Trinity H.S. Annual Oktoberfest

For the past ten years, Holy Trinity Diocesan High School, in Hicksville, New York, has presented its annual Oktoberfest at the end of August and Labor Day weekend.

Held on the school's athletic field on Newbridge Road in Hicksville, it has become the largest event of its kind on Long Island, hosting approximately 30,000 visitors. People who appreciate quality good-times have returned to this colorful feast each year to enjoy the very best.

The eight days of carefully planned folk entertainment and traditional foods served under three huge tents makes Holy Trinity High School and Hicksville a focal point that draws visitors from near and far.

During Oktoberfest time at Holy Trinity, Adam Barthalt and his Orchestra, one of the top groups in the country, and the Schlierachaler-Stamm Dancers are the key entertainers. Many other well known professional groups join them as they turn Hicksville into a miniature Munich where the original Oktoberfest is held.

Some of the other entertainers are: The Knickerbocker Orchestra, the Dominos International Orchestra, Joe Weber's Bavarian Orchestra, the Austrian Boys, the Musik Freunde Orchestra, Mary Herzog and His Bavarian Polka Band, the original Enzian, the Gemuetlicher Enzianer, the Miesbacher Trachten Verein Bavarian Dance Groups, and the Hejnal, the Polonaise, the High Boot Polka Dancers, the Vasa Swedish Folk Dancers, the Adam's Polka Dolls.

Rides, family games and a Las Vegas Casino combine to make this event tops for summer fun.

To celebrate German/American Week, Nassau County, a field Mass is held at 10 a.m. on Sunday, August 25, and is followed by the traditional Oktoberfest parade on Route 106 (Newbridge Road), Hicksville, starting at 1 p.m. Top marching bands participate to create an exciting experience for the whole family.

To mark its 10th anniversary the Oktoberfest Committee announced recently that all visitors will be able to participate in a free drawing for a cruise for two on the popular Bahama Cruise Lines' luxury liner, the S/S Bermuda Star. On October 5, the lucky winners will join Adam Barthalt and his orchestra on a seven day Oktoberfest Polka Cruise to fabulous Bermuda. Sailing from New York, Bahama Cruise Lines will make someone's dream vacation come true.

Another first this year will be the Holy Trinity Oktoberfest Spaten 5K Run on Saturday, August 31 at 9:30 a.m. Starting at the school, the participants will compete for trophies in various categories. Every entrant will have a chance to win a free trip for two to the original Oktoberfest in Munich, departing New York on September 28 for seven days, compliments of the Spaten Brewery in Munich. Painters' caps will also be given to every runner who pre-registers for the race by August 20. Entry forms are available for all interested by calling 516 334-8783 or 718 461-1275 or by writing to Spaten 5 K Run, Holy Trinity Oktoberfest, 98 Cherry Lane, Hicksville, NY 11801. Entry fee is $6.

The dates for this outstanding fest are: Friday, August 23, 7 p.m.-midnight; Saturday, August 24, 3 p.m.-midnight; Sunday, August 25, 2 p.m.-11 p.m.; Thursday, August 29, 7 p.m.-11 p.m.; Friday, August 30, 7 p.m.-midnight; Saturday, August 31, 3 p.m.-midnight; Sunday, September 1, 3 p.m.-midnight; Monday, September 2, 3 p.m.-11 p.m. General admission is $4; Senior Citizens $2; Thursday Night Special, August 29, general admission is $3 and for Senior Citizens it is $1.50.

Town Approves Plan To Renovate Gas Station

The Oyster Bay Town Board has approved an application for a change of zone and special use permit to renovate a gas station in Hicksville.

The applicant, Jesco Company sought a change of zone from "H" industrial to "G" general business and a special use permit to renovate and modernize an existing gas station located on the corner of West John Street and Burns Avenue. The Board approved the request, subject to restrictive covenants.

Hours of operation for the station are limited to 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. Automotive repairs may be conducted between the hours of 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday with only minor emergency repairs permitted on Sunday. To help cut down on noise, the Board stipulated that there could be no bell alarm system to alert attendants about customers at the gas pumps.

The Town Board is requiring that all outdoor lighting be turned off when the station is closed. Lighting may be directed only at the subject premises and cannot spill over into adjacent residential areas. To help cut down on traffic, the Board has prohibited the sale or distribution of food on the premises.

Other covenants include providing for proper disposal of waste oil and other toxic substances so that no seepage will penetrate into the ground and that the use of streamers or flags for decorative or advertising purposes is prohibited.

The special use permit is limited to three years, at which time the Town Board may extend it. No building permit will be issued until a site plan has been submitted and approved by the Department of Planning and Development.

Hicksville Post Office recently held its Second Annual Truck Rodeo for postal drivers. "Our Hicksville Sectional Center has over 2,000 letter carriers and over 150 tractor trailer operators who drive thousands of miles each year in performing their job of collecting and delivering the mail. The Truck Rodeo is a way to emphasize safety and let our driving professionals compete among themselves and show their families what postal driving is all about," said Roger Nienaber, Hicksville Manager/Postmaster. Drivers competed for trophies in four categories. They had to answer a ten question Safety Quiz before taking the driving competition. The vehicle competition consisted of a seven event driving skill course requiring tight turns, straight backing, parallel parking and backing into loading docks. In giving the awards, Mr. Nienaber congratulated the drivers for participating and winning their events. "We want our drivers to be a model of safety because our vehicles are on the road 24 hours a day. I want to emphasize how important it is for our drivers to be safety role models because of their high visibility in the community," said Mr. Nienaber.

The winners in each category were:

Young sprouts from old fuchsias

By Patrick Denton

There comes a time in the life of every fuchsia when it simply loses its oomph. They're really not all that different from us, after all.

For those of us who love our fuchsias and the bountiful display of flowers they yield each summer and fall, it's a disappointment when one or two of our most cherished varieties produce less than the magnificent display to which we have become accustomed.

Often the problem simply is that the plants need some form of renewal. For fuchsias, the simplest and most satisfying way of rejuvenating them is to take cuttings for new plants to be set outdoors next spring.

Young plants grown from cuttings taken this month will be fresh and vigorous, ready to bloom prolifically next summer. And they'll be far more manageable over the winter than their larger, more woody parents.

Fuchsia cuttings are so easy to root at this time of year that you well may wish to take several cuttings from each of your plants to extend your collection, to give to friends or to hedge against the possibility of losing one or two during the winter.

Before cutting pieces from your fuchsia hanging basket plants, trees or bushes, have everything ready to receive them. I set mine right away in small pots about 3 inches across, filled with a light-weight potting mix, either purchased or made from one-third each sterilized potting soil, peat and perlite.

I make sure first that the pots are scrubbed scrupulously clean, and that there are drainage holes in them. Then I fill them with the mixture and press it down, but gently. Tiny new roots must be able to penetrate the medium easily, and they will need air, as well. That's why a heavy soil mixture is not really very suitable.

Look for your fuchsia plants for tip growth that has no flowers or flower buds. These are the pieces that will root the best. Cut these pieces between 3 and 4 inches long, and remove the lower leaves. Then recut the stem just below where one of those leaves was growing. It's immediately below a leaf node that the strongest concentrations of growth hormones are found.

Dip the cut end in a purchased hormone rooting powder, make a hole with a pen or pencil into the soil mixture and set the cutting in it, firming it gently into close contact with the mix. Water it lightly with your favorite transplanting solution.

What the cutting needs at this point is a place in light shade, protected from hot sunshine, and as high a humidity as possible to keep its surfaces bathed in moisture while it is forming roots. I usually set mine on the shaded floor of our greenhouse with a rigid plastic miniature greenhouse cover over them.

But the pots also may be placed in plastic bags, with a wire support keeping the plastic off the foliage. Or the pots could be set in light shade in the garden with glass jars set over them. Care must be taken that they are indeed in shade, lest the sun's rays cook them inside their plastic or glass greenhouse.

As soon as the cuttings begin showing signs of new growth, you'll know they have taken root and they may be uncovered. Keep them for the rest of the summer and early fall in light shade, and pinch back new growth if you wish a bushy shape to your plants.

These young plants can be kept over the winter in any cool and humid place — a cool, frost-free greenhouse, a cool basement or laundry room. Temperatures between 40 and 50 F are ideal.

New diet plan may help to prevent diseases

By Shirley Bright Boody, Registered Dietitian

Three common maladies that affect thousands of American women — cancer, osteoporosis and premenstrual syndrome — recently were reviewed by a panel of nutrition scientists, and for the first time a new diet plan for the prevention of these diseases was presented.

The symposium was sponsored jointly by The California Dietetic Association and the Dairy Council of California, and was chaired by C. Wayne Callaway, M.D., of the Mayo Clinic.

"There has been an abundance of reports during the past year calling for one diet change or another to help prevent specific diseases," Callaway said, "and although there has been a commonality in advice, no one has pulled the information together for the consumer."

Dietary fat has been implicated in breast and intestinal cancer. Insufficient calcium is tied to osteoporosis, a bone-thinning disease causing fractures in one out of four older women. Nutrition therapy is a growing phenomenon in PMS treatment. However, the panel warned that some PMS diet claims are potentially dangerous and unfounded in science.

The most popular treatment for PMS currently consists of doses of vitamin B-6 at 400 to 1,000 times the recommended daily allowance. The RDA for vitamin B-6 is 2 milligrams.

"We're finding neurological disorders at dosages as low as 250 milligrams," Callaway said.

Drastic diet changes to lower the risk of one disease may increase the risk of another, according to Dr. Susha Palmer, an executive director of the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences.

"Diet is but one identifiable variable in determining the outcome of diseases such as cancer," Palmer reported. Smoking, exercise and family history also must be considered. In addition, she said, "when fat intake is exceedingly low, polyunsaturated fats are more likely than saturated fats to increase the risk of cancer."

Other scientists on the panel included Bess Dawson-Hughes, M.D., of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging at Tufts University, and Gary Shangold, M.D., of the University of Chicago.

Their combined recommendations for diet changes prescribed for cancer, osteoporosis and PMS are as follows:

1. Choose a variety of foods in moderation to reduce the risk of nutritional imbalance.

2. Eat adequate amounts of foods containing essential nutrients.

3. Limit consumption of total fat to about 30 percent of total calories in the diet.

4. Consume adequate amounts of dietary calcium: 1,000 milligrams per day for premenopausal women; 1,500 milligrams per day for postmenopausal women.

5. Rely on foods to supply necessary nutrients when possible. Use vitamin and mineral supplements only under specific circumstances. Excessive use above the RDA may be potentially hazardous.

6. Base dietary changes to prevent disease on an individual risk factors assessment including family history, environmental issues and lifestyle habits such as smoking and exercise.

To translate these recommendations into food choices, Rita Storey, R.D., president of the California Dietetic Association, suggested that "women should be consuming three servings per day of low-fat dairy products, two servings per day of low-fat meats and meat substitutes, four servings per day of fruits and vegetables, preferably raw or lightly cooked, and four servings per day of whole grain breads and cereals."

Limiting the quantities of the "extra" foods (those that are high in fat, sugar, salt and calories) such as butter, margarine, oils, salad dressing, candy, cookies, cake, soft drinks and cream to two servings per day (total — not of each one) was recommended. Alcohol was suggested to be consumed only in moderation.

Please note that these dietary changes are neither stringent nor very limiting. They easily can be incorporated into the average woman's lifestyle without intricate planning and without pain or deprivation. Will they help overcome or prevent any of these diseases?

Probably, and they certainly are the best preventive measures we have at the moment.

Estate planning — only for the rich?

By Judith G. Rhoades

Continuing with the financial fire drill concept of estate planning, which was the subject of last week's column:

— Is estate planning only for the rich?

No, the rich can afford to lose more. Those with modest or moderate circumstances suffer more because every dollar means more.

— Who needs estate planning?

Minor children; retarded persons, the learning disabled, emotionally disturbed, a physically or mentally handicapped beneficiary, an artistically or intellectually gifted beneficiary, a beneficiary who can't — or won't — handle large sums of money or manage real estate or a large stock portfolio; anyone with a business; anyone with property in more than one state; anyone single, divorced, widowed or married for a second time; the charitably inclined.

— What problems will estate planning help to avoid?

Excessive transfer costs; lack of liquidity; improper disposition of assets; inadequate income at retirement, at disability, for family at death; insufficient capital to pay off debts, to send children (or grandchildren) to college, for emergency or opportunity.

— How to solve these problems:

Create estate tax-free wealth. Divide — and conquer. Deduct. Discount. Eliminate tax on existing wealth. Freeze your estate's growth.

— What's to a will and what about it?

A will defines the way you say what you want done with your assets when you die and whom you want to guide your property to the proper hands.

— Without a will — what?

You can't say: Who gets your property; who will be your executor and guardian; how much each person gets or what asset goes to each person; when each person gets his or her share; how property will be received (outright or in a trust); how your executor is to minimize taxes.

Questions to ask yourself:

Do we trust the person who is — right now — named as the primary executor? Secondary? Have we named backups in case the person(s) we have named is unwilling — or unable — to serve? Will we retained for beneficiaries the right to change corporate trustees because of a geographical move or a personality conflict? Have we selected a person who: Has little or no business, investment or money management experience? May have an interest adverse to my beneficiaries? Hasn't got the time or inclination to devote to proper estate administration? May not get along with one or more of our beneficiaries? May be forced to choose between his interests and the interests of other beneficiaries?

Was my spouse's will (and trust) drawn before Sept. 13, 1981? Risk — loss of the right to an unlimited marital deduction. Have we considered estate planning features which allow both the estate tax marital deduction and greater assurance that assets will go our selected beneficiaries? Will the guardians presently named raise our children as we would like? Have we considered the financial burden we may be placing on them? (Can they afford to raise our children — and theirs?) Do they know we've named them? (If we haven't asked, how do we know they'll accept?) Does my spouse have a will and if so — is it coordinated with my will and our employee benefits and life insurance?

A trust is beneficial if: I want income and estate tax savings; my beneficiaries lack mental, emotional or legal capacity or desire to handle an outright gift; I want to insulate assets from the claims of my creditors; I want to see how my trustee and my beneficiaries manage, invest and handle assets; I want to equalize benefits among my children but get extra income or capital to those who need it the most; I'd like to coordinate all my assets, my life insurance and employee benefits; I'd like privacy.

Keep documents and information in secure places such as a bank safe deposit box, or your lawyer's or accountant's office.

"Letter of instructions" — Not legally binding but a good place to say those things you never could. Here's what to cover:

How the obituary should read; the type of funeral, any particular instructions; provisions for donating body or organs to science or donors; should heirs retain or sell the business — if sell, suggest severance pay provisions, who potential buyers are, what to do with office records, how to handle particular problems; who the heirs can trust and how far.

An Old Hospital With A New Name

Recently, Nassau Hospital, the oldest hospital on Long Island, founded in 1896, changed its name to Winthrop-University Hospital. It had long been the recipient of abundant volunteer service from the Hicksville, Bethpage, Jericho and Syosset areas. The hospital, with 533 beds, is a major teaching affiliate of the State University of Stony Brook's Medical School and is the second largest voluntary hospital in Nassau and Suffolk.

The change to Winthrop-University Hospital honors a family name that has been associated with Nassau Hospital since the turn of the century. In particular, it honors Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winthrop who have served on the Board of Directors for a combined 83 years.

Mr. Winthrop, who served as President of Nassau Hospital from 1945 to 1957, became a director in 1934, served until 1939 and resumed after the war in 1945. In 1984, he was designated an honorary trustee. Mrs. Winthrop has served continuously since 1947 chairing the hospital's decorating committee most of those years.

In 1896, two years before Nassau County itself was established, Nassau Hospital was founded by a group of area physicians, with the aid of several prominent local citizens. It was the only voluntary, non-profit hospital from Queens to land's end at Montauk.

In the second year of the hospital's operation in 1899, 225 patients were admitted including 50 soldiers from Camp Black, which was located in the approximate area of what was to become Mitchell Field in Garden City. These soldiers were veterans of the Spanish-American War. Forty-nine of the seriously ill veterans recovered, an extraordinary number for those days.

But by the turn of the century, the small house in West Hempstead purchased from Abner Bedell had proved inadequate. It was decided to move to the present site in Mineola, located near the Long Island Railroad tracks so that patients could be brought from the eastern sections of Long Island.

On March 31, 1900, the temporary hospital was closed at the expiration of the lease as the permanent hospital, designed by Richard Hum, the architect for many of Newport's mansions, neared completion in Mineola. Today, the early wooden buildings have been replaced by a teaching hospital with a physical plant worth nearly $125 million and comprising 533 beds, with an annual budget of $85 million.

The building in Mineola was opened on June 30, 1900 and consisted of three wooden Dutch Colonial buildings and an operating pavilion. The three-story administration building was in the center with the west pavilion for women and the east pavilion connected by a wide corridor.

The hospital grew quickly in response to the needs of its community. In 1900 a training school for nurses, a shelter for the horse-drawn ambulance, and an outpatient department dispensary for the treatment of ear, eye, nose and throat diseases was established. In 1902 the nurses' residence was erected with architecture in keeping with the Dutch Colonial style of the existing hospital.

Donations from contributors like J.P. Morgan to local fishermen and farmers ("two pecks of Oysters, three bushels of corn") aided the hospital. The operating room suite contained the most modern equipment of the time and was built at a cost of $7,329. Water for the hospital was supplied by a well and a windmill was erected in the rear of the buildings. In 1905 the hospital purchased a strip of land lying on the south side of the Long Island Railroad tracks, opposite the hospital, for the purpose of laying water and sewer pipes.

A maternity wing, the first separately designed and constructed fully for this purpose, was established in 1924 at the cost of $162,000 and in 1927 a 145 room nursing residence was constructed at the cost of $228,000. Building E, later renamed the Winthrop Pavilion, after extensive renovation in the 1950's was erected in 1926 at a cost of $385,000. In the early 1920's, the hospital initiated a department of Social Services and a Women's Auxiliary, both of which proved to be indispensable especially during the depression and World War II.

Though the hospital's service area included, after the turn of the century, the entirety of Long Island and eastern Queens, by the 1920's and 1930's other area voluntary and municipal hospitals had opened in strategic areas close to the north and south shore.

Gradually the hospital's older wooden buildings were replaced with modern, brick facilities. The new facilities saw the hospital through the depression days of the 1930's, the tremendous strains of World War II, and into the great population explosion of the post-war era.

In 1935, Nassau County opened Meadowbrook Hospital in East Meadow, the first and only municipal hospital on Long Island. Coming as it did, almost midway through the great Depression, Meadowbrook helped relieve the tremendous burden of caring for the large numbers of indigent patients which had been supported by Nassau Hospital.

Through the years, the two hospitals, one public and one voluntary, developed close relationships and many of the leaders of medicine in Nassau County held privileges and conducted teaching programs at both institutions.

Despite the hardships of the depression, a laundry and power plant were built in 1938. A new brick building which was completed in 1940 formed the main part of the hospital, replacing the old wooden structures. This building constructed in 1940 at a cost of $700,000, became the most utilized health care facility on Long Island during the great population explosion that followed World War II as Nassau Hospital became one of the busiest obstetrical hospitals in the country.

Through succeeding decades Nassau Hospital continued to expand its facilities to keep pace with the increasing needs of its community. The now named Garner Pavilion opened as the Women's Pavilion in 1954 adding 97 beds. In 1956 the Potter Pavilion added 122 beds, and

'Coca-Cola' art worth more

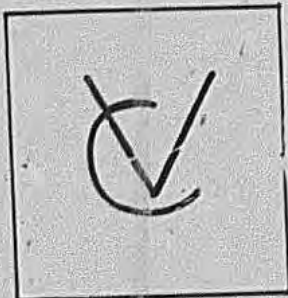

By James G. McCollam
Member, Antique
Appraisers Association of America

Q. This ornately decorated tin tray is marked on the back, "Vienna Art Plates, Pat. Feb. 21, 1905, Western Coca-Cola Bottling Co." I would appreciate your opinion as to value.

A. The Vienna Art Co. made advertising plates or trays for many companies, including Coca-Cola. They were made by a small company in Coshocton, Ohio, to imitate Royal Vienna porcelain plates.

Your tray is worth about $400. Plates made for companies other than Coca-Cola sell for as little as $50.

Q. This mark is on the bottom of a dark brown ceramic mug decorated with yellow chrysanthemums.

Can you tell me anything about its vintage and value?

A. Your mug was made by Charles Volkmar in Greenpoint, N.Y. His work was marked with his monogram from 1879 to 1898. Subsequently, the mark was "Volkmar," "Volkmar & Corv" and "Volkmar & Son." The factory was closed in 1911.

Your mug should be worth about $200.

Q. What can you tell me about Noritake china? I know it was made in Japan, but I would like to know who made it and if it is very expensive.

A. Porcelain marked "Noritake" — Made in Japan — was made by a group of factories controlled by the Morimura family. Early Noritake was made between 1921 and 1941. The pieces made after World War II are less valuable than Early Noritake.

The following prices are all for porcelain made between 1921 and 1941:

- Powder jar with figural cover — $200.
- Cup and saucer — $10 to $15.
- Nut bowl with squirrel — $100.
- Plates — $5 to $15.
- Marmalade jar — $45.
- Seven-inch vase 6-sided floral — $100.
- Teapot — $50.
- Art Deco cologne bottle — $150.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and $1 per item to James G. McCollam.

Our Children

Wives have their day to complain

By Willard Abraham
Ph.D.

This seems to be "Complaints-About-Husbands Day."

Our next column will turn the tables, and give some men a chance through their letters to share their frustrations concerning their wives. We're sharing these problems with you because of the involvement of their children.

Q. I'm writing to you because my husband is such a big baby, so maybe I should write to some other columnist who deals with adults, not with kids. But his silliness affects my kids, so here goes.

It's all because he never had a pet dog, and now he wants one. The related problem is that our little boy (he's 4) is allergic to dog's hair, sneezing like crazy when he is around dogs.

My husband's comeback is that our boy will get used to it. Mine is that I don't want to take a chance with our son's health.

It may not sound like it, but I really do love my husband and want him to be happy. So, play Solomon and tell me what to do.

A. More details about the allergy may be available from your physician. Does it apply to all dogs? To all animals?

With that information in hand you might try to arrive at a compromise, an appropriate pet for your husband (that your son and you may also enjoy), while retaining good health for your son.

Q. You'd think our home was an Army camp, the way my husband tries to run it! He has a schedule for each child (and for me, too), and it is posted regularly every Sunday for the following week.

I guess it wouldn't be so bad if they were at least involved in the planning, but he makes all the decisions by himself.

Our children are small (5 and 7 years old, both girls), and they can do some things around the house, like helping with the dishes or setting the table, but the tasks he assigns to them are way beyond what they are capable of.

"They'll learn," he says, but I still think they are too young to take out the garbage (which is sometimes too heavy for them) and work on lawn or weeding activities.

Can you give me any hints of how I can control him with the children?

A. Even with little children, a family meeting sometimes is helpful, but it sounds as though he may need more than that. He might have a basic misconception in two areas: understanding what children are capable of doing at various developmental levels and the ability to communicate and listen to other persons. Without those capabilities, the family meeting might be premature.

A starting point may be to locate a family counselor with whom the two of you can meet. A recommendation can perhaps be obtained through your local school, or the psychology or education departments of a nearby college or university. He may be reluctant about taking this step, but the apparent unhappiness of your youngsters may be used to get him there.

The fact that he also assigns home duties to you without your input sounds as though you've let him do so for some years. You obviously agree that it is time to stop that practice. So, what are you waiting for?

Q. I'm almost a fanatic against having candy around the house, but my husband doesn't see any harm in it.

I know it's not good for children (or adults either, for that matter). Still, he persists in bringing it home for me or them as gifts, knowing that I'm so opposed to it.

It's not that he is such a glutton for it himself. In fact, he seldom takes a piece. I guess it is just that he thinks he is being a good father and husband by being so "considerate."

A. Although this is basically a column related to children, your situation represents something pretty childish, so let's get at it.

Plenty of materials in print (like the book "Sugar Blues") support your point of view. So do most physicians; the one who helps your family may be able to get through to your husband.

How about suggesting other presents as substitutes for the candy? Books, games, clothing or anything else that isn't detrimental to health may be possibilities.

With all that has been written and said in recent years about the importance of diet and nutrition, it is a pretty rare mature adult who isn't aware of the need for careful food consumption. Unfortunately your husband seems to be among those few.

Medicare pays toward prescribed equipment

Q. Does Medicare pay for the rental of a wheelchair? — P.L.

A. Yes, Medicare can help pay for durable medical equipment such as wheelchairs, hospital beds, oxygen equipment, home dialysis systems and other medically necessary equipment that your doctor prescribes for use in your home.

Reimbursement will be based on the Medicare carrier's determination of the more economical method of payment, either rental or purchase.

See your local Social Security office for additional information.

Q. I just came across some doctor bills dated December 1983 that my father had paid, and tucked away in a drawer. I asked him if he had filed a claim with Medicare. He had not.

Is it too late to submit a medical insurance claim? — G.S.

A. For medical insurance to make payments on your claims you must send in your claim within certain time limits. You always have at least 15 months to submit claims.

For services received between Oct. 1, 1983, and Sept. 30, 1984, the claim must be submitted by Dec. 31, 1985.

Q. I have been receiving Social Security disability checks for the past two years. I would like to try to work again but how would that affect my checks? — F.R.

A. Most people receiving disability benefits can have a trial work period. You can continue to receive full benefits for up to nine months while testing your ability to work (no matter how much you earn).

You must notify Social Security as soon as you begin working no matter how little you earn.

Q. What are HMOs, which are now covered under Medicare? How do they work? — A.O.M.

A. An HMO or Health Maintenance Organization is a type of prepayment health plan that offers comprehensive care in return for a set prepaid fee.

Generally, in a prepayment health plan each member pays regular premiums to the plan and can receive health services the plan provides, whenever he or she needs them, without additional charges.

In some plans, small charges are made for certain services, such as drugs or home visits.

Gregory Museum Reopens To Visitors

By Richard Evers

It was like old times in Hicksville this past Sunday. The community's best known cultural attraction, the Gregory Museum, Long Island Earth Science Center "came back to life" from the fire which closed the museum this summer, on June 1.

To the delight of passersby who saw the familiar large "Open Today" sign on the museum front lawn and autos parked in the driveway, the Gregory staff was on hand to greet a number of visitors in their customary attentive and congenial fashion.

It was obvious to visitors that the museum and its headquarters in the historic Heitz Place Courthouse are by no means recovered from the dangerous electrical fire which could have wiped out the Hicksville landmark building and its notable nature collections. Much professional rewiring, carpentry and cleaning remains to be done before things are back to normal for the coming Fall stream of school guided tours.

But the staff, led by the indomitable Hugh Conover, Museum Building Co-chairman; Tom Dauni, the Curator, and community youth volunteers under the Direction of Harry Chandler, Executive Director, had the premises somewhat cleaned up last week, in time for Sunday visitors.

It is the intention of the Gregory Museum's Board of Trustees under its President Douglas Uzakewicz to restore service to the public, regardless of some delay in the museum's insurance settlement. As it is, the trustees have been increasingly concerned over the museum's inability to accommodate the many tourists and local visitors who usually visit the museum during the summer vacation months. The trustees are expected to announce shortly a regular schedule of hours for daily and weekend visitors, for the rest of the summer.

It's Hugh Conover, museum building committee co-chairman and the leader of the Hicksville Fire Department Junior Firemen removing Plywood covering the fire-damaged entranceway so clean-up efforts assisted by youth volunteers, could proceed for the Museum's reopening, the next day.

The outstanding Long Island Earth Science Museum was open to the public again, six weeks after a fire threatened its home the historic courthouse at Heitz Place.

Clean-up efforts continue at the Hicksville Gregory Museum. Here, carpenter Mike Lipman and Hugh Conover, Museum Trustee (in the front doorway) remove debris resulting from a fire which threatened the Museum on June 1, following a power 'black out' in the Heitz Place neighborhood.

The "shutters came off" at part of the Gregory Museum this past Saturday as leaders of the popular Hicksville Earth Science Center made efforts to open the museum exhibits for public visitors on Sunday, July 21. Carpenter Mike Lipman was part of a group of museum staffers, Junior Fire Department volunteers and trustees who labored to reopen the museum closed since a fire on June 1.

brought the bed complement to 413.

However, the opening of the Hoag Pavilion in 1975 added a combination of intensive special care, operating suites and general beds bringing total complement to 533, and placing the hospital in the top 6% in size in the country. The Hoag Pavilion construction also initiated a program of modernization to bring certain critical facilities current with expanding medical technology which, in turn, was required by the demands of our medical education programs and by the changing needs of its community.

Nassau Hospital has been deeply involved in graduate medical education for several decades. It is a major teaching affiliate of the Medical School of the State University of New York at Stony Brook and enjoys many other cooperative arrangements for teaching purposes. This dedication to medical education is an integral part of the complexion of the hospital and that physicians are expected to master and employ in their own medical practices after graduation.

The hospital's medical education department expanded rapidly in 1978 when Dr. John Aloia, Chairman of the Department of Medicine, joined the staff. His efforts were recognized in 1984 by the State University of New York when he was named Associate Dean of Medicine at the Stony Brook University School of Medicine. Today the hospital trains more than 100 residents each year and is a clinical setting for many medical school and nursing school students.

In 1973 Nassau Hospital began to perform total hip replacements. The late Dr. Richard Gilbert, an orthopedist who had been on staff for many years, developed a new bi-polar prosthesis that greatly improved the procedure. The new prosthesis received nation-wide acceptance.

Nassau was the first Long Island hospital to offer same day surgery, beginning in 1974 and in 1975 was the first hospital in New York State to self-insure.

Research by Drs. Perry Mandel and Bruce Saxe in Hodgkins Disease won national acclaim in 1977. In the same year a perinatologist and a neonatologist were added to the staff. In 1981 a new $1 million maternal/child care wing was opened. Newborns are transferred to the neonatal intensive care unit in the Maternal Child Care Center when necessary. Modern diagnostic and treatment facilities are also available for high risk mothers.

A great variety of new and expanded medical programs have recently been made available to patients. The hospital is able to provide complete care for any type of illness or disease.

It has been named a community center for cancer treatment by the National Cancer Institute, which enables it to provide the latest in research developments to area patients. A new Sleep Disorders Center has been opened - the only one on Long Island - certified by the Association of Sleep Disorders Centers. The Department of Cardiology provides, in addition to open heart surgery, treatment for heart attack victims that minimizes or eliminates permanent damage to the heart muscle. Early this year, the hospital became the first on Long Island to perform cardiac biopsies on patients with cardiomyopathy which opens up new areas of treatment. Last year, the dialysis department doubled in size to 16 chairs and extended the number of hours that treatments are available.

The hospital has been awarded a 3/4 million dollar grant to continue its research on Osteoporosis, a painful degenerative bone disease that afflicts one out of four post menopausal women.

Other research is underway in the hospital involving pulmonary, respiratory, and cardiac diagnostic and treatment care. An alcoholism detoxification center was opened recently in conjunction with a department that offers complete alcoholism services. The Home Care Department, opened two years ago, continues to grow rapidly, helping to offset the nursing home shortage on Long Island and to decrease the cost of medical care to patients.

Mike Parella added 2 RBI's that contributed to HBA's hitting attack.

Fine plays in the infield by Steven Forey third base and Chris McAuley at first. John Davidson chased down a hard hit line drive in deep left center-field that had homer written all over it. John Patricia, Steven Forey and Joe Jacobs' credits include the "Katerakill Spring Rush", and Wunderlich has completed the famous "Ironman Triathlon" in Hawaii. Northport was Ackley's first triathlon, but she finished strongly and is looking ahead to many more endurance events.

Callers Divided In How Much Information Due On President

Most callers to Input believe that the public has the right to know the details of a President's illness but there is a difference of opinion on exactly what details should be made public in answer to this question: "Does the public have the right to know all of the details of a President's illness?" Here are some of the answers:

IMPORTANT TO KNOW

Yes, I believe that the public has to know when a catastrophic illness hits the President. It is important so that the government can go right on and that those who are empowered to take over have a chance to be ready and if it is a long term illness that they can have a hand in the decisions that are made each day. There is no question on that in my mind. G.R.

NO SIDE SHOWS

The public has the right to know of the illness of a President but the media do not have the right to make a side show out of it. In the case of Pres. Reagan's illness some of the TV and at least one newspaper tried to make it into a big sensational story by inferring that the doctors were covering up something and that the President was in worse condition than was announced. The President has the right to some comfort and speculating on just how long he will live is not a necessary part of a right to know. L.F.

RE-ELECTED

The public should know about the President's illness but it is not so important since he has been re-elected. If there was something held back before the Election then that is wrong. We have doctor's words that Reagan was in good health before the election. But apparently there was something there that doctors were unable to find. There is little use in speculating on that because doctors do not know everything particularly when it comes to cancer. D.E.

SOMEWHAT UNCLEAR

The public does have the right to know and in this case the doctors seemed a bit unclear at first what the trouble was. The President was undergoing a serious operation and we were told it was only minor. I think we should have had better information than that. Of course if the President surmised a problem he probably did tip off the V. Pres. and others that they would have to carry on. J.W.

FOR FREEDOM

It is without question that in this era of fast moving life situations that the public should not be kept in the dark about the condition of a President. In the past history of the country the public knew very little about the physical condition of Presidents but that was before we had weapons that could invade countries in a matter of hours. I think that some reporters went overboard in exaggerating every thing they wanted to in order to get a story but in our belief in freedom of the press this will always be true. J.F.

NOT EVERYTHING

I think people should know that the President is ill but I don't think they have to give every detail. Every person's illness is a private thing. It really doesn't have anything to do with the country's welfare because Congress and the Representatives really run the country. He's supposed to be the head but he needs their approval on everything. So he deserves some privacy for himself and his family. A.B.

DEGREE OF DISCLOSURE

I think there is a limit as to the degree of disclosure a President should provide about his health. If he feels all right, can think clearly and believes in his own heart that he can faithfully fulfill the requirements of his office, why should it be a mandate that the world be told in detail about the opinions of the medical profession as to his health good or bad and with all the variants depending upon the source. We know all too well from recent experiences in other arenas of the degree to which the media will employ, slant or enlarge upon items of news, especially sensational news, which the public and officialdom at home and abroad will grasp, absorb and disgorge in ways which reflect their own fears, wishes and just plain inaccuracies in the retelling. No, I don't feel the public has a right to know but I do believe that when it is abundantly clear to the members of the President's Cabinet that his physical or mental health has clearly deteriorated to the point of adversely affecting his judgement, it is their joint responsibility to make it known and to take action as required by law. P.G.S.

PAST ISSUES

DOONESBURY OKAY

There's nothing wrong with political cartoons or any strip making humorous approaches to a political matter. The fact is that everyone talks about politics once in a while. Some people take it seriously and some consider it humorous. I don't really think Gary Trudeau is expressing his own opinions. G.T.

ON EDITORIAL PAGE

It took me a long time to make my decision on whether comics should express political views. I feel that most comics have always been political. Tailspin Tommy, Smilin Jack and Steve Canyon have always been lobbies in the past for the airplane industry, test pilots and so forth. Beetle Bally is U.S. Army oriented. Remember Tilly the Toiler that was the working girl versus the boss. What about Dagwood (which is still around) Dagwood and Blondie it's the working guy and family versus the boss. Remember Harold Teen - he was the voice of youth speaking out. Then there is Doonesbury which is quite different. Doonesbury, I think, because it is more oriented towards a specific way of thinking and I believe, because of that, it should be on the editorial page with the other cartoons that have something to do with current events. H.S.

DISCOVERY

In Memory Of A Classmate

By Robert Ricken

I first learned that George Gales had died when one of his friends came to me to help her understand. As I cried with her I realized there were no words to comfort our grief. We walked from the school to her church and her sobs subsided as we held wet hands and stared at the memorial candles.

When we returned to the school, we discovered dozens of his friends seeking solace from a staff equally affected by the tragedy. We opened up the faculty room to them and somehow huddled together we regained our equilibrium if not our understanding. In soothing the children we calmed ourselves.

The funeral was painful, especially to those young people confronting the death of a peer for the first time. Boys and girls cried unashamedly and it was evident that only time would provide some perspective. We were to discover, however, that the pain of George's death would not ease and the young people of Mineola hung on to his memory with an intense sense of determination and loyalty.

The Yearbook words were poignantly true:

On January 21, 1972 a tremendous void was left in the lives of all who knew George Gales. He was a multi-talented individual. He was a devoted son. He was President of the Class of '72 in his sophomore year. He was a varsity wrestler. He was voted Most Popular Senior Boy and Most Likely to Succeed by his classmates. He was a friendly, personable young man who liked to talk a lot. He was a lover of chocolate chip pancakes and his mother's baked spaghetti. He was a gentle and compassionate human being whose distinctive laughter always made us laugh, too, in spite of ourselves. He was fond of Massachusetts. He was the hard-working Editor-in-Chief of "Signet '72" who diligently supervised the production of over half of this yearbook. Yes, George was all of these and more. In short, he was someone with everything going for him, with everything to live for who was taken from the world at the age of eighteen.

We, the editors and advisors of "Signet '72", who knew him well and miss him deeply would like to dedicate this yearbook to George Alfred Gales, our Editor-in-Chief.

The collective grief was inevitably translated to action and a scholarship was set up in his name at both the Middle School and High School. Here is where most stories end. With the passing years there are fewer people who know the person whose memory is being honored. This is the reason why some scholarships are set up for a specific period of time. In George's case his friends were determined for this never to occur.

A few years ago his classmates learned that the scholarship fund was almost depleted. Although they were intimately involved in their own careers and life's struggles, these thirty-year-olds organized a committee whose sole purpose was to keep the flickering memory of George Gales alive in their alma mater and home town. What they accomplished was to assure that their classmate's name and deeds would be remembered in perpetuity.

A dance was held and hundreds of the 1972 graduates attended with friends and relatives. Graduates who were now doctors, police officers, lawyers, letter-carriers and homemakers united to renew acquaintances and to honor their friend. The thousands of dollars which were raised were used to purchase a "C.D." and thus the George Gales Memorial Scholarship will forever be one highlight of the Mineola School's Awards Assembly.

In leaving the dance that night the deed comforted us all. We thought of George and could even smile knowing that his award would always bring deserving young people pride, joy and a wonderful role model to emulate. We still love you George!

There are people being honored at Awards Assemblies throughout Long Island. Most awards are dedicated to those whose memories we cherish.

We hope that George's story helps some of us to remember a favorite friend, child or teacher.

HIGH PRAISES

Recently we had occasion to celebrate our mother's 80th birthday with a party at Will Rueck's on Jericho Turnpike, in New Hyde Park. Children, grandchildren and great grandchildren attended, coming from New York City, Long Island, Pennsylvania and even Switzerland. Everyone had such a wonderful time that we are still having praises for Willy Rueck's. Accommodations were great, the food excellent and the service exceptional. We are already making plans for our next gathering and suggest that any one who has a special event coming up, do the same. E.S.

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED
I would heartily recommend King's Garden Chinese Restaurant in West Hempstead for an extraordinary oriental dinner. My friend and I enjoyed a delectable dinner that was truly a gustatory delight. King's Garden specializes in Hunan, Mandarin and Szechuan cuisine. The owners, Jenny and William, have a long background in preparing and serving superb Chinese cuisine. William attended a well-known school in Hong Kong and graduated with honors while Jenny graduated with a degree in restaurant management. This couple truly takes pride in serving authentic Chinese food. I had Orange Beef, consisting of sliced filet of beef, sauteed till crisp and served with a hot and sweet preserved orange sauce. My partner's dinner was equally superb, called Seafood Delight, a dish made of jumbo shrimp, scallops, crabmeat and lobster mixed with garden vegetables in a delicate sauce. For dessert we had fried ice cream. Need I add that this was no ordinary oriental dining experience? The restaurant has been newly decorated and I enthusiastically recommend this restaurant. Do try something different!

FINE MEAL
 Last week we went to the LaCisterna restaurant in Mineola and were delighted with the meal.

The LaCisterna is a beautifully decorated restaurant with a fine large dining room set in a restful and inviting style. The service is good and the food is well worth a return visit.

We had veal marsala for one dinner and bass for the other. The veal was fresh and tender and the marsala sauce was exceptionally well done. The bass was fresh and flavorful. Starting off the meal we had salad and soup which also rated high. We were very satisfied with the visit and want to recommend it to your readers.

DINING GUIDE

READER RATINGS

Q. Who is served first at table and when is the proper time to begin eating? F.G.P.

A. The hostess is not served first unless she is the only lady at the table or is alone with her husband and children. If Grandmother or even a young girl guest is present, the dishes are first presented to her after inspection by the hostess. When the hostess is serving from in front of her place, with or without aid of a servant, she is served next to last and her husband last. For her to serve herself earlier will mean her food will be cold and her filled plate in the way.

After several people have been served, urged by the hostess, guests begin eating so their food will not be cold. And, except at breakfast, the polite husband waits until his wife has been served before beginning to eat.

Q. Is it considered bad manners to take anything to drink to your lips while there is still food in your mouth? B.C.J.

A. Yes, because this may leave particles of food in the beverage or leave an unattractive smear on the glass. Your mouth should be empty before you take anything to drink. Certainly you should avoid the effect of "washing down" food that is already in your mouth. It is amazing how many people are guilty of this breach of etiquette.

Q. How do you get stray bits of food on a plate onto your fork? H.C.

A. A combination of European and American style eating is very usual among sophisticated people and makes it easy for a diner to retrieve skiddy bits of food-like peas-on his plate by using his knife in his left hand as a pusher. But the completely American system is to use a bit of bread as a pusher. One never uses the fingers for this purpose.

reader ratings

If you have Questions about etiquette or dining out you may call them in to We 1-0027 and we will find the answer.

Q. When a man and woman come into a restaurant, who asks for the table? C.H.

A. Traditionally the man asked for the table and talked to the head waiter, then the woman went first following the head waiter. Presently people who are not traditionalists where the woman is the host for the evening, she could ask for the table particularly if a reservation was in her name. The seating order is still the same with the woman going first.

Q. It is often confusing in restaurants to know whether to pay the waiter or to pay on the way out. What is the rule? D.C.

A. There is no rule of etiquette because each restaurant determines its own system. But generally the check will say, "Please pay server," or "Please pay cashier." When in doubt it is never out of order to ask the waiter.

How-to party tips let hosts relax, too

By Linda Susan Dudley

The days are long, the kids are out of school and the living is easy — it's outdoor party time.

Party givers want to cast off the formal wear and cocktail dresses in favor of more casual summer attire yet maintain those good vibrations in home entertaining.

But anyone who's ever stumbled around on a dark patio trying to figure out the contents of foam containers plopped on a picnic table knows that some hosts can use a little help.

Professional party planners — the caterers — say that's because of a mixture of inexperience and something akin to party phobia.

A veteran of the catering business, L. Michael Johns, has made a trademark out of his dazzling spectacle parties.

"People expect parties to have something special now," Johns said. "We've been exposed to too many visuals in stores, restaurants and elsewhere, and these all create a mood. Guests want all types of sensory impact. We're using a lot of neon and mirrors now and even spraying fragrance enhancer on flower arrangements if the theme calls for it. It can be like stepping into a garden."

Suggested Johns:
— Hosts tend to under buy wine, ice and cocktail napkins. Today's host can plan to serve wine three times as often as a cocktail at a full-service bar.

"I suggest 1½ pounds of ice per person. Other people say 1 pound, but some will melt and extra ice is always needed to cool wine and beer," Johns said.

Believe it or not, Johns says party givers need 10 cocktail napkins per person. Calculate three drinks per person and seven bites of food per person. And often people pick up more than one napkin to carry under a glass.

— When giving an outdoor party, the inclination might be to water the lawn the night before the event for a fresh and green look.

"Don't water," is Johns' suggestion. Women's high heels will sink right into the ground, as will the legs of heavy-laden buffet tables. Johns said he tells party hosts not to water the lawn for 48 hours before the day of the event.

— Don't put the food all in one place; spread it out among what caterers call food stations. This strategy promotes mingling.

— Consider the time of day of the party; don't serve heavy foods at 2 or 3 in the afternoon, for example.

— Serve some non-alcoholic beverages. The new trendy flavored waters are very popular with guests.

Here are some recipes that will add casual class to any party menu:

CHICKEN AND APRICOT SALAD

- ¾ cup plain yogurt
- ¼ cup safflower mayonnaise
- ¼ cup sour cream
- ¼ cup whole milk
- 2 tps. honey mustard
- 1 tbs. lemon juice
- 1¼ cups dried apricots, diced
- 4 cups chicken, poached or sauteed in butter, lemon and white wine, skinned, boned and pulled into pieces
- 1½ cups chopped pimiento
- 1 cup chopped celery
- ¼ cup minced green onion (green tops only)

Combine yogurt, mayonnaise, sour cream, milk, mustard and lemon juice in mixing bowl until well blended. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Chill at least 2 hours or overnight before serving.

Makes 8 servings.
(Note: Mayonnaise dishes need to be kept chilled at all times to prevent spoilage.)

SUMMER FRUIT COMPOTE WITH CURACAO BERRY SAUCE

- 4 cups fresh fruit (blueberries, strawberries, peaches, papaya, cherries, etc.), peeled, pitted and cut into chunks

Sauce:
2 cups fresh berries (raspberries)

KING'S GARDEN

Chinese Restaurant Specializing in Mandarin, Szechuan and Hunan Cuisine

Grand Re-Opening

Complimentary Glass of Wine or Mixed Drink With Dinner Until July 27

Almost everyone, at one time or another, has had Chinese Food and after a while it all begins to taste the same. It's hard to find a Chinese restaurant with a difference. Allow me to introduce you to King's Garden, 190 Hempstead Tpke., West Hempstead, for that difference.

Writing this article comes easy for me since, as a lover of fine Chinese food, I have been an extremely satisfied customer of King's Garden since its opening.

Owned by Jenny and William, with both having a long background in preparing and serving superb Chinese cuisine. William attended a well-known school in Hong Kong and graduated with honors. Jenny also attended school in Hong Kong graduating with a degree in restaurant management. After arriving here on the Island, William worked as a chef in many popular restaurants.

King's Garden is set apart from most Chinese restaurants in decor. Imagine enjoying delicious Chinese delicacies with the sound of water trickling down a stone wall. William and Jenny also pride themselves with authentic taste in all the foods they prepare. You can enjoy hot and cold appetizers, soups and chef's specials. "We specialize in Hunan and Szechuan style cooking," Jenny states. "Shanghai Duck is William's specialty, along with Spicy King's Shrimp and Hong Kong Scallops." To mention a few of the unique selections on the menu. Special family dinners start at just $6.95 per person and luncheon specials are a real treat at $3.95 on Monday through Friday, served from 11:30 to 3:00. Those specials include soup, entree and dessert. For dessert, Jenny adds, we have the very popular Fried Ice Cream.

The kitchen is clean and well-staffed to minimize waiting. A vast take-out menu is available for those who can't for some reason dine out.

Jenny says, "People keep returning because of the unique items offered and the large portions served." One of my own all-time favorites on the take-out menu is the Shrimp and Broccoli Combo with fried rice and egg roll. The shrimp is tender, the broccoli always fresh and crisp and the fried rice and egg roll are never greasy.

Small parties for 20 to 30 people are available in a private area with King's Garden. All major credit cards are honored.

King's Garden is opened from 11:30 to 10, Monday through Thursday and 11:30 to 11 on Friday and Saturday, and from 1:00 to 10 on Sunday. They can be reached at 292-1650. Plenty of parking is available in the rear.

berries, strawberries, etc., to puree)
 ½ cup granulated sugar
 ½ cup water
 2 oz. Curacao liqueur or to taste
 Tangelo zest to taste

Prepare sauce by pressing 2 cups fresh berries through fine sieve and set aside. Bring sugar and water to boil and then simmer 4 to 6 minutes until syrup forms. Add sieved berries and flavor with Curacao. Chill separately.

Just before serving, mix sauce with fruit or pour over fruit chunks and garnish with tangelo zest (strips of outer rind).
 Makes 6 servings.

FRENCH MUSHROOM BREAD

Mushroom Duxelle:
 6 ozs. (or ¾ cup) mushrooms, cleaned and finely minced
 ½ medium onion, chopped
 2 whole shallots, chopped
 Salt, pepper and nutmeg to taste
 1 tbsp. butter or margarine

Place mushrooms in clean cloth and twist to remove almost all moisture. In small pan, saute mushrooms and onion in butter until limp. Add shallots, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Turn heat to high and cook until done, stirring constantly. Remove to small dish, cover with butter and waxed paper and refrigerate.

French bread:
 6 cups sifted flour
 ¾ cup milk
 3¼ ozs. butter
 ¾ oz. yeast
 1 tbsp. salt

Combine all ingredients in large mixing bowl and knead until all ingredients are mixed and no residue is left on bowl. Roll out dough on floured board and cut into strips 6 inches by 14 inches by ¾ inches thick. Cover strips and let rise for 2 hours. Uncover and press down in kneading action. Spoon mushroom mixture into center of bread dough, continuing for almost the full length of the dough. Roll up bread dough, starting with one long side. Rub seam with hot water to moisten and seal. Glaze top with egg wash and let rise 1 hour. Bake in 400 F oven 20 to 25 minutes. Cool. Before serving, slice into 1-inch thick slices.

Makes 6 servings.

BLACK RASPBERRY SPRITZER

1 oz. black raspberry-flavored liqueur (or other fruit-flavored liqueur)
 1¼ ozs. white wine
 1 tbsp. fresh lemon juice
 Club soda or Seltzer water (salt-free preferred) to fill
 Twist of lemon or black raspberry garnish

In tall glass, combine liqueur, wine and lemon juice with ice cubes. Fill glass with sparkling water and garnish.
 Makes 1 drink.

with just the right amount of tartness. Strawberry Pina Coladas, made with fresh pineapple and ripe strawberries, are a delicious blend of summery fruit flavors. Like many tropical drinks, both of these are deceptively innocent-tasting, but pack a punch — so don't emulate the excesses of the New Orleans planters when you mix up a batch.

FROZEN MANGO DAIQUIRIS

1 large, ripe mango, peeled and pitted
 1 tbsp. frozen limeade
 6 ozs. rum
 10-12 ice cubes

In blender, combine mango, limeade and rum, and 4 to 6 ice cubes, and pulse until ice is pulverized. Add rest of ice cubes and pulse until daiquiris are thick, smooth, frozen consistency. If consistency is too thin, add more ice and blend again.

Options:

— Add 10 to 12 ripe strawberries to make Mango-Strawberry Daiquiris, or:

— After daiquiris are blended, top each with ½ teaspoon grenadine and stir gently, just once, so that grenadine forms swirling pattern on top of each drink, or:

— Serve each drink with small lime wedge on side of glass, for added tartness if desired.
 Makes 3 to 4 drinks.

Tropical drinks to cool you

By Olivia and Paul Bensen

Since the days when European settlers first staked out their claims in tropical parts of the globe, cooling hot-weather drinks, often containing rum or gin, have been a part of living in the tropics.

The custom still thrives today, as a visit to any open-air beach-front bar will quickly confirm. Planters in Brazil probably never dreamed of such exotic concoctions as Kahlua Coladas or Rum Almond Joys, but they swore by the cooling and soothing qualities of their punches and fizzes.

Cooling summer beverages also are a long-standing tradition in New Orleans, the home of two of our drink recipes for today. Sazerac, one of the most famous New Orleans drinks, originated in the Vieux Carre. Henry Ramos arrived in New Orleans in 1888 and bought the Imperial Cabinet Saloon. His establishment soon became famous for its gin fizzes. The drink, as Ramos prepared it, required lengthy shaking, and the Imperial Cabinet employed a small army of young boys who did nothing but shake the fizzes.

It must have been hard to get much work accomplished during hot spells in New Orleans, if one is to believe the writer Nathaniel Parker Willis, who wrote from that city in 1852, "The planter 'takes a drink' a dozen times in the forenoon. ... It is with him a matter of etiquette. Wherever he meets friend or acquaintance, there is a drinking saloon nearby — and he would feel as much at a loss to exchange the compliments of the day, without stepping in to do it over a glass, as to bow to a lady without his hat, or manage an interview without mention of health or weather."

Daiquiris and Pina Coladas have become hot-weather favorites in this country in the last several years, and among today's drink recipes are two versions that we often serve to friends on dog-day afternoons. Mango Daiquiris are very refreshing,

Microwave Magic

Remember rosemary

"Parsley, sage, rosemary and thyme ... remember me to the one who lives there. She once was a true love of mine."

Remember the words of the old Simon and Garfunkel tune? They're particularly apt since, as Ophelia told Hamlet, "There's rosemary. That's for remembrance."

Rosemary has been symbolic of lovers' fidelity since the days of ancient Rome. And it was once a tradition in England to present the bridegroom with a bouquet of the herb on his wedding day, to ensure faithful and enduring love.

If you've forgotten to add a jar of rosemary to your spice rack, why not remember it next time you're at the market? You'll find so many unexpected uses for this sweetly fragrant herb, you may wonder how you did without it.

Rosemary is an evergreen, a member of the mint family. Its leaves are grayish-green and pointed like pine needles; with a flavor reminiscent of mint. Excellent with lamb, pork, chicken and seafood, it's an herb to use sparingly — but often.

A standard ingredient in poultry stuffings, rosemary also is found typically in commercial "Italian seasoning" blends, and in wine marinades for meats. Try infusing one-half teaspoon of dried rosemary in a cup of boiling water for a tangy, fresh-tasting herbal tea.

Zucchini, spinach, green beans, peas and potatoes all can benefit from a pinch of rosemary.

Available fresh or dried (whole leaf or ground), this herb of remembrance and true love adds a hint of minty-sweet flavor to the following microwave recipes.

HERBED LAMB STEW

- 1 1/2 lbs. boneless lamb
- 2 medium-size onions, sliced
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 cup flour
- 2 cups water
- 1/2 cup tomato paste
- 1 tsp. instant chicken bouillon
- 1/2 tsp. crushed rosemary
- 1/4 tsp. each salt and pepper
- 1/2 cup frozen peas

In 2-quart glass casserole combine lamb, onions, and garlic. Sprinkle flour over top and toss gently to coat.

Combine water, tomato paste, bouillon and seasonings; blend thoroughly. Pour over lamb mixture.

Cover and microwave on HIGH (100 percent power) 5 minutes. Stir. Reduce setting to MEDIUM (50 percent power), and continue cooking 30 to 35 minutes, stirring every 10 minutes, until meat is tender.

Stir in peas and microwave 5 minutes longer. Let stand, covered, several minutes before serving.

SAVORY SAUCE PORK

- 2 tbsps. butter or margarine
- 1 lb. boneless pork, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1/4 tsp. each garlic salt and pepper
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup red wine
- 1/2 tsp. crushed rosemary
- Chopped fresh parsley (for garnish)

Place butter in 1 1/2-quart glass casserole and microwave 45 seconds to 1 minute, until melted.

Place pork in bag with flour, garlic salt and pepper. Shake well to coat meat.

Turn meat into casserole and microwave, uncovered, 5 minutes; stir. Microwave 4 minutes longer.

Combine sour cream, water, wine and rosemary; pour over meat. Cover and microwave 10 to 13 minutes, stirring after 6 minutes, until meat is tender. Let stand, covered, 3 to 4 minutes.

Serve over hot cooked rice or noodles, and garnish with chopped fresh parsley.

Serves 4.

CHEDDAR ZUCCHINI CUSTARD

- 5 cups shredded fresh zucchini, packed
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
- 1/2 tsp. each garlic powder, pepper and crushed rosemary
- 3 tbsps. chopped fresh parsley
- 1/4 cup commercial biscuit mix
- 4 eggs, well beaten
- 2 tbsps. butter or margarine
- Dash paprika

Place zucchini in large bowl, sprinkle with salt, and set aside for 1 hour. Turn into colander and press out liquid.

Return zucchini to bowl and add cheese, garlic powder, pepper, rosemary, parsley, biscuit mix and eggs. Blend thoroughly.

Place butter in shallow 10-inch glass baking dish and microwave 30 to 45 seconds, until melted. Spread zucchini mixture evenly in dish and microwave, uncovered, 5 minutes.

Stir, sprinkle lightly with paprika, and microwave 5 minutes longer. Let stand 3 to 5 minutes before serving.

Serves 4 to 6.

Installing hardwood floor over cement

Q. Several years ago we had a hardwood floor installed in our kitchen. It was secured with adhesive to the cement slab. Since its installation there has been ever-increasing lifting which results in a popping noise when the floor is walked across.

We have tried putting cement nails into the floor with little effect. Except for the obvious solution of relaying the floor, have you any suggestions to remedy this problem?

A. Hardwood floors should not be laid directly on a concrete slab. There is a special procedure that is required for this type of installation. It is very likely the correct procedure was not followed in your case.

The only permanent solution to your problem would be removal of the present flooring and replacement following the correct procedure.

A five-step procedure recommended by the National Oak Floor Manufacturers Association calls for first applying a primer to the concrete surface, followed by application of an asphalt mastic adhesive in rows 2 inches wide at 16-inch intervals.

This step is followed by the installation of wood sleepers, 1 inch by 2 inches. These should be treated with wood preservative prior to installation. Imbed strips (sleepers) in adhesive and also secure them to the slab with 1½-inch concrete nails (sink nails approximately every 24 inches along sleeper to secure). Sleepers should be random lengths, laid end to end with slight spaces between ends; not butted tightly together.

After all sleepers have been installed, .004 polyethylene film should be laid over the first course of sleepers. Join polyethylene sheets by lapping edges over sleepers.

A top layer of sleepers (1-by-2s, which do not have to be preservative treated) should be nailed with 4d nails, 16 to 24 inches apart. Nails should go through the top sleeper and the polyethylene into the bottom sleeper. Now you are ready to install the wood flooring at right angles to sleepers by blind nailing to each sleeper, driving at an angle of approximately 50 degrees. Nails should be threaded or screw type, cut nail or barbed fastener. No two adjoining floor strips shall break joints in same sleeper space. Each strip should bear on at least one sleeper.

Provide a minimum of ½-inch clearance between flooring and wall to allow for expansion of wood.

Q. The rubber mats I used under throw rugs, to keep them from slipping, deteriorated and stuck to the floor. Is there any way I can remove this rubber without hurting the finish on the oak flooring?

A. You can try cleaning the area with naphtha using a fine grade steel wool. This should not ruin the finish on your hardwood floors.

In the past, several of our readers have written recommending Spray & Wash for removal of bathtub decals. You might try this on your floors prior to the naphtha application.

If these methods are not successful, you can sand the area lightly. This should remove the residue, but you will have to re-touch the spots in the floors where you have sanded. A stain finish should be applied lightly, feathering out at the edges. Floor wax can be applied over the surface after it has thoroughly dried.

apply for Social Security if they cannot get a birth certificate. If no public record of birth or baptismal record made before age 5 exists other documents can be submitted as proof of age, but first it must be established that no public record of birth exists.

A person without a certified copy of their birth certificate should send to the Department of Health, Vital Statistics section in the Capitol of the state in which they were born to get a certified copy.

Usually this will cost $2 or $3. Social Security can provide the address of the office to contact and the current fee. If you were baptized before age 5 you can also request a record from the church which will be just as good for Social Security purposes.

If a person has tried to get a birth certificate and been told that no record exists they can use other documents to apply for Social Security. They should try to get the oldest records possible.

These might include a family Bible, school record, census, military record before age 31, marriage record before age 36 (if it shows their age), child's birth certificate before age 31, or a delayed birth certificate made before age 55.

Anyone can establish a delayed record of their birth with the state in which they were born by submitting a request with documents such as those mentioned and a fee of a few dollars. While Social Security can help send for these records it's a good idea to get them well in advance of filing for benefits so that the application is not held up.

TWEEN 12 & 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed.D.

Teens: Teen girls today say their teachers deserve plenty of gold stars for their efforts, according to the results of a Seventeen magazine survey published in the June issue.

The reader response survey reports that almost nine out of 10 teen girls (89 percent) rated their teachers as well-prepared for class. In addition, 85 percent said they would rather take a class "with a boring subject but a good teacher." An almost equal 88 percent said they would opt for a teacher who is "challenging but interesting" over one who is "easy but dull."

A large majority of teens also said they felt that good teachers should receive greater compensation for their skills. More than four out of five teen girls (82 percent) said exceptional teachers deserve higher salaries.

Students gave their teachers good grades on a personal level, as well. A majority of teen girls (55 percent) reported that they like most of their teachers. Also, 86 percent said they have, at some point, become friends with a teacher.

Despite the favorable ratings teen girls gave their teachers, many young women said they do not plan to pursue a career in education. Almost two-thirds (61 percent) of the teen girls said they would not want to become a teacher.

Teachers did get low marks in one area. Sixty-five percent of the teen girls said their teachers don't give them enough individual attention.

As a former teacher, it's nice to know that the students thought we were well-prepared and deserve higher salaries. Now, if only the boards of education can be convinced. ...

Dr. Wallace: I am 19 and was adopted by my loving parents when I was an infant.

I would like to find out who my birth mother is and, if possible, make contact with her. Even though I am not living at home, my parents agree that I should pursue this desire.

Can you please tell me where to start looking? — Connie

Connie: The Concerned United Birthparents is a nationwide (also Canada) support group intended to help birth parents find their children and adoptive children find their birth parents. This organization, started in 1977, is headquartered in Dover, N.H.

Please write to Concerned United Birthparents, 4784 Horseshoe

Lane, Riverside, Calif. 92509, for additional information, and for the address of the CUB branch nearest Naples.

Dr. Wallace: I am 13 and have a real big problem. When I was 9, my father (I loved him very much) died. Since then, my mom has had two more husbands. The first was meant to me but the second one, the one she is living with now, was meaner. He would slap me for no reason and twice he hit me with his fist. The first time he broke my tooth.

I now live with my aunt (Dad's sister) and uncle. They are very kind to me and treat me like their own. (They never had any children.)

My problem is that I miss my mom and sometimes I think that I would like to live with her again. I called her the other day and she told me to stay where I was because she was four months pregnant and wouldn't have time for me.

What should I do? — Betty

Betty: Stay with your aunt and uncle until both Mother and her husband want you to return. And be sure in your mind after you discuss it with them that your stepfather will never hit you again.

Dr. Wallace: The letter from the young man who sought a job as a grocery sacker, and whose mother felt it was beneath his dignity, prompted me to write. I hope she will rethink her position.

I have two sons, and when they were in high school they worked as grocery sackers. My husband and I are both professional people and we encouraged their employment. It was a wonderful learning experience and they were praised for their loyal work.

Now, some years later, one is a gifted surgeon and the other a very successful attorney with a prestigious law firm.

I truly hope this young man is allowed to take the job, for I know it will only be the start of many wonderful employment experiences. — Mother

Mother: You are 100 percent correct. And I'm also correct when I add that your sons' success can be directly related to loving, caring parents who wisely gave them direction.

Vitamins and sun help with sciatica

Dear John: This is in answer to Bernice A., who wanted some information about relief of sciatica.

A year ago my right leg ached so much from that nerve down my right leg at night, I could not rest because of the pain.

Then I remembered that when I was a young girl vitamin B-1 helped my nerve pains. I took the B-1 complex (potent) along with the regular multi-vitamin and within a month I was better.

I still take the B-1 complex along with the multi-vitamins (although not the potent B-1). It has helped me tremendously. — Elvera P.

Dear John: In reply to Bernice A. requesting a pain relieving formula, I suffered for several years from sciatica and lying in the sun helped some, but one day my sister suggested taking vitamins because she thought my system was lacking something.

After a painful bout whereby my children had to help me to bed, I started taking Nutri-Time vitamins and minerals, a dietary food supplement, six tablets a day. In two days I could jump out of bed instead of trying to carefully roll out.

Have been on these vitamins six or seven years and I have no problems with sciatica. Sometimes I forget to take them and I have even a slight tinge of it. I quickly go back to six a day. — Helen K.

Dear Readers: I can understand the B-1 and possibly the sun bathing, in moderation. Dermatologists say too much exposure to the sun can cause skin cancer.

An acquaintance who worked many years outdoors in a desert area developed skin cancer. He had to undergo a skin peeling of his face at the hands of his dermatologist.

Dear John: A reader recently asked you how to

JUNIOR EDITION

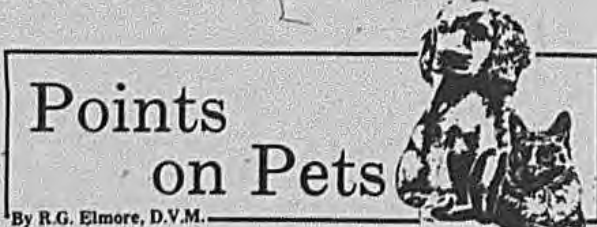

Aunt Tilly's Corner

This week my two young neighbors are preparing to go to camp. Their mother is almost as excited as they are. She is busily rounding up play clothes and any other articles the children may need. Included is a most important item: writing paper and stamped envelopes so Sheila and Billy will be able to send home frequent reports of their big adventure.

It is the first time the two will be away from home, except for a quick trip or two to Grandma's house in Rhode Island. However, I don't believe they will be homesick. They are bright, outgoing youngsters and I feel sure they will have a great time. If I know Mom, she will be hardly able to wait until the mailman arrives every morning. But I think she will also enjoy having a little extra time to herself in the next three weeks!

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are Danielle Okas and Kimberly Konzack. You'll be hearing from me soon.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. We recently acquired an 8-week-old Sheltie puppy. Her bloodlines are very good and we wish to eventually raise and sell puppies from her.

We do not know much regarding reproduction in dogs, but are aware that female dogs "spot." However, we do not know when to breed in relation to this. Your advice would be appreciated.

A. Dogs have very interesting reproductive cycles, very different from those of the other domestic species and humans.

Most dogs reach puberty between 6 and 24 months of age — the average age being 10 to 12 months. Puberty simply means the age at which the bitch is able to conceive and carry puppies or the age at which the male is able to cause bitches to become pregnant.

Once puberty is reached, most female dogs come into "estrus" (season) approximately every six months. Many of the small breeds of dogs cycle three or four times per year and many of the large breeds cycle only annually.

The cycles tend to occur less frequently as the bitch grows older. However, there is no definite end to cycling in the dog as there is in the human; most female dogs cycle throughout their lifetimes.

The period that most dog owners refer to as "in season" or "in heat" begins at the time bleeding or spotting from the vulva is first noticed and lasts for approximately 21 days. During the first half of this period, most bitches attract males but will not allow them to breed them. This period is termed "proestrus" and usually lasts nine to 10 days.

It is sometimes difficult to recognize spotting or bleeding in some very fastidious bitches. These dogs clean themselves so often that the blood or discharge is not noticed.

The estrus period, during which the bitch actually will allow the dog to breed her, lasts an average of nine days. Usually the bloody discharge seen during proestrus diminishes during this period.

Most authorities advise breeding bitches twice, once each on the 10th and 11th days after bleeding is first noticed or once each on the 11th and 12th days. If this does not prove successful, your veterinarian can determine more precisely when the optimum time for breeding is by examining vaginal smears taken daily during proestrus and estrus.

Your veterinarian can train you to make the vaginal smears at home. You would then need to take the smears to your veterinarian immediately for staining and interpretation.
