'Presumptive Evidence' Heart Of New Open Container Law

The Oyster Bay Town Board, today, June 18, has unanimously adopted a tougher open-container law, according to Oyster Bay Town Supervisor Joseph Colby.

"Following a public hearing which was held on June 4," Colby said, "the Town Board has approved the adoption of a new law which will give the Nassau County Police tighter guidelines in their efforts to control public drinking and which stipulates stringent penalties for the possession of any open container of alcoholic beverages in public places within the Town of Oyster Bay."

Drafted jointly by the Town Attorneys from Oyster Bay, Hempstead and North Hempstead, the new ordinance includes provisions to meet current judicial criteria in order to withstand court challenges. Colby noted that, "the new law clarifies the issues raised by the courts by specifically stating that possession of an open or unsealed container of any alcoholic beverage is presumptive evidence of intent to consume the contents."

Penalties under the new law include fines for first offenses of not less than $25 nor more than $250 or imprisonment for up to 10 days, or both fines and imprisonment, and for second and subsequent offenses, a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $250 or imprisonment for up to 15 days, or both fines and imprisonment.

"The new law, which is uniform throughout Nassau County," Colby said, "will give the police tighter controls in order to curb incidents of disorderly conduct and vandalism and should also help to reduce potential incidents of Driving While Intoxicated."

George Malvese receives the "Commerce and Community" Plaque from Nassau County Industrial Development Agency (NCIDA). County Executive Francis T. Purcell said Mr. Malvese, chairman of George Malvese & Co., Inc. in Hicksville, was recognized for his lifetime contributions to Nassau County's economic growth. Mr. Purcell, left, and Herb Buschman, right, member of the Industrial Development Agency board, present the award to Mr. Malvese. The company, founded in 1912, sells and services heavy construction equipment. The company employs 70 people.

Tax Payments Due July 1

Oyster Bay Town Receiver of Taxes Gary F. Musiello reminds residents that the second half of the 1985 General Tax Levy is due on July 1, 1985, but may be paid without penalty through August 10.

"By law, a taxpayer has a 40-day grace period from the date the tax is due during which time payment may be made without penalty," Musiello explained. After that 40 days, a 1% penalty is attached for each month the tax remains unpaid."

Residents can pay in person at the Tax Office, Oyster Bay Town Hall West, Audrey Avenue, Oyster Bay, at the Hicksville Annex, Newbridge Road and Duffy Avenue, and at Town Hall South, Hicksville Road, Massapequa, or they can pay by mail. When paying by mail, stub #2 of the tax bill should be included with the payment. Residents paying in person should bring the entire tax bill. Musiello noted that if the first half of the 1985 General Tax Levy has not been paid, a resident may not pay the second half until payment is made for the first half.

Residents are asked not to write on, or deface in any way, the stub as it can cause rejection of the payment by the computer.

BOCES Grad

On Saturday, June 15, William Blazo of 46 Flower Street, Hicksville graduated from BOCES. Bill received an "Outstanding Student" Award for his excellent work in welding. William graduates from Hicksville High School on Sunday June 23.

Hicksville High School Graduation On Sunday

This Sunday, June 23, 460 Hicksville youngsters will assemble in caps and gowns to take their places as graduates of the class of 1985. The traditional and familiar strains of "Pomp and Circumstance", played by the combined bands of Hicksville High School under the direction of Mr. Thomas Buttice, will signal the beginning of this year's ceremony, scheduled for 2 p.m. on McCormack Field. Ronald Fleming is the class valedictorian, and Joseph Baggett will speak as salutatorian. Colleen Dennis, class president will also add her remarks.

Participating in the seventy-first commencement exercises will be Principal Richard G. Hogan, Board of Education President William P. Bennett, Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Catherine J. Fenton, and class advisors Nancy DeSorbo and Louis Piochochi. Rev. Wayne Paul of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church will deliver the invocation.

Assemblyman Fred Parola was pleased to present members of the Hicksville Baseball Association with a legislative resolution honoring Baseball Day in Nassau County. Present during the ceremonies were, left to right, Mike Rose, Tom Granal, Leslie Mewoul, Parola and Jennifer Mezuel.

In observance of Flag Day, June 14, the Charles Wagner Post 421 of the American Legion conducted a demonstration of the proper disposal of old and damaged national colors, a formal flag burning ceremony. Here, a torn flag, having been inspected and found unfit for further service, is being committed to "clean and purging flames" by Post Color Guard member, left to right, Harry Christo, and Past Commanders Raymond Gambie and Frank Molinari, a recipient of two Bronze Stars during World War II.

Fork Lane's PTA recently held a breakfast honoring its moms who put in so much time and effort helping with the lunch program and other activities which make our school so special. Madeline Senn was presented with a gift for her total involvement in school activities. Honored, too, was Principal Richard R. Jennett who will be retiring at the end of the school year after having been an educator for more than 30 years.

Trinity Lutheran Visits Post Office

Dianne Uss's kindergarten class from Trinity Lutheran School toured the Hicksville Post Office.

They came to mail their Father's Day Cards and to get a look of the behind-the-scenes activities involved in moving their letters through the post office.

After seeing the film "How Does It Get There?", the class began their tour. One of the highlights was a demonstration of the cancellation machine by mailhandler Sal Fontana. Mr. Fontana explained why the post office cancels and dates every letter.

The children were given "Dogwatcher's Coloring Books" and asked to make sure they help keep their dogs from roaming the streets and possibly biting children, letter carriers or any other pedestrians.

Any school or community group interested in a tour of the Hicksville Post Office may contact the Public Affairs Office at 933-2406.

Mrs. Dianne Uss and her kindergarten class from Trinity Lutheran School started their recent tour of the Hicksville Post Office by mailing their Father's Day Cards.

News From Road Runners

POBRRC's Relay teams share a moment of well earned relaxation after successfully reaching the Mahopac finish line.

POBRRC's Liz Flahavan takes over from teammate Debi Daugherty at the start of the "Bronx to Yonkers" leg of the Relay.

Two teams from the Plainview-Old Bethpage Road Runners Club were on hand for the third annual "Manhattan to Mahopac Invitational Relay" on June 16.

This event, sponsored by the Taconic Road Runners Club, included teams invited from all over the New York metropolitan area and beyond. The Relay covered a total of 51.2 miles, starting from the International Running Center on East 89th Street in Manhattan, and finishing at Baldwin Place High School, just outside the hamlet of Mahopac in Putnam County. Eight runners from each team covered individual legs that ranged from 5.3 miles to 8.3 miles.

POBRRC's men's team, consisting of Al End, Andy

Mulrain, Pat Mulrain, Bert Jablon, Tom Horan, Jim McDougall, Michael Davidson, and John LoScalzo, took 20th place overall (with a total elapsed time of 5 hours, 37 minutes) in a field that included two teams of nationally ranked runners from Team Kangaroo.

POBRRC's women's team, consisting of Debi Daugherty, Julie Shapiro, Gina Gelman, Liz Flahavan, Susan Wolf, Kim Falkowski, Lisa Lipschutz, and Nancy Ackley, finished in fourth place among the women (with a total elapsed time of 6 hours, 24 minutes)—behind teams from the Westchester Puma Road Runners the Millrose Athletic Association, and the Taconic Road Runners.

The Relay was followed by a gala party/awards ceremony at the Lantern Restaurant in Mahopac.

Syosset Students Win Consumer Contest

Second place awards went to Thompson students Stuart Leon and Jacqui Meyer. Other winners included Michele Kranitz, Danny Selmer, Brian Marmor, Yasir Khan, Tanya Boellmann and Linda Jacobs, of Thompson. Mike Hendrickson of Syosset High School, also won a third place award.

Anthony Laterza was arrested by Detective Walker on June 14, and was charged with Burglary Second Degree and Menacing. He was arraigned on the charges at First District Court, Mineola.

Delligatti noted that all Town offices will be closed on July 4, but that all park and beach facilities will be open. He added that there are no special restrictions on hours of operation for businesses on the holiday.

July 30 Hearing On Car Dealership

The Oyster Bay Town Board has scheduled a public hearing for Tuesday, July 30, on a request for a special use permit to construct and operate an automobile dealership in Hicksville, according to Town Councilman John Venditto.

Colby Visits Bethpage GOP

Club President Kevin Galloway welcomed Town of Oyster Bay Supervisor Joseph Colby and Councilman Angelo A. Delligatti as the "Special Guests of Honor" at the most recent meeting of the Theodore Roosevelt Republican Club of Bethpage, on June 10. After briefly convening, a motion was carried to adjourn for the summer, followed by an informal party, interrupted only so that Supervisor Colby and Councilman Delligatti could address the gathering.

Colby about the record of his many achievements as Chief Executive of the Town of Oyster Bay during his 8 consecutive years in office, encompassing 4 consecutive elected terms. Now beginning a campaign for a fifth term, Colby pledged a continuation of the responsible, effective policies that have governed the needs of Town residents, with a look towards meeting the challenges of the future.

Councilman Delligatti followed, expressing his appreciation for support given him by the Bethpage GOP, and pledging that he will strive to maintain the faith shown in him to the best of his abilities, as a member of the Town Board.

George Yochmann, Executive Leader of the Bethpage GOP Organization, then honored the Club's Senior Member, Bertha Kunzig, by presenting her with a flowering garden basket, for her devotion to the club over the course of more than 40 years. Yochmann also presented Supervisor Colby with a giant "basket of fruit", in appreciation of his visit to the Club, and then with a check from the Bethpage Republican Committee, as a contribution towards the 1985 campaign.

Everyone had a good time as the festivities continued throughout the evening, with members exchanging best wishes for all to "Have a nice Summer!"

Bethpage H.S. Sophomore Excels

Carol Rubenstrunk, a sophomore in Bethpage High School, at the Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation Leadership Seminar for New York State, held at C.W. Post College from June 6 to the 9th, was selected from a competing group of students from 140 school districts to represent New York State at the HOBY International Leadership Seminar in Los Angeles in August. The criteria on which Carol's nomination was determined were potential leadership ability and a readiness to relate to new pursuits and to share knowledge. In the seminar on America's incentive system, Carol's discussions with prominent leaders in business, government, education, the professions, and the volunteer sector earned her the number one position among all the candidates.

Ms. Rubenstrunk was sponsored at the HOBY seminar by the Woman's Club of Bethpage. Mrs. Virginia Wolski, club president, said Carol is the HOBY ambassador who will represent New York State at the International Leadership Seminar in California with other ambassadors from 50 states, the District of Columbia, and twenty foreign countries. In her announcement to the Woman's Club at its annual dinner at the Linden Tree Restaurant, Mrs. Wolski praised Carol for her achievement and the honor which she brought to the Woman's Club and to the Bethpage community and school. Mrs. Wolski and the members of the Woman's Club of Bethpage look forward to hearing about the International Seminar on Carol's return from the University of Southern California.

Your Social Security

Medicare, SS numbers different

Q. My husband and I both have Medicare. Our cards have the same number except for the letter following the number.

A. Your Medicare number be the same as our Social Security number? — A.W.

A. Your Medicare health insurance card shows your health insurance claim number, which is nine digits and a letter. In some cases there will be another number after the letter.

If a husband and wife both have Medicare, they get separate cards and different claim numbers. Each must use the exact name and claim number shown on his or her card.

Q. My father, who had Medicare, died last month. I recently received a doctor's bill for medical services my father received during his illness.

A. I have paid the bill. Can I be reimbursed? — L.O.

A. If the bill was paid with funds from your father's estate, payment will be made either to the estate representative or to a surviving member of the deceased's immediate family. If someone other than the patient paid the bill, payment may be made to that person.

Contact your local Social Security office for additional information.

Q. I receive monthly Social Security payments based on my account. My wife was well under 60 years old when I first became entitled. She will be 63 years old on July 31, 1985. Is she now entitled to payment? — J.F.K.

A. Yes, your wife can file for benefits on your record. She should do so as soon as possible inasmuch as an application has limited retroactivity.

Q. Enclosed with my May SSI check was something about Social Security getting information from the Internal Revenue Service. What information will be released? — O.H.

A. The IRS will give information regarding only your unearned income, such as bank account interest. The IRS will not give information about your earnings or your personal tax return.

The purpose is to make certain that all interest and bank accounts have been considered in determining the amount of your SSI check.

Our Children

When there are twins in the family

By Willard Abraham
Ph.D.

What topics in letters from readers bring the most reactions from other parents? I've done an informal survey for several years, and these subjects are among those that head the list: Discipline, sex education, single parenthood, working mothers, giftedness, handicapping conditions, toilet training.

The follow-up letters that readers send in are sometimes creative, often practical and occasionally angry at me or at the original letter writer — but they are always welcome.

They may be just plain interesting, as are these regarding twins in the family. A lengthy one on this subject from a perceptive teacher will be shared with you next week.

Our twin sons were and still are very close. I dressed them alike until second grade.

Our school officials insisted on separating them after first grade. I was against that. They were doing great with friends and school until the separation. It turned out to be a turning point in their lives, and was not a good experience for them.

Twins have their own personalities, friends and desires. However, I think there is a special closeness between them, born in them, from which we should not try to separate them.

It took much prayer, work and patience in dealing with their adjustments to the separation during the early part of their lives. They needed each other — then especially.

I'm sure all twins differ, but their separation was perhaps the biggest problem we ever have had to face with our sons.

My husband and I have four children; the oldest is a 4-year-old girl, then a 3-year-old boy, and identical twins, 2 years old.

We believe the twins should be separated in school; there would be an opportunity for making more friends. We will encourage them to pursue different activities to prevent too much competition.

I think it's sad to see twins who cannot adjust to life because they depend on each other too much. I have girlfriends in that situation; one is divorced and the other never married due to the time they spend together. Now they live together and have the same career.

As a 33-year-old identical twin,

I can relate to the letter from the mother concerned about having her girls separated when starting school.

My sister and I were separated in the third grade by our teacher who refused to have twins in her classroom. We both came home from school crying and fearful.

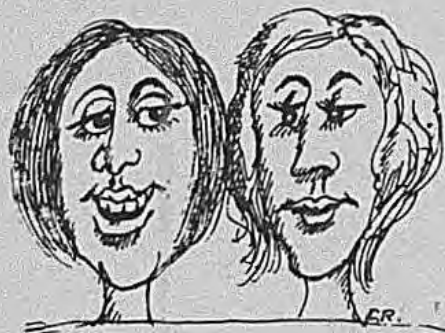

However, looking back, I believe it was the best thing, very beneficial. How it was handled was not. So I think that more important than being separated is how it is done.

My mother dressed us alike, but there came the day (at a very early age!) when we did not want to wear the same clothing anymore. We each had started to develop our own likes and dislikes, so when we expressed our desire to dress differently, my wise mother let us.

Even though my sister and I are identical, and to this day very, very close, we also like being recognized as individuals. Therefore, dressing differently and being in separate classes helped encourage the individuality we both needed and wanted so much.

A last comment — I wouldn't change places with any "single-ton!"

Gleeb Paul Lowney

She has very little going for herself. What makes you think so? She goes to all those mediocre singles functions. So do you. That's different. Why? She goes because she likes them, and I go because there's nothing else to do.

New Officers Installed At St. Martin Of Tours

On June 4 at 7:30 p.m. the St. Martin of Tours Confraternity of Christian Mothers held its monthly mass and annual installation of new officers in the Church.

This was followed by their wonderful Strawberry Festival in the school cafeteria. Of special interest was a program on Seasonal Color Analysis entitled "From Before to After in Living Color". The program was presented by color and image consultants Peggy Sobier and Elizabeth McCarthy, using the tools from Beauty For All Seasons.

They spoke about seasonal colors and how they can be used to enhance a persons best look. The way color affects an individual was clearly shown using slides and actual live models.

Peggy Sobier is well known to Bethpage residents as a neighbor and substitute teacher in the Bethpage School district.

Elizabeth McCarthy, from Bethpage, and a registered nurse, is shown in the picture, discovering Maureen Scharen's season. Looking on are Annemarie Adams, newly elected president of the Christian Mothers and Barbara Sweeney, program director.

Yellow Book Representative Sue Blizard presents a Yellow Book gift certificate to Map Contest Winner Jill Joslin, as her teacher, Mrs. Hartley looks on. Jill is a student at Central Blvd. School in Bethpage. She happily displays gift certificate to S & S Paperbacks. The publishers of the local directory offer free maps and a map reading contest to all Nassau and Suffolk County School Districts as a creative tool for community education.

Karen Cassidy, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Sarandrea of Hicksville, and Mr. Farrell Cassidy of Levittown, has for the second straight year been named All-American in track and field. Karen received this honor after competing in May in the NCAA Division III Track and Field Championships at Deontoon University, Grandville, Ohio.

A 1965 graduate of Hartwick College, Oneonta, New York, Karen ran in the 10,000 and 5,000 meter races at the championships. She placed fourth in the 10,000 with a time of 36:36.69. Her time for the 5,000 was 17:48.32, though she did not make the finals of that event. She had also qualified for the 3,000 meter race but chose not to run it.

During her four years with the Hartwick cross-country and track and field programs, Karen has been in several state and national championships. She also holds a number of indoor and outdoor track school records.

Last year Karen was invited to participate in an international track and field competition in New Zealand, a selection based on her performance at that year's regional track and field competition.

On top of her numerous successes, Karen also had a great personality and attitude toward the sport, according to Hartwick track and field coach Dave Harrington. "That's something you can't measure with a watch or tape measure."

Ewer made in Austria

By James G. McCollam
Member, Antique Appraisers Association of America

Q. This 10-inch ewer is marked "Victoria, Carlsbad, Austria." Please tell me what you can about its vintage and value.

A. This ewer was made by Victoria Porzellan Fabrik between 1900 and 1915 in Carlsbad, Austria (now part of Czechoslovakia).

It probably would sell for about $125.

Q. I have a 45-piece service for eight. It is rather heavy china decorated with flowers and vines. The enclosed mark is on the bottom of each piece.

Who made this china, where, when and how much is the set worth?

A. Your china was made by Knowles, Taylor & Knowles Co., East Liverpool, Ohio, around 1900 to 1905. At the turn of the century,

K.T. & K. was the largest producer of china in the United States. They had 35 kilns and employed about 700 people. Your set should be worth about $175 to $225.

Q. I recently bought a dinner plate used and marked by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Could you price this for me and give me some prices on other railroad dinner plates?

A. This is an interesting field of collectibles. You either can limit it just to plates or collect all kinds of pieces.

The plate you have is worth about $25. Other prices are as follows: Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe - $75; Baltimore & Ohio - $45; New York Central - $40; Chesapeake & Ohio with portrait of George Washington - $500.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and $1 per item to James G. McCollam,

Annual Alumni Awards Dinner

There were many happy faces at the annual Sports-Scholarship banquet given by the Hicksville Alumni Association for graduating boys and girls.

Joining Alumni President James Fyfe in awarding the Dr. Leon Galloway scholarships (six hundred dollars each) was Hicksville Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Catherine Fenton.

They went to John Russo and Christine Karb.

A new scholarship named in honor of the late Henry McInnes was awarded to Robert Newlands.

Mr. McInnes set the school record for the 100-yard dash fifty years ago. It stood for 25 years.

He and his wife Ethel were charter directors at the Alumni's founding 27 years ago.

The Academic Alumni Scholarships will be announced at Graduation. A thousand dollar award will be given in honor of Principal Mabel R. Farley. A five hundred dollar Empire Storage Warehouse award, given by Dorothy and Henry Brengel Jr., is scheduled.

Athletic Director Robert Kenney conducted the awards. Principal Richard Hogan addressed parents, students and friends.

Dinner arrangements were chaired by Fyfe and Howard Finnegan. Alumni thanks for organization were expressed to Mrs. Pat Cutone and to the management of Antun's, Old Country Road. Jan and Tom Monaski handled reservations.

Quality.
It's as important in diamonds as in anything else you own.

And quality shows—in a fine diamond, a home, or an automobile. Quality in diamonds is determined by the 4Cs: Cut, Color, Clarity and Carat-weight. Cut is the precise formula for cutting a diamond to allow the maximum amount of light in. Color refers to the different gradations from exceptional white to yellowish.

Quality is also determined by Clarity, the degree to which a diamond is free of interior and exterior inclusions. Finally, there is Carat-weight, the size of the diamond.

Your jeweler is the expert where quality diamonds are concerned. He can answer your questions on quality and can show you quality diamonds in all price ranges. Your jeweler understands how important quality is to you in anything you own.

ON THE ROAD Bicycle tour preparation

By Dean Carroll

Bicycle touring can and does mean everything from a bicycle club morning ride to an overnight trip to an organized weeklong tour.

A major part of any bicycling expedition, whether long or short, is preparation. The following tips from Bicycle USA, a non-profit membership organization of bicyclists, are designed to prepare a bicyclist for any tour.

To begin, think about where you want to go and what you want to see. Do you want to go alone or with a group? Do you want to stay in a motel, hostel or campground?

Once you've found a tour that meets your initial criteria, make certain it is practical for your experience and available time.

If you're new to bicycling, gain experience by joining a bicycle club and going on some short rides. As you get in better shape, gradually increase your distance. Before striking out cross country, practice riding a loaded bike and try short overnight trips to a nearby state park or town.

Begin planning overnight trips by picking a general route corridor on a state highway map. Once you have selected it, refine the route. Look for alternatives to heavily traveled roads. Roads parallel to interstates usually are low-traffic roads. Roads parallel to rivers or railroads usually are flat.

Plan bail out points — homes of friends or relatives, train stations, airports, etc. — in case you have to quit early. Leave a copy of your route with someone, and call in at intervals. Carry identification on your person, not in your pack.

Before you head out, make sure your equipment, or the equipment you rent, is in good condition. Check brakes, cables, tires, wheel alignment, pedals, spokes and all nuts and bolts. Carry a pump and patch kit. Learn how to use basic maintenance tools and take them with you.

For safety, wear a helmet and brightly colored clothing. If you must cycle at night, use lights. Avoid riding at sunrise and sunset.

Drink before you're thirsty, eat before you're hungry and rest before you're tired. Know what to do for hypothermia, heatstroke, scrapes and other medical problems.

For more information on bicycle clubs throughout the United States or about bicycle tours in 46 different countries, write to Bicycle USA, Suite 209, 6707 Whitestone Road, Baltimore, MD 21207.

How to choose a gas grill

By Dean Carroll

In the market for a gas grill for outdoor cooking?

Arkla Industries, a manufacturer of gas grills, tells you what to look for in a free booklet you can receive by writing to P.O. Box 534, Evansville, IN 47704.

Following are some excerpted tips:

Lighting. An automatic ignitor will make it easier to ignite a gas grill.

Burner. An H-shaped burner delivers the most even heat distribution over the entire cooking area.

Briquettes. The best cooking "rock" is natural porous lava. It provides good transmission of heat and collects juices for burning and smoking. Barbecue flavor comes from smoke and flames generated by juices dripping on hot briquettes.

Controls. In order to make lighting and temperature adjustments without stooping, look for up-front controls. Controls also should have a "push-in-to-start" safety lock to prevent accidental use by children.

Dual burners are economical because just one side can be used for smaller cooking needs. Such grills also are ideal for cooking at different temperatures at the same time.

Cooking grids. Whether you choose a wide cast-iron grid or a smaller wire grid, be sure it has a porcelain coating for better cooking and easier cleaning.

Lid. The lid should be light enough to raise and lower easily and should be high enough so that a large fowl or ham can fit comfortably with the lid closed.

Handle. It should be located on the side of the lid and insulated to prevent heat transfer from the lid. A front handle puts your arm over escaping heat when the grill top is raised.

Cart and base should be made of metal. Plastic bases can be subject to temperature variations, causing expansion and contraction damage. In addition, the support base area should be at least equal to the grill surface area for better balance and easier movement.

Tank and connections. The tank should be easy to remove and connect. Tank-to-hose connections made with a wrench are less likely to leak than hand-tightened connections.

Corrosion. For best resistance to the effects of weather, the stand and cart should have been corrosion-treated and dip-painted inside and out.

Warranty. Check the manufacturer's warranty on burner, casting and component parts. Find out if service parts are available.

VACATION HEALTH

Pharmacist suggests medical supplies

By Gregg Howard

When you pack to "get away from it all" during vacation, remember that it's impossible to get away from everything. Illness, allergies and potential accidents come along with any vacation.

A little planning and proper packing can reduce the severity of such problems, according to William N. Tindall, Ph.D., pharmacist and director of professional affairs for the National Association of Retail Druggists.

Following are some suggestions:

Bring along any medications currently being taken. Bring along a prescription in case the medication is lost, or carry half with you and leave the other half in a suitcase. If one half is lost, you'll still have the other.

If you wear eyeglasses or contacts, take along a spare pair of glasses. To be extra safe, also take a copy of your prescription.

A prepackaged first-aid kit is a good idea on any trip — especially when youngsters are along. First-aid kits generally include gauze pads, adhesive bandages and first-aid cream.

It's up to individual travelers to supply other essentials, like aspirin, a decongestant for sinus headaches, an antihistamine for allergies and, if you're inclined toward motion sickness, an anti-nausea medication.

What you plan to do on your vacation also should influence the kind of travel kit you pack.

Going scuba diving? Take along some meat tenderizer to apply to fish bites and stings. It's also good for bee stings.

Walking in the woods? Calamine lotion will help counteract the effects of poison ivy.

In foreign countries, anti-diarrheal medicine to combat the effects of water impurities is a smart purchase. Antacids are advisable for possible reactions to unfamiliar cuisines.

In both cases, liquids work faster than tablets. If you prefer tablets, drink water with them for best results.

Don't leave home without a few other basic health-related items, such as your insurance identification card and a medical insurance application form, as well as your physician's name and phone number.

Travelers with chronic ailments, heart disease, diabetes, etc., should carry a medical history as well as any other appropriate information.

FITNESS AND BEAUTY Hiking gains momentum

By Janet Gordon

Hiking is gaining momentum as a sports activity among women. Perhaps as more women return to the work force and a daily office routine, they better appreciate time in the great outdoors where they can stretch their limbs against the beauty of Mother Nature's backdrop.

If hiking appeals to you, it's a fun way to turn a sport into a beautifying exercise program. Here's how:

— Take to the hills. Many experts believe that hiking is the next-best thing for the body after cross-country skiing. Interestingly, nearly every so-called longevity pocket is in the mountains, where people get aerobic exercise all day long, all life long.

As with any exercise, check with a physician first and tailor your hiking program to your fitness level. Build up distance and difficulty over a period of time as you increase your stamina.

— Dress right for the experience, but don't confine yourself to old Army surplus. A colorful leotard makes you easy to spot on the trail and can double as a stream-walking outfit or swimsuit in warm weather. Wear versatile, lightweight garments to make carrying and packing easier.

These can be layered for the morning-through-evening temperature changes.

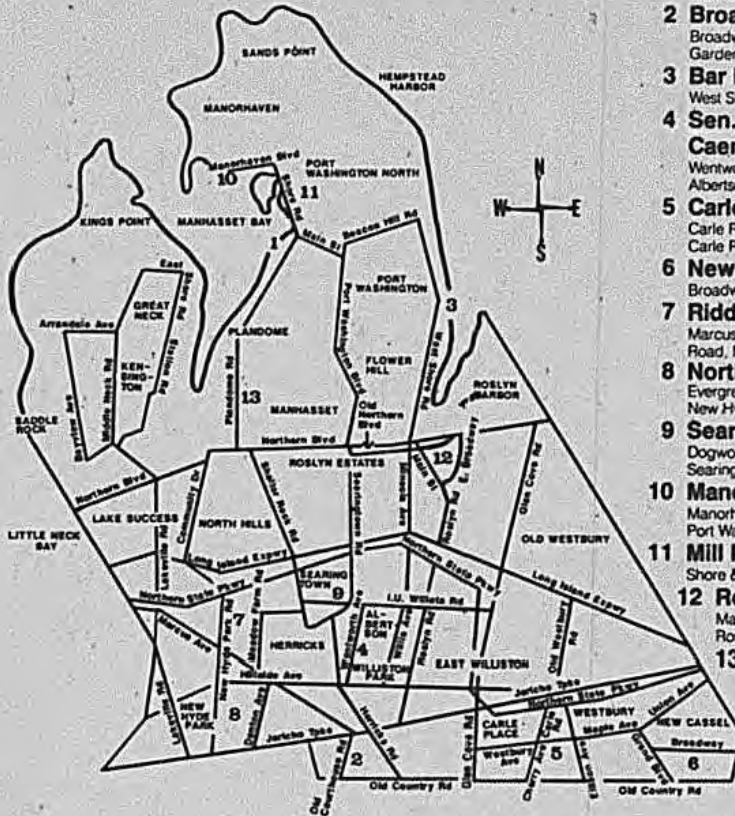

Weather and your activities dictate the number of layers to wear, but the essential components to include are: long underwear, thin insulation (one or more layers) and a protective shell.

— Before setting out on a long, steep trail, hiking diehards advise rubbing feet with a lubricating jelly to help prevent blisters. When hills get hard, avoid frustration by focusing 10 feet ahead at the ground instead of looking up at an endless panorama.

To make going downhill easier and to avoid slipping, walk heel and then toe and bend the knees. Overall, establish a stride length, rhythm and speed that feel comfortable to you.

— Give your skin a breather. Leave your cosmetics behind, but don't forget to cleanse. "Washing with a mild, non-alkaline cleansing bar will remove the skin's debris and allow your skin to maintain a healthy moisture level, even in dry mountain air," according to Lynn Lander, spokesman for Lever Bros., manufacturer of Dove cleansing bar. Of course, if you're out in the sun for long periods, don't forget a sunscreen and a hat to protect both complexion and hair, he said.

BUILDING KITS

Log homes on a roll

By Monica Perez

Nothing evokes images of rugged outdoor living like a log home. Log homes are, in fact, the center of many a hunting, fishing or hiking trip.

But log homes also have become primary residences for more than 1 million Americans. In contrast to the cabins in the woods — or even the homes of early settlers — these log homes are large, modern, comfortable and energy efficient.

The appeal of log homes has grown so much in recent years that buyers now can choose homes from a multitude of manufacturers offering a wide range of attractive, well-designed models, according to the Log Homes Council. Most manufacturers have catalogs from which potential home owners can choose their log home. In addition, many companies offer custom design services.

Contemporary log homes come in kits that are delivered by the manufacturer to the building site. Some manufacturers also can be hired to construct the home, but in most cases an independent contractor does the work. The more hardy — and handy — can construct their own home, or parts of it, and save on the cost of a contractor.

The cost of a log home depends on the design and on the type of kit purchased. Kits range from a load of ungraded, random-length logs — which require the builder to cut corner notches and openings for windows, doors, gable ends and rafters — to complete packages of pre-cut and finished logs numbered and coded to fit. Complete kits often include all windows, doors, trim, rafters, roofing material and electrical, plumbing and mechanical systems.

Most manufacturers will ship their kits any distance and will meet local specification codes as well as supply a building plan needed for a building permit.

To finance your log home, the council says there are alternatives to paying cash. Local log home dealers often have a list of banks providing financing for log homes. You also can try to arrange a conventional mortgage. Show the building plans to the bank and ask for a mortgage commitment based on the log home being built to specifications.

Additional information is available in a pamphlet titled A Log Home For Me? To get a free copy, write the Log Homes Council, National Association of Home Builders, 15th and M streets N.W., Washington, DC 20005.

AS TIME ROLLS BY
A history of the roller skate

By Carol Roberts

They no longer wear short skirts adorned with fuzzy poodles, and there's no metallic clanging when they approach. Today's roller skaters are decked out in jogging suits and glide around in colorful polyurethane wheels.

A fascinating evolution has occurred in the style and safety of roller skating, one of America's favorite forms of locomotion. No more struggling with keys, snaps, laces or buckles. Today, thanks to innovations in skate engineering, the sport is suited for kids even as young as 3, according to spokesmen for Fisher-Price. Tiny fingers just press Velcro fasteners and off they go — safe and secure on wheels that pose no threat of quick stops or sudden swerves. Some wheels actually lock to keep a tiny skater from skating backward.

But it wasn't always this way. Roller skating began with a "bang" in 1760 when inventor Joseph Merlin crashed into a mirror at a fashionable London masquerade. He was trying out his new invention, the roller skate, which could move only forward and was not easy to control.

Nevertheless, the early roller skate, with its wood plate sporting four small metal wheels in a row, quickly found a niche on the stage. In Berlin in 1818, the ballet "Der Maler Oder die Wintervergungen" was performed entirely on roller skates to simulate ice skating. At London's Royal Opera House, roller skates propelled players across the stage — and often into the orchestra pit.

Despite the hazards, the public was sold. Roller rinks began opening throughout Europe. German taverns put barmaids on wheels, presaging the American drive-in of the 1950s. But it wasn't until the 1860s that roller skating caught on in the United States.

More than a century after Merlin's shaky debut, a Bostonian named James Leonard Plimpton patented the first "modern" roller skate. A steerable marvel, it eventually revolutionized the sport.

The Plimpton, or rocking, skate was the first that could be steered. Its plates were made of wood, the straps were leather and four small metal wheels adorned the bottom of each skate. Just a few years after its invention, the Plimpton skate sparked the first roller skating craze in America, with dozens of manufacturers scrambling to meet increasing demand.

In the 1890s, adjustable-length skates were introduced, enabling entire families to test their skate legs. Many of these skates were designed for a child's growing foot and made of sturdy, less expensive materials that parents could afford.

Accordingly, the adjustable skate marked the beginning of roller skating as a sport not only for adults but for children, as well.

Skaters of the Roaring '20s created new and exciting sports such as skate dancing and coast-to-coast skate marathons. Skate dancing acts were performed at rinks and vaudeville theaters throughout the United States.

Two men, Norman Skelly and John Sbefuga, went through 480 wheels as they skated from Boston to Hollywood in 1936. Their two-month journey boosted the sport of marathon skating to a new height of popularity.

Roller skating, once considered a passing fad, had become an enduring national pastime.

The introduction of polyurethane wheels in the late 1970s marked a boom period for teen roller skaters. Beginners could move with ease and even dance on these lightweight, comfortable wheels.

"Saturday Night Fever" soon spilled over from the disco floor to the roller rink, where teens combined disco dancing and skating. The result: roller disco.

The new wheels soon caught on with skaters too young for roller disco. Safer than metal wheels for outdoor play, polyurethane wheels are a real boon for children who are learning to skate for the first time.

Sophisticated children of the '80s, though weaned on computers and video games, still love vigorous outdoor sports like roller skating. Organized roller games can provide fun for the entire family. Here are some suggestions from spokesmen at Fisher-Price:

- Have a three-legged race on skates.
- Use a stopwatch and some old tires for an obstacle race. The fastest skater to complete the course is the winner.
- Divide into teams and have a tug-of-war.
- Avid ice hockey fans can play their favorite sport on wheels using a ball instead of a puck.

Most Input Callers Think We Should Not Use Radio For Propaganda

Most callers to Input believe that we should not use radio as a propaganda tool against Communism in answer to this question: "Do you think that U.S. Radio programs beamed to countries in the Communist world are worthwhile? Here are some of the answers:

WASTE OF EFFORT

No. It is a waste of effort to try to get through the jamming that is used by Iron curtain countries to keep our radio voice out. It also has little chance of getting to the regular citizens of countries who do not sit at their radio sets waiting for everything we have to say. Most couldn't do anything to change their government and the number of listeners is probably very few. J.R.

NEEDED IN CUBA

Only in times of war or possible civil wars does the beaming of radio to totalitarian countries do much good. I think that the President probably thought that this is the time to do that in Cuba. Things are not going well there and a voice from the U.S. might give some courage to the people who are fed up with Castro. I think in this case it is needed. K.W.

CASTRO'S REACTION

While I do not think that we get much propaganda through the use of radio, the fact that Castro viewed a new U.S. station with such alarm is enough to make me think that we might be doing more than could be imagined. In general I think it is a waste of time and money but still Castro's reaction would indicate that it might be important. L.R.

LEFT OVER

The use of radio to send out propaganda is a left over from the Second World War when there were whole nations behind the iron curtain waiting to be liberated. Radio had an important mission then. Presently programs beamed at the USSR are generally jammed and I doubt that there are many people waiting to hear these programs. I think we should spend our time and money in something else. K.E.

SATURATION

It is doubtful that we can beam any program which will be that informative to Communist countries. They have heard most of our arguments and they constantly hear their own country's propaganda. I think just so much will ever penetrate and that is already at a saturation point. W.

WASTEFUL

I think the building of a radio station to beam programs into Cuba was one big waste of time and the money spent on regularly programming these broadcasts is just a waste. We can do far more by negotiating with Castro than in trying to have him overthrown. G.S.

MEANINGLESS

There is no point in continuing all of these programs beamed at Communist countries. The programs are viewed as meaningless propaganda in these countries and most people do not dare to listen to them anyway. The propaganda is useful in times of war because people are much more interested in international viewpoints at that time. Presently the programs do very little. N.T.

THINGS HAVE CHANGED

It depends upon what goes into the programs. Does it tell the listener what a wonderful country the U.S.A. is? Or, does it tear apart the existing regime in the country to which the program is beamed? In either case, the intent would be to build a sense of unhappiness with the status quo. But, whether that intent is geared to encourage emigration or revolt is a basic question. And, if that is what really happens, I don't see where we have gained a thing. Let's look at Cuba for example. When Castro took over, there were many citizens who had had their fill of Batista and welcomed the new leader with open arms. Then came the rude awakening when the "liberator" was shown in his true colors by the adoption of Marxist policies and an ensuing togetherness with the USSR. In the 26 years which followed, other changes have taken place and the children who grew up with the new regime, knew nothing else and their minds were captive to the new ideology. The big question is, would these young brain-washed individuals be swayed by the U.S. propaganda. We could hope so but I wouldn't bet on it. As it is, the recipient countries have already taken steps to interfere with reception so it may not even be a viable program regardless of content and intent. Frankly, knowing as little as I do about the program itself, I would say it is a waste of time and money. P.G.S.

OTHER ISSUES

WATER

I think its terrible that in the face of a water shortage people here in Nassau County just keep running the water and ignore all the threats of what's to come. Also some homeowners who use their sprinklers near the sidewalks should be a little more considerate of passersby.

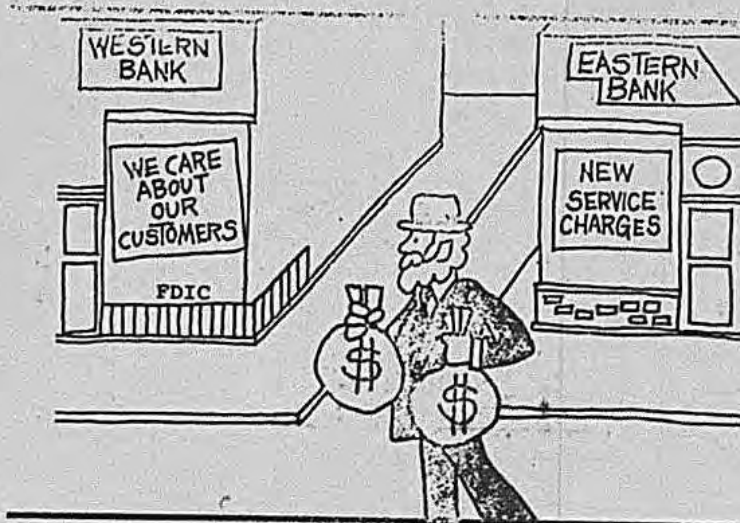

SUPERMARKETS

I'm calling about an issue raised about the crowdedness in supermarkets and blocking of the aisles. As a mother with an infant son I find this absolutely intolerable. It's very difficult to maneuver in the aisles with a small child in tow in the basket. Some aisles are so blocked that you literally have to back out. As the reader mentioned it is a hazard and in the event of a fire it could be disastrous. I hadn't really thought much about it until I read it in the paper last week but I think shoppers should make supermarket managers aware of this problem. I don't know what can be done. Maybe the fire department should look into this. Certainly has me rethinking where I'm going to do my shopping. B.T.

DISCOVERY

Banking Used To Be So Easy

By Marjorie Wolfe

Banking used to be so easy--so uncomplicated!

Of course, that was before the days of "Creative Financing", "Yuppie" loans, "Small-saver certificates", "MOMO" (Money Of My Own) accounts, banking by computer, Automated Teller Machines, and $7 to $12.50 service charges for bounced checks.

Now I look for FDIC guarantees, keeping in mind that in 1985 there were 43 bank failures in the U.S.; seven collapsed on Friday, May 31.

I've become so sophisticated. No longer do I think a "float" is an ice-creamanic's delight or that a TIGR is a stuffed animal. It's a Treasury Investment Growth Receipt. And, the most nasty four-letter word in banking today is "fees".

In search of a loan to finance my son's college education, I stopped into the CrossLand Savings Bank. My eyes immediately caught sight of a huge poster-sized blowup of a New Yorker cartoon showing a couple asking "are we keeping in touch with our money"--the bank's slogan. No pun intended, the manager seemed a bit C R O S S with me when I explained by cash flow problem--$14,000 a year tuition at Georgetown University.

The gentleman asked, "Are you familiar with IRMA?"

"Irma, who?" I asked.

"Individual Retirement Mortgage Accounts"--which gives people 62 years or older another way to get money out of their homes without actually selling them," he responded.

Did I look like a senior citizen? Had I aged that quickly?

"No, but I'm familiar with Grannie Mae"--a sale-and-lease back arrangement allowing the elderly to take the equity in their homes by selling them to their children and leasing them back," I answered sarcastically.

Next I stopped into The Big Apple's Bank for Savings and the security guard offered me a FREE Apple Cookbook with 16 recipes for cooking up those little round things. It's title: "Just Apples". I immediately left the bank and returned home to prepare their Apple Curried Fish Roll-ups, Apple Chutney, Applesauce Meatloaf, and Apple Mince Crumb Pie in my microwave oven.

The next day I visited the local Chemical Bank branch office. The manager, Roger Megabucks, spent a half hour explaining "Banking a la Carte", a mobile banking service transported in elevators to office locations. The good news: banking transactions could be conducted in my own office--during the work day. The bad news: I lacked sufficient collateral for a loan.

Further investigation, via The Wall Street Journal, introduced me to several unique lending institutions throughout the U.S.:

- The Lamar Savings and Loan Association (home office in Austin, Texas) wants to be the moon's first bank. To serve their moonside customers, Lamar will set up a branch office in the lunar colony that NASA plans to establish--between 2000 and 2010--at Cayley Crater, near the site of the Apollo 16 landing.

- A bank in Dallas refuses to handle cash. That's right. In order to keep its expenses down, the bank limits transactions to paper, computers and telephones. Greenbacks are taboo.

- A Concord, (NH) National Bank advertises the 11% yield on its six to 12 month certificates of deposit as "Terms of Endearment".

- A Seattle bank offers checks with a photo of a nuclear mushroom cloud, and a message, "Prevent Nuclear War".

- The Bank of New Haven advertises: "No games, no gifts, no gimmicks...just banking".

- Comerica Bank Detroit, offers red-carpet treatment. They will make house calls if that's what it takes to close a big loan.

- Houston's Med Center Bank offers its large depositors ($100,000 +) a seven passenger plane and crew for the weekend. Depositor pays the cost of the fuel.

- Chemical Bank (NY) will cut as much as $2500 from the price of a $6000 mink coat depending on how many "relationships" (checking, savings, borrowing, etc.) you have with the bank.

Despite sliding interest rates and the softening dollar, things are looking up now. Why? Because I've got a letter from Ed McMahon saying that I may have already won a million dollars. Maybe I won't need a loan, after all.

OLD LANDMARK

I had forgotten that we wanted to go to that new restaurant, the Davenport Press, which has been around as a printing shop but never a restaurant for many years.

They must have performed a miracle to change the old Davenport Press building on Main Street, Mineola into a restaurant. But let me tell you it is a good one.

There are several large intimate rooms. The large one we were in contains a real fireplace. There is a long bar at one end of the building. The menu is a good one. We had prime ribs that were juicy and tender with an appetizer called "Davey Jones Locker". It contained different types of seafood, shrimp, oysters and other choice pieces. We recommend the Davenport Press. R.H.

NEW FISH RESTAURANT

New Hyde Park has a number of good restaurants. It was good to see that the new Surfside Restaurant on Hillside Ave. can join the list. The Surfside is a pleasant, clean, new restaurant that specializes in seafood. They have the freshest seafood available. We had fillet of sole and scallops which were served with potato and salad. It is good to have fresh fish at moderate prices and the Surfside is one that we would recommend to everyone. J.D.

READER RATINGS

Q When one approaches a receiving line and is asked to give a name, does one say, "Mrs. Jones" or "Mrs. John Jones" or "Mr. Jones" or "John Jones"?

T.F.
A. You just say, "Mrs. Jones" or "Mr. Jones" or more usual now, "John Jones". If you are a very special Jones, the person who introduces you finally to the guest of honor sometimes has the opportunity to define you, as it were. The receiving line should never be held up for lengthy conversations. However,

Q. Will you please describe the correct procedure for introducing one couple to another, (1) when the couples are approximately the same age, (2) when one couple is older or more distinguished in station than the other? M.J.

A. When the couples are about the same age it doesn't matter whose names are mentioned first. When one couple is older or more distinguished or perhaps guests in your town you introduce the younger couple.
Q. When ladies already seated at a luncheon table are introduced to each other, do they shake hands, seated, when they may conveniently do so? T.G.

A. No, they bow. In this country, there is very little shaking hands between women, although the hostess always shakes hands with her guests, male and female, and anyone acting the role of hostess—say, a teacher at the school, a woman representative of a firm being visited by outsiders—would rise and shake hands with the visitors, women as well as men.
Q. There was a receiving line, with the hostess first in the line and our representative next to her. As the guests entered I noticed that there was some confusion as to who should be greeted first—the hostess or the representative next to her. What is the rule when the host holds such a prominent position?
A. The rule is always the same. One greets first the person first in line, who is the hostess or the acting hostess, always shaking hands. Occasionally there is a line made up only of men, and in this case the first man encountered is the one one greets first. As a matter of fact, very often the most important guest, for whom the reception is given, is placed in the middle of the line.
Q. When a match is used, would a man light his own cigarette first and then his woman companion? If a lighter is used is this still true? P.M.
A. A man lights his woman companion's cigarette first. In a high wind he lights his own cigarette first, then he lights his companion's cigarette with his own cigarette if he does not have a lighter or if the lighter does not work in a high wind. In using a lighter he needs merely to hesitate long enough to be sure that the flame is adequate, then he lights his companion's cigarette.

CONTINENTAL FLAIR

The Viennese Coach in Jericho Turnpike in Syosset is a real restaurant. It is designed in the old manner and the food has a continental flair. Last Sunday we had Sauerbraten with potato dumplings and red cabbage. There is no restaurant around that can compare with this great specialty.

One thing that is also great about this restaurant is that it has top service, plenty of help and you are never rushed with the meal. They have full dinners or you can order ala carte. We took the full dinner from appetizer through dessert and it was only $2 more than the entree price. Tell your readers about this good restaurant. G.K.

Q. How do you eat corn on the cob? H.F.

A. This is only for informal eating and is best eaten on the cob. A long ear may be broken in half, but only a row or so at a time is buttered and seasoned, never the whole ear at once. A mixture of salt and pepper may be made unnoticeably, on the side of the plate, then spread a little at a time on the corn with a knife as you are eating it. If the corn is to be cut off the cob, the cob is held on one end with the left hand and the kernels cut off a few rows at a time with the dinner knife. The kernels are then seasoned and eaten a forkful at a time, as one eats peas.

Idea for removing ceiling water stain

Q. In a recent column, a question regarding a mobile home has a better solution than the one you offered. You said that a water stain on a fiberboard ceiling could not be removed.

If you saturate a sponge with undiluted household bleach and hold it against the brown water stain, the stain will disappear. It is not necessary to do anything else but it might be necessary to repeat the process. This really works, we have done it many times.

Hope this is helpful. — Mrs. A.H.

A. We appreciate receiving tips and suggestions from our readers and are happy to pass along this information. Thank you for writing.

With this procedure, be sure to wear protective gloves, cover the floor underneath the area being treated, and take steps to ensure that the bleach does not drip upon your clothes or face.

Q. My white aluminum siding on the north side of my house has lost a great deal of its paint. The base aluminum is now showing through. As you know, aluminum siding gets chalky and rubs off easily.

I wish to repaint the area that has lost most of its white paint finish. Please advise me on how to proceed. — J.A.Y.

A. Previously painted aluminum is treated like any other surface that has been painted.

Where the old coating is in good condition and is adhering firmly, just remove dirt and surface contaminants. Then apply one coat of paint of your choice.

If the old finish is still smooth or glossy — as may be the case with factory-finished siding — it is better to roughen it with steel wool or sandpaper to provide tooth for the new paint.

In some instances the old coating, whether field or factory applied, may be chipped or peeling, exposing the bare metal. In such cases, sand edges to smooth out the surface and to remove any loose paint. Prime bare spots and then finish as described earlier.

Be sure that you use only quality primers and finish coats. Only quality paint has the lasting hiding power, retains its color brilliance and is wear and weather resistant.

Q. Our 24-year-old home has a moisture problem that has had me stumped for several years now. It seems that in the winter months when it is cold at night the insides of north- and west-facing windows get heavy condensation on the inside surfaces (to the point of running down the glass onto the windowsill). The north wall also gets mold down near the floor. I have tried various things to correct this problem to no avail.

I started with rain gutters all around the house, the downspouts connected to drain pipes that run out into the road. I placed two roof turbines on the roof thinking better ventilation would help. I placed 1/4-inch mini-louvers between each stud on the north-facing walls. This has made the rooms adjacent to this wall a little more comfortable but it has not solved the moisture problem.

Thinking that I may have a problem with too much moisture below the slab, I dug a hole just adjacent to the house and down about 2 feet to a depth that is below the footing of the slab. Although there is some moisture there, I don't think it is enough to cause my problem. I have read your articles on and off since 1966, and I feel that with your help I can get this problem eliminated and get on with something else. — R.R.

A. Certainly many of the things you have done should help. However, the basic problem is that the moisture within the house cannot escape. Two houses alongside each other can have widely varying relative humidities because many factors affect the situation, some of which are the number of persons in each house and how much moisture their living habits generate and the so-called tightness of the structure.

Insulation of a home can add to the moisture problem, although it is highly recommended today to keep the heat in during the winter season.

The subject of high humidity is complex. Entire books are being written on it. But you can go a long way toward solving the problem of condensation if you remember that it generally is caused because there is too much warm moisture in the house that cannot escape and is settling on cold surfaces. When it is too moist, you must find a way to let the moist air escape (via fans, vents, etc.) or trap it in a dehumidifier, which performs a function opposite to that of a humidifier; that is, it takes the moisture out of the air instead of putting it into the air.

Try opening the windows for better ventilation on good weather days. Also be sure that kitchen, bath and laundry areas are well vented, preferably with ventilation fans, and seriously consider purchasing a dehumidifier.

delay. I hope by now you have gotten your copy. Thank you for understanding.

TWEEN 12 & 20

Fy Robert Wallace, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm surprised at the reply you gave a student who complained because teachers gave gifted students a lot of homework.

Did you forget that "giftedness" comes in degrees and that not all "gifted" students are at the top of the scale? (But teachers' expectations are.) Did you forget that gifted students are really human beings in disguise? Do you really think that college is going to be easy because high school was hard? I have more to say, but I think you're going to hear from a lot of gifted students who can say it better — Patsy.

Patsy: I did receive many letters from students who identified themselves as gifted. About half felt the homework load was excessive. I think you will enjoy the following comments.

I'm gifted and I expect more homework than the average student. I not only expect it, I demand it! — Mary

I guess you could say I have more homework than my brother (he's not gifted) but my subjects demand it. I expect to spend more time studying my advanced math, foreign language, history and English than my brother who takes shop, art and speech. — Lynn, Galesburg, Ill.

I didn't realize that I had a lot of homework until I read your column about the gifted student. It's too late to complain now. As my grandmother always says, "What you don't know won't hurt you." — Todd, Holland, Mich.

I'm going to college and I'll do well, but I must admit I didn't enjoy my high school years because my social life was NIL — too much homework. — Linda

My parents and I have an agreement. I earn my allowance. They pay me 50 cents an hour for doing my homework. I always make myself about $10 per week. Thank goodness my teacher gives me lots of homework, and thank my parents for giving me the brains — and the money. — Jody, Lake Charles, La.

Homework is like exercise. The more you do the better. I've got an excellent body and an excellent mind. Why? Because I spend time working on them. — Bruce

Dr. Wallace: I'd like to respond to the teen who challenged your belief that young people should date people within their own age-group. At 14 I, too, thought that age differences were unimportant. I met and began dating a man who was 25. To me, at that time, he seemed so mature — he held a responsible job, had many friends and had been dating women his own age. He made me feel as though he loved me for myself, not because I was young, impressionable and innocent.

My parents were dead set against the relationship but I saw him anyway. At the time, he seemed like the best thing in my life and I was willing to put up with his jealousy, possessiveness and domineering ways in return for his love.

I missed out on dating other guys, going to school dances and football games and goofing around with girlfriends. I was pressured into sex before I was ready and became deeply committed emotionally before I was old enough to make a rational and mature judgment about him and our relationship.

When I graduated from high school we got married. The marriage was dismal. I had more of a roommate than a husband. He spent a lot of time out with the "boys." After a year of marriage, I caught him with another 14-year-old girl. We divorced and I haven't seen him since.

Dr. Wallace, I agree with you 100 percent that there is something wrong where a 25-year-old adult wants to date a 14-year-old. This adult usually is unable to relate to people his own age and needs someone non-threatening. Enter the innocent 14-year-old. — Janet Janet: I realize there always are exceptions to the rule. But when 25-year-olds seek the intimate companionship of a 14-year-old, the exceptions are few and far between. Thanks for giving our teen readers a firsthand view.

Dr. Wallace: I am 16 and my boyfriend is 18, and we have been going together about eight months. My problem is that I really don't care for him. We have broken up eight times but I always take him back because he begs and cries. I feel sorry for him and, besides, my mother likes him a lot. What should I do? I'm confused. — Joanne Joanne: Break up for the ninth and final time immediately. It's not fair to this boy to keep him in emotional agony. If you don't care for him, nothing will keep you together for any length of time.

Mainly For Seniors

By John T. Watts

Thinking about growing old

Dear John: Please send me the honey and vinegar treatment for arthritis. Why do us seniors have to be "blessed" with so many aches and pains? Just getting old is bad enough. Please don't forget to send it. — E.B.

Dear E.B.: Yes, we all wonder about this part of life. But sometimes we can look around and see someone worse off than us. We are not alone.

Dear John: I am sending this letter for my 77-year-old grandmother because, although she works every day at an insurance agency, she had a heart attack in November and is suffering from arthritis. Please send the leaflet on cod liver oil and vinegar. Thank you for your help. — V.Z.

Dear V.Z.: God bless you for caring so much for your grandmother and her needs. Yes, I'm sure the cod liver oil and vinegar will help. My readers swear by it.

Dear John: Please send me your leaflet on diet, Certo, vinegar and honey. I am firmly convinced diet can make a big difference. Thank you. — F.T.

Dear John: I just tried the onion rub for itching. So far it seems to help. — E.W.B.

Dear E.W.B.: Thanks. I know other readers will try it. Home remedies have done much for all of us.

Dear John: I have a hint for anyone who has to take liquid potassium. Mix it with cranapple juice and drink it with a straw. It's much easier. — Amanda H.

Dear Amanda H.: Thank you very much for your helpful hint.

Note to J.N.: Yes, we are swamped with requests. But every day we answer the mail and send out leaflets, etc. Sorry for the

Eat Yourself Slim

Your health — from diets to drugs

By Shirley Bright Boody Registered Dietitian

Dear Readers: I have received so many letters asking about the diets to help relieve stress, which were discussed in a recent column, that I want to give you the name and address of the national voluntary organization that devised them.

Write to: The American Digestive Disease Society, 7720 Wisconsin Ave., Bethesda, MD 20814. Phone (301) 652-9293.

Dear Shirley: I have been bearing a lot about how people should cut down on the fats in their diet because of cancer and heart disease. But the thing that really confuses me is all the different kinds of fat I read about.

I read about "saturated" fat and "polyunsaturated" fat, and I don't know what they are, so how can I avoid them? And now I've heard of a new one called "monounsaturated" fat. What is that?

Are some fats lower in calories than others? Please tell me what foods contain these fats. Is everybody else as mixed up as I am? I would appreciate if you could explain them to me. — Mrs. A.T.K.

Dear Mrs. A.T.K.: I know some of the scientific terms are confusing to many people, but there are some simple "rules of thumb" that will help you.

First, all animal fats generally are more saturated than vegetable fats. Second, saturated fats usually are hard at room temperature, while unsaturated fats are liquid at room temperature.

Here are some of the most common saturated fats — beef, pork, veal, butter, cheese, lamb, chocolate, lard, coconut oil, palm oil and fats of all dairy products.

These are some of the most common polyunsaturated fats — corn oil, safflower oil, sesame oil, soft margarines, soybean oil and sunflower oil.

Some common monounsaturated fats include — almonds, cottonseed oil, avocados, flounder, haddock, olive oil, peanut oil and peanuts.

All fats and oils have the same 9 calories per gram. High-fat diets have been linked to cancer and heart problems, and it's wise to avoid too much fat of any kind. Even the extra fat on your own body (which is hard, animal fat) can cause severe problems and perhaps trigger disease.

Dear Shirley: I have a grown son who smokes marijuana. I have pleaded with him to give it up, because I'm sure it is harmful. He argues with me all the time and insists it is better for him than alcohol. I don't think he has used any hard drugs, but I'm not positive about that since he doesn't live at home anymore.

The thing that seems so inconsistent is his interest in nutrition. He is a vegetarian, and is so worried about what he eats, yet he uses marijuana.

Could you comment on the use of drugs and their effect on a person's nutrition? Do you have any suggestions that might help? — H.G.

Dear H.G.: Smoking marijuana increases hunger and food intake, especially sweets. The cause of this effect is unknown.

Other addicting street drugs such as heroin, morphine, LSD, PCP and cocaine are associated with a host of nutritional problems. The cause is simple — addicts spend their money on drugs instead of food, and they lose interest in food during a "high."

Some people using these drugs develop severe problems such as hepatitis, loss of appetite, speeded-up body wasting, infectious diseases and acute malnutrition, to name a few. These drugs are infinitely more dangerous than the controlled use of alcohol.

One way of realizing the dangers of drug use is to visit a local county hospital emergency room, followed by a trip to the morgue. Viewing the horrors of the results of drugs can convey the facts better than anything else.

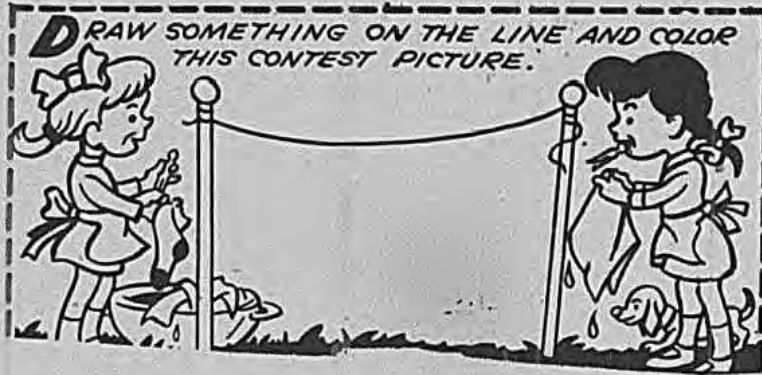

GRANDPARENTS - Send in your grandchildren's photos and enter our "World's Most Beautiful Grandchildren" contest. See the Notice column in the Classified Section for more information or call 931-0012.

JUNIOR EDITION

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Several weeks ago when I went with my family to the mountains of Pennsylvania we all had an unpleasant surprise. One day when we were returning to our friends' house we saw a snake on the driveway. It was not a pretty sight!

Our serpent friend was sunning itself on a flat rock. It didn't have to fear that we would disturb its nap. There was no way we would go near it.

Was the snake dangerous? We really didn't know. And we really didn't care to know.

Suddenly I thought of another friend whose sons have a snake in the house. The boys think their pet is wonderful and their Mom puts up with it. When I looked on the snake in the driveway that day I knew I could never be that tolerant!

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

Use common sense when aiding injured animals

Q. Recently I had the unfortunate experience of witnessing our neighbor's dog being struck by a rapidly moving automobile. Fortunately the dog was not seriously injured, since neither the driver nor I knew what to do.

I want to be more knowledgeable if there is a next time. What should one do for a dog or cat hit by a car?

A. Witnessing an accident such as you did can be a most frightening experience. It is even more stressful when you don't know how to help the animal.

One of the most important things to remember when dealing with an injured animal is that it probably is frightened and confused. Even normally docile, friendly animals may bite or scratch the person trying to help them. Therefore, it is extremely important to keep your own safety in mind when aiding injured animals.

When approaching a dog or cat that has just been struck by a car, move slowly and speak to the animal in a quiet, reassuring voice. Placing a muzzle or makeshift bandage, such as a scarf or belt, around the animal's mouth may prevent your getting bitten.

If the animal is bleeding profusely, place a tourniquet between the wound and the heart. The tourniquet should be loosened every 10 to 15 minutes for a short time.

If the tourniquet cannot be placed properly or if the bleeding is not profuse, a pressure bandage over the wound usually will control the hemorrhaging. If bandages are not available, almost any clean cloth can be used. Simply place the cloth over the wound and apply even, steady pressure with your hand.

An injured animal usually can be moved by sliding it onto a coat or blanket. By holding the corners of the blanket or coat, the animal can be moved as if on a stretcher.

If a veterinarian is relatively close by and the animal is not unruly, it probably is best not to try to splint legs or fractures. Simply move the animal to the veterinarian's office as quickly and carefully as possible. Try to keep the animal as quiet as you can so that it does not injure itself further.

If transportation to a veterinarian is delayed, any obvious frac-
