if you choose to marry and have children, you have chosen your career and should stay on the job until it is completed.

My question for you is this: How do I respond to the pressures put on me to change my entire philosophy of life and my lifestyle to comply with my husband's demands? He wants me to work full time and still keep the home running exactly the same way it would be run if I were at home full time. He does not want to help me at home, nor does he feel our two teenage boys should be expected to help out, but expects me to do it all.

My husband puts pressure on me by not giving me enough money to meet all the demands our family has. The boys are very active in Boy Scouts and athletics (baseball, basketball, track, cross-country running). Do you know how expensive sports clothes and shoes are? Some basketball shoes have cost us $60 to $80 for one pair.

My husband's income is too low (under $14,000 a year) to meet the demands of such expenses. With this kind of motivation, I feel forced to comply with his demand to get work soon.

Please help me. What can I do?

A. There obviously are at least two frustrated people in your family — you and your husband. Your frustration is well-expressed, and your husband's is probably based on the small income available to support the family.

The only solution to the problem appears to be for both of you to give a little, with perhaps less ambitious career goals for you but some that might help relieve the financial pressure on him.

A family counselor with whom both of you could meet may be the way to go. One of your youngsters school counselors might lead you to a competent one.

By the way, it doesn't seem at all unreasonable for you to expect some help around the house from all of them. Listing all the home chores and putting a person's name next to each of them could be a beginning. The family counselor might help you devise a schedule that is acceptable to all of you.

Q. Please use your column to tell people who are concerned about Tourette Syndrome and need accurate information to write or phone: Tourette Syndrome Association, P.O. Box 533, 41-02 Bell Boulevard, Bayside, NY 11361; (212) 224-2999.

Although many pediatricians aren't very knowledgeable about this disease, there are doctors who can be contacted for help; the association should be able to assist. The sooner it is diagnosed, the better it is for the child.

People can show Tourette symptoms as early as 3 to 5 years of age. Also, coprolalia (using obscene words involuntarily) is present in only about 30 percent to 50 percent of Tourette patients. It is not necessarily a primary symptom.

Your help in providing this information will be so much appreciated.

A. Thank you very much for writing — and also for sending two of the association's brochures that clearly describe symptoms, causes, treatment and other factors important to parents of these children. Information included related to age of onset (2 to 14 years of age), the ticlike muscular movements and current research.

I assume such printed materials are available from the association.

Your Social Security

Can't buy into Social Security

Q. I have only been in this country for a few years and do not have enough quarters of coverage. Is it possible that I could buy into Social Security? — D.H.

A. You cannot buy into Social Security. Social Security credits can be earned only if you work as an employee in work covered by Social Security or if you work for yourself and have net profits of $400 or more in a year from your trade or business.

Q. I am 60 years old and plan to retire very shortly. Does it take long to get some idea of what I would be entitled to under Social Security? — G.F.

A. People 60 and older can get an immediate estimate of what their monthly benefits will be. This information can be obtained without cost from any Social Security office.

Q. I plan to open a small delicatessen and have my 18-year-old son work for me. Will I have to report his wages for Social Security purposes? — R.F.

A. Services performed by a child under age 21 in the employ of his or her mother or father are excluded from coverage. This means that your son, the employee, does not earn quarters of coverage and that you, the employer, are not liable for reporting the wages for FICA (Federal Insurance Contributions Act) taxation.

Q. Was there a recent change in Medicare that affected those age 65 who are still working? — R.G.

A. Yes. Employers with 20 or more employees must offer workers and their spouses in the 65-69 age group the same health insurance plan that they provide for younger workers. This special rule affects employees age 65-69 and the spouses — age 65-69 — of employees under 70. For more information about this, contact any Social Security office.

Gleed Paul Lowmy / Steve McKinstry

Are you having trouble with your love affair?
Yes.
What's the problem?
I can't decide whether to keep trying or to quit.
Why don't you keep trying?
When I'm unsuccessful, it's like clenching my hand tighter and tighter until my knuckles turn white.
Then, why don't you quit?
That's like opening my hand.
Wouldn't it feel better?
Yes, but it would be empty.

A McGruff Crime Dog Doll was presented to the winners of the recent Consumer Fair at the Hicksville Post Office.

Postal Inspectors ran the Consumer Fair to encourage customers to learn more about mail fraud problems. Customers were encouraged to fill out Consumer Service Cards and drop them in a box at the Consumer Protection Display. Each day Postal Inspectors selected a card with the name of the McGruff Doll winner.

"The Consumer Service Card is the most effective tool the Postal Service has to track customer mailing problems," said Roger Nienaber Hicksville Manager/Postmaster. "Each year about a half a million people use the cards to contact the Postal Service. Whether it is a service problem, a mail order problem or just to compliment an employee, we urge our customers to use Consumer Service Cards to let us know."

Platform rocker patented in 1876

By James G. McCollam
Member, Antique
Appraisers Association of America

Q. This platform rocker has been in our family for many years, and I'm sure it is an antique. It is solid walnut and in good condition.

Can you tell me how old it is and what it is worth?

A. The first platform rocker was patented in 1876, so this probably was made in the fourth quarter of the 19th century. These are very popular with collectors and in some areas are selling for over $300.

Q. What can you tell me about Cordey figurines? I see them in antique shops priced from about $50 to over $200.

When were they made and who made them?

A. Cordey was the name of a porcelain factory in Trenton, N.J. Its greatest claim to fame was artist Boleslaw Cybis.

Cybis was born in Lithuania, lived in Poland, served in the Ukrainian army and migrated to the United States in 1939. From 1942 to 1950 he worked for Cordey. In 1950, he formed his own company, Cybis Porcelain.

Cybis figurines sell in the $200 to $300 range. Cordey figurines associated with Boleslaw Cybis bring equally high prices. Those not connected with Cybis sell for less than $100.

Q. I have a platter marked "Wedgwood & Co." It is blue and white china with a rural scene showing a farmhouse, farmers and cattle.

Please tell me its vintage and value.

A. This is not the Wedgwood made by Josiah Wedgwood of Etruria, England. Wedgwood & Co. was founded in Tunstall, England, in 1865. The company name was changed to Enoch Wedgwood Ltd. in 1965.

Your platter was made in the late 19th century (1870 to 1890). It

Drive In Window Denied At Burger King

The Oyster Bay Town Board has denied a request for a special use permit to operate a drive-in window at an existing Burger King Restaurant in Plainview, according to Town Councilman Kenneth S. Diamond.

"The applicants, Old Country Road Burgers, Co., Inc., Creative Foods Corp., and Fulton Associates, were seeking the special use permit to maintain a drive-in window at the Burger King Restaurant located at the south-east corner of Old Country and South Oyster Bay Roads," Diamond stated. "At a public hearing held on February 5, residents expressed concern that the drive-in window would create hazardous traffic conditions and noise that would negatively impact on nearby residential areas."

In denying the application, the Town Board said that it found the subject premises inadequate and unsuitable for the intensified use the drive-in window would create. It also noted that it denied a similar request by the applicant in September 1980, citing increased traffic hazards and noise levels as well as incompatibility with the purpose and intent of the comprehensive zoning plan of the Town.

Eat Yourself Slim

Put the bite on tooth decay

By Shirley Bright Boody
Registered Dietitian

Can certain foods actually help prevent tooth decay? Yes, according to recent studies reported in the Journal of the American Dental Association. Aged cheddar cheese contains milk proteins that seem to help protect tooth enamel from becoming demineralized.

Food texture also can help increase protection against cavities with fiber now considered a valuable tool in dental health as well as general health. Fruits and vegetables provide fiber that increases both chewing and saliva production to promote a cleansing action. This is not true of all fruits, however. The dried, sticky kinds like raisins and figs, if eaten between meals, can create an atmosphere that allows bacteria to grow almost as rapidly as if pure sugar had been eaten.

Sugar is the major villain in cavities, and the greater our consumption of high-sugar foods, the more cavities we will develop. But other simple carbohydrates such as honey and corn sweeteners, which often are added to certain processed foods, can be just as destructive. If the foods are gummy and sticky and cling to tooth surfaces, the potential for decay is even greater since the bacteria remain longer around the teeth and continue to form acids.

If you have been giving your children raisins, dates and other dried fruits as nutritious between-meal snacks, you would be well-advised to serve them with a meal rather than between meals, unless the child's teeth are brushed and flossed directly after eating the snacks. In laboratory studies, raisins, when eaten between meals, apparently caused more damage to tooth enamel than chocolate-covered cookies, granola and fudge bars.

When other foods are eaten along with the sticky ones the additional saliva that is produced helps to clean the sugars out of the mouth, especially if foods with a high fiber content are included — for example, if you have raisins with your lunch, follow with an apple or raw carrots. Nothing, however, beats brushing and flossing after every meal.

In addition to the amount of simple sugars and stickiness of the foods that are consumed, the amount of time they stay in the mouth also is vitally important in determining the amount of acid-forming activity of the bacteria. The peak of acid formation is reached within 20 minutes. If you eat candy and immediately rinse or brush your teeth, you will be exposed to the acid formation for less than 20 minutes. If you eat several candies or sweets over a longer period, your exposure to acid formation is much greater.

Sugar substitutes, fortunately, are not nearly as detrimental to teeth as sugars. Sorbitol, xylitol and mannitol, the sweet sugar alcohols that are commonly used as low-calorie sweeteners, seem to resist fermentation by bacteria in the mouth or, at worst, the action is very slow. Aspartame also is not thought to cause cavities.

Surprisingly, chocolate appears to have a substance that may help prevent cavities, and is a better choice than sticky candies. However, if the chocolate is sweetened with sugar it will not protect against the detrimental effect of the sugar.

If you must have sweets, eat them with meals and brush and floss soon after eating. The best between-meal snacks to prevent cavities are aged cheddar cheese and fresh raw fruits and vegetables. This is particularly true in preventing cavities in children.

Fluoridation and the new sealants can reduce tooth decay dramatically. If you're not familiar with these techniques, check with your dentist. It's well worth it to you and your children.

Summer Jobs For Youngsters

The Town of Oyster Bay, in cooperation with the Private Industry Council, is offering over 900 jobs this summer through its federally funded $1.3 million Summer Youth Employment Program, according to Oyster Bay Town Supervisor Joseph Colby.

"We realize the difficulty most youngsters have in finding a summer job. Our program will give participants the chance to learn new skills, gain valuable work experience and earn money at the same time," Colby said.

Employment opportunities in clerical, bookkeeping, child care, counseling and landscaping are among the choices of positions available. In many cases, jobs are located close to the participant's home.

"Each year our program becomes stronger and more effective because of the support of the Private Industry Council working together with Town government in creating jobs, providing educational programs and stimulating growth in the local economy," Colby said.

Eligibility guidelines include anyone between 14 and 21 years old, who lives in the Towns of Oyster Bay or North Hempstead, or the City of Glen Cove; and meets federally established economic guidelines.

Those interested should call the Town of Oyster Bay's Division of Employment and Training at 795-5610, Monday through Friday between 9 and 4:45 p.m.

All jobs will begin the first week in July and will last approximately eight weeks.

Dutch La. Students Host Pen Pals

On June 7, amid shouts of recognition, pen-pals met at an elaborate luncheon provided by the third graders at Dutch Lane for their counterparts from Fork Lane School. Animated conversations attested to the warm friendships that have developed as a result of the year long letter writing activities between the children in Mrs. Marx's class and those in Mrs. Grib's.

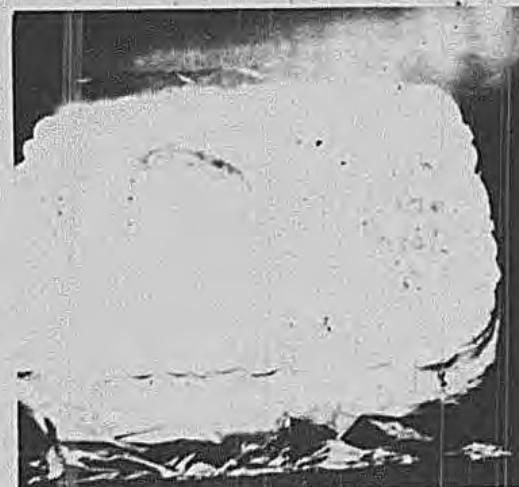

A large cake inscribed with every child's name was baked for the occasion by Mrs. Manzo, a Dutch Lane mother.

Willet Ave. Students Win Consumer Awards

Each year the Nassau County Office of Consumer Awards holds a Consumer Youth Contest, in which engraved plaques and certificates are presented for outstanding student projects related to wise consumerism.

Willet Avenue School submitted four entries this year—all of which were prize winners. Twenty-eight students were involved, under the supervision of teachers Joanne Crown, Phoebe Witte, and Rosemary Barrow. Since this represented a two year effort, some of the students involved are now attending junior high.

First Prize for Nassau County for a Class Project was awarded to Willet "The Coupon Caper". Each student had been given a set of grocery store cents-off coupons for cereal and soap, and two work sheets, with the assignment to comparison shop each available size of the designated items and record his findings. Coordinators Jennifer Gengler, Joe Anci and Carmine Vozzolo then assembled the data. Charts were prepared for unit pricing by the ounce. Then the discounted price was computed, using double cents-off coupons. Surprisingly, the best buy with the coupons was usually the smallest size. Sometimes it was even free! For display purposes, two six food boards were prepared, their surfaces covered with colorful laminated grocery store circulars. Various sizes of empty cereal boxes were mounted on one, and soap boxes and bottles of the brands researched were attached to the other. With each product grouping was a card indicating the students' findings, with the best buy starred.

First Prize for a Report went to Brian Garnets, Philip Bassuk and Gregory Nares for their scrapbook "The Progress of Inflation". This consisted of a two part study. The first was a selection of new articles on inflation and the cost of living, with an 80 year comparison of wages in different occupations. The second section illustrated objects used by a typical family at the turn of the century and today, comparing prices for clothing, toys, furniture housing and automobiles. Pictures and statistics were copied from old Sears Roebuck Catalogs and Almanacs, and compared with store catalogs, almanacs and newspapers of today.

Second Prize for their project "All That Glitters and How to Buy It", was awarded to Hermes Furlin, Jr., Brian Garnets and Christine Zandides. They reported on the history of gold and silver as designators of wealth, and gave valuable hints on how to shop for gold and silver jewelry today. For example, silver marked "925" is the equivalent of "Sterling", and European silver is often marked "800" indicating 800/1000 parts of silver in the alloy. Karat marks and gram and pennyweight designations for gold were explained, and a chart was provided to show what other metals are mixed with gold to produce the varied colors currently popular.

Tom Spina, Michael Flemm, and Sandra Mohan cooperated on a project which received Honorable Mention. It was entitled "Funny Money", and demonstrated graphically how to detect counterfeit money.

The Awards Ceremony took place on June 5 at Hofstra University with the Consumer Affairs Education Specialist Lois Schmitt conducting the program and Commissioner James E. Picken presenting the prizes.

Most Input Callers Think Grads Are Better This Year

Most callers to Input believe that this year college students are better prepared than previously in answer to this question: "From your observations do you think that this year's crop of college graduates is putting too great an emphasis on material things and getting ahead rather than causes to better the world." Here are some of the answers: TOO BAD

It is a shame that so many college students only think of getting out of school to earn a large amount of money. They will find that money is not the goal of life. They would be better to listen and try to change the world. There are certainly enough things that are wrong. The young should have a big interest in the world they will be living in for a number of generations. F.L.

BETTER NOW

I think that college students are better now than they were in past generations. Even though many of the groups pushing for reforms said they were doing them for the good of the world, many of them went off on tangents that really didn't benefit anyone including themselves. The best thing to do in college is to prepare for a career and it is a great opportunity that, if missed, will not be repeated in a lifetime. A.F. SUCCESS

I have a feeling, and only a feeling, that the current college graduates - both genders - are more sensitive to careers in terms of what their efforts will bring them in the way of creature comforts and pleasures and a clearly evident display of success and stature among their peers. It appears to me that money is the criterion by which these yardsticks are measured and it takes plenty of it to satisfy these burning ambitions especially where independence is an early desire - getting rid of those apron strings as soon as possible. A significant part of this pattern has its roots in the unwillingness to enter the marital state early thereby postponing the natural, societal, community and family relationships and responsibilities which spring from a connubial relationship. Only in this ambient is it possible to visualize the real meaning of "causes to better the world" as from an individualistic point of view, such causes can have little meaning and application to the families of the world. As this week's question is obviously directed to career graduates, a rather different observation would probably derive from those students engaged in the arts, sciences, social studies and similar curricula. P.G.S.

OUT FOR JOBS

As far as college graduates go I feel they are definitely out for jobs and that's why they go to college instead of for their own self help or better knowledge. Most of the people going to school now are looking for majors that are more into a specific field. The ones who go into the Humanities are doing so for self help instead of trying to get ahead for a job. T.E.

HARD TO SAY

It's difficult to say if college students are there just to get a job instead of trying to better the world. Last week 7000 graduated from N.Y. University. The business classes were nearly as large as the arts classes. Exceptions were medical and dentistry. I don't know what this means but it means there were a lot interested in the arts who probably are not serious in righting the world as the others. Cause is fine. Cause is wonderful if you have time enough to pursue it properly. You need money and you need a good position. Also, today's students need money to pay off their debt. Each college student has a financial responsibility over his/her head. So material things come first. Causes come when you have a little time. Just one aside-one of the students (I don't know which class it was) was wearing his graduating cap and gown and on the top of the cap was a great big gold dollar sign....This could be a sign of the times. H.S.

ON THE JOB

Regarding the question about college students today, I sometimes wonder if some of these young people could not have learned more with "on the job training" as it was years ago. Today a piece of paper from any college, good or bad, automatically assures a high-paying job to a person who most likely has little or no experience in the business world while a capable job seeker is cast aside for the lesser paying jobs. It seems to me that industry ought to open up its doors and be willing to teach future employees from the "bottom up" as they used to say. A lot of families could save money on educational expenses and maybe this would enable colleges to get back to what they were designed for. A place for higher learning. V.Z.

SUPERMARKETS

A situation now exists in our local supermarkets that should warrant immediate attention by the proper authorities. I refer to blocking of aisles with numerous displays and limiting the safe movement about the stores. This, in the event of a fire, would be disastrous in view of the many elderly and children found in these markets. E.C.

SOURCE SEPARATION

Source separation and recycling all trash and garbage would lower taxes and help toward a cleaner environment. Unfortunately many politicians and big business believe that economically safe disposal of unseparated garbage and commercially generated toxic wastes should be by burning everything mixed together at extremely high temperatures to make steam for electricity. These big business entrepreneurs sell their ideas as one that will create new jobs and improve our economy overall. The sad reality is that the electricity generated will be minimal compared to the nominal price that must be paid. Remember that it will become necessary to always fuel these furnaces with plenty of unseparated garbage so more and more overproduction of useless merchandise will be overpackaged and sold by overadvertising to gullible consumers. The end result becomes a few kilowatts of electricity at a much higher price than Shoreham has already cost us. Nuclear fission energy is going to be replaced by nuclear fusion or solar energy. Garbage generated electricity will become too expensive and obsolete even before it starts production, perhaps by 1990 on Long Island. T.F.

My Father--A Special Person

This story by Ann Marie Liotta, a seventh grader at New Hyde Park Memorial High School, recently won runner-up honors by the Nassau Reading Council. The quality of the story, which told of her Dad's illness and death, was rated as excellent by a panel of judges led by Dr. Harvey Alpert of Hofstra University.

Here is Ann Marie's story just as she wrote it:
By Ann Marie Liotta

My father is a very special person. In this essay I want to write about how special he was to me and how it was like when he was dying.

It was 1978, I was six years old then, and I was at my sister's communion party. We were all having a really good time, until it happened....my father had a heart attack! It's not like it was the first time he had one, he had three of them already, but this was a big one. I was so young, I really didn't understand. Then all of a sudden I saw everyone yelling and they were carrying my dad to the car. Then I saw my sister crying like crazy. I asked my mom what happened, and all she said was, "Your daddy is hurt." But later I found out he had a heart attack.

The next day we visited him at the hospital. The nurse gave me two chocolates. She reminded me not to give my dad any. But when my mom and the nurse went into another room, my dad asked me for one. He told me that he could never have chocolate because they never let him. So then I finally gave it to him. I felt bad for him. It's torture not having chocolate!!

The next month he came home. I was so happy.

The night he came home, we had a really special night. First we had a really good dinner, then he started telling real funny jokes, and then he started tickling my sister and me to death. I think he was one great dad!

The next month, my dad had another heart attack. I was real scared. Some how, I felt more scared than any other time he had a heart attack. We rushed him to the hospital. An hour later, the doctor came out. "Only Mrs. Liotta could see him," he said.

I was frightened. Is he dying? What's happening. A 1/2 hour later my mom came out of his room and we went home.

The next morning I woke up pretty late. I walked downstairs and saw all of my relatives were there, crying. It happened, I thought.

My mom came over to me and said, "Ann, your daddy died." I was shocked. Since I was so young, I really didn't understand. But then my sister explained it to me. I started crying a lot. He's gone, I thought. I'll never get to see my dad again. I really think he was a great dad and he'll always be in my mind.

Ann and her sister, Toni, live with their mother in New Hyde Park. Ann is an active contributor to the school's literary publication, "The Arena."

Thomas Liotta: "I really think he was a great dad and he'll always be in my mind....."

Ann Marie Liotta: "I want to write about how special he was to me and how it was like when he was dying...." (Ann is shown here with her guidance counselor, Mrs. Joann Pasquale.)

READER RATINGS

MORE THAN FOOD

There is something about the Benihana Restaurant that makes it a wonderful show in addition to a good place to get a steak dinner. Different from most restaurants the chef stands in front of the grill and cooks your order for you while you wait. In addition you can watch him cut it up with the skill of a surgeon. We went there last week and decided that it was truly a favorite place. The food is good, including the salad with a special spice blend. And it is fun to watch the preparation. The lounge at Benihana is an attractive place to have a before dinner cocktail. We think it is great. C.R.

READER RATINGS

J. When I am at a very nice restaurant with my boy friend, how do I order dinner?
 P.C.
 A. During the noon hour even in luxury restaurants each diner is expected to give his own order to the waiter to speed the service. Therefore, when you sit down you look at the menu presented to you either by your escort or by the waiter, and choose your main dish, the entree, first so you can decide what first course would go well with it. You then tell the waiter what you would like, usually waiting until after your meal to give your dessert order is any. The procedure is usually different at night in luxury restaurants where there is time for some old-fashioned courtesy. You wait until the menu has been handed to you by your escort or the waiter, then you wait for your escort to make some suggestions on what might be nice to eat.

 Q. When you enter a restaurant does the man go first of does the woman?
 T.K.

A. This is a question that keeps coming up. The procedure is for the man to talk to the host about a previous reservation or the unreserved needs. From there on the woman follows the restaurant host and may or may not accept the table that is being given. In a restaurant without a host the man goes first.

FINE MEAL

Last week we went to the LaCisterna restaurant in Mineola and were delighted with the meal.

The LaCisterna is beautifully decorated restaurant with a fine large dining room set in a restful and inviting style. The service is good and the food is well worth a return visit.

We had veal marsala for one dinner and bass for the other. The veal was fresh and tender and the marsala sauce was exceptionally well done. The bass was fresh and flavorful. Starting off the meal we had salad and soup which also rated high. We were very satisfied with the visit and want to recommend it to your readers. H.G.

STILL THE BEST

We had to call because we believe that many of your readers so what we do. We forget about the best and try many others. Last week after going to three other Italian restaurants in a month we went back to Iannone's in Hicksville.

We have never been to this restaurant without having anything but superb food. But for a month or so had tried others that were good but really not as good. Iannone's has fine pasta and the flavorful shrimp and tender veal in good marsala sauce. The restaurant is unbeatable. If there is a better Italian restaurant we have never found it. Y.C.

This Is Your Chance To Join "Reader Ratings"

The Last Word In Restaurant Guides

Where Our Readers Have The Last Word

This newspaper, and the seven other weekly newspapers associated with it, publishes the last word in restaurant guides - a paid listing of many prominent selected restaurants in this area. While many of them have been rated by the great, and near great food connoisseurs, our readers will have the last word through "Reader Ratings"

Through a special 24 hour phone system, readers will be asked to call in their assessment of each restaurant they visit. Consumer ratings (good or bad) will be published as a continuing part of the guide

In addition they can make suggestions, compliments or criticisms through the open phone line and messages will be sent through to the restaurant management

GARDEN RESTAURANT

Last week we went to the Kokura Restaurant in Woodbury. This is a new Japanese Restaurant that features a complete menu of meat and fish. We had lobster tails that were as fresh as the sea and prepared in a delicate Japanese sauce. In fact, several members of our party said that they had never eaten more delicious food.

The entire restaurant is in the form of a garden type house that has been transformed into a Japanese garden setting. The service is authentic with Japanese waitresses. Chop sticks or silverware are given according to the skill of the diner.

We feel that this is a fine new restaurant that is worth a visit a day.

Cooking Corner
 Full house sure bet
 with Mexican food

By Ken Johnson

When it's Mexican food you're after, you usually don't turn to a third-generation Swede named Johnson to get it. You get your recipe from a Garcia or a Torres, or you dine at a place called Jose's or La Fiesta.

But when you're invited to dinner at my place, you're probably going to eat Mexican cuisine. Be forewarned: These dishes are not authentic by the classic definition of the Mexican-American cook. But they'll hold you in good stead if you're planning a party feast, a weekend dinner extravaganza or just a good midweek meal.

The guest list determines my approach to a dinner. If the invitation includes some new faces whose tastes are a mystery, or children, who usually disdain hot food, I keep the dishes basic (tacos, enchiladas and rice).

If it's my poker gang that's coming by, I almost double the chili input (not to mention the quantity per person).

My current personal favorite dish is chilies rellenos, a crisp-fried form of omelette topped with salsa. Stuffed with plenty of Monterey Jack cheese, they are at home as an entree or as a side dish.

If you're looking for something different, try the Carne Caliente over rice. Boiling the meat with hot chilies and their seeds provides a rousing dish for the heartier Mexican-food lovers, and it's very filling. Go easy on the side dishes when you serve it, it's almost a meal in itself.

Remember, stick to fresh meats and vegetables, and keep experimenting with the chilies to meet the tastes of your eating audience.

CHILI RELLENOS

- Whole green (Anenheim) chilies, 1 for each relleno
- Monterey Jack cheese cut in 3-inch-long logs
- Salsa
- 1 dozen eggs
- Salt and pepper
- Oil for frying

Fresh chilies are best, but they must be peeled. Canned chilies are handy, but the lack of freshness costs. A good rule of thumb is to use fresh chilies for a small dinner and the canned, whole green chilies for a larger crowd.

The best way to peel a fresh chili is to hold it over an open burner flame with a fork, turning it as the skin burns and pops. After all the skin has been roasted, place the chili on a working surface and remove the skin. Keep the chili as intact as possible. Remove the stem and the white pulp inside the top of the chili. The seeds are optional (I prefer to leave them in.)

Stuff each chili with Monterey Jack cheese and set aside. Begin warming about 1 pint of salsa for each half dozen rellenos you plan to cook.

Separate two eggs and whip the white first, adding a little salt and pepper. Add yolks and blend to a froth. You'll need to blend a two-egg mixture for every three rellenos.

Into a frying pan with ¼ inch of oil, spoon in frothy egg mixture about double the size and the same shape as a chili. As the batter cooks, place a stuffed chili onto its center and cover with a layer of the egg mixture. (Don't worry if it doesn't seem to hold.) As the bottom layer cooks, begin "rolling" the coating and chili with a spatula so that the batter begins to encircle the relleno. Once the egg is done, the entire chili should be coated.

Place rellenos on a platter, cover each with the warmed salsa and serve.

ENCHILADAS

- 2 cans enchilada sauce
- 1 dozen corn tortillas
- 1 lb. ground or shredded beef, cooked
- Chopped onions
- Chopped cilantro
- ¼ lb. Monterey Jack cheese, cut into 12 3x½-inch logs (grate the rest)
- Salt and pepper
- Pitted olives

You'll want to build these enchiladas to your taste. Prepare all ingredients and place on counter-top.

Warm one can of enchilada sauce on stove. In lightly oiled frying pan (next to sauce), warm tortilla thoroughly. Using tongs, remove tortilla and drain, then place in warm sauce. Make sure entire tortilla is covered with sauce, then place tortilla on working board. Placing fillings toward one edge to facilitate tight wrap, fill tortilla with meat, onions, cilantro and cheese logs. Salt and pepper to taste. Roll.

Place enchilada in rectangular casserole dish or on foil-covered cookie sheet. Repeat process with remaining tortillas. Use any leftover warmed sauce and contents of second can to cover enchiladas. Sprinkle grated cheese (and onions and cilantro, if desired) over top. Place few olives on each enchilada and bake in 350 F oven about 15 minutes, or until cheese melts.

CARNE CALIENTE

- 4 yellow chilies, cleaned and coarsely chopped, with seeds
- 2 jalapeno chilies, cleaned and coarsely chopped, with seeds
- 2 lbs. round steak or other moderately priced beef

In 2-quart pan, bring water to boil, and blend in yellow and jalapeno chilies (with seeds). Let chilies boil about 15 minutes.

While chilies boil, cut meat into 1- to 1½-inch chunks, removing all fat. Add meat to boiling water (add more water if necessary). Let mixture simmer about 1 hour. Drain meat thoroughly and serve (with chilies if desired) over plain rice, Mexican rice or simply as meat entree.

Makes 4 servings.

Check for seasoning and add some horseradish or salt and pepper if desired.

Serve with crusty bread or other items for dipping (see text).

Note: Other cheeses may be substituted, but avoid processed cheeses, which may not melt properly.

Serves 4.

WINE AND CHEESE FONDUE

- 4 ozs. Gruyere (see note)
- 4 ozs. Emmentaler (see note)
- 4 ozs. Havarti (see note)
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 cup dry white wine
- ¼ tsp. nutmeg
- 1-2 tbsps. cornstarch, mixed in equal amount of water
- 3 tbsps. kirsch
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

Coarsely chop or grate cheeses. With sharp knife, thoroughly score garlic clove, and with it rub inside of chafing dish or fondue pan. Add wine and heat at medium-high setting until bubbles form on surface but wine is not boiling. Add cheese, a handful at a time, stirring constantly until smooth before adding next handful. If mixture is about to boil, reduce heat immediately.

When mixture is smooth, but still presents bit of resistance to stirring spoon, add kirsch and 1 tablespoon of cornstarch mixture. Continue to stir until fondue begins to thicken.

Check for seasoning and add nutmeg and salt and pepper to taste. If fondue is not thick enough, add a bit more of cornstarch mixture.

Serve with crisp bread chunks or other items for dipping (see text).

Note: Other cheeses may be substituted, but avoid processed cheeses, which may not melt properly.

Serves 4.

From Our Kitchen

Olivia and Paul Bensen

Dip into world of cheese fondues

By Olivia and Paul Bensen

The first fondues — and the ones most often prepared in the United States — consist of a mixture of cheeses with either a beer or wine base.

Beer and cheese fondues are very simple to make. The cheeses blend smoothly and evenly with the beer, and the resulting mixture remains quite stable, even if the temperature varies somewhat.

Wine and cheese fondues are a bit trickier. If you overheat the mixture while the cheeses are melting, or if you allow your fondue pot to become too hot while your guests are dipping, you'll be left with a glutinous mass of cheese solids floating in a clear, watery liquid.

We have found the best method is to heat the wine until it is near, but not at, the boiling point, then add the cheeses, keeping the mixture barely simmering, stirring gently until the cheeses are melted and blended with the wine. Only then are other ingredients added. If the fondue should become too thick at any point, stir in a bit more kirsch or wine.

Cubes of crusty French sourdough bread are the traditional choice for dunking in cheese fondues, but we like to add variety by also offering lightly steamed flowerettes of broccoli and cauliflower, chunks of rye bread, pieces of toasted onion bagels, pumpernickel, garlic bread and bite-size pieces of smoked sausage, well browned on all sides.

Here's a brief list of some cheeses that make excellent fondues. When you're considering combinations, avoid coupling a very strong-flavored cheese with a delicate variety.

Appenzeller: a fairly robust, full-flavored Swiss cheese.

Bel Paese: a soft, mild Italian table cheese.

Cheddar: nutty, tangy, varies from mild to very sharp.

Danbo: a fairly hard Danish cheese that melts smoothly.

Emmentaler: the classic Swiss cheese, with a nutty flavor and holes of varying sizes.

Fontina: a sweet, delicate Italian cheese that combines nicely with most varieties of Swiss.

Gruyere: a hard milk cheese with a mild flavor, made in France and Switzerland.

Monterey Jack: a white, fairly mild cheddar-type cheese.

Samsøe: a rich Danish cheese with the texture of a cheddar but the flavor of a Swiss.

Tilsit: a medium-firm German cheese with small holes and a medium-sharp taste.

BEER AND CHEESE FONDUE

- 4 ozs. Tillamook cheddar (see note)
- 4 ozs. Wyoming cheddar (see note)
- 4 ozs. Butter Kase (see note)
- 2 tbsps. flour
- ¼ tsp. dry mustard
- ¼ tsp. paprika
- 8 ozs. full-bodied beer
- ¼ tsp. horseradish (optional)
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste (optional)

Coarsely chop or grate cheese and toss in mixture of flour, mustard and paprika. Heat beer in chafing dish or fondue pot until almost boiling. Add cheese, a handful at a time, stirring constantly until each handful is thoroughly melted before adding next

- 4 fresh, medium-size artichokes, washed
- Fresh parsley sprigs, for garnish

DILLED HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

- 3 tbsps. butter or margarine
- 2 tbsps. flour
- 1 cup water
- ½ tsp. dried dill weed
- ¼ tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. paprika
- Dash white pepper
- Juice of ½ lemon
- 1 egg, beaten

Combine half of butter with flour in small saucepan. Blend smoothly and simmer over low heat, stirring often.

Add water and bring to boil over medium-high heat, stirring constantly.

Add dill, salt, paprika, pepper and lemon juice, blending well. While still boiling, pour over beaten egg, whipping vigorously with wire whisk.

Finally, add remaining butter, little at a time, beating well into sauce.

SAVORY BAKED ARTICHOKE

- 6 medium-size, fresh artichokes
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- ¼ cup minced onion
- 3 tbsps. minced fresh parsley
- 3 tbsps. shredded cheddar cheese
- 2 tbsps. chopped capers
- 4 tbsps. olive oil
- 1 cup vegetable broth

Wash artichokes and soak in cold water, stem up, for about 30 minutes. Drain well and cut off stem, then force leaves open. With small, sharp knife, remove choke. Set aside.

In mixing bowl, combine bread crumbs, onion, parsley, cheese, capers and 2 tablespoons oil. Divide mixture evenly among artichokes, spooning into center cavities. Brush tops of artichokes with remaining oil.

Arrange stuffed artichokes in well-buttered baking dish. Pour broth over all and bake in preheated 350 F oven for 1 hour, basting frequently.

May be served hot or cold. Serves 6.

LEMON-DIP ARTICHOKE

- One-third cup sour cream
- One-third cup mayonnaise
- 2 tbsps. lemon juice
- ¼ tsp. grated lemon peel
- Dash each salt and white pepper
- 4 large artichokes
- 2 tbsps. vegetable oil
- 1 clove garlic, peeled and halved
- 2 slices lemon, each ½ inch thick

In small mixing bowl, combine sour cream, mayonnaise, lemon juice, lemon peel, salt and pepper. Stir well to blend, cover and refrigerate.

Wash artichokes and soak in cold water, stems up, about ½ hour. Remove stems and snip sharp spikes from leaves with kitchen shears. Set aside.

Fill large pot with enough water to cover artichokes, then add vegetable oil and garlic. Squeeze lemon juice into water, then drop slices in, too.

Bring water to full boil over high heat, then add prepared artichokes. Cover pot and reduce heat to simmer. Cook artichokes 35 to 40 minutes, or until leaves are tender and easily removed.

Drain artichokes upside down on paper towels. Serve hot with individual dishes of lemon dip. Serves 4.

Microwave Magic

Cool cooking for hot summer nights

By Desiree Vivea

What do you do on those sultry summer nights when the thought of slaving over a hot stove is about as appealing as walking over hot coals?

Steer clear of the conventional oven, and shun the stove top. They'll only heat up the house, and you with it.

Instead, turn to that charmingly cool-cooking appliance on your countertop, and microwave an easy meal that won't leave you all steamed up.

For a tasty main dish, try Double Cheese Eggplant Bake, a savory blend of ground beef, eggplant, and Parmesan and mozzarella cheeses. Once assembled, you just pop it in the microwave to cool-cook for about 20 minutes while you toss a light salad and sip something tall and icy.

Elegant Chocolate Almond Mousse takes only minutes to put together. Prepare several hours ahead of time, or make it the night before and simply refrigerate until serving time.

Remember to put mixing bowl and beaters in the freezer to chill, so that whipped cream will beat high and fluffy.

This dessert is light in texture, but rich in calories, so serve in small portions and savor every cool, creamy bite.

Why wilt your spirits over a hot stove? When the heat gets you down, keep your cool in the kitchen the microwave way.

DOUBLE CHEESE EGGPLANT BAKE

- 1/2 lb lean ground beef
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced or pressed
- 1 medium-size (1 1/2 lb.) eggplant
- 1 (15 oz.) can tomato sauce
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 3 tbsps olive oil
- 1/2 tsp ground oregano
- 1/2 tsp leaf basil
- 1/4 tsp garlic salt
- 1/4 tsp pepper
- 2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese

Crumble beef into 1-quart glass casserole. Add onion and garlic. Cover and microwave 4 minutes, stirring after 2 minutes. Drain off fat; set aside.

Wash and peel eggplant, trim ends and cut in 1/4 inch slices. Set aside.

Combine remaining ingredients, except mozzarella, in 1-quart glass mixing bowl, stirring to blend well. Spread 1/2 cup of mixture over bottom of 13x9x2-inch glass baking dish.

Sprinkle beef evenly over top, then make two more layers of eggplant, topping each with equal amounts of remaining tomato sauce.

Cover with plastic wrap and microwave 15 minutes. Sprinkle mozzarella over top and microwave, uncovered, 4 minutes longer.

Let stand several minutes before serving.

Serves 6.

CHOCOLATE ALMOND MOUSSE

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup cocoa
- 1 cup powdered sugar
- 5 eggs, at room temperature, separated
- 1 tsp vanilla extract
- 1/4 tsp almond extract
- 1/2 cup heavy cream
- 2 tbsps powdered sugar
- Several drops orange flower water (optional)
- 1/4 cup slivered almonds

Place butter in small glass mixing bowl and microwave until melted. Stir in cocoa and beat until thoroughly blended and smooth.

Add powdered sugar and beat until creamy. Microwave 20 to 30 seconds, or until mixture is semi-runny. Then beat in egg yolks, one at a time. Set aside.

Beat egg whites until very stiff, then beat in vanilla and almond extracts. Gradually fold beaten egg whites into chocolate mixture, blending well.

Turn mixture into six small serving dishes and chill at least 2 hours, or overnight.

When almost ready to serve, beat heavy cream in chilled mixing bowl, with chilled beaters, adding powdered sugar and orange flower water, if desired.

Serve individual dishes topped with small dollops of whipped cream and sprinkling of slivered almonds.

Serves 6.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Wall was cleaned too well

Q. I recently painted a wall that had been papered. I removed the paper with a steamer and then thoroughly scrubbed the plaster with hot water to remove all the paste. I then waited for the walls to become dry before painting, but the paint blistered and peeled away.

Can you advise me on what the problem might be? — R.D.E.

A. Possibly, you were too thorough in your work. When paper is removed from a wall, every effort must be made to wet the plaster as little as possible. Severe wetting will damage the plaster, causing the surface to powder and the paint to peel.

You may try painting the plaster with diluted shellac to bond together the powdering surface and then paint over this, but this is only a temporary cure and the plaster must eventually be replaced.

Q. We have labored long and hard to remove the old stain and varnish from a 40-year-old knotty cedar paneling in our living room. We like the appearance of the bare wood, but wonder if it would be wise to leave it unfinished. If not, do you have a suggestion for a finish that would not alter it too much nor yellow with age? — R.M.G.

A. A clear penetrating sealer would make a good finish and would not color the natural appearance of the wood. After applying the sealer you might use an application of Liquid Gold. This will give the finish added protection and just a slight sheen.

For maintaining your panel finish, you can use Liquid Gold in the future to both clean and protect the surface. This product is available at most supermarkets.

Q. Long ago a friend gave me a copy of your column, which said that you can waterproof concrete. I have a fair-size patio and I would like to make it waterproof if possible, or at least more water-resistant. I would certainly appreciate any information you can provide on this. — Mrs. W.C.

A. There are several good concrete and masonry sealers on the market. Consult your local masonry or paint dealer for recommended products available in your area. Two brands that I have had good experiences with are Thompson's Water Seal (heavy duty) and Sinak Concrete Sealer. A sealer should be relatively easy to apply

Mainly For Seniors

Is arthritis relief worth 44 cents?

Dear Sir: Please find enclosed a stamped envelope. Send me your arthritis leaflet, although I doubt it is worth 44 cents. — Reader

Dear Reader: If you have tried the two home remedies to ease arthritis and want your money back, drop me a line. I will send you the 66 cents in stamps.

I have never said the Certo or the apple cider vinegar would help everyone. But they do help many. Also, they are not cures. There is no cure yet.

That's one thing the Arthritis Foundation and I agree upon. But we agree upon little else. They say diet has no effect upon arthritis. Many of my readers say otherwise. Mrs. A.S.B. volunteered her diet, which keeps away her excruciating pain. The diet is included in the leaflet, which is available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the column.

Since I started this column 14 years ago, when I retired as the editor of a newspaper in Southern California, I have tried to write about things of interest to my readers.

One day during that first year I wrote about arthritis. I received 3,000 letters.

Do you know why I ask for self-addressed envelopes? It's not only the time involved in handling hundreds of letters in the mail, but we in this generation don't write too plainly.

I wanted to get these things off my chest and your note was sort of a catalyst. Now we'll go on with other people's letters.

Dear John: After watching TV and perusing some of the scandal tabloids in the grocery store, it seems to me that everyone is off to your buck — particularly if you are a senior citizen.

And you would think there are and will help protect your patio surface.

Q. You recently stated that the best way to restore a valuable piece of silver is to have it replated. I believe if you will check with a reliable antique dealer you will find that replating will destroy much of the antique's value.

I hope you will print a retraction before too many antiques are destroyed. — M.S.

A. Certainly if the silver object is an antique your statement would apply. However, the previous reader's question was how to restore the finish of a silver item. If you will remember, I provided information on replating as well as recommending they consult a reliable antique dealer. If the item is not an antique and the owner wants the finish restored, the best method still is to have a professional replate the item.

cures for everything in the world, including thinning hair, sexual inadequacy, arthritis and obesity.

A fellow in a truck stopped by the house yesterday. He said he could see I needed a new roof. He wasn't in business here, he just said he happened to have a surplus load of roofing on his truck and would repair my roof for a ridiculous amount.

What kind of a chump did he take me for? Was there some secret sign on the front of my place that said easy mark, pigeon or maybe senior citizen? — S.E.G.

Dear S.E.G.: It's true that senior citizens seem to be marked. It's a jungle out there, so far as animals who want to take your money are concerned.

What can you do about it? Keep yourself as well-informed as possible. That one about your roof surprises me. It's an old racket.

Health rackets are perhaps the cruellest of all. There's no cure yet for such things as arthritis. Just the same, it makes me cringe when one of our readers writes in for the arthritis leaflet, referring to "your cure." To repeat, there's no such thing.

Dear John: Am enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Would you please send me a copy of your leaflet on the Certo formula and vinegar formula for arthritis?

My husband just tried vinegar and water (one glass) for arthritis in his shoulder and it helped a lot after a couple of weeks of using it once or twice a day.

His sister-in-law lives in a trailer park for retired people and those bothered by arthritis swear they are helped by WD-40.

We laughed at it, but several people have said it helps. — Mrs. A.S.

Dear Mrs. A.S.: Well, I've heard everything now. Surely creaky joints need lubrication, but this sounds impossible. My wife used to say, though, that I could fix almost anything with some tape and WD-40.

TWEEN 12 & 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed.D.

Teens: Several months ago I made the statement that college fraternity life promoted the use of alcohol, and I used a statistical survey printed in USA Today to make my point. I made my point all right, but I also made several hundred fraternity men mad enough to write and express their points of view. The following letters are typical of over "200 angry men."

Dr. Wallace: I am compelled to defend fraternity brothers nationwide and fight the large segment of the population who know little of the fraternity system save a viewing of "Animal House." Why not, for once, concentrate on the positive aspects of fraternity living?

— Honing social skills.
— Learning leadership and responsibility.

— Performing human service projects for every charitable institution imaginable (including Mothers Against Drunk Driving).

— Making friends for life.

I must admit that even my own fraternity brothers have engaged in activities in which their better judgment did not play a significant role; we all know people like that. Unfortunately, the media choose to concentrate on the bad apples rather than the good we do the community, the local college or university in which we take an active part and the influence we have in the "real world" once we graduate. — Dan

Dr. Wallace: Your repeating the insidious item on fraternities being a major reason for excessive drinking did what a good journalistic item should do — it got a reaction.

I was in a fraternity and my son was in another fraternity. Yes, there was (and is) drinking. But check the dorms on any major campus. Drugs and alcohol are flagrantly in use. — Len

Dr. Wallace: Why pick on fraternities? My wife was in a sorority and before we were married I used to leave my fraternity house and go over to her sorority house and do some serious drinking. — Paul

Dr. Wallace: Don't blame fraternities. If a person wants to drink he will drink anywhere, anytime, be it a fraternity house or the White House. — Merle

Dr. Wallace: I'll admit the booze flows freely in frat houses but isn't that a lot better than drinking in cars? — John

Dr. Wallace: I was a non-drinker when I joined a college fraternity. Yes, I learned to drink while in a frat hut, as I said, I learned how, and because of that I have never been drunk in my life. — Bruce

Dr. Wallace: You indicated that "fraternities are a major reason for excessive drinking among college students." It is difficult for me to believe that less than 10 percent of the entire student population was responsible for 100 percent of the excessive drinking on our college campuses.

In any event, you should be aware that national college fraternities have joined in a partnership with other student development organizations to encourage members to make responsible decisions about alcohol use. Tau Kappa Epsilon has been very involved in this educational effort. — Gary

Dr. Wallace: Why is it guys who were not fraternity members always know so much about what goes on at the frat houses? — Todd

Todd: If your remarks are intended for me, forget it. While at Knox College, I was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Kelly: There is no way to sober up quickly. A cold shower or black coffee will have little or no effect. A general rule of thumb is that it will take as many hours to become sober as the number of drinks ingested.

I think the time has come for Bud to be introduced to a wonderful organization, Alcoholics Anonymous, and for you to be familiar with Alanon. Look for the telephone numbers in your local phone book.

Dr. Wallace: My boyfriend drinks a lot and I'm the one who has to get him sober. I've tried cold showers and strong, black coffee but they don't seem to help him like they do other people.

Can you give me a faster way to get him sober? I never allow Bud to drive while he is drunk. — Kelly

Q. I am moving into a new condominium with my traditional furniture. The condo has all parquet floors in the living room, hall and bedrooms. I love the wood but I am afraid with wood furniture, the effect will be overpowering.

A. How does one keep the furniture and the floor from dominating all else in the room, short of covering up the wood floor, which I don't want to do? — M.N.B.

A. Careful attention to other elements in the room is one way to begin. When you introduce interesting materials, lighting and colors, you tend to draw attention away from the large amount of wood.

For example, pretty soft wall colors or attractive print wall coverings should be considered. Appropriately elegant window treatments with perhaps swags or valances of interesting fabric lend a traditional air and complement wood floor and furniture. And especially lovely fabrics in upholstered pieces and bedspreads allow you more chance to provide variety.

Finally, don't eliminate the idea of a rug. Perhaps runners here and there or an occasional area rug would tend to highlight rather than detract from all the wood.

Q. I have a kitchen with a very high ceiling. I'd like to have a lowered ceiling with indirect lighting installed but the cost seems prohibitively high.

What could I do that would be cosmetic to make the room seem less barlike and more appealing? — M.C.

A. Do you have any print in your kitchen? If not, why don't you wallpaper the ceiling of your kitchen and one wall. Choose wallpaper, of course, which blends with the elements you already have in your kitchen.

If you want an even more dramatic ceiling, add crossbeams of wood that you could finish similar to your cabinets. This will add a heavier look to the ceiling and tend to bring it down.

A similar effect, although less dramatic, can be created through the use of a darker paint on the ceiling than you have on the walls. This will bring the ceiling to a lower proportion visually.

Then avoid vertical arrangements and window treatment; instead think horizontally as you arrange accessories and plan draperies and curtains.

GIVE THESE LADIES MOUTHS, EYEBROWS AND EYES! THEY CAN BE PRETTY OR FUNNY!

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Last week I had an interesting letter from a reader of this column. He recently went with his parents and sister to visit his grandparents in Florida. He enjoyed the nice weather and all the wonderful things there were to see and do.

John's grandparents are retired and live in a trailer court. John said at first he didn't like the looks of the trailers from the outside, but after a time he got used to them. He thinks most of them are nicely furnished. He says it's a cheap way to live and it encourages people like his grandparents to make friends because the trailers are close together.

Still, he prefers to live in a house on Long Island with his family. Regular houses look much better than trailers, our friend John says, and there is much more room!

Love,
Aunt Tilly

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are Danny Moen and Chapin Fay. You'll be hearing from me soon, both of you!

Points on Pets

Ringworm a serious disease in animals, humans

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. We have been given a 6-month-old mixed-breed puppy.

Our neighbor believes the dog has ringworm and has scared our children silly. Is it true that humans can get ringworm from pets and other animals?

A. If your dog does have ringworm, your neighbor is justified in being alarmed.

Ringworm is caused by fungi called dermatophytes. Although over 50 dermatophytes are known to affect man, only 12 have been reported to occur in animal species. Three of the four most common organisms causing ringworm can be passed readily between animals and man. Microsporum canis, found commonly in dogs and cats, and Trichophyton verrucosum of cattle are frequent causes of ringworm in humans. Trichophyton mentagrophytes affects both animals and man. Micro- porum gypseum, a soil inhabitant, also affects both humans and animals.

Young animals are affected more frequently than older ones. The fungi causing ringworm usually invade only the superficial layers of skin, hair and nails. The disease gets its name from the circular lesions that develop. The sores are raised areas on which the hair is gone. Broken hair shafts may remain on the raised area. The diameter of the sores may reach an inch or greater.

Your veterinarian can determine if your dog has ringworm. Many veterinarians use a special cobalt-filtered ultraviolet lamp to examine the sores for fluorescence, a sign typical of many ringworm cases. In addition, microscopic examination of hairs or scrapings or culturing the lesions for the causative organisms may be required. Treatment of severe cases usually involves oral medications administered simultaneously with anti-fungal ointments, shampoos or dips.

It should be remembered that ringworm is transmittable, and care should be taken to prevent its spread to people and other animals. Isolation of the infected animal usually is necessary. Contaminated bedding and other articles should be destroyed. Carpets and furniture also can become contaminated and must be cleaned if the animal is allowed to roam freely in the house.

Any animals suspected of having ringworm should be taken promptly to a veterinarian for diagnosis and treatment.
