Enter Geneva Spofford, a blond goddess half his age but twice as mature, who is attracted to McGland more out of pity than passion. "Reuben, Reuben" is one of the most genuinely likeable sleepers to come along in years.

The Bethpage Public Library invites you to join Commander Pott, its madcap inventor, and his rambunctious family as they fly the English Channel, tangle with gangsters and monsters, and find danger lurking in many corners of the Continent. The film stars Dick Van Dyke and Sally Ann Howes and offers memorable music by the composers of "Mary Poppins".

Students Named Semi Finalists

The following local high school seniors have been designated Semi Finalists in this year's National Merit Program:

Plainview, J.F. Kennedy H.S.
Steven H. Cohen, Seth J. Hertz;
Plainview-Old Bethpage H.S.
David N. Gershfield

The following local high school seniors have been designated Semi Finalists in this year's National Merit Program:

Bethpage, Bethpage H.S.
Wesley T. O'Brien

National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC), which conducts the competition, publicly recognizes this select group of students in order to honor their academic talents and broaden their higher education opportunities. Semifinalists have completed the first step in the competition for about 5800 Merit Scholarship, worth nearly $21 million, to be awarded next spring.

More than one million juniors attending some 19,000 U.S. secondary schools entered the competition by taking a qualifying test, the PSAT/NMSQT, in October 1984. The top scorers in each state, or less than half of one percent of each state's high school senior class, are included in the nationwide group of Semifinalists.

To advance in the Merit Scholarship competition, a Semifinalist must qualify as a Finalist by documenting high academic performance, being recommended by the high school principal, confirming qualifying test performance on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, and submitting information about school and community activities, personal interests and goals. Over 90 percent (or 13,500; of the Semifinalists in this year's Merit Program are expected to meet the rigorous standards required to become Finalists, and over 40 percent of the distinguished Finalist will be awarded Merit Scholarships of three different types.

Every Finalist will be considered for one of 1800 single payment National Merit $2000 Scholarships that are allocated on a state representation basis, in proportion to the state's total of graduating seniors. Winners will be chosen by a selection committee of college admissions counselors who will judge which of the Finalists have the strongest combination of academic and extracurricular accomplishments. The "Nationals" awards are supported by grants to the Merit Program from sponsors in the business community, and by NMSC's own funds.

Only Finalists who meet preferential criteria specified by sponsors will compete for renewable Merit Scholarships of two types. Over 400 corporate and business organizations will underwrite nearly 1500 awards for Finalists who are children of employees, residents of areas a company serves or Finalists with career goals a sponsor wishes to encourage. A corporate-sponsored four year Merit Scholarship can range in value from $500 to $4000 for each college undergraduate year.

Approximately 2500 other renewable Merit Scholarships will be sponsored by some 200 colleges and universities. Only Finalists who will attend a sponsor institution can win one of these awards, which provide between $250 and $2000 annually for up to four years of study at the sponsoring college.

NMSC is a not-for-profit organization devoted solely to scholarship activities that are supported by more than 600 independent sponsors, without federal or state funds. The Merit School class to be announced in the spring of 1986 will join over 90,000 other academic champions who have received Merit Scholarships worth about $265 million between 1956 and 1985.

In Service

Cadet Ralph A. DePalma, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. DePalma, Sr. of 155 Miller Road, Hicksville, has completed a U.S. Air Force ROTC field training encampment at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

Field training, attended by cadets normally between their second and third year of college, gives an opportunity to evaluate each student's potential as an officer, according to an Air Force Spokesman.

The summer's curriculum consists of orientations on jet aircraft, career opportunities, human relations, education and equal opportunity training. Physical fitness and survival training is also emphasized.

The field training is four weeks, but cadets in the two-year ROTC program receive an additional two weeks of instruction in the development of air power and the contemporary Air Force.

Army Capt. Madeline A. Miller, daughter of Helen F. Miller of 130 Fifth Street, Hicksville, has arrived for duty at Fort Lewis, Washington.

Miller, a physician with the Madigan Army Medical Center, was previously assigned at Fort Ord, California.

She received a doctorate in 1981 from George Washington University, Washington.

Consult physician on hyperactivity

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Dear Readers: Sometimes letters I receive ramble on and on, and it is necessary to pull from them the basic problem or question the writer wants to bring up. One recent letter continued for four long handwritten pages.

The issue was interesting (it usually is), and the bottom line came out this way: a hyperactive 9-year-old boy — uncontrollable temper — no friends — poor school work — low self-image. The family doctor recommended "ritalin," but the parents were fearful of the consequences of using the drug. However, they did give it to him, and the results were more than satisfying.

As this mother wrote, "How peaceful he was with himself! He has lots of friends, and his school work is good. ... Very loving and kind-hearted."

She wasn't asking for an opinion, just telling her story. Because I'm not a medical doctor, I don't want to become involved in this specific issue. However, a commonsense reaction occurs to me: A family physician or pediatrician is the one to consult regarding apparent hyperactivity. If a suggested remedy has no side effects and seems to show positive results (and if you have faith in the professional judgment of the doctor), why not try it out?

Q. A child of a friend of ours has developed the habit of sleeping with her parents. They have tried to put her to sleep in her bed but it causes such a fuss for hours that she still ends up with them.

They have also tried returning her to her own bed after she has fallen asleep. She then awakens and starts all over again.

She is almost 3 years old. Any suggestions?

A. It is sometimes helpful to have a pleasant pre-bedtime experience with a young child (watching television, reading together or a quiet game, for example). At the same time a gentle reminder might go to the youngster that you are having such a good time because you expect him or her to stay in his or her own bed. "It belongs to you just like your own toys, and mother's and daddy's bed belongs to them."

Such emphasis on ownership and privacy may fit into the pattern of breaking the habit.

As all of us know, changing habits isn't easy, whether adult or child, so it may take time and repetition before results evolve.

Calmly, consistently keeping your eye on the target of getting the child to stay in bed is important, however.

Incidentally, it may help if the youngster associates happy thoughts with his or her own room. A colorful, toy-involved atmosphere may reduce the length of time it takes to change the bed-jumping habit.

Using affection and praise whenever a child shows a tendency toward solution of a problem can also pay off. Several hours or an occasional full night in one's own room may be such an indication.

If any readers have solved this problem in ways they would like to share, I hope they will send them to me. I'll pass them on through the column. But please, no screaming, yelling, angry, hitting, locked-door approaches.

Q. I was interested in the letter you received from a mother whose husband insists on bathing their son, causing problems because of soap in eyes, water in ears and loud water noise — result, child hysteria.

Perhaps when this 3-year-old boy becomes a man and his father is old and under his care this son will remember (while he is bathing his father in his old age) the manner in which he was bathed as a child and do the same to his now aged father. Then the grown son will scare his father as he was scared.

Obviously something is bothering this father (work, money, wife or ego problems), so he takes it out on the kid.

You were so polite in your reply; he didn't deserve your courtesy. By the way, you have a great column.

A. According to the mother who had written in, that father tried to justify his inhumanity by saying, "He will just have to get used to it. That's the way the world is." Pain and discomfort should be avoided whenever possible, for adults as well as for children — and how about very old people who may not be able to protect themselves?

Your Social Security

Payments may be made to recipients in Greece

Q. My parents came to the United States in 1956 and worked 28 years under Social Security. They now are living in Greece and are both 62 years old. They are not U.S. citizens. Can they get Social Security benefits in Greece? — M.K.

A. The alien non-payment provision would not affect them inasmuch as Greece is one of the countries with whom the United States has a treaty providing for reciprocal payment of benefits.

If they became eligible for Social Security checks, checks would continue no matter how long they stay outside the United States as long as they were eligible for the checks.

Contact your local Social Security office for additional information.

Q. I was born on March 4, 1924; I am now 61 years old. How many quarters do I need to get the minimum Social Security benefit when I reach age 62? — E.MeS.

A. There is no longer a minimum Social Security benefit. A person born in 1924 would need 35 quarters of coverage to receive Social Security benefits.

In 1985, you earn one quarter of coverage for each $410 of your covered annual earnings, up to a total of four quarters for the year.

Q. My granddaughter gets Social Security based on her deceased father, who died nine years ago.

She is now 18 years old. However, she is extremely slow in learning; in other words, she is retarded. I do not believe she will ever be able to support herself and be self-sufficient.

Could she get on the disability program? — H.McK.

A. Disability benefits can be paid to an adult disabled child if she has a severe mental impairment and is unable to do any kind of substantial gainful activity.

Since the requirements for Social Security disability benefits are quite strict, you should discuss her situation with your local Social Security office.

Q. In 1982 I was injured on the job. I received a lump-sum settlement from workers' compensation that amounted to $36,000. I spent the money on back bills and paid off all my debts.

They say I cannot draw my Social Security disability because of the workers' compensation settlement. Is this correct? — E.McC.

A. If you are a disabled worker, your Social Security checks for you and your family may be affected by your eligibility for workers' compensation. Total combined payments to you and your family from Social Security and workers' compensation cannot exceed 80 percent of your average current earnings before becoming disabled.

All earnings covered by Social Security, including amounts above the maximum taxable by Social Security, may be considered when figuring average earnings. The workers' compensation lump-sum settlement is prorated to reflect what the monthly payments would have been.

Volunteers Needed At Syosset Hospital

Syosset Community Hospital is now accepting applications for its Volunteer Department. With the help of Volunteers, Syosset Community Hospital will enhance patient care programs by providing meaningful services.

You can arrange for an interview Monday through Friday, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. by calling or writing Roslyn Loren, Director of Volunteer and Auxiliary Services at 496-6446, Syosset Community Hospital, 221 Jericho Turnpike, Syosset.

Senior Center Open House

In this area of Nassau County, the Senior Day Care Center, a private, non-profit, non-sectarian agency has been serving the frail and socially isolated elderly of Syosset, Jericho, Plainview and Woodbury for over six years. It is located in the Education Building of the Community Church of Syosset. The program is partially funded by the Nassau County Department of Senior Citizen Affairs and the Town of Oyster Bay.

The Center cordially invites the public to attend Open House on Monday, September 23, and on Thursday, September 26, between the hours of 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

A visit will afford interested community residents an opportunity to become better acquainted with Adult Day Services, which provide a variety of activities, similar to those conducted in regular Senior Centers; such as discussion groups, craft and art programs, music therapy, social programs and a hot lunch. Transportation is provided when necessary.

However, a professional staff plans to organize the programs tailored to the needs of the frail participants, who require special assistance, supervision or extra emotional support.

You are invited to inquire about our community services when you attend. For further information, please call 921-2730.

'Reuben Reuben' Library Film

The Hicksville Public Library will show the film, "Reuben, Reuben" (R) on Friday, Sept. 20 at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the library. "Reuben, Reuben" is a bittersweet comedy filled with an odd array of eccentric characters. Tom Conti stars as a defiant Gowan Evans McGland, a lecherous boozing poet who has managed to avoid practicing his craft for well over five years. McGland has learned to support himself on charm, a sharp tongue and waiter's tips stolen from restaurants. Enter Geneva Spofford (Kelly McGillis), a blond goddess half his age but twice as mature, who is attracted to McGland more out of pity than passion. There is no charge for admission and everyone is invited. Children must be accompanied by parent.

Fake Meissens abound

By James G. McCollam

Q. This statuette appears to be hand-painted bisque and is 32 inches tall. The mark is blue crossed swords.

What can you tell me about this beautiful antique?

A. Based on the information available, this is a figure from Greek mythology and the mark is that of Meissen (The Royal China Manufactory at Meissen, Germany). As such, the value would be at least $1,000.

However, since there are so many pieces of fake Meissen in existence, this should be inspected by the curator of your local museum to confirm its authenticity.

Q. You told me my antique typewriter (Oliver No. 3, Pat. 1890) was only worth $35. That seems awfully low. Are you sure about this price?

A. Only a few early typewriters have much value. Most of those have strange names like Hall, Lambert, Merritt and O'Dell. The familiar ones like Corona, Remington, Royal, L.C. Smith, Underwood and Woodstock have little or no value as collectibles.

Here are some typical prices based on recent sales:

L.C. Smith Model No. 1 — $20.

Oliver No. 3, Pat. 1890 — $35.

Hammond, 1904 — $95.

Corona jackknife portable, 1917 — $20.

Blickensderfer No. 5 — $90.

Blickensderfer No. 7 — $95.

Q. This mark is on the bottom of a 7-inch green vase that is decorated with raised lines forming rectangles like a window.

Please tell me who made it, when, where, and its value.

A. This was made by the Cambridge Art Pottery in Cambridge, Ohio. The pottery was founded in 1900 and made art pottery until 1909 when it became the Guernsey Earthenware Co. and limited production to kitchen wares.

Your little vase would sell for at least $75 and will increase in value

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and $1 per item to James G. McCollam.

'Stretching' space in your garden

By Patrick Denton

About this time each year as I wander through the garden, I like to take a small notepad with me to make a few rough sketches of what grew where this past season.

Later, these sketches will go into my 1986 garden diary, with space next to them for the coming season's planned plantings. But for now, I'll just begin shifting different blocks of vegetables and flowers around in my mind, and start wrestling with a long-standing perennial problem — how to stuff into the garden all the things I want to grow.

With each year, our family is developing more little tricks for saving space and eking out of our plots as much productive growth as possible. Every sunny length of fence has been laced with heavy wire and utilized for training fruits of various kinds — pie cherry, gooseberry, red currants. Right now my wife is pestering her resident expert in rustic garden construction for a long south-facing trellis along which to grow more such fruits.

Growing such fruits with fairly permanent, woody frames against a trellis, fence or house wall is basically a matter of training them in two dimensions rather than three, and keeping them pruned so their arms are well spaced on the wires. The arms can be trained either horizontally or in the shape of a fan.

The black currant is not well adapted to this form of growing, since its wood requires renewing more frequently and it grows in a definite bush form.

The basic theory of growing as much as possible upward has tremendous potential in the home garden. Early this past spring, for example, I hauled two very tall circles of heavy wire fencing out of storage and wrestled them into circles with about an 18-inch opening. I erected one, secured with tall stakes, right at the center of our upper vegetable plot at the end of a sawdust path. The other was installed next to a path at about the midpoint of a lower vegetable garden.

I then dug about a 6-inch layer of soil out of the enclosures and began composting within them.

In the cool of early spring I transplanted some started sweet pea plants around the southeast-facing half of the upper enclosure. Those plants bloomed all summer, non-stop. Around the southwest-facing half of the wire enclosure I seeded, in mid-May, some scarlet runner beans, about 6 inches apart.

The scarlet runner bean I tried was a variety called Prizewinner from The Urban Farmer (Box 22198, Beachwood, OH 44122). The vines produced brilliant scarlet flowers and a positively threatening barrage of pods. Our five plants produced enough for several families of bean maniacs. The young pods were flat and delicious, and perfect for slicing.

I transplanted canary creeper plants around the lower enclosure, and began composting within it. Those vines climbed their 6-foot-high support, then began wandering back down inside it, all the time dotted with bright yellow feathery flowers against the decorative foliage. This is the first time we'd kept this flowering vine in vigorous growth and in full bloom throughout the late spring and summer and into early fall.

Tomatoes and cucumbers also do very well around such enclosures because as the materials inside the enclosure begin decomposing, nutrients leach out into the root area of the plants, which also is kept evenly moist.

And at the end of the season, there is a ready enclosure to hold the spent plants from that garden area for composting. Shredded and tossed into the wire frame, layered with shovels of soil, manure, grass mowings — depending on what's available — the materials will provide compost for planting and mulching in the surrounding area next year.

Town To Purchase Commuter Parking

The Oyster Bay Town Board has set a public hearing date of October 8 to consider the acquisition of property on Ira Road in Syosset for use as commuter parking.

According to Town Councilman Angelo A. Delligatti, "the Board will consider the acquisition of a vacant, nearly one-acre parcel located on the southerly side of Ira Road, 300 feet east of Jackson Avenue in order to construct approximately 114 additional commuter parking slots near the Syosset railroad station."

Delligatti noted that the parcel, which is adjacent to a telephone company building, had previously been leased by the phone company for parking for their vehicles.

The hearing has been scheduled for Tuesday, October 8, beginning at 10 a.m. in the hearing room of Town Hall East, Audrey Avenue, Oyster Bay.

Expectant Parent Classes Offered

A series of classes for expectant parents will start at Syosset Community Hospital, beginning on Monday, October 7 and continuing on Monday evenings through November 25. Classes run from 7 - 9 p.m. and cover a range of parent-related topics: Emotional and Physical Changes during Pregnancy, Maternal and Infant Nutrition, the Nature of Labor and Delivery, Breathing Exercises for Relaxation, and Infant Care Procedures. The series will be repeated throughout the year.

Classes are open to all expectant parents in the area, and are given free of charge by the Nursing Department at Syosset Community Hospital. For further information/registration, call the Nursing Office at (516) 496-6424/5.

YOU CAN'T BEAT IT!

EAT YOURSELF SLIM

Diet, aging and exercise

By Shirley Bright Boody
Registered Dietitian

Can diet and exercise really affect how we grow older?

Continuing our report on new studies of the aging process, today we look at the role of diet, nutrition and appropriate exercise as an important part of staying healthy as the clock ticks on.

The idea that older people automatically become sick and feeble is pure nonsense. It is quite possible to stay healthy and active well into the 70s, 80s and even 90s, and there are things we can do to help ourselves and our loved ones achieve it.

Like success in any area of our lives, much of healthful longevity has to do with our attitude. If people "give up" because they have reached a certain birthday that society labels as "senior citizen," they can miss the truly golden years of their lives. Planning ahead will pay off later.

Staying healthy at any age is strongly dependent upon how we eat and how we keep our body exercised. Overweight can be a threat to health, and may affect the onset of many diseases. Keeping weight within normal limits contributes significantly to feeling well and energetic, so the first step toward a healthy tomorrow is to get rid of excess weight today.

How you lose weight, however, is of vital importance to maintaining health. Fad diets and bizarre schemes can undermine nutrition and predispose people, especially older people, to a decline in immunity and resistance to disease.

A healthful diet for older people is not too different from that for young people, except that the older folk probably need fewer calories. A wide variety of foods — fruits and vegetables, lean meats, fish and poultry, whole grain breads and cereals, milk and dairy products — are needed daily.

The old idea that only kids need milk is obsolete. Older people have an increased need for calcium and vitamin D to help prevent osteoporosis, and the use of low-fat or skim milk dairy products is recommended highly.

Sometimes the small intestine loses part of its ability to make lactase, the enzyme that digests milk sugar (lactose), and some older people may suffer from bloating and diarrhea after eating certain dairy products. To avoid these problems and still get the needed nutrition, low lactose dairy products such as yogurt with live cultures, buttermilk, aged cheeses and commercial "Lact-aid" products that have predigested lactose can be used.

Older people who eat alone often fall into poor eating habits, settling for little more than tea and toast. They can be encouraged to find group meals in churches or community centers for both better nutrition and companionship. The Agricultural Extension Service or similar agency in your county will provide information on available programs for people who can't get around. Call "Information" in your area for help.

Regular exercise helps keep the body in better working order and people who can't sleep will find it the best cure for insomnia. Walking, bending, stretching, bicycling, swimming and even dancing are excellent ways for older people to stay fit.

Finding a new sport is fun and exhilarating. The golf course, the tennis court and dance floor sure beat the rocking chair, as many older Americans are discovering today. Be sure to check with your physician, however, before tackling anything strenuous.

Bethpage Library Has A Computer

The Muppets, Donald Duck, a print shop, song writer, the Commodore, and more are ready to serve youngsters and parents at the Bethpage Public Library. How so?

The Bethpage Children's Room now has a Commodore 64 computer with disk drive and printer available for use by young people from pre-school age through Grade 9 and parents too. The library also offers a variety of exciting software geared for a range of ages and purposes - everything from fascinating educational games to fun with music and art, Mother Goose, math, word processing and typing.

The Commodore operation has been organized by Elise Della Rocca, a computer specialist, who will be on hand at selected times to offer guidance and occasional programs that highlight special aspects. In one photo, she helps 4-year old Keith Sawhney and his mother put Kermit the Frog through his paces with letters, numbers and colors in the "Muppet Learning Keys" program. In the other picture, she guides 11-year old Krissy Powers through the dynamics of logic needed to build an entire factory.

Elise Della Rocca earned a B.S. degree in Operational Management at Marist College from which she was graduated cum laude. She has studied Basic and Fortran and has had considerable experience selling software to educational institutions. Della Rocca is passionately interested in what computers can do for youngsters. "The possibilities are endless," she says. "I never cease to be amazed at the increasingly sophisticated ways my own children find to use our home computer. I don't know how we managed to do without it." She hopes to facilitate the development of computer enthusiasm and expertise among people at the library.

"I never thought building a factory could be so interesting," eleven year old Krissy Powers remarks to computer specialist Elise Della Rocca as they discover the fascination of The Factory, a computer program designed to appeal to ages nine and up.

"Wow, Kermit's helping me!" exclaims four-year old Keith Sawhney, as Elise Della Rocca, Bethpage Library computer specialist (left), and his mother Marie Sawhney, look on. Keith is using The Muppet Learning Keys, one of several computer programs that the Bethpage Public Library has on hand for pre-schoolers to use together with their parents.

It's up to us.

New York State is a great state in which to live, work and raise a family. We can be proud of our place in world commerce, industry and in the quality of our lives. But one of our greatest sources of pride is often overlooked, that being our huge forest preserves, wetland and marsh areas, and abundant fish and wildlife.

Now New Yorkers have an opportunity to help protect this unique heritage of wildlife so vital to the quality of life we all enjoy. "Return a Gift to Wildlife" is a program into which you may voluntarily contribute when you complete your state tax form. By checking off Line 18 on the long form or Line 12 on the short form, you can make a contribution to the New York State Conservation Fund. Monies collected have been dedicated by the State Finance Law to the protection, management and extension of wildlife in our great state.

The Need Has Never Been Greater

Hard economic times dictate hard financial decisions. This year, the federal government has already eliminated endangered species aid, jeopardizing the restoration of a number of birds and animals native to New York. In addition, thousands of acres of grassland, wetland, marshland and forest that are critical to the survival or extension of New York's wildlife are eliminated or disrupted each year. The New York State "Return a Gift to Wildlife" program is an important step towards a lasting solution to these problems... and an investment in the future of our wildlife.

An Effective Program

Like the environment which only thrives when the whole ecosystem is addressed, the areas of work to be addressed through tax contributions are broad and comprehensive. The largest single element is earmarked for habitat protection so critical to wildlife perpetuation. A species management program will be strengthened to help maintain all species of fish and wildlife at desirable population levels for human enjoyment. A third element is the public use program which will provide increased opportunities for enjoying fish and wildlife. Lastly, the plan calls for greater awareness development of fish and wildlife values through the creation of better educational resources and information services.

Consider the added dimension wildlife brings to your life. Won't you return a gift through a contribution on Line 18 of the long form or Line 12 of the short form of your State tax return. Your gift is tax deductible on your 1983 tax return.

Callers To Input Think Drug Scandals Hurt Players

Most callers to Input believe that the recent drug scandals in major league baseball have lessened the public's interest in the sport in answer to this question: "Do you believe that the knowledge of drug usage by some top players has lessened the public's interest in baseball?"

HURT PLAYERS

My feeling is that the public's knowledge of players who use drugs will hurt the players individually more than it will hurt the entire sport. Think of a player who has been found guilty in the cocaine scandals being asked to endorse a product. It just wouldn't happen because advertisers will not ask for endorsements from those players. This will cost the individual players a great deal of revenue. J.K.

GREAT IMAGES

The difference between our baseball players being caught on drug usage is that we have come to look at athletes as great images for youth to follow. Now that we know that some of them are far from great images we will have to find new idols. Players in the big leagues really have a trust that they have violated to be great images for the youth. People will now have to be careful about inviting them to sports rallies. J.E.

SMALL FALLOUT

The question is too wide. While many players have been caught with drugs it is far from 100 percent. Baseball fans, for the most part, want a winning team out there. If they think the team is not performing at top level because of drugs they will move on. So far the fallout has been little. E.B.

FIRST TEMPTED

It used to be that every boy aspired to be a big league baseball player. If he wasn't so good on the playing field he at least could adopt some of the great virtues of the top players in clean living and being a sport. This is now a time for reassessing values and admitting that baseball players with their high salaries are among the first to be tempted with the problems of the world. J.W.

NO EFFECT

Most people are not as concerned with the private lives of the ballplayers as they used to be. Ballplayers are now people who are working at the game to make a great deal of money and the sport has gone a long time ago. The American people still enjoy sports contests and they will watch baseball no matter who plays. So the recent scandals will not have any long term effect. N.W.

WILL PERSIST

I am sorry that these scandals occurred. But I still like baseball and refuse to believe that the problems are part of the sport which has gone through the years as a good clean American sport. So while those who take drugs are poor specimens of the sport, the entire sport will still persevere. C.F.

DIFFERENT TYPE PLAYER

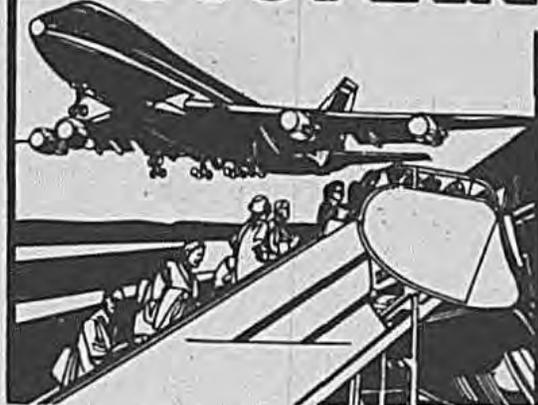

The entire drug scene in baseball and the recent strike threats all add up to the same thing. We have a different type of player today. The great sports idol of the "Jack Armstrong" era is no more, if he ever existed. We now have players who are interested in money, fun and everything else that they can find. Most of us will accept them so long as they play good ball. M.R.

LOST RESPECT

I think that drug usage by some top players should lessen the public's interest in baseball if only for the reason that the players occupy a unique position with respect to their fans - one of idolatry and trust. It is really not the owners who pay their salaries and it is not the owners who are influenced by the players' endorsement of various types of products and services. It is the public - the men, women and youngsters of all ages and particularly the latter, to whom the players occupy a position akin to adoration as super people or, in a sense, as alter egos. On one hand, the schools are doing everything possible to get the message across to the kids that drugs are bad and on the other, some ballplayers obviously think nothing of diluting that message by example. With their privileged economic status, they might think they are above criticism but believe me, they are not and they have lost the public's respect in ignoring their real responsibility as models of the highest expectations of the public in the field of athletics. Unfortunately, while they may have lost stature, interest in the game itself has not lessened because it is still our national pastime. Unfortunately, the players seem to have acquired a feeling of superiority leading to a public-be-damned attitude as the recent strike would indicate and it's just a shame that the public should be put to the test. P.G.S.

DISCOVERY

Athens Revisited Amid Small Fears

By Jerome J. Niosi, Ph.D.

When President Reagan announced his travel advisory after the hijacking of TWA Flight 847 on June 16, some 30,000 Americans cancelled their trips to Greece. It would have been foolhardy to fly to a city whose ultimate destination could be Beirut.

My wife and I, a daughter and granddaughter, scheduled to fly to Athens in three weeks were in a quandry. Concerned relatives and friends urged cancellation. Yet, Athens was not Beirut. Tourism worth 480 million dollars, annually, was the number one industry in Greece. It seemed inconceivable that the government would not take immediate and drastic steps to protect the 575,000 visitors to their country.

A telephone call to the Washington office of the National Education Association informed us that on the day of the hijacking, a full 747 had left on the sixteen day "Grecian Odyssey". On the same day, another full 747, ignorant of what had transpired had left Athens and did not learn of the hijacking until it had reached JFK airport. All trips, would therefore, proceed as scheduled with no cancellations honored.

The financial loss would be substantial, but replaceable. The time period was not. Our "Grecian Odyssey" had been planned as a graduation/birthday gift for a hardworking scholar entering a competitive college in September. The decision was unanimous; we would go to Greece.

At John F. Kennedy airport, security was strict. Luggage and hand-carried baggage were searched meticulously. A second screening using hand held-metal detectors preceded boarding. With seat belts fastened, we were ready for departure at 4:50 p.m., to be followed by dinner, the in-flight movie, and quasi slumber. So far so good. The "Greek Odyssey" was about to begin.

Then it happened. An ephemeral voice announced that additional refueling would take an additional thirty minutes. While this was being completed, a malfunction was discovered. The plane would be delayed about an hour while a replacement could be mounted. Then the voice announced that the replacement part had arrived but could not be installed because it was the wrong size. The delay would take about an hour. Conviviality aboard the aircraft gave way to exasperation.

The heat was stifling. Some of the passengers restless by the inactivity, began sampling their duty free liquor. Then the voices became argumentative. Suddenly one of the most obstreperous stood up and began choking a passenger—it was over some unflattering remark about his wife, someone said.

Neither the flight attendants, nor the officers could calm the fight. Finally, the captain announced that the plane was ready for takeoff, but that it would be towed back to the terminal 'to resolve a personnel problem'. Cameras flashed when five NYPD officers, fully armed came up the aisle to escort a much chastened passenger off the plane. He would be delayed in his return to Greece.

Then, the welcomed announcement: "We will be taking off in five minutes!" It was 9:05 p.m. What might be awaiting us in Athens? Would the plane make it? We had already noted that all first class and lounge seats had been replaced with economy seats. The aircraft was jammed.

Its engine revved up to speed, the plane took off; the passengers cheered, but many vowed that they would never again take a charter flight.

The flight continued without incident. The food was good; the movie, 'free'. The staff seemed embarrassed, however, by the apparent lack of professionalism characteristic of the major airlines. But we were relieved at the end of the flight that no one expressed hope that 'the flight was enjoyable' or the wish that we 'would fly that airline again.'

Athens looked good the following morning. It was greener than we had remembered it thirteen years earlier. But the crowds were horrendous. By the thousands, Americans vied with French, German, Italians, English and Orientals for space on the slow moving lines through passport, customs, and immigration. Apparently, travel advisories were just that and ignored.

But security was tight. An estimated 700 policemen patrolled every corridor and access to the airport. I was surprised by a policeman stationed in the toilet. Hand held metal detectors were in evidence everywhere. Women officials were ready to conduct body searches as well as the men. Shifts appeared to be changed regularly. Greek security was determined that any laxity was in the past.

Baggage recovered, the tour directors took over, and buses moved the crowds through the vibrant, modern city of four million beautified through the years by an appreciative people. Sight seeing would begin the following morning.

In the dry, brilliant sun, bus after bus converged on the Acropolis disgorging visitors by the thousands who gasped in awe at the impressive reminders of the glory of ancient Greece. But no one could enter the Parthenon. It was roped off and scaffolded for long range rehabilitation after centuries of crises and modern pollution.

That afternoon, the crowds surged into the 'plaka' enticed by bargains available no where else in the Aegean. That night, we relaxed in one of its many tavernas for the Greek delight interspersed with songs and dancers. The following day was spent photographing the Plains of Zeus with the Acropolis towering in the background and climbing Mt. Lycabettus. It was a tough climb and the funicular helped. This must not be missed. From the top, one can see the most spectacular view of ancient and modern Athens.

Hijackings and exasperating delays faded as we journeyed back into history: The Oracle at Delphi in the shadow of Mt. Parnassus; Patras, gateway to Italy and the Adriatic; Mycenae, a ruined reminder of Agamemnon's empire; Nauplia, the first capitol of Greece; arid Olympia, site of the first games in 776 B.C. and still the initial point of the modern games of the world over.

Beautifully preserved Epidaurus continues to present the plays of Aeschylus in Greek by Greeks to audiences of fifteen thousand who can hear easily a whisper on its mammoth stage.

Early the next morning, we crossed the knife-like slice that is the Corinthian Canal, an old dream of Nero, and now a modern reality, and headed for Piraeus, to board the "World Renaissance" to visit the 'stepping stones' of civilization - the Greek Islands. Santorini was 'modernized': one rode the donkey up the slope, but took the funicular down. Cnossos contains the oldest excavated palace in Europe, the labyrinth of Theseus and the fabled Minotaur. A bus strike diverted the tour from Lindos to the medieval city of Rhodes, home of the Knights of St. John who dominated Rhodes for two centuries.

After a short stop at Kos, where Hippocrates dispensed prescriptions, and Lesbos, home of the poetess Sappho, we reached Ephesus, the ancient city of St. Paul and the Virgin Mary. The extensive excavation reveals a city built almost exclusively of marble and easily rivals Pompeii. With the completion of a basilica nearby, Ephesus may well become the second city in the Middle East surpassed only by Jerusalem and its environs.

At dusk, the "Renaissance" set sail for the Bosphorus, the Golden Horn, and the premier city of the ancient and medieval world, Istanbul, the city which spans two continents and a veritable crossroads of the world. The city was the center of the Roman world as Constantinople, the capital of the Eastern Roman Empire as Byzantium and after 1453, Istanbul of the Ottomans. Its skyline is dominated by St. Sophia, by the 'Blue Mosque' and the Topkapı Palace. Its Grand Bazaar houses four thousand shops making it the greatest shopping center in the world.

Time is never sufficient to sample the exquisite examples of Arabic culture, a culture which pervaded so much of the civilized world for almost a thousand years.

Reluctantly, we returned to the ship. A short cruise to the point of Russian influence, and the "Renaissance" sailing under the modern bridge linking the two segments of Turkey, left for Mykonos, made famous by photographers, dress designers and the 'jet' set.

From Mykonos, a side trip to the center of the Athenian empire, Delos, now uninhabited, the ship sailed for Piraeus and the flight to New York.

The "Grecian Odyssey" was worth the risk, if indeed, there had been any risk in flying to Athens. The guides licensed after a two year study of history, language and culture by the Ministry of Tourism, were excellent. Pleasant, friendly, patient and knowledgeable, the guides did much to make the two week tour memorable. Even the inevitable delay at the airport caused by the returning crowds could not dampen what was an exhilarating experience.

Whether a similar experience awaits us in the Republic of South Africa next February is another story.

PICTURESQUE PLACE
Last week we visited the Milleridge Inn in Jericho. This beautiful restaurant is even more picturesque in the spring and good weather. We had a fine dinner and then found our way to the little shops that are adjacent to the restaurant.
The Milleridge Inn has been a favorite of ours for two generations now and we always find that the food and service are tops. The Milleridge Inn deserves first place in any mention of good restaurants.

FAVORITE PLACE
Villa portofino Restaurant on Mineola Blvd. in Mineola is a favorite dining place for us. They are celebrating their first anniversary and we want to wish them continued success. Recently we had dinner there, the fish filet with their special sauce was truly a gourmet's delight. The vegetables were well prepared and fresh. In particular, we enjoyed dessert, Zuppa Inglese, which is a layer cake with fruits, rum and Grand Marnier somewhat similar to English Trifle in taste, with cafe espresso. You will enjoy the setting as well as the attentive service.

The other night we were thinking about going out to dinner and someone suggested the New Hyde Park Inn. A funny thing is that we have been there many times and enjoyed the Inn for banquets and testimonials but never went there for dinner before.

I am calling to tip off your readers that Willy Rueck's New Hyde Park Inn is a great place to go for a regular dinner at any time. There is a fine dining room and the menu is complete with entrees of all types of meat and fish. We had a most enjoyable time there last week and everyone of our party of four said it was the best ever. H.L.

HIGH PRAISE

A number of years ago we had been to the Colonial Inn in Mineola and we were not so impressed with the restaurant although it always was good. Last week we noticed that it was under new ownership and stopped in again. We like the Colonial Inn and we like its great stuffed pork chops with the apple and raisin stuffing. This restaurant is one that we would recommend to all of our friends. The new management is to be commended for improving the menu and not overpricing the food. Tell everyone about it. N.R.

FRESH SEAFOOD

Surfside Restaurant in New Hyde Park is a fairly new restaurant. Its specialty is fresh seafood. We enjoyed a complete dinner special, served with a freshly baked loaf of bread, and a bean salad as an appetizer. The fish was superbly prepared, the service was excellent and we thought the dinner special was reasonably priced. We feel that we made a discovery and highly recommend this restaurant. E.P.

MAGNIFICENT DINNERS

We had two magnificent dinners at the LaCoquille Restaurant in Manhasset last Saturday. This small French restaurant is really tops. The service is perfect and the food delicious. One entree was Chicken Beau Sejour, which was a wonderfully delicious dish of zestfully tasty chicken. The other entree was Chateaubriand prepared with a sauce of herbs that gave it an exquisite taste. It was one of the many specials of the day. Vegetables, which are prepared in a crisp way so that they must really be filled with vitamins, are included with the entree. But the crunchy style is also a delicious style, so that makes it even better. LaCoquille seems to be a new restaurant but it is run efficiently and the prices are within reason for top rated food. We would recommend this restaurant to anyone. H.F.

READER RATINGS

Q. At a table with others we don't know at a banquet, what do we do about tips-if anything?

A. At public dinners there is sometimes a small card on each table which reads "Gratuities have been taken care of by the Dinner Committee" - a very good idea. If there is no such card at the table, the waiters, immediately after the service of dessert and coffee and before the speaking begins, come to the host or hostess of each table and place a silver salver before him or her, often with a murmured explanation that something is expected for the table's waiters. Unless all at the table are personally invited guests, the host or hostess makes no attempt to tip for the whole table but after placing a dollar (per service for which he or she feels responsible) on the tray, directs the waiter to the gentlemen at the table, each of whom should leave (at $10 per plate dinner) a dollar and a half for himself and the same for the lady he escorts. Women should never be approached for tips if there are gentlemen at the table.

Q. Last night we had fish and the host ordered a burgundy wine for the table. Isn't this use of a red wine in poor taste?

A. If it is in poor taste it would be up to the people consuming it to determine that it was not to their liking. The old fashioned etiquette about red wines being for meat and white for fish were a tradition but no one has to honor a tradition that is not to their particular liking. Get red wine with fish if you like.

Q. After finishing a meal at a good restaurant I had an experience that could have been avoided by the restaurant. When I offered a particular credit card the waiter said that they did not honor that card and did I have another. I did not have another and barely had enough money to pay in cash. Shouldn't the restaurant have told us in advance which credit cards they accept?

A. Not exactly. You should have inquired in advance if you did not see a decal of the card you had on display. They really have no way of knowing what card you have and it is an accommodation to you that the cards are accepted so you should have borne the responsibility.

If you were living in the Middle Ages and you ran into a character who went out only at night, was very hairy, had skin lesions and teeth with reddish stains, you might be alarmed.

You might even get out your garlic amulet and crucifix to ward away fantasy nightmare creatures.

Yet, such nocturnal creatures may be more than fantasy. A painful rare blood disease called porphyria results in symptoms that might be mistaken for the behavior we associate with vampires and werewolves. And, although it is not a popular conception, there are a few researchers proposing that garlic may be involved in aiding those with the disease.

According to Dr. Theodore S. Zimmerman, a member of the hematology staff of Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation in La Jolla, Calif., porphyria is a disease that causes acute sensitivity to light, skin lesions, a pallid skin color and increased growth of body hair. Exposure to sunlight can be devastating to the victims. Their lips and gums become taut, making teeth more prominent, and showing teeth stained with porphyrins — improperly metabolized pigment, which gives the impression of dark, bloody marks.

"Porphyria is actually more closely related to werewolves than vampires because of the growth of excess bodily hair," notes Dr. Joel Lamon, a hematologist-oncologist at Scripps Clinic.

Lamon adds, "Ironically, in today's medical practice, bleeding the patient, an infrequently employed treatment, is an acceptable aid for those suffering from the disease."

The specialist in blood abnormalities says that he has "no evidence that garlic can be used effectively against porphyria or related diseases" and that he does not use garlic in his practice. "However, I use garlic all the time at home when I cook."

Other researchers have proposed or imagined that there is chemical evidence that garlic might increase the severity of an attack of porphyria by destroying the heme (iron-containing part of the hemoglobin molecule) needed by the porphyria victim, thus offering a possible suggestion for the anti-vampire qualities attributed to garlic.

New research using modern medical and scientific technology may discover even more therapeutic applications for this time-tested healer.

MORE NOTES ABOUT GARLIC:

From early history, garlic has been believed to have properties that will turn away spirits of the dead and protect an individual from all evil. Pieces of garlic have been placed in a small cloth sack, preferably of red flannel, and tied around the neck as a powerful voodoo charm. Even today, some Arabs carry blue velvet cushions with garlic cloves inside to ward off evil.

Interestingly enough, in folk literature, an herbal recipe for general purification involves 1 whole garlic bulb and 1 ounce of thyme boiled in at least 5 gallons of water for 1 hour. When used this way, garlic does not leave an odor out has the reverse effect of deodorizing.

Ancient Egyptians recommended the use of garlic in the treatment of heart and menstrual problems, headache and certain tumors.

Romans of old fed garlic to soldiers, believing the herb to have the power to increase strength and courage for doing battle.

In China and Japan, high blood pressure has been treated for centuries by garlic therapy.

Terrifying, no. Terrific, absolutely!

While on the subject of garlic, here are some recipes shared by Dee Biller, director of the Perfect Pan School of Cooking and a serious garlic lover. The recipes are derived from her class on cooking with garlic.

GARLIC CHEESE BLEND
 (This is similar to Boursin or Rondele cheese.)

- 7 cloves garlic, peeled
- ¼ cup chives, minced
- ¼ cup mixed fresh herbs: basil, thyme, tarragon, rosemary, finely minced
- 1 lb. cream cheese, softened
- ½ cup unsalted butter, softened
- 1 pt. sour cream

In food processor with steel blade in place, turn machine on and drop garlic through feed tube. Process until minced. With machine running, add chives and herbs through feed tube. Process for several seconds. Add remaining ingredients and process until well blended. Chill in refrigerator for several hours to blend flavors. Before serving, bring to room temperature and serve with French bread rounds, crackers or fresh vegetables.

- WHOLE BAKED GARLIC
- 9 whole heads garlic
 - ¼ cup olive oil
 - ¼ cup butter
 - 2 tbsps. dried, crushed thyme

1 lb. Swiss cheese, shredded
1 loaf squaw or brown bread

Cut 1/4 off top of each garlic head, exposing cloves. Place in shallow pan.

Pour oil over garlic and sprinkle with thyme. Dot with butter. Cover with foil and bake in 275 F oven 30 minutes. Remove cover and baste with pan juices. Return to oven and continue cooking in 275 F oven uncovered, 1 hour, basting every 20 minutes. If cloves are still not soft, continue cooking another 30 minutes, or until cloves are tender.

Divide cheese among 9 gratin (individual baking) dishes and bake until melted. To serve, spread melted cheese over slices of warm bread and squeeze garlic cloves on top.

CHICKEN WITH 40 CLOVES OF GARLIC

5 celery stalks

2 (2 lb.) chickens, cut up
Salt
Pepper, freshly ground
Nutmeg, freshly grated
40 cloves garlic, peeled (or more)
1/4 cup cognac

1 Julienne (cut in thin sticks) celery and carrots. In large casserole with tight-fitting lid, pour in oil and add celery, carrots and fresh herbs.

Sprinkle chicken pieces with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Add to oil mixture, turning to coat all sides. Add garlic and cognac to chicken and cover.

Bake in 375 F oven 1 1/2 to 2 hours or until chicken pieces are tender. Remove chicken to serving platter and keep warm. Puree remaining ingredients and pour over chicken pieces. Any extra sauce can be passed at the table.

GARLIC AND ROASTED PEPPER

3 heads garlic
3 red peppers
3 green peppers
1 large red onion, diced
1 bunch green onions, minced
10 tomatoes, peeled, seeded and cut into chunks
2 cups chopped olives
1/2 cup olive oil
1/2 cup balsamic vinegar
Salt

1 cup feta cheese

Separate garlic cloves and place in small saucepan. Cover with water and bring to boil. Cook 10 to 15 minutes or until cloves are tender. Cool and squeeze clove out of its skin. Reserve.

Roast peppers in oven on open grill; then, place peppers in plastic bag to steam 15 minutes. Run under cold water and remove skin. Dice peeled peppers.

Combine all remaining ingredients with garlic cloves and roasted peppers. Toss to mix well and season to taste with salt and freshly ground pepper. Serve on bed of lettuce and top with crumbled feta cheese.

that are hard to work with.

If you have never skinned and boned a chicken breast, here are suggestions that will be helpful.

First, cut the chicken breasts in half along the backbone. Holding the chicken breast under warm water, work the skin off with your fingers, using a sharp knife to cut off any yellow fat and membrane. Then remove the meat from the bones, starting at the back of the breast. Stay as close to the bone as possible, using your fingers to separate the meat from the bone, and using a sharp knife as necessary. The halved breasts break down into a large upper and a small lower fillet.

The number of servings yielded by today's recipes, as noted, depends on whether you want to serve one or two half breasts per person.

ROQUEFORT CHICKEN

1 (4 oz.) stick unsalted butter
1 tsp. minced garlic
4 ozs. Roquefort or blue cheese
4 half chicken breasts (boned and skinned, if desired)
Salt and pepper to taste

In medium bowl, using wooden spoon, blend butter, garlic and cheese together until they form an even, creamy mixture.

Dry chicken breasts on paper towels and sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste.

Coat both sides of chicken breasts thoroughly with mixture. Broil chicken, bottom side first, for few minutes on each side, until cooked through. When you turn chicken over, baste each breast liberally with coating mixture that ran off while bottom sides were cooking.

Serves 2 or 4.

MUSTARD CHICKEN

4 half chicken breasts (boned and skinned, if desired)
Salt and pepper to taste

Coating Mixture:

6 ozs. Grey Poupon mustard*
3 tbsps. olive oil
1/2 tsp. powdered ginger
1 tsp. soy sauce
1 scallion, minced

Dry chicken breasts on paper towels and sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste.

In medium bowl, combine coating ingredients, stirring until mixture is uniform.

Coat both sides liberally with mustard mixture. Broil chicken.

bottom side first, for few minutes on each side, until cooked through (exact cooking time will vary a bit with size of breast and heat of oven). When you turn chicken over, baste each breast liberally with coating mixture that ran off while bottom sides were cooking.

SAUTEED CHICKEN BREASTS WITH ARTICHOKE HEARTS

6 half chicken breasts, boned and skinned
1 (6 oz.) jar marinated artichoke hearts
2 medium tomatoes, peeled, seeded and finely chopped
8 ozs. mushrooms, thinly sliced
6 scallions, cut in 1/4-inch slices
Zest of 1/2 lemon, grated
3 tbsps. butter or margarine
5 tbsps. olive oil
Flour for dredging
4 tbsps. fresh lemon juice
1/4 cup dry white wine
2 tbsps. minced fresh parsley, for garnish

With back of heavy wooden spoon or wooden mallet, pound chicken breasts between two sheets of waxed paper until they are about 1/4 inch thick and uniform.

Remove artichoke hearts from jar and slice. Leave enough of marinade from jar to dampen artichoke hearts. Set slices aside in medium bowl, prepare tomatoes, mushrooms, scallions and lemon zest, and mix these in with artichoke hearts.

Melt 3 tablespoons butter and 3 tablespoons of oil over medium-high heat. While butter and oil heat, dredge chicken breasts in flour, shaking off any excess. Sauté chicken until golden brown and slightly crisp on both sides, being sure breasts are cooked through. When chicken is done, remove to a platter and keep warm.

With spatula, remove any brown or burned particles from frying pan. Reduce heat slightly, add remaining olive oil, then add reserved vegetable mix. Cook, stirring, until vegetables begin to soften. Mushrooms should just begin to brown and give off some moisture.

Add lemon juice and wine, stir until mixture is heated through and spoon vegetables and sauce over chicken. Garnish with chopped parsley and serve.

Serves 3 or 6.

Quick ways with chicken breasts

By Paul Bensen
and Evander Preston

One of the great pleasures of cooking is to discover a recipe that is simultaneously distinctive, delicious and extremely quick and easy to prepare. Today's recipes fit that description perfectly.

Roquefort Chicken and Mustard Chicken are perfect choices for today's chef-on-the-run. They take only about 10 minutes from start to finish, yet are elegant main courses that will delight your guests. Sautéed Chicken Breast with Artichoke Hearts, which takes just a few minutes longer to make, is an adaptation of one of our favorite Italian veal recipes. Rice or pasta, along with a green salad, will complete any of these dinners.

Chicken is one of the most popular meats now, for several good reasons. Many people are limiting their intake of red meat and counting their calories, and chicken is an excellent low-calorie, low-fat source of protein. It also is one of the very best buys at the meat counter. Chicken can be substituted for veal in many recipes — a thrifty switch, since chicken breasts cost only about a quarter as much per pound as veal cutlets.

When you shop for chicken, look for light-colored, unblemished skin and not too much hard, yellow fat. Perhaps most important of all, the breastbone should be flexible. The tip of the bone should bend easily under pressure. If it doesn't, you're dealing with a fowl that's long past its prime.

Today's recipes call for or give the option of using boned, skinned breasts. Most stores carry chicken breasts that have been skinned and boned, but you pay a premium of up to $2 per pound for them. We always do our own boning and skinning — it just takes a few minutes — and we also remove all the fat that we can before we cook the breasts. Another reason for doing your own skinning and boning is that most markets do a poor job of boning, often leaving raggedly cut fillets

Microwave Magic

By Desiree Vivea

A cookbook 'find' for your collection

What can you get with $2 these days? Not much, and you know it. That's why it's such a pleasant surprise to run across a booklet filled with microwave tips and beautifully illustrated recipes — for a mere $2.

Corning's "Microwave Cooking" offers 64 glossy pages of microwave information and recipes. Of course, some of that information regards Corning's own "Microwave Plus" line of cookware: browning skillets, "Heat 'N' Eat" dishes and specialty pieces like the bacon rack and oval roaster. The booklet details which sizes, shapes and styles of dishes are best suited to particular foods and cooking methods.

Also included are several pages of useful tips for better microwaving, including brief descriptions of the various types of coverings (paper towel, plastic wrap, wax paper or glass cover), and their use.

But it's the recipes that will really catch your eye. Standard recipe-book favorites such as pot roast, twice-baked potatoes and clam chowder — as well as a number of more unusual and exotic dishes.

Appetizers include Mexican Pizza, Port Wine Cheese Ball and Marinated Vegetables. I served the Overnight Marinated Sweet and Sour Wings at a recent anniversary party for my parents, and they were so good I had to promise to make them again next year!

There are more delectable recipes: Lettuce Soup, Florentine Croissants, Lasagna Rolls, Wine-Braised Polish Sausage and Crab-Stuffed Chicken Breasts. Dessert offerings include a flaming Plum Pudding and a Brandied Apricot Torte, made simple with the use of a purchased frozen pound cake.

The following recipes are from the Corning "Microwave Cooking" booklet. For a copy, send $2 (postage and handling included) to: Corning Microwave Cookbook Offer, P.O. Box 375-CN, Big Flats, NY 14814-0375. (Allow 4 to 6 weeks for delivery.)

Combine sugar, vinegar, soy sauce and ketchup. Pour over wings. Cover and marinate 3 to 4 hours, or overnight in refrigerator, stirring once or twice to coat.

Microwave, covered, at HIGH (100 percent power) 11 to 22 minutes, or until fork tender when checked in several places, pushing center portions to outside of dish after half the time.

Makes 15 to 20 pieces.

FLORENTINE CROISSANTS

1 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 tsps. all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ cup half-and-half
1 tbsps. white wine
2 large croissants or 4 crescent rolls
¼ lb. thinly sliced ham, cut into thin julienne strips

Place spinach in 1-quart round glass casserole dish; cover. Microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) 2½ to 3½ minutes, or until tender, stirring once. Drain well.

Melt butter in 1-pint glass measuring cup at HIGH 30 to 45 seconds. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Blend in half-and-half. Microwave at HIGH 1 to 3 minutes, or until thickened, stirring with a wire whip after 30 seconds. Stir in wine.

Slice croissants in half lengthwise. Spread half of spinach on bottom half of each. Top each with half the ham, one-fourth of the sauce, and top of croissant. Drizzle remaining sauce over croissant. Serves 2.

BRANDIED APRICOT TORTE

1 (10¼-oz.) pkg. frozen loaf pound cake
1 cup apricot preserves
2 tbsps. brandy or apricot brandy, divided
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
1 tbsps. light corn syrup
2 (2 oz.) squares semi-sweet baking chocolate

Trim crust, top and sides from pound cake. Cut lengthwise into thirds. Set aside.

Place preserves in 1-quart glass dish. Cover and microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) 1½ to 2 minutes, or until hot and bubbly. Press through wire strainer into small bowl. Discard pulp. Add 1 tablespoon brandy to strained liquid. Set aside.

To assemble cake, place bottom layer on wire rack. Spread with 2 tablespoons strained preserves. Add second layer and spread with 2 tablespoons strained preserves. Add top layer. Spread top and sides with remaining preserves. Refrigerate 1 hour.

To prepare chocolate frosting, place butter, remaining 1 tablespoon brandy and corn syrup in 1-quart glass measure. Cover and microwave, at HIGH, 1 to 1½ minutes, or until butter melts and mixture just comes to boil.

Add chocolate, stirring to melt. Cool until warm. Spread top and sides of cake with frosting. Refrigerate for about 30 minutes, or until frosting is firm. Transfer to serving plate.

Serves 6 to 8.

Oak butcher block takes special care

Q. I have two problems I need advice on.

My son put a hot skillet on a butcher block drain board, leaving a black spot. Is there any way to remove the burned area?

The other problem is a plywood cabinet I antiqued with a dark color. Now I want to paint it with semigloss paint. Should I remove the old finish or could I sand it instead? — Mrs. E.H.

A. To remove stains and scratches from oiled butcher block, rub the area with fine steel wool or sandpaper. In your case it sounds like removal of the burn spot will require sanding.

Use coarse sandpaper on butcher block made with hardrock maple, and finer sandpaper on most other woods.

Oak butcher blocks should be rubbed with the finest grade of sandpaper. Don't use steel wool on oak as the fibers will snag in the long grain.

After sanding always re-oil the surface. If the butcher block piece is used for preparing food, treat the wood with mineral or vegetable oil.

Otherwise, use linseed oil or oils that are made especially for butcher block.

Rub the oil into the wood surface with a pad of cheesecloth that has been washed to remove the sizing. Allow the oil to soak into the butcher block for one hour, then wipe up the residue with an old soft terry cloth towel. Polish with a soft cloth.

You should be able to finish your antiqued cabinet without removing the old finish. In fact, you should be able to use liquid sandpaper on the present surface. This will clean as well as dull the finish in preparation for painting.

Choose a good quality satin or semigloss enamel and apply one or two coats as required.

Q. We live in an apartment with an acoustic ceiling that hasn't been painted for 26 years.

We would like to paint the ceiling ourselves to lighten the color to match the walls and cover the soiled appearance. The surface is too rough to wash before painting. What products are available for this type of job and how should we tackle this project?

Also, since the ceiling is 26 years old, I worry that it might have asbestos in it. — D.H.

A. Even if the ceiling has asbestos in the material, it shouldn't have enough asbestos content to be a problem.

Your best method of covering the present surface would be to spray paint it. Go over the surface first with a soft-bristle brush to remove the loose dust and dirt particles. Choose any good grade interior flat wall paint and spray on.

Q. How should we go about preparing and painting kitchen walls that have some grease spots on them? How can we keep the grease spots from showing through the new paint?

Thank you for any help you can give us. — R.T.T.

A. Go over the walls with liquid sandpaper, which should remove all soil and the grease spots. This will dull the finish and prepare the surface for a new coat of paint.

For the kitchen area use a good grade satin finish or semigloss enamel.

insurance claim forms, and you are liable for all costs, relying on the participation of Medicare and the Medicare Supplement insurer. You may find some procedures or treatments not funded in a Medicare Supplement policy specifically because it is not covered by Medicare — meaning that in such cases, you might end up with the total medical bill.

Supplement to Medicare: The celebrity on television tells you about the $50, $60 or $100 you can collect for each day hospitalized — as a supplement to your Medicare. This type of coverage is basically a liability for a specific procedure.

In most states this type of coverage cannot be called a "Medicare Supplement" by mandate of the insurance commission, so it is separate from the true supplement-type coverage. If you have an anticipated need for added cash if and when hospitalized, then this type of insurance might warra. Costs can range from $30 to $250 per year depending on the insurance company selected and the rate of reimbursement per day of hospitalization. The rollbacks in Medicare that trim the number of days in the hospital for most senior citizens might reduce the desirability of this type of insurance.

Nursing Home, Cancer or Other Insurance: These and other specialized insurance programs are sold in the insurance field, but might not be necessary if you buy a better Medicare Supplement or HMO coverage.

There have been changes in Medicare, and the medical and insurance professions have had to adapt accordingly. One expert in the senior citizen insurance field, Jules Klownen of Santee, Calif., advises an annual review where you chart out the actual benefits of your coverage, so you understand it completely and so that you may see for yourself if there are any gaps in coverage that concern you.

Insurance to supplement Medicare is still a concern for the individual senior citizen — because the right purchase is based on individual health, financial condition and expectations. It is an on-paper examination that should have your priority for best planning.

TWEEN 12&20

PAGE 134 Friday, September 20, 1985

By Robert Wallace, M.D.

Dr. Wallace: My parents are serious alcohol drinkers. A friend's mother told me I should be going to Alateen to help me cope with my problems.

I think she is confused because I don't have a drinking problem; my parents do. I tasted alcohol on one occasion only and I didn't like it. I doubt I ever will touch the stuff again, especially after observing my parents. — Sid, Sid: Alateen is for teenagers who have been affected by someone else's drinking. It is not for teenage alcoholics or for youngsters addicted to drugs.

At an Alateen meeting, members share their experiences of living with the effects of someone else's drinking. They find they are not responsible for another's drinking and through their mutual sharing are given support on a day-to-day basis.

Most Alateen meetings are closed to adults, except for their sponsors.

Presently, there are over 15,000 Alateen groups in the United States and Canada. This is a wonderful teen-help group.

Please consult the white pages of your local telephone directory or write to Alateen, P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, N.Y. 10159, for further details.

Dr. Wallace: I'm turning to you because I have no one else to depend on. No matter how I feel, your column is always there. I am a faithful reader and respect your opinion. Please help me.

Several years ago my father was in an accident and it left him with brain damage. Because of this accident, my dad has gone from being a model father to a model monster. To be quite honest, he makes it unbearable to live in our house with him. He constantly fights with my mother and me and he is totally unreasonable in his thinking during every waking moment.

I tell my mother to have him committed to an institution but she won't listen. She says that she would feel too guilty if she did.

Things are so bad that I wish my father would pass away. It would be better for everyone. My father is 60 and my mom is only 40, but he is making her look like an old lady. I feel like running away but wouldn't try it because I love my mother very much and I don't want to hurt her.

I am 14, going on 21. I've had to grow up fast just to survive.

Please tell me what to do. If things don't change soon, I'll go crazy. It's impossible for me to continue living this way. — Tanya Tanya: Make arrangements to live elsewhere on a trial basis. An aunt or uncle or grandparents would be best. Then evaluate the situation with Mom after a month or so. Maybe at that time she can do what's best for the entire family, including your father.

If having Dad committed is not the answer, then Mom, with the assistance of professionals (family doctor, clergy, mental health counselor, etc.), should find the answer.

Dr. Wallace: Please settle this family problem.

I'm a 19-year-old college sophomore and I live at home with my parents. I don't smoke, drink, take drugs or indulge in premarital sex.

Our problem is that I must be home at 11 p.m. even though I work until 7:30 every week night. Their excuse used to be that I didn't have a dependable car so they wanted me home early. Now I have a new car but it's the same old story.

My mom gets up at 6 every morning and she says she can't go to sleep until I come home. I realize that she loves me (I love her, too), but it's not my fault that she can't go to sleep until I'm at home. What would she do if I were living on my own?

Mom always has been overprotective but it seems to be getting worse. Who's right in this situation? — Sharon Sharon: As long as you live at home, Mom should set the rules. Eleven o'clock during the week seems reasonable. Of course special occasions and weekends demand a later curfew.

Dr. Wallace: I have a dumb question.

I like to help my mother work in our flower garden because the flowers smell so nice. I was wondering why flowers all smell sweet. Can you tell me why? — Karee Karee: No question is dumb!

The sweet scent of flowers is designed to attract insects (mainly bees) who seek food (pollen and nectar). When the insects visit the flowers in search of the sweet-smelling food, parts of their bodies become dusted with pollen which contains male reproductive cells. This rubs off on the flower's ovule and produces, in time, a new seed.

Mainly for Seniors

By Leonard J. Hansen

Today a question identifies a concern of many mature adults 65 and older.

Q. I am concerned about the changes in Medicare and I believe I need added insurance coverage. Where do I start?

A. There are reasons to examine the changes in Medicare coverage in view of your own anticipated health-care needs. Deductibles have been increased and in-hospital coverages and procedures have been changed.

Medicare has tightened in-hospital stays to a specific schedule, changing the previous practice of using acute care hospitals for less than acute care. You just might find yourself responsible for a larger percentage of your medical bill, from both the adjustment in hospital care and for the added costs that Medicare will not now cover.

If you do have substantial cash reserves, of course, you can co-insure yourself — leaving the money invested to earn interest; but then demanding of it for medical bills if and when the need arises.

The alternatives are several, and very different in concept, coverage and cost. Future columns will define and refine each in some detail, but here is a quick look at insurance to supplement your Medicare in some way.

HMO — Health Maintenance Organization: Today's trend is to health maintenance organizations, and you will find hospitals and medical centers developing new programs. Insurance companies, additionally, are adjusting coverages into the concept of providing total or near-total coverage by using both premium income and Medicare reimbursements for such service, charges and fees. You might have a small charge for office visits, about $2 to $5, or for tests $1 to $5 as your minor added cost participation.

In most HMO programs you will not have to complete any forms or file for insurance-type reimbursements. Annual medical examinations are generally included in the HMO program because this concept can find its lowest actual cost by keeping you healthy. Coverage ranges from $400 to $1,200 annually, depending on your age and the program involved.

Medicare Supplement Insurance: This is an insurance-based concept that provides coverage for the same categories and procedures that Medicare covers, and then on a percentage of what Medicare does not pay. The coverages range from "spartan" (about $300 annually) to the "Cadillac" (at $1,200 or more per year).

In this type of coverage you must complete all the Medicare and inability policy, remitting only on a per-day in the hospital or on a fee

JUNIOR EDITION

Aunt Tilly's Corner

My, oh my, oh my - have you seen the beautiful leaves changing color on the trees? With this lovely weather I had the pleasure of taking a ride upstate and the leaves were beginning to change. I took my 7 year old niece and 9 year old nephew with me and it was the first time they discovered beauty beyond words. The leaves were starting to change to yellow, orange, and other trees were still green. Boys and girls, if you have the opportunity to take a ride upstate or on the Island this weekend, or weekends to come, try to do so!

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Do kittens need daily vitamins?

Q. We recently bought a kitten from a pet store for our children.

The kitten seems to be doing well but my wife and I disagree on whether we should give it daily vitamin supplements. She says that if it's good for the children, it's good for the kitten.

I do not believe that the kitten needs additional vitamins - should we be supplementing its diet with vitamins?

A. It usually is not necessary to supplement the diets of dogs and cats with additional vitamins or minerals if the animals are being fed one of the many commercially prepared balanced pet foods.

The label on pet food formulated to meet all the nutritional requirements for the particular pet it was designed for will state that the food is "complete," "balanced," "perfect" or "scientific." If the label does not state this, you can assume the product is not a complete diet.

The best method to assure that your kitten is getting the proper nutrients is to use commercially prepared complete cat foods. And it is a good idea whenever training a new kitten to select several nutritionally complete cat foods and offer them one at a time for several days in succession. After discovering two or three complete foods that the cat likes, you can use them interchangeably to provide variety at meals.

Dog and cat foods are not interchangeable. Cats require approximately twice as much protein and B vitamins as do dogs. Cats given dog food for long periods often develop symptoms of vitamin A deficiency or other serious illnesses.

Many cat owners believe that growing kittens need supplemental vitamins and minerals. Excessive calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D can adversely affect growth. Overdosing with vitamin D causes bones to calcify abnormally and may cause calcium deposits in the lungs, heart and blood vessels. Excessive levels of vitamin A produce swollen, painful joints and may slow bone growth. Excessive vitamin A also may cause sterility and loss of hair in cats.

Companies manufacturing pet foods spend years and millions of dollars in conducting research and formulating ideal diets. These companies also are regulated by state and federal laws. With today's commercially available complete pet foods it is not difficult to properly feed dogs and cats.
