Business Speaks Out

American business has a story to tell . . . a story of enterprise and solid growth. Business has been silent too long regarding the many accomplishments of the American system, the high standards of living it has made possible, the national wealth it has created, the many comforts and conveniences it has provided.

Now business will speak out. It has a message for every worker, homeowner, stockholder, taxpayer. Through its leaders and spokemen, business will state its views on employment, recovery, legislation and the distribution of wealth; on our national income and where it goes; on our national debt, taxes, tariffs and our Lest America forgets, The Sun will publish its "Voice of Business" issue Saturday, January 4, 1936. Page after page of striking articles and illustrations will tell vividly the story of American business, industry and commerce.

"The Voice of Business" will not be the story of any particular industry. It will not be the story of special interests nor will it be political or partisan in any sense. "The Voice of Business" will unfold the pageant of this nation's mighty development and tell the story of the system under which business has made so great a success for the common good during the last 150 years.

HOW LONG?

The departure of the Lindbergh family is just one more evidence that in America freedom of the press is in no danger, but freedom of the public from the press. It birings one to realize, tardily, that in this country we submit to more from the press in the seal of profits, publishers send their reporters and photographers into the streets with the understanding, if not the definite instruction, that they must let nothing stand in the way of getting a good story. In faction and in the movies we have been shown that persecution, there is the real of the press in the streets with the understanding, if not the definite instruction; that they must let nothing stand in the way of getting a good story. by one the doors of life open of their own accord—when we are ready.

No tragedy of life is more poignant than the tragedy of the unprepared. Then it is that the doors of life remain closed and barred, cobwebs covering every panel, the knob tarnished and rusty. No day in life is quite so pleasing as that day when another door opens, and it finds using as that day when another door opens, and it finds using as that day when another door opens, and it finds using the complexity of the continue time listening to the lower voice of the subconscious soul, the voice that bids us to remember self-preservation, then doors obdurately refuse to open.

But when we prepare ourselves, do the day's work with dilligence and dispatch, making every day better with dilligence and dispatch, making every day better

Credit

The Republican party has proudly and nounced that it is over two hundred housand dollars in the black, AND, unlike various other organizations that innounce their credit balance to a startly and nation, it is in debt to no one. Also the future looks rosy with promises for campaign funds. We can well wonder what rich men will be eager or present large thecks to the Demoratic fund this year. There is a limit to the subde, persuasive uses for government money and there is a real veed for campaign funds that have plenty of zeroes after their numbers, to, an this bright New Year it will be netersting to see to which camp the more generous piffs will be sent.

cess, but not until lately have we made full use of them by quick-freezing food for our own markets. freezing food for our own marketa. It was fairly recently, I believe, that Birdseye came home from the Arctic with Nature's refrigeration taction on his mind, and drevloped a scientific method along the same lines for us so that wherever we might live—north, south, cast, west, inland or wir the coast we could have the fresh meats and sea food and produce of all sections, on our table in perfect condition. Tests have shown that se long as the food—products are kept hard-frozen, time does not change them, and when they are thaved likey go back to their original fresh state in flavor, appearance and texture.
