April 24 Hearing On Cluster Zoning

In an effort to further the preservation and protection of Oyster Bay's natural resources, Town Supervisor Angelo A. Delligatti has announced that the Town Board will, at an April 24 public hearing, consider amending the Building Zone Ordinance to include residential cluster subdivisions.

"The clustering concept has proven to be an effective planning tool to ensure that greater amounts of open space, and the ground and surface waters and wildlife habitat they contain, are preserved when subdivisions occur," said the Supervisor.

As explained by Supervisor Delligatti, residential clustering, if deemed desirable by the Nassau County Planning Commission and the Town Board for a particular subdivision proposal, would require that a certain portion of the subdivision's total acreage be preserved in a natural state.

This would be achieved by building residential units closer together - or clustering them - on smaller building lots within a subdivision. The total number of building lots, however, would not exceed the number of lots permitted if the land had been subdivided in conformance with the minimum lot size and density requirements for the residential district in which it is located.

Help For First Home Buyers

The Town of Oyster Bay has embarked on an ambitious plan to help first-time home buyers obtain mortgages. Gary Pappas, Deputy Commissioner of Intergovernmental Affairs, explained at last month's meeting of the Bethpage Republican Club the status of Supervisor Angelo A. Delligatti's program.

"We are in the process of selling a 65-acre parcel of land in Plainview which will generate $25 million for a trust account, the interest from which will fund the affordable-mortgage program," said Pappas. "Supervisor Delligatti was concerned about our young people not being able to afford to stay in the Town. We hope to be able to assist 30 or 40 home buyers a year with their down payments."

In order to be considered for assistance, you have to be a first-time home buyer, and a resident of Oyster Bay for 10 years with a combined income of no more than $47,000 to $71,000. Commissioner Pappas advised anyone who would like additional information should call the Office of Intergovernmental Affairs. "Get on the waiting list and in late summer or early fall there will be a lottery to select the first recipients," Pappas went on.

Fine Arts Dept. In Art Exhibit

The Hicksville High School fine arts department is currently participating in the first annual art exhibit for high school students in Nassau and Suffolk counties, sponsored by the Long Island Art Supervisor's Association. The event, running through April 15, is being held at the Chelsea House on Northern Boulevard in Muttontown and is open to the public.

The Hicksville works being exhibited are a hanging sculpture entitled "Nothing's Right" by Kevin Watson, an untitled computer graphics work by James Hundertmark, and a self-portrait drawing entitled "Drigo" by Drigo Morin.

Hicksville's participation in the exhibit was coordinated by Mary Jane Caldwell, K-12 Art Coordinator for the Hicksville Schools. Ms. Caldwell and William L. Gagnon, Supervisor of Fine Arts, are active participants with the sponsoring organization.

Civic Assn. Endorses New Two Story Building

By Michele Coyle

A petition by Spiegel Associates for a change of zoning at West John and Strong Streets to construct a two story office building was endorsed by the Northwest Civic Association at the 8 p.m., Town of Oyster Bay Board hearing on Tuesday night.

Civic president Mary Ann Ferrado told the Board that the community felt that the proposal was "the best compromise." She said residents were upset originally because they didn't want to see the property developed as a business. "But we realize the area is changing and this (development) is the best use of the property at this time," she said.

Spiegel Associates is seeking a special use permit to demolish three houses on West John Street, change the zoning from residential to business and construct a two story office building. According to Mrs. Ferrado and Spiegel Associates Attorney William Cohn, several meetings took place between the Civic Association and developers. Four separate plans had been presented before the present one was agreed upon by both.

Mr. Cohn said that the Civic Association had objections including access to the property via Strong Street, below ground parking and the modern facade originally proposed which was said to be uncharacteristic of the area. He noted that these and other objections have been revised.

Supervisor Angelo Delligatti commended the petitioners and civic association for cooperating with each other early in the proposal. "If we saw more of this kind of cooperation before the fact it would make the job of this Board easier."

The proposal presented Tuesday calls for the two story building to be confined to a corner of the parcel and 90 parking spaces. Access to the property will be via West John Street only.

The project's architect Lee Mindel explained that the original proposal called for a one story building across the property, but was later redesigned to make the building appear as small as possible. The building will be 18,000 square feet and have a brick facade and a "more commercial" interior. Landscaping, including a courtyard, will act as a buffer from the street.

Real Estate appraiser Bert Nelson told the Board that residential structures at the site were outdated and that due to the uses of the surrounding properties such structures would be considered economically obsolete. This conclusion was also obtained by the Northwest Civic after they surveyed several developers.

With regard to traffic, Edward Sharfsky, a traffic expert determined that there would be no impact on Strong Street and little impact on West John Street. He estimated that 46 trips would be taken during the morning peak hours and 43 trips in the afternoon peak hours. Mr. Sharfsky also checked into the possible impact on Burns Avenue School and concluded that if a driver left the site and tried to circumvent Route 106 by taking Burns Avenue to Nevada, both time and mileage would be twice that of the direct route. He furthermore noted that most people would then attempt to cut through the Broadway Mall property.

Hicksville resident William Stetman informed the Board that during the civic's meetings with Mr. Cohn, he was told that union labor would be used to construct the building and that the building would not be used as a medical clinic.

Mr. Cohn responded that Spiegel Associates plans to use the building to house one or two occupants who need general office space. "We don't intend to make it into a medical building; however, if a doctor or dentist wanted to establish an office there, we wouldn't preclude it."

Stanley Hirsch, an assistant to Assemblyman Fred Parola, said that he had been involved in talks over the past two years and said he was presently working to obtain a traffic control device at the point of egress of the building.

John Ptacek, of York Street, voiced concern over curbside parking on West John Street and requested the Board check the feasibility of redefining the traffic lanes to create a left turn lane into the property.

The Board reserved its decision to another date. Earlier the same day the Board heard the petition of Jernie Investors Company, Inc., for a special use permit to convert 200,000 square feet of an existing building into office space at 575 Underhill Boulevard, Syosset. JIC Attorney, Jeffrey Forchelli explained that the 227,500 square foot building located at Underhill and Jericho Turnpike, is

Proposed Budget Shaved By $2.5 Million

By Maureen Traxler

The Hicksville Board of Education trimmed the proposed 1990-91 school budget by $2,526,575 at its third and final budget committee review meeting on March 21. The deletions ranged from equipment and contract adjustments to the elimination of positions and consultant services. The district's asbestos abatement program for next year saw the largest cutback - $1.5 million. The postponement of projects will call for adjustments to the management plan submitted to the State.

Along with the $2.5 million + cuts, the Board made one addition of $115,200, a BOCES contract adjustment in the Special Education tuition area. The adjusted budget figure as of March 21 stands at $53,610,425, an increase of $7,295,225 or 13.9% over the present budget. Finance Committee Chairman William Bennett noted that this budget figure precipitates "a rate increase of about $5.80 per $100 assessed valuation, or about $20 a month."

Mr. Bennett added that the district is in jeopardy of losing $2 million in State aid, if the Governor's education proposal is adopted by the Legislature. If the district does not receive this money, the tax rate could be negatively affected.

"If we continue the trend of $7 or $9 million increases a year," warned Mr. Bennett, "budgets will double in 5 years." He charged that if this situation occurs, then "other ways to finance education would have to be found."

Among the deletions was $11,875 in new equipment requested from various departments, including a senior high school Physical Education Department weight training machine ($2,300), Fine Arts music equipment ($4,500) and equipment requested for Continuing Education, Home and Careers and Co-Curricular Activities.

An equipment request in the Interscholastic Athletics Program amounting to $5,300 was questioned by the Board, particularly the request for basketball backboards and a cellular portable phone. Superintendent Catherine Fenton asked the Board to retain the amount, although administration would cut back on some items in order to buy new, expensive football helmets. The district will be refitting all helmets with more modern ones, since helmets are no longer insured or guaranteed for safety after three years of use. The Board agreed to retain the amount and allow the redistribution of the allocation.

In the personnel area, $163,500 was withdrawn as follows: Plant Operation, Assistant Director eliminated ($30,000), Safety Coordinator Salary adjustment ($20,000), Printing/Mailing, full time to parttime employee ($8,000), retiring math teacher ($37,800), salary adjustment due to receipt of Federal grant money ($44,000), Academic Enrichment clerical position ($16,500), and elimination of two teacher aides ($7,200).

Dr. Fenton explained that administration followed up on a suggestion from a resident to look into rental of computer equipment as opposed to purchase. After looking at contracts and making calls, it was found that rental would be more expensive in the long run and that companies would not take back computers or upgrade equipment.

The Superintendent stressed that the district "must now go on to a K-12 program in order to assure continuity." The Board agreed to the improvements proposed for the computer program on the secondary level, and Trustee Pat Rooney offered that she would like to see the availability of computers at lunchtime and after school so students can work on assignments.

One resident asked Assistant Superintendent William Hall what would be eliminated under an austerity budget. He replied: transportation, new equipment orders and sports (although if sports activities continued at added parental expense, the district could cover insurance and coaches salaries). Other areas affected would be senior citizen programs, the Gregory Museum allocation, Continuing Education and class field trips. Mr. Hall estimated that the elimination of all items prohibited under austerity would result in an approximate budget reduction of $1.3 million.

Dr. Fenton offered district organization data for 1967-68, 1981-82 and 1990-91, which displayed a breakdown of managerial positions in Central Office, Districtwide Administration and Building-level Administration. The chart shows the total number of positions reduced from 59 positions in 1967 with student enrollment of 12,127 to 36 in 1990 with a student enrollment of 4,300.

"Everytime we had a chance after people left and retired, we continued a program of condensing administrative positions," said the Superintendent. She explained that department chairs at the junior and senior high schools were combined, now having one chairperson K-12. Some Supervisor posts were combined under one person, such as Supervisor of Vocal Music and Supervisor of Instructional Music became Supervisor of Fine Arts K-12. And in some cases, Dr. Fenton said, Supervisor positions (10 months a year) were converted into Director positions (11 months a year), with a reduction in pay.

Over the 23 year period, Central office positions dropped from 10 to 6; district-wide administration dropped from 12 to 10; and building-level positions dropped from 37 to 21.

The Board was scheduled to adopt a preliminary budget at its March 28 regular meeting. A special budget hearing will be held on Wednesday, April 18, at 8:15 p.m. in the high school auditorium, and the Board's regular monthly meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 25 at 8:15 p.m. At the April 25 meeting the budget will be adopted for 1990-91, although changes can be made virtually up to the time the ballot is printed.

Imaginative Images

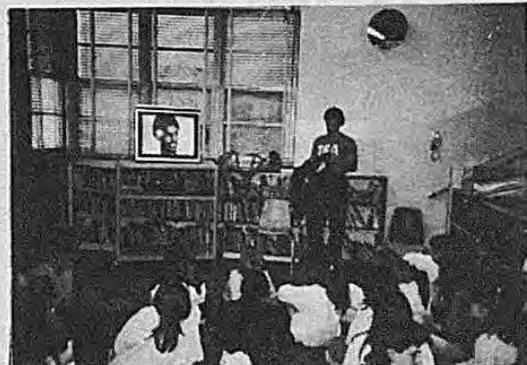

"Imaginative Images VIII" is a statewide juried student art exhibition which is run in conjunction with Imagination Celebration, a national festival program of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and the New York State Department of Education. It was very difficult for Mrs. Lozhigian, one of the Woodland Avenue Art teachers, to select only six pieces of work from the many beautiful pieces done by students to send to Albany last February. Imagine our excitement when we were informed that third grader, Sofia Gasparatos' paper weaving and collage, "Dots and Stripes," was one of the 249 pieces chosen from nearly 2,000 entries received. "Imaginative Images VIII" will feature selected work, displayed in the Terrace Gallery of the New York State Museum from Saturday, May 26 through Thursday, July 5. Congratulations Sofia!

Believe it or not, this man holds the world record for the 100 meter dash for the physically handicapped. He not only challenged the students to accept the physically handicapped in all of life's situations, but also urged them to follow his example of perseverance and desire for excellence in their future lives.

Legion Post Honors Firemen, Police

The Charles Wagner Post 421 of the American Legion, Hicksville's senior veterans group, honored members of the Hicksville Fire Department and members of the 2nd and 8th Precincts of the Nassau Police Department at the post's Annual Awards and Ceremonies Night, on March 16.

A large audience of invited honorees and guests filled the Knights of Columbus Hall as the Hicksville Legion conducted Post Everlasting services for seven Post 421 members who died during the past year.

Also honored by the Charles Wagner Post were Thomas Shaw, Assistant School Superintendent for Buildings and Grounds, for outstanding service to Post 421, in assisting the post with school facilities for the 1989 Nassau County American Legion Convention Parade. A special school award of a $100 United States Savings Bond was presented to Miss Christine Samaan of the Holy Trinity Catholic Diocesan High School who represented H Hicksville's American Legion in the 1990 Nassau County Legion Oratorical competitions.

Commander Arlene Howard of Post 421 officiated, being assisted in the Post Everlasting Memorial Service by Post Chaplain John Rizos, and Post Adjutant Gregory Bennett. The program coordinator was Past Commander John Rizos.

Awarded handsome engraved plaques for "outstanding service at the scene of a fire and explosion on August 22, 1989, in Westbury were: Ex-Fire Captain Michael Kruppenacker, Company 1; Firemen Richard Schmidt and Tom Scott, Company 2; Captain Raymond Seeley and Lieutenant Joseph DiFronzo, Company 3; Ex-Captain Richard Russell, Captain Gene Pietzak and Fireman Eric Pietzak, Company 4; Captain George Howard, Company 5; and Fireman Paul Caglione, Company 8.

Presented with engraved plaques for "outstanding performance of duty at the scene of a house fire at 116 Blueberry Lane, Hicksville, resulting in the rescue of an unconscious woman" were: Ex-Captain Thomas Sullivan and Fireman Patrick McGeough of Company 2, and Fireman John W. Rizos of Company 3.

The following members of the 2nd and 8th Precincts of the Nassau County Police Department received engraved plaques for "outstanding performance" in the line of duty: Police Officer Alexander Barnych of the 2nd and Police Officers Michael Gould, Robert Mandler, and Bruce Poissant, 8th Precinct.

"Post-Everlasting" services opened the evening program, a solemn ritual retiring the post membership records of Legionnaires of Post 421 who died this past year: Past Commander Robert Hassell, 35 years membership; Carmine Rinaldi, 45 years; Peter Massiello, 28 years; Clifford Freitag, John Mensching and Raymond Jergensen, all 25 year members, and Past Commander Harry Christo 15 years.

Lined up to receive American Legion awards for "outstanding performance" in fire-fighting during a Westbury call for assistance are: Firemen Paul Caglione, Erik Pietzak, and Richard Schmidt.

Honored by the Hicksville American Legion for "outstanding service as volunteer fire-fighters" are (l-r): Ex-Capt. Ray Seeley, Ex-Capt. Gene Pietzak, Capt. Joseph DiFronzo, and Ex-Capt. Michael Kruppenacker.

Nassau County Police Officers who received "outstanding performance" awards from the Hicksville American Legion, recently, were (not in order of names) Robert Mandler, Michael Gould and Bruce Poissant (8th Precinct) and Alexander Barnych of the 2nd.

Christine Samaan of Holy Trinity High School (center), winner of the Post 421 American Legion Oratorical Contest, is flanked by admiring parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sami Samaan, Assemblyman Fred Parola (1) and Richard Evers, contest chairman at the Legion's Awards and Ceremonies Night.

Past Commander John Rizos, Program Coordinator, honors Hicksville Schools Asst. Superintendent for Building and Grounds, Thomas Shaw for his "outstanding service to the American Legion in 1989." Shaw contributed much help to Post 421's hosting of Nassau County Legion Convention.

On hand for a 30-year membership award are Hank and Dorothy Braemer, long-time Legion Post 421 couple.

Enjoying the Charles Wagner Post "Awards and Ceremonies Night" are Mrs. Louise Correr and Past Commander Thomas Nikitas.

Oil Tanker Spill Keeps HFD Busy

On March 19, the Hicksville Fire Department Hazardous Materials Unit was kept busy when at 8:49 a.m. a tanker delivering diesel fuel spilled 70 gallons on the ground at the Tom-For Bus Co. at 455 W. John St.. First arriving members in their own vehicles managed to stop the fuel from entering the dry wells on the property. The Haz-Mat Squad contained the remainder of the spill. The Nassau County Fire Marshal's Haz-Mat Unit responded and procured a clean-up co. for the oily mess.

At 10:36 a.m. on March 19, a tractor trailer truck on the LIE broke a fuel line and drove off onto North Broadway, Jericho and called for help. Jericho Fire Units responded and the Hicksville Haz-Mat Squad was requested to assist at the scene with absorbents and made temporary repairs to the line to stop the leak and allow the driver to continue on his way. 70 gallons from one saddle tank was off-loaded at the scene.

Again at 11:25 a.m. on the 19th the Haz-Mat Unit responded to Woodbury Road and Briggs St. by Fire Station #2 when a fire district employee discovered someone had discarded chlorine tablets alongside the building. Arrangements were made through the fire marshal's office to dispose of the tablets with the Nassau County Sewer Dept.

An M.T.A. work train track machine caught fire on the eastbound tracks near the New South Road crossing on March 13, at 2:54 p.m. Hicksville Firefighters were able to cut off the flow of burning kerosene used to propel the engine and extinguished the fire in 15 minutes. Rail current was shut off during operations, but did not affect schedules. Three units responded under Asst. Chief Scanlon.

There were a total of 96 alarms for Hicksville Vamps in February 1990. There were 50 fire calls including 4 Haz-Mat calls and 8 malicious false alarms. There were 46 Rescue Calls. No firefighters were injured.

Burns 3rd Graders View Victorian Era

Victorian carriage.

Julie Rose and Margaret Davis came to visit Mrs. Wallman's Third Grade Class at Burns Avenue School on Tuesday, March 23.

Mrs. Wallman's class is studying the Victorian era. Margaret Davis has been collecting Victorian clothes and other Victorian objects for over 20 years. She came dressed in a Victorian ensemble. She brought with her many other examples of Victorian clothing.

Julie Rose came dressed in early pioneer clothes and brought with her embroidery she has been doing in the early American style. Both visitors donate their time at the Conklin House in Huntington Station. Mrs. Wallman's class will be visiting the Conklin House (part Victorian, part Federal, part Colonial) on June 17.

Woodland Collects Heart Money

Woodland Avenue School recently held a jump-a-thon to collect money for the American Heart Association. The event took place on March 1, in the school's gymnasium after school hours. Mrs. Betty Way Stouges, the school's gym teacher, organized and supervised the entire event and, as always, did a superb job.

Children from grades 4, 5 and 6 jumped rope for three hours and collected $3,918.85.

Congratulations to Mrs. Stouges, Dr. Clancy and his great staff for helping out and for giving the children a most memorable experience.

Author Visits Central Blvd.

On March 2, the children and adults at Central Boulevard School were delighted by a visit from children's author, Johanna Hurwitz. After months of preparation, the children appeared enthusiastic and well informed; every time Johanna Hurwitz began to mention a character from one of her books, the children in the audience would eagerly finish the name. After an informative discussion as to how she formed ideas to write her books and how she developed her characters, there was a question and answer time. The questions asked by the children were very impressive, once again, a definite indication they had a good background about Mrs. Hurwitz and her books. After the program, Johanna Hurwitz autographed books for the students; the books were sold by the PTA prior to the author's visit.

The lobby was turned into a city scene because Johanna Hurwitz has an entire series which takes place in an apartment building. There were buildings from kindergarten through sixth grade. The first grade chose to have one large building, they had over 100 windows in which a photo of each child was glued. Since they had windows to spare, they invited the secretaries and custodians to live in their building too. The first grade teachers and Special Ed. teachers were fortunate enough to live in the penthouse apartments! Mr. Blau, the Principal of C.B.S. found his picture attached to a royally dressed doorman. Mr. Dalven's sixth graders produced a Baseball Fever (by J. Hurwitz) Television Box with two handles to turn the pictures in order to view the story. The walls of the lobby were decorated with posters of various scenes from Johanna Hurwitz Books drawn by the students in Mrs. Sobel's sixth grade class. In the center of the lobby was a beautiful display of free-standing, life-size characters cut from thick cardboard. Each teacher was given an opportunity to pick and make a character, as a class project. Also, three murals were painted which will hang in the All-Purpose Room for at least one year. A contest was held throughout the school to draw a scene from one of her books; there were three levels in the competition: K-1st, 2nd-3rd, and 4th-6th. Scenes were combined thereby the committee awarded 14 winners for the K-1st mural; 3 winners for the 2nd-3rd mural, and 4 winners for the 4th-6th board. The winners received a free Johanna Hurwitz Book with a personalized congratulations and signature from Johanna Hurwitz.

A special thanks must go to the Bethpage School District for enabling the students to be exposed to an author by paying the fee for her visit. The students enjoyed preparing for the visit and thanks to all the fun projects, they will remember her characters and stories probably forever.

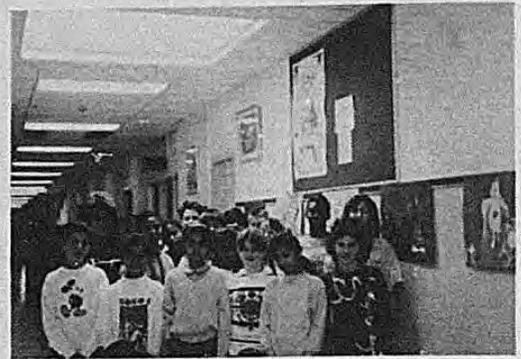

Special recognition must also go to the committee which consisted of Classroom Teachers, Reading Teachers and our Librarian who spent many hours setting up the various projects and tying everything together.

Rescue Squad Cited

Oyster Bay Town Councilman Thomas L. Clark and Town Councilwoman Ann R. Ocker present a citation to Assistant Chief Gary Hearn of the Bethpage Fire Department Rescue Squad. The entire squad was honored by Hicksville Elks Lodge No. 1931 at its annual "Firemen of the Year" awards. Fire Commissioner Frank Debbes, right front, was also on hand for the presentation along with other members of the squad, left to right rear - 2nd Lt. Robert Fasano, Capt. Dan Portolano, EMT Frank Sinicori, 1st Lt. Carol Kron and EMT Rich Keskinen. Representing the Elks were Exalted Ruler Kenneth Grosser, left front, awards chairman Warren Uss, third from right rear, and master of ceremonies Leonard Provenzano, right rear.

Burns Fifth Graders Win Prize

Mrs. Pasetsky's Fifth Grade Class at Burns Ave. won Second Place, Elementary School Level, Bicentennial Competition for the Fourth Congressional District. The class worked on a large map of the Original Thirteen Colonies and territories. They showed different historical events in the colonies. The students used markers and crayons. The map is on display at Burns Avenue School.

Old Country Rd. Health, Safety Fair

On Tuesday, March 13, the Old Country Road PTA sponsored a Health and Safety Fair for the students and school community. Schneiders Children's Hospital, the Nassau County Health Department, Hicksville Fire Department, the American Red Cross and the Nassau County Police Department were among the 18 participating organizations. Dr. David Levine, a Hicksville chiropractor, checked for proper posture. The Visiting Nurse Service and Hicksville Fire Department took blood pressure readings. Nassau County Police Public Information Bureau offered their "Kid Pix" program. The PTA served healthy snacks. The children enjoyed wearing their surgical masks and caps and gathering as much information as they could hold on health and safety-related issues distributed by the various organizations.

Civic Assn. Endorses New Two Story Building

presently divided into several different uses; office, medical diagnostic lab, industrial and warehouse.

According to Mr. Forchelli, the needs of the building occupants change from time to time and interior renovations were designed to allow for more office space. He reiterated that no increase in the building size was proposed. The Board was asked to consider allowing the petitioners some leeway in the use of the space "so that we don't have to come back for minor changes."

Supervisor Delligatti said he would consult with the Town's Attorney to see if it was possible to be flexible about changing the ratio of the buildings usage.

The Board adjourned a petition by Peter Dejana to May 8, at 8 p.m., in Town Hall East in order to allow a greater amount of public input. The petition asks for a special use permit to allow outdoor storage and repair of vehicles and for the construction and use of a two-story industrial building for the furnishing of municipal services at West John Street near Kuhl Avenue in Hicksville.

The Board also passed several resolutions including approval of a waiver of sidewalks at the request of Juniper Homes, Inc., for sidewalks at 42 Heitz Place in Hicksville. However, the developers will have to pay the Town approximately $1400 which will be placed in a special fund if it is determined later that sidewalks are needed.

The design phase for three storm drainage contracts were also approved. Sidney B. Bowne and Son, consulting engineers were authorized to design storm drains for the Winding Road and Shady Lane and New South Road area in Hicksville and for the Thomas, Sycamore Avenues area in Bethpage. The fees for all three contracts are not to exceed $381,300.

The site plan for the Exxon Station at Massapequa-Glen Cove Road and Bethpage Turnpike was approved as was the request by Francesco and Anna Zitoli for a one year extension to obtain site plan approval for their petition of a special permit to operate a 128 seat restaurant in an industrial district in Syosset.

The next Town of Oyster Bay Board meeting will be held on April 3, at 10 a.m., in Town Hall East, Oyster Bay, N.Y.

Input Callers Believe Postal Increase Unjust

Most callers to Input believe that Postal increase on letters is unjustified in answer to this question: "Should letters sent locally cost 30 cents in the new rate, the same as for sending a letter across the country?" Here are some of the answers:

OUT OF LINE

The new postal rate makes no sense no matter how you figure it. The price of postage is going up far out of line with other things. We have a four or five percent rate of inflation and postage on a letter is taking a 20 percent jump. The idea of the postage costing as much for sending a letter across the street as it does to California is in line with post office thinking. They do not charge by the service performed but by how much they need to pay for the service. N.F.

A MONOPOLY

There is little need to argue about the cost of sending letters. The post office is a monopoly and until Fax machines take the monopoly away they will simply charge what they want for the service. The odd thing is that the post office has already admitted that it has cut back on service and that it will take more time to deliver a letter. Yet at the same time they have decided to charge more for the service. Only a government could do things like this. K.R.

LOCAL SUBSIDIES

The question you pose is an interesting one that I had not thought about before. If we send a letter cross town, we pay the same as if we send it across the continent. It appears to me that local and short distance mail is being used to subsidize long distance mail. The telephone company could not get away with that. They said AT and T was a monopoly. But the same thing is being done by an agency of the government that broke up the AT and T. Judge Green where are you? H.F.

NO FREE ENTERPRISE

There never was justice in the postal system of rates but it has gotten far worse since they claim that the postal service is operating as a private enterprise. The big problem is that it is a monopoly protected by every kind of unfair law you can think of. No one is allowed by law to deliver first class mail or to use your mail box even though you own the mailbox. Now the idea is that postage will go up just as high as they want and nothing can be done about it. We say we believe in free enterprise but the government is afraid to practice it. K.B.

NOT BETTER SERVICE

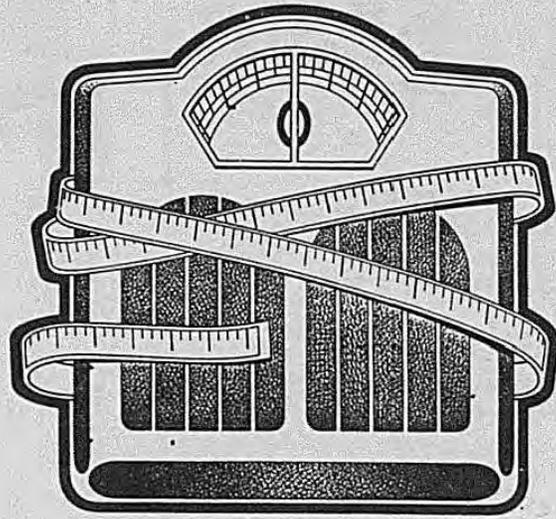

I believe the postal rates proposed are too high and unwarranted. The increase in rates is not being tied to better service. In fact the postal service is looking for ways to give us worse service. When various private systems started to deliver packages at a fraction of the time that the post office, the service began to improve slightly on packages. On letters no one is allowed to compete with the post office so at 30 cents we will get worse service unless we have fax machines. M.F.

MAKES NO SENSE

If the question is aimed at the fairness or lack of fairness in charging the same exorbitant fee for up to 100 miles as opposed to as much as 3,000, clearly there is no justification. On that basis, it is no longer a charge for a measured service for value received and is more truthfully a tax. As it is, the five cent increase is outrageous and simply wouldn't stand up if the postal service were really a competitive entity without tax support battling for survival against other independent competing corporate service industries. As a case in point, for years in this Village we have been experiencing and listening to stories of shoddy postal service and despite publicised efforts to get to the bottom of the problem, complaints continue creating a feeling of helplessness on the part of the public. The odd part is that private industry in any field is admonished under penalty of criminal prosecution to avoid any attempt to regulate or avoid competition in defiance of the Sherman anti-trust law. Without competition, there is no need for cost and price controls and the five cent postal increase regardless of distance comes into being without much of a challenge and as an accepted fact. Perhaps if stamp charges were based upon destination, the subsidy of long distance letters by local services as presently contemplated would be apparent creating a challenge for private enterprise obliged to use the service, sufficient to raise a hue and cry about exorbitant costs. Needless to say, 30 cents regardless of service performed just doesn't make any sense at all.

Is Dieting Fun?

By Marilyn Tadross

A diet, much like a budget, is a plan that requires discipline. Most of the time, one pursues one of the above when in distress about the state of affairs in question. The day the zipper on your jeans gets stuck short of east meeting west is the day you generally decide things are desperate and you must begin that diet ... again.

Like so many others, I have been riding the diet roller coaster since birth. Sometimes I diet alone, and sometimes I join similarly newly-avowed pudgy friends who need company while pushing away the cake and washing the lettuce or walking the longest mile.

One day, someone who I thought was a friend, called and said "Hi! How fat are you today?" I bantered a few minutes with her joking about how the holidays had done her in and she found out that hiding in the closet just wasn't fun, so she was determined to take it all off. We knew it was not easy to plan a serious diet alone, so we decided to join Weight Watcher's together.

All joking aside, I realized I had reached the panic stage as well, and it probably was time to admit publicly that I was desperately seeking skinny. There must be something serious about paying money in order to lose weight because once you have spent a considerable amount, you really feel responsible to follow the directions. Also, knowing you have to face a scale every week and have someone write down how successful you have been or not been, it becomes a matter of conscience.

The first few weeks were so encouraging for the both of us that we each brought in another friend who hoped to whittle away those bulges that separated the glamour girls from us girls.

We had our books to write down daily menus, we had our scales to weigh the portions, and we had our determination. After all, how easy could it be for people who were raised to eat every last morsel on the plate so the people in Europe wouldn't starve, to suddenly leave food on the plate, or not take a little more of what you loved.

We had to face the facts of all our bad habits. I confessed that I would buy two warm loaves of Waldbaum's Italian bread, eat one as I walked around the store shopping, and pay for an empty bag at the register. That was definitely not Portion Control.

Misery really loves company, because eventually we had persuaded a few more of our friends to join us. We distracted the class somewhat because we would compare notes while the lecturer was trying to make her point to the group. Maybe we even distracted her. Anyway, that's when we decided that maybe instead of each one of us going about our business after the morning meeting, we should carry over into a light lunch so we could discuss our plan of action for the week - which whole grain bread to buy, and which salad dressing to make. Lunch out could get to be expensive, so we decided to rotate and do it at home. The first lunch was a huge success. The hostess served cottage cheese, fruit and tuna salad. We gabbled all afternoon and found that we were encouraged by the group therapy program.

We all proved that we were serious because the first time it was our turn to have the Weight Watcher's luncheon, we served exactly the same menu. We compared notes on our success in the program, and we had each lost several pounds. So now that we had the diet under control and we automatically reached for the Wasa crackers instead of the Ritz, we could become a little more creative with the luncheon menu.

It started innocuously, probably in light of the fact that during our extended lunches, we all became very good friends. Defenses were down since we were a group with a purpose, and we each told the truth about our failures not only in losing weight, but in other parts of our lives. We began to discuss very personal stories, and look to each other for advice. We formed our very own discussion group with an emphasis on helping each other out with difficult situations, and we really didn't realize what happened along the way.

There were eight of us in this group; we looked forward to getting together, and even after some had stopped going to the Weight Watcher's meetings for one reason or other, we made it a point to get to the luncheon. About eight months had passed. Two girls reached goal, four had lost interest, and two were still attending meetings. We still all met for lunch, sometimes rearranging other appointments or juggling jobs, children home from school, or whatever else came up.

It really had to happen. Cottage cheese became boring. Lettuce needed help besides all those crunchy veggies. The jello molds just sat there untouched. One day, someone made a quiche. It smelled so delicious, and we devoured it. Naturally, the next time, the hostess had to entice us with something special, so she served something a little more tempting than tuna salad. Suddenly, it became a challenge. What could we serve the girls that was special, but still sort of on the diet program. Then it happened. One day, one of the girls served wine with crepes for lunch. We all succumbed to the wonder of what we could produce that would be delicious instead of routine. The day had to come. Someone (I won't mention names) served cake.

We started with such good intentions. How could we fall so quickly to the temptations of cake. No one refused a piece, and the die was cast. Good friends just always eat cake together, and we were no exception. A year had passed, and the holidays were upon us again. This new group of friends had introduced husbands to one another, and we partied together. We all picked up the busy pieces of our lives, and our luncheons were becoming more difficult to attend. Instead of planning one each week, we were trying to manage one every other month, but not for lunch - we didn't all have that much free time it seemed. Now it was cake and coffee!!! Anyway, isn't that what real life is all about. Who can really live without cake?

Now and then someone will mumble something about starting Weight Watcher's again, but it's usually when we are all looking at the clock and saying we have to run to do an errand or pick someone up (or maybe, just run to the bakery to get some cake for dinner!).

READER RATINGS

There is a truly great restaurant in Great Neck called Ristorante Giulia at 570 Middle Neck Road. We dined there Friday night and it was absolutely superb.

We started off with their antipasta which is on display as you enter the dining room. Sliced salamis, milky mozzarella, roasted peppers, marinated and grilled eggplant and zucchini, asparagus vinaigrette and olive. The menu was so exciting we asked for assistance and had two pastas, orricchetto with fennel and penne with a vodka sauce. Then a charcoal-broiled red snapper for two with a freshly made herb, lemon and garlic sauce that we agreed was the best we had ever tasted.

We topped off this great dinner with cappuccino and not one but an assortment of several mouth watering desserts. If you are in the mood to be pampered, or wish to celebrate a special occasion, I doubt you can do better than to indulge yourself at Giulia's Ristorante. Incidentally, the place is owned and operated by two charming brothers, Ivan and Pietro. I am confident you will want to make a return visit.

E.H.

Q. As newlyweds, we're giving our first dinner party in a couple of weeks. I'm doing a roast leg of lamb and am frankly terrified that disasters will occur. With my luck and inexperience, the lamb will fly off the platter onto the floor when I bring it in to be carved; the vegetables will be understeamed and hard and the desert custard will be runny and never harden. I mean, I am catastrophic!

A. Courage! "Disasters" happen all the time to first-time, experienced or even professional cooks. You can cope, first of all, by maintaining a sense of humor, and sometimes by adding artfully, of course, a bit of bluff.

Pick up the lamb off the floor (with your hands encased in oven mitts, naturally) and say something to your guests like this: "That's how I always bring out the flavor in the meat. It's the final touch I always add."

If you've undercooked the vegetables, talk about how you purposely did it to give your guests "all the vitamins and iron they will need for the next month."

As for the runny dessert, spoon it into wineglasses. Put on top of the glop in each glass a strawberry, a sprig of mint or a shaving of chocolate, and give it a new, glamorous name — like "Meryl Streep's Dream Custard." Your dinner will be a great success, I promise you.

READER RATINGS

Q. Is it proper to tip soup or dessert dishes? And when is soup eaten with a spoon? I sometimes see people drinking bouillon, etc. directly from a cup. Is this correct?
C.T.

A. The tipping of a soup or dessert dish is acceptable if the plate is tipped away from the spoon, not toward the eater. Soup or bouillon served in a handled cup or (Oriental fashion) small, cup sized bowl may be drunk. If there are vegetables or other garnish floating on top, these may be lifted off with the spoon before the soup is drunk. Noodles or other things which may be in the bottom of the cup are spooned up after the liquid has been drunk.

Q. If bouillon is served in a cup, do you drink it? Should you take part of it with the spoon? What if the cup has two handles. Do you use both hands?
B.K.

A. Spoon up part of the bouillon before taking it up to drink. If the cup has one handle, hold it in one hand. If it has two handles, hold it by both handles. If the bouillon has solids in it, take them up with the spoon before drinking the bouillon.

Q. If someone asks you to dinner, shouldn't he make the reservations, tell you where to come, and pay for the meal?
A. Yes. The person who does the asking takes the responsibility for making the arrangements and for paying, unless it is clearly understood before hand that it is "dutch".

Q. In my particular line of work I frequently entertain clients in elegant restaurants. Once in a great while I am forced to change the date of an appointment. What is the best way of handling this situation?
a. Obviously, you should not change the date unless it is absolutely necessary. If you must cancel, call personally - this is something your secretary should not be asked to do - and set a new date within a few days.

DELIGHTFUL RESTAURANT

I would like to tell you about a delightful restaurant in Williston Park: "Your Place and Mine." My husband gave me a surprise party. "Your Place and Mine" was turned into a circus arena - complete with balloons, a colorful tent, a magician, and waitresses dressed as clowns. The buffet displayed a variety of delicious foods and scrumptious desserts.

Truly - a wonderful time was had by all. RRC

SPECIALTIES
The LaMarmite in Williston Park is one of the top restaurants on Long Island according to the ad you have. We will go along with that. We have been going to this restaurant on and off for some time. It is something special and spoils you for the many other "run of the mill" places.
One thing nice about the LaMarmite is that it has several specialties of the house each day and they are genuine specialties. We have been disappointed elsewhere with the specials because they often turn out to be items that were made of leftovers. At LaMarmite, we have to say that the specials are really "special."
Another fine point about LaMarmite is that you are given attentive service from the beginning with the valet car parking to the end of the meal. This is really a first rate restaurant. G.E.

WONDERFUL CUISINE
Koenig's restaurant is one that defies time. It has been around for a long time but every time we go there we are well satisfied with the wonderful continental cuisine.
Koenig's is a place of good decor and it is a very comfortable restaurant. The establishment caters to large parties but if you come there with just two people, as we did, you are made welcome. The menu includes beef, chicken and veal and there is a large assortment of fish dishes. The prime ribs we chose were great and we think Koenig's is Floral Park is No. 1. Y.T.

Q. How can I be sure what fork to use when dining out?
A. Your dinner fork is the outside one next to your napkin on the left side. Your salad or dessert fork is placed just left of the plate.
Q. This past summer while traveling abroad I noticed that many foreigners have strange ways of summoning waiters. They sometimes clap their hands or whistle! Don't you think this is rude?
A. Not at all, this is a case of different customs in different places. You can see why travel is "broadening"!

Alfredo's Swiss Chalet is a blend of Continental expertise and Swiss hospitality. Begin with the Carpaccio of Prosciutto known here as Roshenken whereby paper thin slices of moist meat are contrasted with crunchy Gherghin pickles with tomato, lettuce and spicy mustard. A creamy light house dressing is ingeniously hidden under a mound of angel hair shredded carrot in a salad of crisp greens, cucumber and radish.

Among the very generous portions, the Pork Chops are prepared in traditional style; Berne Schlacht Platte is a sampling of wonderful wursts.

Veal Gruyere is smothered in freshly sauteed mushrooms with a light gravy. Veal Veronaise is topped with capers and anchovies in a great contrast of textures and flavors. Wiener Schnitzel a la Holstein is a winner.

One may opt for a filet mignon or steak cooked to succulent delight.

Seafood lovers will find the sauteed pan sole deftly prepared and the Jumbo Shrimp, egg battered, sauteed in their own juices with a surprising garnish of fresh mushrooms and red pimiento. A whimsical touch is that this gourmet dish presents the shrimp still wearing their tails so one may enjoy them informally.

Potatoes Rosti are another marvel of not quite angel hair shreds buttered and cooked to crunchy delight served gracefully on a hot dish, in the style of Potatoes Anna. Fresh vegetables are savory, tasty and al dente.

The Specials Board is well lit and easily read. Entrees include vegetable and salad and range from $14.99 to $19.99.

Strudel heated to contrast the cold dollop of ice cream served with it has some competition from the Hazelnut Torte or the Grand Marnier cake or Cheesecake; but there is no topping a freshly perked pot of coffee. Espresso is also on the menu and welcome.

It is all here, folks, from the dryist-coldest martini to sesame breadsticks, in an ambiance of Swiss farmhouse generosity and hospitality and, surprise, a not unkind tab. We'll be back, with friends.

HISTORICAL AND GOOD

Last week we went to the Milleridge Inn in Jericho. This large restaurant is like a trip into another world. It has the historical approach to hospitality with the hostesses garbed in American continental dresses. The buildings are wonderfully restored Revolutionary era buildings. The floors are wonderfully shined and add to the special feeling of going to the Milleridge Inn.

The food is exceptionally well prepared and the menu is a large one. Our party of four found it to be a wonderful time and we recommend it to everyone. H.F.

Q. When inviting someone to a business luncheon, how far in advance should the invitation be extended?

A. Few people like last minute surprises. It is best to extend the invitation at least a week in advance.

Luna ITALIAN RESTAURANT

"Recommended by Peter Glionnotti, Newsday"
As seen in the Daily News
Walter Kaner's Column
OPENED TWO YEARS
ago, Luna is a warm, cozy, intimate 65-seat dining room with a pleasant, attractive setting.

Launched by the Tudisco family in Elmont, the restaurant served several generations of families. In 1967, Tudisco's oldest son, Vincent, and his son-in-law, Stephen DeFlorio, opened the new Luna at the present location.

Pleasant in setting, the dining room features peach and light-tinted gray walls. Mirrors and colorful pictures adorn the walls. Rust-colored chairs add splashes of color. Fresh flowers on each table provide more color.

Chef Vincent Tudisco and family dish out a tasty array of appealing Italian specialties, with meats and fish of fresh quality and deliciously prepared pastas. The service staff is friendly, attentive and courteous.

HALLIGAN'S REVISITED: ANOTHER RAVE REVIEW!

After previously savouring a sumptuous Sunday brunch at Floral Park's Halligan's Restaurant, my wife and I decided to have a Friday evening dinner in their most tastefully appointed upstairs dining room. We were both completely captivated by their most professionally prepared and served cuisine. We started with a $9.95 heavenly heaping hot hors d'oeuvres for two: fried zucchini and mozzarella sticks with stuffed mushrooms and baked clams and shrimp oreganata, all prepared in a fantastic garlic, white wine and clam juice sauce.

We both decided to order our entrees from Halligan's blackboard specials and we most certainly were not disappointed! She most thoroughly enjoyed her $12.95 cajun swordfish and garden salad with homemade ranch dressing, fresh green vegetable and freshly baked potato. I raved over my onion soup, well-aged, medium rare prime ribs of beef, a Tuesday and Thursday $10.95 special, with truly superb green vegetables and baked potato. We complimented our delicious dinners with a full carafe of California's famous Paul Masson white wine for $8.

Neither my wife nor I bothered counting calories as we grand finale our truly memorable meal with two delicious desserts. She was served a generous portion of $3.25 chocolate mousse cake which lived up to its menu listing of "a chocolate lover's delight...a creamy milk chocolate mousse layered between fluffy chocolate cake". I ordered, for the first time, a $3.25 generous slice of grasshopper pie, which also fully lived up to its menu listing of "a delicious blend of frozen whipped cream, marshmallow, creme de cocoa, creme de menthe, and served in a chocolate graham cracker crust".

The blackboard proclaimed Halligan's best bet as its $15.95 17 ounce prime New York strip steak including soup or salad, vegetable and choice of potato. It seemed like a winner to both of us!

We were most courteously waited on by Debbie DiMisa of Floral Park, sister-in-law of Halligan's partner Joe Graziano of Floral Park, while Manager Adriana Lombardo of Elmont was our most hospitable hostess.

"You made our evening for us!" we chorused as we thanked the dynamic duo after asking them to give our compliments to the chef. J. DeG.C.

This Is Your Chance To Join "Reader Ratings"

The Last Word In Restaurant Guides

Where Our Readers Have The Last Word

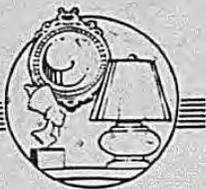

This newspaper, and the seven other weekly newspapers associated with it, publishes the last word in restaurant guides and a paid listing of many prominent selected restaurants in this area. While many of them have been rated by the great, and near great food connoisseurs, our readers will have the last word through "Reader Ratings."

Through a special 24 hour phone system, readers will be asked to call in their assessment of each restaurant they visit. Consensus ratings (good or bad) will be published as a continuing part of the guide.

In addition they can make suggestions, compliments or criticisms through the open phone line and messages will be sent through to the restaurant management.

Gracious living

Q. Our new condo doesn't even have the usual el in the living room that we could use as a dining area. Little, formal dinner parties have always been important to our lifestyle, and I'm keen to preserve the tradition in our retirement. But how? — Bereft in Del Ray

A. Gracious living is not dead; retirement doesn't have to cramp your style. You must simply change your thinking away from a formal, four-walled dining room to the more flexible arrangement demanded by your new living space. For instance:

• Think drop-leaf table.

Work a drop-leaf into your living-room arrangement — backed up to a wall or sofa — so you can pull it out easily for formal dining. The chairs can be scattered around the living room until you ring the dinner bell.

• Keep your dining room in a closet.

To work this kind of legerdemain, you need to have a wood round cut to fit a convenient table base. You can roll it into the closet between meals, so to speak, and bring it out for guests (your local lumberyard will cut the round — from ½-inch plywood — for a reasonable fee).

You may want to cover it with stapled-on padding for a nice touch of luxury, then bring out your tablecloths — the one we show here is made from Cynthia Gibson's new "Pretty Rooms" collection, an especially good idea since all the fabrics are stain-proofed with Du Pont's Teflon soil- and stain-repellent.

A couple of other good ideas include the coordinating wall coverings, triple-swagged balloon shades and chair cushions made to match. Your guests will never guess that your formal dining "room" actually is from "Brigadoon" and will disappear into the closet the minute they go home!

DINING ROOM — This dining room began with a table round cut from plywood and is dressed elegantly in Cynthia Gibson's fabrics, made practical with Du Pont Teflon soil- and stain repellent. Decor Score. By Rose Bennett Gilbert.

Miniature roses are versatile plants

By Patrick Denton

Potted and miniature roses seem to be making their welcome appearance in ever greater quantities and more extensive variety than ever before at local nurseries and garden centers these days. I wonder how many of these delightful plants were bestowed upon happy women this past Mother's Day.

Miniature roses are versatile plants. They are hardy and may be grown either outdoors or indoors. It is even possible to enjoy the best of both worlds with miniature roses by plunging their pots outdoors and bringing them inside during the best blooming periods.

I get my own two little specimens off to an early start by popping them into our cool but frost-free greenhouse in late winter. Once they resume active growth, I prune the plants to thin and shape them neatly. Then I replenish a top layer of their soil with fresh and resume regular fertilizing.

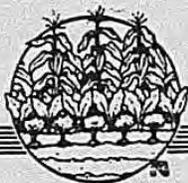

Miniature roses, outdoors or indoors can, in fact, be trained to many different shapes and used for many different purposes. If you find yourself in charge of a newly acquired potted rose, I think it's a good idea to watch it for a while to see what shape it seems to take naturally in full sunlight.

If, for example, your miniature rose seems to be taking on a rather loose type of growth with its branches draping attractively over the container's edge, then your plant is likely candidate for a hanging basket.

If, on the other hand, you find your rose taking on a rather upright form, almost like a slender tree, you probably could quite easily train your tiny rose plant into a standard or one-trunk tree form. This is done by gradually removing side growths lower down on the selected trunk. Staking the stem selected to be the main trunk will likely be necessary. The effect of a trained standard will be rather that of an umbrella — a central trunk topped by a small dome of flowering branches.

If your miniature rose turns out to be one of those that grows extremely teeny, you might like to try taking tip cuttings and rooting them under plastic for enough plants to fill a strawberry urn or barrel. Very miniature roses may be potted in teacups, candy jars, brandy snifters or cream jugs. My wife uses teacups that develop small cracks for such purposes.

So far we've enjoyed our miniature roses as patio plants during the summer. Outdoors, planted directly into a sunny, well-drained area, they make a fairylike edging for a regular rose garden, and they are also good subjects for rock gardens. Most should be planted about a foot apart.

Your miniature rose indoors will thrive best given as much direct sunlight as possible, constant soil moisture and high humidity. A large, open window with full, bright light is the preferred location for these plants.

The potting mix for a miniature rose, though it must be kept constantly moist, must also drain very well. Otherwise, the tiny, delicate feeder roots will rot. Whenever a plant must be repotted, a good mixture to use would contain one-third sterilized potting soil or sandy loam, one-third peat moss and one-third perlite or perlite-vermiculite mixed. Or a purchased potting mix may be used.

Potted roses require a very high humidity. They are good candidates for regular doses of R and R under a plastic bag. The pots should be set on waterproof trays of some sort (pie or cake pans, plastic food savers) containing fine gravel or clean, coarse sand and half-filled with water. Just be sure the pots do not sit in water.

And for trouble-free plants, keep them, their containers and evaporation trays squeaky clean. Remove all spent blooms and foliage and keep fresh air circulating around the plants.

Enjoy the richness of a creamy fondue

I love fondue: rich and hearty with hot melted cheese and traditionally laced with wine, this simple yet sophisticated dish originated in the mountain valleys of Switzerland. Fondue used to be a big item at cocktail parties and evening gatherings — not that it's unpopular these days, but the dip just isn't in vogue the way it used to be.

Keep fondue warm while serving. It's easy to prepare fondue in the microwave and serve immediately while it's still hot. If you have a chafing dish, you might transfer fondue to it for serving. This should keep cheese melted and warm all during serving time. Adjust the heat so that it keeps fondue bubbling lightly.

If you don't have a chafing dish, or if yours doesn't keep fondue warm enough, no problem. Just pop back into the microwave and heat at a lower setting (about 30 percent power) until warmed through, stirring frequently. If fondue becomes too thick, stir in a little more warmed (never cold) wine or other liquid ingredient.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.

MICRO-TIP OF THE WEEK

To soften cheese in the microwave, cover with plastic wrap and microwave at MEDIUM (50 percent power) 30 seconds to 1 minute, or until slightly soft to the touch. Cheese will be easier to slice, and more flavorful than that fresh out of the fridge.

FONDUE LAC LEMAN

2 cups diced Swiss cheese
2 cups diced Gruyere cheese
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 small clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon each paprika and freshly ground black pepper
1½ cups dry white wine
Large loaf French bread, cut into cubes
Assorted fresh vegetables, cut into sticks

Yields 4 to 6 servings.
Preparation Time: 10 to 15 minutes

Cooking Time: 7 to 11 minutes
Oven Setting: HIGH (100 percent power)

Combine cheeses, flour, cornstarch, garlic, and seasonings in medium-size mixing bowl. Toss to mix well.

Measure wine and pour into a deep, 8-cup microwave-safe casserole. Microwave until bubbles begin to appear, 3 to 5 minutes.

DO NOT BOIL. Stir in half the cheese mixture, blending well. Microwave 2 minutes, or until cheese is almost melted. Stir in remaining cheese mixture.

Microwave 2 to 4 minutes longer, stirring every minute with wire whisk, until smooth and cheese is melted. Serve with bread and vegetables for dipping.

CHILI CON CARNE FONDUE

½ pound very lean ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
1 (8 ounce) can tomato sauce
½ teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon ground cumin
1½ cups mild Cheddar cheese, cut into small cubes

Yields 4 servings.

Preparation Time: 5 to 10 minutes

Cooking Time: 7 to 9 minutes
Oven Setting: HIGH (100 percent power); MEDIUM (50 percent power)

Combine beef, onion and garlic salt in 1½-quart microwave-safe casserole. Microwave on HIGH setting 2 minutes, stirring well after 1 minute to crumble beef finely. Stir in tomato sauce and seasonings. Microwave 1 minute longer at HIGH setting.

Stir in cheese cubes. Cover and microwave at MEDIUM setting 4 to 6 minutes, stirring every 2 minutes, until heated through and cheese is melted. Serve immediately with bread cubes for dipping.

BRANDY-LACED FONDUE

1 pound Gruyere or Dutch Gouda cheese, cut into small cubes
1 cup dry white wine
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon each nutmeg and freshly ground black pepper
3 tablespoons brandy
1 large loaf French bread, cut into cubes

Yields 6 to 8 servings.
Preparation Time: 5 to 10 minutes

Cooking Time: 7 to 10 minutes
Oven Setting: MEDIUM (50 percent power)

Combine cheese, wine, butter, and seasonings in 2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover and microwave 5 to 6 minutes, stirring every other minute, until cheese is soft. Stir in brandy and microwave 2 to 4 minutes longer, or until cheese is thoroughly melted. Stir well with wire whisk to blend. Serve immediately with bread cubes for dipping.

Eggplant excellent as meat substitute

Many people today are reducing their consumption of red meat, or eliminating it entirely from their diet. Fortunately, there are lots of excellent main course recipes that use little or no meat, and today we're featuring two that have eggplant as their central ingredient. Today's other recipe is for a quick and easy eggplant casserole that can serve either as a meatless main course or as a distinctive vegetable course.

In Italy, China, France and other countries, eggplant has long been valued both as a satisfying meat substitute and as a vegetable accompaniment to other dishes. Today's recipe for Eggplant Parmesan is an original one — quite different from the usual casserole-type preparation — which has received good reviews from both carnivorous and vegetarian guests. Eggplant Casserole, with cream, butter and fresh cracker crumbs, is a rich, yet delicately flavored dish. Eggplant Stuffed With Sausage and Feta Cheese, with a flavor reminiscent of Greece, is a hearty entree that is both delicious and dramatic.

The large, dark-purple eggplants (Solanum melongena) familiar in this country are native to the warmer parts of Europe. They are called aubergine in France, and many English-language cookbooks also refer to them by this name. Oriental eggplants are much smaller and more elongated than the ones common here. As a rule of thumb, if you're following a recipe that calls for Oriental eggplant, use one common eggplant in place of four of the Oriental type.

EGGPLANT CASSEROLE

Preparation/cooking time — 35 minutes
plus do-ahead steps
1 medium-sized eggplant
1 cup fresh cracker crumbs
½ stick butter, plus more for dotting
1 pinch nutmeg
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup heavy cream

DO-AHEAD STEPS

1 Peel and cube eggplant and soak in cold salted water 30 minutes.

2 Drain and boil in enough salted water to cover, until tender. Drain well and transfer to large mixing bowl.

3 Mash eggplant with fork. Add ½ cup cracker crumbs, butter, nutmeg, salt and pepper and cream. Blend well.

FINAL STEPS:

Pour eggplant mixture into shallow baking dish and sprinkle with remaining cracker crumbs. Dot generously with butter. Bake, uncovered, at 350 F for 30 minutes or until golden brown.

NOTE: Performing do-ahead steps up to 24 hours ahead of time improves casserole's flavor.

Serves 4 as a vegetable course, or 2 as a main course.

EGGPLANT STUFFED WITH SAUSAGE AND FETA CHEESE

Preparation/cooking time — 40 minutes plus do-ahead steps

2 eggplants, 1 lb. each, or equivalent
½ lb. bulk pork sausage
1 cup chopped onion
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 tsp. dried oregano
½ cup chopped fresh parsley
½ lb. feta cheese
2 eggs beaten with ½ cup milk
¼ cup olive oil
½ cup (approx.) fresh bread crumbs
Salt and pepper to taste

DO-AHEAD STEPS

1 Cut eggplants in half lengthwise and scoop out pulp, leaving a ¼-inch-thick shell.

2 Chop pulp coarsely and sprinkle generously with salt. Place salted pulp in colander and allow to drain 30 minutes, then roll in double layer of paper towels and squeeze gently to dry.

3 Meanwhile, sprinkle inside of eggplant shells generously with salt and pepper, and drain upside down on paper towels 30 minutes, then pat dry.

4 Sauté sausage until browned. Drain on paper towels.

FINAL STEPS:

In olive oil, sauté the onion and garlic until soft. Increase heat, add eggplant pulp and sauté another 5 minutes.

Add sausage, parsley and oregano, and salt and pepper to taste. Mix well and remove from heat. When cool, add crumbled feta cheese and milk-egg mixture. Fill shells and sprinkle with bread crumbs. Drizzle with a little more olive oil and bake 30 minutes at 375 F until golden brown and bubbly.

Serves 4 to 6.

Rx for a healthy heart

Here's a prescription for healthy living: Eat with your heart in mind.

That may not be as easy as it sounds; our aboriginal forebears did a better job of it than we do.

Since most of their protein was on the hoof, cave cuisine tended to consist mostly of inherently low-cholesterol, low-sodium fruits, vegetables, grains, tubers, roots, berries, beans, nuts and seeds. Plant foods provided 60 to 80 percent of the diet in those primitive societies.

Modern technology — which assures us a longer life through the use of vaccines and antibiotics — also has enabled us to all but reverse this percentage. To excessive protein we have added equally excessive amounts of fat, sugar and sodium, so that we now can expect to live long enough to succumb to such chronic illnesses as heart disease, hypertension, stroke and cancer.

A 1982 report from the National Academy of Sciences established that at least 50 percent of fatalities from the 10 leading causes of death in the United States are lifestyle related.

What that means, Jane Brody says in her comprehensive "Good Food Book: Living the Carbohydrate Way," is that we are "wiping out the public health gains of our younger years by the way we now live, and especially by the way we eat. ... A vast body of evidence indicates that the current American diet contains too much fat, sugar, protein and too little starch. ..."

Correcting that situation doesn't mean giving up all your favorite foods; it simply means establishing a more sensible nutritional profile — one high in complex carbohydrates (fruits, vegetables and whole grains) and low in protein, fat, sodium and cholesterol.

Since heart-healthy recipes are healthy overall as well, the following dishes are appropriate for the whole family. They were designed to fit into a diet moderately low in calories, cholesterol and sodium. They were not intended to supersede dietary restrictions prescribed by a physician.

Main dishes and desserts are emphasized, since they are generally the hardest for people to adapt. Calorie, cholesterol and sodium counts are given where available.

The simple spud

Here are a few recipes to try on those days when a plain baked potato doesn't strike your fancy.

BALLYMALOE POTATO AND FRESH HERB SOUP

- 3 tablespoons sweet butter
- 1 cup peeled, chopped onions
- 1 cup minced scallions
- 3 cups peeled, diced potatoes
- 1 teaspoon sea salt, or to taste
- Freshly ground white pepper
- Sprig each of parsley, thyme and rosemary (see note)
- 5 cups vegetable stock
- 1 cup milk or half-and-half

Yields 6 servings.

Heat butter in soup pot. Toss in onions, scallions and potatoes. Cover and simmer over very low heat for 10 minutes. Add salt, pepper, herbs and stock. Bring to boil, then cover and simmer until potatoes are very soft, about 10 minutes. If using fresh herbs, remove sprigs.

In blender or food processor, puree soup in batches. Return to pot. Stir in milk and heat thoroughly (but do not boil). Adjust seasonings and serve.

Note: If fresh thyme and rosemary are not available, substitute ¼ teaspoon each of dried.

Some people adore rutabagas, but I'm not one of them. However, when blended with potatoes, their aggressive flavor is tamed into an appealing assertiveness. Rutabagas must be peeled since their skin is almost always waxed.

It's best to mash the mixture by hand with a potato ricer. If you prefer to use a food processor, use the pulsing technique and proceed with caution or you'll end up with a gummy glob.

MASHED RUTABAGAS AND POTATOES

- 2 tablespoons butter or oil
- 1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
- 1 cup vegetable stock
- 1 pound rutabagas, peeled and cut into ½-inch dice
- 1½ pounds (about 3 large) russet potatoes, cut into ½-inch dice
- ¼ teaspoon salt, or to taste
- Freshly ground black pepper
- Additional butter, if desired

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Heat butter in saucepan. Sauté onion until lightly browned. Add vegetable stock, rutabagas, potatoes, salt and pepper. Bring to boil. Cover and cook over medium heat until rutabagas and potatoes are soft, about 12 to 15 minutes. Add water during cooking if mixture becomes too dry.

Transfer to serving bowl. Coarsely mash mixture with potato ricer, mixing in extra butter if desired. Adjust seasonings before serving.

I don't know about you, but I am glad to see a renewed interest in simple fare and down-home American food. We sometimes get so caught up in seasoning and sauces that we forget how earthy and satisfying a straightforward dish of rice or beans can be.

There is perhaps no vegetable more likely to benefit from a return to basics than the simple spud. It's all too easy to take potatoes for granted or to gussy them up in such exotic preparations that their essential good taste and irresistible texture are all but lost.

Whenever I get a yen for potatoes during the fall and winter, it's almost always for a baked potato. (In summer, I love a good potato salad.) I scrub the skin very well with a natural bristle vegetable brush because I consider eating the skin a major part of the dining experience.

My favorite topping for a baked potato is the Sesame-Garlic Dressing made by Nasoya. Based on tofu, this dressing is extremely flavorful and has only 40 calories per tablespoon. For variety, I sometimes throw on a handful of chopped scallions or alfalfa sprouts.

Another favorite requires a bit more planning. Slice scrubbed unpeeled potatoes very thinly and spread them out on a shallow baking dish. Drizzle the top with a few tablespoons of olive oil, a sprinkling of sea salt, and a generous pinch of dried rosemary. Bake in a preheated 350 F oven until the edges are very browned and crispy, about 75 minutes. A few minutes before the potatoes are done, sprinkle lightly with Parmesan cheese, if desired. (It is quite delicious without the cheese, as well.) This simple dish gets rave reviews from guests.

Many people avoid potatoes because they have the mistaken notion that they are high in calories. These people are probably confusing potatoes with french fries (which are loaded with fat) or with the calorific sour cream and butter that many Americans use for topping.

In fact, a medium-size plain baked potato has only 110 calories. It is a good source of vitamin C, a number of B vitamins, niacin and potassium. Spuds are also high in fiber.

Select potatoes that are firm, with unblemished skin and store them in a dark, dry place — a 45 F to 50 F temperature is ideal. It is not a good idea to refrigerate potatoes since excess coolness causes the starches to convert to sugar, imparting a bitter taste.

According to the Potato Board (which represents more than 14,000 growers), during any given season, there are over a dozen varieties of potatoes commonly available in different parts of the United States. Some are all-purpose, and others are best-suited to particular preparations.

Longer days — cause to celebrate

By Carol Cutler

We're almost over the hump. Though summer may not really arrive for almost a month, daylight-saving time begins at precisely 2 a.m. April 1. For most of us, the lengthening of the day means more time for pleasurable pursuits. Here we have true cause for celebration.

Despite the fact that the clock is supposed to be pushed ahead in the wee hours of Sunday morning, we begin thinking about it Saturday night. After all, that's the time most affected if a full night's sleep is to be enjoyed.

A dinner party is a novel way to cheer in the new season. But it should be an efficiently orchestrated affair to guarantee that everyone gets home early enough to make up that extra hour of sleeping time. This means a menu that is largely prepared ahead of time to avoid any delays in serving.

Begin the meal with Shredded Lettuce Soup, an emphatically flavored chicken broth poured over crisp iceberg lettuce. The soup is better if prepared in advance and simply reheated.

Ground lamb makes an inexpensive and unexpected main course. First season the meat well with onions, garlic and especially ground cumin for a Middle Eastern flavor. Form meat into flat patties or shape into a sausage and gently slip onto a skewer. Either way, grill the meat just before people arrive and keep in a warm part of the kitchen; it does not have to be served piping hot.

Mix your own three-bean salad by combining cans of well-drained and rinsed chick-peas, black beans and kidney beans. Add chopped scallions and a zesty dressing. You will have a far fresher-tasting salad than the ready-mixed versions that have been marinating in a can for goodness knows how long.

reset the clock before going to bed.

Make the clock your party theme. Buy plain white paper place mats and draw a clock face on each one, setting the hands at 2 o'clock. Do the same with white paper cocktail napkins. Then as each couple leaves give them one of the napkins as a last-minute reminder to push back the clock.

A novel idea almost always guarantees success, and so it will be with your party. The only problem is that in a few months everyone will be expecting another party to kiss daylight-saving time goodbye. Gray and black is the perfect color scheme for that one.

SHREDDED LETTUCE SOUP

- 8 cups chicken stock
- 1½ teaspoons curry
- 6 thin slices fresh ginger
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 4 teaspoon Tabasco, or more to taste
- 1 head iceberg lettuce
- 2 teaspoons dark sesame seed oil

Yields 10 servings.

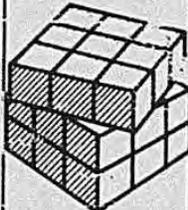

Pour chicken stock into pot. Make thin paste of curry with a little water, and add it to stock, along with ginger, soy sauce and Tabasco. Cover and simmer 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, shred lettuce and distribute among 10 soup bowls. When soup is ready to be served, remove it from stove and add sesame seed oil. Remove ginger slices and ladle hot soup over lettuce, which will remain somewhat crunchy.

Take the easy road for dessert. Order a cake from a local baker and have him decorate the top with chocolate icing. Not just any decoration, but a clock face with the hands at 2 o'clock. This time setting serves as a reminder to

Few homes now have cold cellars

But rugged potatoes need careful storage.

Here's how to best keep them:

1. Keep potatoes in a cool, dry, dark, well-ventilated spot. Best temperature is 45 F to 50 F.
2. Above 50 F, sprouting and shriveling occur. But the spuds are usable, just remove sprouts.
3. Do not refrigerate potatoes. Below 40 F, potato starch turns to sugar; potatoes will darken in cooking.

Spotches on wood may be from mildew

Q. We have just purchased an older home with natural wood siding, which is one of the things that attracted us to this house.

We are anxious to preserve the natural appearance of the wood. However, we are worried about some splotchy discoloration that appears in some areas, particularly on the shady side of the house.

Can you make any recommendations on how we might get rid of these rather dark spots and also preserve the natural finish of the wood overall? — J.N.

A. If left untreated, wood will darken with age. But there are methods of restoring much of the original natural finish.

The dark splotches could be caused by mildew, which is often mistaken for dirt. Mildew can grow on any building material not protected against it. It forms dark spots on the surface. Gray, fan-shaped areas spread below these spots as spores from the original colony are washed down and multiply. Severe infestation can cause a uniformly gray or black discoloration of large surface areas.

To remove a mild case of mildew, scrub the surface with a mild cleanser or detergent. Next, rinse with a household bleach, to kill the surviving spores.

For more severe cases, use a solution of ½ cup of trisodium phosphate mixed with ½ cup of detergent, 1 quart of household bleach and 3 quarts warm water. Scrub the siding with a stiff-bristle brush (do not use a wire brush) and rinse with plenty of clear water.

The most effective treatment for brightening the natural finish and restoring the color is to use oxalic acid. Dissolve 4 ounces oxalic acid crystals per gallon of water in a non-metallic container. Using a cloth or soft brush, apply to an entire board or area at a time. When the wood dries, rinse with clear water. (More than one application may be necessary if discoloration is severe).

Use extreme care in handling oxalic acid, which is poisonous but not dangerous if precautions are taken. Wear rubber gloves, avoid contact with skin or eyes. Pour acid into water when mixing; never pour water into acid.

When the siding has been cleaned of all mildew spotting, dirt and grime, and treated with oxalic acid, the natural brightness of your wood siding should be restored.

To protect the wood in the future, be sure to treat the siding with a water repellent or a pigmented stain.

The importance of a protective coating cannot be over stressed. If mildew is one of your problems, consult with your paint dealer to choose a commercial mildewicide that can be added to the type of finish coat you use, or be sure to select a finish that already has a mildew repellent in its composition.

Q. We have recently moved into an apartment with a vinyl floor covering. The surface is dingy and even sticky at times. Our landlord says it is a no-wax vinyl that should not require waxing.

Do you have any suggestions on treatments for this type of flooring that would add shine and prevent the sticky problem, which attracts dirt?

I do not want to replace the flooring in a rental unit. — G.M.

A. This is a common problem with older vinyl flooring that is not of top quality. To restore the shine, the first step is to strip the floor of any existing cleaners and waxes that may have been used.

Vacuum the floor thoroughly to remove all dust and food particles, then scrub with a stiff-bristle brush and a solution of water and ammonia. This will remove any previous waxes. Rinse so that the floor is entirely free of any dirt and grime. Allow to dry completely.

To refinish the surface, use two thin coats of an acrylic floor finish such as Future or Kleer. These products are available at your supermarket.

To maintain the finish, wash the floor with a mild, non-abrasive detergent such as Spic and Span or use a clean-and-shine product such as Mop & Glo or Step Saver.

Periodically restrip the floor as above and reapply the acrylic finish.

A book I recently came across (published in 1989) may be useful to you. It is called "The Question Is College" by Herbert Kohl, and it may be available in your school or local public library.

Your school counselor can no doubt be helpful to you in the college selection process, by providing guidance and also materials for you to read and discuss with him or her.

Generic drugs challenged by family physicians

A warning for senior citizens against the automatic acceptance of generic drugs instead of prescribed brand-name drugs has been issued by the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP).

In a "white paper" issued by the group at its September 1989 meeting in Los Angeles and then to a conference of editors of mature-market newspapers in San Diego, Ralph J. (Jerry) Mann, M.D., chairman for the two-year study, stated:

"As the patient's advocate and for the protection of our senior citizen patients we must speak out in our concern."

Mann is a private-practice family physician in Little Rock, Ark., and chairman of the AAFP committee on drugs and devices. The committee was created to maintain surveillance and make recommendations on legislative regulatory and public activities relating to drugs and devices in health care, according to a statement in the white paper.

The organization represents 60,000 family physicians and challenges a trend by government, some insurers and health maintenance organizations to mandate automatic generic substitution whenever a lesser-priced, "non-brand" medication is available.

"A review of the medical literature reveals that generic drugs approved by the federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) are not chemically identical — the same drug entity in the same dosage form — to the brand-name product in many well-documented cases," states the white paper report. "All drugs approved by the FDA as generically equivalent frequently have not been found to be as safe and effective as their brand-name counterparts."

Cited as a basis for challenge by the physician is the fact that the brand-name drugs, in order to be introduced for professional and patient use, undergo extensive testing and proving — a process taking years and tens of millions of dollars in cost. Generic drug manufacturers are subject to a much simpler testing, "in vitro tests for drug identity, strength, quality, purity, disintegration or dissolution to establish bioequivalence." Human testing for most generic drugs is done on a limited basis and mainly on healthy young people, aged 18 to 24 (ranging only as high as age 35) who are within 10 percent of their ideal body weight.

Based on its research, the AAFP study has defined "critical patients," "critical drugs," and "critical diseases" in which there should never be mandatory substitution of a generic drug. These include:

- Critical Patients: Any person 75 or older and females living alone with more than one disease and taking multiple medications.

- Critical Diseases: Those that are difficult to stabilize, including asthma, congestive heart failure, diabetes mellitus, cardiac problems and the psychoses.

- Critical Drugs: "There are drugs for which the FDA allows a wider range of variance in determining bioequivalence, such as anti-psychotics and loop diuretics. Other drugs, as listed as 'B' substitutions in the FDA 'Orange Book' should not be used as substitutes.

"The academy encourages the FDA to revise or enforce its current definition of generic drug, and enact regulations requiring scientifically reliable methodology to ensure therapeutic equivalents, rather than bioequivalence."

The study also recommended that the FDA streamline its procedures for reporting drug toxicity and ineffectiveness, presently "burdensome and often without positive results. This does not encourage the reporting of problems related to brand-name or generic substitutes."

No blanket approval of generic substitutions should be allowed, as at present, states the AAFP in its recommendations. "If substitution is mandated, the academy encourages members to carefully monitor patients."

The physicians urged all family practitioners to be their patient's advocate in the use of effective medication, while maintaining that the academy "supports the concept of prescribing the least costly medication, if safety and efficacy are not compromised." And the group recommended that its membership continue the monitoring for generic drugs in each of its state chapters.

"My role as a family practitioner is as my patients' advocate," stated Mann in an interview. "Our relationship must be as a team in providing and maintaining the very best of health, and doing so without question. I subscribe to the findings of our committee of the American Academy of Family Physicians."

Previously, when problems arose because drugs didn't work, doctors often "assumed that the patient must be failing to take the medication," Mann said. "But we know now, through the wide variance in performance acceptance by the FDA, that the problem may be in the generic substitutions."

Switching from one generic drug to another generic, because of the tolerances allowed by the FDA, could cause significant differences in the effectiveness and increase side effects, according to Mann.

"If you have a question about the drugs you are taking, if you have a different or negative reaction to your medication or if you are feeling new side effects, talk to your physician immediately," recommends Mann. "We now know more about medications and the facts and potential problems of generic substitution. Discuss this question and your medication with your doctor soon."

Concurrently, the FDA has ordered several generic drugs off the market and is evaluating others in its new and continuing investigation of generic medications.

Is college right?

Dr. Abraham: Although I'll finish high school, I'm not a very good student (about a C average). Still, I want to go to college, but wonder what kind or which one will admit me. I also wonder whether I'll be able to get a good job after that.

Do you think it will be a waste of my time to spend up to four years in college, considering the school record I already have? Can students like me ever get through college OK?

Your advice will be very important to me. — Buster

Buster: Knowing more about your abilities and interests would help me answer your questions more completely. However, the fact that you want to go to college indicates that it probably won't be a waste of your time. It could provide valuable experiences, both while you go through them and also after you leave the program.

Yes, students like you often do successfully complete their college work, but there are at least a few "ifs" — if they choose a college that can meet their needs and select a major area in which they can succeed and be happy.

You might also consider starting at a two-year community college. The course credits are usually

It's not easy to find matching pattern

PITCHER & POT
...Pattern registered in 1879

Q: Enclosed is a picture of a water pitcher and chamber pot. According to the marking on the bottom, these were made by Edge, Malkin & Co. in Burslem, England.

The British Registry number indicates that the pattern was registered in 1879. I am looking for washbowl to match.

What would be the value of one and would this pattern be easy to find?

A: This pitcher and chamber pot are probably worth $125 to $135.

It would be very difficult to find a matching bowl; why don't you settle for a pattern that is similar? Either way, a bowl of this quality and vintage should sell for $50 to $60.

Q: This mark is on the bottom of my set of four Red Skelton "Freddy the Freeloader" plates. They were purchased over five years ago and I don't know what they cost.

Can you tell me anything about their value today?

A: These plates are reproductions of paintings by Red Skelton; they were produced by Crown Parian Ltd. in South El Monte, Calif., between 1979 and 1982.

The issue price was $55 to $60; the current prices range from $50 for "Love That Freddie" to $220 for "Freddie in the Bathtub."

Q: Do you answer questions about board games?

I have a trivia type game called "Take It or Leave It" based on the TV show, "The $64,000 Question."

Can you tell me if it is worth anything as a collectible?

A: This game was based on the radio show and preceded the TV show by many years. It was introduced by the Zondine Game Co. in 1942 and would sell for about $35 to $45 complete and in good condition.

Q: My father was given a Lionel toy train set right after World War II. It consists of a steam engine, tender, boxcar, Sunoco tank car and caboose. All cars have eight wheels.

Can you give me some idea of its value? The track is missing.

A: Your description suggests that this might be Lionel engine No. 258 with suitable other cars. As such, it would be probably sell for about $165 to $185 without track.

Q: Is there any value to an old postcard advertising Campbell Soup?

It has a picture of four small children, one dressed as a chef. It is imprinted "Campbell Kids" and "Campbell Soups — 10 Cents a Can."

A: Cards like this are very popular with collectors. This was made about 1920 and would probably sell for about $25 to $35.

What are the signs of distemper?

Q: What are the signs of distemper in dogs? Our puppy seems to have a cold. The puppy came to our house several weeks ago. We do not know where it came from, nor anything about its background.

A: The signs of distemper vary greatly among dogs. Distemper often appears as a severe cold. Most infected dogs have a fever for a few days, then a normal temperature for a few days and then another fever for several days.

Among the early signs are squinting, congestion of the eyes, white discharge from the eyes, weight loss, coughing, vomiting, discharges from the nose and diarrhea. Dogs with distemper often develop bronchitis, pneumonia and severe inflammation of the stomach and intestines.

The distemper virus may attack the nervous system and cause partial or complete paralysis. This often looks like "fits" or twitching. Nervous problems often persist many weeks after the dog has recovered from all the other signs of infection.

Another less common sign of distemper is hardening of the foot pads.

The signs of distemper may last from 10 days to several weeks. Because the signs are so varied and because distemper is so common, any sick puppy should be taken to a veterinarian for a definite diagnosis. Dogs that survive a natural infection usually develop sufficient immunity to protect them from distemper for the rest of their lives.

Distemper virus is shed from infected dogs in the mucus from their eyes and noses and often in their urine and fecal material. Kennels, runs, bedding and other areas used by infected dogs may contain the distemper virus for long periods of time. The virus can be carried by air currents in aerosol droplets and can contaminate water and feed dishes or toys.

JUNIOR EDITION

Aunt Tilly's Corner

This week my family started getting our old sailboat ready for the season. The boat is out of the water now. It sits on stands in a boat yard.

On the bottom of the boat are many barnacles -- small creatures that stick to the bottom of boats and have very hard shells. The barnacles are dead now because they have been out of the water for a long time, but when they were alive they were almost impossible to get off the boat. Even now we will have to scrape them off.

It amazes me that even though our boat had special paint that was not supposed to allow the animals to grow, they did anyway. The sea is an interesting place, with so many plants and animals living in it.

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

By William M. Acosta

Why the change in my SSI?

Q: Why does a change in my wife's income affect my Supplemental Security Income Payment? After all, I am the one who is disabled.

A: Supplemental Security Income is a federal program that provides payment to disabled people, as well as the blind and aged, who have little or no resources and income.

The federal law does not require support by relatives. But in determining eligibility, the law assumes that the husband and wife who live together share their incomes. Therefore, the income of the ineligible spouse is used in figuring both your eligibility and the amount of your SSI payments.

Q: I am approaching 62 years of age. I am now retired on a civil service retirement annuity of $750 a month.

Years ago I worked under Social Security for about five years. My ex-wife to whom I was married 15 years contributed into Social Security for over 25 years and will soon retire.

Will I be eligible for anything on her record?

A: It is possible that you could be eligible for divorced spouse's benefits. However, some or all of your spouse's payment may be offset if you have a government pension from work not covered by Social Security.

Even if you don't get cash benefits, you can still get Medicare at 65 on your spouse's record. Contact your Social Security office for complete information.

Q: I know that Social Security pays survivor's benefits to a worker's spouse and/or children, but what about a parent?

A: A parent may qualify on a deceased worker's record if certain requirements are met.

The parent must be age 62 and not be entitled to a retirement benefit equal to or exceeding the amount of the parent's benefit and must not have married after the deceased's death. The parent must have been receiving at least one-half support within a particular time frame.

Call your Social Security office to discuss the requirements.

Q: I will reach age 62 in February 1990. How soon should I apply for benefits?

A: You should apply for your Social Security benefits at least two to three months before you plan to stop working.

You can start your application by telephone and the rest of the process can be done by mail. Call (800) 234-5772.
