Twenty Weekly Prizes Feature Leader Contest

Subscriptions, Movie Passes May Be Won By Entering Contest Starting This Week

The Hicksville Leader will run several contests in the near future, with winners announced each week. The contest will be made simple and all readers of the Leader are eligible to enter the contest. The prizes will be announced in next week's Leader, which appears on the newsstands Thursday evening. The winners of prizes will be told in the next issue how to obtain their prizes by applying for them at the Hicksville Post Office. The prizes will include the holder to see the Saturday show, "She Married Her Man."

What is your opinion of a secretary marrying her boss? The best answers to this question will receive prizes as follows: Five prizes of a year's subscription to the Hicksville Leader and a pass to the show, five more prizes for the next best answers.

Back from Washington, where he negotiated last week with government PWA and WPA officials about Nassau County projects, Supervisor Harry Tappen stated yesterday that there was still very good reason to believe that the Oyster Bay tax and incinerator projects would be given Federal approval and financing.

If Federal aid for the incinerator project is not received, the supervisor said, he will recommend that the project be abandoned.

"I will not say that this will be done," Mr. Tappen said, "but I believe it ought to be done. Garbage conditions in Oyster Bay and Hicksville have become really serious and the erection of an incinerator is the only satisfactory solution. In Hicksville they are still dumping right out in the open and it isn't long since I saw garbage which had caught on fire."

The incinerator is a PWA project and it was learned recently that there were no funds available for it. Colonel E. W. Clark, assistant executive director of the Public Works Administration, said Mr. Tappen that money might be forthcoming by re-appropriating funds for similar projects in other municipalities.

"Frequently," the supervisor said, "committees won't accept Federal aid for local projects and it happens the money can be used elsewhere. There is still a very good chance that we may get the money. Colonel Clark is very impressed by the fact that the New York State Department of Sanitation has strongly endorsed the project for Oyster Bay."

Purity of sewage is still ahead of the tax map, project but as yet it hasn't run out of any of them. It has been approved at Washington but it can still be changed at Albany or at New York. Until it has passed both offices promoting it won't breathe easily.

Three youths charged with burglarizing two houses stored on two different corners were indicted by the County grand jury on Tuesday. The youths, John Pichuk, 18, and his brother, Michael Pichuk, 17, and John Kresgansky, 18, all of Hicksville, were charged with breaking into the Rouben's and Gelber's stores, one in November and again two weeks ago. They were indicted for third degree burglary.

The Mutual Aid Society's history in detail was read by John Parente, chairman of the committee on arrangements. Members received with enthusiastic attention the story of the society's growth from a small group of immigrants to a large organization.

The annual Christmas party of the Independent Silk Dyeing Company will be held on Saturday at the Parish Hall of St. Thomas Church in Farley.

A Santa Claus will be present, who will distribute presents under the Christmas tree, and a special musical program has been arranged by Mrs. Rudolph Weber. The show will be given by the Blue Chorus.

Residents of the village who were excited on Monday afternoon by the blowing of the Farnhamville fire siren were somewhat disheartened to find, on arriving at the fire house, that the siren was only a test call.

Indications that a large airplane manufacturing company may build its plant and flying field on farm land adjacent to the swanky Ardian Country Club in Hicksville was received this week at a meeting of the Hempstead Town Board, when an application for a zoning change was made.

Ernest M. Strong of Manhasset requested that town officials change the zoning of property owned by Peppinger Brothers on Jerusalem Avenue from residential to industrial to permit the sale of the land for an airplane plant.

The name of the firm interested in building the factory and flying field was not revealed, due to the fact that its plans were tentative and the company, however, has taken an option to buy the property from Peppinger Brothers and the Hempstead Town Board was informed, according to the matter to be decided by the town board.

The Hempstead Planning Board, which had already considered the matter, recommended that the application for the zoning change be granted. The property lies along the line between the Towns of Hempstead and Oyster Bay. The board referred the matter to the Planning Board.

Supervisor A. Holly Patterson and Councilman David Levy are investigating.

Members of the Town Board are thinking of advertising for a "merry petrel" to stir up some excitement at board meetings.

Tuesday's meeting lasted a full hour and the most exciting news was the granting of a contract for the sale of a bond issue of $100,000 for the Hempstead Water District to the Long Island National Bank of Hicksville, at the rate of three and three-quarters per cent.

Frank Power, Edward F. Roddy, and eight other members of the board for the remainder of the period of his leave from the Town, which is for a year.

Although members didn't say so, left with the feeling that the town when Edward Waters and his associates could be counted on to whom board members with long complaints were missed.

Hicksville is growing, in the opinion of John Pangel, who operates a realty business at his office on Broadway, near Cherry Street. Indications seem to point to an increase in the town's population with homes in demand and the possibility of a housing shortage in the future.

"Whereas at this time of year I usually have 30 houses for rent at this time, I have nothing but half that number," he said. Demand, although insistent, seems to be for low rentals. In the future, Pangel expects a demand of a dozen houses could be rented immediately were they offered for $25 a month.

Business Men To Award Car Next Monday

Sedan Will Be Given Away At Local Theater

TICKETS ARE NOW ON SALE

Local Merchants Are Giving Coupons With Purchases

Interest in the Chevrolet which the Hicksville Merchants are giving away to the holder of the lucky coupon, which is given with purchases of $2.50 or more, is growing. The drawing will take place on Monday, December 23, at 8 o'clock in the evening at the local theater.

The public is particularly enthusiastic about the plan, which does not make it necessary for them to be present at the drawing. They have purchased a special admission ticket to the drawing, which is given with purchases of $2.50 or more.

Many people have expressed their appreciation of this incentive in the drawing, which makes it possible to win the car and the show without attending the specific performance when the winner is selected. The drawing will be held at the local theater.

The merchants supporting the drawing display an enormous green machine, in their window, which they use as a co-operative advertising campaign with purchases. With each purchase of $2.50 or more, a coupon is given to the customer, which is to be filled out with the customer's name and the amount of the purchase.

A DANGEROUS EXAMPLE

New Hyde Park voters won their election for a municipal electric light plant by the slim majority of 63 votes of December 10. It was a near thing, but with talk of other municipal power plants in Williston Park and Glen Cove, public ownership of utilities is in the air and an epidemic, perhaps an extremely costly one, will be the result unless the problem is studied a great deal more carefully.

The need for municipally-owned power plants seemed very much more urgent a few years ago. Rates were high, and there were few if any municipal plants to govern the rates demanded by public utilities. Since then rates have been cut drastically and there is a tendency to go considerably further. Since 1929 the Long Island Lighting Company has made four reductions in rates and rates now are 34 per cent lower than they were six years ago.

No public official should guide his constituents along the paths of municipal ownership until he has studied the question thoroughly. In New Hyde Park, to illustrate, the Lighting Company will continue to offer service even if a municipal plant is built. It still retains its franchise and can be blamed if it refuses to give up without a fight. That will mean that the new system, if it is constructed, will duplicate the Lighting Company's lines and the people will pay for the support of two systems.

Arguably, the Lighting Company can offer better service, too. It has plants at Northport, Glenwood Landing and Far Rockaway, situated so that if any single plant breaks down the remaining two can carry the load. Municipal plants have no provision for emergency breakdowns. This is important to households who are more dependent now upon current for electrical devices than ever before. The loss of service in cold weather can be a very serious matter.

In the past this newspaper has frequently criticized the conduct of utilities companies. Their methods of expansion often have been injurious to taxpayers and consumers. But since the depression they have suffered sharp setbacks. It is no longer possible for them to hike their rates. Further, we believe it would be a grave mistake for municipal corporations to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars for power plants erected in the illusion that they are going to provide better service and save the taxpayers and consumers money. The New Hyde Park example is one that is fraught with danger.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS

"I wish you a merry Christmas." That is the greeting with which we meet our friends year after year as the day comes and unfolds its spiritual and material treasures.

To wish another a merry Christmas is to wish one well. To try to have a merry Christmas is, of all things, most laudable. Best of all, to strive to make Christmas a merry day, free from care, for others, to show them that others care for them and are interested in their welfare, is the spirit that should take possession of us all.

There are various ways of having a merry Christmas. The season may be marked by gaiety, dissipation and selfishness, with the endeavoring to find out how much they can get from the season, how much it will do for their purses and their sensual natures. If that is all Christmas is, the day will be nothing but a nuisance to all concerned.

Happily, a better motive prompts most people at the Yuletide. Christmas will be very merry and very delightful if it awakens within each of us a new desire to live, or a desire to live anew. It should make an appeal to which we respond with the angels of our better nature. We should make it a challenge to which we give answer, arousing the best in us, so that we may see the best in others. Thus life will cease to be flat and dull and insipid.

Christianity began with crude things amid a primitive environment—in a manger, surrounded by bleating sheep and mooring cows; Christian society there had its origin, and it rose to heights of love and service in proportion to its response to the divine appeal.

Christmas will be unusually merry for us if we resolve to do our best, be our best, put down the spirit of meanness, of selfishness, of bigotry, and live, not merely with our fellows, but for them.

Nobody and nothing can harm us but ourselves. As we live for others' well-being, we best serve ourselves. No reform in the world is quite so effective as that which originates and is maintained within our own hearts.

People are hungry for companionship. Others want to know that somebody cares. He whom we strive to serve at Christmas is the One who cared—cared for others and for their interests. There is a Christmas Day throughout the world, and it will be a very merry Christmas each year, increasingly merry, if people make an effort to emulate the One who lost his life in the interest of humanity.

Not all may be wealthy, cultured or famous. Each of us can have a good true heart; can be brave and gentle and thoughtful; can look up the thoughts of hate and envy and malice; and let in to his heart the pure, effulgent rays of light that shine, and will forever shine, from Bethlehem.

Budget Increase Budgeted To State Needs

Supervisors, Sitting As Budget Committee, Powerless To Veto Demands Of State And Federal Authorities

By CHARLES W. SMITH
Identically expected, also, that the basic sum accruing to each recipient will be larger than at present.

Another mandatory increase for which no apology need or can be offered is the sum of $1,000 for hospitalization, applying chiefly to the maintenance of the new Meadowbrook Hospital. The appropriation was based on recommendations of the board of governors, and there has been no disposition exhibited by the board of supervisors to adopt these-pairing figures in matters affecting suffering and death.

Charged to Relief
Interest on bonded debt, $392,509.60, is yet another large obligatory increase in the budget. These bonds were sold in 1933 and the major portion of the funds thus raised has been applied to cover home and work relief. The obligation just had to be incurred and naturally enough the bill must be paid. Incidentally another unusual item is $7,500 for WPA office rent.

Interest on school bonds, a new allocation amounting to $40,000 is a safeguard necessitated by changes in the laws affecting the collection of school district taxes. It was placed in the budget merely as a guarantee that school districts should operate without embarrassment whether or not their full quotas had been collected at the time of financial need. This sum will return to the county after the new system rounds itself out according to plan.

While $7,500 has been appropriated for the new department of purchase, most, if not all, of this sum will eventually find its way back to its source. The department already is self-sustaining; the revenues from discounts alone now running to $3,000 per month.

An increase of $25,000 to the extension of the department of necessary when federal funds for this project were cut off. This item also should not appear in future budgets. Due to personnel additions made imperative by rules and regulations of the WPA, $30,700 had to be added to the county engineering department appropriation.

An additional sum of $100,000 was allowed the public works fund. Under a federal act the county may issue bonds only for materials, supplies and equipment. All other expenses in connection with WPA projects over and above the sponsor's contributions, including supervising, directing and checking, must be taken from this fund.

The 10 items of increase listed in this article, together with the two examples of revenue decrease, aggregate the sum of $1,600,000, which County Comptroller Bedell estimates as being the budget raise for the current fiscal year. To obtain a more truthful picture of the exact situation, however, gasoline fees, employees' contributions, department of purchase costs and interest on school bonds, totaling $419,500, should be subtracted.

AT THE CHILDREN'S TABLE Emphasize Good Manners In Your Child's Conduct

By MARY HOPE NORRIS
Founder—Mothers' Radio Round Table

There will be a great temptation to be lax in planning menus for the children over the Christmas holidays. Delicacies will abound; foods will be richer than usual; it may not always be convenient to plan separate meals for the children. But remember that one of the most difficult and important phases of training any mother faces is that of teaching her child to acquire a taste for the right foods. You may have labored long to achieve this result. It can be broken up or confused by a few days of carelessness.

The matter of installing acceptable manners in your child's mode of conduct also is very important. The table habits acquired in early childhood constitute a lifelong earmark of breeding. Here again—just because it's Christmas time—do not excuse glaring infringement of the good rules you have already taught. Until now we have had no serious discussion of the best way to train both the child's taste and his manners. Perhaps the briefest advice for the mother who must begin teaching her baby to eat semi-solid food is . . . patience and consistency.

Almost invariably the little baby turns his head away when he is given anything but milk. Offer the same response is given to every new food offered to the runabout child. What the mother must always remember when teaching the child to like the proper foods is that the little one refuses things not because he doesn't like them, but because they are new and strange.

Orange juice, for example, is quite different from warm milk. Grated or vegetable puree is thicker than milk. In like manner, to the runabout child a serving of liver is quite unlike the egg or bit of meat he has grown to like.

So it is that the mother's patience and consistency come in. She must try over and over again—without an impatient expression when her child does not eat the food at first. Never bribe the runabout child to eat this or that, and above all, do not let him be the center of attention when he is or is not eating certain foods. Offer them as a matter of course, with the attitude of mind that he will eat them. That's what they are for.

One question that confounds many mothers is that of providing fruits for the mother who must begin teaching her baby to eat semi-solid food is . . . patience and consistency.

a recipe that will give interesting variety:

Scalloped Cabbage and Apples
Shred two quarts of cabbage and peel and slice one quart of tart apples. Place alternate layers of cabbage and apples in a buttered baking dish. Season with salt and butter and sprinkle sugar over the apples. Garnish the top with buttered crumbs. Cover and bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes, or until tender. At the last remove the cover to brown the crumbs.

There are several points I want to give to my readers upon this double subject of proper foods and manners for the child. Shall we continue it "after Christmas"?

Deviled Lobster

Lobster
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1/2 teaspoon mustard
1/2 teaspoon cayenne
1 tablespoon oil
2 tablespoons butter
Julius half lemon
Cut the lobster meat into as large pieces as possible. Mix together the salt, mustard, curry powder, cayenne and oil. Spread it over the lobster. Put the butter in the chafing dish, when it is melted, add the lobster and cook until thoroughly heated. When done squeeze the lemon juice over the lobster and serve.

Cranberry Pie

1/2 cups cranberries
1/2 cup water
1 cup sugar
Mix these ingredients in a saucepan in the order given. Cook 10 minutes and cool. Bake in one crust with a rim and strips across the top.

Students Vote In H.T. Poll

Give Opinion On Most Vital Issue Today

Students in 12 Eastern colleges participating in a "college comparative poll on current events" conducted by school publications and current affairs clubs, in co-operation with the New York Herald-Tribune, voted last week on the question: "What do you regard as the most vital issue before the American people today?" The question used in the college poll was the same as that used in the nationwide poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion, the results of which were published last Sunday in the New York Herald-Tribune.

The colleges taking part in the comparative poll were Columbia University, Beth Lew Junior College, Dartmouth, Wellesley, Smith, Swarthmore, Barnard, University of Pennsylvania, Rutgers, Cornell, Connecticut College and Yale University. More than 17 "vital issues" were listed by the students in the various colleges.

Issues which headed the lists were: social security, foreign relations, neutrality and government regulation of industry. The results in the colleges were on the whole, strikingly similar to those obtained through the national poll conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

North Shore Choristers To Hold Annual Carol Sing

Walter Williams Will Direct Group Of Thirty In Program Of Traditional Music At Trinity Church, Roslyn, On Sunday

The North Shore Choristers, under the direction of Walter Williams, will again give their annual Christmas carol recital in Trinity Church, Roslyn, on Sunday afternoon at 4. A large crowd has always been attracted to this carol singing and it is expected that Trinity Church, which will be decorated with Christmas greens, will be filled to capacity on Sunday.

The chorus, which numbers 30, will give, besides the traditional carols, a short cantata by Nevins. Solo parts will be taken by Miss Louise Vogel and Mrs. L. R. Johnson of Glen Head, Miss Dorothea Hansauer of Roslyn and Howard Myers and Wendell Moore of Sea Cliff.

Members of the choristers include, in the soprano section: the Misses Marion Berry, Irene Dope, Louise Vogel, Jessie Yull and Misses B. M. Bergersen, L. R. Johnson, W. R. Noon, J. W. Sanders and W. W. Witsenberg, Jr. Alto in the chorus are the Misses Carrie Clark, Miriam Doolittle, Dorothy Hyde, Margaret Mackintosh, Gertrude Trepas, Joan Rikel, Dorothea Hansauer and Mrs. H. Myers.

The tenors are: Thomas Lawless, Howard Myers, William Noon, Robert Sam, John Vogel and Charles Witsenberg, Jr. In the bass group are: Albert Bell, Lloyd Hyde, William McVeigh, Harry Jamieson, Lewis Moore, J. H. Wendell Moore.

Donald Sheldon, F. C. Webster and Melville Williams.

The complete program:

Processional—"The First Nowell," traditional.

"God Rest You Merry Gentlemen," arranged by Sir John Stainer.

"Away in a Manger," arranged by J. E. Spelman.

"Good King Wenceslas," arranged by Sir John Stainer.

"Silent Night," Franz Gruber.

"Jesu! Thou Dear Babe Divine," arranged by Clarence Dickinson.

"In Dulce Jubilo," arranged by R. L. Pearall.

"Noel of the 18th Century," F. L. Gevart.

"A Joyful Christmas Song," F. L. Gevart.

"The Adoration" cantata, George B. Norris.

Offertory: "Adagio Fideles," J. E. Wade.

Seven-fold Amen, Sir John Stainer.

Recessional: "O Little Town of Bethlehem," Lewis H. Redner.

It improves both flavor and digestibility of baked beans to add a tablespoon of olive oil before placing the beans in the oven. If you are not especially fond of salt pork, try seasoning the beans with a little chopped onion and chopped green pepper, then cover the top with sliced bacon.
