Roger Nienaber, Hicksville Division General Manager/Postmaster, was one of 271 Hicksville postal employees who donated blood in this year's blood drive for Long Island Blood Services. Nancy Anderson, Field Representative for the Blood Services thanked Rolf Huebner, Hicksville's Drive Coordinator, for this year's successful drive. ## National Merit Semi Finalists

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation has released the names of local students who have been named semi-finalists in the current merit program. The semi-finalist list has been made from over 1 million students who took the exams in 19,000 schools. The semi-finalists list includes students who can advance to winner of a Merit Scholarship.

To be considered for Merit Scholarships, these Semifinalists must advance to Finalist standing by documenting high academic performance, being endorsed and recommended by their high schools, taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test and confirming their qualifying test performance, and submitting information about their school and community activities, personal interests and goals. About 90 percent (or 13,500) of the Semifinalists are expected to meet the rigorous standards required to become Finalists in the Merit Program and to compete for one of several types of Merit Scholarships to be offered in 1987.

Crossing Guard Possible For Hazardous Intersection

Mrs. Nayda Kittick, the mother of a fourth grader who lives on Edward Avenue and must attend East Street School, has requested bus service for her daughter from the Hicksville Board of Education to no avail.

Busing regulations require that kindergarten through third grade children must live more than one-half mile from school to be eligible for bus service. Fourth through sixth graders, however, must live more than 3/4 of a mile away. The Kitticks fall short by one-tenth of a mile for eligibility.

Voters defeated a referendum on the ballot in May which would have entitled all elementary school students living more than 1/2 mile away to be entitled to bus service as well as changes at the junior and senior high school levels.

The school district is standing pat. Voters defeated the proposal and changes are not planned. However, according to Lt. Tagle at the Second Precinct, schools are solicited throughout the county during the summer for crossing guard requirements. There were none received for that particular intersection - Old Country Road and New South Road.

The Lieutenant also said that a letter had been sent by Mrs. Kittick to County Executive Francis Puocell and he, in turn, turned the matter over to Police Commissioner Samuel Rozzi. The Second Precinct is in the process of conducting a traffic survey at the site and their findings will be submitted to Commissioner Rozzi shortly.

Individual citizens' requests for crossing guards are not as quickly acted upon as a schools. "Everyone would be asking for a guard on their corner" Tagle said. A request from the school in question would carry more weight but the survey would have to be made in any case.

Meanwhile a call to East Street, the East Street PTA and the school's public relations office has turned into a deadend. Everyone seems to be waiting for someone to direct them to place a request to the Police Department. Mrs. Kittick sums it all up "nobody's responsible - they just keep passing the buck."

President of the School Board, William Bennett, advised that a letter was in the mail to Assemblyman Fred Parola and Senator Ralph Marino requesting their sponsorship for legislation to allow districts to decide hazardous sites thus enabling them to give transportation to youngsters when the demand became necessary.

V.F.W. Explains Veterans Benefits

The following questions and answers have been supplied by P.P.C. Conrad Steers, a member of the V.F.W. Post 3211 in Hicksville.

Q - I am a 67 year old veteran with limited income. I have applied for a non-service-connected pension. Do I have to prove to the VA that I am disabled?

A - No. Permanent and total disability for pension purposes is presumed at age 65.

Q - My brother was a disabled veteran. I was appointed his guardian by the VA. His compensation checks came to me. He died last month and I would like to use the check that came at the end of the month to pay some of his bills. Can I do this?

A - No. A veteran's entitlement to disability pension or compensation terminates at the end of the month prior to his death. Checks received after the death should be returned. The person who pays the funeral expenses may be eligible for a burial allowance. Reimbursement for medical expenses may be made only if accrued compensation payments are available.

Q - Does the Veterans Administration offer assistance for rent, utilities, food, etc?

A - No. The VA has no resources for these forms of assistance. You may wish to contact a local veterans affairs or social service office.

Q - I have a VA insurance policy with a large loan on it. I have elected a lifetime annuity for the beneficiary. I know that this will reduce the amount of the payments if I die. Is there anything the beneficiary can do to receive the lifetime annuity?

A - Yes. The loan may be paid up after death by the beneficiary to receive the lifetime annuity. Other options, which could be of greater value to the beneficiary, will be explained when the claim is received.

Q - Does the law provide for a monthly benefit to the wife and children of a veteran if the veteran disappears?

A - The law makes no direct provision for a benefit for dependents of a veteran who disappears. Depending on the circumstances of the disappearance, if the veteran was entitled to benefits at the time of the disappearance, the VA may pay a special benefit for the veteran's dependents. After seven years, the VA may consider death claims based on a disappearance. The VA must, however, consider the circumstances behind the disappearance before deciding whether death benefits may be granted.

appearance before deciding whether death benefits may be granted.

Q - My husband died on active duty. How long must we have been married in order for me to receive benefits from the VA?

A - If a veteran is married prior to serving in the military or while on active duty, no restrictions on the length of the marriage apply for eligibility for survivors benefits for spouses. If a veteran marries after release from service certain rules apply. Generally, if the marriage was for a year or longer, the spouse will qualify. Under certain conditions length of the marriage is immaterial; for example, if the veteran and spouse had a child.

Q - Will the VA furnish a grave marker for a person who died in military service and whose remains have not been recovered or identified?

A - Yes. A memorial headstone or marker may be furnished on application of a close relative recognized as the next of kin to commemorate any eligible veteran.

Q - Is it necessary for me to inform the Veterans Administration of my new address if my monthly benefit check is handled by "direct deposit"?

A - Yes. Failure to keep the VA notified of your current address could result in your missing important correspondence sent to your address of record.

Q - Why are "points" charged on VA loans?

A - Generally, lenders require discount points (a percentage of the loan) when they consider the maximum VA interest rate to be too low to produce the yield or income that other investments would provide. The amount of discount to be paid is a matter of negotiation between the seller and the lender.

Q - My husband died from a service-connected disability and I have not remarried. Is it possible for me to obtain a VA guaranty on a home loan?

A - You would qualify for a certificate of eligibility to obtain a VA guaranty on a home loan. Eligibility for the actual loan would be determined by the lender.

Q - I have been participating in the VA work study program while attending school under the GI Bill. Circumstances have forced me to withdraw from school. How can I satisfy my obligation on the remaining hours of the work study contract?

A - You must work the remaining hours for which you received advanced payment.

SVOSSET'S Judge Harold Ferrig did not make the Conservative nomination in last Tuesday's elections. Ferrig, who is a Democrat, was denied the cross endorsement by the Republicans this time around and could have used the Conservative line to help his totals. He is on the Right to Life line along with the Democratic line. Already three Democrat judges have lost out with the ban on cross endorsements set up by GOP Chairman Joseph Mondello. Some say, while it may be good politics, it is bad for the judicial system to lose experienced judges. HICKSVILLE is mourning the death of John J. McManus who died on Saturday. McManus, who lost a leg in World War II, never complained of the disability and of the hardships of being a German prisoner of war. He served four years on the Hicksville School Board and was in charge of Troop 259 of the East St. Boy Scouts. He died at 65 of cancer. A hero to remember. THE COUNTY Board of Supervisors thought that a rent of $1 million per year for 10 years plus renovation costs to locate 16 police units in Woodbury was pretty steep. The building, 96,000 sq. ft. is located at 101 Crossways Park and owned by Gilbert Tilles. The plan is temporarily on hold but will probably happen soon even if it is as much as double the going rate. FORMER Community Newspaper publisher John Dyson lost $56 million and a chance to run against Al D'Amato for the Senate. The millionaire's son used to own weekly newspapers in Glen Cove, Manhasset, Port Washington and other places. But it is possible he could still run as a "liberal" (You read it right). Dyson spent about $25 for each vote he received. THE POLICE Report is published each week as a public service to alert residents of where crime is taking place in the area and as an aid in the Neighborhood Watch program. Anyone seeing suspicious activity should phone 911. BURGLARS broke the side window of the Lion residence 116 Lincoln Rd., E., Plainview on Aug. 30. Nothing was reported missing. Police are seeking a male white who was chased from the scene. THE FRONT window of the Hammond residence, 1 Viska Place, Jericho, was used to enter the house on Sept. 3. A TV and cash were stolen. That's all the news for now...G.T.

Editor's Notebook

Lots of luck to our neighbors in Bethpage. They will be having a big, all-day celebration tomorrow, Saturday, September 13, in honor of the 50th anniversary of the changing of their name from Central Park to Bethpage. A parade begins at 10 a.m. and festivities will be going on all day.

A special thanks to a very loyal subscriber, Ida Mae Herfurth of Hicksville. Mrs. Herfurth, in her 89th year, sent us a check for a three year subscription to be sent to her daughter Gertrude Mauch in Dundee, Florida. When told we don't usually consider three years, only one or two, Mrs. Herfurth replied, "I don't know if I'll be around that long and I want to make sure my daughter gets the Mid Island Times. Thanks Mrs. Herfurth - you made our day! V.P.

Bethpage Golfer In Pro-Am Tourney

The Long Island Chapter of the New York State Head Injury Association will host its first annual Pro-Am Golf Tournament on Wednesday, September 17 at the Meadow Brook Club in Jericho. Among the participants will be professional golfer Chuck Workman of Bethpage State Park in Bethpage.

Proceeds from the tournament will support the New York State Head Injury Association's efforts to increase public awareness of the head injury problem and assist individuals who have suffered head injuries as well as their families. The event is expected to raise approximately $40,000.

The 18-hole tournament will start at 12:30 p.m. It will be run as a four-ball best-ball tournament in which teams of four (one pro and three amateurs) record the team's lowest score for each hole. This year's tournament is being held in honor of the late Thomas Gilbert, of Eloy Harbor who was the founder and chairman of the New York State Head Injury Association's Honorary Advisory Board. Mr. Gilbert's son, John, received a serious head injury in a motorcycle accident seven years ago.

The goals of the National Head Injury Foundation and the New York State Head Injury Foundation, Inc., its New York affiliate, are to support all efforts to prevent head trauma; promote highway safety, education and information; family support services and programs, and the promulgation of rehabilitation programs and services throughout the state.

Summer Fun For Pack 172

Summertime is a fun time and, of course, it didn't go by without swimming lessons at Cantiaque Park. The park offered them all summer long.

Most of the teachers were very patient with the children. They got them used to the water and taught them to put their faces in the water. Then, they learned different strokes.

Everyone went off of the boards including the little ones. They were lowered in so they could get used to the board and deep water.

The children learned a lot in two weeks.

Vitamin A poisonous at excessive levels

By Shirley Bright Boody
Registered Dietitian

Dear Shirley: Is it true that taking 25,000 IU of vitamin A every day will put people in better health? I have been taking only one vitamin pill that's supposed to have everything in it, but when I looked at the label it said 5,000 IU vitamin A.

I have some questions that I hope you will answer. Should I take five of the vitamin pills I have now to get 25,000 IU of vitamin A? Are more expensive vitamins better for you than the ones in the grocery stores? What do the letters IU mean? — Mrs. W.S.

Dear Mrs. W.S.: IU means international units.

I would not recommend taking 25,000 IUs of vitamin A daily. It's a fat-soluble vitamin that is poisonous at excessive levels. It can cause headaches, skull pressure and vomiting in a short time if too much is consumed. This is especially dangerous in young children.

I do not suggest taking five times the amounts of the vitamins you are now taking. They could contain minerals such as iron that could also be dangerous if taken in excess.

Please remember that more is not better when taking vitamin and mineral preparations. And you might as well take the least expensive kinds, because they are identical to the high-priced ones.

Dear Shirley: I'm on a low cholesterol diet, and I was told not to eat more than 300 milligrams of cholesterol per day.

I love oysters, but I haven't had any for a long time, because I don't know if they have a lot of cholesterol in them. How much do they have? Would it be possible for me to have them once in a while? — Tom G.

Dear Tom G.: The cholesterol content of oysters varies a lot, depending on the species, the time of year, and where they are harvested. They can vary from 50 to 100 milligrams of cholesterol per 3½-ounce serving.

You could probably have a small serving occasionally, but be careful not to overdo it, either on quantity or frequency.

Dear Shirley: My boyfriend has diabetes and I am becoming very concerned over him. He read somewhere that sugar is not as bad for diabetics as doctors used to think, especially if it's eaten with a meal. Now, when we go out for dinner he always wants a dessert, but I try to talk him out of it.

We've had some heated arguments over this. He reads your column so I decided to ask your opinion. Thank you. — Libby

Dear Libby: Some recent research suggests that sugar eaten with a meal may not raise the blood sugar of diabetics much more than the complex carbohydrates in a potato, for example.

However, scientists are now finding that it may adversely affect blood fats and cholesterol levels. I don't believe there is enough evidence to prove that sugar can be safely used as a regular part of any diabetic diet. Your boyfriend's diet should be personally evaluated by his doctor and dietitian.

New Comedy Show Opens In Bethpage

"As If", a new comedy show by Gayden Wren, is the latest offering at the Plainedge Playhouse on Stewart Avenue in Bethpage. The show, a collection of sketches, songs and other material on the theme of identity, is being presented by the New Punctuation Army, a New York City-based organization devoted to original theater.

According to Janette Kennedy, president of the group, the Plainedge Playhouse has been chosen as a site for a pre-New York opening tryout for "As If" for several reasons: "The facilities at the Playhouse are perfect for a show of this nature, which uses a small cast and minimal scenery," she explains. "The Plainedge Players have made the theater available at a very reasonable rental, and have been very cooperative in the production."

Further, she adds, Bethpage itself offers a community which is theater-conscious, and whose sensibilities are roughly comparable to the New York theater audience. "As other groups such as the Players and the Gilbert & Sullivan Light Opera Company of Long Island have shown, the Bethpage area community is very receptive to theater in general. We feel that the reactions of Bethpage audiences to "As If" will be very helpful in revising the show for its New York opening set for 1987."

According to Ms. Kennedy, who is a production designer and has worked extensively in Off and Off-Off Broadway theater, several different elements are necessary to make a community a good one for theatrical activity. First, a broadly based public is desirable. "A mixture of different ethnic and socio-economic heritages helps," she explains. "Theater is a strong unifying force, and is most appealing when different backgrounds and attitudes reinforce it."

Proximity to a theatrical center such as New York City is a contributing factor as well, she notes: "The appeal of theater is at its highest when there is top-quality professional theater nearby, acting as an inspirational force."

A sense of community consciousness also helps, Ms. Kennedy observes. If residents do not involve themselves in their town, and in its social and cultural life, theater is less likely to flourish. "This works both ways, of course," she adds. "Theater also helps to draw a community together and bring out community consciousness."

Finally, adequate theatrical facilities are needed. "Many potentially strong theatrical communities never develop, due to a lack of performing space suitable to quality shows," she points out. "The people of Bethpage are lucky to have the Plainedge Playhouse functioning, bringing good theater to the area."

I hope they realize that."

In conclusion, Ms. Kennedy says that the New Punctuation Army hopes to do further try-outs in Bethpage for future shows. "Producing on Long Island is far less expensive than working in New York or traveling to other major cities. With a show such as "As If", we have the opportunity to work out the kinks in our show without risking a fortune, while local audiences have a chance to see an exciting new show for only $6 right in their own backyard. It's good for us and it's good for the town; I hope we can keep doing it."

"As If" will be performed at the Plainedge Playhouse September 12-14 and 19-21; curtain will be at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and at 7:30 p.m. on Sundays. Tickets are $6, seating at the Playhouse is assigned and capacity is limited so early reservations are advised. For reservations or further information, call the theater box office at 796-5666.

McDonald's Breakfast For Pack 172

On August 8, 15 and 22, the Hickville Jericho McDonald's planned a great breakfast for the children.

The children came and started to play in the playground. Then, to their surprise, who walked in but Early Birdie and Hamburglar. Grimace followed about ten minutes later.

The children were so excited. They all came to see their friends, except for some shy children that stayed in the back and cried. The children touched them, talked to them, and shook their hands.

Soon it was breakfast time. Early Birdie, Hamburglar and Grimace left so the children could eat their breakfast. Many of them gobbled down pancakes and orange juice. Then they were off to play again. After many of the children finished, Early Birdie, Hamburglar and Grimace returned.

The children were excited all over again. They were shaking hands and talking to their friends like they hadn't seen them before. Early Birdie, Hamburglar and Grimace stayed the whole time. Then it was time to leave. The children didn't want them to go.

Then, to their surprise, the children were given goodie bags. Everyone, including Moms, had a great time.

Grimace and MaryAnn Hendel prepare to enter McDonald's Playland.

Sara Rosalino and Patrick Walker caught the Hamburglar stealing hamburgers.

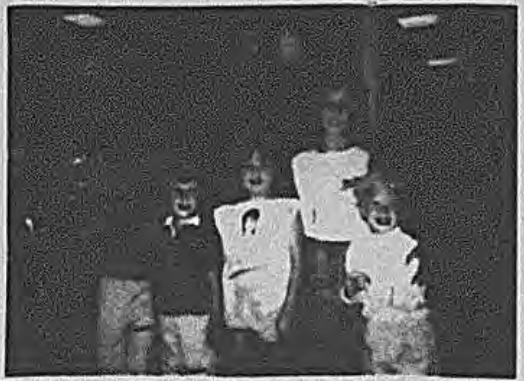

Mrs. DiPaola enjoys Early Birdie more than her daughter, Roseanne. Roseanne isn't so sure about this big bird.

Allison D'Alimonte was asked a question by the hostess at McDonaldland.

Mrs. Walker wanted to be one of the kids as she gave Early Birdie a hug.

Shamrocks Win 4-2

By A. Bliker

The Hicksville Shamrocks, 1974 boys traveling soccer team, fielding five new members, opened their fall season with a bang on Sunday, September 7, at Cantiague Park, soundly defeating Lake Grove, 4-2. The Shamrocks completely controlled the contest, with the first half ending 1-1. The second half saw Hicksville come on like gangbusters, scoring three unanswered goals before Lake Grove put in a second goal.

The front line of Eric Bliker, Chris Doyle, Ed Jacobsen and Junior Tomlinson featured crisp passing and numerous on-goal shots. They were ably assisted by center half Matthew Pordum and halfbacks, David Lovato and Domenick Perillo, who made their presence felt in both offensive and defensive zones. Brian Harkins had a strong game at stopper and Jason Kingsley was equally brilliant at sweeper. Chuck Oliver, Carl Rice, Christian Friedrich and Greg Sczumawski were in control at fullback. Chris Koetter put in strong time at halfback, fullback and sweeper. Brian Pine had his usual exceptional games as goalkeeper, including some beautiful challenges away from the goal. Gregg Gruosso, recovering from a broken leg, sustained in the spring season, lent moral support from the sidelines.

The first goal was set up by an impressive digout and pass from David Lovato to Chris Doyle, who fed striker Eric Bliker, right in the middle, for him to put the shot past Lake Grove's goalie. The second goal came from a Bliker cross to Chris Doyle. Junior Tomlinson, one of the Shamrocks new five, fed a brilliant lead to Ed Jacobsen, who took it in on a breakaway. David Lovato, then continued his fantastic play with a feed to Dom Perillo for the Shamrocks final score.

Congratulations to the Shamrocks, especially the five new players who all contributed to the outstanding team effort. Congrats as well to coach Herb Pordum and assistant, Glen Kingsley for the impressive beginning to the new season.

Lies are part of child's life

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Q. Please tell me how to stop a young child from lying. He may even deny something when he is caught in the act.

Should a parent reward a child who admits the untruth, or would he then admit to anything just to get a reward?

I raised a liar and struggled through that. Now I have a grandson who is beginning to do the same.

A Young children can't always tell the difference between "real" and "pretend," or between make-believe for fun and telling a lie to get something they want.

Here are some practical hints that may be helpful.

Recognize that lies are part of every young child's life.

Try not to use the word "lie" or to call him or her a "liar" when you are not getting the whole truth. If a child thinks you have a low opinion of him or her, the main reason to try better may be destroyed.

Understand that a child is less likely to lie again if he or she knows you aren't fooled that you don't like the lies ("although I never stop loving you"), and that lies upset his or her friends.

Explain that "make-believe" and "really true" aren't the same. Two is too early to try to explain, but by 3 or 4 it may be fairly easy.

Say, "Tell me what you really saw (or took or did), rather than, 'Don't you dare lie to me, young man.' Severe punishment sometimes leads to their becoming more skillful at lying instead of being more truthful.

Try to prevent situations that encourage lies. It doesn't help to ask whether hands were washed when you can see how dirty they still are. If you ask, you might have two problems: carelessness and lying. So don't ask, tell or take instead.

Recognize that a child who always seems to lie or make believe may need professional help. But a little bit of it is completely normal.

Set a good example. It is probably one's own business when a person boasts about about cheating in work or play or lies about age, but do young children have to hear such statements? If an adult can't avoid the original act, perhaps it is possible at least to stop talking about it. Lying is kind of contagious, and young children often learn from what they see or hear adults do.

Recognize that broken promises and dishonest answers are also a form of lying in which adults too often participate.

These suggestions are from an article I wrote on this subject for parents (and grandparents) of young children. It is called "Telling the Truth - It Isn't Easy!" and a copy is on its way to you. It is also available (at no cost) to others who send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope at P.O. Box 572, Scottsdale, AZ 85252 with their request.

Q. Nothing makes my wife as happy as "stuffing" our baby with food. It is almost like the force-feeding of geese I once saw in a movie, except for one difference - our little girl seems to enjoy it. And why not? She is getting a lot of rich, sweet food, and she relishes every mouthful.

The problem, to me, is that she is getting very fat, and that worries me. My wife says "fat" means that she is healthy, but I'm not sure she is right.

What is your opinion on this subject?

A Your pediatrician or family physician is the correct one to ask. However, common sense seems to indicate possible trouble ahead - limited play involvements, peer ridicule, perhaps medical problems.

An appropriate balanced diet, without "stuffing," appears to be a better way to go.

Q. Is it normal for a 2-year-old boy to "expose himself" in public? He doesn't care where he is. Suddenly I'll turn around and he is pulling off his clothes, and then he rebels when I try to put them on again.

He is a lovable little fellow, except for this practice of his.

Any suggestions?
A Avoiding clothes that don't fit or are too warm, limiting his "public appearances" (that perhaps embarrass you, but apparently not him), trying not to make an issue over this matter, and not referring to it as "exposing himself" (which is probably not at all what he has in mind) may be helpful as starters.

All of that plus a little patience that "this, too, shall pass" may help you and him get through this stage.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Nine out of 10 covered by Social Security

Q. When Social Security first began, were professional groups such as lawyers, doctors and dentists covered by Social Security?

A No. Lawyers and dentists were covered effective 1956 and doctors of medicine were covered effective 1965.

Today, almost everyone who works is covered by Social Security, including both employees and self-employed. Nine out of 10 employees are covered by Social Security.

Q. My sister was just notified that her entitlement to Medicare hospital insurance will end. She and her husband divorced after a short marriage. She never worked.

I thought your Medicare hospital insurance continued as long as you live. — A.P.

A If you have hospital insurance based on your own Social Security work record or on your own federal employment, your protection will continue as long as you live. However, if you have it because you are entitled to Social Security benefits on your husband's or wife's work record, your protection will end if your entitlement to benefits ends. Your medical insurance protection will stop if your premiums are not paid or if you voluntarily cancel.

Q. My husband has just filed a claim for disability benefits. Will the medical report from our family doctor, who has been treating him, be sufficient? — J.B.

A In many cases the initial report from the treating physician is all the medical information needed to decide a case. Frequently reports from other treatment sources such as hospitals and clinics are also used.

If medical evidence is not complete or current enough, the person may be asked to have special examinations or tests at government expense.

Q. I will be 60 in September of this year. I was a widow for 12 years and remarried in August 1984. I was married to my late husband for 25 years. Can I become entitled to a widow's benefit? My present husband is retired and we are living on his Social Security. — B.V.

A You cannot become entitled to widow's benefits on your first husband's account as long as you are married. In the event of your present husband's death it is possible that you could become eligible for benefits on your first husband's account and on your second husband's account.

If you qualify for checks on the record of more than one worker, you will receive an amount equal to the larger of the two amounts.

Pack 172 Cub- Dad Weekend

The Cub Scouts of East Street's Pack 172 had a terrific time at Cub-Dad Weekend, August 1-3, at Camp Wauwepex in Wading River.

Friday evening, the Cubs arrived with their fathers at camp. They got themselves settled and then built a campfire which they all sat around.

Saturday was a big day. They had breakfast and then were given some free time.

After that, they were taught some Cub skills. They learned how to make fire starters from newspaper and wax and how to use them to make campfires. Last but not least, they learned how to tie knots.

After a break for lunch, it was arts and crafts time. They were shown how to make Indian necklaces. The boys really enjoyed working with their fathers.

Game time was next. They played water balloon volleyball and other balloon games.

Archery followed. The boys learned how to hold the bows with their fathers. They did very well for the first time.

A nature walk kept the boys in tune with the out of doors. That ended with a swim in the lake.

The boys went with their dads and put their uniforms on. Dinner was definitely a welcomed sight. The boys were starving after all of the activities.

The council fire was lit afterwards. The boys had a great time as they sang songs and performed skits. After finishing, they walked back to their own campsites and built a campfire and tried to scare each other with ghost stories.

Finally, they all laid their heads on the pillow and fell asleep. They didn't sleep too long before the thunder and lightning storm. They finally got back to sleep only to wake up to the sun shining.

They had breakfast and then packed to leave. At 11 a.m., they all gathered for the last time. They were given badges and then everyone went home.

This was home for the weekend. Michael Kruger and Jamie DiSilvestre discuss the situation with their fathers. Nat DiSilvestre and Richard Walunas listen with both ears.

Nat DiSilvestre, Greg Walunas, Chris Walunas and Bill Giarraputo from Pack 172 watch as Jamie DiSilvestre plays the water balloon sling game.

Richard Walunas and Bobble Walker hold the sling as they watch Richard Kruger's balloon fly through the air.

The campfire was a special time in camp. Richard Kruger, Jim Walker and John Rasmussen enjoy it with a can of Pepsi donated by Pepsi Cola.

By P.F.C. Carmine A. Somma
The summer is over, the children are back in school, and our programs are in full swing. Every year our Post and the Ladies Auxiliary sponsor a Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program for all the schools in the Hicksville School District. This year's theme is "The Challenge of American Citizenship."

It is open to 10th, 11th and 12th grade students in the public, parochial and private schools in the U.S. and overseas. A U.S. citizenship is required.

If your children go to any school in the Hicksville area, please let them mention this program to their teacher and principal. If they did not hear from us, schools can contact me and I will send them material on the program. Special awards from V.F.W. Post 3211 and the ladies Auxiliary are awarded.

For more information about the Voice of Democracy Contest, call our Chairman Jr. Vice Comdr. Vincent Ferrara at 935-6079 or call the V.F.W. Hall at 931-7843.

Input Callers Still Think Property Taxes Are Needed

Most callers to Input believe that there should be some change in the property tax as a means for financing public schools in answer to this question: "In light of the fact that less affluent school districts do not receive enough revenue from property taxes to match pupil costs of richer districts, do you think that the real estate property tax should continue as a means of funding school budgets?"

MONEY ADDED

Yes, I think we should still have a property tax to finance education, but I also think that we have to face the fact that where there is not enough income generated by real estate taxes to finance a basically good education that money will have to be added to the tax from general revenues of both the state and federal government. J.E.

ANOTHER WAY

I think that there should be another way of funding education than the property tax. The reason is because this tax has no relevance between the user of the service and what is paid. On places where there are low real estate values, the schools get less money although they may need more money than in large estate areas with few users of the schools. The method is antiquated. K.T.

GET OUT FROM UNDER

I think that many people would like to get out from under the real estate taxes and they are not really that interested in helping the poor districts. But there should be some realism. We need schools. They have to be paid for with money. We therefore have to pay taxes. I think the best way is to supplement with state aid where the tax revenue is too low to support good schools. L.W.

BETTER CONTROL

The reason we have school taxes on local property is so that the control of budgets will be close to those who are paying the cost. Now this doesn't always work out that well, but any other method might mean runaway school costs because no one is watching. Then, poor districts that want better for one purpose or another can authorize more money to be allocated in that direction. Needy districts will have to get more state aid. P.W.

SHIFT MONEY

Costs of financing education have always been a political football. Each year the state budget says that it is going to shift the amount of state aid to needy districts and each year the ball finally bounces back. There does need to be some additional money for needy districts but it should not come from other districts that need it. The state should use some of its surplus. Let the property tax alone now but shift some new money in. Y.R.

NO RETURN

I have for years paid to educate everyone else's children without any of our own to use my tax money. I do not resent a moderate amount for school taxes, but the people who run the schools think the sky is the limit. The most foolish thing I have heard is school districts that are trying to talk people out of private schools where they pay their own costs into the public schools. I can't understand that at all. J.E.

DISTRIBUTE TAXES

I feel that rather than change the real estate property tax law, the change should be made in the taxes that are collected from companies doing business in a particular county. For instance, taxes collected from companies doing business in Nassau County should be divided between the towns and school districts in the county. After all, all residents shop in shopping malls—not only those living close by. All residents should benefit from taxes collected from them and from somebody like LIICO. A.M.

RICH AND POOR?

As far as the school tax goes—there's going to be rich and there's going to be poor. If we have to subsidize children on taxes for school work, how about dressing them better, sending them to school in a private car? This is ridiculous. Let the rich have the rich and the poor have the poor.

SOME ADJUSTMENTS

Today, the politicians nationwide are beating the drum about the need to upgrade the quality of teaching and as a primary requisite, to increase the financial benefits of the teachers. Where the funding is to come from is not quite in the forefront of these arguments and, as we have seen in the past, when the state is pressed for funds, there has been a quick threat of diminished allocations to affluent districts such as Garden City. It is in the nature of the beast to recognize that towns like ours have a greater resiliency in absorbing additional costs than less fortunate communities, but there has got to be a point where that resiliency reaches dissipation. And, this applies not only to the wealthy but to whatever commercial entities may bear a share of the school tax burden as we have seen recently. Furthermore, there definitely is a feeling on the part of childless residents either retired or who have paid their dues over the years that it is not quite fair for them, as demonstrated by the commercial taxpayers, to continue to pay a pro rata share of the budget expense. I have danced all around this question but, regrettably, I think there is no effective alternative to the present system involving a tax on real estate property as a means of funding school budgets supported, of course, by state allocations. However, in all fairness, within that system some adjustments in individual burdens should be made in proportion to the benefits derived. In addition, the veil of mystery should be torn from the uncompromising threat of an austerity budget whereby 95% of the total is mandated by the State Department of Education. We have been exposed to this palpable threat for years but have yet to be told what we as taxpayers can do to eliminate, rectify or obtain a better understanding of this 95% bugaboo. P.G.S.

Way Back When (A Safari In Brooklyn)

By Robert Ricken

The rain had followed a hot summer day in which the relentless sun baked the pavements. Only the doctors owned a car in the late thirties and the sun's rays had unprotected access to the mixture of cement and tar which constituted the road's surface. The tree which grew in Brooklyn was in another neighborhood.

There was no relief from the heat and entire families sat on the stoops avoiding their stifling apartments. The tiny flats felt as though you had entered a hot house in mid-July bedecked in your winter attire. Usually the relief which came shortly after midnight was accompanied by a withdrawal of the youngest children from the tenement steps. It was past one in the morning and no one showed any inclination to go to bed. We watched as the hot steamy vapors continued to rise from the surface of East 56 Street. I secretly delighted in the late hour and in savoring the dream of the following day's expedition.

We carefully had mapped our day-long hunt which would take us through the lots on Linden Blvd, where the circus was held each year, to the rich neighborhood of Crown Heights, and to return via the route of the Utica Avenue trolley car. I was to bring some of the hunting paraphernalia and Moose, Kid and Carl would provide the fishing equipment. Axy, who was wealthy, would "bank roll" us with the penny which was the entire cost of the day-long safari.

I went to bed when my mother nodded toward the door. Negotiating for a later hour was not fruitful and often painful. My father, who was a milkman, worked all night delivering quart bottles to the wealthy families who resided in the sparsely populated suburbs of Queens. Each night I went to sleep in my brother's bed in the room he shared with my sister and miraculously awoke on the living room couch. When he returned from work at about 2 a.m. he carried me into the living room. I never remembered the trip. I awakened with the first rays of the morning sun...well rested and eager for the start of the day's safari.

As was my custom, I arrived on my stoop at 6:30 a.m., one hour before the appointed time. I paced the sidewalks wondering why my friends "always did this to me." They arrived on time, as usual, with all of the items they were supposed to bring. I rushed everyone to begin the journey with my own particular brand of impatient urgency. They were equally eager this time so they tolerated me without rebuke.

As we walked the streets, Moose was in charge of cigarettes, and kid was responsible for the matches. We neither smoked nor played with fire since we were hunting empty cigarette packs and discarded match book covers. The old cigarette packs provided a thin layer of tin foil which we carefully peeled from the paper that once protected the cigarettes. The tin foil was crushed into the size of a tiny marble and as our hunting party searched the streets of East Flatbush, each discovery was carefully added to the sphere. Before we reached home it would be the size of a pink Spauldeen punch ball...never to be used but treasured none the less.

Kid's match book covers were much more functional. The striking edge of the cardboard was taken away and discarded. The colorful match books were then folded one into the other, ultimately creating a circle as the 200th cover slipped inside the first. Many planters and ashtrays sat proudly upon these trivets.

The discarded ice cream pop sticks were my objective. As we walked toward the Eastern Parkway IRT subway line, the guys handed me the wooden sticks. I enjoyed making wooden rafts by weaving them. If I cleaned them thoroughly, my mother would allow me to take one into my bathtub at night. Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn was the bar of soap which I placed on the raft. When the raft hit the waterfalls (the water gushing from the faucet), poor Tom was thrown from the raft and swept away. His survival depended upon the brand of soap. Only Ivory floated!

We also converted the rafts into fans by adding an additional stick. This was a poor boy's air conditioner as we sat on the stoops at night avoiding our steaming hot apartments. It was also a possible birthday present for a sister since our purchasing power was nil. Her gift totally depended upon our ingenuity.

As we reached the subway, the treasure hunt began. Axy had utilized his penny and was busy chewing a wad of bubble gum. My spear was the broomstick I had temporarily liberated from Mom's cleaning supply closet. Axy, slowly savoring the last taste of gum, extracted it from his mouth and carefully put a piece of the gum on one end of the broomstick. Moose, kid, and I were already on our hands and knees, cupping our eyes from the sunlight and peering through the subway grating to the earth below. The rush of air each time a train passed was a welcomed relief and we closed our eyes for a moment and enjoyed the temporary breeze.

I spotted something silver and kid took the pole from Axy and carefully lowered it toward the target. I could see from kid's face the feel was not right. He pressed the gum end firmly on the silver object and slowly raised the pole when he was satisfied he had it "hooked". Our first catch was a worthless silver cigar wrapper.

Moose called excitedly from a grating just up the street. Axy took off the old gum which had become sandy and pulled another sticky piece from his mouth. This time Axy's spear felt the firm adhesion to metal and we cheered as our first coin was raised from the depths below. The process was repeated until we reached the farthest point of our journey. As we turned for home we left the subway grating hunt area with ecstatic visions of how we were to spend our seven-cent haul.

The homeward trail was a radical shift in objective. We were successful in our treasure hunt and our eyes now searched for possessions. We each untwisted a wire clothes hanger and carefully straightened the metal. Next we formed a two-inch circle at one end and then bent it up so that it created a 90° angle with the long stem. With this fishing pole we raced from sewer to sewer in search of booty.

The number one prey was the pink Spauldeen although a grey Leader ball was gratefully accepted. We were indeed lucky that day. Our booty consisted of two "moth-eaten" tennis balls, a saturated black-taped baseball, and a perfect Spauldeen. Each ball was carefully hooked by placing the little two-inch circular hoop under the ball and gently raising it to the surface of the sewer. The fact that balls floated was truly one of nature's miracles.

The safari culminated at our home base, Joe's neighborhood candy store. The treasures we discovered would become common property and we "chose" to decide who would be the caretaker of each ball. Since there were four of us, we played "odd finger is it." After jointly chorusing "One, Two, Three, Shoot!", each of us simultaneously put out one or two fingers. Since we all put out two fingers and Axy one, he got to keep the Spauldeen, our most valued treasure. The remainder of our loot was divided in a similar manner and I was to be the proud keeper of one black-taped water-logged hard ball. The fact that it weighed about the same as a shot put didn't bother me at all.

The money was a big problem. If only we could have found one more penny, we could have declared two-cent shares. After taking one penny each, we seriously faced the dilemma of dividing the remaining three cents by four exhausted hunters. The solution was not easy to come by in an era when a wall twenty-five feet long in the neighborhood candy store displayed an endless variety of sweets, none of which cost more than one penny.

After making our own candy selection with the penny dividend, we decided to use the remaining three cents to purchase potatoes for our evening campfire. After supper with our own families, we culminated our safari by eating the potatoes which we cooked in a hastily constructed fireplace located in a vacant corner lot. The potatoes were thrown directly into the fire. The "blackies" were pulled out with a stick and eaten charred shell and all.

The late evening was spent with our families on our own stoops. I awaited my mother's nod which would send me to sleep and culminate the day-long safari. In bed I dreamed of our next journey and prayed that we might find a dime or quarter. Somehow Joe's candy store was always the perfect dream of an oasis.

READER RATINGS

Q. If I am dining out with a large group and do not feel like a cocktail, am I really obliged to order one so as not to put a damper on the party?

A. Absolutely not-and this applies to all size groups. No one should ever order an alcoholic drink to please others. If you wish, you may order a soft drink or mineral water, but this is purely optional.

Q. I seem to remember that years ago salads always came to the table with the entree. But now they are served in advance of the main course. Why did this change occur?

A. Salads are now customarily served before the entree in order to provide the hungry diner with something to eat while his main course is being prepared.

With today's emphasis on nutrition, salads are treated with much more respect than they once were. They are regarded not just as accompaniments to meals, but as important courses in their own right.

Q. If three or four couples dine out and wish to make reservations, in whose name should the reservations be made?

A. It really does not matter. However, it is best to make reservations in one name only in order to avoid confusion. The same person should be responsible for notifying the restaurant if plans should change and the dinner is delayed or cancelled.

Q. If an uncut loaf of bread is served to a couple in a restaurant, who should cut and serve it?

A. It would be gracious for the man to cut several slices from the bread for his woman companion and himself. Then he would offer the bread to her before taking his own portion.

Q. When dining out with a group of ten or twelve people is it necessary to wait until everyone at the table is served before starting to eat?

A. No, at a large table such as you describe it is usual to begin eating when three or four people have been served. It would be thoughtful for the host or hostess, if there is any, to urge guests to begin eating so their food will not get cold.

READER RATINGS

Q. What is the proper way of addressing a waiter in a restaurant?

A. My own preference is "Sir" rather than "Waiter" because it shows more courtesy and people do like to be treated with respect. For a waitress I prefer "Miss" to "Waitress" for the same reason.

Q. When arriving early for a private party in a restaurant, who should do the seating when there is no waiter or captain on hand?

A. The man is expected to seat his woman companion. If he is accompanied by two or more women, he would seat his wife last.

Q. I have been invited to a formal restaurant dinner later in the year. However, I am also on a strict diet for medical reasons. Do you think I should mention that to my hostess?

A. By all means, tell her. If she selects the menu for her guests she will take your special diet into account. However, my own opinion is that where restaurant dinners are arranged it is better to allow guests to make their own food selections.

Q. When vegetable are served in individual dishes should they be eaten directly from these side dishes or first transferred to the dinner plate?

A. Either way is correct, but my own preference is to transfer the vegetables with a serving spoon onto the main dish. The waiter can then be asked to remove the serving dishes, thus ridding the table of a great deal of clutter.

DIVERSIFIED MENU

The Orchid Restaurant, newly opened in Garden City, serving Szechuan, Hunan and Cantonese gourmet dishes, is truly an outstanding place to dine, whether it be for luncheon or dinner. This restaurant is beautifully decorated and no expense was spared to make it the lovely restaurant it is; we had the feeling we were in the Orient. The diversified menu offers a wide variety of dishes, many of which I had never even heard of. The selections we made were superb and the excellent service made for a most enjoyable evening. A new feature for this exceptional restaurant will be its take-out menu, so if you wish to entertain at home, and have a busy schedule, it's a great way to have a party with a minimum amount of fuss. We heartily endorse this new restaurant and feel it is a credit to Garden City.

I'm calling about a wonderful restaurant the George Washington Manor in Roslyn. My husband and I had occasion to have lunch and dinner there several times recently and I want your readers to know it's fantastic. The food is superb, they serve wonderful American-Continental food. The Sunday Brunch is a real delight. The decor and ambience can't be beat. I don't often do something like this but I just had to share this with you. Mrs. L.

FINE FOOD
This week we went to the Arbor Inn a week after our anniversary which we wanted to celebrate last week. They gave us great service and great food on Thursday. The decor of the Arbor Inn, the piano at the bar and the fine food is worth going to at any time. In addition to the food, the people are very friendly at the Arbor Inn. We recommend it and especially if you are going to celebrate something. J and L.S.

GOOD NIGHT
Last Wednesday we decided to follow one of the suggestions in your Reader Ratings. We were mainly satisfied with what we got although the service was a little slow. We went to the Platte-deutsche Park Restaurant in Franklin Square. The place was no stranger to us because we have been there many times before at catered affairs. But this time we went to the smaller restaurant and had sauerbraten. Considering that the check was reduced because we had four in the party eating sauerbraten and they gave us all of the salad we could ever eat it was a very good night bouth in food and cost. J.H.

AMONG THE BEST
I have never seen anyone call in about Koenig's Restaurant in Floral Park, in spite of the fact that it is one of the best restaurants in Nassau County. Many of your readers may not know that the Pritikin Diet that is on the menu at Koenig's is tasty and a good way to dine out. They steer clear of salt, sugar and oil. But those who do not want the Pritikin Diet that I am following can eat the best in continental food at Koenig's as people have been doing for many years. They have outstanding steaks and salads. When we went there last week the other member of our party had a steak dinner, while I can truthfully say I enjoyed the Pritikin menu.

Treasures of the Japanese table

By Linda Susan Dudley

"With Japanese cooking, you eat with your eyes. It has to be artistic," said Kayoko Yamane, a soft-spoken expert on the subject.

Yamane's gray hair swirled delicately about her face. Wearing a blue "cooking" kimono, she looked as beautifully composed as the food she had just prepared.

Yamane was bringing the tenets of traditional Japanese cooking to some food enthusiasts who gathered recently in San Diego.

On that subject, her credentials are impeccable: Yamane is a designated National Treasure of Japan, an honor hard won by people who promote the best of that country. (If the United States had such a system, the title might fall to a food expert such as Julia Child.)

Yamane was touring the United States researching how Japanese food was being translated for serving on American tables, especially in restaurants.

"In Japan, I heard about the Japanese food boom in this country, especially in the Los Angeles area," said Yamane, through her interpreter.

"I want to know what they're serving and to see if it's really Japanese food," Yamane said.

She doesn't take the Japanese cuisine lightly, she studied the subject of traditional Japanese cooking for 13 years before she taught her first class on the topic. After 20 years, she still continues to study it. She is now an instructor in a number of facilities in her hometown of Kobe. She describes herself as a traditional Japanese cook, not Americanized like so many of the home cooks in Japan today, although she does cook Western-style menus on occasion.

"Young people today are not cooking Japanese style. They are eating steak and fried chicken and hamburgers and McDonald's french fries," she said. "But we must preserve the traditional style that is our heritage. We must study and know our cuisine's ceremonial and ritualistic background to preserve the Japanese culture."

Japanese food, explained Yamane, is very mild, using few spices and relying on color, texture and variety to supply proper nutrition and please and satisfy the diner.

As Americans stretch toward the goal of physical fitness — with nutritious food as well as exercise — more and more of them are discovering that the exciting taste and elegant simplicity of Japanese food are matched only by the nutritional value of many of the dishes.

Beyond sushi and sashimi, there's a full range of cooked dishes from which to choose. They range from clear soups to simmered one-pot dishes to tantalizing seafood grills. Not to mention noodle compositions suitable for any "carbohydrate loader."

To keep up with the trend, a number of publishing houses recently have released books based on Japanese cuisine.

One of the best is "Step-by-Step Japanese Cooking," by Lesley Downer and Minoru Yoneda, published by Barron's (hardcover, $24.95).

The color photos, of which there appear to be hundreds, are beautiful enough to convert any holdout to Japanese dishes. Diagrams show how to slice or sculpt vegetables, meats or pastes into attractive dishes which are pleasing to the eye, as well — one of the principles of Japanese cuisine.

Another large format book which is as pleasant to read as to cook from, is "Practical Japanese Cooking," by Shizuo Tsuji and Koichiro Hata, published by Kodansha International (hardcover, $22.50). It is also profusely illustrated and contains an extensive listing of Japanese ingredients with photographs and explanations for usage.

Alfred A. Knopf has just published the paperback edition of a 1980 hardcover, "At Home With Japanese Cooking," by Elizabeth Andoh ($9.95).

BRAISED BEEF WITH BROCCOLI

- 7 ounces sirloin of beef, thinly sliced
- 11 ounces broccoli
- 4 ounces button mushrooms
- 2 cloves garlic
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon each sake (Japanese rice wine), rice vinegar, sesame oil, water and sugar
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch

With sharp knife, cut beef into small even chunks. Wash and trim broccoli and divide into florettes. Wipe and trim mushrooms and halve them. Peel garlic and slice finely.

Heat oil in large saucepan over medium heat. Add garlic and fry for a few minutes to flavor oil. Add mushrooms and saute lightly. Stir in broccoli and beef and saute to brown beef. Add remaining ingredients and bring to boil.

Cover with Japanese wooden drop lid (to ensure that foods are submerged in cooking stock) and simmer over medium heat for 5 minutes until beef is cooked, occasionally ladling sauce over beef.

Arrange in small, deep serving bowls to serve and ladle over a little more stock.

From "Step-by-Step Japanese Cooking."

TATSUTA FRIED CHICKEN

- 1 pound boned chicken thighs
- Vegetable oil for deep-frying
- 1 sweet red pepper
- 1 bell pepper
- Cornstarch
- 4 lemon wedges
- Seasoning:
- 2 tablespoons dark soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons sake
- 1 teaspoon fresh ginger juice (recipe follows)

- 2 egg whites
- 2-3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped and rinsed scallion
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh ginger

Cut chicken into 1-inch squares about 1/4 inch thick. Combine seasoning ingredients and marinate chicken for 20 to 30 minutes. Preheat oil to a low deep-frying temperature.

Core and seed peppers. Use small cookie cutters to cut peppers into decorative shapes — maple leaves are traditional, but any shape will do.

Beat egg whites until frothy but not stiff, add cornstarch and mix well. Add scallion and ginger.

Dredge chicken in cornstarch and cover well with coating mixture. Deep fry chicken but do not overcook. It should fry gently, when it stops bubbling vigorously and before it becomes too brown, remove from oil.

Deep fry pepper shapes until their surface is tender, which requires only 30 seconds at most. Be careful not to overcook them. Remove and sprinkle with salt.

Arrange chicken and pepper on serving plates, garnish with lemon wedge and serve.

Makes 4 servings.

Fresh Ginger Juice

Wash ginger root well and peel, then grate finely over small bowl lined with cheesecloth; squeeze the juice from the gratings.

From "Practical Japanese Cooking."

SPINACH WITH SESAME SEED DRESSING

- 1/2 pound fresh spinach
- 3 tablespoons white sesame seeds
- 1 tablespoon superfine sugar
- 2 1/2 tablespoons soy sauce

Remove stems before washing and patting dry spinach leaves. Bring large pot of salted water to rolling boil and cook spinach until it barely wilts. Drain and refresh spinach under cold water. Squeeze out excess moisture before chopping spinach coarsely.

Dry roast sesame seeds over medium-high heat and transfer to suribachi or some other crushing device and crush sesame seeds while still warm before adding sugar. Continue to grind sesame sugar until mixture is quite pasty, then add soy sauce and blend well. If using a blender or food processor, you may need to double or triple quantities in order to have enough volume to engage the blades of the machine; store excess in tightly sealed jar and refrigerate.

Toss chopped spinach in sesame seed dressing and serve chilled or at room temperature.

After Work Gourmet

Seafood and pasta salad

By Paul Bensen

This time of year, when summer's heat is no longer a novelty, lighter dinners become more and more appealing. Cooking and eating an elaborate dinner seem a chore instead of a pleasure, and even the most devoted chef may grudge the daylight hours spent in front of a hot stove.

Light, cool dinners that can be prepared quickly or ahead of time allow you to spend those last hours of daylight enjoying things you've been waiting all winter to do. If you use that time for some after-work tennis or sunset-watching, you'll find that lighter meals are also ideally suited to a later dinner hour, and won't leave you feeling overstuffing at bedtime.

Today's recipe is for one of my favorite seafood salads. It combines three kinds of seafood with pasta shells and a light lemon-herb dressing with two kinds of mustard. I've called the resulting dish Seafood Salad Pass-a-Grille, in honor of its point of origin - the tiny peninsula on Florida's Gulf Coast that I call home.

The cooking and preparation time are very short, and this recipe can be prepared several hours ahead and kept in the refrigerator until you're ready to enjoy it.

High in protein, this salad is surprisingly satisfying as a meal in itself. I served it to several friends recently, along with some hot, crusty French bread and a well-chilled glass of white wine.

SEAFOOD SALAD PASS-A-GRILLE

- ½ cup dry white wine
- ½ cup water
- ½ lemon, thinly sliced
- ½ pound flounder or other white fish
- ¼ pound scallops
- ½ pound shrimp
- 1 large tomato, diced

After Work Gourmet

- 1 zucchini, julienned
- 6 radishes, sliced
- 3 scallions, chopped
- 1 carrot, thinly sliced
- 1 cup pasta shells, cooked

Total preparation/cooking time
— 25 minutes.

In skillet or saucepan, bring to boil wine, water and lemon slices. Add fish and scallops, cover and simmer until just done (about 5 minutes). Remove fish and scallops, drain.

Bring to boil remaining liquid. Add shrimp, in shells. Cook, stirring, until just done (about 2 minutes). Remove and drain.

Sherry — smooth, nutty and fortified

Wonderful, spirit-warming sherry is one of America's favorite appetizer drinks (also known as aperitifs). Why? Well, sherry has a delicious, nutty flavor and aroma, it's wonderfully smooth, and it has a bit more "umph" than regular wine.

Sherry contains about 20 percent alcohol, compared to a red table wine at about 12 percent. Sherry combines wines of different years, blended in the "solera" method unique to southern Spain. This blend of young and old wines is then "fortified" with added brandy — so it's stronger than other wines, but not as strong as hard liquor.

Which makes it perfect for a little before-dinner nip to tingle the palate and whet the appetite. Dry and medium-dry sherry are most popular as aperitifs, while sweet (or cream) sherry usually appears with the dessert tray.

The debate rages on about the proper temperature at which to serve the wine. You may serve sherry on the rocks, or at room temperature — it's really up to you, although in the Jerez region of Spain, sherry's birthplace, it is served at about 60 to 65 F (slightly cooler than room temperature). Which makes that the official temperature, to my mind.

Incidentally, the word "sherry" is an "Englishization" of the word Jerez. During Elizabethan times, the wine was known as "sack." (Read through a little Shakespeare, and you'll see more than one reference to the stuff coming Allow seafood to cool. Shell and devein shrimp. Toss seafood together with vegetables and pasta shells, and add enough dressing to coat. Chill in refrigerator for at least an hour before serving. This salad can be made several hours ahead of time and kept refrigerated until you are ready to serve it. Serves 4 as a main course.

DRESSING

- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt (or to taste)
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon dill weed
- ¼ teaspoon basil
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
- 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- ½ cup olive oil

Blend together all ingredients but oil. Allow to sit 5 to 10 minutes, then add oil slowly, stirring to blend. This makes more than you need for one recipe of salad, but is delicious on other types of salads, as well.

(plus 1 to 2 minutes standing time)
Oven Setting: HIGH (100 percent power)

Combine all ingredients except gravy and sherry in mixing bowl. Blend well.

Shape into 12 meat balls and place in 1½-quart glass casserole. Microwave on HIGH setting 5 minutes, turning and rearranging meatballs after 2½ minutes. Spoon off fat.

In small bowl stir together gravy and sherry, pour over meatballs.

Cover and microwave 4 to 6 minutes longer, stirring every 2 minutes, until heated through. Let stand, covered, 1 or 2 minutes before serving.

Serves 3 to 4.

TIPSY TRIFLE

- ½ cup granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 2½ cups whole milk
- 4 egg yolks
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1 (8-inch square) yellow or white layer cake
- ½ cup apricot, raspberry or strawberry preserves
- ½ cup sweet sherry
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 2 tablespoons powdered sugar
- Ground nutmeg

Preparation Time: 15 to 20 minutes

Cooking Time: 11 to 16 minutes (plus 3 to 4 hours to chill)

Oven Setting: HIGH (100 percent power); MEDIUM HIGH (70 percent power)

Combine granulated sugar, cornstarch, salt and nutmeg in 1½-quart glass casserole. Gradually stir in milk, blending well.

Microwave, uncovered, at HIGH setting 6 to 9 minutes, stirring every 3 minutes, until slightly thickened.

Beat egg yolks lightly. Blend small amount of hot mixture into egg yolks, then return to casserole. Add lemon rind and stir to blend thoroughly. Adjust oven setting to MEDIUM-HIGH and microwave, uncovered, 5 to 7 minutes longer, stirring every 2 minutes, until thickened. Let cool, then stir in vanilla.

Split layer cake crosswise and spread preserves evenly over one half. Replace top half and cut into 12 squares. Arrange six squares in bottom of a 2- to 3-quart serving dish. Sprinkle with half of the sherry, then spoon in half of the custard. Add remaining cake squares and top with remaining sherry and custard.

Beat cream with powdered sugar until soft peaks form. Spoon over top of trifle and sprinkle very lightly with grated nutmeg. Chill at least 3 to 4 hours before serving.

Serves 8 to 10.

QUICK MEATBALLS IN SHERRY GRAVY

- 1 pound lean ground beef
- 1 slice bread, crumbled
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- ¼ cup milk
- ¼ teaspoon each salt and pepper
- ¼ teaspoon dill weed
- 1 (10½-ounce) can condensed beef gravy
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry

Preparation Time: 5 to 10 minutes

Cooking Time: 9 to 11 minutes

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q Recently I read your column with interest concerning mildew problems in drawer spaces and closets and what to do to prevent this. I have a similar problem with storing leather luggage and books.

How can I prevent mildew, and is there any way to rid leather and books of the mildew odor, or is the damage already done? — H.S. A.

To prevent mildew, in general, store items in dry, well ventilated places, avoid basement storage as much as possible. For books that are kept in closed cabinets, a small rod-shaped, aluminum covered electric damp chaser can be installed. This will keep the air slightly warm and dry and circulating and is merely plugged into an outlet and uses current approximately equivalent to that of a 25-watt bulb. These electric rods also can be installed in closets. Even a low wattage light bulb left burning will help prevent dampness, which mildew thrives in. Check large housewares stores or marine supply dealers for the electric rods.

Mildew is removed from washable surfaces with a stiff brush and a detergent solution. To remove the mold spores, apply a solution of chlorine bleach mixed with warm water, allow to remain 4 to 5 minutes and then rinse with plenty of clear water. Commercial products that contain bleach also are available in supermarkets — one brand name is K-14.

To protect leather against mildew for several months, sponge surface with 1 percent solution of thymol or paramitrophenol in alcohol, first testing a corner to be sure color isn't affected. After removing mildew, all articles should be aired outdoors in the sun for at least a week, if possible.

There is an all-purpose liquid mildew proofer available, which is sold at some marine supply stores and houseware dealers. Follow label directions carefully in the use of this product.

To remove mold from books, wipe off the mold with a clean, soft cloth, slightly dampened with alcohol. Sometimes, pages can be cleaned the same way. To remove mildew from leather bindings, wipe with a cloth dampened with a solution of equal parts denatured alcohol and water, then dry outdoors. Stained book pages can be dusted with French chalk or cornstarch, allowing the powder to remain for several days, then brushing off.

Q Our new home, which is a little more than a year old, has a no-wax vinyl floor covering in the kitchen area. It has been easy to maintain, but already I have noticed that the surface is dulling in front of the kitchen sink and in the doorways. Is this typical for this type of floor covering? Is there anything I can do to restore the original finish? — S.R.

A. The areas you refer to get more wear-and-tear than the other parts of the floor. However, if the floor is still under warranty, I suggest you contact the dealer or manufacturer's representative and request that the condition be corrected. If the warranty has run out, you can restore the no-wax finish yourself. Scrub floor areas thoroughly with a commercial floor cleaner. Apply an acrylic floor finish and allow it to dry. Buff, if necessary.

Q Our "salt finish," black cement driveway installation was a poor job. There now are whitish areas. What can we use for a uniform dark color? — K.M.

A. The whitish areas could be caused by moisture coming up through the cement. Try cleaning with a weak solution of muriatic acid, 20 parts water to 1 part acid. Be certain to handle with care, wear rubber gloves and protect the eyes with goggles. After cleaning, use a paint roller to apply a sealer of equal parts mineral spirits and boiled linseed oil. Two coats should be used. The sealer will dry dark and will help to keep moisture out of the concrete.

Q I am concerned about Alzheimer's disease. Tell me how to get more information. — J.R. Warsaw, Mo.

A: There are a lot of misperceptions and misinformation about Alzheimer's disease — and you can get the facts, free of charge, by writing: Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association, 360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60601. Help the cause, too, by enclosing a business-size (No. 10) envelope with 39 cents postage affixed, with your request.

Q I own a six-grave lot in a local memorial park, and my husband is buried there. The contract is for perpetual care — but there is no care; it is even dangerous trying to get to the grave. What can I do? — V.R.

A: Such a situation can be agonizing. Make sure you have filed a complaint in writing with the operators of the memorial park, asking for fulfillment of the perpetual care provisions of the contract. Simultaneously, ask at the office of your elected state legislative representative for information about a possible state cemetery board. If such exists — trusting you have not received a satisfactory response — write a letter of complaint, stating factually and chronologically the events,

TWEEN 12 & 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 16-year-old girl and I love being around horses. I get above-average grades in school and participate in extracurricular activities.

Everything is great at home except for one problem. I have a chance to work at a Thoroughbred racetrack part time with my aunt, but my mom won't let me. She says that there is too much alcohol and drugs at the track.

The point she fails to realize is the opportunity to partake of drugs and alcohol exists everywhere, even at school. She knows that I would never get involved in that kind of junk. Besides my aunt, the other stable hands are also respectable people.

I promised my mom that I would quit if she noticed any negative changes in my behavior. The money I would earn would be banked for my future education.

Please give me your honest opinion of this situation. — Lori

Lori: Remember the final decision rests with Mom, not me, but I'm with you. Isn't it possible that your aunt can convince Mom to give you a chance? For what it's worth — show Mom my response. Good luck!

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 17-year-old girl and I dearly love one of my former teachers, but he doesn't know how I feel about him. We have a very special relationship and I wouldn't want to ruin it by telling him how I feel. He is a very understanding human being and I know that he has too much respect for himself and for me to start something with me. I love should I keep my feelings to myself? — Nameless Nameless: It's not unusual for a female student to fall in love with a male teacher. The teacher sets a good example and is an excellent "father" image. Fortunately, the vast majority of teachers understand this and have too much respect to start something.

Say nothing about your feelings to this teacher. You are going through a phase and it will fade away when you graduate.

Dr. Wallace: I baby-sit for the woman next door. She has two girls, ages 4 and 3, and I sit with them on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 5 to 10 p.m.

I enjoy the work, and during schooltime it gives me a chance to do my homework. The money also comes in handy. The only problem is I don't get very much out of it. I'm paid 75 cents per hour or $7.50 per week.

My dad said to ask the lady for a raise or to quit.

My mother said to leave things alone. They both agreed that I should write for you opinion. I'm an excellent baby sitter. — Alice

Alice: Excellent baby sitters should be paid a minimum of $1.50 per hour and $2 per hour after midnight. Anything less is a disgrace.

The child involved is the most important possession a family can possibly have. The child's care, safety and comfort are worth the $1.50 hourly wage.

Poor baby sitters are overpaid regardless of their wage and should never be rehired.

Dr. Wallace: My boyfriend is in the Navy and was recently sent overseas. I care for him very much but in his last letter he told me it will be two and a half years before he will be home.

He encouraged me to continue to write to him and for me to date other guys until he returns. He also said, if I agree, he will also date other girls.

Dr. Wallace: We are supposed to be in love. If this is true, how could he encourage us to date others? I think this is a sign of immaturity.

I think he has me by the "neck." He is almost forcing me to agree with him — if I don't, I believe he will date anyway. — May, San Luis Obispo, Calif.

May I disagree? I think your boyfriend's idea is a good one and shows maturity.

Two and a half years of waiting is not a good idea. You're fortunate to have a guy who cares enough about you to be honest. He could "cheat" and you would never know.

Dr. Wallace: I am 18 and was dating a guy, 19, for a month, and I really cared for him. We seemed to enjoy each other very much.

About two weeks ago, Tom told me that his mother didn't want me to see him anymore because we were getting too serious. I was stunned when he said goodbye and said not to call or contact him again.

What kind of a guy would do something like that to a girl? — Marge

Marge: A mama's boy or a wimp. Take your choice.

Mainly for Seniors

By Leonard J. Hansen

What is the best way to change a will? Should you raise your income from investments based on a new concept? How do you get a cemetery to provide perpetual care when you've paid in advance for it? If collecting Supplemental Security Income — can you transfer title to your house? You have asked these questions and more of this column. Here are the answers, some of them might surprise you.

Q: I have two questions about wills:

1. My daughter is named as executrix, but is sickly. How can I change her appointment in my will?

2. My house is part of my will. Must I give specific permission for the house to be sold — and does the attorney get a percentage of it? — M.D.S.

A: First, you are enlightened in having a will in the first place. Most people do not have them and have left no direction whatsoever on the disposition of any estate. You can make it far easier for your family and heirs to receive your estate by having a legal will in effect.

To change an executor or executrix takes a modification of the will and/or the preparation of a new will. You may retain your daughter as executrix, with an alternative person named in the event she is deceased or incapable at the time of your death. See your attorney on this, to make sure the will states your exact direction.

As the house is part of your estate, it transfers as you direct in your will. If your attorney is not the executor, there is no reason that he should have a percentage of the transfer or sale. That disposition is the determination of the executrix/executor. Confirm this with your attorney so that he or she does not have any other assumptions. If the attorney wants a "piece of the action," get another attorney — and soon.

Q: I am 85, receive a Social Security check, a veteran's widow pension plus a Supplemental Security Income payment. Can I legally deed my home over to my son while receiving the SSI? — Name and address withheld by request.

A: You might have a problem larger than trying to deed your home over to your son. There are asset and income limitations in the law before receiving Supplemental Security Income, which is basically a welfare program. If you filed for SSI, exceeding those limits by not reporting the home asset value, you might be subject to challenge by federal and state agencies.

Some people, in order to qualify for SSI, attempt to transfer all assets over the qualification level, such as a home, to relatives just before filing. Such action is deemed illegal, specifically, within the program provisions.

I'd recommend you seek legal

Gardener

Plan ahead now
to brighten winter

By Patrick Denton

The wilderness and the solitary shall be glad; the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose. — Isaiah, 35:1.

For home flower gardeners, the desert time comes during the winter, when we long for the sights and scents of living flowers so abundant in other seasons.

Scholars believe that the Hebrew word translated as rose in this passage from Isaiah refers to the Narcissus tazetta, a bunch-flowered daffodil that grows profusely in many parts of the Holy Land. It's from a multitude of such plants that grow from bulbs that we can establish a home floral oasis in the midst of winter's desert.

The process of potting bulbs in the fall for indoor blooms in winter and early spring is a simple one. And although the procedure is called "forcing," it is actually a gentle activity filled with pleasant anticipation. Good subjects for forcing are hyacinths, tulips, daffodils, muscari (grape hyacinth) and crocus. Of these, the very easiest is the hyacinth, with its heavy flower heads and delicious fragrance.

The usual time for potting bulbs is October, but hyacinth bulbs potted about now will bloom for Christmas if they can be given a cold storage period of 10 to 12 weeks.

This cold storage is to simulate winter conditions that trigger the bulb's enzyme systems. The bulb needs cold before it can begin elongating its cells into growth.

So when we pop our pots of planted bulbs into our cold garages, unheated closets or a spare refrigerator, we are playing a little trick on nature. Because these bulbs find themselves in a dark, cold (ideally 50 F) place for about three months, they naturally think winter and begin doing what all good bulbs do in fall and winter — establish a root system and prepare to send out those first green leaf shoots.

At the end of their cold period, a three- to four-week exposure to warmth and light brings them to bloom. This is why we calculate between 14 and 16 weeks from potting to bloom for most large bulbs.

For potting your bulbs, choose a rather shallow container with a 6-inch diameter. These shallow pots are sometimes called bulb pans, and this size will accommodate six tulips or three hyacinths. The container should have drainage holes that offer forgiveness to indoor gardeners who over-water.

To prevent the soil from washing out, place either pebbles or broken crockery over the holes before filling the container halfway with a loosely packed mixture of equal amounts potting soil, peat and perlite. Or use a purchased, premixed planting blend.

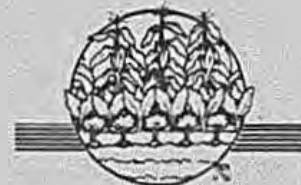

Gently place the bulbs on top of the soil so that their pointed tips come to just below the pot's rim, then fill in with more of the potting mixture but not quite to the container's top to facilitate watering.

The pots should be watered thoroughly before being placed in cold storage. During this period the bulbs should be checked regularly and watered whenever the potting mixture feels dry.

At the end of their cold period when the pots are filled with roots, the bulbs can be brought into the warmth of the house, but avoid too much warmth as these flower bulbs are programmed to bloom in spring, before summer's heat. A temperature of about 60 F and bright indirect light suit their needs well.

As the plants grow, keep them watered and watch their progress carefully if you are counting on blooms for a certain date. If, for instance, you have flowers scheduled for Christmas or Valentine's Day, and the flower stalks are still tightly budded several days before the occasion, you can speed up the blooming by moving them to a warmer location.

Using the same principle, if the flowers look as if they will open too quickly, return them to a cooler location. Once the flowers have begun blooming, keeping them fairly cool and out of direct sun will prolong the flowering period.

Odds and ends furniture

By Sharon Owen Haven

Q: I have this hopeless but much-loved collection of furnishings gathered from garage sales, hand-me-downs and compulsive antiquing. Nothing matches in style or period. How can I tie it all together so that it doesn't look like a mishmash? — E.F.

A: Some of the most delightful and inviting interiors I've ever encountered are basically "mish-mashes." What makes them so appealing is that they have personality, character and an occasional surprise while being unified by elements other than the furniture itself. Without some kind of unifying element, you do, indeed, end up with just a garage sale.

One common way to unify a disparate collection of furnishings is use of color. By selecting a color scheme and repeating it around the room in paint, fabric and accessories, you assimilate your assorted furniture into a larger unity.

In the room pictured, the carpet, draperies, upholstery, wall and trim colors are all coordinated. An old gateleg table was painted to match. Pillows made from the curtain fabric tie in an antique ladder-back chair. Paintings and accessories repeat these colors, as well.

A common theme can also unify your furnishings. You might use a favorite collection or hobby as a theme. The home owner is an avid gardener who collects antique gardening tools. This motif is repeated in the carpet, curtains, art make it clear visually that they are to go up the stairs? — B.W.

A: Do what you can to draw the eye immediately up the stairs — perhaps a colorful Oriental-style runner that begins as you step in the door and ends at the top of the stairs.

Make the stairway important. Use the stairway wall (if there is one) as a gallery for artwork or photos.

Provide a peek of something intriguing at the top of the stairs — a partial view of a piece of sculpture, painting or furniture that arouses the curiosity.

Finally, camouflage that bedroom door as best you can. You might mirror it and the surrounding wall so that it effectively disappears and directs attention elsewhere.

and accessories — not to mention the abundance of fresh flowers.

Keep in mind: A few of your favorite things are usually more effective and appealing than all of your favorite things. Use restraint and move the rest along to another room or that garage sale you've been meaning to have for years.

Vase made by noted French sculptor

By James G. McCollam

Q: This bronze vase is decorated with Apollo driving a chariot and other mythological characters. It is marked "F. LeVillain and F. Barbedienne."

Can you tell me what these names mean, when the vase was made and its value? It is 18 inches tall.

A: Ferdinand LeVillain was a noted French sculptor who made the original model of this vase. Barbedienne was the founder who cast it from the original model.

This vase was made around the turn of the century and would sell for at least $1,000 to $1,200.

Q: You told me that my Victorian marble top commode was worth $500 to $600. The most that any dealer would offer was $300. How do you explain that?

A: I don't know why people expect dealers to operate without a profit. It costs anyone with a shop about 35 percent just to operate. If a dealer buys something for $65 and sells it for $100, he breaks even, but he starves to death.

Normally, a dealer will pay $250 to $300 for an item he expects to sell for $500 to $600. If he already has a similar item, he will be reluctant to pay that much. If he doesn't have anything similar and knows a collector who will buy it, he will pay at least $400 for an item that he expects to sell for $600.

Dealers aren't greedy; they just don't want to go hungry.

Q: The enclosed sketch is a copy of the mark on the bottom of my porcelain teapot. It is decorated with hand-painted roses and gold trim. Can you tell me when it was made and its value?

A: This mark was used by Theodore Haviland in the late 1930s. He was the son of the founder, David Haviland. He started his own company in 1892, which became part of the modern Haviland and Co.

Your teapot would probably sell for about $75 in an antique shop. If you tried to sell it yourself it would be difficult to get the full retail price.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 per item to James G. McCollam.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. What is the best method to housebreak a new puppy? We have just acquired our first puppy. Everyone seems to have advice regarding training our dog. Your advice would be appreciated.

A. As you are aware, house-training a young puppy takes a lot of effort and patience. You should not expect any great results until your new dog reaches 3 to 4 months of age. However, you can begin training the very young puppy as long as you do not expect too much and do not treat the puppy harshly. Learning takes time, especially if you start prior to the time that the puppy is mature enough to have control over his functions.

There are basically two means to house-train a young dog — paper training and outdoor training. Which method you use is really up to you and your circumstances.

If you try to paper-train your dog you need to select an out-of-the-way place where you want the puppy to urinate and evacuate. This should be a place where the floor covering can be scrubbed and sanitized frequently. It also should be a place isolated enough to be out of the way of other family activities.

The paper-training spot should be separate from the dog's sleeping quarters. Most dogs do not like to foul the place where they sleep or eat.

When you first begin training a new puppy, he will need a great deal of help. The puppy should be placed on the paper immediately following awakening each morning. He should be placed on the paper following every meal. Most young puppies eat four or five times daily. Just prior to going to bed each night, the puppy should be placed on the papers.

Every time the puppy uses the paper to evacuate or urinate you should reward him with a loving pat and praise. If you see the puppy squatting, move him to the paper immediately.

Never spank or place the dog's nose in the mess if he has an accident. This simply confuses the young dog. If an accident has just occurred, move the dog to the papers. The dog must associate elimination with the newspapers.

Always clean up accidents well. Odors left following accidents frequently attract dogs to the spot again.

If you want to train your dog to go outside to eliminate from the very beginning, then follow the same procedures as for paper-training. Instead of getting him accustomed to the paper, get him used to going outside.

Outside-training takes just as long and probably more effort than paper-training. Outside-training can be accomplished more quickly if the dog is already paper trained. The papers and dog can simply be moved outdoors. Eventually, the papers can be removed all together.

It is best if your dog is both paper-trained and housebroken for the outside. Then if the weather is inclement or the dog is ill, papers can be used inside.

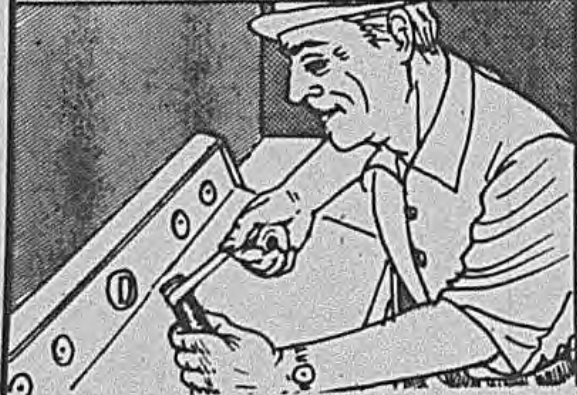

Housebreaking a new dog is a challenge. You should not be discouraged or expect too much too soon. Most dogs are not mature enough to be fully house-trained until 4 to 6 months of age.
