Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

As St. Patrick's Day nears, I am writing to express deep gratitude to Irish Americans who have helped make our community and nation a great democracy. Nearly 40 million Americans claim Irish descent. Irish Americans serve as role models to all immigrants as the Irish face extreme British oppression in Ireland and prejudice during early immigration to America. The Irish experience in America is a success story from the agonies of crossing the Atlantic in steerage during the 1800's to the elections of presidents John F. Kennedy and Ronald Reagan.

Our Federal Government now restricts the immigration of Irish to United States shores. How soon we forget our past and accomplishments of Irish immigrants. Please support House Joint Resolution 482 to declare March, Irish-American Heritage Month.

March 17, is a Great Day for the Irish.

Sincerely,
Gregory P. Bennett
Adjutant of Charles Wagner
American Legion Post 421

To the Editor:

Unfortunately, neither Mr. or Mrs. Kelly understood my letter to the Editor regarding school closings.

Given the fact that the School Board and the Administration have not acted for over 2 years to examine the recommendation of the Reorganization Committee, I could not understand the almost circus-like atmosphere of recent School Board Meetings, where we saw School Board members rushing to bid one school against another, or raising the ante from one school to two or three schools as the night went on, in an attempt to "make an informed educational decision."

If the School Board and the Administration sat on their hands for over 2 years, what prompted them to act now? Clearly, the empty classrooms Mr. and Mrs. Kelly cite did not mysteriously appear overnight. They've been here for years.

Yet, due to economic consideration, they are now the reason for closing schools.

Just why, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, are singleton classes on a grade level so undesirable? Is their undesirability educational or is it economic?

Yes, I did suggest redistricting (as did the Reorganization Committee) as an alternative to school closings. Hopefully, redistricting would still permit students to attend their neighborhood elementary school for at least part of their elementary years.

Now that moving the 6th grade to the Middle School has been eliminated, the only educational reason given for closing schools is the need to level class sizes. And this is something that can be accomplished without closing schools.

Nothing I wrote would hurt any children.

No one cares more for the children of Hicksville than I and my fellow teachers. We truly have the best interests of students at heart.

Maybe you didn't hear the parents screaming to keep their neighborhood school open.

Maybe you didn't hear the mother who cried out that her daughter was losing her hair for fear that her school was going to close.

Maybe you didn't hear the men and women who said that saving $50 a year in taxes isn't worth the turmoil of closing 2 schools.

Maybe you didn't read the 70+ letters the School Board received with 97% calling for schools to remain open.

Maybe you didn't hear these comments and read these letters, but we did; or maybe you heard these comments and read those letters and chose to ignore them.

Very truly yours,
Bob Zaleski, President
Hicksville Congress of Teachers

To The Editor:

This is a response to Mr. Zaleski's letter to the editor entitled "Budget Increase Not Due to Contracts."

The facts are:
•$5,295,724 is Total Salary Increases

•$4,476,043 is Teacher Salary Increases

•$819,681 goes to all other employees

Mr. Zaleski forgot all of the supplemental salaries from Driver Ed. to Coaches Salaries, to Terminal Pay for unused sick days, the 9 additional teachers added to his unit, and longevity pay for teachers who have been in the district 25, 30 and 35 years.

He probably also forgot that the salary code includes the $2.2 million increase from 1989-90 and the $2.3 million increase for 1990-91.

It is truly time for us to realize that the entire school district and the entire community are trying to face a singular problem and resolve it. We have some wonderful professionals in our midst, and their fine work is being overlooked in this battle.

Very truly yours,
Catherine J. Fenton
Supt. of Schools

Help Is Never Out Of Reach

"Help is never out of reach" was the theme of the program given by Betty Schantz, the Program Coordinator of United Lifeline, when she was the guest speaker at the March 7 meeting of the Hicksville Kiwanis Club.

United Lifeline is the emergency response system available to people who live alone, new mothers who may need to get help for their infant without leaving the crib, people concerned about their personal safety or security, those with ongoing medical conditions, post operative patients who want to maintain a link to medical assistance, disabled or handicapped individuals.

Ms. Schantz first spoke about the features and advantages of Lifeline, and then showed a series of slides to demonstrate how the individual uses Lifeline by pushing the Personal Help Button (which can be worn as a necklace or wristlet) which activates a pre-programmed Communicator to automatically dial and alert a Response Center where Lifeline personnel begin a series of phone calls to determine the need, and arrange for appropriate help. The slides demonstrated the series of events from the original alert to the required help. Ms. Schantz distributed brochures about the program which is a community outreach program of the United Presbyterian Home at Syosset, Inc. Calling 1-800-345-4571 is available for anyone to call to obtain more information about the system.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO), granted Central General the maximum three-year accreditation following a comprehensive, on-site survey in November.

"During the survey, the JCAHO team of Health Care Professionals reviewed virtually every aspect of Central General's operations, from our Quality Assurance Programs, to the credentials of our staff, to the safety and integrity of our building," said Bornstein. He noted that seeking voluntary accreditation was "proof of an organization wide commitment to provide the highest quality health care."

Mr. Heinz Rosen, P.E., a Certified Quality Engineer with Underwriters Laboratories Inc., located on Walt Whitman Road, Melville, was the guest speaker at the February 28 luncheon meeting of the Hicksville Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Rosen told his audience that the first Underwriters Laboratory's New York office was opened in 1912, and since then they have tested almost countless pieces of electrical equipment, parts, connectors, appliances, etc., for electrical safety, as well as a tremendous assortment of mechanical equipment for certification of "product safety."

To demonstrate the variety of testing they do before the well-known symbol of the U L in a circle (which they refer to as the "Circle of Safety") is affixed to a product, he showed a film which demonstrated, as he said, "Better than words could tell," how the testing is done in the laboratories, and how thoroughly the items are subjected to an assortment of stresses and strains, and if necessary, fire and water, prior to being certified as being safe.

Editor's Notebook

Information gathered is used to distribute the billions of dollars in Federal and State funds that are given to local governments. In addition, planners use census data to determine where to locate hospitals, schools, bus routes and daycare centers, and how to spend funds on housing, school lunch programs, job training and drug treatment programs.

New York also uses the Census to define new boundaries for the seats in its own legislature.

How the Census is Taken

About a week before Census Day, April 1, each household in New York State will receive a questionnaire by mail. Roughly five out of six households receive a short form; others receive a longer form that takes up to 45 minutes to complete. The basic questions of age, race, sex, number of household members and home ownership are expanded in the long form to include questions on ancestry, employment, education, income and other related items.

Once the household member returns the form, the answers are combined with those from other questionnaires to produce a statistical picture of the State and its communities.

If the questionnaire is not returned, a Census worker will attempt to contact the household member by phone or in person.

Many people are concerned about the confidentiality of their responses, an individual's response in fact is completely confidential. Only the compiled statistics are used; the individual's response is protected by law. Census workers take an oath to uphold the confidentiality of the Census.

Another common misconception is that Census responses are made available to other State and Federal agencies, such as the Internal Revenue Service, Immigration and Naturalization officials, the armed services, housing authorities, welfare and the like. That is simply not so, no other agency or authority can see an individual's Census return for 72 years, until the records are turned over to the National Archives. That's the law.

For more information on the Census promotional program, contact the State Data Center at 474-6005.

Park Task Force Submits Ideas

The Hicksville Park District Task Force has submitted to the Oyster Bay Town Board its report containing recommendations for improvement of recreational facilities within the district.

"In the wake of several major park issues in the community, the Hicksville Park District Task Force was formed in October, 1988, at the direction of Town Supervisor Angelo A. Delligatti, to evaluate all existing park land and any properties which could possibly be utilized for recreational needs and to make recommendations on the improvement of existing facilities and the development of new ones." Town Councilman Thomas L. Clark explained. "Sixteen residents who are actively involved in various local business, civic, youth, athletic, senior and religious groups and represent different areas of Hicksville accepted appointments to the committee."

The task force based its recommendations on community input, which was elicited through questionnaires and public meetings. Among the recommendations are the upgrading of maintenance and landscaping at athletic fields and park areas. The report also indicates that residents would like to have a community center to accommodate indoor activities for seniors, youth groups and local community organizations as well as a swimming pool. Further, the report contains suggestions for acquisition of additional park property.

"The members of the Hicksville Park District Task Force have done a commendable job of getting the feel of the community with regard to how they would like to see their park and recreational facilities developed and utilized," Clark stated. "In the coming months, the Town Board will be reviewing the report to study the feasibility of implementing the various proposals."

Clark noted that residents can find copies of the task force report at the Hicksville Public Library.

Oyster Bay Town Supervisor Angelo A. Delligatti, sixth from left, accepts a copy of the final report of the Hicksville Park District Task Force from Tony Previte. The task force was formed in 1988 to make recommendations for improvement of recreational facilities within the Hicksville Park District. Other members of the task force on hand for the presentation were, left to right: Thomas McGovern, John Walker, Norma Goerke, Eleanore Draycott, Phil Caputo, Marc Herbst, Mary Ann Ferrado, Effie Krogmann, David Staton and Michael Kanuck.

Named 'Teenager Of The Month'

Cari Closs of Bethpage High School was honored recently as Teenager of the Month by the Elks Club. A consistently strong student, Cari has distinguished herself in the "caring" programs that she has involved herself. She has been an Honor Society tutor for instance, working with a Junior in high school in Math and a third grader from her neighborhood in basic skills. From November to January she assisted a Kindergarten teacher regularly and in the process learned a great deal about children and their behavior.

In school she played a major role in organizing the Student Civic Association whose goal was to reach out to the community. As its president she helped organize visits to North Shore Hospital's children's wards at Halloween and at Christmas where the students gave out candy and painted faces. You should see her in her clown suit. She led another group to the YOM Center, helped with a clean-up campaign to "Beautify Bethpage" last year, sweeping streets and helping clean a park as well as holding a clothing drive for Vietnam Veterans this year. Her activities began years ago in ninth grade when she visited the Suffolk State Developmental Center with Mr. Murphy, organizing a party and playing with the students.

It is no wonder that her goal is to become a child psychologist and has applied to Geneseo, Albany, Ithaca and Skidmore. Her heart, however, is still set on Franklin and Marshall College in Pennsylvania. She finds that she has to study hard in school focusing on a different subject each year while maintaining her involvement in Student Activities such as Yearbook, SADD, the Political Activities Club and Student Council. This year, as Executive Community Chairperson for the Council, she has also helped conduct Food, Clothing and Toy Drives to donate funds to charity and planned the LipSync contest last week. In the summer she works as a lifeguard at a Day Camp in Hicksville.

Nominated for the Stanley Marcus Humanitarian Award by our local PTA, she described aptly the feeling that goes into helping others. "A big smile, a glow of happiness and a look of gratitude are all part of the immeasurable reward one receives from volunteering his time to help another." - She describes herself well.

GRANDPARENTS - Send in your grandchildren's photos and enter our "World's Most Beautiful Grandchildren" contest. Just send a photo and a brief description of the child (or children) along with your name and address to: Litmor Publications, Beautiful Grandchildren Contest, 81 East Barclay St., Hicksville, N.Y. 11801. We'll do the rest! By the way if you want your photo returned, just write your name and address on the back of the picture and we'll even do that too!

Fork Lane Book Fair

Pictured above are the winners of the National Geography Bee from Fork Lane. They are 5th grader, Ross Finnocchio, 1st Place and 5th grader, Paul Lee, 2nd Place. The contest, which is sponsored by National Geographic, is for students in grades 4-8. Our 1st Place winner, Ross Finnocchio, then completed a multiple choice test booklet and represents our school in the New York State competition.

In February, Fork Lane held their annual PTA sponsored Book Fair. Students had the opportunity to purchase books in many areas of interest.

Some of the Fifth Grade students enjoy the wide selection offered by the Book Fair.

Fire Association Installation

Lamb K Of C 300 Club Dance

More than 250 people were on hand at the annual "300" club dance, held by the Joseph F. Lamb Council No. 5723 Knights of Columbus, Plainview on Saturday evening, March 3, at Our Lady of Mercy auditorium in Hicksville. Plenty of food, drinks, and refreshments were made available to all. The food was served buffet style. (Note: the food drew raves from the many who enjoyed it). Music was provided by Joe Ratto for the many dancing in attendance. All certainly enjoyed a very super evening at this gala affair.

This party/dance is held each year by the Joe Lamb Council for all paid-up members of the "300" club, which is sponsored by the Council. The club, which is limited to 300 is a means of raising needed money for Council charity purposes.

Each member of the "300" club pays $55 a year, or $60 if by installment, to participate in drawings held every month. Each member has their own number, and if that number is drawn, then he or she can win a cash prize. Each month there are drawings for one $50. prize; one $25. prize; three $10. prizes; and four $5. prizes. There are also three special $1,000. drawings, one every 4 months, beginning in July and ending with the final one at the "300" club dance. Each paid-up member is invited to the party with their guest.

The chairman of the "300" club is P.G.K. Sam Repoli, who is also the District Warden for the 16th K of C. The Co-chairman of the club is P.G.K. Dan Paternoster.

There are openings in the "300" club, and it should be noted, that a person does not have to be a member of the K of C to join. Anyone wishing to participate in this club is asked to contact P.G.K. Sam Repoli at 931-8116 or P.G.K. Dan Paternoster at 931-2494 for info.

On a different note - our congratulations to brother Knight Frank Beebe, who was selected as the March "Knight of the Month." Frank, who is charity chairman of the Council, has done a great job in raising much needed monies for the various charities of the Council.

The Lamb Council also wishes "good health" and "get-well-soon" wishes to brother Knight Mario Bignami, who is recuperating at home, after an illness. We hope to see Mario back in the Council real soon.

Transportation Request Deadline

Local Artist's Sculpture Unveiled

Josephine Beloso, a resident of Hicksville, unveils her sculpture of "The Madonna of Redemption" that she carved for the St. Gabriel's Monastery at Clarks Summit, Pennsylvania.

Josephine Beloso, Assistant Professor of Art at St. Joseph's College - Brooklyn Campus, recently unveiled and dedicated her sculpture of "The Madonna of Redemption" for St. Gabriel's Monastery at Clarks Summit, Pennsylvania. The three foot statue, which was carved from a single piece of basswood, is mounted on a darker panel with angular lines to offset the figure of the Madonna. The artist's vision of the sorrowful Mother shows Mary with an expression of serenity and peace.

Ms. Beloso, a resident of Hicksville, is a graduate of Marymount Manhattan College and received her master's degree from the City University of New York. In addition to being Co-Chairperson of the Art Department of St. Joseph's College, she lectures at the Continuing Education Division of Queensborough Community College and has lectured for the Brooklyn Educational and Cultural Alliance as well as The Catholic Fine Arts Society and Marywood College in Scranton, Pa.

Some of Ms. Beloso's other commissioned works include: a seven foot sculpture of St. Benedict for the Church of St. Paul's Abbey in Newton, New Jersey; a nine-foot Holy Family on the facade of The Dillon Child Study Center of St. Joseph's College in Brooklyn; a bronze bust of Dr. Lucio Oquendo placed in a plaza in San Cristobal, Venezuela; and a bronze bust of the French liturgical artist Andre Girard in Paris, France.

Ms. Beloso, who has received several national religious sculpture awards, is associated with the Paul VI Institute for the Arts in Washington, D.C.

For more information about Ms. Beloso or the Art Department at St. Joseph's College, call the College at (718) 636-6800.

Hicksville Tames Bellmore 3-2

By A. Blicker

The Hicksville Minutemen 1977 B Travelling Soccer Team opened their Spring season with a gutsy 3-2 comeback victory over the Bellmore Bullets at the latter's field on Sunday, March 11.

The first half saw the Minutemen control the game yet come out on the short end of a 1-0 score. The second half opened with tremendous offensive pressure by the Bullets, who quickly scored for a 2-0 lead. At this point, the Minutemen were thoroughly down and some lineup moves had to be made to shake them out of their doldrums. Kenny D'Introno, the fastest Minutemen, was moved from right fullback to striker, and Mike Whitman moved to Kenny's position. The move ignited the team, and they thoroughly controlled the game's final 20 minutes.

Brian Rigert set up Anthony Noya for their first tally. Jorge daSilva then set up D'Introno who put in the tying goal. Noya then assisted daSilva for the game winner. Each goal acted as a fuse to further ignite Hicksville into a frenzy of offensive pressure and the defense rose to the occasion each time they were challenged. Besides the aforementioned, the players were: Tracy Koetter in goal, Greg Walunas at sweeper, Tim Dalton at left fullback, Bobby Braun at stopper, Jason Brown at right halfback, Declan Healy at halfback, Andres Turcios at halfback and striker, Danny dePinho at left wing, Bobby Wagner at left wing and Robin Blicker who led the cheering from the sidelines.

Congratulations to my team for showing their true mettle, as well as to my Assistants Tony dePinho and Pete Whitman, as well as Seaman & Eisemann, our sponsor.

Hicksville Over Island Trees

The Hicksville Warriors 1974 Travelling Soccer Team outplayed the Island Trees Phoenix 2-0 at Triangle Field on Sunday, March 11.

The season debut featured a Dom Perillo goal off of a David Lovato feed, and a Brian Harkins goal off of a corner kick. The team, who never stopped hustling and exerting great offensive pressure, are: Forwards and newcomers, Everlin Giron-Pino and Julio Ortiz, Midfielders David Lovato, Jason Kingsley and Dom Perillo, and Defenders Erick Blicker, Kris Friedrich, Brian Harkins, Mike Heyer, Chuck Oliver, and our super goalkeeper, Joe Flanagan.

Congratulations to the Warriors, Coach Pat McHugh, and Assistants Pat Harkins Jr. and John Flanagan. Get well to Junior Tomlinson, Jose Garcia, and Karl Rice.

Hicksville Chosen In Polaroid Program

The art teachers in the Hicksville Schools are participating in two workshops given by consultant Philip Seymour on the use of Polaroid camera products in the classroom. According to William L. Gagnon, Supervisor of Fine Arts, the program is offered to select schools by Polaroid and as a result the Hicksville Schools are the recipient of over eight thousand dollars worth of cameras and processing equipment. The products range from self-focusing cameras to equipment which develops and prints the new Polaroid 35mm color film. In addition to instant developing of 35mm film, the process allows for immediate printing of slides, prints, film strips and overhead transparencies.

Among the innovative uses of this equipment already in use by the fine arts staff members are a portrait project with special education students and the use of cameras to record the progress of a three dimensional project at the middle school. The use of the 35 mm equipment will also be of valuable assistance to students in the high school's portfolio preparation course. These students will be able to develop a slide catalogue of their work without having to send the film out for processing or printing of slides. This equipment will also be used for the introduction of colored photography in the high school's advanced photography course.

by the district's buildings and grounds department.

Gagnon stated that, "We were pleased to be selected for this program and all of us are excited about the possibilities now available to our staff and our students. Polaroid's donation of the 35mm equipment in particular, opens an entire new realm of possibilities for our high school art students. This is but one additional offering which places our art department among the best to be found in any school district."

The project has also allowed for the access of instant photography

In Memorium: The Passing Of 6 Community Leaders

By Richard Evers

The current Hicksville afflictions - the controversies, divisiveness stemming from the debate over school budget deficit and school closings and the public anger created by the emerging plans for redevelopment of the former Mid-Island Plaza - serve to remind us of the importance of community leadership. We see how much of our economic social and physical welfare depend upon devoted, wise and principled leadership, as we reflect on the deaths this past month of six notable community leaders and professionals: Judge, former Councilman Warren Doolittle; Rabbi Joseph Grossman; business leader Irwin Goldman; Assistant Public Library Director Albion Gray; veterans post Commander Harry Christo, and Attorney Joseph Giordano.

It is good to know that the community services and personalities of these men will be recorded in detail in the historical annals of Hicksville. Their commitment to building and sustaining wholesome community life with God-given talents, through difficult and perplexing times, can brace and inspire today's leaders and concerned citizens as we cope with the trials of the 'nineties.

Judge Warren Doolittle

Warren Doolittle was well known in Hicksville, succeeding the late, much-esteemed A. Carl Grunewald as Town Councilman. A longtime resident, former Nassau County Assistant District Attorney, Warren served Oyster Bay Town very ably, and was a Nassau County District Judge at the time of his death.

Hicksville Community Council, in the early 'seventies, Judge Doolittle was long associated with the Council as an officer and trustee. His congeniality, cheerful manner and knowledge of the law were notable attributes at Council meetings, especially when he reported on Town Board matters pertaining to Hicksville. I well recall his support and advice to the Gregory Museum Board in the early years of our conversion of the historic Old Hicksville Courthouse into a fine cultural center.

Rabbi Joseph Grossman

Rabbi Grossman's presence at any and all patriotic and civic occasions that marked Hicksville's life for 33 years is a fond recollection of this historian and veteran's post senior officer. From the year he first led the new Hicksville Jewish Center's congregation in High Holy Day services, in 1958, until the Dedication of the Hicksville Korean and Vietnam Veterans' Monuments, Rabbi Joseph Grossman was present for prayers of invocation and benediction.

Those Hicksvillites who often participate in any commemorative, dedicatory or memorial service will remember Rabbi Grossman for his prayerful insights. Who among Hicksville veterans can forget his powerful exhortations and thoughtful reminders of the sacrifices and meaning of all who served the nation in wartime.

Rabbi Grossman was a Hicksville resident for over 30 years and with his devoted wife, Ruth, raised three children here. Like so many pastoral leaders in the years of Hicksville's great post-WWII development, the rabbi led his flock in worship from a tent in south Hicksville to the glories of services in a new building, forward through years of congregational growth and on, with courage, to face the renewal needs of this secular age. We honor and treasure his memory.

Librarian Albion Gray

Albion Gray's passing, recently, was especially lamented at the Hicksville Public Library. Well might the larger public of this village also have grieved if it had known of his professional significance to Hicksville and of his fine human qualities. As Assistant Director at our library for twenty years, Mr. Gray rendered especially important contributions in the year selection of book purchases. To a large degree, he built the many outstanding collections for which Hicksville's Public Library is so known among the reading, researching public.

Scholarly and modest, Albion was a professional bookman of keen discernment and principled decisiveness as to how a modern library collection must be built, year by year, serving wide interests and trends, yet sustaining the vast storehouse of man's factual and philosophic knowledge through judicious selection of reprints and analysis.

Al (as his friends and family called him) in his encounters with co-workers and attentive and courteous to library patrons' needs, in his capacity as a reference person, Mr. Gray was a singular personality. It was typical of his lifelong love of books that Al worked part-time as a librarian after he retired. In this way, one likes to think, he observed the public's use of his wonderful collection of books.

Irwin Goldman, Merchant and Concerned Citizen

The news that Irwin Goldman had died after a long, bravely-endured illness, brought to mind many memories of this businessman and civic-minded community leader. One recalls that for over 50 years the name Goldman has stood for clothing and outfitting service of the highest order. The prominent family business sign and building on Broadway has lured regular customers from all over our island. Yet, equally an inducement to shopping at "Goldman Brothers" has been the progressive and attentive policies of Irwin and Howard Goldman and the latter's son, Harwin.

It was just one of his peers and the public's recognitions of Irwin's sterling business talents, a year or so ago, when he was chosen by the Hicksville Chamber of Commerce as Hicksville's "Outstanding Small Business Man of the Year." And what a pleasure it was for this writer to be able to nominate him for the Hicksville School's Hall of Fame, one of the first Hicksville High alumni to be chosen as a "role model" by today's students.

But Irwin was more than a successful son, who with his brother, so superbly brought island-wide prominence to his parents' well-established store. He spent much time and effort as well, to lend leadership or support - moral and financial - to civic causes for Hicksville's betterment. A past-president of the Hicksville Chamber of Commerce and an active service club leader, Irwin Goldman strove for the redevelopment of downtown Hicksville, for better parking, and he gave his wise presence to projects by the Chamber for beautification of the community.

Trained at Columbia University for a career in teaching, he was diverted to the field of retail commerce but he never lost his interest in educational matters, keenly following Hicksville school trends. This writer met him at numerous Chamber of Commerce luncheon meetings, over the last decade, and I always enjoyed his non-nonsense acute observations and commentary about our community's problems. Irwin was also interested in the progress of the Hicksville Gregory Museum. He appreciated the museum's efforts to preserve and record Hicksville's historical traditions and story. I recall a wonderful gift of 20 fine reprint-volumes of Long Island historical classics presented to the Gregory Museum historical collection by Irwin and Mrs. Goldman.

The relative stability of much of Hicksville's business community for many years has stemmed from the functioning presence and native-son loyalty of many alumni-businessmen like Irwin Goldman and Howard, his brother, who "hung in there" when the Old Hicksville was traumatized by modern developments. His outgoing, affable manner won Irwin Goldman many friends, and I am happy to have shared keen and warm moments with him.

Commander Harry Christo

Veterans post commander Harry Christo was one of those leaders who flash as a meteor through an organization's life, illuminating, startling with their brilliance and leaving vivid, lasting memories. His unexpected passing, after a two-term commandership of the Charles Wagner Post 421, American Legion, leaves a void in the ranks of Hicksville's oldest veterans post which is not easily filled.

Harry Christo was not a Hicksville resident, but his association with the affairs of the Hicksville American Legion these last six years was devoted, dynamic and momentous. Harry was commander in the crucial year for Post 421 of the negotiations and sale of the Legion's clubhouse. He presided over the months of difficult, transitory movement of the post's meeting site which followed. To his steadfast leadership and strength is due much of the Hicksville American Legion's power of survival and its readiness and capability, for years to come, of strong service for veterans' welfare, assistance to children and youth and varied community contributions. Harry Christo's example motivated and refueled the engines of numerous long-service but weary legionnaire-comrades.

His camaraderie will be sorely missed as well, his gruff voice, his startling jests but ready smile, his zest for a clubhouse poker game or a graceful step on the dance floor with Doris, and his tall, straight soldier's carriage when on parade.

Joseph A. Giordano

Fraternal and Political Leader
The most recent of Hicksville's leaders and notable professionals to leave us, Joseph A. Giordano, was a man who touched so many varied groups with his sterling character and gifts of leadership. An attorney whose professional and avocational lives ranged widely, Joe shared his training, his fraternity, love of democratic procedure and deep spirituality with so many people who mourn his passing on.

He was, indeed, an active life in this Hicksville community and we are thankful to God for lending us for awhile his servant, Joseph Girdano. The founder and first Venerable of the Galileo Gailletti Lodge of the Sons of Italy, Joe was a guiding force for this notable fraternal organization which contributed so much to Hicksville these last fifteen years.

His many friends will recall that this unassuming gentleman was also the senior committeeman of the Republican Party in Hicksville and a longtime trustee of the Ernest Francke Republican Club. One feels that the unpublicized affiliation and guidance of this wise man, skilled in governmental ways, was no small factor over the years, in the strong Republican candidacy and voter turnout in this village.

Hicksville honors the memory of these five community leaders and 'doers' who escaped the earthly bonds so nearly together that the choirs of angels scarcely had time to recess, one fancies. We will miss them, but can find some solace in the appearance, already, of young civic leaders coming forward to help shape Hicksville's future. Each generation has its potential, its vigor and idealism which draws inspiration and strength from the lives and dying off of noble predecessors. And so, it's au revoir, for awhile, to Warren, Joseph, Albion, Irwin and Harry and Joe. God Bless You, Gentlemen and Exemplars.

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

What should be our position towards Castro be now that he is not able to get much help from the USSR?

No Input Consensus On Including Arafat

Most callers to Input had definite answers on the question of the week but there was not much consensus on the question: "Can there be any meaningful talks between Israel and the Palestinians without including Arafat?" Here are some of the answers:

NOT NEEDED THERE

It really would not be necessary for Arafat to be physically present in order for his stand to be taken. I believe that if Arafat is included that it should be long after most of the ideas and terms are worked out mainly to try to get his cooperation. I feel that he would be a blustering obstacle to getting any real settlement quickly. M.G.

DIRECT TALKS

No, the Israelis and anyone who takes part in negotiations should not try to exclude Arafat from the talks. After all he is one of the few leaders of the active opposition that is around. We can't go through some powerless sheik and hope to make an arrangement that sticks. The talks would have to be direct and include Arafat and others who can represent some Arab following. H.K.

NOT MAN OF PEACE

No one has elected Arafat anything and he is not royalty. Why should he be considered so important in trying to bring about peace. He is not a man of peace, but rather a person who spends most of his life in trying to wage war. There is no need to include this terrorist in the talks. He will be of no help. L.V.

CONVERT HIM

The problem with Arafat is that he is a terrorist. However, we have at many times in history converted terrorists into peace lovers. It happened in the Irish Free State and it happened to those who spearheaded the drive for Israel itself. So Arafat may come around thinking that peaceful co-existence would be valuable to him and his followers. I think he must be included in peace talks. N.G.

KNOWN CRIMINALS

What a laugh. Making peace talks with known criminals. We might just as well sit down and negotiate with convicts to bring an end to crime. Arafat's nature is not one of conciliation. He has gone through the motions of renouncing terrorism but it is foolish to believe him. Every day the Arabs are trying to kill Jews. How can people like that sit down and make a treaty that they will live up to? D.F.

INCLUDE EVERYONE

I believe that we must go cautiously and include everyone in the peace talks who is in charge of any group. We do need leaders to make peace and Arafat is one of the few surviving leaders the Arabs have.

MEANINGFUL TALKS

There definitely can be meaningful talks without Arafat. The Arabs who genuinely want an agreement which will permit Israel to survive as well as improve their own lot will be more open minded in their discussion. Arafat will prevent an exchange without fear. Think of all the Arabs who have been murdered because they publicly disagreed. It would become even more so if he were present at a meaningful meeting. H.G.

CHANGE PARTIES

Considering that our State Department has accepted Arafat's word that he now seeks peace with Israel, there appears to be no alternative but that Israel must be willing to sit down with him to negotiate a peace agreement based upon giving up the West Bank and Gaza Strip as a homeland for the Palestinians. Unfortunately, the current Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and his Likud Party are adamantly opposed to any such arrangement. It is therefore up to the Israeli people to vote him out of office so that the Labor Party of Israel, who are responsible for the creation of the State of Israel, can get on with the task of trading land for peace. The Labor Party would also do well if it recalled from retirement one of Israel's great statesmen, Abba Eban, to help in these crucial peace negotiations. C.K.

TOO RIGID

From the various items I have read about Arafat over the years, my feeling has always been that as long as he lives and remains the Chairman of the P.L.O. no meaningful talks could be carried on between Israel and the Palestinians. For one thing, he is basically opposed to recognition of Israel and this has undoubtedly influenced innumerable terrorist attacks throughout the Middle East and elsewhere. One of the most shocking was conducted by Palestine terrorists at the airports in Rome and Vienna involving the El Al airline in which twenty civilians were killed. And, of course, there have been innumerable other instances involving terrorist or hostage situations where the PLO imprint seemed to be evident but without any connection to the PLO or Arafat, its Chairman. There was a time many years ago when Palestine was an independent and well regarded nation and I, being in the international business, exercised and enjoyed normal trading relations with firms in that country. Since then, how things have changed! I remember visiting Lebanon around the 50's and in driving past an Arab refugee camp outside Beyrouth wondering why the Arab nations didn't absorb these people into their national systems. It was almost as though by deliberately ignoring them there was a determination to aggravate the Palestinian problem even more. Now, with more and more Jewish emigrants moving from eastern Europe to Israel, the basic Palestine position is aggravated even further making negotiations with the Palestinians even more difficult assuming that Arafat is a key factor. I believe that his personal objectives are so rigid that meaningful talks simply could not be consummated if he were a key figure. P.G.S.

FISH LOVERS
 If you are a fish lover I would heartily recommend the Executive Restaurant on Mineola Boulevard in Mineola. We were there Friday night and thoroughly enjoyed the ambience as well as the well prepared food. I had fillet of sole which was absolutely delicious as fresh fish can be. One of the members in the party had steak, and the third party had pasta with white clam sauce which she declared was superb. In addition Bob Maddox, who plays the piano on Friday and Saturday added to our pleasure. You will find the restaurant owners make you feel welcome, and the friendly service and affordable prices make for an evening well spent. E.P.

GREAT PLACE
 We have just come back from Gerlich's Restaurant in Glen Head. Now if anyone asks you whether there is still a good bargain in fine food you would just have to say that this restaurant has it. We went there on a Wednesday and had their prime ribs of beef cooked to perfection. In addition they have a fine salad bar. The big treat was at the end of the meal when we found that their Wednesday night prime ribs special only cost $9.95 each including the salad bar. So this has just got to be one of the greatest. H.L.

Q. Is it ever correct to have one's elbows on the table when one is eating? I was brought up to think it is not. J. -

A. It is not correct to put one's elbows on the table when one is eating but it is permissible to rest them on the table between courses.

Q. Is it proper to apply lipstick at the dinner table? W.C.
 A. You don't do it in anyone's home. You may, however, apply lipstick and a dab of powder at a restaurant table. If you are traveling abroad, applying cosmetics at a restaurant table is often considered gauche. If you are with a party of Americans, on the other hand, you may wish to follow your own custom in the matter. It is wise to be discreet.

TOP QUALITY
 For a long time I have wondered how Pappas Restaurant of Sheepshead Bay was. Many of my friends went there and said it was a fine seafood restaurant. So, one night we went there. It has reasonable prices and beautiful surroundings. It is clean and has excellent top quality seafood. The service was excellent. All in all, I was pleased with Pappas and had a wonderful time. Pappas is easy to get to. It is located at 700 Willis Avenue, Williston Park. It's like no other seafood restaurant around. F.M.

A GOOD TRY
I had seen Riddle's advertised in your paper and kept thinking I would like to try it. My only regret was that I didn't go to this restaurant sooner. It is on Old Country Road in Westbury. We had been shopping in the area and decided to have our dinner there. To our surprise, we had two great dinners for $14.95. The place was lively and had live music, which we thoroughly enjoyed.
We noted that brunch is served both on Saturday and Sunday, from noon to three. Since we enjoyed our dinner so much, brunch at Riddle's is next on our agenda. E.H.

GOOD LUNCH
Our party of four met at the Orchid Restaurant for lunch last week and thoroughly enjoyed it. We thought the ambience was delightful and the food was great. The cuisine is Szechuan, Hunan and Cantonese. One word of warning: if you order a dish that has an asterisk, it means that the sauce is hot--so if you wish something a bit milder, please tell the waiter.
Incidentally, the service was most attentive. We were so impressed with our luncheon that we started thinking about our holiday office party and thought it might be a great choice and we would book early. M.M.

Q. I have noticed that tips are said to range from 15 to 20 percent of a bill in a restaurant. When you calculate this, do you figure in the sales tax? R.E.

A. No you do not generally figure the sales tax in the tip but a great many people now are doubling the sales tax to quickly arrive at the amount of the tip. With the new increased fraction the tip will then closely approximate a 15 percent gratuity.

Q. My husband buries his head in the newspaper at breakfast and doesn't say a word to me throughout. He just hands me the second section. Shouldn't a husband be expected to carry on some conversation with his wife at breakfast. R.T.

A. No one should be expected to carry on a conversation at breakfast. Many people don't really wake up until later in the day. Enjoy that second section. This is not a new rule, by the way; it has always been so.

ORIGINALITY. INSPIRATION

The other night we decided to go to a new restaurant and we hit upon the ad for the restaurant with the novel name. Your Place Or Mine in Williston Park. While we had never been there before it appears that many other people had heard of it before us. The small restaurant was filled to overflowing. But we were treated courteously and well.

The food at this restaurant is exceptionally good and prepared in a different modern style. It has wonderful vegetables and the entree of beef that we had was cooked with originality and inspiration. In other words this is not just an ordinary restaurant, we think it is the best. Your Place Or Mine is located in Williston Park on Hillside Ave. M.J.

COURTYARD LUNCH BIZ IS GEE WHIZ BIZ!

I enjoyed a super and most modestly priced Black Forest Grill Friday luncheon at Garden City East's elegant The Courtyard restaurant and catering complex. My superb sandwich was positively packed with hot pastrami, bacon and Swiss cheese, between two terrific slices of freshly baked pumpernickel bread. It was served with natural cut French fries, cole slaw, lettuce and tomato and pickle. Believe me, I couldn't have eaten another thing. I really feel that I got a great buy for $5.95.

I checked with my waitress and she told me that all of The Courtyard's sandwiches and burgers include French fries, cole slaw, lettuce and tomato and pickle. She also informed me that luncheons are served from 11:30 a.m., Tuesday through Saturday while Sunday brunch is served from 11:30 to 4 p.m.

"We don't make sandwiches, we build them!" is printed on their luncheon menu. It's a promise that they most certainly keep. J.DeG.C.

Q. If someone asks you to dinner, shouldn't he make the reservations, tell you where to come, and pay for the meal?
A. Yes. The person who does the asking takes the responsibility for making the arrangements and for paying, unless it is clearly understood before hand that it is "dutch"

The Executive Restaurant on Mineola Blvd. in Mineola was our choice for dinner Friday night, and what a delightful choice! Music by Joe London at the piano set the mood for a most delectable dinner. The filet of flounder could not have been better. I find for truly fresh seafood you cannot do better than The Executive for quality. My partner had the Veal with mushrooms in a Marsala wine sauce which was done to perfection. A bottle of white wine with dinner, fresh vegetables, salad and baked potato with coffee espresso for a finale made for a superb dinner.

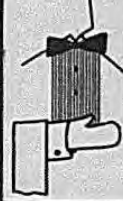

Incidentally, we always enjoy going to this restaurant as the owner and his son extend a warm and cordial welcome to each guest. The service was attentive and I am confident your readers will want to try this restaurant.

SPECIALTIES

The LaMarmite in Williston Park is one of the top restaurants on Long Island according to the ad you hate. We will go along with that. We have been going to this restaurant on and off for some time. It is something special and spoils you for the many other "run of the mill" places.

One thing nice about the LaMarmite is that it has several specialties of the house each day and they are genuine specialties. We have been disappointed elsewhere with the specials because they often turn out to be items that were made of leftovers. At LaMarmite, we have to say that the specials are really "special."

Another fine point about LaMarmite is that you are given attentive service from the beginning with the valet car parking to the end of the meal. This is really a first rate restaurant. G.E.

Luna ITALIAN RESTAURANT

"Recommended by Peter Glonnottl, Newsday"
As seen in the Daily News
Walter Kaner's Column
OPENED TWO YEARS
ago, Luna is a warm, cozy, intimate 65-seat dining room with a pleasant, attractive setting.

Launched by the Tudisco family in Elmsford, the restaurant served several generations of families. In 1987, Tudisco's oldest son, Vincent, and his son-in-law, Stephen DeFlorio, opened the new Luna at the present location.

Pleasant in setting, the dining room features peach and light-tinted gray walls. Mirrors and colorful pictures adorn the walls. Rust-colored chairs add splashes of color. Fresh flowers on each table provide more color.

Chef Vincent Tudisco and family dish out a tasty array of appealing Italian specialties, with meats and fish of fresh quality and deliciously prepared pastas. The service staff is friendly, attentive and courteous.

DELIGHTFUL DINING
My wife and I spotted Steve's Restaurant in West Hempstead's Cherry Valley Shopping Center on a sunny Sunday afternoon and, being in an adventurous mood, decided to give it a try. We're very glad that we did.

We were most graciously greeted by proprietor Steve Gouvis, who we discovered later, was born and raised in the city of Sparta in Southern Greece, and came to these United States, at the age of 11, in 1963, with parents Sophia and Peter.

I raved over my Norwegian salmon filet, scampi style, that was broiled to perfection, and served with luscious linguini and a great Greek salad for a most modest $12.95.

My wife enthused over her eggplant parmigiana, served with fresh vegetables for an unbelievable $6.95. Her serving was so generous, that she couldn't complete it and requested that the rest of it be wrapped so that she could take it home.

Our dinner was most commendably complimented with a $7.95 full carafe of delicious Delicato wine from California's Banfi Vineyards.

We grand finalized our most memorable meal with two delectable dishes of ice cream. Especially recommended is Steve's super homemade rice pudding.

Rest assured, we'll be back in the very near future. J.DeG.C.

WORTH IT
My wife and I recently had dinner at BB Nolan's Restaurant on Jericho Turnpike. We both enjoyed veal dishes--veal piccata for her, and veal marsala for me. The meat was so tender we literally cut it with our forks. We both had french fries, which were especially crisp and delicious, and string beans, also perfectly cooked.

Accompanying the main courses were tossed green salads served with a creamy dressing we liked very much.

Besides the excellent food, the service was also good. The staff made us feel at home.

It was a truly delightful evening and, in the words of General MacArthur, "We shall return!" T.P.O.

Some alternatives to a sleep sofa

Q. I work at home in what is just an efficiency apartment with a sleeping alcove and a closet kitchen.

My drawing board must share my living room as does my sister when she comes to town (at least once a month).

Is there any alternative to a sleep sofa? — J.E.

A. Several. There are beds that fold up into armoires, and beds that pop out of chairs, as well as sofas.

But since you also need sitting space between visits, consider having a banquette built in along one wall. Not only will it conserve your floor space, it could pamper your budget, too — and never tell.

A handsome case in point is the carpet-covered banquette designer John Stedila built into his own New York apartment (where space is always at a premium). He rolled Vanguard acrylic carpeting (by Stark Carpet Corp.) over the floor, up the banquette frame, and over built-in side tables for a seamless contemporary look that is as practical as it is comfortable.

The carpet is easy to keep, provides splendid sound insulation, and makes the room look and feel furnished when there is little other furniture.

Look closely and you will see that the chair is another custom-built creation, also with carpet wrapping its homemade base.

You should gain plenty of space for your drawing board, and your sister will love sleeping on this carpet.

Q. My sister-in-law is a great cook but I hate to be invited for dinner: she has a bright overhead light in her dining room. It's not even a chandelier. And she'd never think of using candles. The light is so bright and harsh, it spoils my appetite.

My husband says I should just shut up and eat. Am I just too sensitive or what? — B.N.N.

A. We eat with our eyes first, as any smart restaurateur knows. Light has dramatic effects on both food and mood.

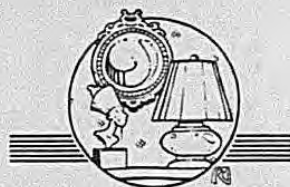

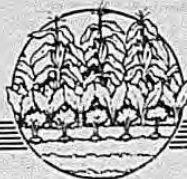

Check it out: fast-food establishments always have bright, glaring lighting — usually fluorescent. They want you to get in and out in a hurry, and harsh lighting helps hurry customers along. The lower the light in a restaurant, the longer you linger because it makes you feel cozy and mellow.

The next time you're invited to your sister-in-law's for dinner, take a half dozen inexpensive candlesticks and the candles to go in them. Tell her you've had a terrible day, and candlelight helps you relax. It does. You will. And she might get the idea.

Some basic rules
for pruningGENERAL AIMS
AND PROCEDURES

The pruning of any plant is aimed at keeping the plant healthy, attractively shaped, uncrowded and productive of good new growth, as well as flowers and/or fruit. With these aims in mind, the first step is to remove dead, broken or diseased growth.

The next thing is to thin crowded growth, giving special attention to the center of the shrub or tree. Remove at its point of origin growth that is heading into the center of the plant. And prune away the weaker of two crossing or closely parallel shoots. Aim for a gracefully open-centered look for optimum air circulation and penetration of sunlight to all parts of the plant.

The thinning stage of pruning for established shrubs that grow new stems from ground level should include the yearly removal right to the ground of a few of the oldest stems. This prevents the plant from becoming an impossibly overgrown thicket as it maintains youth and vigor in the shrub, as well. Some of the commonly grown shrubs that sprout from the ground are spirea, mock orange, lilac, forsythia, kerria, flowering quince.

Raspberries and cane fruits such as the blackberries and tayberry are kept thinned of old growth simply by removing the canes that have fruited once harvesting the berries is complete. Any needed further thinning can be done in late winter or early spring before the canes leaf out.

The final stage of pruning is to shorten main branches and side shoots for the sake of shaping the plant and fostering sturdy growth. Errant shoots that diminish the general look to an ornamental can be cut back to an outward-facing growth bud.

Fruit trees will benefit by a shortening of the new growth on main branches. Watch for the beginning of the new, shiny wood that signifies last year's growth, and remove about a third of it.

If the branch is drooping, make the cut immediately beyond a growth bud on the upper portion of the branch. If the branch is headed upward, make the cut immediately above a bud on the under surface of the branch.

The idea is to aim the new growth as close as possible to the horizontal — the most fruitful position for the branches. Shorten side shoots as well. Watch for fat clusters of leaf and flower buds, and cut back to the second growth bud beyond them.

TIMING

It's traditional to prune most woody plants after the worst of winter is over and while the plants are still dormant — that is, before they begin to swell their growth buds and leaf out.

There are advantages to pruning at this time. While the plants are bare it's easy to assess their branching pattern for needed thinning and shaping. It's certainly the most convenient time for the removal of any large branches.

But trees pruned hard during the dormant season will tend to put out mad flushes of growth in the spring. And while an energetic spurt of growth may be fine for a tree that is puny and in need of stimulation, for the average tree, heavy pruning at this time will just bring on masses of more work for the pruner.

Heavy-handed dormant pruning often produces unwanted types of growth, too, such as long, whippy watersprouts that head straight for the sky.

Pruning in the summer has the opposite effect. It works to restrict plant size. So if you wish to hold a tree to a modestly manageable size for its type, and reduce the need for massive amounts of future pruning too, try to balance your pruning between late winter/early spring, and early summer.

Wait until after they have flowered to shape spring-blooming shrubs such as forsythia, kerria, flowering quince, mock orange and lilac. Remove the spent flowers at this time, too. Major thinning and the removal of old stems can be done in late winter.

Open season on asparagus

March, April, May and June are the months when you will find fresh asparagus at its best, in terms of quality and price, so if you love this vegetable as much as I do, now is the time to start indulging.

When shopping for fresh asparagus, choose stalks that are straight, slender and firm with only about an inch of woody base. Stalks should be green all the way to the base, and tips should be compact and closed. Remove scales if sandy or tough.

Use asparagus quickly after purchase, as it is very perishable. It's expensive too — even in season — and you'll kick yourself if you let it go limp.

Do not wash before refrigerating. Store in plastic bags in the vegetable drawer of your fridge with stalk ends wrapped in damp paper towels. They will keep for two to three days.

If necessary, refresh slightly wilted asparagus by cutting stalk ends on a slight diagonal with a sharp paring knife, then setting them in a glass of cold water. Use as soon as possible.

To microwave one pound of fresh asparagus, rinse well in cold water to remove sand. Trim off tough white ends and use vegetable peeler to peel tough fibrous outer layer away from lower ends of stalks, if necessary.

Arrange stalks in a 10x6x2-inch microwave-safe baking dish, with tips pointing toward center of dish. Sprinkle with ¼ cup water and cover tightly with microwave-safe plastic wrap. Microwave on HIGH setting four minutes. Rearrange asparagus to move stalks at inside of dish toward outside. Cover and microwave one to three minutes longer.

MICRO-TIP OF THE WEEK

One of the best things about microwaving is that you can cook vegetables in the same utensil they are to be served in. Saves dishwashing time, while microwaved veggies retain bright color and vitamins.

HAM AND ASPARAGUS LUNCHEON BAKE

- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- ¼ cup minced onion
- 1 (10-ounce) package frozen asparagus cuts
- 1½ cups cooked ham, cut into bite-size chunks
- ½ cup shredded mild cheddar cheese
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¼ teaspoon each salt and dry mustard
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup milk
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
- Paprika

6 slices bread, or 3 English muffins, halved, and conventionally toasted

Yields 4 servings.

Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 12 to 17 minutes (plus 3 minutes standing time).

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power); MEDIUM-HIGH (70 percent power).

Place 1 tablespoon butter or margarine and onion in 8x8-inch microwave-safe baking dish. Microwave about 1 minute on HIGH setting, to melt butter and partially cook onion. Spread evenly over bottom of pan and set aside.

Remove asparagus from package and place in 1-quart microwave-safe baking dish. Microwave on HIGH setting 3 to 5 minutes, rearranging every minute, until defrosted. Drain well, then arrange asparagus to evenly cover onions in bottom of dish. Sprinkle with cubed ham and shredded cheese. Set aside.

Place the 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in 4-cup glass measure. Microwave about 1 minute, or until melted. Blend in flour, salt, mustard and pepper, then slowly blend in milk. Microwave on MEDIUM-HIGH setting 4 to 5 minutes, or until mixture is thickened, stirring every minute.

Pour sauce evenly over ham mixture, then arrange sliced hard-cooked eggs over top. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Cover loosely with plastic wrap (venting 1 corner) and microwave on MEDIUM-HIGH setting 3 to 5 minutes longer, or until heated through, rotating dish ¼ turn every 2 minutes. Let stand, covered, 3 minutes before serving.

Serve over toast points or toasted English muffin halves.

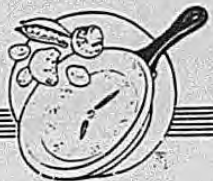

Asparagus should be tender but still bright green. Drain well and serve immediately. One pound will serve three to four.

Thicker stalks will take slightly longer to cook than tender tips. To microwave evenly, always position tips toward center of dish, with stalks toward outside. Or cut in half, microwaving stalks first, then adding tips a minute or so later, since they need less cooking time.

A member of the lily family, this springtime favorite is rich in vitamins A and C, and provides some B vitamins and iron, too. If you end up with leftover cooked asparagus (which isn't likely), it's excellent served chilled with a mayonnaise dip, or added to a green salad.

Back on the bean wagon

Suddenly, dried beans are chic! They have overcome their stodgy, second-class status to be touted by the food magazines and trend-setting prognosticators as "the uppy bean," "the hot new food of the '90s."

Innovative chefs are experimenting with beans from all corners of the earth — red beans, yellow and green lentils, black beans, black-eyed peas, white beans, chick-peas — searching for new ways of combining them with other ingredients. We think that some of the tastiest treatments are the classic ones.

Nutritionally speaking, beans are an excellent, but incomplete, source of protein. Cultures from Mexico to India and from Italy to Taipei have learned over the millennia that when beans are combined with protein-rich grains such as rice or pasta, the missing amino acids are supplied, forming a protein as perfect as meat.

Now, since much of the world has been eating beans as a staple diet for 10, these many centuries, some pretty interesting ways of cooking the tiny legumes have been devised.

A green salad and a crusty loaf of Italian bread are all you need to make a deeply satisfying supper.

HEARTY PASTA AND BEAN SOUP

- ½ cup olive oil
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 3 carrots, peeled and thinly sliced
- 1½ cups thinly sliced celery
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 (1 pound) cans kidney beans with liquid
- 1 (1 pound) can tomatoes with juice
- 2 cups beef stock
- 5 cups water
- 1 cup (3 ounces) tubetti or ditalini (tubular pasta about ½-inch long)
- 1 teaspoon dried rosemary
- ½ teaspoon dried marjoram
- ¼ teaspoon salt, or to taste
- ¼ teaspoon pepper, or to taste
- ½ cup chopped parsley
- Grated Parmesan cheese

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Preparation and cooking time: 35 minutes.

Heat olive oil in large soup pot. Add onions, carrots, celery and garlic, and cook over low heat for 10 minutes until softened.

Add beans and tomatoes, breaking up tomatoes with spoon. Add beef broth and water and bring to boil over high heat. Add pasta and rosemary, marjoram, salt and pepper. Lower heat and cook gently, partially covered, for 15 to 20 minutes, until pasta is cooked. Stir in parsley. Taste for seasonings, adding more salt and pepper, if needed. (Keep in mind that the Parmesan cheese will add some saltiness, so do not oversalt.)

Ladle into bowls and sprinkle each serving with generous spoonful of Parmesan cheese.

CUBAN BLACK BEANS AND YELLOW RICE

Yellow Rice:

- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- ¼ teaspoon saffron
- 1 cup raw, long-grain rice
- 2 cups chicken stock
- ½ cup frozen green peas
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- Black Beans and Garnish:
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 green pepper, finely chopped
- 1 clove garlic, chopped
- 2 (1-pound) cans black beans, drained
- ½ teaspoon salt, or to taste
- ¼ teaspoon sugar
- 1 cup water
- 2 teaspoons cider vinegar, plus additional to pass at the table
- ¾ teaspoon Tabasco, or to taste
- 1 (3½-ounce) jar roasted red peppers, cut in thin strips

Yields 4 servings.

Preparation and cooking time: 35 minutes.

For rice, heat oil in medium saucepan. Add onion and cook over medium heat for 2 minutes. Add garlic, saffron and rice and cook, stirring, for 2 minutes. Add chicken stock, bring to simmer, cover and cook over low heat for 17 minutes. Stir in peas and black pepper and cook for another 3 minutes.

While rice is cooking, make beans. Heat oil in medium saucepan. Add chopped green pepper and garlic and cook for 2 minutes over medium heat. Add beans, salt, sugar and water. Simmer, partially covered, for 15 minutes. Stir in vinegar and Tabasco. Beans should remain somewhat soupy. If too thick, add additional liquid. If too thin, uncover and simmer for a few minutes to thicken. Taste for seasoning, adding additional salt and Tabasco, to taste.

Mexican cooking with class

How can such a diminutive, down-to-earth person with that room-brightening smile make people shake in their boots?

That's Diana Kennedy for you. Kennedy, heavyweight author of international fame, recently brought her expertise to Southern California to teach some master cooking classes for the first time in four years. And she's the boss, make no mistake about that.

Kitchen assistants rush to do her bidding, business owners and executive chefs snap to attention when she speaks, and her students treat her like a guru.

Kennedy recently taught two classes in the private kitchen at John Culbertson Winery in Temecula, Calif. As usual, when Kennedy comes to the United States to teach, the classes were sold out.

The lessons were based on her fifth cookbook, "The Art of Mexican Cooking."

"If these tamales are done you must rush to the table so you can eat them now," Kennedy tells her audience.

Class members lean in close in rapt attention as Kennedy unfolds the banana leaf that cups the open-face tamale.

"Done," she proclaims, and students rush to the table just as Kennedy has instructed. It's always that way in a Kennedy class. Students (or anyone else, for that matter), who talk to each other while Kennedy is talking are quickly admonished in front of others to keep quiet. She is, any student learns, a stickler for details. But the care she takes with her multiflavored dishes is what brings her fans back for more.

A native of England, she was introduced to Mexican cuisine as the wife of New York Times reporter Paul Kennedy, who took her to Mexico City when he was named Times correspondent in Mexico.

"I saw wonderful markets there and just got on with it," says Kennedy, who began a love affair with the cuisine of that country that continues today.

The Kennedy home was an international crossroads where guests were always sure of one of Diana's now-famous meals. The more she cooked, the more she liked it and the more she learned. To ferret out recipes and cooking techniques, she traveled to all corners of Mexico to watch native cooks. She copied old, traditional family recipes that had been not been exposed to the rest of the food world before.

After the death of her husband in 1967, Kennedy busied herself with a Mexican cooking school in

New York City. It was now-retired New York Times food editor Craig Claiborne who urged Kennedy to assemble her knowledge of Mexican cuisine into a book. Her first was published in 1972; "The Art of Mexican Cooking" was published by Bantam in the fall of 1989.

"Now I know Mexican cuisine better than anyone," Kennedy says.

It's obvious her students agree. Kennedy's recipes follow.

This sauce comes from the northern part of Michoacan, which borders on Jalisco. It is earthy and delicious served on top of boiled white rice with crumbled cotija cheese. It keeps well and also can be frozen.

MICHOACAN PASILLA SAUCE

- 3 pasilla chilies
- 2 tablespoons safflower oil
- 2 small tomatillos, husks removed, rinsed
- 2 garlic cloves, unpeeled
- ¼ cup water
- ¼ small white onion, finely chopped
- ¼ teaspoon salt, or to taste

Remove stalks, if any, from dried chilies and discard. Wipe chilies with damp cloth to remove dust, etc. Heat oil in frying pan and gently fry chilies, without burning, turning them around from time to time until they are just firm to touch, about 5 minutes.

Remove chilies with slotted spoon and drain on paper towel. In same oil, fry tomatillos and garlic until lightly browned and soft inside — about 5 minutes. Put water into blender jar and add tomatillos, peeled garlic and crumbled, fried chilies with their seeds and veins. Blend for a few seconds to a textured puree.

Heat same oil in pan, add onion and fry gently until translucent, without browning; about 1 minute. Add blended ingredients and salt and fry, stirring from time to time and scraping bottom of pan, until sauce has reduced and thickened a little and is well seasoned; about 5 minutes.

This is a simple but surprisingly delicious Yucatecan way of preparing broiled chicken or turkey. As with many other similar dishes, it does add something special to the flavor to have a charcoal or wood grill at hand, but an ordinary broiler will do. Kennedy says it is very good cold.

CHICKEN IN RED SAUCE

- 6 rounded tablespoons recado rojo (recipe follows)
- 5 garlic cloves, peeled and crushed
- Sea salt to taste
- 4 tablespoons Seville orange juice, or mild vinegar, approximately
- 1 (3-pound) chicken, cut into serving pieces
- 4 whole gueros or fresno chilies or banana peppers, charred
- 3 small heads of garlic, charred and cloves separated but not peeled
- 1 tablespoon dried oregano, Yucatecan if possible, lightly toasted
- 1 cup lightly pickled onions (recipe follows)
- 3 to 4 tablespoons lard or safflower oil

Blend recado rojo, crushed garlic, salt and bitter orange juice together to a smooth paste. Spread chicken pieces with a thin layer of paste and set rest aside.

Put chicken pieces, fresh chilies, whole garlic cloves and oregano into a pan, barely cover with water, add a little salt and bring to a simmer. Continue simmering chicken until almost tender but still a little underdone — about 20 minutes. Remove from broth. Add onions to broth, bring to simmer, remove from heat and set aside but keep hot.

Mix rest of recado rojo mixture with lard and set aside while you heat grill or broiler. (If you prefer not to use lard, then just spread with paste and brush on oil just before grilling.)

Grill chicken pieces, turning from time to time, for about 5 minutes on each side or until cooked through and well browned. Serve in soup bowls with some of hot broth and onions on top.

RECADO ROJO (Achlote Paste)

- 4 rounded tablespoons achilote seeds
- 1 teaspoon crushed dried oregano, Yucatecan if possible
- 1 teaspoon cumin seeds
- ¼ teaspoon mild peppercorns
- 12 whole allspice
- Approximately 3 tablespoons water

Mix spices together and grind, ¼ of quantity at a time — or as much as your electric grinder can accommodate efficiently — as finely as possible. Sift through fine strainer and grind residue once again. Stir water in gradually and mix well to stiff paste.

These onion rings are very good scattered over a salad or on top of tostadas.

LIGHTLY PICKLED ONIONS

- 1 pound onions, trimmed, peeled and thinly sliced
- ¼ cup fresh lime juice
- 1½ teaspoons salt

Put all ingredients in glass or porcelain bowl, mix well, and set aside to macerate for about 2 hours before using. They will keep for several weeks in a refrigerator.

This soup has a close resemblance to tortilla soup.

TARASCAN SOUP

- ½ cup water
- 6 ounces (about 1 medium) tomato, roughly chopped, unpeeled
- 1 small sliced white onion
- 1 garlic clove, peeled and roughly chopped
- 1 small ancho chili, cleaned of veins and soaked in hot water for 10 minutes
- 1 corn tortilla
- 1 tablespoon safflower oil
- 5 cups chicken broth
- 1 large leafy stem of epazote (optional)
- ¼ teaspoon dried oregano, Mexican if possible
- Salt to taste
- 6 corn tortillas, cut into narrow strips and fried crisp (about one-third inch by 2 inches)
- 3 ancho chilies, cleaned of seeds and veins, flattened out, torn into thin strips and fried crisp
- 6 tablespoons finely grated queso anejo or Romano cheese

Put water into blender jar and add tomato, onion, garlic, dried ancho chili and tortilla. Blend to fairly smooth puree.

Heat oil in soup pot, add puree and fry over fairly high heat for about 8 minutes. Add chicken broth, optional epazote and oregano, cook over medium heat until well seasoned; about 10 minutes. Salt to taste.

To serve: Put some of fried tortilla pieces into each cup, pour soup over them and top with pieces of fried ancho chili and cheese. Serve immediately.

Salsas are hot. These coarse-textured, oft spicy relishes are making appearances in trend-setting restaurants across the country. And those old familiar ingredients — tomatoes, chilies and onions — are often being augmented or replaced by such far-out additions as papaya, pineapple, black beans and mangoes.

To make your own salsas — traditional or nouveau — you need a sharp knife, an assemblage of fresh ingredients and a healthy imagination. Just about any combination of fruits and vegetables, seasonings, citrus juices or vinegar may be used to create signature salsas.

Fresh salsas, those that have not been heated, are best when consumed immediately. Those that have been cooked may be refrigerated for a few days.

The following recipes may be varied according to personal taste, adding a chili here, some citrus juice or rice vinegar there.

CILANTRO SALSA

- 1 bunch cilantro, minced
- ¼ cup onion, minced
- 2 jalapenos, veins and seeds removed, minced
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons wine vinegar
- 3 to 4 tablespoons olive oil

Yields 1½ cups.
Combine all above ingredients and allow to marinate for several hours.

CUCUMBER SALSA

6 peeled pickling cucumbers or 2 regular cucumbers,
peeled and seeded, diced
1 small tomato, seeds removed, diced
¼ small red onion, diced
2 to 3 diced jalapenos
1½ teaspoons salt
½ cup orange juice
½ cup lime juice

¼ cup grapefruit juice

Yields about 2½ cups.
Combine all ingredients. This salsa should be salty and spicy.
Good with grilled fish or chicken.

PAPAYA SALSA

2 cups firm papaya (about 1
Hawaiian papaya)
¼ cup red bell pepper, diced
1 serrano or jalapeno chili, minced
¼ cup red onion, diced
¼ teaspoon dried red pepper, crushed

Juice from 1 lime
2 tablespoons cilantro,
snipped

Yields about 3¼ cups.

Once you have diced all fruit and vegetables, very gently stir with spices and lime juice. This salsa goes best with grilled fish and keeps well for a day.

Yankee ways with vegetables

One of the best-loved cookbooks in my large collection is Marjorie Moser's "Good Maine Food." Originally published in 1939 (and now available in a newly reprinted edition), this is a no-nonsense collection of good home cooking intended to satisfy hearty appetites and please a down-home palate.

In the chapter on vegetables — known affectionately in old-time Yankee country as "garden sass" — Moser begins with a page of advice from Maine kitchens.

• Young turnips should be boiled with skins on, and peeled after cooking.

• Never cover dandelion greens, spinach, green peas, cauliflower, cabbage or brussels sprouts when cooking.

• To remove odor from frying pan after frying onions, pour a little vinegar in the pan and let it heat.

• When boiling sweet corn, add a tablespoon of vinegar. This makes it whiter and more tender.

Moser follows this kitchen wisdom with a discourse on fiddleheads, the young, green, curled-up frond that grows wild in Maine and is considered a regional delicacy. One variety of fiddleheads has "a delicate and pleasing flavor, like a faint blend of asparagus and mushrooms," explains Moser.

Surely the most famous vegetable dish of New England is baked beans. Not terribly well-suited to today's fast-paced lifestyles, the dish requires overnight bean soaking and slow oven baking for an entire day.

The cook must be at the ready during the entire baking process for, as Moser explains: "The most important trick in bean baking is to keep the water level constant by adding only a little boiling water, and often. If the water is allowed to boil far down, so that a lot must be poured in, the beans will be greasy."

The grease reference is to the salt pork traditionally used in Yankee baked beans. I have created a flavorful vegetarian version quickly prepared in the pressure cooker (see recipe below) in a half hour.

Just as times have changed, so have New England recipes. This plain fact is evidenced from the recently published "Jasper White's Cooking From New England" (Harper & Row; $27.95). The well-known chef of Jasper's in Boston has taken regional ingredients and brought to them a sophisticated imagination. The results are exciting, as you can see for yourself in the recipes below, adapted from Jasper White's new cookbook.

The old-fashioned way to glaze root vegetables was to simmer them with water, butter and sugar, explains White. As the water boiled away, a glaze of butter and sugar was formed, which coated the vegetables. More often than not, the vegetables, though sweet, were overcooked.

A more modern approach is to blanch the vegetables in boiling salted water until done, shock them (in cold water) and then slowly reheat them with butter and a sweetener.

JASPER WHITE'S MAPLE-GLAZED TURNIPS

2 pounds purple-top turnips
Salt
4 tablespoons unsalted butter
1½ tablespoons maple sugar
2 teaspoons chopped fresh parsley

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Peel thick skin off turnips. Cut into ½-inch slices. Cut slices into ¼-inch-wide strips resembling french fries. Cook turnips in large pot of boiling salted water until tender, but not too soft, about 8 minutes. Drain and shock under cold running water.

Mix butter and maple sugar with 1 tablespoon water (or use 2 tablespoons undiluted maple syrup) in a large saute pan on medium-low heat. Add blanched turnips and cook slowly until glaze forms on them. Pan should be almost dry and turnips very hot by the time they are finished. Remove from heat, add chopped parsley, toss and serve at once.

You may substitute frozen, thawed corn if fresh corn is not available.

JASPER'S FRESH CORN CAKES

6 ears fresh corn, shucked
(about 3 cups)
½ medium onion, roughly chopped (½ to ¾ cup)
3 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 small red bell pepper,
seeded and cut in small
(¼-inch) dice (½ cup)
1 small green bell pepper,
seeded and cut in small
(¼-inch) dice (½ cup)
3 eggs
1 cup milk
¾ cup yellow cornmeal
1½ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon freshly ground
black pepper
2 tablespoons chopped
chives (or substitute scallion greens)
Oil or butter for frying

Yields 24 (2-inch) pancakes.

Remove any silk from shucked corn. Cut kernels off cobs. Scrape down cobs to extract sweet milk from corn. Combine corn with its milk and chopped onion. Pass mixture through medium blade of grinder or make coarse puree in food processor.

Heat butter in large skillet and saute peppers briefly. (It may seem like too much butter, but it is needed for batter.)

Mix eggs and milk in large mixing bowl. Add cornmeal, flour, salt and pepper and mix until smooth. Stir in corn mixture, peppers and chives.

Heat non-stick or well-seasoned cast-iron pan or griddle on medium to low heat until quite hot. (Allow it to heat for at least 5 minutes before adding batter.) Lightly grease pan and fry pancakes, a few at a time, until golden on both sides. Transfer to sheet pan in warm oven until ready to serve.

QUICK STOVE-TOP BOSTON 'BAKED' BEANS

1½ cups dried navy beans, picked over and rinsed
2 bay leaves
1½ quarts (6 cups) water
2 tablespoons oil, divided
1 large onion, coarsely
chopped
2 large cloves garlic, minced
¼ cup molasses
¼ cup Dijon mustard
½ cup tomato paste
4 whole cloves
1 (3-inch) stick cinnamon, broken in two

1 tablespoon cider vinegar
½ teaspoon salt, or to taste

Yields 6 servings.

Place beans, bay leaves, water and 1 tablespoon oil in 6-quart or larger pressure cooker. Lock lid in place and over high heat bring to high pressure. Adjust heat to maintain high pressure and cook for 15 minutes. Reduce pressure by placing cooker under cold running water. Remove lid, tilting it away from you to allow any excess steam to escape. Drain beans, reserving liquid. Return beans and 2 cups liquid to cooker. Discard any remaining liquid.

Heat remaining tablespoon oil in skillet. Saute onions and garlic until onions begin to brown around edges, about 3 to 4 minutes. Stir browned onions, molasses, mustard, tomato paste, cloves and cinnamon into beans.

Lock lid in place and, over high heat, return to high pressure. Adjust heat to maintain high pressure and cook for an additional 10 minutes. Reduce pressure by placing cooker under cold running water. Remove lid, tilting away from you to allow any excess steam to escape.

If beans are not cooked enough, add water if needed, lock lid back in place and return to high pressure for a few more minutes.

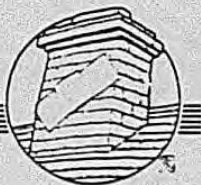

Before serving, remove cloves, bay leaves and cinnamon sticks. Drain off most of liquid, if desired, before stirring in vinegar and salt to taste.

Note: If you don't own a pressure cooker, soak beans overnight. Rinse and drain. In fresh water to cover, cook beans in covered pot until fairly tender, about 1 hour. Drain off all but ¼ cup of cooking liquid. Stir in remaining ingredients and simmer, covered, until beans are very tender and well-flavored, about 45 additional minutes.

Leather-top table is badly marked

Q: Your column has been most helpful to me on many occasions. Now I need help.

I have a badly marked leather-top mahogany table. I've tried endless spray products like Behold, but so far nothing has worked.

I feel there must be something that can be done. Can you help? — B.H.

A: One of the first rules in the care of leather is not to wax it. Leather needs oiling to retain its natural beauty.

First, clean the entire surface with a clean cloth dampened in mineral spirits and wipe dry. Repeat this process until all previous wax buildup is removed. Clean the leather with saddle soap, following label directions.

A suggested treatment to remove dents is to use an old-fashioned chamois-covered nail buffer. If this is not available, use a soft chamois skin, wrapped around the flat bowl of a spoon. Rub either of these gently over the dent, using a circular motion, until the depressions disappear.

Replacement of the natural oils in the leather is essential to restoration. Apply lemon oil (real lemon oil, not a wax with lemon scent), reapplying several times over a period of weeks. Often, just the oil application will cause any minor dents to disappear. For maintaining leather, a little lemon oil every two or three weeks is all your tabletop should need.

The complete removal of stains will depend on the depth of the stain. Sometimes cigarette ashes dusted over the damaged areas and then rubbed lightly with the grain, using a rag dipped in a lightweight oil will help remove spots.

There also are commercial leather cleaners and conditioners on the market. Try housewares stores or a leather shop.

If you cannot remove the stains you can try covering them. Permanent felt-tip marking pens can do a good job. Go to an art shop for these, and you will find an extremely wide selection of colors. Buy two or three that most closely match the color of your leather tabletop. Apply the color over the stain, using very light strokes and working with the grain. Sometimes you will have to blend two or more colors to get a good match.

Q: I have a 10-foot real slate counter space under the cabinet in the dining room.

I used to use boiled linseed oil mixed with something to polish it. There are marks and stains, possibly from coffee and cream, which I am unable to remove.

Can you tell me what to do to remove these unsightly stains? — J.K.R.

A: Very likely the staining is in the oil finish, not the slate. Natural slate is practically immune to all common chemicals and almost any of the common cleaners can be used on slate safely (however, strong alkaline solutions can affect the grout on tile installations).

Because of its density and extremely hard surface, slate, unlike marble, is not affected by detergents. Weak solutions of ammonia may be used when desired and the surface can be scoured with steel wool or an abrasive pad.

Clean the entire surface with a strong solution of synthetic detergent. Spread over the surface and let it stand for several minutes. Then, with fresh solution, scrub with a stiff brush.

If the spots remain, try a weak solution of ammonia. After the slate has been thoroughly cleaned and allowed to dry, a coat of sealer will render the surface easier to clean and keep clean.

Any good floor sealer should serve. It should be of low viscosity and probably not over 25 percent solids. Spread thinly and rub out well.

Being non-porous, slate will absorb very little of the sealer, just enough to adhere, but it is not the purpose to build up a surface coating. An ideal sealer for slate is one of the colorless terrazzo sealers.

The richness of slate can be improved somewhat without producing an artificial luster or even a sheen by waxing, either with a solvent type or a water-wax emulsion. Even an emulsified resin finish will serve well.

Here's How

Tips for health in mature years

How is your health? As a mature adult your health always can be better than in the past, and announcements of new research may show the way.

• Vitamin D increase for women.

Mature women may need at least 10 percent more vitamin D than is presently accepted as the federal recommended dietary allowance (RDA).

According to a new study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, postmenopausal women who increased their intake of vitamin D in winter did not have the seesaw imbalance of hormones that regulate blood calcium levels. Vitamin D aids the body in absorbing calcium, some of which is gained from sunlight in good weather, but missing during the darker days of winter.

Mature postmenopausal women experiencing mood variances in winter may want to ask their physician to consider the possibility of a vitamin D deficiency.

• Smoking and nutrition.

Older people who smoke, in addition to being at greater risk for several diseases, generally are not as well-nourished as those who don't smoke.

The Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging in Tufts University in Boston, studied 746 men and women between the ages of 62 and 100, finding that the 87 who smoked had significantly lower blood levels of vitamin C, riboflavin, magnesium and vitamin A and related carotenoids than the 659 who didn't smoke. Their choice of less nutritious foods, not the amount of food consumed, accounted for most of the difference.

• Olive oil may lower cholesterol.

Using olive oil and other monounsaturated fats not only may help lower cholesterol, but a new study concludes it also significantly lowers systolic blood pressure and blood glucose levels.

A report in the Journal of the American Medical Association found the more butter and margarine men and women use, the higher their blood pressure and cholesterol levels are, and was authored by Maurizio Trevisan, M.D., M.S., of the State University of New York School of Medicine.

The study sampled 4,903 Italian men and women age 20 to 59 years old, with half of the participants using butter and margarine as part of their food preparation. Olive oil was used on the food after it was prepared.

In both men and women, the more butter and margarine were used, the higher levels of blood glucose were detected. For those who used olive oil instead, the opposite was true. Not only did the blood glucose levels drop, but so did their blood pressure and cholesterol levels.

• Laxatives may be addictive.

In order to be "regular" each day, many people reach for a laxative, a practice that draws a warning from Dr. Jack D. Welsh, professor of medicine at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center in Oklahoma City.

"The notion that there is something wrong if a person does not have a bowel movement daily is advanced through commercials in the media," he states, "but it is simply not necessary. Everyone is different and has his or her own pattern."

"The effects of becoming dependent upon laxatives can be serious," the physician stressed. "People can have some physiological changes when they become dependent on laxatives."

He advised that one type of laxative, a chemical process, stimulates the bowel to contract, replacing the normal function and causing a dependence so that the bowel will not work without the medication or chemical.

"Another problem may occur when the patient develops an obstructive condition in the colon, causing it not to function. And yet another group of laxatives has a pacifying effect, where the patient does not feel the urge unless taking the laxative."

"An effective way of avoiding dependence upon laxatives is through a healthy diet, including food with bulk and a high-fiber content," advises the physician. "If a mature adult and you're using laxatives it is probably not too late to change."

If using laxatives, the expert suggests a visit with your own physician to develop a natural correction and bowel function.

• For the sweet tooth.

Now you can have your cake and eat it, too. Entermann's bakers have introduced a new line of baked goods that contain no fat, no cholesterol and fewer than 100 calories per serving. The cakes and cookies include all natural ingredients, according to William Entermann, and "no artificial sweeteners have been used." The new line also meets FDA guidelines for "low sodium" products.

Entermann's packaging for the "healthy" baked goods may be identified by a yellow band and heart symbol on the traditional blue and white boxes in your supermarket.

FOR TEENS

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Totally in love

Dr. Abraham: I am totally in love with a guy at school. I am 17, and he is 18. The only problem is that he already has a girlfriend. I know he likes me, too, but I can't get him to tell me. I know I shouldn't be liking him as I do. Also, it would be wrong for me to just break them up.

What should I do? Should I try not to like him? That doesn't work because he's all I can think about. Or should I keep liking him, hoping one day he'll finally ask me out?

Please help me because I'm hopelessly in love. — Barbie

Barbie: A person can't turn off feelings like a water faucet. You will probably continue to like him unless he does something to hurt you. You certainly don't indicate that he is capable of anything like that.

So for at least the near future, try to realize that your feelings toward him won't change, and there may not be any change in his relationship with the other girl. If his being with her continues for quite a while, that should tell you to look in other directions. It wouldn't be easy for you to do that, but it may be the only choice you have.

Dr. Abraham: A lot of parents (mine included) and, I guess, many other adults think that teens are pretty flighty, maybe even ignorant. A recent survey that I saw in Sassy magazine showed that we're not all entirely stupid.

Those surveyed felt that Madonna and Cher weren't the top of everything wonderful; that tells a different story about us kids. We may not all be totally up on foreign affairs, the future of our country and things like that, but at least we're not taken in by those two entertainers.

According to many teens, Madonna can be insulting to women and Cher is a lousy dresser.

So, parents, don't give up on us. We do have some good sense. — Nancy

Nancy: Teen attitudes often include even more than you've indicated. They go far beyond the Madonna/Cher items and into what's going on overseas these days and are optimistic about their own and our country's future. Not all teens (or adults either, for that matter) are so thoughtful, of course.

Concerns mentioned in letters I receive often deal with serious issues, such as child and animal abuse, the environment, abortion, hunger, poverty and nuclear power. Attitudes expressed are frequently both sensible and sensitive, reflecting teen depth of which some adults, including parents, may not be aware.

Our teen population includes large numbers who are far from being a "lost generation." Quite the opposite, in fact.

Dr. Abraham: I've had a lot of good times with this guy whom I really like, but I can't stand what he did recently.

He called my best friend and told her he'd like to come over and "play" with her sometime if I wouldn't mind. (He never shared this conversation with me.) She told me that the way he used the word "play" really meant having sex.

When I confronted him about this, he said he was just kidding around and seemed surprised that she thought he was being serious. But he had never called her before and was really doing it behind my back.

What do you think I should do? I'm about ready to dump him. — Sally Sally: He was certainly out of line, no question about that.

What you now should do depends on whether his behavior at other times has also been questionable and how much you like him.

If it's a first-time happening, giving him another chance may be the way to go, but only if he is truly important in your life. If he isn't so important to you and this type of thing has happened before, why postpone the breakup?

ANTIQUE OR JUNQUE

By James G. McCollam

Q: Could you please let me know if this Mettlach stein No. 2122 has any value? I have been curious about it for a long time.

A: This stein was made in Mettlach, Germany, by Villeroy & Boch during the late 1800s.

It originally had a pewter lid with a ceramic insert. The original stein, complete with lid and in good condition, would be worth about $3,500.

It is impossible for me to assess the diminished value due to damage or missing parts.

METTLACH STEIN
...Originally had pewter lid with a ceramic inset

A: Your well-detailed description matches the original 1959 Barbie.

In reasonably good condition, it would sell for $500 to $600. In mint condition in the original box, it would be worth more than twice as much.

Q: What is the difference between salt glaze and tin glaze? Which one is better?

A: Salt glaze consists of throwing common salt into the kiln when a ceramic body is fired.

Tin glaze is accomplished by coating a ceramic body with tin oxide before firing (baking).

Neither one has much to do with quality. The quality depends on the ceramic body.

Stoneware is salt glazed; Delft and Majolica are tin glazed; Wedgwood Queen's Ware is lead glazed; porcelain is glazed with feldspar.

BOOK REVIEW

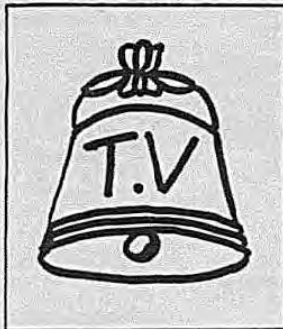

"The Lyle Price Guide to Collectibles and Memorabilia" by Anthony Curtis; The Putnam Publishing Group, 200 Madison Ave, New York, NY 10016; $11.95, plus $2 postage or at your local bookstore.

Collectibles are rising in value and the key is knowing what to look for and recognizing it when it's found. No source helps more than Lyle.

Each of thousands of items are illustrated with a detailed description and price. This book is an essential reference guide for both collectors and dealers.

Q: This mark is on the back of a 6-inch dessert plate. It is decorated with red berries and green holly leaves with a gold-trimmed scalloped edge.

When was this made, by whom and what is its value?

A: Your plate was made in Limoges, France, about 1900 for Tressemanes & Vogt, a New York importer. It would possibly sell for about $25 to $35.

Q: What can you tell me about a gallon-size wooden bucket with a paper label "Heinz's Apple Butter"?

It is made of staves held together with finger-lap jointed rings. It is complete with lid.

A: Your bucket was made around the turn of the century and there is a disparity in the prices listed.

I find one just like you describe listed for $65. I find a similar bucket without the label listed for $200. Isn't that a temptation?

Q: My mother had one of the first Barbie dolls; perhaps you can tell me if it is worth anything.

She has a brown ponytail with curly bangs and gold hoop earrings. She is wearing a black-and-white, strapless bathing suit. There is a bracket that fits into her feet so she can stand erect.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Are our fears justified?

Q: We live fairly close to a university that has a veterinary college.

We have hesitated to take our pets to the university clinic because we have heard that students practice on the animals. We are also worried about our pets being used to test new drugs or new procedures.

Are our fears justified?

A: You can expect to receive the same quality of professional care at a university veterinary clinic that you would expect to receive from a practitioner in your neighborhood.

Veterinary students are not allowed to administer medications, render treatments or perform surgery without the supervision of a faculty member.

Pets at university hospitals often receive more attention because of the students' intense desire to learn and perform well and because each student usually has only a few patients to care for at any given time.

University hospitals and large group practices often have specialists associated with them. General veterinary practitioners often refer patients to these specialists. Most specialists have completed three or more years of intense training in their specialty area after graduation from a veterinary school and have gone through rigorous testing by national testing boards.

If your animal needs to be examined by a specialist, your veterinarian will write a letter or call the specialist to arrange an appointment and to give the specialist pertinent information regarding your pet's problems.

Many new drugs and treatments are developed and tested at university veterinary hospitals. However, it is extremely unethical for any veterinarian to use an experimental drug or treatment without fully informing the owner and receiving consent. Pets are not used for experimentation at university veterinary clinics.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Aunt Tilly's Corner

The other day I read the story of a seal found washed up on the beach. He was checked by an animal doctor, a specialist in sea creatures. The seal was found to be infected with worms. The animal was also cut and bruised.

Soon the doctors made a special diet for their new patient. They fed him well, got rid of his worms with a special medicine, and gave him antibiotics for his injuries.

In no time at all, the seal was restored to health. Then it was time to liberate him. A little bit sadly, because they had grown fond of him, his human friends allowed the seal to go back to the ocean. For a few seconds he seemed perplexed. Then he swam away out of sight!

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

What is a quarter of coverage?

Q: Exactly what is meant by the term "quarters of coverage"? — F.M.

A: Before you can receive cash payments if you retire, you must have credit for a certain amount of work under Social Security. A Social Security work credit is also called a quarter of coverage.

You can earn a maximum of four credits (or quarters) each year based on your annual earnings. The amount of earnings needed to earn one work credit (or quarter) for Social Security coverage increased from $500 in 1989 to $520 in 1990.

Q: Was there a recent change in the Social Security law that affects those who receive disability benefits? — L.T.

A: As a result of a new regulation that became effective Jan. 1, 1990, disabled beneficiaries can earn more without affecting their Social Security benefit.

The regulation increases the amount of average earnings that ordinarily show an individual has engaged in "substantial gainful activity" from $300 to $500 a month.

This increase is expected to provide an additional incentive for disabled workers to take significant steps toward work and economic independence.

By William M. Acosta

Q: My grandmother has been reluctant to apply for Supplemental Security Income because she feels she would not be entitled since she has money set aside for her burial.

Does this affect her eligibility? — R.W.

A: In determining the amount of a person's resources for SSI purposes some items are excluded.

Burial plots or spaces and repositories for the remains of an individual generally do not count. Burial funds do not count if they are specifically set aside for burial purposes and do not exceed $1,500.

Contact your local Social Security office for additional information.

Q: My husband says that just about everyone age 65 or older gets Social Security benefits, and that for many aged individuals it is the only income. Is that true? — B.H.C.

A: The Social Security program pays benefits to more than 90 percent of those 65 or older. It is the major source of income (providing at least 50 percent of total income) for 61 percent of the beneficiary couples or non-married people. It contributes almost all of the income (90 percent or more) for 25 percent and is the only income for 14 percent of those 65 or older.
