The program speaker at the May 20 luncheon meeting of the Hicksville Kiwanis Club was Mr. Gerard Drum, Division Manager, Staff Services, Transportation Department of Long Island Lighting Company. Besides his other duties at LILCO, Mr. Drum is also a member of the company's speakers bureau. It was in this latter capacity that Mr. Drum brought along a slide presentation showing how LILCO produces and distributes electricity to residences and businesses. He also showed what steps they have taken, and are taking, to obtain electricity from other sources for distribution to LILCO customers in the event of, and during, possible extra heavy demand periods this coming summer to avoid potential "brown-outs".

Budget Re-Vote Set For June 17

Special to Mid Island Times

By Maureen Traizer

Meeting two weeks after the defeat of the proposed school budget for 1987-88, the Hicksville School Board approved a second vote to be held June 17. The district will hold a public hearing on June 3 at which time the budget figure will be finalized. Voter registration will take place on June 10, and absentee ballots will be available.

The Board of Education's regular monthly meeting on May 20 followed the district's annual reception for Silver Anniversary Celebrants and Retirees. Twenty-one employees celebrated 25 years of service and 46 retirees were honored.

Trustee Thomas Nagle observed that "residents are not concerned that the budget went down." Mr. Nagle sought to combat this complacency by proposing two additional deletions to the budget figure.

The budget contained $105,000 for transportation of 9th grade students at the 1½ mile limit, although under the secondary reorganization the students will be bussed in the senior high school building in September. Mr. Nagle stressed that the Board should "be consistent" with its 2-mile transportation limit for high school students. If the district allows the 1½ mile limit for 9th graders next year, 63 additional students will be granted the privilege for their 9th grade year. The Board unanimously approved the deletion of the $105,000 in transportation costs.

The Gregory Museum funding has been in jeopardy for some time now. Mr. Nagle again proposed the deletion of $10,000 in the 1987-88 budget for the service contract with the Museum. Mr. Nagle expressed a desire to escalate down the amount of money being contributed to the museum by the district. Trustee Carole Wolf stated that she was "not in favor of making deletions that would involve cuts in the education of the children of Hicksville." The deletion was defeated 3-3, with Daniel MacBride not in attendance.

The budget figure was then reduced by $105,000 at this May 20 meeting, bringing the new figure to $42,259,330, or just under a 4% increase over the budget which ends on June 30.

Resident and former Board member Iris Wolfsen questioned whether the Board had the authority to delete $105,000 of transportation monies when there is a district policy stating a 1½ mileage limit for grades 7 through 9, and when a referendum to change this policy was defeated last year. Board Counsel Gregory Guercio stated "yes" saying that the budget is a matter of funding and not of policy.

Trustee Carole Wolf announced the 25 persons whose applications for the District's Ad Hoc Committee on Elementary Reorganization have been approved. She estimated the work of the committee will continue for 8 months, meeting two times in June. The Committee will present two final options to the Board by February 1, 1988. Mrs. Wolf encouraged the public to attend committee meetings.

Board President William Bennett announced that Jane Wilder is resigning as District Clerk. During the month of June she will be serving as a consultant, while Janet Ulrich assumed the duties of the office on June 1.

The Board approved a $50,000 contract with Value Management Consultants for a computer software census/transportation program. This program should enable the district to identify student population in its efforts to look at redistricting of the school buildings as part of its elementary reorganization.

In the Superintendent's monthly report, Dr. Catherine Fenton introduced five teenagers who in January began an organization at the Senior High School called Teens Against Drug Abuse (T.A.D.A.). TADA secretary Demetra Drakos outlined the two main goals of the group as: to get the message across to high school students and to help combat negative peer pressure; and also, through the group's involvement program, to get the message across to elementary school students that they have to say "no."

The Teen Involvement Program at the elementary level consists of a 15-minute video and a 30-minute discussion with the 6th grade students. The high school students talk about self-esteem and peer pressure and distribute a "Say No" (Garfield) poster.

Next year, TADA hopes to continue its elementary involvement program, conduct a parents' night stressing the opening of lines of communication, and hold a poster contest with elementary schools.

Letters

To the Editor:

I would appreciate your printing the following message to the citizens of Hicksville concerning the Hicksville Gregory Museum and its relationship with Union Free School District #17.

In 1969, when the Town of Oyster Bay offered the Gregory Trustees the vandalized Heitz Place Courthouse in return for its restoration, Hicksville rose to the challenge. Hundreds of volunteers donated time, labor and materials. The result: Hicksville's only registered National Historic Place, Long Island's finest Earth Science Museum, and research and preservation of much that might have been forgotten or discarded relating to local heritage.

Of course, once the momentum of the exciting restoration was over, and the day to day functioning of the Museum began, we had to face some hard, cold facts. A Museum does not run on dedication alone. Professional help must be paid. LILCO does not give cut rates to Museums. Liability insurance bills come in staggering denominations. An old building needs constant repair. Donations and volunteers become less plentiful.

With no monetary assistance from Town or County, and no endowments, the Museum never could establish a firm financial base. Year by year we obtained grants from a variety of sources, and sponsored all manner of events to generate income. However, by 1979 we knew that our small group could not continue without help. Professional fund raising consultants reported there was no way we could raise the needed dollars in Hicksville. The Museum was reluctantly offered to the Town, the County, the School District, and the Public Library - with no takers. It was forced to close for almost a year.

Finally, the Hicksville School Board agreed to a "Service Contract" at $30,000 a year, later raised to $40,000. In return, all Hicksville residents, children and adults are admitted free at all times. School tours of the Museum or of historic sights in Hicksville, Outreach Programs, exhibits in the schools and library, In-Service courses for teachers, student intern programs, help with school reports, research projects, or scout badge work are all provided free of charge. Museum historian Richard Evers will soon publish a monumental volume, meticulously detailed and profusely illustrated, recording Hicksville's growth.

Not only the schools, but the entire community benefits. For $40,000 a year, Hicksville has the full services of a fine Museum at its disposal. It also gives our youngsters a sense of local pride and belonging. Last Saturday, a Cub Scout group came at 11 a.m. to prepare flower beds. Boy Scouts and neighbors had already done the major spring clean-up. The Brownies, due at 12 to plant their flowers, were temporarily rained out. At 1:30 there was a workshop for young fossil enthusiasts, and at 3 p.m. about 20 budding entomologists met for instruction, discussion and distribution of cocoons and literature sent from Maine by Dr. Gregory. Some are involved in an ecology project to preserve rare species. Meanwhile young and adult visitors admired the exhibits, guided on their tours by a volunteer from Hicksville Junior High. A senior citizen manned the Gift Shop.

At the Hicksville School Board meeting of May 20, Trustees Nagle, Schwartz and Arena voted to cut the Museum's contract by $10,000 - a very small portion of a $42 million budget, but of vital importance to the Museum. I have no doubt each of these gentlemen is following his conscience in trying for a tight school budget, just as we "pinch our pennies" at the Museum, but to cite a more objective opinion than my own - in evaluating our recent proposal to the Institute of Museum Services, one reviewer commented that at $40,000 the Hicksville School District "is certainly getting a bargain."

I was disturbed, though, by Mr. Nagle's admonishment that the Museum should not depend entirely upon the School District. This gives the impression that we are not actively seeking and raising other funds. Our annual expenses, at a barely subsistence level, are at least $75,000, assuming that much work is done by volunteers.

As hard as we work to raise money through grant writing, fund raisers, services to other school districts, memberships, donations from businesses, we truly need the sustained help of the School District in providing a dependable base for the modest salaries we pay our staff. We cannot in fairness, sign a contract with a Curator or Director on the hope that a grant will come through, or a fund raiser will be successful.

The purpose of all this is to appeal to the residents of Hicksville for support. The vote on May 20 was tied 3-3. Mr. Nagle indicated that he would again propose to cut the Museum contract on June 3, but also that he would be receptive to input from the community. If you want to preserve the landmark Court-house (what will happen to it if we close?); if you want the Museum to continue its educational function (which, incidentally, brings visitors and business to the area, as well as cultural recognition) - then please inform the members of the School Board of your feelings.

Come to the public hearing on the School Budget on June 3. Remind your neighbors to register on June 10. Vote on the Budget on June 17. And remember, a vote for the budget is a vote for the Hicksville Gregory Museum.

Sincerely,

Rosemary Barrow
Secretary, Board of Trustees
Hicksville Gregory Museum

Civic Group In Clean Sweep

By Gert Paul

Saturday, May 9, had been designated as Hicksville Beautification Day by Councilman Tom Clark and Kevin Conologue, assistant to Oyster Bay Supervisor Joseph Colby. The Midland Civic Association responded in force as more than 40 members turned up to help. Armed with pointed sticks, fan rakes and large bags, they first cleaned their designated area, the fountain park. Since members of the Kiwanis Key Club and members of the Montana family also helped in the same area, the job was done early. The Midland Civics then decided to use the remaining time by cleaning up their own immediate area, and removed debris on Bethpage

Road from the railroad to the junction at Broadway, where both residential and commercial areas were targeted. The spirit of our members was contagious and everyone worked very hard filling bags of trash. The Beautification Committee of the Midland Civics has been trying to "turn our town

Board Of Ed. Wants Input

The Hicksville Board of Education and the Board's Finance Committee are making a concerted effort to reach all interested Hicksville residents and to encourage them to express views and ask questions before the 1987-88 school budget is placed before the public again on June 17. A public hearing will be held on June 3 at 8:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the High School, and the Board has invited local organizations and civic groups to make arrangements for a special budget presentation for their members prior to the June 17 vote. Organizations wishing to arrange such meetings are asked to call the Community Relations Office at 933-6589 to set dates and times for a representative of the Board to meet with them.

The Board is also eager to hear from residents who are unable to attend the hearing or the scheduled community meetings but who have comments on the budget, and an answering machine will be set up to receive questions and comments from the public which will be addressed at the hearing. The number to call is 933-6604.

Memorial Day '87 Brings A Large Turnout

By Richard Evers

One of the largest turnouts in recent years marked Hicksville's Memorial Day Parade and Service this past Monday. The decision of the Hicksville Combined Veterans Organization to return the memorial service to the traditional site, the War Monuments at the Junior High School area, seemed to attract a larger family and organizational attendance for the ceremonies. Some observers feel that the beautifully landscaped area, with its World Wars monuments now augmented by new inscribed stones to honor Korean and Southeast Asia War veterans, creates an atmosphere more suitable to annual memorial services.

The parade formed at Sears, as usual, and with an escort by the Hicksville Auxiliary Police and the host post, the Charles Wagner Post of the American Legion's color guard and Commander Harry Christo in the van, proceeded south on Broadway and west on Old Country Road, and down Jerusalem Avenue to Fifth Street. Among the many units marching to the music of all of the Hicksville School bands were good-sized contingents from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, William M. Gouse, Jr. Post; William Schuck, Commanding; the Henry Biel Post of the Masonic War Veterans under Commander Gregory Wood; a colorful contingent of Nassau Vietnam Veterans of America; the Joseph Barry Council Knights of Columbus with Grand Knight Frank DeGaldano in the fore; the Hicksville Elks, Lodge 1931 under Exalted Ruler Daniel Seip. The Grand Marshal was Conrad Steers, Past President, Nassau County Chapter Vietnam Veterans of America. Honorary Grand Marshals were Ethel Habenicht, Past President, American Legion Auxiliary and Henrietta Aracil, Past President, Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary.

The Hicksville Parade was favored as well, by a marching unit from the Plainview Post 5942 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars under Commander Larry Millina. The Disabled Veterans of America, Post 143 of Massapequa were in vehicles, with the Gold Star Mothers and the Honorary Grand Marshals.

The parade had large units of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, most of the players from the Hicksville Baseball Association; much of the St. Ignatius C.Y.O. Boys and Girls Baseball and Softball teams marched. Our Lady of Mercy School Twirlers under Theresa Cagliano did their lively routines.

Among the colorful floats and vehicles were: the tank with the Vietnam veterans, the trailers carrying the brightly painted cars of the Nassau Quarter Midget Racers Association with young drivers. There was a fine float created by members of the Hicksville Church of Christ, Bob Marcinko, the lead escort.

The spectators along the line of march, flag-decked Broadway, and along Jerusalem Avenue, saw the splendid, many units of apparatus of the Hicksville Volunteer Fire Department, under the leadership of Chief William Schuckman, bringing the parade to an end.

A number of the day's honored guests chose to march in the parade: Councilman Thomas Clark; School Board President William Bennett, a Korean War Veteran; Dr. Catherine Fenton, Superintendent of Schools and her daughter Slobhan; and Anthony Previte, President of the Hicksville Community Council, a World War II Infantryman. Among other community and guest leaders at the formal Memorial Day services following the parade were: Sheila Noeth, publisher and editor; Carol Wolfe, School Board Trustee and President John Dinunzio of the Nassau Chapter, Vietnam Veterans of America. Mrs. Mary Manelski, Gold Star Mother, present for services over many years until infirmed by age, was in the motor procession, once again, and sat with Mrs. Gunther and Mrs. Kozma.

The Hicksville Veterans Monument grounds were a fitting and beautiful setting for the memorial services, a credit to the School District grounds maintenance leaders William Becker and Thomas Shore and their dedicated workers. Master of Ceremonies for the day was Richard Evers, Americanism Chairman, for the American Legion, a World War II Marine Corps veteran.

The principal speaker was Dr. Leo Kanawada, a native of Hicksville, long-time social studies teacher in our schools and a veteran of Vietnam in which conflict he served as a Captain of light infantry. The well-known educator took as his theme the presence among all peoples of the world, a basic yearning for peace and human understanding. Recalling his youthful participation as a Hicksville Eagle Scout in a World Scouting Jamboree in England, where he met fellow Scouts from many nations and first experienced real fraternity and warm international relations, Dr. Kanawada moved on to his army service in Asian nations, culminating in his part in the great venture of American idealism, the Vietnam tragedy. He spoke movingly of his conviction that wars emanate from higher political designs and purposes, ideologies which get beyond the control of ordinary human beings, whose basic impulse is for international understanding. He told of his efforts as a teacher and a parent to expose his children to as many contacts with other peoples as possible, citing as recent examples, travels in Europe where his children saw many reminders of man's inhumanity to man: the World War II cemeteries, battlefields, awful places such as Dachau.

A poignant moment, as always, was the placing of the Memorial Wreath at the World War II central monument with its hundreds of names of Hicksville servicemen and nineteen gold stars. Gold Star Mothers Tecla Gunther, who lost a son in World War II and Libertad Korma whose son perished in Vietnam, were assisted in placing the wreath by American Legion Commander Harry Christo and Past Commander Louis Cesta.

The Reverend Douglas MacDonald, Hicksville's senior clergyman and pastor of Parkway Community Church, offered the ceremony's closing prayer. The combined Senior and Junior High School Bands under directors James McRoy and Hillary Sperber and buglers from the High School Band provided the musical selections and the final military salute and assisted the audience in singing "God Bless America," as the services came to a close.

The Memorial Day Committee for 1987 was comprised of Past Commander Frank Molinari of the American Legion, the Parade and Program Chairman, with Wesley Tietjen as Asst. Chairman. Other committee members were: Gregory P. Bennett and Richard Evers, American Legion Post 421; Gregory Wood, Masonic War Veterans; Roger Giansante, AMVETS Post 44; Medard B. Ofenloch, Hicksville Fire Dept. and Esther Palladino and Carmela Vitello of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3211 Auxiliary.

Big Red Quick Print 4

Great pitching by Hi Ho Video's Stephen Foery and Ed Russo. Solid defense by Joshua Danforth at first, Billy Ponali and Andrew Sham at second and Matt Russo at third. The outfield combo of Scott Liptak and George Fuchs played steady again. Chris McInerney was 3 for 3 and scored three runs while Joshua Danforth hit a towering home run well over 250 feet. Another fine effort by the team.

Billy Ponali sharp at second again. As was Billy Zanis at first. Matt Russo was 2 for 3 with a double. Eddie Russo pitched 2 scoreless innings allowing only 2 base hits. George Fuchs made a fine throw from left field to catch a batter trying to stretch a single.

Origami Exhibit At The Library

Origami by Heather Carpenter is on exhibit in the Young Adult Section of the Hicksville Public Library for the month of June.

When Heather was still in grade school, she received a package of origami paper as a gift. She learned with her mother to do simple objects from the package directions. Her fascination with the vivid colors and delightful shapes led to enjoying the hobby with her friends. Then she began to take out books, many from the library to learn more intricate designs. She now has a collection of all sorts of paper folding art from kimonos to lobsters and has devised many different methods of using them. She has also taught younger children and plans to continue this during the summer.

Shamrocks Take First In Tourney

By A. Blicker

The Hicksville Shamrocks, 1974 boys traveling soccer team, brought home first place trophies from the Commack Memorial Weekend Tournament, capturing the Major Division Title, via a record of 4 wins, 1 tie, and 1 loss.

The Shamrocks opened the Tournament Saturday afternoon with an auspicious 6-2 loss to the Kings Park Cougars. Their second game was a 2-2 tie against the New Rochelle Raiders. On Sunday, Hicksville was on fire. They began the morning with a 4-3 victory over the Rockville Centre Rebels. They then thoroughly trounced the Larchmont Sounders 6-0. At 8 a.m. on Monday, they opened the semifinals with a 2-1 victory over the North Babylon Hawkeyes. In the Tournament finale, against Ridgefield (Connecticut) Express, they played their best game, winning by a much wider margin than the 2-0 score would indicate.

The Shamrocks' scoring was led by striker Jason Kingsley, who poured in six goals. Stopper Chris Doyle and right halfback David Lovato followed with three each. Left half Domenick Perillo and sweeper Brian Harkins followed with one each. Center half Matthew Pordum and right wing Junior Tomlinson ably complemented the goal scorers.

Goalie Ed Jacobsen had a strong, all around Tournament, with clutch goal stopping and great punting. Right fullback Chuck Oliver was a rock of granite, blunting numerous charges and contributing countless clearing passes to his halfbacks. Left fullback Christian Friedrich was sensational, for he never gave up and constantly broke up the opponent's plays. Greg Szumowski filled in capably at both fullback positions whenever called upon to supply assistance. Sweeper Brian Harkins was his usual dynamo in action, always hustling and being in the right spot, which led to his first big goal in the finale. Stopper Chris Doyle had a great tournament, featuring numerous clearing shots which were always on target. He also took the majority of the Shamrock goal kicks and a good amount of their corner shots as well.

Center half Matthew Pordum was equally effective in the offensive and defensive zones; he does the little things that go unnoticed in the box score but that lead to victory. Right half David Lovato was all over the field, constantly digging out the ball, breaking up the opponent's plays and setting up Hicksville's charges. Left half Domenick Perillo played defense and offense with equally impressive results. Striker Jason Kingsley could not be stopped, with numerous assists as well as the majority of the team's corner kicks. The wing play of Eric Blicker, Karl Rice and Junior Tomlinson was one of ball control and aggression; three boys who do not know how to stop. Chris Koetter was the Shamrocks' man-of-all positions, filling in ably as striker, both wings, halfback, fullback and sweeper; making his presence felt from all areas.

Congratulations to the Shamrocks on this outstanding victory and thanks to Coach Herb Pordum and Assistant Coach Glenn Kingsley, Jr. for making this a weekend to remember.

Barbara Smith, a former Fork Lane PTA President, installs next season's PTA officers, left to right: Ms. Smith; Maureen Traxler, President; Maryanne Goldberg, Vice-President; Karen Blicker, Corresponding Secretary; and Aures Zeiders, Treasurer. The installation was followed by an informative talk by Ray Shelton, M.S., Counselor, who provided many examples of stress and distress and methods to combat this ongoing factor in our lives. Congratulations to the PTA inductees and thank you to Mr. Shelton for an interesting lecture.

Editor's Notebook

It's getting to be that time of year again when lots of local students are graduating from colleges here and away. In case you've seen some of our "College Notes" and wonder how they got to be published here is a hint:

Some colleges have a terrific public relations department and they keep local newspapers advised on student activities whether it be earning a spot on the Dean's List, performing with a theatre or musical group, or a specific sports talent. Others are not and here is where a parent can fill us in with the latest information on their child's progress either in elementary, secondary or college happenings.

Pictures are especially nice and we will gladly return your treasured photo if you just write a name and address on the back. (We are the only publication that will do this!) A brief explanation of the graduation or special event should accompany a photo. But, if there is no photo to send please do not hesitate to write up a little information and background anyway.

And, lastly, most important of all don't worry about how it's written. We'll take care of proper format for inclusion in your local, weekly newspaper. Thanks.

V.P.

Input Callers Against Demonstrations At College Graduations

Most callers to Input think that there should be a limit on protests at graduations when honorary awards are given in answer to this question: "Do you think that college students and faculties should openly protest at graduations when honorary awards are given to individuals with whom they disagree?"

POOR PROTESTS

No. College students should not disrupt or interfere with the views of others when expressed at graduations. In fact, it seems that many of the protests are evidence that the four years have been wasted because the students do not want to hear any opinions except those which they agree with. For the faculties to join in makes one really wonder about higher education and whether it is going in the right direction. K.E.

4. Leave your name and telephone, or simply use a pen name (your message can be anonymous)

EDUCATION?

What obviously comes out with student and faculty protests, such as the one at Adelphi, is that the academic community is only liberal enough to hear views that it wants to hear. As a conservative, I have sat through many a speech and awards given to those of the liberal persuasion without any demonstration. I dare say if everyone of us did demonstrate when someone did not agree with our viewpoint that we would be ejected from the ceremonies. The protest seems to be a unique gift that the liberal can use and get away with. But is this education?

PLENTY OF ROOM

I think that there is plenty of room for limited protests to be made at graduations. Where the protest lets the audience know that there is a difference of opinion, it serves an important service and when it does not disrupt the ceremonies, then it should be allowed without question.

SHALLOW VIEW

I thought we were through with the demonstrations at colleges after the disasters of the 1960's but it appears that there are still some around. I have nothing against a protest that does not deny the other people at the ceremony the right to see the graduation. I say this even though I think that some of the faculty members who lead these protests simply show how shallow they are to listening to the views of others.

INSULT GUESTS

I think that colleges should have rules about these things. They invite guests and then think they should insult them. I think that the demonstrators should be told that they will be put out of the exercises and that they have plenty of other places to express their opinions. If everyone demonstrated at a graduation when something was said or an award given to someone they did not like, then there would be utter chaos. There should be no special people who can decide to disrupt where they wish.

STAY AWAY

I do not think that there should be any outward display when honorary degrees are given but anyone who wishes to stay away from a commencement should be allowed to do so without penalty. That is enough of a demonstration.

IMMATURE

I think that college students and faculty who openly protest at graduations when honorary awards are given to individuals with whom they disagree are very immature. You may not feel that a person is entitled to an honorary degree, but there is no need to protest openly. Have they no respect for another individual? Have they no manners? Must the whole world believe what they believe? A mature individual knows there is always more than one opinion. To disagree, you can politely refrain from applauding. For the faculty, however, such behavior is unforgivable.

INAPPROPRIATE

I feel that it would be inappropriate and disrespectful if college students and faculty openly protested during graduation ceremonies. This is especially true if an individual is deserving of the honorary award he or she will receive. It will not accomplish anything since the final decision has already been made. Everyone is entitled to their own opinions but no one should impose his viewpoints on others.

RIGHT TO DEMONSTRATE

I definitely think that college students should openly protest at graduations. They have a right to demonstrate and the freedom of speech is a basic freedom of our society. So, absolutely, they should have the right to demonstrate to protest anybody they wish.

AGAINST PROTEST

Obviously this question relates to the recent incident at Adelphi when Dr. Edward Teller was honored. Frankly, I think that the protest by the host students as well as members of the faculty was a crass display on the part of both elements touted to maintain an open mind on all subjects. Nuclear energy, like many other breakthroughs in science, was not intended to be confined to the atomic bomb and actually encompassed many applications which were intended for the benefit of mankind. I can only assume that Dr. Teller's work on the hydrogen bomb had similar corollary effects. In an atmosphere of higher learning where outstanding educational and scientific progress by any individual is singled out for recognition and honorary award, it is unbelievable that protest took place at all. This and other public negative display should not be condoned by college administrators and an appropriate apology should be promptly forthcoming.

PAST ISSUES

EULOGY

I suppose you received many calls about Bishop McGann's eulogy. I'm a Catholic and I think the good Bishop was out of order in expressing his long-felt leftist views at the funeral mass for his friend, Bill Casey. A number of fellow Catholics and I think that the way to send a message to the Bishop is to defray some of our church contributions to the newly formed William F. Casey Fund for the Contras. The Bishop's so-called eulogy embarrassed many Catholics.

APPLAUSE

I'm calling in reference to the majority of callers who were against the Bishop's eulogy of Casey. It's clear my fellow Catholics seem to think politics and religion don't mix--especially when their right wing Republican politics is contrary to the teachings of Christ. The Bishop is a witness to Christ's teaching. He should only speak the truth, particularly in light of Casey's wrongdoing in supporting war in Central America. The church should live and teach peace, not just give lip service to peace like many Catholics do. I applaud the Bishop for his courage in speaking against all war and anyone's support of war.

We Elect Only One President

by Jerome J. Niosi, Ph.D.

From George Washington to Ronald Reagan, criticism of presidential actions has been characteristic of our literate, vigorous, American democracy. In taverns where drinkers blow the foam off their beers, and in news conferences where the poobahs of the professional press ask carefully crafted questions, millions of Americans seek to evaluate the effectiveness of the President of the United States. After most conferences, instant analyses are available pointing out that certain questions were not answered; that the President knows little or nothing; or, that the President should have "this or that". Other commentators total the "wins and losses", seek the "assessment of the man in the street" and conclude that the person whom the people had elected to the most powerful position in the democratic world is lacking those qualifications essential to the discharge of presidential duties.

Even George Washington, hero of the Revolution, was not immune. After the victory at Yorktown, Washington could be depended upon to move the fledgling republic towards stability. It was a critical time economically and politically. So much so that Colonel Lewis Nicola supported by the army urged Washington to assume the crown as King of the United States. Washington refused. Later, when the Constitution was adopted, it was a foregone conclusion that Washington would become the first President. He was elected unanimously. But the troubles facing the nation persisted.

Determining that the best interests of the United States required peace, Washington urged the acceptance of the problem-solving Jay Treaty with England, the despicable former enemy. The illustrious Thomas Jefferson, leader of the Republicans was aghast and described Washington in a letter subsequently made public as "an apostate...whose head was shorn by the harlot, England". Others called him a "fool by reason of his intellect."

Abraham Lincoln, saviour of the Union, fared no better. Desiring to "bind up the nation's wounds", Lincoln angered the vengeful elements of the victorious Republicans. While the nation mourned after his assassination, Thaddeus Stevens, irascible Chairman of the Joint Committee on Reconstruction, exulted, "by God, now we will show them how to run the country!" Under his leadership Congress virtually suspended the constitutional system, forced military reconstruction on the South and created a "tragic era" which required two world wars and one hundred years to overcome.

Today President Reagan, elected and reelected overwhelmingly by the people faces a similar reaction resulting from the "Iran affair". Ben Bradlee of the Washington Post chortled that "he has not had so much fun since Watergate". Columnists across the country excoriate his "laid back management style"; his "incompetence"; his "9-5 working day". He is an "actor" who is "told what to do by his wife". No reference is made to his long tenure as governor of the most populous state in the country, nor to a remarkable six years as president.

In Congress, reaction to the "Iran affair" was predictable. Cherubic Patrick Leahy mournfully intoned his dirge about a "tottering" presidency. Surprisingly, Alphonse D'Amato, his colleague in the Senate and usually good for several hundred words on any subject, remained strangely silent. Meanwhile, as pundits dissected the "carcass" of a "dead presidency", others offered realms of advice for its resurrection. Yet, the basic situation for the latest in presidential bashing can be reduced to the more familiar constitutional clash between "checks and balances": the president's power to conduct foreign policy and congressional power to levy and collect taxes. Specifically, President Reagan seeks to bolster the Contra forces while Congress seeks to limit such aid through its power to provide or deny funds.

While debate simmers over American policy in Central America, the Middle East is embroiled with serious problems over hostages, oil quotas, violence between Israel and the Palestinians and the neverending specter of possible intrusion of Soviet influence into the area.

Iran, once the pivot of United States strategy in the Middle East and a staunch ally had been supplied with considerable military equipment. With the Shah deposed and replaced by the Ayatollah Khomeini, Iran had become enmeshed in a war with Iraq and was in desperate need to secure parts for its war machine. Influential in dealing with its coreligionist Muslim fundamentalists, Iran could also be helpful in securing the release of American hostages. That country could be brought closer to the United States and away from Soviet influences through moderates in the country.

Accordingly, creative elements in the Reagan administration devised a "grand strategy". Military equipment would be supplied to Iran for funds over and above their cost to the American taxpayers. The excess funds would then be diverted to the Contras to meet the limitations of the Boland amendment which prohibited appropriated funds to the Contras. The bonus would be the release of the hostages remaining in Middle East captivity. Finally, Iran would be returned to the American orbit.

The strategy appeared to have worked. The first hostages were, indeed, released with the exhortation that the press not make too much of their release to avoid endangering the release of others in captivity.

Surprisingly, the Iranians released the details of the operation to the Lebanese press. The covert operation, thought to have been an American inspiration, appears to have been, instead, a delicately orchestrated "sting" operation of the Iranians, themselves, designed to acquire vital material, provide funds for Middle East factions, expose a Soviet spy network, and embarrass the United States. In effect, the Iranians hornswoggled the United States and gave the President the greatest crisis of his presidency.

Nevertheless, despite the unfortunate probing of the "Iran affair" in full view of the television camera and the press, the incident remains nothing more than the familiar clash between the power of Congress to provide funds and the power of the President to conduct foreign policy: Congress attempted to intervene in foreign policy by restricting funds; the President sought to circumvent that unwarranted intrusion into foreign policy by using funds, other than those appropriated by Congress. And there is, precisely, the rub.

In such clashes between the legislative and executive branches, one must consult with the Supreme Court for judicial guidance. Fortunately, a detailed analysis of presidential power in the area of foreign policy is available. The occasion, in 1936, was the "Chaco War" in Bolivia. Franklin D. Roosevelt, one of the strongest and most vigorous proponents of presidential power in the nation's history, was president. In what became known as the Curtis-Wright decision (299US304), the Supreme Court declared that "the President alone has the power to speak or listen as a representative of the nation...he alone negotiates. The Senate cannot intrude; and Congress is powerless to invade it....The president [is] the sole organ of the federal government in the field of international relations - a power which does not require as a basis for its exercise an act of Congress. If...serious embarrassment is to be avoided...Congress...must often accord to the President a degree of discretion and freedom from statutory restriction....Moreover, he, not Congress, has the better opportunity of knowing the conditions which prevail in foreign countries....he has confidential sources of information...Secrecy in respect to information gathered by [his agents] may be highly necessary and the premature disclosure of it, productive of harmful results...."

The United States is a government of "checks and balances". Nevertheless, the extreme exercise of congressional authority to levy and collect taxes for public purposes can disrupt other powers constitutionally assigned to the executive branch. The power of Congress to appropriate money, but limit its distribution in the area of foreign policy as in the case of the Boland Amendment intrudes on the authority of the President to conduct foreign policy in Central America. Where a debate erupts between the executive and the legislative, the judgment of the Supreme Court must prevail.

Headlines and TV commentary to the contrary, the executors of foreign policy will maintain that they did nothing illegal. They believe that any action based on the "intent" of Congress will have little standing in law and that, in fact, such "intent" was nothing more than an unwarranted intrusion into an area reserved for the executive.

Americans have had enough of presidential bashing. In the future, one might hope that President Reagan would consider modifying his characteristic amiability and follow the example of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who from time to time admonished impertinent newspapermen to "peddle their paper". Or, he might emulate John F. Kennedy, embarrassed by the Bay of Pigs fiasco, who brazenly terminated the conversation by declaring, "I do not wish to talk about it".

To eliminate the nonsensical evaluation of his management style, President Reagan might well recall the blunt statement of peppery Harry Truman: "There are probably a hundred people who could do this job better than I can, but I am the President and I mean to do it!" And he did.

Americans elect one president at a time. Basically, they want him to do the job he was elected to do. If he does not, they will elect someone else.

GOOD WORDS

A very good friend invited me to lunch at the Maine Maid Inn in Jericho last Friday. I really don't know if I can find enough complimentary words to describe my experiences. First of all the Inn is charming and the decor is very relaxing. The waitress was so sweet. On her recommendation we both ordered the Friday special of Lobster Tail Scampi. It was served with rice or linguini and in addition we received a few shrimp on the rice. For dessert, again on the waitress' suggestion I had chocolate walnut pie which was simply magnificent and my friend had cheese cake amaretto. I admit I had to taste it too and will order that next time I visit the Maine Maid. By the way, we were completed with our meal in one hour. Great for all those business people out there and we didn't feel rushed at all. In fact there was time for more coffee.

Q. My wife and I both work and we like to try new restaurants. In some places, we find the service is inadequate. What does a patron do who wishes to summon his waiter but finds the waiter has "disappeared" for a long interval?

A. He might try to get the attention of a waiter not assigned to his table, asking him to find his "missing" colleague.

GREAT PLACE

We have just come back from Gerlich's Restaurant in Glen Head. Now if anyone asks you whether there is still a good bargain in fine food you would just have to say that this restaurant has it.

We went there on a Wednesday and had their prime ribs of beef cooked to perfection. In addition they have a fine salad bar. The big treat was at the end of the meal when we found that their Wednesday night prime ribs special only cost $9.95 each including the salad bar. So this has just got to be one of the greatest.

IRISH ATMOSPHERE

I think that many of your readers are Irish or of Irish descent as I am but it doesn't really matter. There is a nice cafe in Bethpage called Kenny's Cafe that has just great food and a lot more.

It has good service and entertainment, folk songs and ballads on Friday and Saturday nights. We went there last week and found the food to be very good and the entertainment to be something special. I think that many of your readers would like to go to this fine place and bring it to your attention. It is located at 729 South Oyster Bay Road, Bethpage. M.O.D.

Q. If two women dine out together, and neither is the guest of the other, what is the best way for them to pay the bill?

A. The best way I know is by asking the waiter to bring separate checks, and why this is not done more often I cannot understand. The second best plan is having one woman pay the check, then settling the bill afterwards with her companion.

CATERING

Q. It seems every time I go to a certain restaurant with my wife, we're given very poor seats.

Either we're put in a draft near the door or else we're seated next to the noisy kitchen. It is too bad because we like the restaurant otherwise. It has a nice cozy atmosphere and the food and service are good. What should we do?

A. One simple solution to your problem would be to request a better situated table when you are making reservations. You might also speak to the owner or headwaiter. If he sees you are frequent customers he will wish to please you.

Q. I notice that when a diner orders steak some restaurants place steak knives on the table where the regular knives would ordinarily go. However, other restaurants set the table using the regular knife, then when the steak is served, the waiter replaces the dinner knife with the steak knife. Why this difference in service?

A. It is considered more formal to set the table in the usual way and to substitute the steak knife only when the steak is served. Substituting the steak knife for the dinner knife is a less formal way of setting the table.

Q. What is the proper use of a butter knife?

A. A butter knife should be used only for buttering breads or corn on the cob. If the diner wishes to add butter to his potatoes or other dishes he should use his dinner fork, not the butter knife, for this purpose.

READER RATINGS

Q. Help! What does someone do who enjoys eating out, but is constantly on a diet and has absolutely no will power?
A. One solution might be eating in a Chinese restaurant. The food is low in fat, desserts are simple and the usual beverage-green tea, with no cream or sugar has no calories at all!

Another good idea might be choosing a restaurant with a big salad bar-a delicious and nutritious way to take the edge off an over-eager appetite.

EXPANDED DINING ROOM

One of our favorite Portuguese restaurants is Lareira's on East Jericho Turnpike in Mineola. They have recently expanded their dining room and we thoroughly enjoyed the atmosphere.

Our choice was Bacalhau cooked on the grill; actually it is codfish. The taste was superb. We have also enjoyed the way they prepare steak, served in a ceramic dish with sliced Portuguese sausage and an egg on top. The imported beer is superb. Lareira's has become a place to share with our friends. You will find the food is excellent and the prices are modest.

Q. In a good restaurant that we attended recently an accordian player came around to each table and asked whether we had any requests. My wife made a request and the musician played it. Is this music provided by the restaurant or should I have tipped? J.B.
A. Generally the musicians are paid by the restaurant to entertain all of the diners. But when you make a special request it is expected that a small tip will accompany the request. In this case $1 would have been a fair amount.

READER RATINGS

Q. Is it allowed for a restaurant to include a tip, automatically, on the bill for food ordered? A friend and I had that happen recently and resented it because the service was very poor and we felt a tip was not in order. Please answer.

A. No. In this country the custom is not to add any tip to the bill and unless the menu states the prices clearly says that this will be done it is not correct. Most people would not be happy with that system in the U.S. because diners have always had a flexible tip system in which they could give a better tip for better service and if this is not kept then the tip is just a fee.

Spring summer salads

Salads are one of the most versatile parts of any meal. In France, a light salad is traditionally served after the main course, while in the United States, it precedes or accompanies the meal. Salads can be elaborate first courses for formal entertaining, or they can replace a cooked green vegetable at a family supper. Or, as presented here, a salad can be the meal itself.

Main course salads are ideal for today's lifestyle. Fresh, quick, nutritious and usually relatively low in calories, they have wide appeal. Ideas for salads are limited only by one's imagination and available produce. Long gone are the days when lettuce meant only iceberg and dressing was plain cider vinegar and oil and oil. Today, even the most remote of supermarkets usually stocks a wide variety of salad greens and the selection of vinegars and oils is of higher quality than ever before.

SHRIMP, AVOCADO AND GRAPEFRUIT LOUIS
16 jumbo or very large shrimp (1-1/4 pounds)
1 cup white wine
1/4 cup water
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup chili sauce
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
1/4 green pepper, seeded
1/4 rib celery
1 small onion
Salt and pepper to taste
1 head red leaf lettuce
1 grapefruit
1 ripe avocado
8 cherry tomatoes

Peel and devein shrimp. (The fishmonger may do this for you.) Bring wine and about 1/4 cup water to boil in a non-reactive skillet large enough to hold shrimp in single layer. Add shrimp and additional water to just cover shrimp, if necessary. Lower heat to simmer and cook shrimp 2-3 minutes until just cooked through. Remove shrimp with slotted spoon and place in strainer under cold running water to stop the cooking and cool shrimp. Bring cooking liquid in skillet to boil and reduce over high heat for 2 minutes to about 1/4 cup. Reserve shrimp and 1 tablespoon reduced liquid for use in dressing. Discard remaining cooking liquid.

In small bowl, blend together mayonnaise, chili sauce and horseradish. In food processor, mince together green pepper, celery and onion. Blend into mayonnaise mixture along with 1 tablespoon reserved shrimp cooking liquid. Taste and add salt and pepper as needed.

Wash and dry lettuce and tear into large pieces. Peel and section grapefruit. Peel avocado and cut into 16 slices. Halve cherry tomatoes.

To assemble salad, arrange lettuce as bed on each of 4 serving plates. Place shrimp and avocado in an overlapping row down center of plate. Arrange grapefruit sections and cherry tomatoes on either side of center. Spoon some dressing over shrimp and avocado. Pass any remaining dressing separately.

Preparation and cooking time: 25 minutes.

Yield: 4 servings.

SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN SALAD

1 small head romaine lettuce
1 small head radicchio or 1/4 small head red cabbage
1 pound boneless, skinless chicken pieces (breast, thighs or combination)
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup yellow cornmeal
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup buttermilk
1/2 cup cooking oil, such as safflower oil
1 tablespoon minced shallots
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar or red wine vinegar

Wash, dry and tear lettuce and radicchio into bite-size pieces. (If using red cabbage, slice thinly). Place in large salad or mixing bowl.

Cut chicken into chunks about 1 1/2 inches in size.

In shallow dish, combine flour, cornmeal, salt and pepper. Pour buttermilk into another shallow dish. Begin heating oil in large skillet.

Dip chicken first into buttermilk and then into flour mixture, coating lightly and shaking off excess. Without crowding pan, cook chicken in oil over medium heat for 5-7 minutes, turning often until crispy, golden brown and cooked through. Drain on paper towels. (If your skillet is not large enough to cook chicken without crowding, you may need to cook in two batches.)

Add shallots to drippings in skillet and saute about 1 minute. Add mustard and vinegar and stir to scrape up browned bits clinging to bottom of pan. Remove pan from heat, taste dressing and add salt and pepper if needed.

Toss warm dressing with lettuce and radicchio or cabbage. Divide mixture among 4 serving plates and arrange chicken atop. Serve immediately.

Preparation and cooking time: 25 minutes

Yield: 4 servings.

microwave magic

By Desiree Vives

To microwave a fresh artichoke, clip the sharp tips from its leaves with a kitchen shears. Then use a sharp knife to trim off the stem and the pointed end opposite stem. Rinse thoroughly, allowing some water to cling to leaves. Wrap in heavy plastic wrap and set, stem-end up, in a glass custard cup. Microwave on HIGH setting (100 percent power) four to six minutes for one artichoke, six to eight minutes for two, 10 to 12 minutes for three, and 12 to 14 minutes for four. Rotate artichokes one-quarter turn halfway through cooking time and let stand, wrapped, 10 to 15 minutes before serving.

The globe artichoke is the one most of us are familiar with (the Jerusalem artichoke is grown for its root). The globe variety contains a central knot of tough, fibrous material known as the "choke." Remove this and you've got an artichoke ready to be filled with a savory sauce or seasoned bread crumbs and cheese. By the way, a large fresh artichoke has only about 60 calories. It would be wonderful diet food if its leaves weren't so perfect for dipping into rich, calorie-laden melted butter!

For me, the artichoke has an irresistible appeal. Its leaves are actually flower petals and if left unpicked, the bud would eventually blossom into a prickly purple thistle.

Artichokes are also available canned, frozen, or marinated (the last are a tasty addition to tossed green or pasta salads).

GRATINÉE OF ARTICHOKE

6 small fresh artichokes
1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1/4 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon chicken bouillon granules
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 cups milk or half-and-half
1/2 cup grated Swiss cheese
Dash paprika

Preparation Time: 10 minutes

Cooking Time: 19 to 24 1/2 minutes (plus 3 minutes standing time)

Oven Setting: HIGH (100 percent power)

In 2-quart glass casserole combine all ingredients except cheese and onion rings. Stir well. Cover and microwave 5 minutes. Stir again and microwave 2 to 3 minutes longer, uncovered, or until heated through.

Sprinkle shredded cheese evenly over chicken mixture, then top with french fried onion rings. Microwave, uncovered, 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 minutes, or until cheese melts. Let stand, covered, 3 minutes before serving. Serve with noodles or hot cooked rice.

Southwest cuisine

Phoenix — forget it. Santa Fe, Tucson, Albuquerque — you're also-rans.

The culinary capital of the American Southwest is Manhattan Beach, Calif.

The vistas in this city look out over the Pacific rather than desert mesas, and it gets more onshore fogs than painted sunsets, but it does have Chef John Sedlar and his St. Estephe Restaurant.

This modest establishment, tucked next door to a dry cleaner in a shopping mall, has led the way to a new style of cooking that combines the earthy ingredients of Sedlar's New Mexican heritage with the rigorous elegance of the French kitchen, seasoned with an individual sense of fun and an eye for the strong patterns of Indian design.

You might call the result "modern Southwest cuisine" — which happens to be the title of Sedlar's new cookbook, recently issued by Simon and Schuster.

It's an aristocratic approach to the big five ingredients of the Southwest. Sedlar said — "beans, chili, corn, cactus and jerky, which can be meat, a fruit or a vegetable so long as it's dried."

By "aristocratic," Sedlar means that he uses the refined techniques he learned through his apprenticeship in classical and nouvelle French cooking and is applying them in a haute cuisine approach to "the first cooking of America." This "jerky" could turn out to be preserved duck in a salad with melon and pumpkin seeds, while "corn" might appear in the form of miniature ears made of white chocolate with mango "kernels."

Sedlar opened St. Estephe in 1980 with his partner Steve Garcia, who concentrates on the business end of the enterprise and supervises the front of the house. At first the chef followed the nouvelle French style, itself a rarity in the Los Angeles of the day. But increasingly he found himself drawn to cooking he remembered from his childhood.

Three and a half years ago — already an era ago, so rapidly has the world of cooking moved — he took his career and the business in his hands and converted his menu to the unheard of notion of a nouvelle Southwestern cuisine. It turned out to be the right move at the right time. Interest in food was reaching a peak as people in sizable numbers had by then eaten their way through the classical repertory and were beginning to hunger for something new.

Soon the restaurant began to attract regional and then national attention. "John Sedlar is one of America's treasures, a genius in the kitchen," wrote Craig Claiborne, doyen of the country's food writers, in one of what has become a collection of rave notices.

Sedlar's dishes remain highly individualistic, often startling. "Some people have said that I'm a prankster," he commented, the fate of those who show a sense of humor in their work. Some of his dishes are in fact meant to be funny, and that may take some getting used to.

Where is nouvelle Southwest heading next? Well, the chef spoke with fascination about how the cooks in the ancient Maya civilization would decorate tortillas by printing patterns on them with natural dyes. Or he might get into the branding of tortillas to create special effects.

Another Sedlar idea centers on the petroglyphs, ancient cave drawings of men and animals, which at St. Estephe might appear anywhere in the meal. One idea often begets a series. The kitchen has just run various changes on the tamale, including a Japanese version with rice and seaweed, a kind of hot sushi. Next there could be an exploration and expansion of enchiladas, which can be expected to appear in novel guises anywhere from appetizer to dessert.

"Look," he said, "I've been cooking for 17 years. After a while, you get to know how things go together and how they're going to come out. What you need is a sense of fun and adventure."

He provides that for the clientele of St. Estephe and for the readers of "Modern Southwest Cuisine" (Simon & Schuster, $23), from which the following recipes are drawn.

KACHINA MOSAIC OF CAVIAR WITH FEATHERS OF ENDIVE

1 pound of large fresh Belgian endive
2 eggs
3 ounces golden white fish roe
2 ounces finely chopped fresh parsley
3 ounces black caviar
1 ounce salmon caviar
1 ounce finely chopped onion
7-inch plate and a 12-inch plate liner

Separate endive leaves. Using approximately 25 leaves all about 5 inches long, score inside of leaves with impression of a feather. You will want this impression to cover the entire leaf. In 2 quarts of rapidly boiling water, hard boil 2 eggs. Cook for 10 minutes. When eggs are cool, separate yolks from whites and chop each fine.

To assemble mosaic refer to photograph.

On 7-inch plate place chopped egg white on one-third of plate. Next, place a strip of gold caviar approximately  $\frac{1}{4}$  inch wide across the entire plate next to the egg white. Follow with a strip of chopped parsley approximately  $\frac{1}{4}$  inch wide, then a strip of black caviar  $\frac{1}{4}$  inch wide. Cover the remaining plate with chopped egg yolk, leaving room for triangle and eyes. With salmon caviar, fill eyes and mouth. In triangle place chopped onion. After completing mosaic, place 7-inch plate on 12-inch liner. Now place individual scored endive completely around the perimeter of the 7-inch plate covering the 12-inch liner.

LATTICE OF SALMON AND SEABASS, WOVEN NAVAJO STYLE AND SERVED WITH GREEN CHILI BUTTER SAUCE

2½ ounces salmon
2½ ounces seabass
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup white wine
1 tablespoon shallots diced
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup dry white wine
2 cups heavy cream
4 ounces pureed green chili
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup butter

Cut each fillet into strips  $\frac{1}{2}$  x 5 inches long. Take 5 strips of seabass and form a square placing each strip next to the other. Take 1 salmon strip at a time, weave through the strips of seabass. After weaving all strips, pattern should appear as a checkerboard. Set aside.

In heavy pot combine vinegar, shallots and salt. Cook over medium heat until reduced by half or to  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup. Add wine and reduce by half or until cream is of sauce consistency. Whisk in chili and butter until smooth. Pass all through sieve.

With a spatula, lift woven salmon and seabass and place in rapidly boiling steamer. Make certain fish does not touch water. Steam for 3 minutes or until cooked medium.

For presentation, place sauce on plate and set woven salmon/seabass on top.

CHOCOLATE TRUFFLE ANTELOPE TORTE WITH CARAMEL LIME SAUCE

Chocolate truffle torte:
½ cup heavy cream
10 ounces dark semisweet chocolate, broken into  $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch pieces
1½ tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
Caramel lime sauce:
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon water
 $\frac{1}{4}$  cup heavy cream
 $\frac{1}{2}$  cup fresh lime juice

Line an 8-inch circular cake pan with a large circular coffee filter or a circle of waxed paper large enough to come halfway up the pan's side. In the top of a double boiler place the cream and chocolate pieces and stir until the chocolate has melted completely and is fully blended with the cream. Pour the mixture into the lined cake pans and chill it in the refrigerator until solid, at least 2 hours.

To unmold the truffle, place a circle of cardboard or a flat plate over the pan. Dunk the bottom of the pan in warm water, then invert it, turning it out onto the cardboard or plate. Lift off the pan and peel off the paper.

Place a decorative stencil on top of the truffle. Hold a small, fine sieve over the truffle's surface and spoon the cocoa powder into the sieve. Gently tap the sieve as you move it around above the truffle to dust its surface evenly. Carefully lift off the stencil. Store the truffle in the refrigerator until serving time.

For the caramel lime sauce: Put the sugar and water in a heavy medium-sized skillet. Heat the mixture over moderate heat, stirring frequently, until the sugar melts and turns a medium caramel color, 10 to 15 minutes. Immediately add the cream and stir until it is fully incorporated. Remove the pan from the heat. Then stir in the lime juice and let the sauce cool to room temperature.

To serve the truffle, spoon some of the sauce into the middle of each chilled dessert plate. Cut a wedge of the truffle and place it on top of the sauce.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q: I own an adobe home that was constructed in 1950 from adobe clay on the site. I am concerned about a condition that has appeared over the past year.

The last time we painted the exterior was approximately nine years ago. We used a good prime coat and covered that with a paint that was recommended by a local paint company. Recently, some of the paint on the lower bricks has been peeling off in sheets exposing the original surface of the adobe.

What would you suggest we do to protect the bricks? Paint does not seem to want to adhere to the rough surface and I am concerned about moisture invading the bricks and weakening them. Thank you for your assistance. — C.W.S.

A: It sounds like you have a moisture problem at the foundation. When your home was constructed, the contractor should have waterproofed the foundation walls. Even though the foundation was waterproofed, the coating may have grown brittle and cracked. As a result, considerable seepage often enters through the seams, cracks or porous sections of the wall. This would cause the paint to peel.

Inspect the lower section of the wall for any visible cracks or damaged sections. These can be repaired by special hydraulic patching cements. These cements enter the concrete pores, expand and harden to form a waterproof plug. They harden in minutes, which makes it possible to patch leaks even while moisture is present.

For added insurance against seepage, paint or cover the foundation wall with a masonry sealer. For the adobe brick you may have to use a special kind of block filler for sealing the brick. Older adobe brick requires this. However, newer bricks are manufactured with a filler already in the adobe to prevent moisture problems.

Most of the above information assumes that you have a raised foundation rather than a cement slab for construction. If your home is built on a cement slab, the moisture problem could be due to a lack of proper perimeter insulation. There should be a belt of insulation around the outer edge of the slab, and, if possible, between the slab and the footing wall.

I also highly recommend that you consult a building contractor in regard to installing perimeter insulation. Usually this consists of slabs of waterproofing insulation, such as Styrofoam slabs, around the edges of the floor and is exceedingly effective at preventing moisture penetration at these critical points.

Q: We have a 6-by-8-foot front porch flooring of poured concrete surfaced with grouted 1-inch flagstone. This concrete slab is also the ceiling for a room in the basement below. After a rain, a 2-by-2 foot section of the ceiling under the porch flooring gets wet and sometimes drips water. There is obviously a leak.

I have inspected the flagstones and the grout between the stones. The grout appears to be in generally good condition except in a few places where there are hairline cracks. This is probably the source of the leak, since I doubt if the stone is that porous.

The concrete slab when viewed from beneath is porous. I doubt if any treatment to the underside of the concrete slab will be effective.

There are two ways to correct this problem. One is to install a sump pump. The other option is to install a curtain drain around the perimeter of the foundation.

For added protection, make sure that all roof drainage is channeled away from the foundation. Downspouts can direct runoff to a pipe below ground that takes the water to a dry well or gravel-filled trench. If this is impractical, a large splash pad installed at the base of each downspout will divert water away from the foundation.

By Robert Wallace, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I live with my mom and my older sister who is 19. My dad died two years ago when I was 14. My sister and my mother both smoke cigarettes and they are encouraging me to do the same.

My mom keeps saying that she knows I'm going to smoke sooner or later so I might as well start now. Several times Mom has told me to light a cigarette for her. When I did she told me to take a deep puff.

I don't want to smoke and I'm tired of the pressure my family (especially Mom) is placing on me. I thought parents were supposed to help their kids, not harm them. — Lynn.

Lynn: Parents are human beings and being mortal they make their share of unwise decisions. Encouraging you to smoke is a mistake.

You know that smoking is a nasty, deadly habit so continue to aban cigarettes. If Mom asks you to "light one up" politely say "no" and bring the cigarettes to her.

Q: Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and have several good friends. My problem is that my mother doesn't like them. She wants me to drop them and find new friends. In fact, she has given me names of kids she wants me to hang around with.

So far, I have not listened to my mom because I don't believe parents should pick out friends for their children, do you? — Claire, Claire: I believe parents should not pick friends for their teens, but I do think parents should have a voice (and a veto) in who their teens are hanging around with. It doesn't take a teen long to go astray because of peer pressure.

Q: Dr. Wallace: Six months ago I had a sweet, loving boyfriend and a super best girlfriend. Now I have neither.

My boyfriend dumped me and went steady with my best friend. I haven't talked with either of them since. Now Mitch is dating another girl and I despise him very much. I wouldn't go out with him for diamonds.

I do miss my best girlfriend but I find it hard to forgive her. Do you think I should try? She has informed me that she is sorry for what she did. — Roberta Roberta: Forgiving your best friend for her involvement with your boyfriend is indeed a difficult chore but I'd advise you to forgive her. When accomplished, your friendship with this girl could be stronger than ever, especially if the "ex" boyfriend's name is soon forgotten by both of you.

Q: Laurie: I believe Dad is 100 percent correct. Most guys fear rejection from the "perfect" (charm, looks, intelligence, personality, sense of humor, etc.) girl so they adopt the philosophies, "Why ask, she wouldn't go out with me anyway," or, "A girl that sharp has lots of guys chasing her so why should I join in the hunt?"

The solution — be a bit assertive. When you discover a guy you would enjoy dating, make him aware. He will take it from there!

Dr. Wallace: I am 17 and was adopted by the Smiths (not their real name) at birth. When I was 14, my parents told me that I was adopted. I was surprised but not shocked. Actually, I considered it no big thing. I love and respect my mother and father. They have been super parents.

My adoptive parents know where my mother lives and said that they would set up a meeting between my real mother and me if I so desired. Well, that time has come. My problem is that I do not want to hurt my adoptive parents. Do you think I should meet my real mother? — Julie.

Julie: Your "real" mother is Mrs. Smith. The lady you desire to see is your birth mother.

To answer your question, yes, visit your birth mother and satisfy your curiosity. If you don't meet her, you will always be wondering about her.

Your parents will understand and not be hurt by this meeting.

By Leonard J. Hansen

Q: We have a limited income and need more cash in order to live. Our home is worth about $100,000 and we have already taken our $125,000 capital gains exclusion.

How do we go about a sale/leaseback of our home or a reverse annuity mortgage? — W.M.

A: Your home can be a major source of retirement income and security through a program such as a reverse annuity mortgage or a sale/leaseback.

Your savings and loan institution might have a RAM program, where they will provide mortgage funds against the value of your home. You can take the payments monthly as a cash supplement to your other sources of income. Not all S&Ls have the program so you might have to shop around.

For sale/leaseback you seek out a real estate brokerage that does at least some work with investors or investor groups. In this concept the investors buy your home from you, providing some cash up front. And then they make monthly payments at net. Consider their mortgage payment as "gross," reduced by the agreed monthly lease rate you will pay back for continued use of the home. We have seen this concept work very well for many retirees who wanted the added cash income while remaining in their home. As you hold the first mortgage in the transaction (in most cases) you can readily foreclose if they fail to make the payments.

In both the reverse annuity mortgage and a sale/leaseback you will want the counsel of your attorney — or an attorney experienced in real estate law — and a certified public accountant. The service fees can be negotiated in advance, and can be reasonable considering their role in getting the transaction handled correctly for you.

If today's home equity loan rates remain very low, you may also consider taking out a loan against the property and find it beneficial if you can project both the usable loan principal and the repayment program. If, in your case, the two factors can be projected safely and positively, you might have another alternative. Weigh this one very carefully as it does create an indebtedness posture, different from the positive cash flow concepts of the RAM and sale/leaseback programs.

Q: The law passed last year said that corporations with pension programs must vest employees after five years, not the 10 years as was previously mandated. I work for a large corporation and still have a 10-year vesting. Why? — S.S.

A: The 1986 Tax Reform Act did change vesting — that time when the pension funds are really yours — from 10 to five years. But most large corporations have until 1989 for full compliance.

In small pension plans, such as used by a private practice doctor with a nurse, vesting must start as early as two or three years of employment. The law is on the books but it will take time for it to be fully effective.

Q: I reached age 65 in January of 1986, but did not retire. So I did not apply for Social Security or Medicare.

After reading your column that stated that everyone at age 65 should file for Medicare, I rushed to the Social Security office. There, I was told that I missed the enrollment period, within three months after my birthday. I was told that I had lost out on Part A, but that I could apply for Part B. Have I lost out? — J.V.

A: It is true that everyone should file for Medicare immediately before or immediately after becoming age 65, even if not filing for Social Security.

But you have not lost out by filing late. There are special enrollment periods each year for those who missed filing on a timely basis. Your monthly premium cost will probably increase by 10 percent for each year that you are late in filing, but even that is small when considering the coverage available to you, just for being age 65.

Re-contact your local Social Security office to ask specifically for the dates of the special enrollment periods. You can still qualify.

Cut those stragglers past their prime

I suppose it's because I enjoy keeping our houseplants fresh, young and plump that I quickly spot specimens that have begun to straggle past their prime. With older plants kept cut back to bush out, and tip shoots of the removed pieces rooted to produce more youthful replacements, our indoor plant pot is kept on the fresh boil, so to speak.

As wonderfully efficient as this regime may appear to be, however, it has its drawbacks. Sometimes those slightly weedy looking half-barren stragglers produce wonderful surprises that the fresh young things are not capable of — in much the same way that only a garden kept less than meticulously groomed and cleaned can harbor volunteer flowers that so often prove delectably appropriate where they appear.

One day early this spring, as I was passing our collection of houseplants under lights, an odd, unfamiliar splash of violet caught my attention. Stopping for a closer look, I saw dotted throughout a rather overgrown polka dot plant, at its leaf joints, several tiny purple flowers. They were slender and funnel-shaped, splitting into a broad, back-curved upper petal and a very narrow, curled-under lower petal. In between were two delicate stamens projecting from the flower's center.

New polka dot plants are grown for the beauty of their pink- or white-splashed foliage. I've not seen flowers on any of our young, lushly rounded specimens — just on this one that had not been cut back as usual and had gone woody and long in the branch.

Our angel wing begonias have displayed a similar tendency to flower most profusely with dangling clusters of pink against silver-splashed, wing-shaped foliage when they've not been subjected to the usual snip-and-shape routine.

And our Tea Rose begonia does the same thing. Only when its insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common and our Purity, all ordain and establish this Constitution.

Philadelphia, May 21, 1787 (Delayed) — The convention to revise the Articles of Confederation of the thirteen states which a few years ago won their independence from England finally got underway today. It had been scheduled to start a week ago but bad weather and the usual poor travel conditions delayed the arrival of many of the delegates. It required four days travel by the delegates of Connecticut and Massachusetts to reach this city.

The Continental Congress has called for this convention because it has become evident that the Articles of Confederation which so effectively bound the then-colonies together in their revolution against the central government in London is not effective in peacetime.

The following examples of failure can be cited:

1. The flow of commerce between the individual states is being hampered by the imposition of tariffs. New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut each collect duties on goods moving across their borders.
2. Although the Continental Congress has theoretical monetary power, the individual states are printing their own currency.
3. Because the American States are now outside of the British Empire, their products have found a tariff wall facing them at English ports. American farmers, with decreased foreign outlets for their products, and heavily taxed to help pay for their states' war debts, have become desperate. In western Massachusetts some of them revolted under the leadership of Captain Daniel Shays and laid siege to the local courthouse until dispelled by the militia.
4. The Continental Congress, lacking power to impose taxes, has no resources to establish an army to enforce the Treaty with England. Consequently the British have not relinquished their forts in the Northwest Territory, and Indians are ravaging settlements in Kentucky and Tennessee.

arms have branched out at odd angles and dropped a few leaves for that semi-barren look does it seem to unfold its clusters of tiny, rounded pink blooms that dangle from the branch, tips like jewels from the harem ring of an Oriental potentate.

I'm not suggesting that we stop grooming our houseplants. Regular checking and cleaning up among our indoor plants is the most effective preventive measure we have against insect pests and diseases that can mar their beauty. However, apart from keeping up that all-important routine cleanliness in and around our houseplants, it would seem that a little benevolent neglect can work to our advantage in some of them.

Overpotting is another kindness that can backfire on us, for many of our flowering plants bloom abundantly only when housed in rather cramped quarters. This is, however, a good time to repot plants that are in real need of it.

When a plant's root system has entirely filled its pot, and roots begin growing out the drainage holes, it's time to move it up into a slightly larger container. Other signs that can indicate a need for repotting include wilting between normal waterings, and yellowed lower leaves. Young plants, because their growth rate is fast, will need more frequent repotting than mature plants — at least once a year.

This is prime time also to root short tip cuttings for new plants. During May and June, when outdoor growth is in full swing, cuttings seem to root with special ease. Most root quickly in a loose, sterile planting mix in warmth, with a plastic cover over their container to minimize evaporation from the leaves during the rooting period. Skip the plastic enclosure with geraniums though.

Seeds for many houseplants sown during May and June will yield sturdy young ornamentals for the house by fall. This is an excellent way to introduce novel items to your houseplant collection each year.

The art of displaying a mixed bag of treasures

Q: I look at homes in magazines with their perfectly coordinated accessories and feel like I live in another world.

Our house is full of a lifetime of gifts, artwork and accessories from many periods and many places that have great personal meaning to us but no cohesion whatsoever.

Do you have any tricks for displaying our treasures that would make our home look less like a pawnshop? — B.H.

A: Yes, indeed. You will be surprised at what a little rearranging will do for your decor. Here are a few good tips:

- Group objects instead of setting them in a static line. It generally works best to have an odd number of items.

- Display objects together that share a particular feature such as shape, color, style, pattern or texture. If this lacks dynamism, experiment with adding one object that contrasts with the unifying feature.

- By overlapping objects of graduated size or height you create visual movement and interest, as well as a sense of unity.

- Try being creative about new places in which to create displays and new ways to view favorite objects.

- Balance "busy" space with "open" space so that your collection will be noticed.

These tricks can make your home much more attractive and increase the attention your treasures receive.

There is also something to be said for designating a closet sabbatical for the overflow and circulating possessions around your home periodically. When things stay the same too long, even your most favorite treasures tend to become part of the unnoticed landscape of your surroundings.

Q: I painted an ugly radiator to match the adjacent wall so it would "disappear" but the paint is peeling and now it looks worse than ever.

Is there some kind of special paint or process that will work? — M.C.

A: There aren't any ideal solutions unless your wall color happens to be off-white. The heat from functioning radiators usually will cause standard wall paint to discolor or peel. There is a special heat-resistant radiator paint but it is only available in off-white.

Should off-white work for you, use a metal primer first, and then a top coat of radiator paint. The heat of the radiator will harden and "cure" the paint.

If off-white is off-the-wall, resign yourself to stocking up on gloss or semi-gloss in the desired color for frequent touch-ups.

High chair not antique but is collectible

Q: What can you tell me about this unusual high chair? Is it really an antique or just a secondhand high chair?

A: Yes and no. Your high chair was made about 1900. Technically, an antique is 100 years old. However, high chairs like this are collectible and sell in the $225 to $275 range.

Q: This mark is on the bottom of my Dresden vase. Can you tell me when it was made and what it is worth?

A: This mark was not used in Dresden; it is the mark of Duchcov Porcelain in Duchcov, Czechoslovakia. It is the same company that was known as Royal Dux when this was part of Austria before World War I.

It would probably sell for about $50 to $100.

Q: I am confused about Limoges and Haviland china. Are they the same thing or are they entirely different?

A: Fine porcelain has been made in Limoges, France, since 1788. By 1840 there were over 30 porcelain factories in Limoges.

In 1841, an American, David Haviland, founded a factory there with his brother Daniel. Later Daniel withdrew and David was joined by his sons, Charles Edward and Theodore. In 1892, Theodore started his own company. In 1876, David's nephew, Charles Field Haviland, went into business.

As a result, there have been Haviland & Co., Charles Field Haviland Co., and Theodore Haviland Co. Therefore, you may encounter several dozen Limoges marks and at last three Haviland marks.

In addition, there were several Haviland marks that had no connection with the original family.

Q: I have heard that old slot machines that pay off in cash are very valuable. Is that true and, if so, what kind of prices are current?

- Aikens 5-cent slot machine — $2,600
- Burnham 5-cent slot machine — $6,500

Do dogs get cataracts?

Q: Do dogs get cataracts?

Our 15-year-old cocker has cloudy eyes and often seems to be blind. She often bumps into chairs and other furniture. She's in good health otherwise.

A: Your cocker may have cataracts. However, cataracts are not the only reason that old dogs have cloudy eyes. Your veterinarian can tell you if the cloudiness is due to cataracts after examining your dog's eyes with an ophthalmoscope. A cataract is simply a cloudiness or opacity of the lens of the eye. Depending on the amount and location of the cloudiness, the dog may be more or less blind.

Cataracts can be classified in several ways. Cataracts classified by age are either developmental or degenerative.

Developmental cataracts, the most common type in dogs, are due to abnormal development during growth of the puppy and may be due to heredity, nutritional or infectious changes.

Cataract development during the first 6 years of life occurs most often in miniature and toy poodles, cocker spaniels, wire-haired fox terriers, miniature schnauzers, Boston terriers, golden retrievers, beagles, German shepherds, pointers, Staffordshire terriers and Afghan hounds.

The exact way by which cataracts are inherited is not fully understood. Cataracts are often seen in several individuals within a family tree.

Degenerative cataracts usually occur later in life than developmental cataracts and are due to old age or senility, diseases such as diabetes, injuries of the eyes, radiation and a wide assortment of poisons. True cataracts due to old age are relatively rare. Only very old dogs have senile cataracts.

Cataracts due to trauma usually follow perforations of the lens.

Treatment of cataracts varies with the cause, location, age and size of the cataract. Many dogs get along quite well with cataracts. This is especially true of old dogs that are quite familiar with their surroundings. If the environment is changed such as rearranging furniture, the dog may bump into chairs or table legs.

Dogs with cataracts secondary to other diseases such as diabetes should be treated for the underlying predisposing disease before cataract treatment is initiated.

Treatment of cataracts usually involves surgical removal of the cloudy lens or a portion of the lens. Although cataract removal is routine surgery for a veterinary ophthalmologist, approximately 20 percent of dogs fail to regain their vision following cataract surgery.

Your veterinarian will be able to give you a realistic prediction of whether surgery will help your particular dog. Your veterinarian's prediction will be based on the history you relate to him regarding the development of the cloudiness, a thorough examination of your dog's eyes, and a physical examination of your dog.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Last Monday I attended a Memorial Day Parade. It was a happy event in some ways with marchers in bright colored uniforms and wonderful music. But at the end of the parade the special ceremonies were quite sad. The people who have died for this country were remembered including the 37 men who recently lost their lives aboard the "Stark."

I wish for all the boys and girls who read this column is that you will always live peaceful lives in a nation at peace.

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are Meg Hearn and Annemarie Hecht. Congratulations, both of you!
