Hicksville Schools Air Reorganization Plans

Special to Mid Island Times
By Maureen Traxler

The Reorganization Study Advisory Committee of the Hicksville Board of Education called for the continuance of the neighborhood school concept and quality education at its final voting meeting on February 3. The committee, a reflection of a cross section of the Hicksville population, will present its recommendations to the Board for consideration at its upcoming meetings.

The goal of this committee, as set at its September 9 meeting, was to "create a cost system to utilize buildings effectively and efficiently at a 90% use level, with more than one section per grade, to provide the best educational system for the district." The ten suggestions for study of last fall were dwindle down to five "options" by February 3.

The committee voted favorably on two options - Redistricting and the Elimination of Temporary Buildings. The committee recommended that the Board consider redistricting or redrawing elementary school boundaries to balance elementary level class sizes as evenly as possible throughout the school district. Opinions expressed by members of the committee voting for this option were that it would affect the least amount of students and that the difference in busing costs would be negligible. One dissenting voter thought this option only a panacea. A few members suggested the redistricted lines be reviewed every five years, but the committee did not approve this amendment.

The committee recommended that the Board consider eliminating the temporary structures at the Burns Avenue and Dutch Lane Schools. Temporaries at other elementary schools and the middle school have been dismantled over the years. Most of the remaining buildings are used for storage.

The following options did not receive committee recommendation:

1. Pairing of Schools, a system by which two neighboring schools would be paired, and the students in the surrounding area would go to one school for grades K-3 and the sister school for grades 4-6. A committee member stated that this option was not viable in light of the numbers of working parents and single parents living in the Hicksville School District. Other opposing views pointed out that the "local school" gives stability to the K-6 student and that increased busing costs may be required.

2. Housing the 6th Grade Classes in the Middle School. This option called for moving the 6th grade classes to the Middle School building as a self-contained class, and not part of the middle school team-teaching plan. This option was defeated 21-2, with one abstention. Members opposed to this option pointed out that this move would have no educational value, that the students would be subjected to many influences and that this would further empty elementary schools, almost forcing a closure. In defense of the move, this could possibly make room for pre-K classes. Another member felt that the 6th grade students are more in line with 7th and 8th graders than K-5 students. The committee also defeated a recommendation to consider moving grades 7 and 8 to the high school building.

3. The option which prompted the closest voting was that of Closing One Elementary School. The recommendation that the Board consider closing a school was defeated 13 to 11; and a recommendation to consider the closing of two elementary schools was defeated 19 to 4, with one abstention. Members voting against this option expressed the following feelings: that this was an extreme option and one almost impossible to reverse, and that the district has already eliminated one or more schools over the years, by taking down unnecessary temporaries.

One member hoped that the district would not start "The Year of the Child," as dubbed by Governor Mario Cuomo, by closing down a school. He pointed out that the Governor's plans called for pre-school and all-day kindergarten, and the district should bear this in mind. Those voting for closings maintained that the "neighborhood school" concept could remain and that the move would bring a cost saving.

Overall, the committee seemed against going back to the days prior to special education, resource services, ESL and the like, or separate rooms for music and art classes. The committee leaned toward retaining present services and the space needed to conduct these services.

All final decisions on reorganization are made by the Board of Education. The options approved by the Study Committee are only recommendations.

The committee voted twice upon a recommendation by one of its members to establish a subcommittee to draft a written report based on the voting at the February meeting. The motion failed to obtain the necessary 13 votes for passage.

The February meeting of the Board of Education takes place on Wednesday, February 24, at 8:15 p.m. in the conference room of the Administration Building.

Window Service Reduced At Local Post Offices

Effective the week of February 14, the Hicksville Division of the U.S. Postal Service (all post offices in Suffolk and most of Nassau County) will implement the federal budget deficit reduction measures. The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 requires the Postal Service to reduce its operating expenses and capital outlays by $1.2 billion over the next 21 months.

"We are making every effort to limit the inconvenience to our customers. Every Long Island postmaster has been consulted and we have put together a plan tailored toward the postal needs of each community," said Roger Nienaber, Hicksville Division General Manager/Postmaster.

Window services at all Long Island post offices will either be reduced a few hours each day, or a half-day each week, or, in some cases, a full day each week.

Starting Sunday, February 14, there will no longer be collection of mail made on Sundays. Postal customers who normally mail on the weekend should deposit their mail before the last collection on Saturday.

Express Mail and Special Delivery will continue to be delivered on Sunday.

Delivery services will continue six days each week to homes, businesses and post office boxes. Post office lobbies will remain open at their normal hours when the window is closed (where security permits). This will allow customers access to their post office boxes and the use of stamp vending equipment. Ninety-five percent of Long Island post offices have stamp vending equipment available. Postal customers can also obtain stamps through the mail. Stamps-by-Mail forms are available at post offices or from letter carriers.

Local Post Office changes are as follows:

In his presentation, Mr. Godfrey emphasized the Institute's goal of "Making Good People Better" as he spoke about the training courses they have available. He also mentioned some other slogans such as "If it is going to be, it's up to me," and, "Implement the idea, don't just talk about it."

KramerLa. Authors Enter Contest

At Kramer Lane School, Miss Capwell's fifth graders entered a "Publish-a-Book" contest sponsored by Raintree Publishers. Five girls wrote 700-800 word books centering around the theme of holidays here and around the world.

Michelle Jerson's book was entitled "A Chanukah Surprise." She wrote about nine year old Karen, who was confined to a wheelchair after a serious swimming accident. Her physical therapist told her that if she worked very hard she might be able to walk by Chanukah. When Karen's eleven year old sister Sarah took her shopping, Karen only purchased seven gifts for her parents. On the eighth day of Chanukah, Sarah asked Karen where her final gift was. Karen walked across the room to her parents, giving them a Chanukah surprise.

Lisa Witzer and Alanna Leyva's book was called "A Big Christmas Surprise." It told the story of six year old twins, Crissy and Karen, who really wanted a doll for Christmas. Their efforts to get the doll brought them many adventures, including getting lost in the shopping mall. When they were found, their parents and grandparents were so relieved that they were well that they bought them "a big Christmas surprise."

Elizabeth Kim and Melanie Cocco wrote a Thanksgiving story called "Lost and Found on Thanksgiving." Three cousins, Samantha, Brian and Stacy, get into trouble when they eat the whole Thanksgiving dinner while it is cooking, before their parents even place it on the table. Luckily there is another turkey in the freezer, but their attempts to cook a new Thanksgiving dinner are not very appetizing. When their families see the replacement Thanksgiving feast, they hurry down to McDonald's. After dinner, they come home for dessert. The children decide to get fresh maple syrup to put over their vanilla ice cream and get lost in the woods!

The five young authors, who composed their works in the school computer room, enjoyed the process of creating their own characters and watching them come to life as their stories progress.

Reilly of Arcadia Lane won first prize with his 8-10 minute oration on "Our Constitution, Our Freedom, and Our Lives." Grumman Wants To Build Plant To Make Electricity

Grumman Aerospace wants to build its own electric generating plant and sell some of the power to Long Island Lighting Co. Grumman asked the Town Board of Oyster Bay for permission to build the plant in Bethpage. It would supply electric power and heat.

The idea for the plant had been announced in 1985 and presently Grumman says it has financing to go ahead with the project. The cost of the plant would be about $60 million. The company estimates that it will save $3 million of the $17 million it is now spending for electric power. The plant would be fueled by natural gas and would use 75,000 gallons of water a day for cooling purposes. The Board reserved decision on the petition.

Editor's Notebook

News that the assessment process in Nassau County has resulted in a 17 percent error in assessment of homes will be viewed in varying ways by residents. To some it will be proof that the present system must be changed and to others it will mean that the present system is working as best it can with varying market prices of homes.

The present inequity results in an assessment over or under the value of homes probably weighted towards the older homes being under assessed. The county assessor uses a method of valuing property based on the 1938 cost of materials used in construction. With newer materials an approximate scaled value is given. A more modern method would be to use the market value of the house, whatever that might be and how it would be set is difficult to know and ever changing. The result would be a constant reassessing at a great administrative cost.

In fact, the cost of administering a fair property tax might be so high that it would in itself increase the tax and bring little benefit. The entire property tax dilemma leads to a conclusion that in time it may not be a good idea to depend heavily on this form of tax because it is just unwieldy and to finally phase it out altogether.

In addition to the administration of the property tax there can be a good case made that it is a very poor way of paying for a public school system that is supposed to give equal opportunity. The richer areas are able to afford the best and the poorer areas are impoverished.

A change from the property tax is one that will take time and thought but in the long run it may just have to happen.

Fundraiser Off To A Good Start

The 1988 fundraising drive for "ASPIRE" (Adolescent Sarcoma Patients' Intensive Rehabilitation with Exercise) was kicked off in high style with a party at the home of Julie Shapiro in Jericho on February 4.

ASPIRE is the special program that has been established in conjunction with the Hospital for Special Surgery and Memorial Sloan Kettering to help young people who have endured the trauma of amputation to save their lives from bone cancer. The program is designed to help those young amputees with the prosthetic devices, rehabilitation and physical therapy needed to get them back into the mainstream of life. The ASPIRE Program Director, Paddy Rossbach, is herself a leg amputee who overcame her handicap to become the first female amputee to complete the New York City Marathon.

The 1988 Long Island effort to raise funds for ASPIRE is being directed by the Plainview-Old Bethpage Road Runners Club and David Lerner Associates, and will be highlighted by the "Lerner Cup" 10 Kilometer Run in Plainview on April 9. The February 4 event was the first of a series of local gatherings that will focus attention on raising the necessary funds to help these young amputees along the road to recovery.

For more information about ASPIRE, call POBRRRC's ASPIRE Fundraising Chairperson Julie Shapiro at 822-2835.

Last week Mrs. Neigeborn's second graders at Central Boulevard School were visited by Margaret Hodgkin Lippert, a professional storyteller. Dr. Lippert explained to them that when someone tells them a story they are giving them a gift. She told them "How the Moon Came Into the Sky," a story about six brothers who had unusual talents, such as "Cushion," who could turn himself into a huge pillow. The brothers used their talents to rescue their father from a series of mishaps which included being carried away by a huge bird and being swallowed by a fish. In gratitude, their father gave them the moon, but because they were not able to share the moon, he threw it up to the sky where it has remained to this day.

Dr. Lippert, who was involved with the Lincoln Center storytelling project, demonstrated to the students that listening to a well-told story can be even more entertaining than a visual presentation because the imagination is brought into play. The children have been using her books, "The Mitten," "Squirrel and the Pine Nuts," "The Wind and the Sun," "How the Moon Came Into the Sky," and "How the Deer Lost Its Tail" as supplements to the Macmillan pilot reading project in which they are a participating class.

Case No. 1356

SAT Score Improvement: 230 points

Name: Michael Dean

School: Garden City H.S.

Dilemma: When he received his combined PSAT score of 950 he couldn't believe it. He had even prepared for the test with a private tutor. Since his school grades were just average, he felt he needed that extra edge of high SAT scores to get into the colleges that he was interested in.

Advice: Intensive math and verbal skills training using Princeton Review's advanced test-taking techniques.

Consequence: 1180 combined on the November 7th SAT.

Comments: "My guidance counselor and my parents didn't believe an SAT course would help raise my scores, so I had to pay for most of The Princeton Review myself. My parents said that if I raised my scores 150 points they would give me back the money. Well, I improved my scores 230 points. I have a better chance at a good school, and I have some extra spending money. The teachers at the Princeton Review were great—they were down-to-earth and could really relate to the pressure I was going through. They gave me an incredible amount of individualized attention—they even gave me their home phone numbers in case I had any questions. I recommend The Princeton Review to all the kids in my school."

Attend a free seminar and find out for yourself why, when it comes to preparing for the SAT, The Princeton Review really has no competition. Call us now for schedule of seminar dates in your area.

Our Children

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Gifted children often neglected

Q. Our son is in fifth grade, has received almost straight A's since he started school, and tests at an eighth grade level in many areas. Our school system has numerous programs for handicapped children, but nothing for the gifted ones.

He tells us how bored he gets during classes because he knows almost all the material. He has asked his teachers for extra assignments, but they tell him he must stay with the rest of the class.

We have also tried, to no avail, asking his teachers to let him advance on his own in each class or give him something to stimulate his mind.

He does not want to skip a grade because of his friends. Emotionally and socially he is comfortable with his own age group.

We are very frustrated. Any suggestions?

A. How much I understand, and sympathize with, your situation. Unfortunately you are not alone in your concern regarding these often neglected children. That can also be a fortunate factor, for not being alone means there are others to talk to and share ideas with, and also to plan with.

Is there any teacher, school psychologist, school social worker, or administrator (even one) who believes as you do that gifted children need special school help? If it really is impossible to get any school support and understanding, here are a few other suggestions:

1. Home and parent enrichment — plans that include reading, selected TV, organized games, other activities.

2. Community — enrichment possibilities through clubs, Scouts, other child activities.

3. Parent groups — getting a group started who can work closely with the one or more professionals you can identify, at least taking first steps toward developing a challenging program for your son and others.

Ideas from the literature on the gifted — a lot of good sources, including books by Walter Barbe and Joseph Renzulli, Barbara Clark, James Gallagher, Goertzel and Goertzel, Audrey Grost (an especially fine one titled "Genius in Residence"), Felice Kaufman and James Webb. My own (not new, but basic and readable), "Common Sense About Gifted Children," may be helpful to you, and also two by the American Association for Gifted Children — "The Gifted Child, the Family and the Community" and "On Being Gifted" (in which the children speak for themselves).

I hope these and others are available through a library not too far away or a good bookstore.

Q. If you tell me I'm butting in where I don't belong, I'll take your advice and "butt out."

The potential problem is a young neighbor who has a 2-year-old, is divorced, and lives alone with the child. Not often, maybe every week or so, she leaves her little girl alone while she goes shopping, sometimes for two or three hours. Because she does this in the evening and her child is presumably asleep, she seems not to worry about it.

She works full time during the day and has a woman who babysits her youngster then, but not at night. Perhaps it is a financial problem. I just don't know.

I'm writing to you because I am concerned.

A. And rightfully too. I really can't think of any time that a young child should be left unsupervised, sleeping or not. Many things can happen — being caught under covers, wandering around, awakening in fear, and a lot more.

Expressing your concern to your neighbor in a friendly manner may be appropriate. You'll be relieved, and she might learn something from you. If it makes sense to you, you can offer to be available occasionally or suggest someone nearby and qualified as a baby sitter. Even without these possibilities, alerting her to possible dangers could be a worthwhile move on your part.

Q. I've heard several times recently that there is a definite trend away from jogging because of the leg problems it might cause. My husband ignores all that as he jogs at least 5 miles each morning and seems to enjoy it.

That is fine with me, but I don't like the fact that he has started to take our children with him. Although he never insists that they go the full distance (a mile or 2 is the limit), I hate to see them acquire a habit that may be detrimental to them. They are 10 and 12 years old, both girls.

He is a pretty stubborn man, so the persuasion approach is futile. So what else will work?

A. The opinion of your family physician or pediatrician, and an orthopedic specialist to whom he or she refers you, might be helpful.

It is sometimes difficult to involve parents and their children in activities they all enjoy together, so I hesitate suggesting that you interfere with one in which they presumably do like to participate.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

By William M. Acosta

What does SS do with surplus money?

Q. I understand that Social Security now takes in more than it pays out. What does Social Security do with the money left over after benefits are paid out? — M.E.V.

A: The law requires that any reserves that are not used for payment of benefits or operational expenses (which are consistently less than 1.5 percent of revenues) are invested only in U.S. government securities bearing rates of interest similar to those for long-term securities issued to the general public. The amount of interest earned is substantial. For example, in 1986 the Social Security trust funds earned $3.9 billion in interest.

Q. My mother did not enroll in Medicare last May when she became age 65. When will she be eligible to apply for Medicare? — B.V.

A: Beginning Jan. 1 through March 31, 1988, people who have failed to enroll in Medicare medical insurance when they could have, or who withdrew, will have another opportunity to enroll. Coverage will begin July 1. A late charge of 10 percent is applied for each year they could have enrolled but did not.

Q. My brother and I were talking about how long you can hold your Social Security check before cashing. Is there a time limit? — J.P.C.

A: A check may be negotiated at any time after issuance. However, it is recommended that all Social Security checks be cashed promptly. Many financial institutions are reluctant to honor a check with an old date. By promptly cashing your checks you lessen the possibility of the check becoming lost or stolen.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Q. I was previously married and divorced. I will soon be entitled to Social Security retirement benefits. Can my divorced wife and my present wife both get benefits on my record? — P.L.C.

A: Under some circumstances, both can. If your divorced wife is at least 62 and your marriage to her lasted 10 years or more, she can get benefits on your record provided that she is not married. Contact your local Social Security office for additional information.

Nassau Conserv. Back Jack Kemp

At the regular monthly meeting held in Hicksville, The Executive Committee of the Nassau Conservative Party voted unanimously to support Congressman Jack Kemp in his bid for the Republican Nomination for President of the United States. The upstate New York representative is locked into a hotly contested battle with Vice-President George Bush and Senator Robert Dole in the early caucus and primary races, which will take place over the next two weeks in Iowa and New Hampshire.

The endorsement gives congressman Kemp a needed boost from his home state by the most powerful Conservative County organization in New York.

In announcing his Executive Committee's move, Chairman John O'Leary said, "Although Conservatives are precluded by the election law and party comity from voting or active engagement in the GOP primaries, as Americans we have a great interest in the Presidential nominees of the major parties, and as Conservatives we want to help assure that the Reagan legacy is built upon by a bona fide conservative presidential successor."

"The timing of the announcement by the committee at this critical time before the early races, is to encourage the financial and physical support of Nassau Conservatives to bolster the Kemp campaign, particularly in New Hampshire" O'Leary stated. Some of the latest New Hampshire polls show Kemp passing Senator Dole and picking up momentum against front runner Bush. The Kemp organization has a media blitz planned for the closing days of the New Hampshire campaign. A good showing in New Hampshire will give Kemp the momentum he needs to carry him into the "Super Tuesday" primaries on March 8.

O'Leary said, "None of the other announced GOP candidates are sounding the liberal clarion call, but in spite of their new found Conservative rhetoric, only Jack Kemp has consistently championed conservative issues and is a part of the Conservative movement."

"While Bush and Dole have over the years supported the continuation of an onerous and unfair tax system, Jack Kemp has worked for policies leading to economic growth and full employment. The 1981 Kemp-Roth tax bill slashed tax rates 25 percent across the board. Many of his ideas were incorporated into the 1986 tax reform."

"Kemp has been a defender of open trade in the face of rising protectionist pressures. He believes Americans can compete globally if they have a stable dollar and open markets."

"Most important, Jack Kemp believes that America's strength must be restored and maintained and has called for the early deployment of the strategic defense initiative to protect us from nuclear attack."

O'Leary continued, "Kemp has been a consistent defender of the family as the foundation of American life; from protecting low income workers from the ravages of inflation and taxes, to the preservation of human life."

Volley Ball Fun At Fork Lane

Fork Lane held its annual volleyball game between fifth and sixth graders and their parents and teachers. The first two games, parents-teachers vs. students, with parents winning both games. The third game was quite exciting with boys vs girls. After trailing behind by at least ten points, the girls made a terrific comeback by winning with a score of 21-19.

After these fun packed games, refreshments were served. This also was an opportunity for Fork Lane PTA to conduct a general meeting and to honor five sixth grade Moms for their support and service to the PTA through the years. Each Mom will be leaving Fork Lane along with their graduating children and move up to Middle School. We want to thank them once again for their never ending energy and advice that makes our PTA thrive.

Hicksville Youth At Elks Hoop Shoot

Hicksville Elks Lodge #1931 hosted a local "Hoop Shoot" contest at Hicksville High School on January 23. It was the first in a series of contests that end up in Indianapolis, Indiana with national champions. Last year it was endorsed by hundreds of school systems around the country with over three million boys and girls entered. There are three age categories (8-9, 10-11 and 12-13).

Our special thanks to Bob Kenny and his staff at Hicksville Schools for their efforts and cooperation. Boys and girls were entered from Fork Lane, Woodland, Old Country Road, Dutch Lane, East Street, Burns Avenue, Junior High. The e-year old boy who won was Keith Cromwell who scored an impressive 20 out of 25 shots. Keith is from Fork Lane School, but entered as a member of Holy Family CYO. The young lady who won from the 8-9 girls group was Laurie Zeller from Woodland School. Dutch Lane School had a winner in the 10-11 boys group, Billy Rogers. Hicksville PAL had a winner in the 12-13 boys group, Robert Paul. Our thanks also go to Bill Toelstert from Hicksville PAL and Gene Cromwell from Holy Family CYO. It was also nice to see the large turnout of parents to cheer the boys and girls on. The winners advance to a district contest also at Hicksville High.

JFK Students Join Elks Hoop Shoot

Students from JFK, Bethpage participated in the Hicksville Elk Lodge #1931 local "Hoop Shoot" contest. It was held at Hicksville's Middle School on January 23. This was the first in a series of contests that could lead to a national championship at Indianapolis, Indiana. This was the 16th year of national competition. There are three age groups (8-9, 10-11 and 12-13).

Thanks go to Bob Anziano, Athletic Director, his lovely helpers Barbara and Nancy. The students that entered the local contest were Dyana Santulli, Michele Sciarabassi, Eric Watson and Jacob Lee. They competed in the 12-13 age group. Coming in second place in the local contest was lovely Dyana Santulli. Due to a no show at the District Contest on Feb. 6, she was able to fill in as an alternate and took second place again. It should be noted at the district level the competition was sharper. We're looking forward to greater participation from Bethpage next year, even a first place winner.

Hicksville Elks Lodge #1931 will have three first place winners representing them at the regional "Hoop Shoot" on Feb. 20. This will be at 10 a.m. in Christ the King High School in Middle Village. Thanks go to all of our local school districts that entered and helped make this annual contest a continued success.

B.H.S. Wrestlers Make Qtr. Finals

The Bethpage High School wrestling team won matches against Seaford and Oceanside last weekend as they advanced to the County quarterfinals to be held this week. Coach Ron Abatelli hopes that his team, which is now ranked tenth on Long Island and thirtieth in New York State, will advance to the semifinals and finals to be held at Long Beach High School Saturday, February 13, at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The Dads' Club and Bethpage High School Cheerleaders led the crowd in rooting for their team during Bethpage's 47-16 victory over Seaford on February 5 (Noisemaker Night). Winning Bethpage wrestlers included Sinacore, D'Andria, Wolf, Cornicelli, Agnelli and Bartlett.

In the first round of playoffs, the following day, Bethpage edged Oceanside by a 28-25 score in an exciting competition which came down to the final match between sophomore heavyweight Frank Ellinger and Oceanside senior Zabelli. Frank's victory, which clinched a place in the quarterfinals for Bethpage, brought the crowd to its feet. Other victorious Bethpage wrestlers included Sinacore and Wolf.

POBRRC Winter Fun Run

The runners head up Cold Spring Road about one mile into the Fun Run.

More than 250 runners were on hand to take part in the Plainview-Old Bethpage Road Runners Club's annual celebration of winter running on January 31.

It was a beautiful morning, crisp and clear, with the temperature in the low forties, as the crowd gathered at the Woodbury Mall on Jericho Turnpike for a jaunt through the rolling hills of Woodbury, Laurel Hollow, Oyster Bay Cove and Cold Spring Harbor. The runners had their choice of accurately measured courses of 3.1 miles, 5.8 miles, 9.0 miles, and the new "Marquis De Sade" 13.1 mile course up and down some of the North Shore's toughest hills. Jerry Miller, Pat Mulrain, Jeff Jacobs and David Balsley led about 20 hearty souls who tackled the Marquis DeSade.

Hot coffee, orange juice and bagels awaited everyone back at Woodbury Super Star Sneakers and Sports when they finished their run.

POBRRC president Mike Polansky and Winter Fun Run Director Sam Zinn were ecstatic at the success of this year's Fun Run. "There are plenty of regular races that don't draw 250 people," Zinn observed, "so we are certainly thrilled by the turnout at our Fun Run. More to the point, we were able to put on a pressure free event that was just plain fun for every participant. Smiling faces were the rule today, and that's just great!"

Thanks and congratulations go to Sam and to his crew of volunteers - Steve Winkler, Audrey Saltsberg, Chris Simonsen, Angie Miller, David Ginsberg and Arnold "Turk" Turkus - for putting on another successful event.

Campagne Holds Super Volleybowl

At Charles Campagne School, parents, staff and students had their very own January Super Bowl-Super Volleybowl I, held at the Campagne gym January 14. The Bethpage Midget Football League cheerleaders led the rousing crowd to root for their favorite teams. Referees included Miss Mary Quinn, principal; Harold Resnick, Board Trustee; Bob Anziano, Director of Health and Physical Education; Roger Buttner; and Campagne's Physical Education teachers, "Mr. Roz," and Renée Radatz.

A rundown of the action packed play, described that night by an enthusiastic Ann DiPrima, follows: Kindergarteners: 2nd graders played modified newcomb. The Red Team edged the Green Team 4-3. Third/Fourth Graders: Parents and staff played the eight and nine year olds in a newcomb game, emerging victorious by a 21-19 score. Fifth/Sixth Graders: The ten and eleven year olds played

Cheerleading

Our response to our new program has really been wonderful. Gary held his first meeting this past week with Linda Mirro and Vicki Passaro who will be running this new program. The two women came up with some wonderful ideas and they are very excited. Any girls that are still interested in joining this program please contact Gary at 681-6947. This program will start in April to get the girls ready to march in the Memorial Day Parade. For the girls that already have signed up they will be notified by mail when the program starts.

A little tidbit on our New Year's Eve Dance, all the food that was left over that night was donated to Sister Kathleen who is in charge of Catholic Charities. It gives us all at CYD a very rewarding feeling to see that nothing was wasted.

Basketball Highlights
On Saturday, January 30, Joe

Basso called in his team's winning score.

Lions 12 vs Cabe 8

Great playing by Marcus Moncayo 8 pts., Jason Basso 4 pts. Outstanding playing by Jody Durkin, and Brian Kaplan.

On February 2, another win for the Lions....

Lions 15 vs. Tigers 4

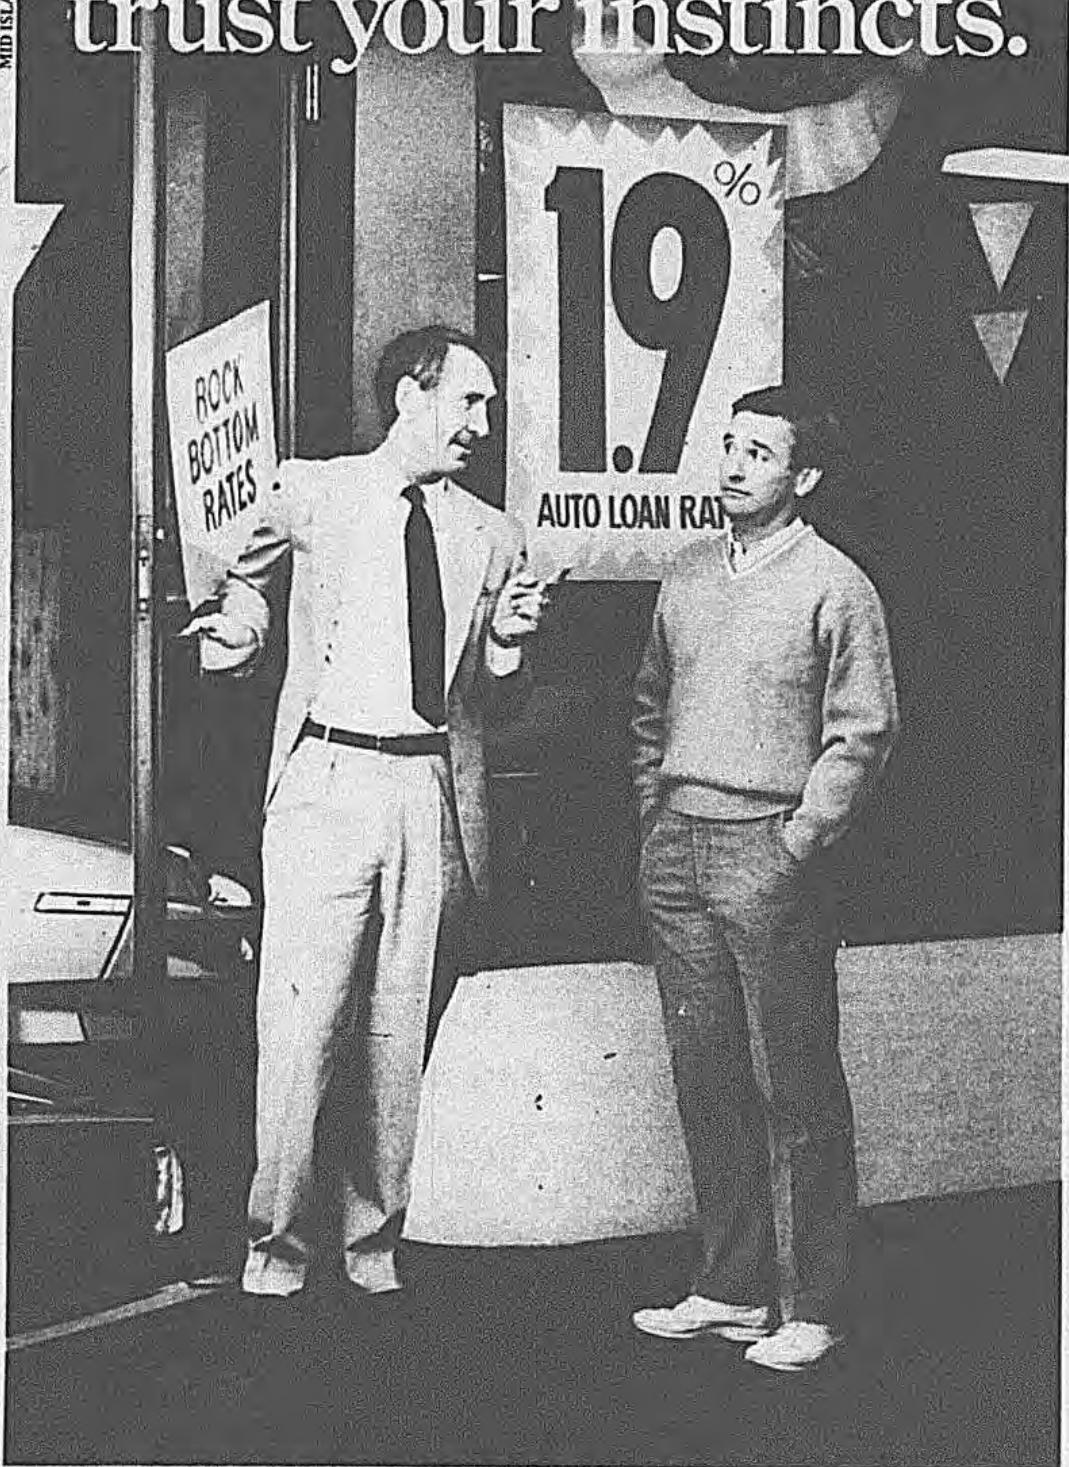

This team is going for the gold. Patrick Walker 10 pts., Andrew Colton 5 pts., and excellent defense by Jason Basso, Brian Kaplan and Marcus Moncayo. Keep up the good work.

Any coaches that are interested in calling in their teams wins please call Barbara Lewis at 681-6947.

Registration Update

If somebody's auto loan rate seems too good to be true, trust your instincts.

The only way to get an unbelievably low loan rate is to have unrealistically high payments.

Behind all the low rates available these days is a very short term loan. And short term loans can mean painfully high monthly payments.

Variable Rate
Auto Loan

With a new, low variable rate auto loan from The Bank of New York, you can spread your payments over as many as five years. And since our rate is currently the lowest among all the major banks, that means monthly payments you can live with.

And importantly, your regular monthly payments will never go up. If interest rates rise or fall during the term of the loan we'll simply make the adjustment at the end of your loan term.

To take advantage of our variable rate auto loan just visit one of our 190 convenient branches. Or for an even faster response, call Action Phone at 1-800-942-1784 (out-of-state, call 914-684-5514 collect). Call by 2:30 P.M. on any business day and in most cases you'll have an answer by 5:00 P.M.

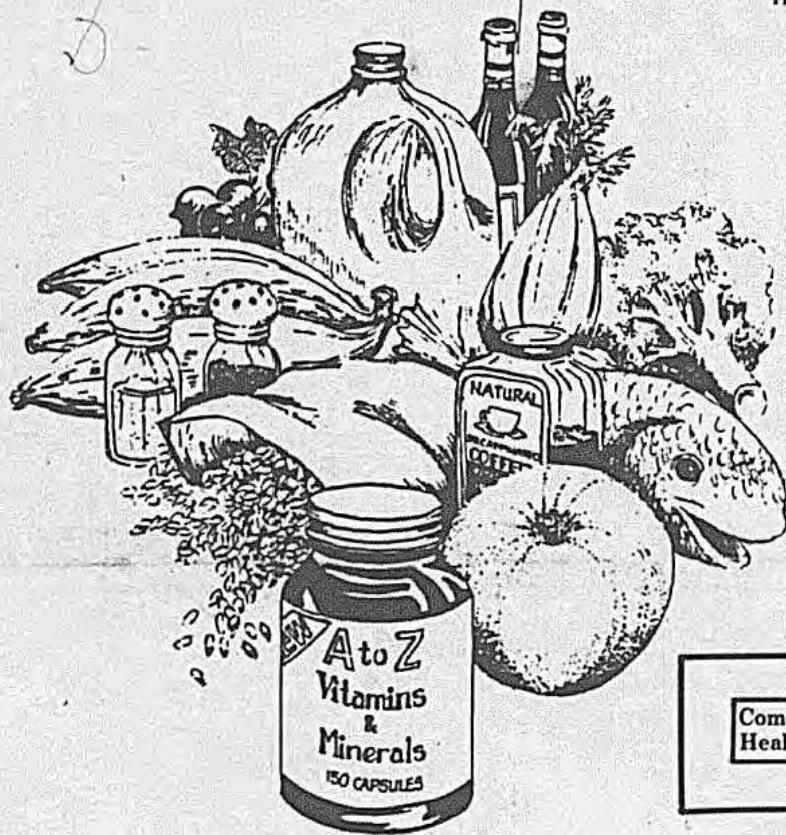

So the next time somebody touts their rock-bottom loan rates, take a moment to step back and trust your instincts. They may be telling you to call us.

Checking out the possibilities

By Allison Ashton

You've just slipped and broken your ankle while getting out of the bathtub — what alternatives do you have to an expensive visit to the emergency room?

Perhaps you're due for some surgery: How do you cut down the cost of an expensive hospital stay?

Maybe you suspect that mole on your shoulder is more than an innocent freckle — should you seek out a specialist on your own?

The escalating cost of medical care has spawned a number of alternatives to traditional care from the family doctor and/or local hospital.

Says Claire Fagin, dean of the School of Nursing at the University of Pennsylvania: "In the United States in the recent past, health care was seen as a public good which should be available — in some form — regardless of the ability to pay. This concept is now being challenged daily in the marketplace with less notice than might be expected."

Drastic cutbacks in Medicare funding took place in 1984 in the form of Diagnostic Related Groups. This simply means that hospitals are reimbursed by the government for the treatment of 470 ailments on a standardized pay scale.

Kidney transplant patients, for example, are allowed 15 days in the hospital, although patients might need to stay as long as a month. And the idea of standardized pricing for medical treatment is catching on with insurance companies.

Don't worry, there are ways to receive adequate treatment and still save money.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

"Patients need and want a doctor who will provide ongoing, comprehensive health care, not just episodic treatment — a doctor who knows the whole family and treats each patient as a person rather than a disease," says B. Leslie Huffman Jr., M.D., former president of both the American Academy of Family Physicians and the American Board of Family Practice.

Despite the proliferation of health maintenance groups, a survey conducted by Research & Forecasts Inc. revealed that 81 percent of Americans are satisfied with their family doctor. Fifty-seven percent prefer to see the family doctor first when they are ill.

Family Practice has been a recognized specialty since 1969. Unlike general practitioners, family practice specialists undergo a three-year residency training and must be certified by the American Board of Family Practice.

IN CASE OF EMERGENCY

Let's say you have an emergency and can't wait for the family doctor. If you're like most people, you'll make tracks for the emergency room at the nearest hospital.

Unless your situation is life threatening (heart attack or severe bleeding) or of a really serious nature (head injuries or stomach pain), you'll have to wait an hour or more until you can be treated.

Even then, the doctor might be called away when a more serious injury comes in or when another patient takes a turn for the worse.

Sometimes it's hard to know if your condition merits a visit to the emergency room.

With more insurance companies refusing to pay for emergency room visits they deem unnecessary, you should evaluate your symptoms before rushing to the nearest hospital. The American College of Emergency Physicians offers seven guidelines for determining when you should seek emergency treatment:

- Chest or upper abdominal pains or pressure (heart attacks are often mistaken for indigestion).
- Difficulty breathing or shortness of breath.
- Fainting or feeling faint.
- Dizziness, sudden weakness or a severe change in vision.
- Sudden severe pain anywhere in the body.
- Severe or persistent vomiting.
- Suicidal or homicidal feelings.

A number of hospitals across the country have set up "convenience care centers" as part of their emergency services.

These centers serve patients with non-urgent injuries, usually at a lower cost. You'll also probably be treated faster because you don't have to wait with people who need more immediate care.

Another alternative is privately run emergency clinics. In addition to providing basic medical care, these centers, which are cropping up across the country, offer treatment for minor emergencies such as the cut finger or twisted ankle.

HEALTH CARE AT HOME

In an effort to keep health care costs down, many patients are opting for in-home postsurgical recovery. This form of home care literally brings the hospital home. Many medical practitioners feel that patients recover more rapidly and happily in familiar surroundings.

Home health care can include anything from visits from a nurse to physical therapy. And it can save you a bundle.

Changing Times magazine noted that "Home care for quadriplegic patients can cost almost $10,000 a month less than hospital care without shortchanging the patient."

The majority of Blue Cross/Blue Shield plans cover home care; many HMOs and PPOs cover some of the cost as well. You'll need to check with your insurance company regarding coverage when arranging for in-home care.

Hospitals of America Inc. is joining hospitals and medical staffs to provide pre- and post-operative patients low-cost housing close to the hospital.

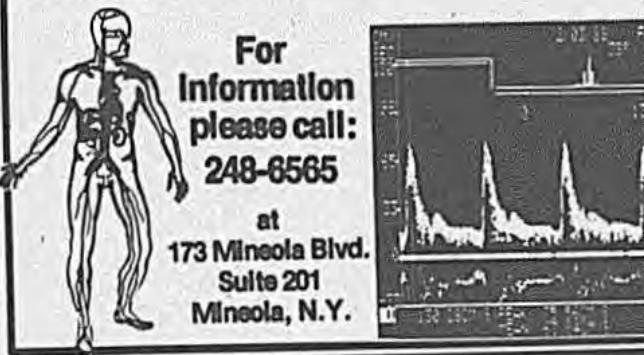

Nassau Thoracic & Cardiovascular NONINVASIVE DIAGNOSTIC VASCULAR LABORATORY

The purposes of some of the tests performed are to detect deficiencies in circulation in the arteries of the legs or feet, problems with veins such as varicosities or blood clots and hardening of the arteries in the neck which could lead to a stroke or TIA (transient ischemic attack or ministroke). In many cases these tests may eliminate the need for other INVASIVE tests.

The lab offers the most state-of-the-art ultrasound and plethysmographic (study of volume change) equipment and technology. A nationally certified vascular technologist performs all of the tests. All reports are computer generated and subsequently sent to your physician.

NONINVASIVE vascular tests are painless and are used to detect circulatory problems in the arteries and veins. NO x-rays, needles, dyes or catheters are used, and no preparation is necessary for most of the tests.

"To Your Good Health!"

What better way to toast your health and happiness... every day of the year, than with sparkling clear BERKSHIRE MOUNTAIN SPRING WATER.

Bottled water has become one of America's prime sources of drinking water, favored by one in 16 people, and gaining in popularity as our public water supplies continue to decrease in purity.

This pure mountain spring water has been available to the public since 1970, and is found deep below the earth's surface. It flows naturally down through the earth, filtered naturally, drop by drop, until it collects in deep natural reservoirs where it remains totally pure, crystal clear, free from natural or man-made contaminants.

BERKSHIRE MOUNTAIN SPRING WATER, bottled at the 1-mile deep spring in Southfield, Mass., is tested weekly for purity - after many years these tests continue to prove the water 100% bacteria free - every time. A certified analysis will be provided immediately upon request.

You may visit the spring if you wish. Just call to set up an appointment.

The water flows in BERKSHIRE MOUNTAIN SPRING WATER'S gleaming stainless steel bottling plant, where it is instantly bottled and capped in sterile, chemically inert, non-porous Lexan containers, then delivered to the customer's homes.

To drink to your family's health call BERKSHIRE MOUNTAIN SPRING WATER (328-7918)

You'll receive a FREE gallon container with your first 2-container order.

Wheat Germ Pancakes

Pancakes during Lent season are an ancient tradition with a purpose: to get rid of all of the household's fats and oils before fasting. This recipe is tasty and nutritious plus low in fat.

1 cup white flour	1 1/4 cups skim milk
2 1/2 tsp. baking powder	2 tbsp. oil
1 tbsp. sugar	1/2 cup low-fat cottage cheese
1/2 cup wheat germ, toasted with honey

Sift together flour, baking powder and sugar. Add wheat germ. Combine the milk and oil and stir in the dry ingredients until just moistened. Stir in cottage cheese only until mixture is slightly lumpy (if smooth batter desired, whip the cottage cheese with liquid ingredients in blender). Drop batter by spoonfuls onto a greased pan. Cook until bubbles appear on upper surface, then turn and brown on the other side. Turn only once. Continue until all batter is used. Serve with maple syrup.

Yield: 10 4-Inch Pancakes

Health Care Issues

Menopause

The good news about menopause is that it no longer carries the negative, upsetting connotations of the past. An educated woman can choose good health during this phase of her life, retain her vitality, and minimize the unpleasant physical and emotional symptoms.

Contemporary women have powerful weapons to combat some of the symptoms of midlife change. Physical and emotional signs of your body's changes include the famous hot flash, intermittent periods of chills and perspiration, mood swings, vaginal dryness, insomnia, osteoporosis, and nervousness. But you can take positive steps to insure your continued good health.

Nutritional supplements, hormonal replacement therapy, and appropriate weight bearing exercises can alleviate symptoms of menopause. Combined with a regular examination by a caring physician with whom you can establish a frank, open dialogue, your opportunities to lead a full, healthy life are unlimited.

This medical news is being brought to you as a community service by the Long Island Women's Health Care Group. We're a dedicated group of obstetrician-gynecologists who treat each patient as an individual. We're affiliated with the Maternal Child Care Center at Winthrop-University Hospital.

Good food not just taste

By Jack Williams

As most of us will attest, the sight and smell of food often can dictate taste.

But there's more to this culinary equation than meets the tongue. How we perceive food, as it turns out, also can influence metabolism and absorption.

Dr. Walter Mertz (director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Beltsville Human Nutrition Research Center in Beltsville, Md.) said: "If food is administered intravenously, without sight or smell, the metabolic effect will not be so great."

Mertz cited a study involving Swedish and Thai subjects accustomed to diametrically different diets.

"Thai subjects absorbed less iron from the Swedish food (than from their own), and vice versa," said Mertz.

The subjects found the foreign food to have an unappetizing odor, and their psychological response affected their absorption (of the nutrients in the food).

This points out the importance of food that appeals to the eye and sense of smell, said Mertz.

"I firmly believe that following these principles will meet the nutritional requirement of all healthy people. I'm convinced there are no bad and no good foods."

"Even wine and beer in moderation have their place, and can be an important part of the day for the elderly."

Mertz said he strongly opposes substituting supplements for food because of risks from interactions. Besides, he said, food tastes better.

"I wouldn't use fish oil pills," he said, "because it tastes awful. There are too many beneficial substances in whole fish, and it tastes much better."

While supporting the evidence that certain fish oils containing omega 3 can decrease the risk of heart disease and lower serum cholesterol, Mertz pointed out that it also can deplete vitamin E and selenium from the system.

"In laboratory experiments," he said, "we used fish oil to kill animals."

But not to be overlooked was the fact that the more fish oils in the diets of laboratory animals, the fewer the tumors, Mertz pointed out.

Whatever the evidence, pro or con, it is subject to change in the dynamic field of nutritional research.

"Our knowledge," stressed Mertz, "is not complete. We don't have the secret to total health."

This uncertainty was reinforced by John W. Bode, USDA assistant secretary for Food and Consumer Services. Said Bode: "Even when most scientists think enough is known about a new piece of the nutrition puzzle to establish or revise a dietary guideline, there may not be a consensus on exactly what the guideline should be or to whom it should apply.

"Consensus sometimes gets ahead of the science. As Nobel laureate Konrad Bloch recently wrote, '...consensus today may become a controversy tomorrow.'

Nutrition, Bode concluded, is a "complex topic about which we still know little in relation to what we would like to know."

"We do not yet know enough about nutrition to identify an 'ideal diet' for each individual."

What we do know, Mertz said, is that nutritional deficiencies and exposure to environmental toxins will prevent us from achieving our genetic potential. "Our major concern," he said, "is that our diet is adequate to enable us to fulfill our genetic potential."

Allergy Alert

One of every six Americans is allergic to something and most of those things make it into the home. Pollen can be carried inside on your clothing or blown through an open window, microscopic dust-mites are your permanent roommates and then there's smoke, dust and pussycat and Ido dander.

And as homes become more airtight with extra insulation, weather stripping and caulking, allergy aggravations can increase due to lack of indoor air circulation.

One of the best ways to deal with allergy irritants is with an air cleaner. There are dozens on the market. Some fit on a table or desk, but these are too small to be very useful.

Larger units can remove 75 percent of the dust, smoke, pollen and animal hair particles in the air of a 120-square-foot room in just half an hour. There also are air cleaners that attach to your heating and air-conditioning system to clean the air of the entire house.

The best air cleaners use a fan to draw in dirty air and circulate clean air. The Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers has rated several air cleaners.

A list of ratings can be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to AHAM, Room Air Cleaner Program, 20 North Wacker Drive, Chicago, IL 60606.

A free poster describing air cleaners and other ways to purify the air in your home, called "The ABCs of Allergy Relief," can be obtained by writing to Floyd Carlstrom, Research Products Corp., 1015 East Washington Ave., Madison, WI, 53701-1467.

Keeping your house clean is a vital step to ridding your house of allergens. But they can still collect inside humidifiers, dehumidifiers and air conditioners, which inevitably blow the allergens back into your home's air. It is important, therefore, to regularly clean these appliances.

If you are allergic to your dog or cat, you can always get rid of the critter. But if breaking up is hard to do, Dr. Robert McLellan, director of environmental and occupational health at the Gesell Institute for Human Development in New Haven, Conn., suggests that the pet be kept out of the bedroom and brushed outdoors (once a week throughout the summer, less frequently the rest of the year) by someone who is not allergic.

And if you can't abide having a four-footed roommate, but still crave companionship, you can always try goldfish.

PAIN AND HEALTH

What to do
when it hurts

By Sharon Williams

You want to ignore it and continue on with your workout, but you know it's there — stabbing and gnawing and annoying, undermining the integrity of each movement of your body.

It's pain — the bane of both weekend and professional athletes.

Why is pain so hard to ignore? Pain simply is the stimulation of nerves in an injured area to send patterns of nerve impulses to the brain via the spinal cord, according to the pamphlet "How To Talk To Your Doctor About Acute Pain."

Interpreting these actions, the brain sends messages to the muscles to produce the most appropriate behavior.

There isn't always a direct relationship between the injury and the amount of pain experienced. For instance, a major sports injury might be barely detectable, while a minor injury may bring on violent pain.

Pain patterns also are affected by psychological and physiological factors, according to the pamphlet.

If you do sustain an injury, don't try to work it out, advises John Thompson, manager of Campbell's Health and Fitness Program in New Jersey. He suggests listening to your body so you know when to bolster self-care with medical attention.

Pay particular attention to when and how often the pain occurs. If you hurt only after the activity, minor changes in training routine, such as re-evaluating your stretching exercises, replacing worn out shoes and reducing the length of the workout may do the trick.

When pain reaches the next stage — it hurts during exercise — take a week off.

At this point, William Southmayd, M.D., and Marshall Hoffman, author of the book, "Sports Health: The Complete Book Of Athletic Injuries" recommend the RICE treatment — an acronym for rest, ice, compression and elevation.

If pain progresses to stage three — it hurts both during and after exercise — it's time to consult a doctor.

A physician may refer you to a physical therapist who specializes in sports medicine. Physical therapists can help by evaluating an athlete's performance weaknesses and physically condition him to correct the problem, according to the American Physical Therapy Association.

They also can recommend safety equipment to reduce injuries and help develop fitness programs geared for the individual athlete.

Treatment goals established by the physical therapist include preventing disability, relieving pain and restoring function.

These goals may be accomplished through treatments such as therapeutic exercise, postural re-education, joint mobilization and a range of motion exercises, cardiovascular endurance training, relaxation exercises, therapeutic massage or biofeedback.

Chiropractic clinics also offer treatments for aches and pains in areas such as the lower back and neck.

Sometimes pain is hard to pinpoint. You know what it feels like and where it is, but it's hard to translate into words.

Recent advances in pain treatment technology make finding the pain easier. For instance, thermography has become more widespread as an adjunct to conventional diagnosis in its medical applications.

A probe measures the heat produced by vascular activity and metabolic reactions taking place in the tissue. Where there is unusual heat, there often is injury and dysfunction.

When blood supply to an injured area increases, so does the temperature of the area — enough to be detected on a thermogram, which is a color scope reflecting the heat of specific areas of the body.

Chiropractor Joan Baum compares the thermogram to a heart chart. The heat chart compares both sides of the body; if the symmetry is off, areas of injury and dysfunction are pinpointed.

Irregularities in the bones, nerves and circulation may show up in thermography that aren't detected in X-rays or other tests. Stress fractures also can be identified.

Aches and pains don't always come as a result of exercise. But as in the case of arthritis, exercise can actually aid in the treatment of pain.

Experts acknowledge that water exercises offered through books such as "Pain-Free Arthritis" by Dvera Berson, or the Arthritis Foundation's own hydrotherapy program, can bring considerable relief to arthritis victims.

There also are videotapes, such as "Jayne Powell's Fight Back With Fitness" that offer exercises on improving flexibility, movement and development of muscle tone.

There's even new hope for those who suffer chronic pain caused by extensive illness or injury.

Several new treatments cover a wide range of approaches: From deep brain stimulation and nerve stimulation by electrodes placed on the skin, to nervous system blockers — painkillers derived from hot pepper and synthetic analogues of the body's own pain killers. There also is a trend toward more refined use of established painkillers, such as morphine.

Treatment is most effective where the client is supported by the family or loved ones.

Sculpt a new you with cosmetic surgery

By Karen Caldwell

If your body is perfect, don't read this.

OK, what would you like to change? Your chubby knees or love handles? That bump on your nose? Those ears that Dumbo would envy? How about those acne scars, or that ever-spreading bald spot?

Sorry, we didn't mean to get personal. But if any of the above really bothers you, help is at hand. (Or at face. Or at derriere — you get the idea.)

Before you recoil in horror at the thought of going under the knife for something your health insurance won't pay for, relax. New techniques are simpler than ever. Your options are greater. And even though it still means an investment in time and money, good results are likely — and more long-lasting.

BODY SHAPERS

Nose jobs, ear pinning and facelifts are only a small part of what modern cosmetic surgery has to offer.

The newest technique for sculpting a more perfect body is liposuction. The operation removes small, localized fat deposits that persist despite vigorous exercise and Spartan diets. It can remove blubber from just about any part of the body: neck, cheeks, upper arms, breasts, stomach, thighs, knees and ankles.

More than 100,000 people in the United States have had the operation, making it the third most common plastic surgery operation after eyelid tucks and nose jobs.

"I think it has probably exceeded our expectations," says Robert Reeder, president of the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery, the group most skeptical of liposuction initially. But, Reeder cautions, "There's been an awful lot of hype with it. People think this is the total answer. And it isn't."

Liposuction doesn't do a thing for cellulite, general plumpness, sagging skin or lack of muscle. A good candidate for the treatment is someone with good skin tone who is no more than 20 pounds overweight, in good health and under the age of 40.

It costs between $1,500 and $6,000, depending on how much fat is removed and whether it is done in a hospital or a doctor's office. The operation is quick — usually less than an hour. Recovery time and pain afterward vary, depending on the amount of fat removed.

If you have cellulite, a weak chin, sunken cheeks or acne scars, you may be a candidate for fat reinjection. That's right — the same stuff that makes you pudgy in one area can be used to fill in another area. Fat reinjection is reported to last longer than collagen injections. It may be better for larger depressions than implants. Best of all, it uses natural tissue that your body won't reject.

SKIN SMOOTHERS

If your face is scarred, pock-marked or wrinkled, there are many ways you can return it to smooth, taut and terrific.

Everyone knows that plastic surgeons de-jowl their patients with face-lifts, and cinch up droopy eyelids and eyebrows. But few people realize that there are other routes to skin enhancement.

Dermabrasion, for example, works by "sanding" irregularities so they blend with the surrounding skin. It minimizes rough scars and pits caused by acne or chickenpox. A chemical peel is similar to dermabrasion, but chemicals are used instead.

Among the quickest, easiest and least expensive treatments for irregular skin are collagen injections. This natural product is injected into depressions in the skin. When the lines or pits are filled in, they disappear — for up to six months. Recovery time is less than half a day.

Another relatively inexpensive, uncomplicated option for those of us whose crow's feet seem to be on the march is acupuncture. Says Dr. Gary A. Richwald, assistant professor of public health at the University of California at Los Angeles, acupuncture is "the best preventive and restorative care for your appearance; a safe and natural way to give your face a lift."

One woman said enthusiastically of her acupuncture treatment, "By the time I had undergone seven sessions, my profile looked like a knife-edged silhouette. Laugh lines on my cheeks and along the sides of my nose to my chin looked airbrushed."

The process usually involves 10 to 15 sessions at about $30 each. After the needles are removed, electrical and laser therapy are applied, toning muscles and rejuvenating skin surfaces.

If your skin needs none of the above, now's the time for maintenance — whether you're male or female. Consult your dermatologist, beauty care specialist, or visit a skin care clinic or department store cosmetic counter. Ask about skin care products such as Clinical Formula or colloidal oatmeal (Aveeno products) that will help your skin stay soft and youthful.

BANISH BALDNESS

If you're feeling the breeze where your hair used to be, there are ways to plant a new crop of follicles.

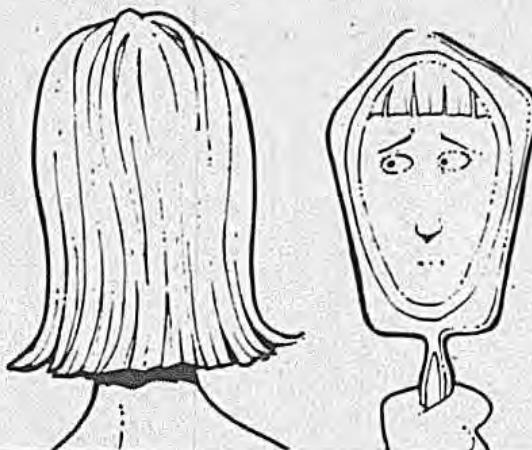

The most common permanent solution to hair loss is the transplant. A local anesthetic is applied to numb the scalp, and small plugs of hair-bearing scalp are transferred from one portion of the head to another — usually from the back to the crown.

Gaining in popularity are "scalp flaps." This involves the rotation or pivoting of whole flaps of hair-bearing scalp from one area to another. Since the flap is sewn to a bald area with its own blood supply, the procedure seldom shocks the hair into the resting and shedding phase, as occurs with transplants. The result is instant hair that looks more natural than plugs.

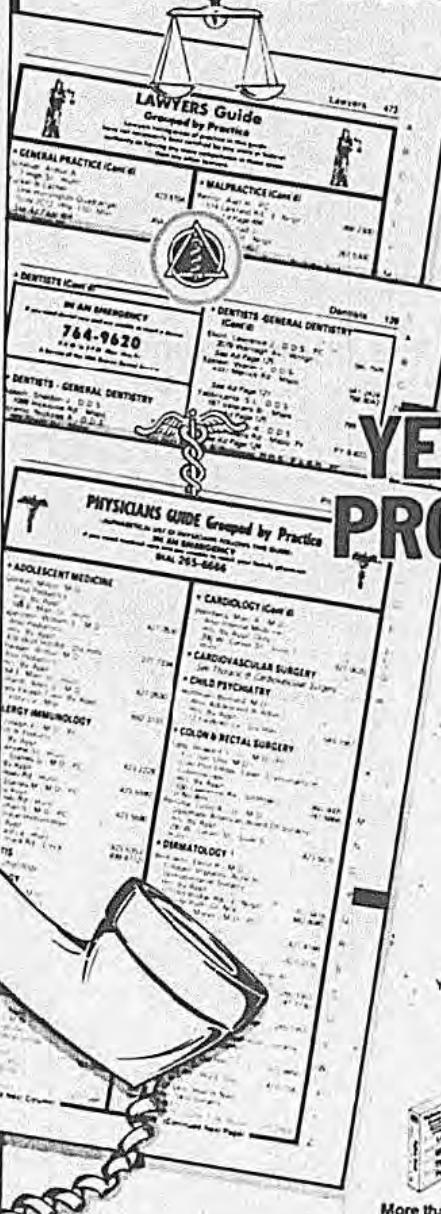

The newest technique for remedying hair loss is "scalp expansion." Small balloons are inserted into the scalp above the ears. Over several weeks, the balloons are filled with saline solution, causing the hair-bearing portion of the scalp to stretch. This new skin is then pulled up to cover the bald area during surgery.

Scalp expansion is a nifty trick, but most men don't want to walk around for several weeks with bulges above their ears.

No doubt it won't be long before the American Academy of Facial and Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery announces even better techniques for building beautiful bodies.

Where to take your angst

By Sheila Sobell Moramarco

What do you do in these three cases, if you've never had to deal with erratic behavior before?

Your preschooler doesn't seem to be capable of the same attention span as the other children. At circle time, he's out of the circle more than he's in it. When he is sitting, he's constantly in motion, rocking back and forth. You know he's bright; in fact, he speaks several languages, but his social interaction skills seem non-existent.

You have just remarried and find yourself in the tricky situation of blending families. Whenever you try to discipline your new husband's teenage son, he tells you sarcastically, "Bug off. You're not my real mother." When you tell your husband about the problem, he brushes it off, attributing it to "just a stage." Your position in the family feels unbearable; you're an authority figure without any power. As much as you love your new husband, you're beginning to think this marriage won't make it to the finish line.

Your friend's husband of 20 years has just confessed he's in love with another woman and wants a divorce. His wife is distraught and spends most of the time crying. She can't function effectively at work and is afraid she's going to lose her job. She hardly eats and can't get a decent night's sleep. From everything you've heard, it seems as if your friend has fallen into a serious depression.

Many people need the help of a mental health expert at some point in their lives. But knowing who is best suited to treat a particular problem can be quite confusing. The guide that follows describes the credentials, training and special interests of the mental health professionals you are likely to encounter.

PSYCHIATRIC PHYSICIANS

Many people don't realize that a "psychiatric physician" or psychiatrist is a licensed medical doctor. According to the pamphlet "What Is Psychiatry?" by the Psychiatric Society of Virginia, "A psychiatrist specializes in prevention, diagnosis and treatment of mental and emotional problems and is trained to understand both the physical and emotional components of illness."

Qualified to order laboratory tests and to prescribe medications, the psychiatric physician is the only mental health professional qualified to determine whether an emotional or behavioral problem is caused by a medical or psychological condition.

This qualification is extremely important because serious physical diseases, such as hormone problems and high blood pressure, can produce symptoms that resemble those of mental illness. With an understanding of the psychological, physical and social aspects of health and illness, the psychiatrist is prepared to treat the whole person."

What is a psychiatrist's training? Four years of medical school; one year working with hospital patients with medical and surgical problems, plus a minimum of three years in intensive psychiatric training to learn the diagnosis and treatment of mental and emotional problems.

What if the patient is a child? According to the Psychiatric Society of Virginia, "A child psychiatrist has special expertise in helping children with emotional problems, just as a pediatrician has special qualifications to care for the medical problems of children."

This specialty entails at least two additional years of intensive training in the study of childhood development and treatment of children's emotional illnesses.

Although there often is significant overlap in the types of cases treated by mental health experts, a psychiatrist's practice usually emphasizes disorders that require medical intervention, such as schizophrenia, depression and manic-depression, as well as hyperactivity in children.

Also included are organic brain syndromes, like dementia, delirium and Alzheimer's disease (usually in conjunction with a neurologist).

PSYCHOLOGISTS

Psychologists complete either a five-year graduate program earning a Ph.D. or a multiyear course at a professional school of psychology resulting in a Psy.D. About 5 percent receive an Ed.D. (doctor of education) and choose school psychology as a specialty. Whatever path they elect, doctoral candidates must complete a two-year internship treating patients under direction and supervision. Independent practice requires passing a demanding two-part licensing examination.

Because of their presence in schools and workplaces, psychologists often are "first contacts" when people seek help. A major distinction between psychologists and other mental health professionals involves the area of testing, according to the public information office of the American Psychological Association. Psychologists are specially trained to administer tests like MMPI (Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory) and to use the results to help diagnose disorders like phobias and depression. Treatment by a psychologist can include behavior modification, biofeedback, family and individual counseling.

SOCIAL WORKERS

To become a licensed clinical social worker, a master's degree in social work, two years of treating patients under supervision and the completion of a state licensing exam are necessary.

According to the National Association of Social Workers, "Half of the mental health treatment in the United States is given by professional social workers." It's easy to understand why, given the scope of community services they provide — child abuse prevention and intervention, social services for the elderly and other special populations.
