Nancy Adler of Bethpage represented the Leaders of the Central Park (Bethpage, Plainview, Old Bethpage) Girl Scout Association at the recent dedication of the new flagpole outside the Roosevelt Field office of the Nassau Council of Girl Scouts. The 20 foot flagpole has been dedicated to the "Leaders - Past, Present and Future", the indispensable people who make it possible to bring the Girl Scout program to the girls in Nassau County. Pictured left to right: Nancy Adler, Barbara White, President of the Nassau Council of Girl Scouts, Inc.

The Glen Cove-Hicksville-Syosset League of Mercy Hospital was one of thirteen leagues to attend the 25th Anniversary Jubilee Installation Luncheon recently, at the Milleridge Cottage in Jericho. This annual installation luncheon, celebrated in the serene country setting, marks the end of a year of fund-raising events which support Mercy Hospital in Rockville Centre. Last year, the Glen Cove-Hicksville-Syosset League raised almost $50,000 and donated a substantial portion of those proceeds to the infant Apnea Center. Mercy Hospital's Infant Apnea Center which opened in 1979, was the first of its kind offered on Long Island to diagnose and monitor infants at high risk or (SIDS) Sudden Infant Death Syndrome victims. Pictured from left to right is Lucille Delles, 1984-85 president of the Glen Cove-Hicksville-Syosset League who is succeeding herself for the 1985-86 term and her vice president, Irene Totono.

Gregory Museum Summer Workshop

The Hicksville Gregory Museum's summer nature workshops for children ages 9-12 will resume with the program From Jaws to Straws, an insect study activity, on July 23. Joan Scancarelli, the museum's naturalist, who is currently part of a foundation-sponsored scientific group studying the Amazon River environment, will lead the children again.

The workshop will run for four afternoons, July 23, 25, 26, 27 from 2:30 to 4:30 daily. The program will take place in the Community Activity Room of the Hicksville Public Library while the Gregory Museum is closed temporarily as a result of a fire causing some building damage.

From Jaws to Straws is a workshop designed to help youngsters learn about the world of insects which comprises so much of our environment. In addition to learning about the insects of the world, the children will learn how to create and maintain an "insect zoo" for study. They will also be introduced to methods of collecting insects and will learn how to mount insects for display and preservation as specimens.

The registration fee for the four-afternoon program is $12. Checks may be drawn to the Gregory Museum and mailed or dropped off at the Gregory Museum, Heitz Place, Hicksville, N.Y. 11801.

Rev. Hinsch Receives Service Award

Rev. John Hinsch of the Church of Plainview was recently awarded the 1985 Lutheran High School Association Randy Abbe Christian Service Award. Rev. Hinsch was honored for his loyal and faithful service as a pastor and friend to the people of the Church of the Good Shepherd for his Christian leadership in the Plainview community and for his active support of the Lutheran High School Association.

The Randy Abbe Award was created in the spring of 1980 when Long Island Lutheran Jr./Sr. High School received a substantial cash gift from a donor who wished to remain anonymous. In addition to a beautiful medallion, it carries with it a cash award with the stipulation that it be used in a self-indulgent manner.

Town Denies Special Use Permit

The Oyster Bay Town Board has denied a request for a special use permit to operate a car washing and pinstripping business in Hicksville according to Town Councilman Thomas L. Clark.

Clark said, "following a public hearing held on April 30, on a petition by Adam Realty and Ernie's Finishing Touch, Inc., the board determined that granting a special use permit would adversely impact on the adjacent residential areas." Concerns centered around the emission of loud machinery noise, fumes, dust and odors common to the activities of compounding, buffing, polishing and vacuuming automobiles.

"Residents who attended the hearing," added Clark, "also cited concerns regarding stagnant puddles of water from washing cars, litter and debris, as well as parking and traffic problems which would be detrimental to the surrounding residential area."

The property is located on the south side of Old Country Road at the intersection of the east side of Maple (Halsey) Avenue in Hicksville.

Nassau County District Attorney Denis Dillon welcomes Arthur Simuro of Plainview as a summer intern in the District Attorney's office. Simuro is currently a law student at Hofstra and will be gaining valuable experience in the Nassau DA's office over the next two months. Dillon said the 30 interns will work alongside Assistant District Attorneys in the courtroom.

No one was found and the fire was extinguished quickly by the Plainview Fire Department. Smoke damage was considerable. Our Children

The identical twin dilemma

By Willard Abraham
Ph.D.

And still the reaction letters come to the "identical twin dilemma" — to separate or not to separate. Here's one from a sensitive teacher to add to those from parents and the twins themselves that we have already published.

Your recent column included a letter from a mother of twins. I read it with nostalgia; I am a teacher who has had the pleasure of having taught a few sets of twins over the years. One of the nicest years was the one in which we had two sets of identical twins in our fourth grade. The girls were mirror twins: one was right-handed, the other left; one parted her hair on the right, the other on the left. In both cases, it was practically impossible to tell the twins apart.

It has been my experience that identical twins are usually of similar intellect. Our school groups classes homogeneously, so it made good academic sense for both sets of twins not to be separated. All four children qualified for the top class in the grade. I was the teacher of that class.

I was concerned that the children needed space to be individuals. I was also concerned that if they were separated the twin who would not be in my class in each case might be getting cheated academically.

I met with my supervisors and with the parents of the children. Individual needs of the children concerned are very important. We all agreed that the girls would be kept together. They dressed differently, had separate groups of friends and did not sit near each other or even eat lunch together (their choice, not mine). They both did extremely well and are now successful in junior high school where they are in separate classes. They are truly individuals, not carbon copies of each other.

The boys, on the other hand, were separated. Their mother made it very clear that she did not want them together. We agreed with her that they were immature and overly dependent on each other. They, too, dressed differently, but whenever they could, they met in the lavatory and changed clothes. They then traded places for the remainder of the day. They played all the pranks twins are capable of playing. They had the same friends, did their homework together and ate lunch together. We had to work hard to keep them apart, and we were not sure it was always in their best interest, but sometimes it was for the sanity of their teachers.

They, too, are now in junior high school. They no longer exchange clothing, but I understand they are still very silly much of the time. They are also both doing well academically as they were when they were with us. They still have the same friends; the girls do not.

My purpose in sharing this with you and with the mother who is now questioning how to handle this problem with her twins is to suggest that it is a highly individual situation. Much of the decision depends on the needs of the children. Some twins should be separated, others should not and for still others it probably makes no difference.

While I think it is adorable for twins to be dressed alike, I think it is desirable for them to develop individual personalities and styles. Perhaps their mother might consider dressing them alike for special occasions, but sending them to school dressed individually.

I would like to know how the children feel about being together or apart and also what the school position is. This is only a decision that can be made intelligently after serious consideration is given to all facets, and preferably after consultation with the children themselves and the school professionals.

The parents should keep in mind that because of or in spite of their efforts, their children will grow up, will probably credit them with very little and perhaps blame them for much.

A. That last comment may be representative of many children grown up, twins or not.

Q. As a grandmother, may I please pass on a suggestion for parents who have a new baby? It may save them a lot of unnecessary grief.

When a young baby cries it is usually for a good reason. He or she may be wet, soiled, hungry or just need comforting. A little rocking in the latter case, in a rocker or buggy, won't do any harm and it may be just what the baby needs. When it comes to the other reasons, ways of handling them are obvious. Clean them up or feed them.

I don't believe in letting babies cry when the discomfort can be so easily removed. And there is nothing so rewarding as a cooling, satisfied, happy or sleeping infant.

Thank you for listening to me.

A. And thank you for writing. Are there any other opinions from grandparents (or parents) on living comfortably with a new infant in the house? Share them with me, and I'll pass them on through the column.

Doctor's Forum

No known cure for Paget's disease

Q. For years I have attributed my aches and pains to arthritis but I found out I have Paget's disease.

Please tell me about this condition. Is there a cure? — A.V.

A. Paget's disease is a condition in which bone is constantly being "altered" by the body.

In a normal individual, bone is continually being absorbed and replaced at equal rates so that overall bone strength and condition are maintained.

In Paget's disease, the equilibrium is disrupted. Episodes of bone "osteolysis" (bone breakdown, loss and absorption) are followed by attempts by the body to repair and replace the weakened area.

On X-rays this shows what appears to be markedly thickened bone with widening of the outer, hard layer or cortex. The inner bone-marrow producing area, or cancellous bone, is not markedly changed as most of the new bone comes from the outer surface. However, the bone may be more "brittle" or less resistant to force, because the newer bone is interlaced with areas of reabsorbing bone.

Although the bone appears thicker, it is not necessarily stronger and fractures may occur through the weakened bone. Additionally, the involved bones may deform due to the abnormal manner and rate of remodeling. Nearly every bone can be involved, although frequently the skull, spinal column, pelvis and thigh bones have the most extensive involvement.

It is a slowly progressive process. The cause of this disorder is unknown.

Complications from this disease include anemia, or diminished ability to produce red blood cells from the bone marrow; severe bone pain or pain from entrapment (irritation) of nerves which exit through holes in the bones which may be narrowed; visual or auditory dysfunction and even cardiovascular failure.

The incidence of hypertension, arteriosclerosis and heart valve disease seems to be higher in individuals with Paget's disease.

For the most part, fortunately, Paget's disease is without symptoms and is diagnosed on X-rays obtained for other reasons. Only a minority of patients have pain, heart disease or other complications attributable to the Paget's disease.

If symptoms such as unremitting pain are significant, measures to control bone turnover are employed. This may involve the use of hormones (Calcitonin) which control the release of minerals, particularly calcium, from the bone.

By decreasing bone and mineral turnover, the bone pain, as well as the rate of remodeling, seems to diminish. Other chemical agents which bind calcium and minerals, such as diphosphonates, have also been employed, occasionally with good results.

Unfortunately, when the medications are discontinued, the Paget's disease process and symptoms may return. There is no known definitive cure. — Dr. Steven R. Garfin, assistant professor of surgery in residence, University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Q. I have tried every preparation available and I can't seem to clear up my terrible foot odor. I am ruining my shoes, not to mention my social life.

Is there anything else I can try to eliminate my problem. — M.S.

A. The cause of foot odor is excessive perspiration. This condition allows bacteria to attack the sweat glands and break down the perspiration to proteins and fats which cause odor.

Treatment of this condition is to lessen perspiration. I suggest you try the following:

- Vigorous foot soaks with soap and water scrubs twice a day (15 minutes), dry feet thoroughly and apply dusting powder to stocking and shoes, not on the feet.

- Change shoes and stockings daily, morning and evening. Do not wear the same shoes two days in a row. Wear sandals once in a while.

- Avoid dark dyed stockings. The stocking should be light colored and contain at least 40 percent cotton, 30 percent wool, and 30 percent nylon or other synthetic. Some dark dyes cause excess perspiration.

- Use anti-bacterial soap from your drugstore.

- Shoes should be leather. Avoid synthetic material used to construct shoes, the soles as well as the uppers.

- Antiperspirants are often of some help (use roll-on type) after bathing.

If these measures do not help, you should consult your physician. In some cases glandular conditions may be the cause of excessive perspiration. Remember, it takes time to effectively treat perspiration odor so be persistent. — Dr. Joseph Fields, assistant clinical professor of surgery, University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Your Social Security

Only 4 quarters to a year

Q. I understand that a person born in the year 1921 needs 32 quarters to qualify for retirement benefits. I will complete my 32 quarters as required in the year 1987.

If I work two jobs, eight hours a day on each job, can I be credited eight quarters in one year and retire in 1986? — B.S.S.

A. Regardless of the amount you earn and the number of jobs you have, the maximum number of quarters you can earn in a year is four. You currently receive one quarter for each $410 in wages.

Q. I'll be 62 shortly. I know that my benefit will be reduced by 20 percent. My wife who is age 65 has never worked. Is she entitled to a percentage of my reduced amount? — E.S.P.

A. At the normal retirement age of 65, your spouse is entitled to a benefit equal to 50 percent of your basic unreduced amount, regardless of the fact that you may take a reduced benefit.

Q. If a couple is married but gets divorced and then one of them dies, can the surviving spouse collect Social Security benefits on the deceased spouse? If so, at what age? — C.G.B.

A. The surviving divorced spouse could be eligible for benefits if he or she meets certain requirements. Among these requirements are that the claimant was married to the worker for at least 10 years just before the date the divorce became final. Benefits are payable at age 60 or at age 50 if the surviving spouse is severely disabled.

If you think you are eligible you should get in touch with your nearest Social Security office to see if you meet all requirements.

Q. I retired at 62 in 1980 and I have worked ever since earning the maximum amount allowed to still receive my full Social Security check.

What happens to the FICA that is deducted from my earnings? Will my Social Security check be increased because of these earnings? — G.G.

A. The money you pay in FICA taxes on your earnings goes into trust funds and is used to pay present and future beneficiaries.

The wages you earn are posted to your earnings record and are automatically refigured to see if a benefit increase is due you.

All Tiffany lamps 'signed'

By James G. McCollam
Member, Antique Appraisers Association of America

Q. My family always considered this to be a "Tiffany" lamp. However, some people say that all Tiffany products were signed and some say that many were not signed.

What can you tell me about this?

I would also like to know your opinion as to vintage and value of this lamp.

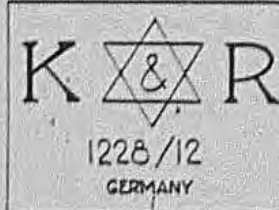

A. To all intents and purposes, all Tiffany lamps were signed. Jimmy Stewart, who worked for Tiffany, said that there were a few pieces of glass that were unmarked, but were never recognized as Tiffany.

Your leaded, slag glass lamp was made in the early 20th century and would sell for $500 to $600.

Q. I have a doll with the enclosed mark. She is 21 inches tall, has sleep eyes and real hair.

I would be interested in knowing when and by whom this doll was made. Also, what is its value?

A. Your doll was made by Kammer & Rheinhardt in Waltershausen, Germany, in the early 20th century. It would sell for close to $1,000 in good condition.

Q. At a recent antique show, I saw a lot of old glass candy containers. The prices they were asking for some seemed ridiculous to me.

What about it? Are these things really collectibles or are they a bunch of junk?

A. One man's junk is another man's treasure. There are a lot of people collecting these candy containers, so the prices keep going up.

The most desirable are those marked with the name of the manufacturer like the following:
Airplane (1930), Victory Glass — $95.

Automobile (1916), Cambridge Glass — $85.

Submarine (1915), Borgfeldt & Co. — $260.

Jitney Bus (1912), Cambridge Glass — $245.

Barn Lantern (1913), West Bros — $70.

Fire Engine (1914), T.G. Stough — $100.

Boys 8 Year Old

Mid-Island Tournament

Hicksville 2 Huntington 1

On Saturday the HBA 8 year old All Star team defeated Huntington in a tightly played 2-1 ball game. In an exciting pitcher's duel, Matthew Moore and Billy Rogers combined to pitch a no-hitter. In this gem of a pitching performance, 14 Huntington batters went down on strikes. Mike Bernius should be credited with saving the no-hitter as the 8 year old left fielder made a spectacular defensive play to force a runner out at second base. Billy Rogers homered in the first inning to give HBA a 1-0 lead. In the bottom of the third, excellent base running by Andrew Etergineso and Mike Moylan accounted for the winning run as they forced their opponents into an overthrow. Excellent team defense, especially the outfield which included Mike Bernius, Scott Granai, Paul Weber and Joe Flynn. Good plays by Mike Moylan and Dennis Beck at first and third, and an outstanding job of catching by Timmy Catagra. Hicksville 15 Merrilun 10

On Sunday the HBA 8 year old All Star team won their second game in a row by defeating Merrilun by a 15-10 score. After scoring only 2 runs in their first win, the HBA bats came alive. They accounted for 16 hits including 1 home run, 2 triples, 3 doubles and 10 singles. Billy Rogers and Andrew Etergineso led the attack, both going 4-4. Mike Moylan was 3-3 including a home run and 3 RBI's. Dennis Becker was 2-3 including a triple and 2 RBI's. Timmy Catugna should be credited with another outstanding catching performance in spite of the heat of the day and the length of the game.

Boys 9 Year Old

Mid Island Tournament

Hicksville 12 Merrilun 8

Dennis Schneck and Peter Humann pitched brilliantly for HBA and catcher Jimmy Moeller hung tough in the 90 degree heat also getting an RBI. John Davidson continued his hitting going 3 for 3 with a triple and 3 RBI's. Only a nice play by the left fielder prevented Scott Liptak from getting a home run on a deep fly ball. Mike Parrella and Steve Foery had 2 RBI's. Outstanding defense by Joe Barelli by turning 2 double plays. Steve Foery held onto the ball to tag the runner out in a collision at third base. Good outfield play by Craig Robey, Scott Liptak and Walter Gaylor. The play of the game was by Chris Jendras who made a diving shoe string catch in left field to end the game. Huntington 5 Hicksville 4

Peter Humann led HBA's hitting attack with 2 hits and John Davidson had 1 hit and the first RBI for HBA. Credit Mike Parrella for getting a key hit when he had to replace Dennis Schneck who was injured. Joe Barelli and Chris McAuley pitched brilliantly and made fine fielding plays. Also Andrew Sham and Mark Cullen made several good defensive plays at first and second base.

Boys 13 Year Old

Mid Island Tournament

Hicksville 8 Plainview 1

The 13 year old team opened Friday night July 12, defeating Plainview 8 to 1. Excellent defense and strong pitching by Kevin Maresca led our Hicksville team to victory in the best 2 out of 3 series. The manager, coaches and team, consisting of Kevin Maresca, Kevin Ross, Mike Rose, James Curley, Scott Rizzo, Joe Luparello, John Guittari, Sean Tower, Philip D'Amelia, John Bernius, Paul Mannelino and Nick Lovergine wish to thank the parents and members of HBA for the excellent turnout in support of our team.

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Does the public have the right to know all of the details of a President's illness?

Call 931-0027 24 Hrs. a Day
Ground Rules
You are not limited to the above but may talk on any subject of interest to readers.

•One subject to a caller per week•

Simply dial 931-0027 - 24 Hours a Day and follow these simple rules:

1. Wait for the beep.
2. Confine your INPUT to one subject.
3. Limit your opinion to five minutes (make notes before calling)
4. Leave your name and telephone, or simply use a pen name. (your message can be anonymous)
5. Publishers reserve the right to edit, modify or omit any and all material.

Callers Divide On Whether Comics Should Be Political

Input callers are mixed on whether they think political themes should be in comic strips in answer to this question: "Do you think that comic strips that have political themes are fair?" Here are some of the answers:

OPINIONS AS OPINIONS

I prefer to have opinions printed as opinions and not as part of a comic strip. The Doonesbury comic is a bit outrageous in that it presents a constant liberal point of view. But the fact that the author cannot see that there could be any other way about things does more to offset his point of view than anything else. In other words, he is so "liberal" with his own view that he cannot tolerate any other view. K.E.

NOTHING WRONG

I do not see anything wrong with a political theme in comic strips. For years Daddy Warbucks was the spokesman for capitalism in Little Orphan Annie and there were very few people complaining about that. Doonesbury is not as good as it used to be because the cartoonist has become heavy handed but this has nothing to do with whether it is political or not. He has just become too big to do a good job. L.W.

COMIC DISGUISE

It is amazing that newspapers wonder why people think that they are arrogant with their views and then they present Doonesbury and Bloom County and some others with a political editorial view disguised as a comic strip. Is there any reason that people should have a high regard for the big media? M.R.

LIKES DOONESBURY

I like Doonesbury and read it every day. Is that enough of an answer to your question? F.W.

WE'LL DECIDE

If people are so stupid that they do not know when a comic strip is preaching to them then there is nothing that can be done for them. Let the comic strips say anything they want. If we don't like it we won't read it. A.R.

LEARN TO READ

I can remember when kids used to learn to read by following the comic strips. But I don't believe that politics had anything to do with it. If the comic is funny that is all I ask. N.W.

WORTH PRINTING

I think that Doonesbury is first rate. It is satire and irony and it hits very hard at some of the hypocrisy in every day life. This is the function of newspapers and whether it is on the comic page or any place else it is still worth printing and why people read. J.W.

SUBLIMINAL MESSAGE

Here's an indirect answer. Why do I respond to the "Question of the Week" every seven days? It's because I have an individual point of view on the subject and by writing it out and having it published I project it to the public with the fond hope that some one will read it and share my particular opinion! This is exactly what the politically oriented comic strip artists do in a strictly professional way. The only problem is that with the cartoons ostensibly presented as a source of amusement, the public innocently absorbs the innuendos which are carefully built into the plot of the strip and the reader often leaves the page with a subliminal message implanted in his or her brain. Frankly, I think the strips are clever, amusing and possibly insidious and I do read them when I come across them. However, I believe that I can extract a bit of pleasure or diversion from the way the message is presented and still retain my independent point of view while I have a feeling that others do not shrug it off and are captive to the themes. But, from the standpoint of fairness, I don't believe these "comic" strips are any worse or less fair than some of the "straight from the shoulder" editorial opinions in any publication one might care to read. P.G.S.

DISCOVERY

Retirement - For Better Or Worse

By Olivia F. Cadley

How long you have worked for it, planned for it, saved for it, looked forward to it, and now it's here! That blessed time when you are finally free to use your time as you will. It is the joyous release from the daily struggle out of the arms of Morpheus only to buck the rush hour traffic or the crush of public transportation or the vagaries of Mother Nature. It is freedom from the tensions, the deadlines and all the frustrations of the workaday world. Pure bliss, you say? For some, perhaps, but strangely not for all.

There are as many varied reactions to retirement as there are people. Some look forward with happy anticipation to the leisurely years, but just as many anticipate it with dread. Much, of course, depends on whether the retirement is enforced or freely chosen. If enforced, the adjustment may be more difficult, since it naturally involves a sense of loss of prestige and of freedom to choose the time to "let go." But whichever the reason, you must abide by the decision that you are now exempt from the ranks of the "working" person.

All the years of structured existence are behind you and you are free to form your own life pattern as you choose. But this very freedom can be scary for some. There is a degree of comfort in knowing just what you have to do. Today's passion for being oneself and "doing your own thing" is difficult for the conventionally reared person who has lived by the rules of traditional mores - do well in school, earn, save, keep up the house, raise a family, succeed in your job, ad infinitum. As a nation, we have extolled work and censured idleness. Voltaire admonished, "Work keeps at bay three great evils, boredom, vice and need". Consequently, many people feel cheated out of their purpose in life and view a retirement of "leisurely leisure" with bitterness, resentment and fear. Even though they must be resigned, they can't help but feel that they have lost status unless they are doing something "useful."

Retirement, by definition, means to "go away, or withdraw". To "go away" implies that we are still alive and able to move from our present to our future. When we consider it, all of life is a series of retirements. We have been constantly going away or withdrawing from one thing to something else, age by age, as our physical, financial and mental conditions dictate the advisability or necessity. As babes we withdraw from the breast or bottle to solid food; as children from carefree play to the disciplined school years; from dependency to self-support; from self-support perhaps to family breadwinner; from son or daughter to parent. The retirement now faced is just another phase in a continuous withdrawal from one phase to another. Why is it then that so much emphasis is being placed on retirement from the workplace? If our life span permits, there is one minority group that everyone must join sooner or later and that is the role of the retiree. Even those whose "workplace" was the home find themselves eventually relieved from their obligations as the "empty nest" becomes a reality to be faced. Never before have we had so many older, retired people in our population, a new leisure class composed of those from the blue-collar, white-collar, and professional sectors. Thanks to Social Security and improved pensions and health plans, most of these are not going to be destitute, though they might have to tighten belts a little.

Retirees are besieged with advice on how to be happy in retirement. Programs and procedures for filling one's days abound. But people come in all kinds. There are joiners and non-joiners; there are athletic buffs and sedentary people; there are introverts and extroverts. If we took all the admonishments seriously, we would have as many "oughts" and "shoulds" as burdened us before.

Some retirees are perfectly content to use their leisure watching favorite TV movies, sports and game shows, or working anagrams and crosswords or shopping or playing bridge or dining out. Others choose the warm climates for the "golden years" enjoying the recreational pursuits the retirement communities have to offer with people their own age. If these people are genuinely happy in what they are doing, or not doing, then so be it. This is the life for them.

But, since not all people are alike, there are many to whom such a life would be anathema, and who feel that leisure time is more than the tick of the clock or a page on the calendar and who choose to make opportunities for enrichment and fulfillment. They find their pleasure in becoming involved again, but in activities of their own choosing. For these, volunteer work, clubs, writing, crafts, gardening, studying and probing prove rewarding and provide an outlet for their particular temperaments. And so be it. This is good for them.

Whatever is genuinely satisfying is good, for the contentment of retirement is nothing more than the contentment of one's life stretched out to include the later years; it is a continuation of life, not a thing apart. Perhaps the largest factor for enjoying this stage in life is your attitude and perception of yourself. If you have self-confidence and believe you can cope, you will do fine. To quote one of our wise and witty writers, Art Buckwald, "Old Buddy, you're greater than you think you are in many more ways than you are aware of. You may not be getting any younger but if 'the best is yet to come' it will come only if invited...life is a system of constant beginnings rather than declines". Happiness can be a state of being which we build by working on it.

And so, if retirement faces you, meet it head on, determined to remember the fable of the tortoise and the hare and know that "the race is not always to the swift; there is more to life than increasing its speed." Take time to enjoy old friends, or make new ones; take mini-vacations or tour the world; look at a flower (you don't have to plant it) pet a dog or raise one, read books and articles or write them. Do what pleases you. It is your time. You've earned it!

FAVORITE RESTAURANT
Maine Maid Inn happens to be one of our favorite restaurants, and we have pleasant memories of delightful meals we enjoyed there in the past. Our party of four decided to have our Easter dinner there and what a happy choice! Maine Maid has a colonial atmosphere and the place is filled with plants, colorful tablecloths, flowers on each table just beautifully appointed. Two of us had the Long Island Duckling which was simply delicious, well done and crisp served with wild rice. The other couple had Shrimp Scampi which they said was delectable. Our service was swift and well organized without the feeling of being hurried. We would like to endorse Maine Maid Inn. I am sure your readers would enjoy dining there. D.R.

FINE DECOR
The Estoril Granada Restaurant on Mineola Blvd., Mineola is one of the nicest new restaurants we have ever gone to.

We went there last week and enjoyed a new open decor that denotes a clean, but special atmosphere. The restaurant is Portuguese in the heart of the Portuguese area of Mineola.

We had one of the specials of the day which was shrimp and chicken made in a special sauce that was as intriguing as it was delicious.

We highly recommend this wonderful Portuguese restaurant.
The service is swift and polite and the decor is nice. I.J.T.

PARTY FOR SEVEN
A luncheon party for seven at Edmund's in Garden City proved a delightful gourmet treat recently. The atmosphere was gracious and relaxing and the service was prompt and attentive. For the luncheon there was a choice of soup, and a salad bar that was really diversified. The spinach salad was so outstanding most of us went back for seconds. Then the waitress brought a cart with a variety of hot foods to the table.
You are encouraged to sample a little of everything. With coffee, a pastry cart came with a wide variety of mouth-watering desserts, including a delectable fresh fruit salad, for persons who are counting calories. Our waitress graciously took a group picture for us, which was great.
All in all, we came away pleased.
I would heartily endorse dining at Edmunds. H.P.

FIRST RATE

I want to be the first to call in and say that the new restaurant Dallas Ribs, located where the Charred Oaks used to be on Jericho Turnpike, New Hyde Park, is a great restaurant. We went there last week and had two of the finest N.Y. cut sirloin steaks that we have ever tasted. The steaks are served with skin fried potatoes and cole slaw. There is a big menu with other items.

We thought the price was about right for first rate prime beef. We also have to comment that the service was very good and of course the decor is the finest.

DINING GUIDE

READER RATINGS

Q. When using a credit card is it customary to give a larger tip than if you pay in cash? T.L.A.
A. Restaurant owners tell us that tips do run higher when people use credit cards, but there is no real basis for this custom. The only explanation seems to be that many people using credit cards are on expense accounts and are more liberal with money being paid by someone else. The figures we hear are that credit card holders almost always pay 20 percent tips while cash customers stick to the 15 percent.

Q. Who is served first at table and when is the proper time to begin eating? F.G.F.

A. The hostess is not served first as she is the only lady at the table who is alone with her husband and children. If Grandmother or a young girl guest is present, the dishes are first presented to her after inspection by the hostess. When the hostess is serving from in front of her place, with or without the aid of a servant, she is served next to last and her husband last. For her to serve herself earlier will mean her food will be cold and her filled plate in the way.

After several people have been served, urged by the hostess, guests begin eating so their food will not be cold. And, except at breakfast, the polite husband waits until his wife has been served before beginning to eat.

Q. If you receive a case of wine as a present, how is it best stored to use for a "very special occasion"?

A. Keep it in a cool dry place, such as a cellar where the temperature is from 55 to 65 degrees (ideally). Make sure that if the bottles are corked, they are laid on their side (to keep the cork from drying out). A wine rack is very useful for this.

Bottles that are screw-capped may be stored in an upright position on a shelf where it's dark and cool.

Q. What's the difference between eating "American-style", and "continental style", and which way is better? B.F.

A. In the American system, when cutting one's food, one holds the fork in the left hand and the knife in the right hand. Then one puts down the knife and transfers the fork from the left to the right hand for the purpose of putting food on the fork and into the mouth.

In the continental system, one holds the fork in the left hand and the knife in the right for cutting purposes, and also for eating purposes. One continues to hold the knife in the right hand, and the fork therefore stays in the left hand. There is no useless shifting of utensils. The knife also contains the food in a support system-until a morsel is safely on the fork.

I feel the continental system is best, and everyone uses it except the Americans. We have tried to find out through research when and why the American system of holding the fork in the right hand came into being. The answer has not yet surfaced.

Cooking Corner

By Verne Palmer

When God got around to making citrus fruits he must have been having a good day indeed.

He gave them not only his brightest colors but also his most intense flavors — and mankind has been enjoying both ever since.

The five pillars of the citrus family — oranges, lemons, limes, grapefruit and tangerines — are in good taste wherever you encounter them — and that could be just about anywhere.

Citrus fruits flavor an endless array of delicate desserts, marinades, meat dishes, baked goods such as breads, rolls and pastries, salads, seafoods, sauces and even soups.

Oranges, lemons, limes and tangerines contribute flavor from the skin on in. The zest — the colorful outer coating of the fruit — is particularly popular in baked items, stuffings, sauces, soups, meats and desserts. Take care when removing this thin layer because the white flesh beneath is quite bitter.

In substituting among citrus seasoning agents, here's a good rule of thumb: 1 teaspoon freshly grated zest equals 2 tablespoons fresh juice, 1 teaspoon dried zest, ½ teaspoon extract or 2 teaspoons mind, though, the real magic is in the fresh forms.

When selecting citrus fruits, look first of all for fruits that are heavy for their size (indicating lots of juice) and firm to the touch.

In buying lemons, choose yellow-colored ones. If tinged with green, they are not properly "cured."

In choosing limes, the dark green ones usually are stronger in acid and preferable to the yellowish fruits.

Oranges, despite the eye appeal of bright color, can be tinged with green and still be fully ripe.

Similarly, a green tinge in grapefruit often is a late-season development that indicates real maturity and high sugar content.

Citrus fruits are high in vitamin C and low in sodium and calories, which makes them a welcome addition to all kinds of diets.

Following is a selection of recipes that amply demonstrates the versatility of these flavorful fruits.

TANGERINE CHEESECAKE

Crust:
2 cups graham cracker crumbs
½ cup margarine, melted

Tangerine Filling:
12 ozs. cream cheese
1 cup ricotta cheese
¼ cup sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 cup tangerine juice
1 envelope whipped topping mix
1 cup peeled, seeded and chopped fresh tangerines (about 2)
1 fresh tangerine, peeled and sectioned (for garnish)

Crust: Blend crust ingredients thoroughly and press over bottom and halfway up sides of 9-inch springform pan sprayed with non-stick vegetable spray. Bake in preheated 350 F oven 8 to 10 minutes. Cool.

Filling: Blend together cream cheese and ricotta cheese. Add sugar. In small saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over tangerine juice. Let soften 1 minute. Heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves, about 3 minutes. Prepare whipped topping according to package directions. Add gelatin mixture to cheese mixture; blend until smooth. Fold whipped topping into cheese mixture. Stir in chopped tangerine pieces. Spoon into crust and spread evenly. Chill 4 to 6 hours. Garnish with tangerine sections.

Makes 1 9-inch cheesecake.

GRAPEFRUIT SORBET

2 cups fresh grapefruit sections
½ cup chilled unsweetened grapefruit juice
1 tsp. pineapple extract
½ cup sugar

Freeze grapefruit sections 1 to 2 hours until almost firm. Place fruit in food processor or blender; add remaining ingredients and blend until smooth. Serve immediately.

Makes 2 cups.

LEMON MOUSSE

¼ cup lemon juice
1 tbsp. gelatin (optional)
4 eggs, at room temperature
¾ cup sugar
2 tbsps. butter, cut into pieces

1 egg white, at room temperature

Pinch of cream of tartar

Put lemon juice in small pot. If using gelatin, sprinkle into juice and put aside for 5 minutes. Then place pot on low heat and stir until mixture just reaches simmering point and turns clear, indicating that gelatin has dissolved. Set aside.

Separate eggs and put yolks in large mixing bowl. Beat yolks for minute or so with electric beater, then slowly begin to add sugar, beating constantly. Beat until mixture is light in color and creamy.

Add butter to yolks and suspend bowl over simmering water in pot. Heat mixture slowly, beating constantly, until butter melts. Add lemon juice and beat for another 2 minutes.

If using gelatin, you can use 4-cup souffle dish and build up sides with aluminum foil collar to create more dramatic presentation. Otherwise, use 6-cup souffle dish.

Combine extra egg white with

Chinese Restaurant

Almost everyone, at one time or another, has had Chinese Food and after a while it all begins to taste the same. It's hard to find a Chinese restaurant with a difference. Allow me to introduce you to King's Garden, 190 Hempstead Tpke., West Hempstead, for that difference.

Writing this article comes easy for me since, as a lover of fine Chinese food, I have been an extremely satisfied customer of King's Garden since its opening.

Owned by Jenny and William, with both having a long background in preparing and serving superb Chinese cuisine, William attended a well-known school in Hong Kong and graduated with honors. Jenny also attended school in Hong Kong graduating with a degree in restaurant management. After arriving here on the island, William worked as a chef in many popular restaurants.

King's Garden is set apart from most Chinese restaurants in decor. Imagine enjoying delicious Chinese delicacies with the sound of water trickling down a stone wall. William and Jenny also pride themselves with authentic taste in all the foods they prepare. You can enjoy hot and cold appetizers, soups and chef's specials. "We specialize in Hunan and Szechuan style cooking," Jenny states. "Shanghai Duck is William's speciality, along with Spicy King's Shrimp and Hong Kong Scallops." To mention a few of the unique selections on the menu. Special family dinners start at just $9.95 per person and luncheon specials are a real treat at $3.95 on Monday through Friday, served from 11:30 to 3:00. Those specials include soup, entree and dessert. For dessert, Jenny adds, we have the very popular Fried Ice Cream.

The kitchen is clean and well-staffed to minimize waiting. A vast take-out menu is available for those who can't for some reason dine out.

Jenny says, "People keep returning because of the unique items offered and the large portions served." One of my own all-time favorites on the take-out menu is the Shrimp and Broccoli Combo with fried rice and egg roll. The shrimp is tender, the broccoli always fresh and crisp and the fried rice and egg roll are never greasy.

Small parties for 20 to 30 people are available in a private area with King's Garden. All major credit cards are honored.

King's Garden is opened from 11:30 to 10, Monday through Thursday and 11:30 to 11 on Friday and Saturday, and from 1:00 to 10 on Sunday. They can be reached at 292-1650. Plenty of parking is available in the rear.

four that were separated and beat. When whites are soft and foamy, add large pinch of cream of tartar and beat until whites are stiff. Using whisk, fold about 1/2 of whites into lemon base. Gently fold in rest of whites with rubber spatula, then spoon into soufflé dish. Refrigerate at least 8 hours. At serving time, remove foil collar if used.

GREEK LEMON SOUP

3 cups chicken broth
1/4 cup cooked rice or cooked

fine noodles
2 eggs
2-3 tbsps. lemon juice

Heat broth and rice to rolling boil. Beat eggs and lemon juice in large bowl, just long enough to combine and produce uniform color.

Stir 2 tablespoons of hot broth into egg mixture. Hold bowl high above pan and gradually pour eggs (taking care not to curdle eggs but allowing them to shred) into hot but not boiling soup, stirring constantly. Serve at once in hot cups.

Makes 6 servings.

Ahoy, seafood lovers, these fondues a catch

Most culinary reference works on seafood fondues suggest placing bites of various seafoods in very hot peanut oil and then dipping them in one of several sauces. When we prepared seafood fondues for guests recently we decided to add another option: a bowl of freshly made bread crumbs and another bowl containing three or four beaten eggs.

Dipping a shrimp, an oyster or a piece of fish in the egg and then dredging it in bread crumbs creates a very different taste and texture than the same bite cooked uncoated. Since the oil is very hot, and a bite-size piece of seafood cooks in just seconds, uncoated pieces taste more like they have been broiled than fried.

For our fondue seafoods we chose salmon, grouper, shrimp, bay scallops and oysters, with hollandaise sauce, sweet-and-sour sauce and a spicy cocktail-type sauce.

The most unlikely combination turned out to be the clear favorite. When we tried a piece of salmon fillet coated in egg and bread crumbs, cooked for 20 to 30 seconds and then dipped in hollandaise, we knew we had found a new favorite. The salmon became extremely tender, but retained its distinctive taste and texture. The hollandaise sauce was an absolutely perfect accompaniment.

Here is our seafood shopping list for fondue for four: 1/4-pound salmon fillet; two dozen fresh, unshucked oysters; 1/2 pound bay scallops; 1/2 pound medium shrimp, and 1/2 pound grouper cheeks.

Grouper cheeks are just what their name implies. They are firmer in texture than the body fillets, which makes them perfect for fondue, and are also 40 percent to 50 percent lower in price. For the salmon fillet, choose a fairly thin piece and carefully remove the skin before cutting into pieces.

The presentation of seafood fon-due can be beautiful and dramatic. We arranged the seafood, except for the oysters, on a large wood cutting board, with the salmon and grouper in alternating rows to contrast their pink and white colors. On the other side of the board were the scallops and shrimp, which we had plunged into boiling water for about 20 seconds to bring out the pink color. We bordered the cutting board with parsley sprigs and lemon slices. The oysters were simply arranged, in the half shell, on a large platter, on a bed of ice and rock salt.

Caution must be observed in serving seafood fondues. A metal fondue pot is essential, since ceramic pots will crack at the temperatures necessary to cook seafoods quickly. The fondue forks retain heat much longer than the seafood does, so bites should be transferred to a table fork, not eaten directly from the fondue fork. Peanut oil, rather than vegetable oil, should be used to cook the seafood, since peanut oil can be heated to much higher temperatures without smoking or breaking down.

Our recent experiment with seafood fondues was one of the most enjoyable dinners we've served in a long time. We hope you'll have as much fun as we did.

SPICY COCKTAIL SAUCE FOR FONDUE

1 cup ketchup
1 1/2 tbsps. horseradish, or more to taste
1 tsp. minced jalapeno peppers
1 tsp. lemon juice
5-6 drops Tabasco or red hot sauce, or to taste
1/4 cup onion, minced

Mix all ingredients in small bowl. Chill for at least 30 minutes before serving.

EASY HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

2 tbsps. fresh lemon juice
4 egg yolks
1/4 tsp. salt
1 pinch white pepper
1 pinch cayenne
1/2 tsp. dry mustard
1 stick unsalted butter

In blender or food processor blend lemon juice, egg yolks, salt, pepper, cayenne and mustard. In small skillet or saucepan melt butter until bubbling (it must be bubbling or hollandaise will not thicken).

With blender running on medium or high speed, slowly add hot butter in thin stream. Serve hot.

Makes about 1/4 cup.

Note: For thicker hollandaise, or to reheat, sauce may be placed over hot water in double boiler.

SWEET-AND-SOUR SAUCE

1/2 cup cider vinegar
1/2 cup sugar

1 tsp. salt
1/4 cup fresh orange juice
1/4 cup pineapple juice (unsweetened)
3 ozs. tomato paste
Juice of 1/2 lime
Cornstarch to thicken (2 tpsps. or less)

In medium saucepan, combine all ingredients except cornstarch and slowly bring to boil. Simmer 10 minutes, taste and adjust seasonings so sweetness, sourness and saltiness are balanced.

Mix a bit of cornstarch with equal amount of water and add, a little at a time, to sauce, until it thickens enough to glaze seafood without being too thick and glutinous.

Makes about 3 cups.

Note: Store sauce in loosely covered container (so that acid gases can escape). Will keep for several weeks in cool, dark place.

SUMMER RICE SALAD

1/2 cup vegetable oil
1 clove garlic, minced
1 (1 lb.) eggplant, diced
1/2 lb. zucchini, sliced 1/4 inch thick
3 large ripe tomatoes, cored and cut in chunks
1/4 tsp. dried basil, crumbled
1/4 tsp. oregano
1/4 tsp. thyme leaves
1/4 tsp. ground black pepper
1 cup uncooked long-grain brown rice
2 cups water or vegetable stock
1 carrot, thinly sliced
1 green pepper, seeded and diced
1 medium-size red onion, chopped
1/4 cup sliced black olives
3 tbsps. lemon juice
Lettuce leaves, washed and dried
Fresh parsley, washed and chopped (for garnish)

In large frying pan, heat half of oil over medium-high heat. Stir in garlic and eggplant and saute, stirring often, about 5 minutes (until eggplant softens).

Stir in zucchini, tomatoes, basil, thyme and pepper. Cover pan and cook for 2 to 4 minutes, stirring often, until zucchini is crisp-tender.

Remove lid and continue cooking several minutes longer, until excess liquid has evaporated. Turn mixture into large bowl to cool.

Pour remaining 1/2 cup vegetable oil into frying pan and reduce heat to medium. Add rice and saute 5 minutes, stirring often. Slowly pour in water, stirring constantly.

Cover, reduce heat to low, and cook 1 hour, until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Turn cooked rice into bowl to cool.

When rice is cool, combine with cooked vegetable mixture and gently stir in carrot, green pepper, onion, olives and lemon juice.

Mound over crisp lettuce leaves and serve on individual plates garnished with fresh chopped parsley.

Serves 6.

EASY VEGGIE DIP

1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 small clove garlic, pressed or minced
2 tbsps. minced onion
1 tbsp. dried parsley flakes
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. Dijon mustard
1 tsp. dried dill weed
Dash ground white pepper

Combine all ingredients, blend thoroughly, and chill for at least 2 hours.

Serve with raw vegetable sticks.

Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

SESAME-CAROB NUT SQUARES

2 eggs
1/2 cup honey
1/4 cup plus 2 tbsps. whole wheat flour
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 cup sesame seeds
1/2 cup carob chips

Preheat oven to 350 F. Beat eggs lightly with wire whisk, then beat in honey until well blended.

Stir in remaining ingredients, one at a time, blending well.

Turn mixture into oiled or buttered 9-inch-square baking pan, and bake 20 to 25 minutes.

Let cool in pan, then cut into squares.

Makes 12 squares.

What canned beans can do

Everyone has a can of beans in the pantry. Dull stuff, right? Not necessarily. Your basic can of beans can be jazzed up in more ways than you might think. Just take a look at the following recipes and you'll see.

South of the Border Bean Dip combines Jack cheese and Mexican salsa in a savory concoction that's ready in minutes. Perfect at party time, or as an afternoon snack. Serve with tortilla chips, or spoon into warmed tortillas and roll up for an easy-to-prepare lunch.

Better Beans 'N Franks is about as American as you can get. This recipe adds extra flavor with a brown sugar-ketchup sauce, and tops things off with cheddar cheese and onions. Thought you'd outgrown beans and franks? Try this one.

If you find yourself cooking for a crowd of summer revelers, Party Bean Bake may be just the thing to feed the hungry hordes. Plain beans can be boring, but add bacon bits and pineapple, and you're sure to please even the most bean-weary diner. This recipe makes a nice side dish with sliced ham, barbecued ribs or Polish sausage.

A can of pinto or kidney beans may be spiced up with a little chili powder and ground cumin. Add ground beef and you've got chili con carne!

Chopped onion, green pepper and canned tomatoes also will liven things up in the canned bean department.

Stir in remaining ingredients and cover. Microwave on MEDIUM (50 percent power) about 45 minutes, stirring every 15 minutes. Remove cover and microwave about 10 minutes longer stirring after 5 minutes, until piping hot.

Serves 8 to 10.

GRILLED HERBED POTATOES

- Russet potatoes
- Melted butter
- Pepper

Scrub russet potatoes well and rinse. Slice in half lengthwise and place, cut side down, on glass plate.

Microwave 1 1/2 minutes per potato. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle lightly with pepper, paprika and crushed dried basil.

Place potato halves, cut side down, on grill and barbecue until done, basting with more melted butter as necessary. Salt lightly and serve.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens. Foods are cooked on HIGH (100 percent power) and uncovered unless otherwise specified.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Wash walls from bottom

Q. The walls of our living room and dining room have turned slightly beige. They were originally painted in winter white.

I wonder whether they can be washed, instead of having them repainted. If so, what should I use? What solution should I add to the water and what type of brush should I use to scrub them?

I plan to first try washing behind a piece of furniture to see how the paint takes the washing prior to washing the entire surface. I would be grateful for any assistance you can give me. — I.K.

A. You should be able to wash your painted walls. However, it is doubtful that washing will restore the walls to their original color and luster. White has a tendency to yellow with age. This is a chemical reaction.

You should be able to remove dirt and smudges with a good washing. Try using a solution of 2 tablespoons of trisodium phosphate mixed with 1 gallon of warm water.

Your plan to test an inconspicuous area first is a good one. If the desired results are obtained, you can wash the entire surface.

Begin at the bottom and work upward toward the ceiling, using a circular motion with a sponge. Be careful to not get the surface too wet — excess moisture will soften a plaster wall. Working from bottom to top will prevent dirty water from trickling down on dry parts of the wall and making permanent stains. Wash a small area at a time and rinse at once with clear water, not letting the wash water dry on the wall.

Q. My problem is a constantly flaking plaster covering that has been applied to a concrete foundation. I assume steps were added after the original pouring because when the flaking begins, it is along a line directly above the steps. Is there any exterior quality product that could be used to cover the entire foundation that would remain neat looking for more than one year? Is brick veneer available for such use?

Buy one dozen lemons. Boil three of them whole for 10 minutes. Refrigerate. For three days in a row eat one of the boiled lemons by scooping out the insides.

Use no sugar or salt. Skip three days and boil three more lemons. Repeat this process until complete dozen of lemons are consumed. Total span of treatment is 24 days.

Any help would be appreciated. — Mrs. J.S.

A. Possibly a repair using a patching material (Redi-Crete) and a concrete glue would solve your problem. The addition of the glue prevents cracking and peeling.

First you will need to remove all of the loose, flaking material, using a stiff wire brush. Follow manufacturer's instructions on the concrete glue for this type of repair.

After you finish with the patching material and concrete glue apply a coating of Thompson's Water Seal to prevent damage from rain and moisture. You could then paint with a swimming pool paint.

There is a brick veneer available on the market. However, to apply this to your foundation you will have to remove all of the stucco finishing down to the original concrete foundation. This would be a very difficult process and probably would be best done by a professional, as would be the installation of the veneer finish.

To help prevent this problem in the future, check the drainage around the foundation to assure that water drains away from the house. Water seeping into the foundation will continue to cause you problems.

Buy one dozen lemons. Boil three of them whole for 10 minutes. Refrigerate. For three days in a row eat one of the boiled lemons by scooping out the insides.

Use no sugar or salt. Skip three days and boil three more lemons. Repeat this process until complete dozen of lemons are consumed. Total span of treatment is 24 days.

By the time the dozen lemons are consumed pain should be gone, however, at first sign of pain returning in the future this same process can be repeated. — Mary L.

Dear Mary: Thanks for the information. Numerous readers have been asking about sciatica.

Dear John: I have been reading quite a few articles in your column about the medicine, Gerovital H-3.

Mainly For Seniors

Earth not easy to live on

Dear John: I was pleased to read of food allergy. It is good advice and it is true. I experienced it myself and the only cure is diet.

It can be severe, with unusual tiredness and fatigue. My doctors could never find out what was the trouble and I finally saw what was wrong from hard experience.

I found it helpful to stop eating meat, after I got older, and that can reduce fatigue also. Of course, there are numerous other causes that tire the body, oversleeping, overworking, pollution and radiation, and emotional outbursts.

Planet Earth is not an easy one to live on. The ideal diet is fruit, vegetables, and nuts. — Orestes W.

Dear Orestes: I won't get into that age-old argument about diet, particularly meat. I think it is pretty much up to each individual and his or her own physician.

You're right on one thing at least. Earth certainly

TWEEN 12 & 20

By Robert Wallace, M.D.

Dr. Wallace: My friends who do not smoke cigarettes, take dope or drink alcohol, are all smoking clove cigarettes. They tell me they are tired of being "goody-goody" and that smoking clove cigarettes is safe and gives them a special "high."

I would never do drugs, drink or even smoke tobacco cigarettes but I feel I could smoke a clove cigarette if it is considered safe. Also, I'm the only one in our group who has not tried one.

Please give the lowdown on clove cigarettes. The honest truth only. — Jenny Jenny: Clove cigarettes were introduced into North America in the late 1960s from Indonesia and consist of 60 percent tobacco and 40 percent cloves. Only lately have they become a fad. In 1980 about 15 million "cloves" were sold over the counter. In 1984, the sales soared to over 150 million.

Studies are under way to determine the health hazards of clove cigarettes. The first scientific report by the American Health Foundation shows that eugenol — the major element of cloves — can be lethal to animals when administered directly to the lungs. Eugenol is a chemical that is used as a weak anesthetic by dentists and is recognized as safe. It is presumed safe when taken orally. Little is known of its safety when smoked.

Dr. Tee Guidotti of the University of Alberta Faculty of Medicine in Edmonton speculates that it is possible that burned eugenol or some by-products created when other clove cigarette additives are burned may immobilize infection-fighting cells, allowing viruses and bacteria already present in the lungs to spread.

Between March 1984, and May 1985, the Centers For Disease Control in Atlanta recorded 12 cases of severe illness possibly associated with smoking clove cigarettes. Symptoms included blood- or fluid-filled lungs, coughing up blood and a constriction of the air passageway. The rats that died during experiments generally died from hemorrhaging and a fluid buildup in the lungs.

Ed La Voie, a spokesman for the American Health Foundation, stated that the results of the recent survey indicate that cloves by no means are a safe substitute for conventional cigarettes. The studies performed to date suggest that clove cigarettes are uniquely toxic and their full adverse effects have yet to be determined.

Several states, including California, are considering banning clove cigarette sales. New Mexico already has imposed such a ban.

Jenny, I realize my answer is long and a bit scientific but I want you to know the "honest truth only."

Be wise and stay away from clove cigarettes. All the "facts" are not in, but why take the risk?

Dr. Wallace: Please print my letter. I know it will help a lot of teenagers.

Last month my friend and I went to a party and we decided to walk home after it was over.

We stopped at a fast-food restaurant for a cold drink and met a "nice guy" who was about 35 years old. He smiled and asked us why we were out so late (it was 11 p.m.). We told him that we were coming home from a party. He said to be careful and that he had a daughter our age.

When we started walking again, we noticed this man was following us in his car. Finally, he pulled over to the curb and told us he would drive us home because he was afraid for our safety. Since we were both tired and the guy looked "safe" we got into his car.

When he didn't take us directly home I asked him where he was taking us. He then informed us that he was a juvenile officer and that he was taking us to jail. We were really scared and believed him.

Finally, he stopped on a lonely road and said he would make us a deal. Either we gave into his demands or he would lock us up in jail. After many hours of pleading (we didn't give in) and crying, he finally took us home, but not until he made us disrobe partially.

My friend and I are very fortunate that we came out of the ordeal as well as we did. I have been having nightmares and shudder every time I see a red car. Two days after the incident I had to be hospitalized for hyperventilating.

Dr. Wallace, I will never forget that night as long as I live.

I just want to tell my fellow teens they should never accept a ride from a stranger, and this includes hitchhiking. I did and I was lucky. I'll never do it again. — Rhonda Rhonda: You message is 100 percent correct. Thanks so much for sharing with your fellow teens.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Last week I read an article about a Long Island hospital. It has several programs just for young children. In one of these boys and girls who expect to go to the hospital as patients are taken on a tour beforehand so they will know what to expect. In the second case, youngsters whose mothers are expecting babies are shown part of the maternity facilities and the nursery wing.

In both these ways children soon find that hospitals are not to be feared but offer help to people when it is needed.

Your friend,
 Aunt Tilly

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are John Allen and Kathy Hill.

Male cats prone to FUS

Q. What is a "plugged-up" tom-cat?

Our neighbors' male cat died recently. The veterinarian told them the cat was plugged up and therefore could not urinate.

What causes a cat to become plugged up? Is there anything that can be done to treat or prevent the disease? We are hoping our cat will not become plugged up.

A. Another name for the "plugged-up" condition is feline urologic syndrome, by far the most common disorder affecting the urinary tract in male cats. The incidence of the disease is not any greater in neutered or castrated cats than in intact cats.

Young adult cats do seem more prone to be affected by FUS than do kittens or much older cats. Although FUS can occur in cats of any age, it is relatively rare in cats younger than 1 year and in cats older than 4 years. Young male cats between 1 and 3 years are most often affected.

The disease is more commonly seen during the winter and early spring months. The urethra, the tube carrying urine, is blocked or plugged by a pasty, gritty or sandy material in cats with FUS. The plugs are composed primarily of mucous and various crystalline materials.

The exact cause of FUS is apparently complex and not fully understood. Urinary tract infection, diet and heredity apparently all play a role in its occurrence.

The higher incidence of FUS seen in inactive males during the winter might be due to decreased water intake, reduced frequency of urination, increased concentration of urine and the subsequent high rates of formation of urinary tract crystals. All cats should be given a constant source of fresh water.

Fifty percent to 70 percent of all affected cats have recurrences. This is probably due to damage and scarring of the urethra during each bout of the disease. However, if a cat has recurrences, a veterinarian can recommend specific feeding regimens or prescribe a commercial prescription diet for prevention of the disease.

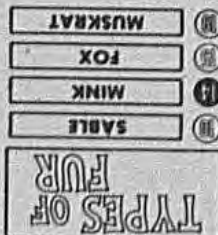

Cats with FUS usually are restless, appear to be anxious, strain excessively while trying to urinate, and eventually lose their interest in normal activities such as grooming, playing and eating. Blood may be seen in the urine. Affected cats often appear to be constipated because of the excessive and frequent straining while urinating.

If total urethral obstruction is not recognized and treated promptly, dehydration, weakness, depression, vomiting, coma, and finally death usually occur.

Because of the seriousness of FUS, all cats suspected of having this condition should be taken promptly to a veterinarian. This is an emergency condition. If necessary a veterinarian may perform surgery to enlarge the urethral opening or remove scar tissue from previous bouts of the disease.

Although FUS is an extremely serious disease of male cats, only about 1 percent of all cats ever have the disease. It is important that all cat owners recognize the signs of FUS so they can get prompt treatment whenever necessary.

Helping your car beat the heat

Be ready to spring into warm weather driving. Take the time now to check, change and chart components, fluids and mileage for better and more economic driving. Rev up for summer by using this easy-to-follow check list:

- Tune-Up: Winter weather hampers an engine's performance. A spring tune-up makes the engine run smoother and increases fuel and overall operating efficiency.
- Radiator: Check radiator and radiator hoses for leaks and cracks, replacing them when needed. These are early warning signals for leaks.

- Engine Oil: Truly the lifeblood of your engine. Regularly check oil for proper level by reading oil dipstick found near oil fill cap.

Keeping oil level full helps your car run more efficiently. This can now be easily and cleanly done by using Kendall Superb 100 10W-30 or 10W-40 Gasoline Saving Motor Oil in handy FUN-L-FIL resealable one-quart containers. A consistently "full" oil level adds to overall engine protection and performance.

- Oil Change: Changing oil regularly at 3,500 mile intervals helps engines run better since 90 percent of today's driving is stop-and-go. To adequately lubricate and protect the engine, it is necessary to change oil at manufacturer recommended intervals.

- Filters: Vital to protecting your car's components from dirt, debris and other foreign matter, replace oil filter at every oil change, fuel and transmission filters at least once a year, and an air filter when light cannot be seen through it.

- Coolant: If it is rusty, clean the system and replace with a 50/50 mixture of water and ethylene glycol anti-freeze. Check coolant level weekly and fill when necessary.

- Belts: Should be inspected monthly and fit snugly. Replace worn and frayed fan, alternator and accessory belts.

- Tires: Underinflated tires wear faster and must be replaced frequently, so keep tires inflated to tire manufacturer's recommended pressure. Check for worn treads; they indicate an alignment or replacement is needed.

- Spots: Check the ground under the car for telltale spots such as oil and coolant. These are early warning signals for leaks.

New cars require less gas, but more know-how

Stable gasoline prices through the summer of '84 came as a happy surprise to many pundits who expected the worst.

Supply and demand are credited with the accomplishment, gas consumption having been somewhat lower than anticipated while the fuel stockpile remained healthy.

Increased fuel efficiency

More efficient vehicles have been a big factor in reducing the drain on our resources. Thanks to state-of-the-art technology, the 1984 car typically gets about twice the mileage per gallon of its predecessor of a decade ago.

While high tech systems have helped ease the demand at the gas pumps they have, on the other hand, created a real challenge for the technicians in the service shops, says Car Care Council.

To meet technical requirements of the repair industry, mechanics by the tens of thousands are attending educational clinics to remain up to date on these state-of-the-art vehicles.

Technological advances

Further, they are signing up in record numbers for ASE certification tests, according to National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE).

"When your customer comes in for service," ASE President Ron Weiner tells members of the service trade, "you'd better know your way around these computerized engines and the diagnostic equipment they require."

"And while these new cars may run further between fill ups and service, we must emphasize to owners that they'll have to pay more attention to maintenance services when they are needed."

"The truth is, it's a small price to pay for the use of safer, more fuel efficient cars that produce far less air pollution."

"The car owner who delays periodic maintenance, finally being forced into crisis repairs, is the one who pays most dearly for automotive service," he says.

Annually updated repair manuals, tune-up guides aid do-it-yourselfers

After five years of struggle, the economy is well on its way to robust health again. Roger Smith, chairman of the board of General Motors, has gone on record, predicting the sale of 15 million new cars and trucks for the 1985 model year.

If Smith's prediction is correct, we are in the early stages of the second best sales year in the history of the industry, surpassed only by the numbers rung up in 1978.

The current boom, however, is not necessarily a harbinger of things to come and, if Americans learned anything over the past few years, it is to be prepared for the worst.

Nowhere is this more obvious than in the auto service industry. Over the years, Americans typically bought a new car, drove it for two or three years, then traded it on a new one. The older car had one, sometimes two or more owners before it was relegated to the scrap yard after some six years of service.

Today, the life of the average car is more than seven years and, as its age increases, it is, more likely than not, being maintained by its owner, rather than by a professional mechanic.

To the uninitiated, a car's engine compartment has always seemed confusing and, in some cases, forbidding. With the introduction of computer-controlled fuel injection and engine control systems over the past few years, appearances can be even more awe-inspiring.

The aspiring do-it-yourself mechanic need not despair. Help is readily available through any number of books and publications, most prominent of which are those produced by Chilton Book Company, Radnor, Pennsylvania.

Chilton publishes manuals and Repair and Tune-Up Guides that provide the most complete auto coverage available. Information and instructions are updated yearly, with attention to detail that has helped Chilton continually outsell all of its competition.

The top-selling books in the field are Chilton's domestic and import car and truck repair manuals, which cover in depth all the major systems of cars sold over the past seven years. Reprints of older manuals cover cars made as early as 1940.

The increasing use of onboard computer systems — one car in four today; nine of 10 by the end of the decade — has prompted Chilton to publish a Guide to Electronic Engine Controls and a Guide to Fuel Injection and Feedback (electronically-controlled) Carburetors.

The fastest-growing series of Chilton books are the Repair and Tune-Up Guides; covering specific American and import cars of the past two decades.

There are 43 Repair & Tune-Up Guides covering domestically-built cars of the last 25 years. On the import side, 36 guides cover makes and models dating to the 1949 Volkswagen Beetle. Another 21 guides cover domestic and import pickups, vans and RVs. These guides are equally valuable to owners of cars no longer in production and owners of more recent models.

ELECTRONIC ENGINE CONTROL REPAIRS ARE MADE EASY with Chilton's latest Specialty Guide.

Pressure check

VACATION INFLATION — Proper tire air pressure can save gasoline this summer, say the engineers of The Kelly-Springfield Tire Company. Vacation-bound motorists can gain up to 30 extra miles per 1,000 miles traveled with correctly inflated tires.

NEW THOUGHTS ABOUT CAR SICKNESS AND REMEDIES

Beyond the traditional over-the-counter cures for car sickness, an additional preventive measure can be taken. It's a matter of vehicle maintenance, says Car Care Council, who claim a car in poor repair can induce car sickness in its driver and passengers.

The most serious form of car sickness results from carbon monoxide poisoning. An odorless, colorless and invisible gas, carbon monoxide is in the exhaust that comes out of the vehicle's tail pipe. If the system is leaking, (usually signalled by the rumbling or roar of unmuffled exhaust), these fumes can seep into the car.

Even a small amount of carbon monoxide is enough to make the occupants drowsy and nauseous. In sufficient quantity, it is lethal.

Keep windows at least partly open on a car with leaking exhaust, the Council recommends, and replace leaking parts as soon as possible.

Car sickness also can be brought about by a floating or bobbing ride, caused by worn shock absorbers. This motion becomes exaggerated by weaving or zig-zagging due to loose steering parts.

Says Car Care Council, "Your car is an extension of yourself. For driving safety and comfort, keep your car in shape and it will help keep you in shape."

Info on cooling system available

Car Care Council now offers a folder entitled: "HOW TO HELP YOUR CAR KEEP ITS COOL." The 3 1/2 x 9", six-panel, illustrated pamphlet explains the function of the heating and cooling system, shows the nine procedures and checkpoints involved in proper cooling system maintenance, and includes a checklist of seasonal services.

Also explained, in simple terms, is how to perform a chemical clean-out of the system.

Other components covered include water pump, thermostat, hose connections, radiator and heater hoses.

Failure to perform simple seasonal maintenance procedures often results in "crisis repairs," notes the Automotive Cooling System Institute who assisted in production of the literature.

"HOW TO HELP YOUR CAR KEEP ITS COOL," fifth in Car Care Council's series of illustrated pamphlets, can help motorists avoid car trouble.

To obtain a copy of the brochure, send a stamped, self-addressed business-sized envelope and 25c to: Car Care Council; "COOLING;" 600 Renaissance Center; Detroit, MI 48243.

Periodic automotive repair, maintenance the key to longevity Don't stop now!

You've finally gotten through the winter with yourself and your car in one piece. You had been careful to have your cooling system checked and serviced back in October. You put your snow tires on before the snow was piled too deep for you to get out of the house. You even made sure you used winter strength windshield solvent. Indeed, you did everything by the book.

Now that spring is coming, you figure you can sit back and congratulate yourself. Right?

Well, congratulations might be in order, but you'd better not ignore your car. While it is true that winter driving demands the most from your car, hot weather makes its own special demands.

And while a breakdown in the dead of winter is potentially more dangerous than stalling out during a summer's drive, why neglect your car at all?

Proper and timely car maintenance will probably save you money in the long run, by preventing more costly repairs that arise from prolonged neglect.

Spring car care involves three major steps: Repairing problems caused by winter driving; preparing for the warm weather driving ahead; and finding a good automobile technician to do the jobs that are too complicated for you to do on your own.

After three months of ice, snow, sand and potholes, your car is bound to need some sprucing up. Any problems that you failed to repair last fall will probably be worse now, after a hard season of driving.

But the first thing you will notice is your car's overall appearance. A good spring cleaning, inside and out, is in order.

Your car's finish has been dulled by road chemicals and harsh weather; the inside of your car is likely to resemble a closet, with gloves, ice scrapers, cups and other items strewn about.

Thoroughly washing, waxing and vacuuming your car is a very good starting point. You not only see immediate results (always satisfying in this age of 20-year subway projects and 30-year mortgages), you actually decrease your chances of being involved in an accident.

Studies have shown that a dirty windshield is distracting. Our eyes tend to focus automatically on the flecks and streaks on the windshield, instead of looking far ahead to spot potentially dangerous road situations.

And you do not need any studies to tell you how distracting a cluttered dashboard and floorboard can be — just try stopping your car with a soda bottle lodged between the brake pedal and floor, or cigarettes, gloves and loose change sliding around the dash.

But the greatest benefit of starting your spring car care with a general spring cleaning is probably psychological. You cross the threshold from passivity into action; you have taken that first step. Subsequent projects should be easier to do.

Winter driving has probably been difficult on your car's battery. You should remove the cables from the terminals and scrub all parts with a strong wire brush and baking soda and water. (Use a pen knife to scrape away any corrosives from the inside of the clamps.)

Rinse everything with water. Buy new clamps if your old ones are almost eaten through. Reconnect the cables to the terminals (in the proper order!). If you have an older, self-maintenance battery, add water as necessary.

Potholes can take their toll on your car's suspension and steering. Have you felt a difference in the car's steering, handling, and ride? You can test your shock absorbers quite easily.

Go to the front of your car and push down each fender. If your car bounces more than once, worn shocks may be indicated.

A qualified technician can install shocks, a project sometimes too difficult for do-it-yourselfers. Because having a friend follow you in his/her car to check your alignment is not always an accurate gauge, you should take your car to a good shop for testing if you feel that something is wrong.

Since winter driving is so taxing on your car's engine, spring is a good time for a "tune-up" (a popular is somewhat outdated term, given today's sophisticated cars). And you benefit by getting your car ready for the vacation season.

If you have noticed slower acceleration or rough, idling, you probably need a tune-up. While smaller, older cars are relatively simple to adjust (points, plugs, and condensers), many people lack the necessary equipment.

And newer cars of whatever size often have computerized ignition systems that require testing equipment that home mechanics will seldom have.

Your cooling system will be asked to work hardest during hot summer months. The number-one summer breakdown problem is overheating.

If you drained your coolant last fall, chances are that everything is still sound. After the car has thoroughly cooled, remove the radiator cap and check the fluid level. It should be about one half inch from the top. (New cars with plastic reservoirs have a line etched on them that indicates the proper level.)

In any case, change your anti-freeze once each year. Remove the radiator cap, then loosen the drain valve (located at the base of the radiator) and allow the old fluid to empty into a basin.

Next, flush the system with lots of water for a few minutes. Tighten the drain valve, then add the appropriate amount, and mix anti-freeze and water, usually 50/50.

Start the engine and run it long enough to reach operating temperature (usually around 10 minutes). Leave the cap off during this procedure.

Recheck the coolant level. Often you must add more fluid because trapped air will have escaped, lowering the fluid level. Install the radiator cap securely.

Check all of your hoses and belts for condition and tightness; frayed belts and cracking hoses should be replaced immediately.

And while you are under the hood, why not check the level of your engine oil and brake, power steering and transmission fluids? Consult your owner's manual for help in locating parts and information about replacement specifications.

If the oil filter and oil pan lug nut are readily accessible, you can change your oil and filter in about 20 minutes.

Your brake, transmission and power steering fluids should seldom fluctuate. If after having added fluid, you notice a lower level again within a few days, you should have your car examined by a technician qualified to do brake, transmission or steering work.

Don't forget your air filter or windshield washer solvent: Summer driving is often very dusty. Buy an air filter (about $4 to $7) and keep a jug of washer fluid in your trunk.

With planning and motivation, you can repair the damage winter has done and get your car ready for months of enjoyable summer driving.

For "severe service" drivers, regular auto maintenance is key to good performance

If you're one of those rare people who have taken the trouble to look up periodic service recommendations in your car owner's manual, you may have seen double and triple asterisks referring to "severe-service" operation.

The term does not necessarily denote someone who daily climbs Pike's Peak or asks his subcompact car to perform Herculean tasks.

In fact, says Car Care Council, the time-worn idea that the best buy in a used car is the one that has been driven by the little old lady who ran only three miles to and from the grocery store is a thing of the past.

She may qualify as a severe service driver and not even know it. Before buying her car, take a close look at her maintenance records!

Many of the driving habits that we think of as "typical" can be very hard on a car, especially in certain combinations. Example: Short trips (10 miles or less) and stop-and-go driving such as might be encountered in city traffic or on a delivery route combined with unusually hot or cold weather are hard on a car.

Towing a trailer or otherwise hauling heavy loads on a regular basis is considered severe service, too, especially in hilly terrain.

While this kind of driving is the exception rather than the rule, says Car Care Council, people who do fall into these categories should be careful to observe owner's manual maintenance recommendations when they apply.

Especially important is constant checking of vital fluids such as engine oil, transmission fluid, anti-freeze/coolant, brake fluid and power steering fluid.

Failure to check and change fluids and filters on schedule can cause rapid engine and/or transmission wear, and premature failure of these major components.

The Council emphasizes the importance of recognizing evidence of possible automatic transmission damage due to the intense heat and stress that can result from something as commonplace as extended periods of trying to rock a car out of a snow drift.

When the transmission fluid has turned dirty brown and smells burned, do not delay changing fluid and filter. It could help avoid a major overhaul expense.

For further information on checking fluids and filters, send for Car Care Council's brochure, "Keep An Eye On Your Filters." All it takes is a quarter and a stamped, self-addressed #10 envelope to Filters, Car Care Council, 600 Renaissance Center, Detroit, MI 48243.

CHILD SAFETY SEATS SAVE LIVES

Automobile accidents account for more deaths of children than any other accident or disease. In 1982, car accidents were the cause of 650 deaths and 50,000 injuries of children under five.

Eighty percent of children's traffic deaths and 60 percent of their injuries could be prevented by using child safety seats.

Tennessee, the first state to require child safety seats, reported a decrease from 20 to 25 deaths a year in the early 1970s to just six in 1982.

You can buy or rent a safety seat for your child. Many communities have safety seat loaner programs which provide the seats free or for a nominal fee.

To find out where they might be available in your area, call your local hospital, safety council, Red Cross, American Automobile Association or your insurance company. If you're renting a car, most car rental companies will provide safety seats.

Important features

Here's what to look for when you shop for a seat:

- First, check to see that it meets federal regulations. It does if Motor Vehicle Standard 213 is printed on it. If you see this phrase, you can be sure that the seat has passed the crash tests required of all seats made after Jan. 1, 1981.

- Select a seat model that fits the size of your child and that fits in your car. Some cars have narrow or bucket seats and the child seat may be too wide for them.

- Check to see that your seat belts are not too big to fit through the frame of the child seat.

- If you find a used safety seat, say at a garage sale, be very careful. It may have structural damage that is not easily detectable and, if it does, it won't protect your child properly. Examine it thoroughly, and try fitting it in your car.

- And, finally, most important of all: Once you've bought a child safety seat, be sure to use it.

Cooling systems of small cars must work harder

Owners of newer, smaller cars who are preparing their cars' cooling systems for the summer driving should "bone up" on the subject before proceeding, says Car Care Council.

These engines produce up to 20 percent more heat than did their bigger, easier working predecessors. In some cases, they have aluminum heads and/or blocks instead of heavier cast iron, therefore requiring new antifreeze coolant mixtures compatible with these metals.

The Council recommends a seasonal flush and refill of antifreeze/coolant to retain the system's maximum efficiency and to prolong the life of the radiator and other parts.

High under-the-hood temperatures associated with the new cars cause rubber components to deteriorate more quickly than on earlier models.

Therefore, a careful check of all hoses for rotting, cracking or leaks is essential. (Caution! Do not check hoses when the engine is hot. A weak hose could fail, releasing scalding fluid!)

Whether or not the car is equipped with a belt driven radiator fan, all belts should be inspected as part of the cooling system check-up.

Not only the condition of the belt but also the tension is critical. Too loose a belt will slip, permitting malfunction of the driven components (alternator, air conditioner compressor, fan, power steering and others.)

Also, a slipping belt gets hot, thus accelerating wear and deterioration of the belt.

Life expectancy of belts and hoses, like most components, varies from car to car, driver to driver. Most belts are replaced only when they are at or near failure, according to the engineers of Automotive

Cooling System Institute, with potentially serious damage to the car. For this reason, recommended replacement interval for preventive maintenance is about four years.

Include the radiator pressure cap in your inspection. Remove it (when the engine is cool) and check the seal for breaks or cracks, which would indicate the need for replacement.

The cap also should be checked with a pressure tester to be sure it still can hold the pressure specified for that engine. Most service shops are equipped with pressure testers, which also can be used to locate leaks in the cooling system under pressure.

NEW TIRE VALVE SIGNALS WHEN TIRE PRESSURE GETS TOO LOW

Automobile drivers can see whether their tire pressure is too low merely by walking around the car, thanks to a new device from the company that invented the tire valve and makes more of them than anyone else in the world.

Called the Red Alert, the unit works like a conventional tire valve but flashes a warning when a tire goes low. If tire pressure drops below a set level, a red warning pin pops up inside the valve's transparent plastic cap. Along with convenience, the indicator valve promotes road safety, longer tire life and better mileage.

Vandal-proof

Developed by the Scovill corporation's Schrader Automotive Group, the Red Alert is different in other ways as well. It's made of steel without a valve core, and the main sealing unit is located inside the wheel rim instead of in the vulnerable tip of the protruding valve stem.

Why your engine may be "oil thirsty"

Do you think your car may be using too much oil? One sign an engine is burning oil is blue smoke coming from the exhaust pipe.

There can be several reasons for this condition, says Car Care Council, the most common being worn valve guide seals. Here's why: The valves in a typical engine may open and close as often as 100,000 times per hour at highway speeds.

The stem of the valve, sliding up and down in a guide, is fitted with a special seal designed to permit only a limited amount of oil to pass. (Some oil is necessary for lubrication, but too much creates oil burning problems.)

Eventually these seals will wear, harden or otherwise fail. That's when oil burning begins.

Many of the conditions which cause an engine to burn oil prematurely are caused by vehicle neglect. One example of this is worn piston rings, which can wear out prematurely because of failure to change oil and filter regularly.

Once the rings become excessively worn, an expensive "rings job" is the only remedy. With proper maintenance, however, an engine normally should go well beyond the 100,000 mile mark without needing new piston rings.

It is essential to check the engine oil regularly. If oil is over-full or smells like gasoline, it could mean it is becoming diluted with gasoline.

Thus, the oil becomes thin enough to work its way into the combustion chamber, eventually to burn and end up in the atmosphere as smoke.

If you have to pump the accelerator to keep the engine from stalling, you may be pumping raw gasoline into the crank case. This situation can be avoided by keeping the engine in tune.

Misfiring spark plugs can aggravate a situation such as this because they permit raw, unburned gasoline to wash into the crank case. Not only does this create hard starting, it also accelerates wear due to diluted engine oil.

Another factor in oil burning is a malfunctioning positive crank case ventilation (PCV) valve, which is intended to route oil vapors through the combustion chamber rather than permitting them to escape into the atmosphere.

If the PCV system is not in proper working order, it can be the cause of oil burning.

Remember: Excessive oil burning is a condition that gradually worsens and can affect other aspects of the engine.
