Vets Checks Multi Colored

Veterans and their families who receive government checks should be aware that a new multi-colored paper check will soon replace the heavy green check which has been used for many years, according to Oyster Bay Town Councilman Angelo A. Delligatti.

"The New York State Division of Veterans' Affairs advises all recipients of VA benefits not to be confused by the color and other changes in the new check and inadvertently throw the check away," Delligatti said. "The families and friends of visually impaired and blind veterans should be cognizant of the fact that the new check resembles the old check in size only, is much lighter in weight and will not have punch holes. The first individuals to receive the new checks in early December will be those who are entitled to monthly social security benefits," Delligatti concluded.

Information regarding veterans affairs may be obtained from the New York State Veterans' Counselor located at Town Hall South, 977 Hicksville Road, Massapequa.

Hearing Date Set For Jericho Condo Application

The Oyster Bay Town Board has scheduled a November 26 hearing date for an application by Foxwood Associates for a change of zone in Jericho, according to Town Councilman Kenneth S. Diamond.

"The petitioner is seeking to rezone 33.67 acres of property from 'B-A', residence district (1 acre, clustered) to 'E-2' residence district (maximum density of 6.2 units per acre)," Said Diamond. "The purpose of the application is to allow for the construction of 162 condominium units with a density of approximately 4.8 units per acre."

The parcel is located on the north side of Jericho Turnpike, east of We're Associates office complex, west of route 107 and bordered on the north by the Meadowbrook Club.

The hearing is scheduled for Tuesday, November 26, beginning at 10 a.m. in the hearing room of Town Hall East, Audrey Avenue, Oyster Bay.

On Sunday, October 27, buses from Hicksville and other towns all over Nassau County took veterans to Washington, D.C. Also present were members of Chapter 82, Nassau County Vietnam Veterans of America. It's for the last nine years of devotion to the cause of those missing and unaccounted for Americans in Southeast Asia that these rallies are important.

Upon arriving in Washington, they joined other groups from New York and surrounding states to show their support for our MIA/POW's. The parade formed at the Vietnam Memorial and with colors flying proudly, marched along Constitution Avenue to Seventh Avenue to Lafayette Park, opposite the White House where the ceremonies were held. While a selected delegation of spokesmen went into the White House, others spoke in the park. The rally was peaceful and quiet and we hope to see results in 1986 of a hopeful nature.

Judith Gurvis, Field Representative of the Mineola office of Social Security was the guest speaker at the Hicksville Rotary Club luncheon meeting at the Milleridge Inn recently. The main focus of her talk was on the Social Security System in general, Medicare and a guide to health insurance and how one's work affects social security checks. She suggested that all eligible recipients request a progress report once every three years from any Social Security office.

Crafts Fair This Weekend

St. Edward the Confessor School in Syosset will come alive with the sights of mountain craftsmanship at the Fourth Annual Appalachian Crafts Fair. The fair, which features hundreds of handmade items from 7 of the 13 Appalachian Mountain states will take place rain or shine on Saturday, November 9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday, November 10 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the school cafeteria. The school is located on the grounds of St. Edward Church, 205 Jackson Avenue.

Colorful quilts, handloomed rugs, and a wide variety of Christmas ornaments and decorations highlight this year's event. All the crafts are made by Appalachian craftsmen who sell their wares in order to support themselves and their families.

All the quilts are made by hand, are available in a variety of axes and patterns, and represent literally hundreds of hours of time and energy. Creators of these works of art include Cora Vest from Kentucky, Lola Bradley from North Carolina, and Pat MacNeal from Pennsylvania.

The rugs are all handloomed and are made by women in North Carolina and Kentucky. Some of them are made using scraps of material, thus creating the traditional rag rug design. Others are made from sock ends and are dyed in a variety of colors. Still others are made from such available materials as men's neckties and women's nylon stockings.

The Christmas decorations are made by women who are members of craft co-operatives in West Virginia and North Carolina. They produce a wide selection of calico and patchwork ornaments, door decorations, and stockings.

Gem, Mineral Show Nov. 16

The 23rd Annual Gem and Mineral Festival presented by the Nassau Mineral Club, a non-profit organization, will be held on Saturday, November 16 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., and on Sunday, November 17 from noon to 6 p.m. at St. Paul's School, Stewart and Rockaway Avenues, Garden City.

The theme of the show is "Long Island". Cases will explain the geology and origin of Long Island along with displays of Long Island Gems and Minerals.

This year we will have Jim Fowler, nationally known master wire wrapper, artist of unique and original jewelry.

Curators from Hicksville Gregory Museum and the Nassau County Museum System, will be present.

On sale at the show will be pearl-bearing oysters, with every oyster guaranteed to contain a pearl. Mountings for the pearls will be available.

Special educational exhibits of gems, minerals, fossils and jewelry will be displayed.

The mini-mine for children will be expanded this year, as will the demonstration area.

The United States Postal Service will provide a philatelic station to cancel a show souvenir card, in conjunction with the restoration of the Statue of Liberty. All proceeds from the sale of souvenir cards will be donated to the restoration fund.

The show has always been an ideal place to purchase holiday gifts at modest prices. The expanded number of dealers will increase the selection of unusual gifts.

Food will be available. Parking is free. Admission is $2.50 - $2. with this article. No charge for children to age 12, when accompanied by an adult.

Library Film

The film, "Soldiers Story" will be shown Sunday, November 10 at 2 p.m. in the Community Room of the library. "Soldiers Story" is an absorbing mystery and investigation into a black soldier's murder at a Louisiana Army Base in the year 1944.

There is no charge for admission and everyone is invited. Children must be accompanied by a parent.

Library will be open November 11 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. No evening hours.

Tina and Hans Licht, residents of Hicksville for a good many years, became partners in more than marriage recently when they opened the Auto Spa of Hicksville at 56 Old Country Road. The Lichts have two daughters, Nancy and Susan, both college students. They extend a warm welcome to their friends and neighbors to visit them for their auto needs.

Mr. & Mrs. Bruckheim Celebrate 60th Anniversary

It was a day to remember for Henrietta and Harry Bruckheim, 83, of Hicksville. Their 60th wedding anniversary was not an ordinary day. It was a day they had a memorable luncheon celebration at the Mid-Island YWHA in Plainview with family and newly found "Y" friends.

The luncheon was held under the Sukkan with an anniversary toast, good cheer, and the traditional cake praising their accomplishment.

Oyster Bay Town Councilman Kenneth Diamond even attended and presented the happy couple with an official "Citation" commemorating the event.

"We are so welcome here," they said. "We feel it is a privilege to have been able to share our celebration with so many terrific friends from the

They praised the work of Ruth Panken, a Mid-Island "Y" staff member in charge of the Older Adult Program, for her work in putting the celebration together.

Prior to the luncheon for 70 guests, the radiant couple sang songs and danced to the "Anniversary Waltz" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

But dancing is old hat for the venerable couple. They met at a Brooklyn social club and married in 1925. They lived in Brooklyn 40 years, raising three children, two doctors and a teacher. Twenty years ago they moved to Long Island where they now spend their time enjoying the Mid-Island Y, bible, music, studying world events and their six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Dutch Lane Halloween Events

Dutch Lane students started off their Halloween day on October 31 in a routine manner. But, at lunch time, many of them went home to get all dressed up in their costumes.

After lunch, the excitement of Halloween began to stir as Class Moms began arriving at Dutch to bring in the treats for the parties. Some of the siblings arrived too!

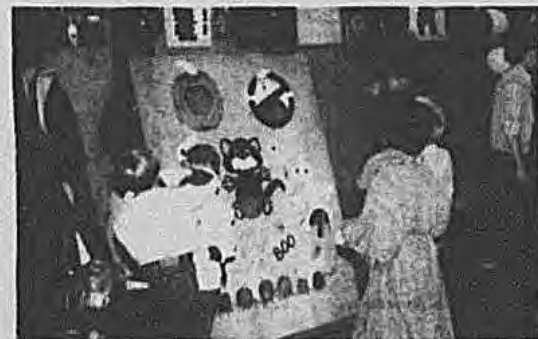

While the parties were going on the PTA Children's Activities

Moms were busy decorating the Cafeteria and Gym for the evening Halloween Party, making sure there would be enough pizza, ice cream, juice and cupcakes, and that things were ready for the clown's show.

Halloween was a success at Dutch Lane for all those who came and for those who volunteered their time, energy and "ghostly" spirits to make this day so successful.

Halloween At Fork La. School

It was Halloween, and the halls were decorated with ghost, goblins and witches. The classrooms however, were full of famous faces, such as Madonna, Draculas, Frankensteins, Care Bear Cousins, Cindy Lauper, Twisted Sister, the Mayor and last but not least, The Boss. The teachers were dressed in very creative costumes, our kindergarten teacher Mrs. Carol Davan was a devil, our first grade teacher, Mrs. Mary Schreck was a bumble bee, Mrs. Evelyn Grib a third grade teacher, was Minnie Mouse. As the teachers lined up their classes the annual parade of costumes got underway, with our principal Mrs. Carol Bentsen leading. Mrs. Bentsen was dressed as a cowgirl. Once the children were back in their classrooms, the parties began.

Our Principal, Mrs. Carol Bentsen, a friend and Betty, the secretary of Fork Lane.

Temples, YM-YWHA Work Together

Presidents of three area temples pledged to work together with the Mid-Island YM-YWHA on mutual concerns and to coordinate activities and implement joint programs "to share with and enrich the Jewish community." Ron Alexenburg, Mid-Island YM-YWHA President, who called the meeting to develop a sense of cooperation among area Jewish agencies, said he was pleased with the spirit displayed at the meeting.

"It was gratifying to sit down and define community goals that are of deep concern to all of us," said Alexenburg. "With the increase in anti-semitism and the terrorist problems in the Mid-East and Israel, it is critical for Jewish agencies to unite on a variety of matters to perpetuate our Jewish heritage."

The leaders of the Bethpage Jewish Center, Plainview Jewish Center, and Temple Or-Elohim in Jericho agreed that there are many mutual areas that could be effectively implemented by joint efforts.

An early project discussed was a Welcome Home Day/Night that would be scheduled during the winter recess for college students returning home from school. Another meeting was scheduled for November 21 to formulate final plans for the initial cooperative venture.

"We hope to have several more temples represented so we can expand the agenda," said Alexenburg. These programs could include expanded singles activities and older adult events and more involvement of our youth "who represent the future of the Jewish community here and abroad," he added.

Libertarians Plan Meeting

The Nassau Libertarians will host scientist Dr. Gerald Campbell of New York University Medical Center on November 18, at 8 p.m. in Hicksville's Jolly Swagman Inn, 100 W. Nicholas Street, 681-8866. Dr. Campbell will present "The Case for Biotechnology." The program is free and open to the public.

Dr. Campbell earned his Ph.D. from Rockefeller University. He will explain what recombinant DNA is, and demonstrate that the hostility towards biotechnology is groundless. Libertarians find the topic of interest because biotechnology is opposed by radical leftist such as Jeremy Rifkin and the right-wing Moral Majority. The Nassau Libertarians offer Dr. Campbell in the hope of adding rationality to public debate on this issue.

Besides Dr. Campbell, the Nassau Libertarians will provide some entertainment in the form of elections for new officers. Voting, of course, will be by dues paid members only, but the public is free to watch. Plans for the coming year's activities will be developed.

The Libertarian Party stands for non-intervention in foreign affairs, a free market economy without subsidies or regulation, and repeal of victimless crime laws. For information, call state party headquarters at (212) 226-6483.

ANTIQU OR JUNQUE

Pottery first used monogram in 1886

By James G. McCollam

Q. Enclosed is a picture of my vase with the mark on the bottom. I know that this was made by Rookwood Pottery in Cincinnati, Ohio, but I would also like to know when it was made and its value.

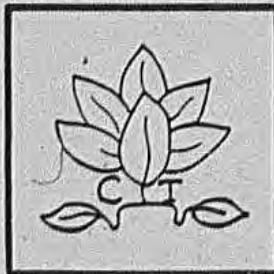

A. The "RP" monogram was first used by Rookwood in 1886. In 1887, they added a flame mark and continued to add them each year until 1900 (for that year the mark had 14 flame marks). In 1901 they added the Roman numeral "I", in 1902, "II," and so on.

Your vase has the Roman numeral XXVIII for 1928, the year your vase was made.

The value would be about $85 to $95.

Q. This mark is on my chocolate set, which consists of a pot and six cups and saucers. It appears to be fine porcelain with hand-painted floral decoration.

Can you tell me anything about its maker, vintage and value?

A. This was made by Carl Thieme in Potschapel, Germany, during the fourth quarter of the 19th century.

It would sell for about $225 to $275.

Q. For almost 50 years, my mother has collected newspaper clippings about multiple births — even the Dionne quintuplets.

It seems to me that this collection might be valuable. What can you tell me about it?

A. Your mother collected the wrong thing. It is the newspaper that has value — not the separate clippings. The nearest thing to a clipping is the entire front page of a collectible newspaper. Its value would be about half that of the whole paper.

Charter Night Held For Hicksville Kiwanis

Charter Night 1985 for the Hicksville Kiwanis Club on October 30 was an outstanding occasion. Hicksville Kiwanians, with their wives and guests, gathered at the Old Lighthouse Restaurant in Hicksville for a sociable evening, to celebrate with the Kiwanis Long Island North Division Lieutenant Governor, Mr. Carlos Nazario, the official installation of the Club's 1985-86 elected officers and directors, the official induction of five new members of the Club, the presentation of two plaques, one to the Immediate Past President James Isaac, and the other to the "Distinguished Kiwanian of the Year 1984-85", Mr. Marcos Ramirez.

After a delightful multi-course dinner, interspersed with considerable joviality, Lt. Gov. Carlos Nazario enjoyed the pleasant function of inducting the five new Kiwanians and seeing that their new "K" pins were properly pinned to their lapels.

The last presentation of the Hicksville Kiwanis Charter Night 1985 program was made to the Hicksville Kiwanian who had spearheaded the Fund Drives to help provide monies to continue the Club's Annual Scholarship Awards program for four high school students from Hicksville going on to college. In the photo, President Dr. Keith Pastuch, on the right, is congratulating Marc Ramirez on his accomplishment, thanking him on behalf of both the Kiwanis Club and the recipients of the scholarships, and presenting him the "Distinguished Kiwanian of the Year Award for 1985".

Fitzmaurice had been selected as Homecoming Queen. Tara Brady was the Junior Princess and Pamela Riscica was chosen Sophomore Princess. The trophy for the best float went to the Junior Class.

Hicksville F.D. Issues Warning

It was recently reported to the Fire Department here in Hicksville that a telephone solicitor insinuated to a local home owner that if they didn't give to the Fire Department ($25 or more) it could affect their fire protection. This statement is an outright lie, high pressure sales tactic. The Hicksville and all other Fire Departments in most of the country respond to calls for assistance for Rescue/Fire situations in their assigned districts regardless of place of residence of the person in need of help. No records are kept, beyond the current fund drive year, of people who contribute or those that choose not to.

The Hicksville Fire Department during its fund drive, has a mailing first, a reminder second, and then what is unaccounted for is done by a uniformed member in person with a photo I.D. card. No telephone contact is made unless requested.

Please take notice that the organization involved goes by several different names. The L.I. Volunteer Fire Department Association, the Volunteer Fire Department Association, General Productions Marketing, Inc., all based on Long Island.

The solicitor, goes on to say the money you pay can be used for an ad in a journal if you are in business. However, the journal is not widely distributed and is of no value to your business. The money donated in no way helps the local firefighters. It usually goes to an organization. The Hicksville Fire Department makes its own donations to the organizations it belongs to and does not encourage or request residents to do so in their name.

Funds donated to the Department are used to run the eight companies, Rescue Squad and Haz Mat Team, Department operations which require us to re-donate the money donated to us, in short the money that comes in goes back out to the community in the form of purchases or donations. The funds are used to make up the difference in loss of pay due to injuries, court appearances not covered by the State Insurance.

This information is presented to you to prevent fraud, courtesy of your Hicksville Fire Department. Any problems or questions can be directed to the Chief of Department, Owen W. Magee, at 20 E. Marie Street, Hicksville. 931-9670.

Safety Tips From Fire Dept.

The Fall season is upon us in all its glory. Along with fall comes the hazards of fire.

We wish to remind residents it is against the County and State Air Pollution Ordinance to burn leaves. By now you should have received instructions from T.O.B. on how to dispose of leaves.

A special fire hazard involving leaves is the danger of parking automobiles over leaves. The new vehicles equipped with Catalytic Converters can ignite leaves easily. The converters reach a temperature of 1500 degrees.

Please exercise caution by not parking over leaves no matter what type vehicle.

Most Input Callers See No Gains In Disarm Talks

Most callers do not think very much progress will result in the current disarmament talks with the USSR in answer to this question: "Will the disarmament talks between the U.S. and Russia have any beneficial effect?" Here are some of the answers:

TALKING BENEFIT

If we expect any complete change in relations between the Russians and the U.S. we will be disappointed. The current talks will do little to change the fears on each side. The only beneficial effect is that the talks are held at all proving that both side thinks that there is something to be gained in talking out differences rather than shooting.

N.R.

NO GAIN

The entire idea that we can sit down at a negotiating table with people who have so little honor that they would invade countries with the idea of annexing them to the Soviet Union is foolish. You cannot make contracts or agreements with each other unless each party is negotiating in good faith. So therefore any agreements will not be upheld and if one side disarms and the other doesn't then that side will be at the mercy of the other. Nothing will be gained.

J.E.

SMALL GAINS

I believe that if we just negotiate small things and then see how each side keeps bargains then we can go on and on until the bigger things can be taken care of. For that reason I do not care if big strides are made during the talks but simply that some movement is made will be enough.

F.W.

EASIER FOR RUSSIA

The Russians have it easier to make agreements with the U.S. than vice versa. The reason is that Pres. Reagan has the press looking over his shoulder often knocking down ideas before they have had a chance to develop. In the Kremlin they do not have to worry about dissent so they can just negotiate what they want. Unfortunately public opinion would soften some of their hard lines but they have none of it. It is hard to believe that any great results will come from these talks.

D.R.

ECONOMIC NEED

No there will be no big changes after the Geneva talks. Both sides are pretty fixed in what they will negotiate and that leaves very little room for getting to the larger issues of nuclear disarmament. We are locked into Star Wars and they worry about this because it means that they are spending so much on weapons that might be useless. While our taxes are kept high their money is used to such an extent that the people are deprived of any of the luxuries that hard working people expect after long years. Russia would like to change all of this but it is afraid to cut down on arms for fear that we would tell them to get out of some countries they now occupy that they think they need.

L.G.

NO FRESH PLAN

There is no one who thinks that the U.S. and USSR can sit down and make fresh decisions that will end the arms race. The really hopeful people only expect that a small movement will arrive and in later talks that something bigger can be done.

NO BREAK THROUGH

This is a tough question to answer primarily because of the vastly different points of view and philosophy between the two superpowers. We don't trust the USSR and they don't trust us and probably never will. Furthermore, I doubt whether we will ever understand what makes the Russian hierarchy tick, and, for that matter, what the average Soviet citizen really feels about his one-party communist government and about contemporary politics in the USSR as it affects him or her. And of course, what kind of mental image he has built up about the United States and its people. With news of the outside world under the control of the government, it would not be unreasonable to expect that the democracies and especially the U.S. are viewed by the average Russian with grave suspicion and perhaps even fear. Logically, it would be hoped that the disarmament talks would permeate and strike a sympathetic nerve within the Soviet rank and file to the extent that a backwash of favorable sentiment would condition the discussions between the US and Russia. But, with a controlled press on the one side and a completely free press as well as freedom of speech on the other, any specific outcome is difficult to foresee. I guess that the most that we could hope for would be that Gorbachev and Reagan hit it off as two individuals and establish some kind of entente cordiale and trust which could help break down the barriers toward subsequent informal opportunities to talk together from time to time as two reasonable human beings. The worrisome status quo has been arrived at over many decades and I visualize no substantial breakthrough in the foreseeable future as a result of the Geneva talks at this moment.

DISCOVERY

Famous People Are Everywhere

By Robert Philpott

Residents of Manhattan often encounter celebrities—usually in restaurants, theaters, discos, and department stores. But someone who merely works in Manhattan also can encounter celebrities—while walking to or from work or taking a stroll after lunch. What follows are impressions of just some of the celebrities encountered in New York City over a period of some thirty years by one commuter from Long Island.

•Red Rolfe, former third baseman of the New York Yankees. Encountered on West 34th Street, outside Macy's. Red Rolfe in retirement is still a tall and burly man, about six feet one and 210 pounds with wide, sloping shoulders that bulged under his navy blue raincoat. His walk was brisk and military: no wasted motion. As we passed each other, he acknowledged my stare of recognition with a quick smile. I still remember his strong face with its snub nose and scattering of freckles, the reddish hair that showed under the brim of his fedora, and his alert, hard, rather sardonic blue eyes.

•Miriam Hopkins, a motion picture actress popular in the 30's and 40's, probably best-known for her starring role in "Becky Sharp". Encountered on upper Fifth Avenue while she was walking downtown with another woman, equally well dressed. Miss Hopkins wore no hat, but was attired in a dark and luxurious fur coat that was probably a black mink. She was also wearing long diamond earrings and a diamond necklace that blended well with her ash-blonde hair and pale complexion and enhanced her cool, business-like demeanor and ultra-fashionable appearance. Her friend was listening earnestly and Miriam was doing all the talking as they passed me. On that wintry afternoon long ago, Miriam Hopkins was the picture of success. (Actresses really know how to dress in those days). She probably could have become a successful businesswoman if she had not become a successful actress.

•William F. Buckley, television host, magazine editor, and novelist. Encountered in a bank on East 23rd Street. I had gone there to cash a check, and got on line behind a blond-haired man somewhat shorter than I. For some reason, he turned around quickly and gave me a dazzling smile. It was Bill Buckley, whose face and voice are probably familiar to millions as a result of his television appearances. Besides having big blue eyes and big white teeth and a pink complexion, Mr. Buckley has a face marred by acne scars. He may be simply too busy to undergo dermabrasion or a chemical face peel. Or maybe he has, and neither procedure was a remedy for his acne problem.

•Billy Moyers, formerly deputy director of the Peace Corps, special assistant and press secretary to Lyndon Johnson, and publisher of "Newsday"; now familiar as a commentator and host on television. Encountered in a coffee shop in Penn Station one spring morning. I was in line to pay my check at the cashier's booth and happened to glance to my right. At the table next to the cashier's booth sat a well-known resident of Garden City, a cup of coffee in front of him, completely absorbed in a copy of "The New York Times" and seemingly oblivious to his surroundings. Bill Moyers in person is easily recognized: mild blue eyes peering from behind rimless glasses, rather thick lips pursed in analytical thought while reading, and that cleft in his chin. My close-up glimpse of Bill Moyers reinforced my previous impression of him: a serious and concerned student of human affairs who not only knows but probably also understands a lot of what is going on in the United States and the world these days.

•Floyd Patterson, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world. Encountered on West 33rd Street, outside Madison Square Garden. Someone across the street also recognized him and shouted, "Hiya, champ!" Floyd waved and smiled at his admirer, and continued walking slowly toward Seventh Avenue, his head slightly bowed, again deep in thought. Floyd Patterson looks in great shape.

He has a hard, square-jawed face, surprisingly long arms, and wide and powerful shoulders. I looked at his hands, the tools of his former trade. They are large, and so are his knuckles and fingers. Floyd Patterson should be able to knock down any man with either of those hands for many years to come.

•Gale Sondergaard, a motion picture actress possibly best-known for her film appearances as the "Spider Woman"; she had better roles in such earlier films as "Anthony Adverse" and "Juarez". Encountered on Fifth Avenue near 26th Street on a warm afternoon in May. I was hurrying uptown to Penn Station. She was sauntering gracefully downtown, possibly to Greenwich Village. I recognized Miss Sondergaard immediately as the tall, black-haired actress with the riveting black eyes whom I had seen as a scheming villainess in numerous films. She was wearing a dark dress with a long, billowing skirt, and sandals on her bare feet; she looked like a gypsy that afternoon. She returned my glance of recognition with a warm, friendly smile, not at all like one of the sinister smiles she was capable of on screen. Gale Sondergaard in real life was a regal, commanding presence, proud and graceful; her riveting black eyes were alert and perceptive and reflected a capacity for ironic amusement.

•Marvin Webster, professional basketball player; a member of the New York Knickerbockers. Encountered on another warm afternoon in May, on Seventh Avenue, near the entrance to Penn Station. I immediately recognized the well-dressed giant who was striding toward me, even though he was wearing sunglasses; it was the "Human Eraser", as he is called. His height alone is enough to make people stare at Marvin Webster and permit easy identification of him. I am six feet tall, but as I passed Mr. Webster I felt like a dwarf: The top of my head must have been on a plane with the bottom of his breast bone. He is every inch of seven feet one. He was wearing a dark brown pinstripe suit that looked tailor-made (come to think of it, all his suits probably have to be), a soft yellow shirt with a button-down collar, a brown and yellow striped tie, and tasseled brown loafers on what could be size 16 feet. Except for his height, Marvin Webster looked like a businessman on his way to an important meeting; he was frowning, apparently deep in thought, and his glance was directed skyward as he strode north on Seventh Avenue.

•Edward I. Koch, Mayor of the City of New York. My encounter with Mr. Koch took place at Penn Station in September, 1980, when he was seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York State, and was almost unavoidable. Standing at the bottom of the escalator I was descending on, shaking hands with all comers, was a smiling and affable Ed Koch. When I reached the mezzanine floor, the Mayor smiled and extended his hand to me. I shook it and said, "L'chaim!" (I couldn't think of an appropriate greeting in Yiddish.) Ed smiled even more broadly—good wishes in Hebrew from the lips of a WASP, yet—and patted me on the shoulder as I turned and hurried to Track 13. Ed Koch is a well-built, surprisingly tall man—about six feet two. His eyes are a deep china blue. On that afternoon in 1980 he had a dark tan and looked fit and rested, as though he had spent three weeks sunning in the Catskills and during that time had not eaten any Chinese food.

•Leopold Stokowski, best known as the conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra; later musical director of the Hollywood Bowl and conductor of the New York Philharmonic. Encountered on the lower concourse at Penn Station, near the Eighth Avenue entrance, on a cold morning in February. Mr. Stokowski was accompanied by a small blonde woman who wore a leopard-skin coat and hat. She was at his left side, holding his left arm and walking slowly because Mr. Stokowski was walking slowly; he guided himself with a cane held in his gloved right hand. He was wearing a long Prince Albert coat and black astrakhan hat, and his neck was encased in a blue paisley scarf.

READER RATINGS

COMPLETE MEAL
You have a new restaurant listed in your reader guide so I had to try it because we generally find that the restaurants are good. The new one to us is the Whalers Inn but we found something funny it is one of the oldest places in the area. It overlooks the harbor right off of Route 25A. And goes back to the whaling days. We thought we would try one of the specialties of the house and had the shore dinner for two. We found that not only is the fish good but it comes with a Greek Salad, soup, potato and vegetable. The dinner tab for two is only $19 and you get fresh fish and all of the trimmings. I do not think that any other restaurant can beat that. The Whalers Inn is tops.

John Peel has come of age as the Prime Restaurant on Long Island for your Bar Mitzvah reception. We'll show you our banquet rooms (you might even want to ask about our outdoor patio overlooking the pool) and take care of all the preparations for up to 300 guests. We offer you a wide variety of menus. And if we haven't got one to suit your taste, we'll create one under your supervision.

Call our banquet manager today and find out why John Peel gets as many "Mazel Tovs" as the Bar Mitzvah boy.

READER RATINGS

Q. Aren't people who never order dessert (and who pooh-pooh others who do) awfully rude when they lean over to "have a taste"?

A. Yes, they are. Constant "tasters" are a big bore for everyone. If they want to taste something so badly, they should order it for themselves.

A. I thought it was standard fare to get at least two vegetables with an entree but last week at the (name omitted) restaurant we were charged extra for vegetables. Is this right?

A. A number of restaurants have changed to charging extra for vegetables, particularly fresh ones, but the safest way is to look at the menu and ask the waiter. Sometimes there are extra vegetables and they are the ones that are given an added charge. But there are some restaurants that charge for every item individually.

Q. Recently, when four of us were dining out-two married couples-one of the husbands left the table for a few minutes. The remaining husband, left with his wife, and the wife of the other, lit the cigarette first of his friend's wife, then of his own. His wife felt that as her escort, he should have lit her cigarette first. Which is correct?

R.T. A. As one woman was left alone, the husband and wife remaining are, in effect, her host and hostess for the moment. Therefore, it was correct for the remaining husband to light the guest's cigarette first, then his wife's.

Q. In a restaurant last week the hostess escorted us to a table right next to the door. When we said that this was not a suitable table, she seemed quite annoyed. Is it not correct to ask for a table to your liking?

T.H. A. The hostess should not have looked annoyed. Evidently she was more interested in her own problems of keeping tables and waitresses busy than serving the patrons. You were quite right. In fact if you had a preference in advance it would not have been out of order to request a particular table although you might have had to wait for it to become available.

Q. In a restaurant we often frequent, they do everything right except one thing. A waiter always comes over with the special of the day but never tells us the price. Now we do not quibble about a few pennies but often these specials are much higher priced than other regular meals. Don't you think the restaurant should tell us the price when making the suggestion?

H.Y. A. We think you are right and we have checked several restaurants and they say that they either have a blackboard, a menu insert or the waiter is told to give the prices. Unfortunately since you only gave the initials we have no way of knowing which restaurant you are referring to or we would contact them. You may show this column to the manager and perhaps he will change his system.

GOOD PERFORMANCE
 What a posh restaurant this Benihana is in Manhasset. It is designed with a beautiful bar and cocktail lounge where you can gather before and after a special meal. We did that last Saturday. Probably most of your readers have been to Benihana, but if there are still some who have not we want to say that we were pleasantly surprised with its new form of entertainment in eating. You see it is not only the food at Benihana but the performance of the chef who is an expert in the use of a knife. You can watch him prepare the shrimp with a few swats of the blade and a steak and all of the other items the people around you get. This is the performance. Then you are surprised that food prepared so quickly and with such acrobatics is so good to eat. We recommend this restaurant. S.C. and M.T.

GOOD RESTAURANT

I'd like to tell you about our experience at the Pompei Restaurant last Saturday night. Our reservations were honored on the dot. We were treated as if we were really special. It was a relaxed atmosphere and the food (Northern Italian) was delicious. This is the first time we have gone to a restaurant and everything went perfectly from beginning to end. I recommend this restaurant to anyone for any occasion. S.B.

ALWAYS GOOD

Lauraine Murphy's is a restaurant that we have gone to for many years and it never lets us down.

Last Saturday we had a short wait for a table but found that it was once again worth it. The fine friendly service was still there. The popover was warm when served and the food, a prime rib entree and an entree of scallops, was deliciously cooked and was fresh. The atmosphere in Lauraine Murphy's is enhanced by the strolling singers who serenade tables on various nights. Your readers should like this one as we do. Thank you for giving us the chance to be a "critic." J.T.

BEAUTIFUL

We have just come from BoMont's in Williston Park. This is a new little restaurant. But it has been decorated beautifully and the food live up to the decorations.

BoMonts features a full menu for lunch and dinner and on Sunday when we went there it featured the most complete menu for Sunday Brunch. The list went from the usual egg dishes to steak and eggs. Instead of the traditional London broil passed off as steak, BoMonts gives you a real strip steak for brunch that in itself would be a meal. But the complete menu for brunch starts with a spicy fruit cup (or a regular one) through bagels and cream cheese or jelly through dessert and coffee plus two drinks. Your day is complete when you leave after brunch. We want to recommend it to all of your readers.

Skyscraper sandwiches

By Verne Palmer

They called him Jemmy Twitcher, although he certainly bore more distinguished titles.

He was both a notorious gambler and an aristocrat — a member in good standing of the court of King George III of England. And while it's doubtful anyone could cite the record of his winnings and losses, he did succeed in achieving a certain immortality.

Jemmy, more properly known as John Montagu, Fourth Earl of Sandwich, was given to 24-hour gambling marathons, and it was during one of these that he grabbed a hunk of meat and slapped it between two slabs of bread — possibly to keep the grease from fouling the cards. Whatever his motivation, he inadvertently started a whole new mode of eating.

Although the combination was to be indelibly linked to his name by 1762, it never achieved the popularity in its country of origin that it did in America.

By the late 1800s, with the introduction of standardized soft white bread, the sandwich had become a staple in the Yankee diet. There were tea sandwiches, toasted sandwiches, open-face sandwiches and hot sandwiches.

Today it's doubtful Jemmy would recognize half the creations that bear his name. They are made on croissants, muffins and rolls, as well as buns, bagels and breads — and the number of fillings is all but endless.

A branch of the University of Wisconsin got the bright idea of staging a sandwich-making competition, and it proved so popular that 30 years later it has spread nationwide and entries pour in each year by the thousands.

If you haven't had a really good sandwich lately you might want to adopt one of the following winners from the University of Wisconsin contest.

ITALIAN STALLION

- 6 (5 oz.) pieces mild Italian sausage
- 2 tbsps. butter or margarine
- 2 cups sliced mushrooms
- 1 cup chopped green pepper
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 6 enriched French rolls
- 2 cups (2 (8 oz.) cans) pizza sauce
- 6 (1 oz.) slices Mozzarella cheese
- 2 tps. oregano
- ¼ tsp. paprika

Simmer sausage in water until done. In skillet melt butter. Sauté mushrooms, green pepper, onion and garlic until tender, about 5 to 7 minutes. Split French rolls. Divide vegetable mixture among rolls. Split cooked sausage and place on top of vegetables. Pour about ¼ cup sauce over each sandwich. Top with slice of cheese. Sprinkle with oregano and paprika. Heat under broiler until cheese melts and begins to brown, 3 to 5 minutes. Garnish with pickles, parsley and choice of potato.

SHENANDOAH

- 12 ozs. bacon, cooked crisp, drained and crumbled
- 12 slices enriched Russian rye bread
- 12 ozs. thinly sliced cooked roast beef
- 1 tbsp. chopped chives

Combine blue cheese and margarine. Cream softened cream cheese; place in small saucepan. Add sour cream, onion, pepper, garlic salt and bacon; heat slowly, stirring constantly, until hot and well blended. Toast bread and spread 6 slices with blue cheese mixture. Top each with 2 ounces roast beef. Spread 2 tablespoons sour cream mixture on each of 6 remaining slices of bread and sprinkle each with ¼ teaspoon chopped chives. Serve open-faced on plate. Garnish with curly endive and tomato slice.

BEEF DILLY

- 12 ozs. thinly sliced corned beef
- 6 crisp lettuce leaves
- 6 (1 oz.) slices Swiss cheese, cut in half diagonally

Butter 12 slices of rye bread on one side. Combine dill relish, sweet pickle relish and salad dressing. Spread pickle relish mixture on buttered side of 6 slices of bread and top each with 2 ounces sliced corned beef. Place lettuce on meat so it extends over bread edges. Place 2 ½-ounce slices Swiss cheese overlapping triangles so tips of cheese extend out from bread ends. Close sandwich with bread, buttered side down.

and cut in half diagonally. Garnish with pickle slice and pineapple chunk on fringed pick.

Toast bread; lightly butter one side. On whole wheat toast, place 2 slices salami; top with cole slaw. Cover with white toast, buttered side up. On top of white toast place 1 slice bologna and 2 tomato slices. Top with pumpernickle toast, buttered side down. Combine cheese, egg, mayonnaise, pickle relish and mustard. Spread mixture on top of sandwiches. Heat sandwiches in 400 F oven or under broiler until bubbly and golden brown. Let sandwiches stand for 1 to 2 minutes for topping to set. Garnish with dill pickles and radish roses on endive.

A quick way to spice up a dish

By Paul Bensea and Evander Preston

Of all the thousands of foods that humans eat, none has been the subject of more myths and misconceptions than garlic, and none is a quicker or more dramatic way to spice up an otherwise bland recipe.

Every B-movie buff knows that garlic, along with a crucifix, will ward off the unwelcome advances of a vampire. Wearing a necklace of garlic cloves, according to Middle European folklore, will prevent colds and flu.

The ancient Egyptians were the first to record their use of Allium sativum in recipes. The English name comes from the Old English "garleac," or "spear-leek," so called because of the plant's spear-shaped leaves.

The Chinese developed many ways of altering and taming garlic's flavor by combining it with other ingredients. A mixture of garlic and black bean sauce, for example, is used very frequently in Oriental cooking, and the combination has a unique flavor that is not reminiscent of either of the ingredients.

Not many people in this country still accept as fact the more far-fetched of the traditional garlic myths, but many still hold an opinion as wrong-headed as any of the old wives' tales — namely the belief that garlic is always a strong-tasting ingredient that leaves you with a breath that would put off even Dracula.

Two of today's recipes call for amounts of garlic that may dismay the fainthearted, but they are both examples of one of garlic's lesser-known qualities: When roasted, garlic takes on a completely different flavor — a mild, nutty taste, very unlike the strong flavor that it imparts to many familiar sauces and dressings.

A number of California restaurants serve roasted heads of garlic. Spread over hot, buttered French bread, the pulp of the roasted garlic cloves makes a rich, delicious accompaniment to seafood or meat dishes. Usually, the cloves of a head of garlic are separated before they are used, but here the entire head is cooked together. For this presentation it is very important to use the freshest garlic available.

Forty Cloves of Garlic Chicken might sound like a recipe that will cause your neighbors to evacuate, but the roasted garlic cloves impart a distinctive and surprisingly mild flavor to the sauce.

Our final recipe for today includes garlic in a more familiar guise, as part of the stuffing for baked tomatoes, along with bread crumbs, parsley, Parmesan cheese and olive oil. The resulting dish is excellent with Italian foods as well as with almost any meat, seafood or poultry entree. We have allowed two medium tomatoes per person, but if you plan to serve other vegetable dishes as well, you may want to reduce the recipe by half.

ROASTED HEADS OF FRESH GARLIC

8 whole heads fresh garlic
4 tbsps. olive oil
1/2 tsp. salt
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
1/2 cup drippings from beef
or lamb (optional)

With sharp knife, cut off stem and approximately top quarter of garlic heads, so that you see a cross-section of cloves. Rub each head of garlic with olive oil, and place in greased baking dish. (If you are cooking garlic with roast leg of lamb or roast beef, place garlic heads in roasting pan.) Drizzle remaining olive oil over heads of garlic, and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add meat drippings to pan (if applicable).

Roast 20 minutes in 400 F oven, then reduce heat to 375. Baste every 15 to 20 minutes with oil and meat juice (if applicable).

Garlic will be done in an hour. If you are cooking heads of garlic with meat that needs to cook longer, remove garlic at end of first hour of cooking time and keep warm.

Serve heads of garlic on individual plates, along with hot, buttered French bread. The pulp is scooped out of garlic cloves and spread on bread.

Serves 8 as an appetizer.

FORTY CLOVES OF GARLIC CHICKEN

1 (2 1/2-3 1/4 lb.) frying chicken
40 unpeeled garlic cloves
1/2 cup dry white wine
1 recipe pan sauce (recipe follows)

Place chicken in large roasting pan and arrange garlic cloves around perimeter of pan. Roast for 25 minutes per pound of chicken at 375 F, with breast side of chicken down.

After first 20 minutes of cooking, pour wine over chicken, and a bit over garlic. Baste often.

Halfway through cooking time, turn chicken over, so that breast side faces up.

When chicken is done, remove to platter, keep warm and prepare garlic pan sauce.

GARLIC PAN SAUCE

1/2 cup chicken stock
1/2 cup whipping cream
40 garlic cloves (cooked with chicken)
Salt and pepper to taste

Skim fat from pan in which chicken was roasted, and mix with chicken stock and cream to make gravy. Boil 2 to 3 minutes. While gravy is heating, pop cooked garlic cloves out of skins and puree in blender. Stir garlic puree into sauce and season with salt and pepper.

Serve sauce in gravy boat or pitcher. Rice is a good accompaniment, and the recipe should yield sufficient sauce for both chicken and rice.

TOMATOES WITH GARLIC AU GRATIN

8 medium tomatoes
1 1/2 cups fresh bread crumbs
4-6 cloves garlic, finely
chopped
6 tbsps. fresh parsley,
chopped
1/2 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
Salt and pepper to taste
1/2 cup olive oil

Core tomatoes with tip of sharp knife and cut top off each tomato. Scoop out seeds and juice and arrange tomatoes in shallow baking pan.

Mix bread crumbs, garlic, parsley, cheese, salt and pepper and stuff tomatoes loosely with mixture.

Drizzle olive oil over tomatoes and cook 15 to 20 minutes in 400 F oven, until top of stuffing is golden brown.

Serves 4.

For some reason, he stared quizzically at me as we passed each other. His long hair was still white, of course. His eyes were a clear, pale blue and reflected wonderment and intelligence and sensitivity and pain—and some fear; the maestro was then near the end of his long life.

•S. J. Perelman, one of America's truly great humorists; best known for his witty, acerbic, and satirical pieces in "The New Yorker". Encountered on a hot, muggy day in August on Park Avenue South, just below 23rd Street. I was taking a walk after lunch and happened to notice a well-dressed man who, amid the rush and roar of Monday traffic, was strolling casually uptown on the concrete median strip that prevents a lot of traffic accidents on Park Avenue South. The casual stroller, who in the muggy heat was wearing a coconut straw hat and a suntan suit complemented by a chocolate brown shirt and a brown and white tie, was immediately recognizable as S. J. Perelman; there was no mistaking those dark and heavy eyebrows, the gold-rimmed glasses, and the wide and heavy mustache. Mr. Perelman was surprisingly tall and surprisingly slender—about six feet one and possibly no more than 160 pounds; he looked so slim and yet so fit that he could have been a practitioner of yoga.

•Margaret Hamilton, a motion picture actress probably best known for her role as the Wicked Witch of the West in "The Wizard of Oz"; also familiar to a later generation as "Cora" in a series of coffee commercials on television. Encountered on a rainy day in April at Madison Square Post Office on East 23rd Street, where I had gone to buy some stamps and mail a letter. As I walked to a service counter to stamp my letter, I noticed a small woman standing at the counter. Her back was toward me, and she was intently writing something. She wore a dark blue hat and a dark blue raincoat.

As I reached the counter, I glanced at the small woman in the dark blue raincoat and saw that she was Margaret Hamilton. She was wearing horn-rimmed glasses, but that profile—that nose—was unmistakable; it was the Wicked Witch of the West, some forty years older, who was standing next to me and writing a letter. I knew she lived nearby, for on a previous visit to a hardware store on Lexington Avenue at 24th Street I had seen an autographed picture of her on the wall behind the cash register. I can remember asking Marty, the store manager, "Is that Judy Garland's friend?" Marty said, "Yeah, that's Margaret. She lives in Gramercy Park. Comes in all the time. A very nice lady."

I no longer work in New York City, but I would rush there with a loaded camera if I knew I had a good chance of encountering any one of five more celebrities. By some strange coincidence, each is female and each is an actress. In random order (how could I be selective?) they are: Meryl Streep, Gina Lollobrigida, Sofia Loren, Catherine Deneuve, and Lauren Hutton.

Microwave Magic

By Desiree Vivea

Soup it up!

There's an autumnal nip in the air, and chillier weather to follow in the months ahead. This is the time of year when a steaming bowl of soup tastes best.

It's nice to have a pot of homemade soup simmering all afternoon on the stove, but if you don't have the time (and not many of us do these days), your microwaves can turn out a variety of short-order soups with a minimum of effort. And you'll love your microwave for heating up leftover soup, since it can be heated right in the bowl or mug.

A flavorful soup stimulates the appetite, making it an excellent choice as a first course. Or serve with a sandwich, hot bread or salad for a hearty and nourishing meal.

If soup terminology leaves you puzzled, here's a quick rundown:

— A "bisque" is a rich, creamy soup usually made from shellfish, chicken or strained vegetables.

— "Bouillon" or "broth" means a thin, clear soup made by boiling meat or vegetables in water.

— A "chowder" is a thick, hearty stewlike soup. Favorite varieties in this country are clam and corn chowder.

— "Pottage" is another stewlike soup, made of vegetables or vegetables and meat.

HEARTY SUCCOTASH SOUP

- 3 tbsps. butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup minced onion
- 2 tbsps. flour
- 1/4 tsp. pepper

- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1/4 tsp. each celery seed and dried crumbled sage
- 1 1/2 cups diced potatoes
- 1 (16 oz.) can succotash, drained
- 4 slices cooked bacon, crumbled, or 4 tbsps. commercial bacon bits

Combine butter and onion in 1 1/2-quart glass casserole. Cover and microwave 3 minutes on HIGH (100 percent power). Stir in flour and pepper, blending well.

Cover and microwave 1 minute on HIGH, then stir in milk, chicken broth, celery seed, sage and potatoes. Microwave, covered, on HIGH 8 minutes, stirring after 4 minutes.

Add succotash, stirring well to combine. Cover and microwave on HIGH 3 minutes longer, or until heated through and vegetables are tender.

Serve soup hot, garnished with crumbled bacon or bacon bits. Serves 4.

BETTER CHEDDAR CHOWDER

Stir in cheese. Microwave, covered, 4 minutes longer, stirring after 2 minutes. Let stand, covered, 3 minutes. Stir again before serving.

Wine Talk

Time tames a coarse wine

By Dan Berger

"Whereas Burgundy is King and Claret is Queen, and Champagne is a gay old multimillionaire, the Maid of Honor from the Rhone Valley is not above sitting with you on a grassy bank and adding magic to a lunch of bread and cheese."

Julian Street in "Wines," 1933

Ask a wine lover what his greatest wine experiences were and likely as not he'll tell you it was with red Burgundies or red Bordeaux (called Claret in London).

But ask a wine lover whether he'd prefer to consume a young Burgundy or Bordeaux or a 20-year-old red Rhone, regardless of vintage, and the knowledgeable sipper will opt for the latter.

Rhones aged carefully until mid-life and beyond can be glorious. They become complex, with a slight hint of orange peel in the aroma, faint tones of cedar and nutmeg hovering in the neighborhood, and a taste that is silky and luscious — perfect for a peasant lunch.

Yet these Rhones are unpleasant beasts when they are young. They are not terribly likable soon after they are released. Young, they taste sour, bitter, acrid and coarse. They challenge the roof of the mouth, assault the palate and make you wonder what you have done to yourself, and if it's curable.

Yet with a bit of bottle age they take on a finesse undefinable. Julian Street wrote, "It can almost be said that no (other) wine improves so much in the bottle. They need at least 10 years to lose their hardness and reach balance, and better 15 than 10."

Gerard Jaboulet lifted his glass and took a sniff. His eyes closed, and he took a sip, and then he let out a long, satisfying "Ahh." It was clearly no act; the man loves his wine.

As the owner, proprietor and dominant force of Paul Jaboulet Aine, this man makes arguably the best red Rhone wines, and he probably drinks more red Rhones — his and his neighbors' — than anyone. So for him to grow ecstatic over a wine he has known since it was born may seem like a performance intended to impress the local wine columnist.

Yet spending a bit of time with Gerard, it's clear he is constantly amazed by his own creations. He relishes the wine — as it tastes alone and how it matches with good food; he balloons with pride at another's excitement over his handiwork. And yet he still praises his neighbors and keeps in perspective the fact that this is, after all, just a glass of wine, not a cosmic experience to be discussed in hushed tones and 25-cent words.

The surprising thing about Jaboulet's exclamations of greatness is that the wine he was tasting at this particular moment of passion was his 1983 Jaboulet Hermitage La Chapelle, not some ancient, elegant, nearly decadent bottle.

Yes, he admitted, drinking a 1983 wine at this early stage was infantile, yet he wanted to display the charms of the vintage.

The 1983 harvest was a monumental one in terms of quality throughout most of France, and in the Rhone it yielded wines of such concentration, power and richness that even in a wine as young as the La Chapelle, I could tell: This was a wine to lay away and hold onto for the prescribed period.

"The '78 was super. But this wine has more fruit, more elegance," said Jaboulet. "This wine is rich, like the '61. The '78 has more power, but this wine..."

He sipped again. "I never open these kinds of wines in less than 10 years. If I drink them at eight years, I must have it with strong cheese, never with food."

To be sure, at $25 a bottle, this is expensive wine, but considering it's probably the best wine made in all of the Rhone, it may be thought of as a value.

Moreover, the wine is in such high demand around the world that it's on strict allocation. Jaboulet and even some of his neighbors recognize Hermitage La Chapelle as the greatest achievement of the Rhone, and the word has gotten to wine lovers in London, Brussels, Paris, Amsterdam.

For a less expensive glimpse into the style of wine this is, try the 1983 Jaboulet Saint-Joseph "Le Grand Pompee" ($8). The amazing thing about this wine — the baby brother of Hermitage, made from the same variety of grape (syrah) — is that few people outside France have ever heard of it.

"Ten years ago, there were only 3,500 hectoliters (about 90,000 gallons), of Saint-Joseph made, but today there are 20,000 hectoliters (more than a half million gallons)."

The increase, he said, was due to the realization that the steep slopes of Saint-Joseph, where tractors cannot go, produce great wine. And the 1983 Jaboulet Saint-Joseph is exceptional — peppery, rich and laden with Far East scents, but smooth on the palate. Another long-lived gem.

A third find was Jaboulet's 1983 Crozes-Hermitage, another cousin of the famed La Chapelle.

"This is the best we have ever done in Crozes-Hermitage," said Jaboulet, sipping.

At $10, it is excellent value, with a deep, rich, complex syrah taste.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q. In the past I recall reading in your column instructions for making "logs" from old newspapers. I have misplaced these. Could you run this information again? — Mrs. LL.

A. I would be happy to include instructions for those excellent logs that are a good example of recycling made practical and easy. They are fairly easy to make from rolled-up newspapers soaked in a salt solution and thoroughly dried. To make the logs you only need these items:

— Newspapers, magazines and scrap paper of all types (a good use for junk mail).

— Two pounds each of coarse salt and borax.

— Heavy twine.

— Transparent tape.

— A 4- or 5-gallon non-metallic container — earthenware, enamelware or plastic not affected by boiling water are recommended.

First make the solution. Put the salt and borax into the container. Pour in 2 gallons of boiling water, stir vigorously to dissolve the solids as much as possible. Let the solution cool, stirring from time to time.

Now make the logs. Use newspapers alone, or newspapers with a rolled-up magazine core, or newspapers with scrap papers distributed evenly between the larger sheets, or magazines alone.

Whatever you use, make a paper pile that is thicker in the center than at the ends. Start at one end and roll up very, very tightly to form a log about 3 inches in diameter. The tighter the roll the denser the finished log will be and the longer it will burn in your fireplace.

Secure the roll with transparent tape while you tie it at the ends and center with heavy twine. Since tape loosens and falls off, it cannot be used alone.

To soak the logs, stand them on end in the solution in the container. Put in as many as you can without crowding or causing overflow. The solution should rise to the top of the container; if it does not, add warm water to fill.

Let the logs soak for about 24 hours. Add 2 quarts of warm water and turn the logs upside down. Let soak, turning several times, for two or three days or until all liquid has been absorbed.

Remove from the container and lay on paper in a warm place; let dry thoroughly, about two weeks.

You can also make paper "kindling" by crumpling single sheets of newspaper. Dip them into the solution prior to soaking the logs. Remove and squeeze tightly. Set aside in a warm place to dry thoroughly.

Use your newspaper logs just as you would use regular logs in your fireplace.

Q. I have white aluminum siding on my house. My problem is that I have awnings on the front porch that splattered dirt onto the siding. I haven't been able to get the siding clean. There are large black spots of dirt. Can you suggest a solution? — J.T.

A. Try using a solution of two-thirds cup trisodium phosphate mixed with one-third cup detergent, 1 quart household bleach and 3 quarts warm water. Wash the siding with this solution using a stiff brush. Rinse with plenty of clear water. If the stains remain, you may find it necessary to refinish the surface using a mildew-resistant paint.

So, if you consider yourself a victim of those who have moved away or don't telephone, have passed on, are of limited resources — or other — consider these ideas for your possible planning now for this coming holiday season.

• Get a Job — There are more part-time and temporary jobs available in stores, restaurants and other businesses to handle the increased holiday business. Teenagers, those typical temporary and part-time holiday workers, are fewer in numbers, so there should be more opportunities. And more businesses are looking for older adult workers for greater reliability, punctuality, loyalty and dedication to a job. Be a vital part of the holiday spirit by working at a bakery, florist, department store or even a fast-food restaurant.

• Volunteer — The holiday season can be a time of stress for many people, and your volunteer participation can be a great assistance at the YMCA/YWCA, children's homes, charitable organizations, the Salvation Army or the like. You can better your own holidays by making holidays better for others.

• Contact a Friend a Day — Go through your personal telephone booklet to find others who would love to receive a letter or telephone call. Contact people to renew positive friendships.

• Get to a Senior Citizen Center or Program — If you're not already involved in a senior citizen center or its activities, get involved. If you don't know where to find a senior citizen center in your area, telephone your local government office, the Area Agency on Aging, the United Way, a church organization or even the club news editor of this newspaper. One or all will have names and contacts for you. Go to the club or center with expectations of new friendships and opportunities, and you will find them.

TWEEN 12 & 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 13-year-old girl with a very big problem. You see, I live with my dad and my stepmom, who is much too strict. I like Jimmy and want him for a boyfriend but my stepmom says no because she thinks I'm too young to be seriously interested in boys.

Last year when I lived with my real mother and my dad, I was allowed to have a boyfriend. Now someone is trying to change my lifestyle. I do not enjoy living with someone who pushes me around, especially if that someone is not my relation. My dad is nice and doesn't mind if I have a boyfriend, but he gets overruled by my stepmom.

I've talked to my stepmom about this problem and how things were before she moved in, but all she does is smile and tell me that she had to make a few changes.

Help! — Barbara

Barbara: Being a stepmother can be a very demanding and challenging role. The first time she issues an unpopular rule, the teen may say or at least think, "My real mother wouldn't have made this rule," or, "Who does this outsider think she is, making this stupid rule?"

Your stepmother was well aware that she was going to share the responsibility for your upbringing when she married your father. Naturally, she will make unpopular decisions concerning your lifestyle, but that would include anyone who would disagree with your desires.

Your stepmother appears to have your best interest as a foremost priority. Give her a chance. Do your best to keep the lines of communication open. Talk to her often about everything important to you. Always make requests — never make demands.

Remember that things can't always go your way. But with lots of smiles, happiness and love on your part, your stepmother will see things much more positively concerning your lifestyle.

Dr. Wallace: I am 19 years old but I still live at home with my parents because of financial reasons, even though I have a full-time job.

I've been employed by a company since I graduated from high school a little over a year ago. The people I work for are very nice but I hate the work that I do. Every morning I despise walking into the office.

I've talked to my parents about quitting but they are against it. They feel 16 months is not long enough to make a decision on whether I like it or not, but I feel 16 months is actually too long.

Since I'm the person working, I feel I should be permitted to quit so I can go out and find another job, one I could enjoy. My parents feel that before I quit this job I should have another one lined up. It's like I'm in a "Catch 22" situation.

I'm rather cautious and I don't want to do anything wrong. That's why I'm writing to you for your advice. Would you do it my way or heed the words of my parents? — Tammy Tammy: Give your two-week notice and quit. Now is the time to experiment with different job opportunities. You might not have the chance once you are out on your own.

Dr. Wallace: I am 16 and in love with Jimmy, who is a year older than I. The problem is that we don't date because we are step-sister and stepbrother.

My parents were divorced two years ago and I live with my mother. My father remarried about a year ago and Jimmy is the son of my stepmother. I visit my father every other week (that's how I met Jimmy) and of course I see Jimmy there, but we do not date.

My mother and father do not speak and if my mother knew that I had a thing for Jimmy she would be very upset. Of course as time goes on, if Jimmy and I plan to date regularly, I will tell my mom the whole story. But this is not the time.

I know it's not against the law for step-sister and stepbrother to marry but I'd still appreciate hearing what you and, if possible, the teen guest writers think about this. — Kim

Kim: Several years ago I answered a similar letter from a teen who wanted to marry his step-sister and I informed him it would be better if he found a wife who did not have so close a family tie. I was bombarded with letters from readers who had indeed married their stepbrother or step-sister and were having a very successful marriage.

After a little thought I changed my view. So my answer to you is go for it. But the idea of seeing Jimmy without your mother's knowledge is unacceptable. — Dr. Wallace

Mainly for Seniors

By Leonard J. Hansen

The crispness in the autumn air and the earlier nightfall each day are setting the stage for the holiday season.

For many senior citizens it can be a warm, satisfying and fulfilling time. But for some other older adults who assume it will be lonely, empty and unhappy, it will be just that. The choice, in most cases, is up to the person.

Almost everyone can make that period from Thanksgiving through New Year's positive and enjoyable. We raise the question early enough for your reading and consideration, perhaps to spark your thinking, consideration, resolutions and plan making.

We address first ideas for those who already consider the holiday season to be an opportunity, a positive time. To those of you who classify yourselves in that category, consider the following ideas:

• Take a Trip — There are fine cruise and tour opportunities for singles, couples and even small groups of friends in the adventure of travel. Or consider a destination that you've always wanted to see for your seasonal celebration: to the world-famed Empress Hotel in Vancouver, British Columbia, for its traditional Christmas celebration; to New York City and the festive Rockefeller Center; to a ski resort; to the Sunbelt to escape the cold of winter; to wherever or whatever is your dream.

• Visit a Friend or Family —

Plan to go where you'll be invited to share time and living with friends or family, not just for a few days, but longer. Escape for a few weeks visiting friends and relatives along your self-determined itinerary. For those that you'll not visit, plan time for writing letters or making telephone calls.

• Bring People to You — Invite family or friends to visit you, making sure it is "potluck" style so you are not exiled to the kitchen throughout the holiday season.

• Make a List of 10 Things You Want to Do — And then do them — fun things, creative things, corrective things, memorable things.

This list could go on, like a catalog of things to see, buy and do. But, what if you see yourself as unable to do the above? Then what?

The holiday season is what we make it. That "we" is us, ourselves, you, me, individually.

Too often we have seen senior citizens assume that the holiday season will be dull, lonely or dreary because children and relatives have moved away, because friends and relatives have died over this past year, because there is not an abundance of cash to take a whirlwind trip around the state — not even considering a whirlwind cruise or tour around the world.

In interviewing sociologists, psychiatrists and psychologists over the years we have learned that "change" is not necessarily bad. Change can actually provide new opportunity.

JUNIOR EDITION

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Even though it's not yet Thanksgiving, a little girl I know is already thinking about Christmas! She wants to write a letter to Santa telling him everything she wants.

My little friend is only three, however, so Mom will have to do the writing for her. So far, her list includes a doll, crayons and records, but it is growing every day.

Mom tells her Santa is watching, so young Karen is on her best behavior these days!

Can cats get a dog's disease?

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Can cats get heartworm disease? We live in an area where heartworms are very common in dogs. However, no one seems to worry about the disease in cats.

If cats do suffer from heartworm disease, what are the signs? If this is a potential problem, how can we protect our cats?

A. Until just a few years ago, it was thought by most veterinarians that heartworm disease did not occur in cats. However, it is now known that cats are susceptible to infestations.

While cats are relatively easy to infest with heartworms in experiments, it has been difficult to establish the true incidence of the disease. It is possible that the disease is transient in cats. In other words, infested cats may clear themselves of heartworms, live normal lives thereafter and never exhibit any outward signs of the disease.

The same blood tests that are commonly used in dogs to detect heartworms can be used in cats. However, the number of infective larvae from the worms is usually fewer in cats and therefore more difficult to detect. The chances of detecting heartworms by doing only one blood test are less in cats than in dogs.

Heartworms are capable of causing serious illness and death in cats. Adult worms live in the heart and major arteries that carry blood from the heart to the lungs. Therefore, the circulation of blood is mechanically blocked and the blood is not properly oxygenated. Heartworms have been seen in other organs of the body too, including the brain.

Depending on the site of the worms, all of the following problems have been reported in cats suffering the disease: coughing, difficult breathing, persistent sneezing, vomiting, diarrhea, lack of appetite, yellowish discoloration of mucous membranes in mouth and around eyes, lethargy and head tilting. There are many other diseases that also cause the same signs in sick cats.

Although no specific treatment programs have been established for heartworms in cats, most researchers currently advise using the same drugs used in the treatment of dogs. Treatment is not without risk; therefore, the cat must be hospitalized and observed closely.

Some researchers advise putting cats on preventive heartworm programs. This involves medicating the cat's food daily during the mosquito season, beginning approximately one month prior to and continuing for two months following, since the disease is spread by mosquitoes.

Your local veterinarian can advise you regarding the risks of heartworm disease in your cats. There is still much research needed to establish the importance, treatment and prevention of heartworm disease in cats.
