NEW ECONOMY OF FAMOUS AMERICAN CAR SWEEPS WORLD MARKETS

Check shows his 1935 Dodge gives 20 miles per gallon with ordinary gas

In foreign markets, the high cost of petrol (gas) is one of a number of reasons for Dodge's popularity. And here in America, too, the amazing economy and value of the 1935 Dodge is scoring high sales records in all parts of the country.

Writing of the remarkable gas and oil savings of his 1935 Dodge, R. T. Hall, Ballinger, Texas, says: "It is easily the most outstanding car that I have ever owned from the standpoint of economy and performance, making twenty miles or better from ordinary gasoline."

With its economy you also get new comfort in the "Allright Ride"—new safety with Dodge all-steel body and perfected dual-cylinder hydraulic brakes. Drive the new Dodge. See for yourself what a rugged yet luxurious automobile you can get for only a few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars. Now... $645 and up, f. o. b. factory, Detroit.

Rites Held For Society Leader

Townsend Burden. Her marriage 24 years ago in Manhattan to Mr. Dows linked families long outstanding in society.

With the entry of her husband into politics, Mrs. Dows took an active hand in Nassau County Republican affairs. Until her health failed several months ago, she was chairman of the Nassau Federation of Republican Women and editor of the Bulletin, a monthly magazine published by that organization. During the campaign of Robert Low Bacon before his present term in Congress, she played an important part and on many occasions held teas and rallies at her home.

In addition to politics, Mrs. Dows was an ardent participant in sports. She was one of the first society women to take up golf, and aroused discussion a few years ago when she entered the match play at the New York Golf Club. With her husband she was a member of the Meadow Brook Hunt. They maintained a stable at their winter home in Aiken, S. C.

Surviving are her husband, a son, David Dows, Jr.; a daughter, Mrs. Cornelius N. Ellis, Jr.; a sister, Miss Evelyn Burden of 115 East 70th Street, Manhattan, and a nephew, I. Townsend Burden, Jr., of the Waldorf-Astoria.

The tremendous blow the Republican party is suffering through the untimely death of Mrs. Dows is vividly expressed in a statement issued by Charles A. Blackwell of Brooklyn, chairman of the executive committee of the United Republican Finance Committee for Nassau County.

During the past five years, Mrs. Dows had contributed unsparsingly of time, money and interest to local government affairs, and she had already prepared extensive plans for the coming campaign when stricken several months ago.

Her energetic devotion to the public welfare was of incalculable value to the organization, and her passing leaves a void that will be even better appreciated as time passes.

TO ALL LOYAL REPUBLICANS OF NASSAU COUNTY:
We, the members of the United Republican Finance Committee for Nassau County, wish to state to you how great is our sorrow in the loss of our fellow worker, Mrs. Dows.

Her devoted help and interest in our party, and her untiring efforts to secure a tedious branch of our party, namely, that which produces the finances for party activity, will never be forgotten by those who have worked with her and who have come in personal contact with her energy.

If all our citizens were as determined to help in building good government, with as unselfish and as self-sacrificing a determination as she has used, we would never need to doubt of the future of our country.

We are sad in the knowledge that in the prime of life she should be taken. In the months to follow we shall come to know more fully that one who will be found who can ever fill her place.

CHARLES A. BLACKWELL
For the Executive Committee of the United Republican Finance Committee for Nassau County.

"Camping Out" Is Modern Way Satisfying Age-Old Urge

New York State Abounds In Opportunities For Campers

By PETER G. TEN EYCK, Commissioner, Department of Agriculture and Markets Albany, New York

"Camping out" is the modern way of satisfying the call of the primitive man to the elements; a desire in all ages to escape from the burdens of civilization and enjoy the freedom of the open air.

The children can paddle and wade and the older ones of us enjoy swimming, or at least bathing in a body of water. There are abundant opportunities for sun baths, absorbing the health giving rays of the sun and storing up disease resistance for the winter.

New York State affords untold camping opportunities on public and private land. It is noted for its beautiful lakes, sparkling springs, crystal brooks and its clean healthful drinking water. There is nothing that campers and travelers need to be so careful about than safe, sanitary drinking water and good camp sanitation. Make absolutely certain of the purity of the water supply.

An application to the State Conservation Department at Albany will bring you several interesting bulletins on the locations of the most convenient camps, their equipment and other information vital to the prospective camper. I am going to use these bulletins in my camping class.

For any recipe which uses gelatin, be sure to cook the gelatin first in a small quantity of cold water; then dissolve thoroughly in the required amount of boiling liquid or water.

1,500 Students To Enroll At New Nassau College

More Than 160 Already In Liberal Arts Courses With 600 In Teacher Training Division Of N. Y. U. Branch

When the new educational center of New York University opens at Hempstead this fall between 1,000 and 1,500 students will be registered in the various departments of the institution, it was announced Wednesday by Dean Arthur D. Whitman.

The new center, which will be called Nassau College-Hofstra Memorial, will occupy the master and 15-acre estate of the late Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hofstra. The property was presented to the university last April by the trustees, it was directed by Mrs. Hofstra's will to devote the grounds and buildings as a memorial to her husband.

Five departments will be included in Nassau College's liberal arts division, teacher training division, commercial division, division of general education for adults and a research division in educational problems.

At the present time more than 160 students are enrolled in the liberal arts courses, Dean Whitman said. It is estimated that capacity exists for approximately 180 students.

With more than 800 Long Island teachers already prepared to enroll in the teacher training division, and many more to be accepted by September, Dean Whitman said that division of the College would probably be the largest.

The commercial division will include approximately 200 students registering at the present time. Enrollment in the day college is distributed widely over Nassau and Suffolk Counties with students registered from as far as Southampton and Port Jefferson and on a large number of towns on the South Shore.

SHORTER STATION HOURS

The Long Island Railroad's contention that it is "foolish" to keep a station agent at Central Park is a "foolish" contention during commuting hours. It is to our regret that the railroad's contention is not based on facts. It is a fact that the railroad's contention is not based on facts. It is a fact that the railroad's contention is not based on facts.

It is obvious, of course, that there is much heavier passenger traffic around eight in the morning and six at night than there is at other hours of the day, but it is a fact that the railroad's contention is not based on facts. It is a fact that the railroad's contention is not based on facts.

Wyandanch residents complained at the hearing into the question Monday that outsiders would think that their village, as well as other villages along the line, was "dead" if they rang up the station in the mid-morning or afternoon and no one answered the telephone. Although we doubt that such a drastic idea would come into visitors' heads, it nevertheless does seem plain that the four-hour a day office hours at the stations is certainly a drawback to the future growth of the villages affected.

NOT OF ONE MIND

Opinion is divided as to the value and wisdom of the use of gruesome pictures on one side of the so-called "courtesy cards" which the police of Nassau County are handing motorists who are guilty of minor traffic violations. There are those who believe that they will prove helpful in lowering the staggering accident toll in this county, while others see them as no deterrent to reckless driving, and maintain that they are not in good taste.

In an editorial entitled "Keep Worst Motorists 'Roads Safe,'" The Christian Science Monitor holds that, while the motive of the authorities is good, the same cannot be said of their procedure, and it views the photographs as the employment of a "shocking medium" to curb dangerous driving. The Monitor's comment is a keen observation of a situation that is causing no little discussion here and out of the county, and, as it is an intelligent approach to a debatable subject, we publish it here in full:

"Right motives do not always produce right methods. Nassau County's new scheme of promoting safety on its Long Island highways offers evidence in the making. Instead of a court summons or immediate censure for minor traffic violations, county police are instructed to hand offenders a special card. On one side is a courteous warning, but on the other side are gruesome photographic reproductions of two fatal motor mishaps.

"The latter method is open to question. Resorting to fear to startle motorists into obedience to its highway laws is an old scheme applied to another problem. The method isn't so different from that of displaying war films in the belief that scenes of human destruction will arouse humanity sufficiently to put the likelihood of war beyond the pale of actuality. Fear likewise is employed to some extent in modern advertising to force the sale of so-called curatives for human ailments.

"Fear isn't a preventive; it is a trouble-maker. There is pointed reproof for this phase of modern psychology in Job's doleful discovery, 'the thing which I greatly feared is come upon me.' 'Men make war because of their fears. Human ills are aggravated by it. Fear is not a remedy. It is a mental malady. Intelligent reasoning is the antidote. It is the case of Nassau County's safety scheme it is not the motive but the method which evokes misgivings.

"The kindly intention of authorities to supplant harsher methods with their well-meaning 'courtesy card' is likely to have a more lasting and useful effect upon the average intelligence than the shocking medium they employ to emphasize their objective."

DROWNINGS TOO NUMEROUS

Every form of amusement seems to carry with it some element of danger. This is particularly so with regard to bathing, especially at this time when thousands rush to the beaches to seek relief from the intense and continuous heat. Many a pleasurable outing has been marred by a drowning accident, and, for that reason, one cannot impress upon those who go in bathing in these times to exercise care both as to their own safety as well as that of others.

It is an encouraging thing to note that at all bathing spots of any consequence there are always life guards on hand ready to go to the assistance of those in distress. Of course, where the shock of the body coming into contact with the water produces a heart attack life guards can render little aid, but, in most cases of drowning, assistance given in time frequently results in a life being saved.

TRADING AT HOME

There are any number of people living in this town who laugh at the idea that it is best to buy at home. They take the position that it does not matter where they spend their money if they get their money's worth. They subscribe to the doctrine that the only obligation they owe the home town is to get what they can out of it.

Our idea of trading at home does not include buying goods from merchants who attempt exorbitant profits. It does not include the acceptance of worn, dirty, or peddled goods from old time merchants who think that it is up to the community to keep them in business. It only means giving the local merchant a chance and, then, to buy if he can reasonably meet other competition.

The Government You Keep

By VIRGINIA M. BACON

Irksome To Autocrats
The highlights of the week have been:

1. The rebuff to Administration tactics, when three House Conferees walked out of the Utilities Conference Committee when they found two New Deal experts sitting in the executive session.

2. The unobstructed passage without a recorded vote, by the Senate of Senator Glass' banking bill, which provided for political control of all credit.

3. The report of the President's tax bill, retaining the tax on charity gifts by corporations.

House Reels
As regards the "death sentence" in the Holding Company bill, the House made a better record for the conference, and it was three House conferees, Representatives Huddleston (Democrat, Alabama), Holmes (Republican, Massachusetts) and Cooper (Republican, Ohio) who bolted the conference, refusing to consider the Wheeler-Rayburn bill in the presence of the President's lobbyists, Benjamin Cohen, co-author with Thomas Corcoran of the bill, and Dozier Devane, counsel to the Federal Power Commission.

Mr. Huddleston in stating their position said "that under the circumstances it would be manifestly proper for the representative of the House to be present during our confidential deliberations. We hold that it is fundamental to our system of government that no legislative branch should be permitted to function without influence from the executive branch. Mr. Cohen has resisted all changes in the bill, apparently insisting that Congress sign on the dotted line. He has back of him the influence of the Chief Executive. Mr. Cohen's presence in the conference is as the representative of the President."

A calm and fair decision would be impossible under such influence. Senator Wheeler was adamant in his opposition to these lobbyists as the House conferees were insistent on their ejection. The result was a deadlock. Through this conference committee was supposed to be referred to the President's advantage, so as to insure victory to the Senate version of the "death sentence" appearing in the bill.

Three members of the conference were asked to replace these rebellious bolters.

According to the Constitution the President may recommend, but not dictate legislation, but as all legislation which the President calls "desirable" and Congress calls "must" has been passed according to the dictates of the President, there is nothing new about this obnoxiousness to the Constitution.

The Glass Banking Bill
When the House passed the banking bill the Senate was very much more independent than the House had been. Much has been said in this column about the banking bill of the Eccles banking bill, but the skill with which Senator Glass substituted a rational and sounder measure was engineered through the Banking and Currency Committee of the Senate unanimously, and through the Senate with ease, was unobscured.

When Senator Glass demonstrated his independence of spirit as confere on the Works-Relief bill his stand brought to the world's attention on his head, and the vice-president threatened never again to name conferees who were unresponsive to the piece of legislation under consideration, regardless of their rank or position. It was then feared that Senator Glass would not be allowed to fight to a finish the attempt to centralize control of the volume of currency and the credit of the nation in the Federal Government.

Quoting, freely for the sake of brevity, from Senator Glass' scintillating speeches on the bill will give you a better idea of what he has saved the country from, as well as the understanding of the purpose of the Federal Reserve system, which has become singularly confused. Senator Glass stated that there was "no justification for 'ever' for referring to the Eccles bill as an administration measure, that 'the President had not read the word of and that the President was perfectly willing that the bill should be altered as the judgment of the Committee should determine."

The Senator, however, spoke very disparagingly of the President's own appointee, the new Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, Mr. E. A. Tamm, who said of the bill, "I speak of it as the Eccles bill, because nobody with a single exception, who appeared before the Banking and Currency Committee the House of Representatives has advocated this bill. The single sponsor of this bill, himself could not control the bankers' association of his own time, and he declared in emphatic terms against the bill. It is simply shocking, that it is appalling to think that the member of our own time, who never had a day's association with the Federal Reserve system in his life, proceeded within less than 90 stripped of every particle of local self-government, and that we would establish here in Washington, a central bank operated by people who have no technical knowledge of the banking business. That suggestion was so repugnant to the original purpose of the Federal Reserve system that those who proposed it found it convenient to abandon their indefensible attitude."

That it was never contemplated that this banking system should be set up to finance the deficit of the Federal Government, or that the "open-market" committee should ever compel the regional banks to purchase the bonds of the Government. At the time of the enactment of the legislation the total debt of the United States, including all outstanding bonds, was less than one hundred million dollars of United States bonds were available for purchase.

"When you wreck the banking in this country you wreck the best interests of the country because the benefits afforded by the banks touch every home and fireside. For this reason I have always entertained an unshakable faith in the Federal Reserve system, which would bring politics into consideration of banking legislation."

It will be interesting to see how the bill fares in conference, where it will be in the support of the Republican conferees.

Ideas About Things

By CHARLES W. SMYTH

Especially Contributed

Heavy rain cascades eastward from the Adirondacks. A pall of heat hangs over the territory despite the downpour, and as the train approaches Corning, N. Y., it begins to rain down.

Through water-clogged windows and through train platforms. The terrain grows uneven, gullies. Huge ploughs of water have dug ditches in the water, and left damage in its wake.

Pence posts are down. Wire is tangled, shapless. Corn leans heavily forward, drooping, choked with mud. The good earth is growing muddier, muddier.

Savans and its drenched countryside are now ashen. The train is now approaching Bath. There! A barn is down. Captivated. Its foundations are pointing towards the sky at a crazy angle. A chicken is high and dry on the banks of a wandering, vagrant stream. The Cochoctow River! A swollen river; an ominous, angry river. A river that is angry, no longer in tranquility, but runs at a murmuring, rumbling defiance at the good earth.

One wonder is the roof of a house appearing just above the top of the water-water that is deep, rust-colored. Battered automobiles lie rusting on the ground. Five bodies lie on the ground, row on row, like the remnants of crosses that dot soldier cemeteries in France. Over there an automobile is stuck in a ditch. Five crews of men seek to raise one end with powerful cranes. On the other side more men are working high deep in the earth, trying to crack open by building small stone dams. Here is a complete island—a large island, with the river leaving past on either side.

Pulling slowly into Bath. Haggard faces are uprooted. Men and women are groping amid the wreckage of their homes. Looking sadly at roofs, they are broken. Walls are broken. There is a complete island—a large island, with the river leaving past on either side.

Bound now for Kanona. The devastation persists. Empty oil drums bob up and down in the flood waters. There are certain individuals who are not quite believe they can flout the traffic laws almost with impunity.

Ordinarily the magistrate will listen to reason. Whether there is a question of reasonable doubt of the offender, usually gets the break. It seems frankly acknowledged and admitted to be "more careful in future." The standard fine may be reduced materially, especially in cases where money is known to be scarce.

Reactions to such fair treatment are as varied as human nature itself. Some people are properly grateful for the bench's consideration; others think the fine should be as high as possible. Some people are indignant at anything short of a suspended sentence.

Here is a case in point: A man is charged with passing a red light. He pleads guilty, and with resisting arrest (declined to stop on policeman's signal), all on a busy thoroughfare during a peak traffic hour. Nonchalantly stands over his summons and to be "taken care of." He fined $5 (should have been $25 at least).

Result: Man is "outraged"; he threatens reprisals; intends to vote the Democrat in one of his next "top to bottom," and influence his friends to do likewise. Is further comment necessary, except to ask again: Why not abolish the "ticket racket" entirely?

What's Going On?

From the state Republican committee headquarters at 100 East 42nd Street, New York City, the following letter addressed to a local business man bears the signature of Leonard W. Hall writes to you:

"Your name has been suggested to me as one who would be interested in serving on the general committee of the Progressive Republican state committee."

"Feeling that you believe as I do that the 'Old Guard' leadership has been ruined to the Republic party and that we must get rid of this influence within the party, I am writing to ask if I may use your name in connection with the movement within the party, as outlined recently in a statement to the press, copy of which is enclosed for your information."

"If you are sympathetic with the idea, and are willing to go along, would you be so good as to suggest the name of any other who are similarly inclined? The Red Cross is the name of the man who is being suggested to the press" was dated for release May 20, and urges that Progressive Republican be nominated for the Assembly this fall—a "W-King" name. Macy slip at Assemblyman Leonard W. Hall if after there could be such a thing from such a source.

The officers appear to be wet smacks now on their way out, to wit: Lillian A. Garding, vice-chairman; C. Walter Randall, treasurer; Harry H. Peters in charge of the finance committee. (We are rather sorry to see the latter in such company. Surely he doesn't belong there.)

Other names of other progressive young stalwarts who are looked upon to save the Republican party are A. Burnside Cheshire, former county treasurer, and J. R. Hill of Westbury, whose attempt at "a tag" a few years ago in North Hempstead will not be too soon forgotten.

Something Wrong

From Great Neck: "I wish you would hammer in that any political bureau was set up in Great Neck, whether the pay roll is made up here, or in Albany, or in Washington. We are a little prone to forget this. I would like to see Mrs. Public realize that the proposed Soak-the-Rich measures, fomenting in Washington, are now being reworked in the Nassau picture."

"This is the first time the Red Cross in Nassau County has had to furnish disbursement to obtain relief in the Nassau picture. Their hands dipping into our pockets more frequently from now on and the tax harvest will be just as heavy, don't we all know by this time?"

By "divertment" our correspondent evidently refers to the young people's dance at the Garden City Hotel on Saturday evening, presided by the ladies' bridge on the same afternoon at the same place. The dance cost is $1 per couple and the bridge ticket is 50 cents per person.

About 30 valuable door prizes have been arranged for the bridge, including a $1000. All this to raise a mere $6000 to relieve one of the greatest local flood disasters since the Civil War!

With the Republicans

By CHARLES W. SMYTH

Unkind personalities are never deliberately indulged in by this writer as such. Any press man who uses the power of the printed word with various intent and to release the public opinion, is anathema to this mind. But so are those who baited down on party patronage for years, and because of pique or disappointment suddenly project themselves as potential enemies for the future.

Bluntly stated, the public official who has served long but threatens retirement instead through his fancied strength with the Opposition, should be ruled out of the contest, for he or it is allowed to proceed whether he or it is allowed to proceed in the voters' opinion, main thing in the voters' opinion.

The Republican organization throughout the state is giving full recognition to citizens of Italian birth and descent in naming candidates and deacons. Many men bearing dates of birth are noted in Republican designating petitions in the 62 counties of the state.

Among the many are Anthony A. Malano, governor of the Columbian Republic for the State of Suffolk County, who has been named as a candidate for justice of the peace on the Republican town ticket in Huntington, and the strong move made by Kings County as Republican designee for county court judge.

From the northern fastnesses of Birch Point on Long Lake in the Adirondacks, where the daytime temperature is something like a warm blanket, we write home about as a lot for available a grateful comfort; where salads and flapjacks for breakfast are cooked in the open, and where politics and all other cares should be temporarily forgotten. Assemblyman Leonard W. Hall writes to you:

"His record as a Republican in the future alignment of Republican stalwarts in his bailiwick. After all, the people of his little city, like everyone else, are interested primarily in good government rather than narrow, personal 'politics.'"

The depression is still with us and the welfare of the people as a whole in any community must be the main consideration. Guetilla warfare, based on individual prejudices, should be postponed until we are safely out of the woods.

Mayor Harold F. Mason of Glen Cove is on vacation, but before leaving disclaimed any concern as to the future alignment of Republican stalwarts in his bailiwick. SAVING WITHOUT SCRIMPING You Can Save Money Later By Preserving Now

By EDITH M. SHAPCOTT
 Nutritionist—Former Home Making Center—New York

The preserving period is upon us, with practically all fruits and vegetables at their best for canning. Let us, therefore, consider how we may save without scrimping during this orgy of preparation for the winter.

As preserving in itself implies economy, the first essential for safe canning, and also for economy, is to use only FRESH fruits and vegetables. It is the poorest sort of shrub that we try to put up which is not clean, fresh and sound. Always disregard for canning purposes materials which show any signs of rotting.

The next consideration is equipment. Successful canning depends a great deal upon the efficiency of the utensils used. It is essential for safe canning, if one is doing only a small amount of canning, a large expensive equipment is unnecessary.

The preserving vessel used should be one that can be easily handled and is not heavy. There are several types of canners on the market, such as the heat controlled oven, the steamer, the pressure cooker, the hot water bath and others. Select the one which will best fit your needs, and not what someone else has recommended.

All glass jars should be of good construction, easy to clean, well-mouthed and smooth on top so that the cover will fit on easily and can be sealed satisfactorily. The size of the jar to be used is very important. One may be governed in his choice by the amount of fruit or it imparts a special tang. In cooking onions, it is better to bake than to boil them; if one prefers them boiled, to use a double boiler. In this way the onions retain the vitamin containing juice which is lost in the ordinary process of boiling.

There is a belief that the juice of baked onions is beneficial in cases of ailments. Without going so far as to prescribe onions as a definite cure for any ailment, it can be said without exaggeration that there are few people who would not benefit by cultivating a better acquaintance with them.

Foods Favorable To Beauty
 By KATHLEEN MARY QUINLAN
 Inhabitants of arid regions have always longed toward a fabulous land flowing with milk and honey, where all things were in abundance, and life effortless. Little have they yet realized that the most beautiful of all the world's treasures is hidden in such a land as we live in.

Kitchen Comments
 By WILDA HOTT
 It improves cucumbers to serve them in a short time before using, then add cracked ice or cubes and let them stand covered in the refrigerator until needed. Drain off the ice water before adding salad dressing. This is not necessary to add them unless you prefer them wilted. The old theory about salt "drawing out the poison" was exploded long ago.

Kitchen Comments
 Dice fresh pineapple very finely, sugar it and set it in the refrigerator for several hours before serving. Pile the fruit lightly in tall sherbet glasses and sprinkle with a bit of minced mint. The fine dicing and the faint mint flavor greatly improves this fruit, whether it be used for aperitif or dessert.

Kitchen Comments
 For the family, go as far as you can, or they will with paprika, red pepper, celery salt, onion juice, cinnamon, and other spices. But a good rule for seasoning when guests are expected is "moderation in all things." Not all tastes are alike when it comes to strong flavoring.

Kitchen Comments
 A worthwhile investment is indeed made with those pennies spent for a set of range molds and cookie cutters. Countless times you will use them to dress up ordinary dishes or to put on a few extra frills when serving omelets or cocktail waters. Small attentions to detail which are near table a very smart, sophisticated air.

Mitchel Field Whips Athletic Club Nine 8-6

Farmingdale Nine Loses To Aviators Sunday Afternoon

The Farmingdale Athletic Club nine were hosts to the fast Mitchel Field baseball team on Sunday afternoon, and like all good hosts handed the visitors the game on a platter. The score was 8 to 6.

After starting off to a six run lead in the first inning, the local team was unable to stop the aviators from bringing in one run after another until the game was tied on ties. It was a splendid exhibition of determination on the part of the visitors.

In the last half of the first inning, Zelenka, hurling for the aviators, had hardly set foot in the box when the Farmingdale lads started obtaining hit after hit. Senman singled, Leyendecker sacrificed, Denny hit to short, and they singles followed by Dinda, Patterson and Orabau. After Cecovi fanned Abramowski cleaned up the bases with a smashing double to right field. Larsen then singled, scoring Abramowski, and a strike out by Senman ended the inning.

Next Sunday the Farmingdale A. C. aggregation will travel to Central Park to play the Central Park A. A.

Bethpage Nine Triumphs, 4-3 Wins Close Game With Long Island Lighting Company

The Bethpage Park Rangers on Saturday, July 27, defeated the Long Island Lighting Company, Twilight League Champions, by the close score of 4-3, in a thrilling game that went ten innings.

From the first inning on both teams played nip and tuck seeing from lead to lead and keeping the five hundred fans in a frenzy. In the first inning Westby, who led off, singled, and Thurber while Scott went out back to Herbert. The second inning saw Bethpage score two runs on a single by Mason, a long triple over center field by Boettjer, a sizzling single through third by Westby and a single over short-stop.

Monograms For Linens

The pattern of the cloth and napkins and the type and size of the monograms embroidered on them, should be in perfect harmony. That is to say, regardless of the fascinating modern monograms, one should not use them unless the design of the cloth, and to a certain extent, the type of china, glass and silver, are in unity.

For tablecloths the size of the monogram should be from two and a half to about five inches, never larger. For dinner napkins it may be from one to two inches; for luncheon and breakfast napkins and doilies, from three-fourths of an inch to an inch and a half.

White Wins With Star Class Shucks

Elwood White captured the annual Great Captain Island race for Star Class boats Sunday. With his son, John, as crew, White skippered the four-hulled Shucks to triumph over a thirty-eight-mile course on Long Island Sound. The race was sponsored by the Pot. Washington Yacht Club.

At the end, victory was fairly easy, and the margin more than three and a half minutes over Thomas Le Boutillier's Boots II. But it appeared for a few anxious moments off Execution Light that the leader for two-thirds of the race was doomed to defeat. White was off on a tack when the breeze suddenly shifted, and there he stayed in one windless spot as though firmly anchored.

Case Against Edwin Nelson Is Dismissed

The attempt of Miss Dorothy McManis, attendant at the William Britto Bar and Grill at Old Head, to have Edwin Nelson, 34 years old, of Glen Cove Road, Glen Head, put in jail for supposedly taking three dollars from the cash register at the grill did not get very far. The case came up before Justice of Peace Augustus Steyer in the Oyster Bay court Monday morning.

Nelson was charged with petit larceny, but denied the allegation. Justice Morry dismissed the case for lack of evidence.

Farmingdale Pro Just Misses Title

Al Broch, professional at the Bethpage Park in Farmingdale, and a resident of the village all his life, narrowly missed capturing the top honors in the amateur-professional tournament of the Long Island Golf Association held this week at the Cherry Valley Club in Garden City.

Broch, with his partner Karl Karch of Old Westbury, got a 66, losing by one stroke to Willie Glen of Wheatley Hills and Paul Kavanagh of South Bay.

But Umpire Sullivan Draws Some Criticism

Although members of the losing team were somewhat emphatic in their statements that the umpiring of Norman Sullivan was not all that it might have been, the Lenox Hills soft ball baseball team defeated the post office nine in a game played Tuesday evening by a score of 9 to 8.

Mr. Sullivan, who is an ardent supporter of Lenox Hills both in a business and sporting way, is said to have pulled some pretty raw decisions, though his Lenox Hills neighbors say that his umpiring was admirable.

lakers, he said. The applications are for white and colored help and for single women or men and for couples, he pointed out. Mrs. Clara Jervell of the Plaza Employment Agency, Great Neck, said she had five or six openings every day which were ignored.

Only in Oyster Bay and vicinity is the situation otherwise, it appeared. Mrs. Julia Griffin of the Griffin Employment Agency, and Mrs. Isabel Pletcher of the North Shore Employment Bureau, agreed that they had been able to place a worker in every opening to date. Each said, however, that on the basis of her knowledge of conditions in other parts of the county, work could be found for most of the 7,000 persons on relief.

Christian Science Lesson - Sermon
"Love" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 4.

The Golden Text is: "The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yes, I have loved thee with an everlasting love; therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee." (Jeremiah 31:3).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "But love ye your enemies, and do good, and lend, hoping for nothing again; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be the children of the Highest; for he is kind unto the unthankful and to the evil. Be ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful." (Luke 6:35, 36).

Brennan passengers, Miss Ann Hamilton Place, and Joseph Smith, 21, of 183 W. 78 St., were taken to the Glen Head Community Hospital. Brennan's shoulder was broken. After treatment Smith they were sent home.

To walk with or against traffic, that seems to be a moot question. If paths or sidewalks were placed along main highways, pedestrians would not be required to walk in the highway, where many are at the mercy of drivers.

But as long as such paths or sidewalks are not provided for the safety of pedestrians, it might be a sensible thing for pedestrians to think about the advantages of walking on the left side of the road, facing traffic.

When pedestrians walk on the right side of the road they are somewhat in the position of the person pictured above, equipped with a periscope to see what is coming from behind. Although not as many pedestrians are hit while highways as under such circumstances, the death toll is high. Out of a total of 12,000 pedestrians hit while walking in 1934, there were 1,000 killed, according to figures computed by the Traffic Safety Company. While pedestrians struck by a motor vehicle in 1934, there were 4.5 per cent of pedestrian deaths.

Experiences show that it is easier for a pedestrian to walk on the left side of the road than on the right side. The periscope is a useful device for a pedestrian to see what is coming from behind. Although not as many pedestrians are hit while highways as under such circumstances, the death toll is high. To walk with or against traffic, that seems to be a moot question. If paths or sidewalks were placed along main highways, pedestrians would not be required to walk in the highway, where many are at the mercy of drivers.

But as long as such paths or sidewalks are not provided for the safety of pedestrians, it might be a sensible thing for pedestrians to think about the advantages of walking on the left side of the road, facing traffic.

When pedestrians walk on the right side of the road they are somewhat in the position of the person pictured above, equipped with a periscope to see what is coming from behind. Although not as many pedestrians are hit while highways as under such circumstances, the death toll is high.
