Play At Hicksville Public Library

Friday, September 14, at 8 p.m., the Other Vic Theatre Company will present the female version of the play, "The Odd Couple" at the Hicksville Public Library.

All welcome to attend.

The bad news... The charity baseball game that was to be held on Saturday, August 25, was rained out. But the good news... Sunday the 26th turned out to be a glorious day (even though the temperature went through the roof).

Mr. Al Ciccio, master of ceremonies, started the day off by presenting the teams and organizations responsible for the day's events. He acknowledged the three baseball organizations, The Hicksville Baseball Association, the Police Athletic League, and the CYO Athletic League. They assembled their respective All Star teams, managers, coaches and volunteers to make this day possible. The children of each team not only played their game, but, were also responsible for soliciting contributions for the Make-A-Wish Foundation. The guest of honor was a 12 year old young man named Andre Cenicco who, threw out the first ball, and had a great big Thank You for our community.

Officer Steven McDonald, his wife Patti Ann and their son Conor were invited to attend. They were honored by Hicksville when presented with a plaque. Mr. and Mrs. Jergensen, of Hicksville, were also presented with a community award in honor of their son, Paul Joseph, who's in the army with the 82nd Airborne Div., now in the Middle East.

HBA, PAL, and CYO would like to acknowledge the efforts of the many people who helped make Sunday's charity baseball/softball games a great success. The CYO boys All-Stars were the victors and took home the baseball trophy for this year. The girls trophy was won by the PAL All-Stars. Congratulations to all the teams. They played hard and well in very tough weather.

The Make-A-Wish Foundation presented HBA's Al and Rosemarie Rodriguez with a special certificate of appreciation for their extra special work in getting the concession shed in order for this special day. HBA donated all the profits from the day's concession sales to the Make-A-Wish Foundation, a sum of $717. With the monies raised by the ballplayers and others, the total donation so far is $2,800 plus. So, all in all, Sunday was a very good day.

Last but not least, HBA presented Mr. Al Ciccio with a special plaque in appreciation of his hard work in putting together this very special event, the Charity Ball Game.

We want to thank Hart to Hart Productions for coming to the rescue, volunteering their music for the afternoon and making the place swing.

Where should you put your money if you think interest rates are going up? Read below.

If you think interest rates will fall in the near future, you should find an investment that lets you lock in today's high rate. A CD for example.

On the other hand, if you think rates will rise, you should find an investment that lets you take advantage of rising rates. Like Norstar's Sure Thing™ CD.

You can't go wrong with this 15-month CD because it gives you two great options to choose from. For instance, say the Sure Thing rate rises. No problem. Just use the Rising Rate Option to change your rate to a higher current rate once during the first six months of the term.

But what if the Sure Thing interest rate falls? The Add-To-Balance Option lets you make one additional deposit during the first six months of the term at your higher initial rate.

For an even greater return. You may choose either one rate change or one additional deposit during the first six months of the CD's term.

To open your Sure Thing CD, stop by your nearest Norstar Branch. Or call on Long Island, (516) 547-7491. In New York call (212) 907-5105. Because even in today's economy, you shouldn't have to look high and low for a good investment.

7.82%
Annual Simple Interest Rate
8.25%
Annual Interest Yield
15 month term. Interest is earned daily and paid quarterly. Rates effective through 9/1/90.

Where should you put your money if you think interest rates are going down? Read above.

For Rising Rate Option: a change to a higher rate becomes effective at the date of the change and is not retroactive to beginning of the term. For Add-To-Balance Option: an additional deposit may exceed the amount of the initial deposit. However, combined balances of the initial deposit and the additional deposit can not exceed $100,000. One rate change or additional deposit per CD. Personal accounts only. Minimum deposit $500. Offer may be withdrawn at any time. Substantial penalty for early withdrawal. Member FDIC.

Hearing Scheduled On Tree Species

A Tuesday, Sept. 11, Public Hearing has been scheduled by the Oyster Bay Town Board to consider amending the Town's list of acceptable street tree species, it was announced recently by Town Councilman Thomas L. Clark.

"Through its own experience with planting trees, more than 1,000 during the last two planting seasons, and based on recommendations from the Nassau County Cooperative Extension and other horticultural agencies, the Highway Division has compiled a list of tree species that would be best suited to the Town's needs," Clark explained. "All of the species require minimal maintenance, are easily obtainable on Long Island and have root systems that will not buckle sidewalks and roadways."

The tree species on the list include Green Ash, Thornless Honey Locust, Little Leaf Linden, Tilia tomentosa, Japanese Zelkova, Bradford Pear, Hedge Maple, American Hornbeam, Turkish Filbert, Sawtooth Oak and Northern Red Oak.

Clark noted that the meeting is scheduled for 10 a.m., in the hearing room of Town Hall East, Audrey Avenue, Oyster Bay.

Right Around Home

By Maureen Traxler

She's a Winner! This August, Hicksville's own Pat (Patricia) Cuti placed 9th in the 1500 yard free style swim in the YMCA Nationals in Michigan. That's quite an honor considering the rigorous qualifying standard. Pat completed the nearly mile-long swim in a time of 18 minutes, 28 seconds.

Pat, a Hicksville High 9th grader this year, is no newcomer to swim competition. She began taking swimming lessons at Cantiague Park, and at 7 years old, she and her brother Michael, then 10, joined the Long Island Terrapins Swim Team. At that time, Pat swam in age group dual meets on Long Island and in the City. The Terrapins folded several years later, after the passing away of its coach.

Not one to be left landbound, Pat joined the YMCA Huntington Wild Bluefish. Practices took place in Huntington and Bethpage, and the payoff came when Pat was asked to go to the Y Nationals in Cincinnati when she was 12 years old. She placed 20th in the 200 butterfly. At 13, she went to the Nationals in Cleveland. And in addition to placing 9th in the 1500 yard freestyle this August in Michigan, she also placed 12th in the 200 meter butterfly.

Michael also swam in the Cleveland and Michigan Nationals. This August he competed in the 200 freestyle and the 200 butterfly and moved up in placement.

Pat participated in the Y's New York State competitions, which take place every year alternating between Long Island and upstate locations. Here, Pat took first place in the 200 freestyle, 500 freestyle and 200 individual medley, and she's been State Champion in her age group for three years.

"Swimming's a great sport," Pat says. Her practice schedule: Two hours every night and two hours on weekends beginning at 6 a.m. And during the summer: Double time. Two hours in the morning and evening. In Pat's own words, "I don't have much free time - ever." But she admits, "I like to swim; I like winning, and I like to race against other teams."

What Pat's been doing for herself, she's also been doing for Hicksville High. Pat joined the high school swim team when she was in 7th grade and qualified on relay. She swam the 400 freestyle in the State high school competition with three other girls, then junior Christine Mund, and seniors, Jeanine Sirey and Karen Karmen. The team set a new Hicksville high record.

Pat's brother Michael is Captain of the Hicksville High School Swim Team, and was last year's MVP. Mike graduates this June and is hoping to receive an athletic scholarship in swimming.

In addition to their swimming career, both Pat and Mike are honors program students, and Pat has been a member of the prestigious Junior Honor Society at the Middle School.

Pat's goals include placing higher in the Y Nationals. She also hopes to swim with a college team in the future.

Pat and Mike have plenty of loving support from mom and dad. They're there at competitions cheering them on and, of course, bearing the burden of driving to those 6 a.m. practices.

Remember the old adage: Nothing worth accomplishing is ever easy. Good Luck, Pat and Mike.

In Michigan this August, Pat Cuti (#1) competed in the YMCA National Swim Competition.

ARE YOU OVERLOOKING LONG ISLAND'S WILDEST NIGHTLIFE?

The black-crowned night heron (Nycticorax nycticorax) is a mostly nocturnal native Long Islander who is highly discriminating. You won't find him at just any watering hole. And for dinner the fish had better be fresh, the ambience unhurried.

You might say the black-crowned night heron is a hard bird to please. But The Nature Conservancy has been working hard for 38 years to provide the night heron and hundreds of other animals and plants the finest accommodations available on Long Island.

We've saved 18,000 acres of ecologically significant land on Long Island alone, from the last 19-acre remnant of the Hempstead Plains to our 2,000-acre Mashomack Sanctuary on Shelter Island. Nationwide, we've preserved nearly 4 million acres of forest, prairie, desert, island, and mountain. And our international program is fighting to save the world's rapidly vanishing rain forest.

You can help The Nature

Conservancy do its vitally important work. For $15, not much more than the cover charge for one of Long Island's hottest night spots, you can become a member of the Long Island Chapter. You will receive the Long Island Chapter Newsletter and

The Nature Conservancy Magazine to keep you informed of Conservancy activities. As a member of the Long Island Chapter, you can participate in hikes and education programs led by experienced naturalists, and you are welcome to volunteer to take part in Chapter operations.

If you're concerned about Long Island—not just about its native flora and fauna but also about the water we drink, the air we breathe, and the quality of life here—we urge you to give us a hand. Just call (516)367-3225. You can help protect your environment. And you can have a wild time!

'Night Train' Debuts At Hicksville

The Long Island Railroad unveiled an original work of art at the Hicksville train station in a ceremony held on Wednesday, August 22. Those on hand for the unveiling included Ronan Mulvey of Patchogue, the artist who created the painting; Charles Hoppe, President of the LIRR; Herbert Libert, Chairman of the Long Island Committee of the MTA Board; Assemblyman Fred Parola and Ann Ocker, Oyster Bay Town Councilwoman.

The painting, entitled "Night Train", was completed under the auspices of the MTA's Arts for Transit Office as part of the Creative Stations Program, designed to improve the appearance of railroad stations through the introduction of art. Local sponsorship was provided by the Wet Paint Studio Group Inc. of Sayville.

"Night Train" is an abstract work dominated by hues of dark indigo blue, purple and white to recreate the feelings and impressions of someone riding in a train at night. Done in acrylics using both brush and spray gun, the painting consists of three rectangular panels measuring approximately 15 inches by 10 feet, 18 inches by 10 feet and 27 inches by 10 feet. It is located inside the ground floor waiting room at Hicksville Station, on the western wall facing the ticket office.

"As one looks out a train window at night, lights of different colors come streaking by. Repetitive images will appear closer together or further apart depending upon the speed of the train and one is aware of the circuitry switching the train from one track to another," said the artist, Ronan Mulvey. "It is this feeling that I wished to capture in 'Night Train.' Even the shape of the painting is intended to capture the feeling of speed and motion."

The MTA's Arts for Transit

Program brings visual and performing arts to subway and commuter rail facilities in the metropolitan region for the enjoyment and enrichment of transit riders. The LIRR's participation in this endeavor has resulted in original works of art being placed on display at other railroad stations, including Smithtown, Huntington and Central Islip.

Hicksville P.O. Open Labor Day

The Hicksville Post Office at 185 West John Street will be open on Labor Day, Monday, September 3, offering limited services. The retail window in the outer lobby will provide postage sales as well as Express Mail.

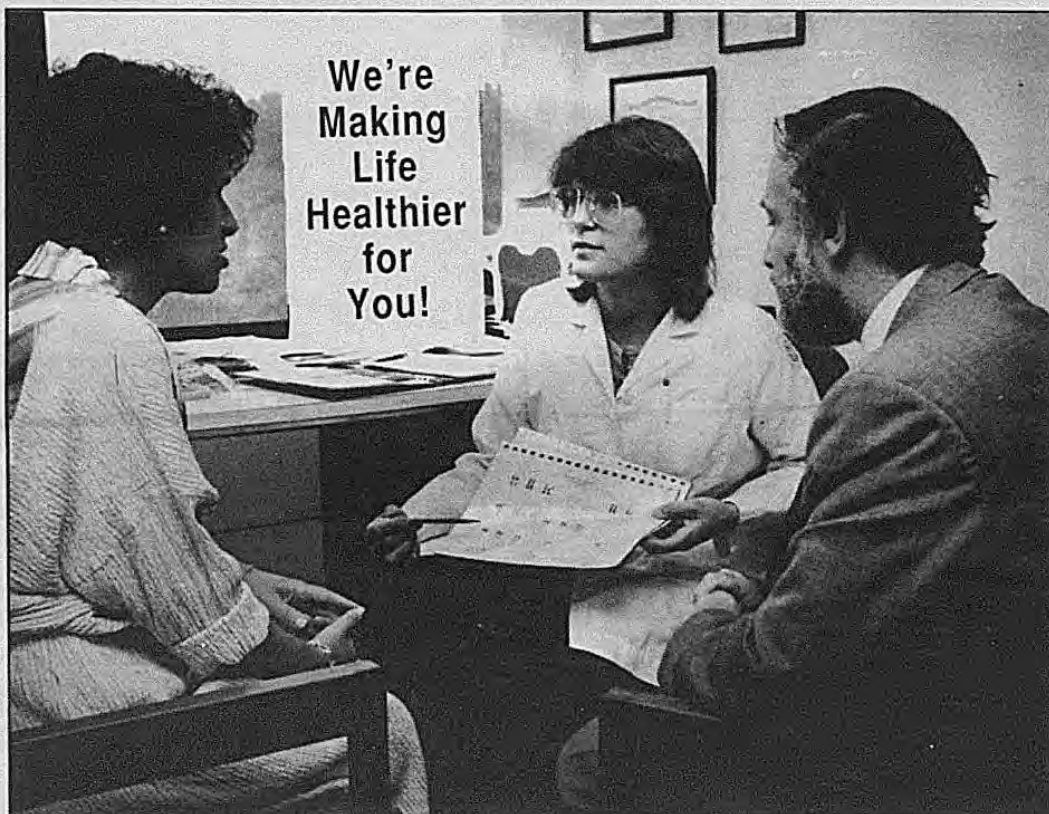

There will be no regular mail delivery on Labor Day except for Express Mail Delivery.

Town To Sell 65 Acre Site

Oyster Bay Town Supervisor Angelo A. Delligatti today announced that the Town Board has authorized the Town Attorney to commence actions to bring about the negotiation and sale of the Town owned 65-acre site in Plainview.

According to the Supervisor, the Board's action follows the issuance earlier this year of a request for proposals (RFP) to purchase the property. "The single proposal that was received," said the Supervisor, "was found to be non-responsive to the RFP and was, therefore, rejected."

The Town Attorney will now pursue, with the assistance of outside counsel, a negotiated sale of the site, which is adjacent to the north service road of the Long Island Expressway and is zoned for light industry.

Genetic Counseling

Having a baby can be the most joyous event in a family's life...

or the most devastating.

Each year more than 250,000 American babies are born with birth defects of varying severity.

Modern science, however, has made it possible for many genetically transmitted conditions to be detected. Genetic counseling uses the laws governing heredity to help prospective parents understand the risks they carry and which tests would be appropriate for them.

Now, at North Shore University Hospital at Glen Cove, such counseling is available to prospective parents who have questions about those potential risks.

This is just one of the new services being introduced at your community hospital...

News From VFW Post 3211

By P.P.C. Carmine A. Somma

We at the Wm. M. Gouse Jr. Post 3211 V.F.W. are asking all the Veterans Groups, Fraternal Civic Association, and the public of Hicksville to get everyone to sign a petition to ask our Long Island Congressional Delegation to use Lydia Hall Facility in Freeport as a Veterans Hospital Clinic. Since Nassau County has a large Veterans population at the present time, the only sole Veterans Facility is in Suffolk County.

We believe Lydia Hall in Freeport is a central location in the heart of Nassau County and is easy to get to by car and mass transit. Veterans from WWII are in their 70's or older, and the Korean Veterans are in their 60's and over, and the Vietnam Veterans are in their 50's. All veterans from all the wars will need some medical help in the near future. We are asking all our political leaders and the Congressional Delegation for their help to use Lydia Hall as a Veterans Hospital Clinic. If any groups would like a blank petition or more information, you can call our chairman Connie Steers at 822-5938 or call the V.F.W. Hall at 931-7843.

Ray McGrath, a Congressman from the 5th C.D. (R-Valley Stream) has an article in one of the local papers in Valley Stream about his meeting with U.S. Secretary for Veterans Affairs Edwards J. Derwinski. Several years ago, Congressman McGrath tried to convince the Veteran's Administration to open a veterans and care facility at the Nassau County Medical Center which has several wards of unused bed space. The request was denied because the V.A. believed not enough veterans were in the area to use the facility. "I could not emphasize enough to Secretary Derwinski that for the past several years top decision makers were unaware of the numbers of veterans on Long Island," McGrath stated. "Last month I told the chairman of the house Veteran's Affairs Committee the same thing and he couldn't believe it. We have several hundred thousand veterans on Long Island and the level of health care currently available is inadequate."

Every Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. the V.A. Satellite Clinic from Northport is at the V.F.W. Hall, 320 So. B'way. Comrades and Sisters of the Post serve coffee and doughnuts to vets who come for medical help at the V.A. Satellite Clinic.

This is the time of year all Committee & Chairmen get in high gear with all committees. Our Jr. Vice Comdr., Al Vitiello, will start his annual Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program for all the Schools in the Hicksville School District. The Voice of Democracy is open to all the high school students of the 10th, 11th and 12th grades, both public and private schools in the Hicksville area. From October to January we are the only V.F.W. Organization in the Hicksville area that will be soliciting ads for our Souvenir Journal by letters. No phone calls will be made. For more information about the Voice of Democracy Scholarship call the V.F.W. Hall at 931-7843. Our Sr. Vice Comdr. Vincent Edwards has a committee that goes on all year around. Which is "Membership." His job is to collect your dues and bring in new members. If you are a Veteran who served in the Armed Forces during WWII, Korean, Vietnam, or any current conflict, join the V.F.W. Women are eligible to join also. For more information, give Vincent Edwards a call at 796-5147. We have our meetings every 2nd and 4th Monday of each month at 320 South Broadway in Hicksville or call the V.F.W. Hall at 931-7843. You must show your DD-214 to join. Ladies Auxiliary meeting on September 13, will have a guest from the Nassau County Auxiliary Police Unit 312 of Hicksville, presenting them with a donation. On September 2, The Annual Fireman's Labor Day Parade/Color Guards will be participants. On Labor Day, September 3, members of the Post will put out the Flags along Broadway and the side streets. Our Chaplain, Connie Steers, reports comrades and sisters who have been hospitalized or homebound during the month. Post member Ed. Kondracke's wife, Jean, is home from the hospital recuperating; P.P.C. Carmine Somma is home from the hospital recuperating. Our sincerest condolences to the families of Joseph Selvaggi and James Festa. Congratulations to the Comrades and their wives on their Wedding Anniversaries: Jean and Ernie Simuru, Nancy & Don Giacomelli, and Ida & Mike Montelione. Let's all say a prayer that all M.I.A.-P.O.W. and members of the armed forces in the middle east return home safely.

Our next Las Vegas nite will be held on September 14, from 7:45 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the V.F.W. Hall, 320 South Broadway, Hicksville.

Homemakers Meet Sept. 12

The Syosset Day Chapter of Homemaker's Council will hold a business meeting and membership tea on Wednesday, Sept. 12, at 10 a.m., in the Community Church, Fellowship Hall, 36

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

What do you think is the main cause of SAT scores in reading and math decreasing in New York State?

Mixed Opinions On War In Middle East

There were mixed opinions on whether there will be war in the Middle East in answer to this question: "Do you think a world war is inevitable in the Middle East?" Here are some of the answers.

NO LARGE SCALE WAR

I do not believe that there will be a large scale war in the Middle East. In fact I believe that Hussein has painted himself into a corner that he wishes he could get out of. He did not contemplate how the world would join together against him. He probably thought that Russia would, in some way, come to his aid because he has done business with them before. He is now in a minor panic. He might do something desperate but he does not have enough resources to go far. N.G.

PERFORMANCE COUNTS

There is definitely a chance for a large scale war in the Middle East. Even though most countries have lined up against Iraq it remains to be seen how they perform if the chips are down. Even the U.S. has the Vietnam history of half hearted fighting to contend with. If we just do the same thing in Iraq or Saudi Arabia, then we won't win and Iraq won't either but it will be a long senseless war. I think we must try harder to settle this through negotiation. We sit down and talk after blood shed. Why not before? M.F.

WAR SOLVES NOTHING

So many people seem to be itching for a war that I wonder if they are not as crazy as Hussein. A war never solves anything. We have had many wars in history and few, if any of them, were worth the loss of life. There should be other ways of solving problems and this is a time to find them. B.F.

FINALLY NEGOTIATE

Iraq will finally negotiate with the U.N. Hussein will withdraw from Kuwait but it will not be put out as a withdrawal but a negotiation. He must save face and there is nothing wrong with that so long as we get the poison gas away from him and get him back in his own territory. Iraq cannot afford a long war and without the oil revenue what good will it all do Hussein? He will finally see that point if the blockade is kept and if we do not foolishly give in to demands. J.H.

TIGHTEN BLOCKADE

I think we can really accomplish more by tightening the blockade and coming down hard on countries that won't join in. We should get tough sanctions against countries that start trading with Iraq. The country cannot hold out and there is no point in wasting lives. Hussein does not want a shooting war and that is the reason he has taken hostages. He wants to keep us from bombing because he knows all that he had thought he would gain in Kuwait can go up in smoke if his own oil fields are hit. C.G.

BUSH BACKER

I will leave it to President Bush. He seems to have a handle on what to do in this emergency and the world seems to be rallying to his side. He must be able to face head on the situation and if he thinks it will take military force then I believe it might be the only way. I do not think he will use force unless it is the last resort and there are some big dangers lurking by not being forceful enough. K.J.

DON'T FIGHT OVER OIL

The war hawks are at it again. There is no reason for the world to fight over oil. We can get along without it and without trading in the Middle East. I think we should not go to war over an issue like oil. F.D.

CONFRONTATION INEVITABLE

Yesterday, I felt that a world war in the Middle East was inevitable. That was before Gorbachev capitulated to the U.N. resolution backing the embargo against commerce in the Persian Gulf with force not unlikely. Needless to say, it had been difficult to predict the Soviet position in the face of their commercial and military trade with Iraq. I do believe that Hussein went too far when he attacked Iran years ago even though we, under the pressures of our hostage situation there did not exhibit any animosity toward Iraq at the time. However, the current situation was a direct confrontation as declared but the deadline was exceeded for complete evacuation of embassies. Nevertheless, there is still the matter of the American Diplomats and Marine guards who had been evacuated from the Kuwait embassy to Iraq and held up in Baghdad as "guests" despite the Iraqi promise to permit them to leave the country. The elements of the present situation with Hussein contemptibly violating the rights of other free nations just cannot be ignored and the rest of the free world would be insane to let Hussein get away with it. I'm afraid that he is an egomaniac who cannot be permitted to continue in power and any free nation which abstains from full support of our declared position would be doing a monumental disservice to themselves and to mankind as a whole. So, I do believe that a military confrontation of some sort inevitable in the area but I can't see it leading to a world war. Hussein lacks dedicated allies and all nations world-wide must realize the awful societal and economic consequences which would result. P.G.S.

The Way It Used To Be

By Paula Freda

The other night I sat watching a rerun of the Carol Burnett Show. One of the comedy sketches was set in an old apartment with tall windows and high ceilings. The setting brought back memories of the Brooklyn neighborhood in which I grew up.

During the fifties it was a fashionable neighborhood, clean, neat and safe. The older generation boasted that once a New York City Mayor had resided on one of its picturesque avenues.

I remembered the six-family apartment houses, clustered between the small cape cods. There were few, if any, front lawns in the old neighborhood, but the backyards, which ran the length of the entire block, were the country garden paradise of each owner. There were flower beds and vegetable patches and fruit trees, and arbors laced with rambling grapevines; and cats of every size, shape and color. Dogs were few.

Conveniences in the home were also few, with the bathroom mostly still a shared commodity and consisting solely of the toilet bowl and the overhead flushing apparatus.

Though long out of use, gaslight fixtures continued to perch on the plaster walls which were bordered by intricately worked molding. Ceilings were high, made of tin, and ornate in design. The windows were tall and wide, their wood frames nearly always covered by dozens of previous coats of paint which matched the plaster walls. Nails hammered into these walls always stood a fighting chance.

My grandmother, widowed since the first World War - she never remarried, saying she never found a suitor as wonderful as grandpa - lived on a limited income. Rent was $45 a month with leases a debatable issue until rent control arrived. We had four comfortable sized railroad rooms, with the larger room in the front (or the back, depending on what the dweller considered it to be), which usually had two windows overlooking the street.

Kitchens were also big, for they combined the cooking area, the dining area, and the bathing area. The bathtub, a deep, ponderous white metal structure resting on four short legs (it always reminded me of a hippopotamus) was located next to the windows overlooking the yard. It was covered by two white metal lids which opened individually and served a dual purpose - as a kitchen counter and as a body shield where one might also play a game of solitaire while comfortably immersed. Next to the bath was the high backed sink and the water heater. The faucet was set high enough to wash a huge pot comfortably, after one of grandma's unforgettably delicious spaghetti and meatball dinners.

To me summers seemed cooler than today's sticky, humid ones. Maybe it was because of the railroad rooms, with the front and back windows - a natural cooling system.

Grandma chose only second floor apartments - safer, she said, and then proceeded to put iron guardrails on all the windows, or rather she argued the landlord into installing them, so no one would fall out the windows.

She hung pretty pink or turquoise flowery plastic curtains in the summer, lovely embossed cotton pastels in the fall, and heavy red damask drapes in the winter. Lace curtains were reserved for spring and special occasions.

I recall waking up in the mornings to cats chattering, and a rooster cuckooing (someone on the block owned a chicken coop). Rabbits were also popular.

While mothers were busy cleaning (those that could afford to stay home), children played hopscotch and tag, and old women sat by their windows and watched them, while the old men sat on folding chairs on landings and played checkers and cards. In the afternoon they might stroll to the neighborhood park with its cobbled paths and sit and continue their games at wooden tables which were habitually left unoccupied just for them.

In those days cars were a luxury and the occasional driver was considered a nuisance by the youngsters on the block - the promising baseball players and the rope jumpers.

Most of the apartments and homes had wide stoops, and in the evening the residents would sit on the steps, conversing and gossiping and sharing their day's events. There were many social clubs and each adult social club had its junior order. I belonged to one of these junior orders. We called ourselves. The Knights of Trapani (Our Lady of Trapani). We were a group of clean-cut, fun-loving and eccentric teenagers, with a few members in their twenties. We would run processions, dances and political campaigns on hope and trust.

I will never forget the time we hired a dance hall and a band and had tickets printed with only five dollars in the club treasury. We ran the dance, paid our debts, and donated a generous offering to our favorite charity, The Little Sisters of the Poor who cared for the old and poor, healthy and sick, in an old-age home nearby, and we increased our club treasury by fifty dollars!

There was the night we held a Halloween Costume Party at the Club's meeting place - a converted store. The costumes and playacting could have won an Oscar.

I was Josephine Bonaparte, dressed in a light blue satin empire gown with a daringly low neckline which made very little impression as my equipment was not yet fully developed. My escort was attired as Superman. I had sewn both outfits myself. Among the costumed members was - Dracula - sleek dark greased-down hair, red blood (food coloring, I think - we never did find out for sure) dripping down a chalk-whitened chin, sharp canine fangs poised for attack, and dad's old wedding tux under mom's black evening cape which he swung to his face with a romantic eeriness as he spoke the phrase Belagosi made famous, "Guud Eeevning." And if I had not ducked, I sincerely believe he would have taken a bite.

Of course, no Halloween Costume Party would have been complete without Wolfman and the Mummy. Wolfman had rented an authentic costume, but the Mummy was the mastermind of the evening. He'd had himself wrapped in grey mystic tape from head to foot, with only two slits for his eyes and two for his nostrils, and just as the original Mummy, his lips were sealed with the tape and the only sounds he could utter were grunts and groans.

We laid him in a homemade oak casket, and one of my most treasured recollections is a scene we playacted in which Dracula and Wolfman dragged a shrieking virgin maiden attired in flowing white garments to the dreaded casket, and waited eagerly as its heavy lid, squeaking ominously, slowly opened, first revealing a molding bandaged arm, next an agonizing groan, and finally, the Mummy reached out and seizing the trembling, shrieking maiden, pulled her into the casket, as the lid slowly and ominously squeaked closed. (Not to worry, though. The Mummy and the maiden were engaged to be married.)

There's so much to remember, but I think what I miss most of that era and that neighborhood were the Sunday picnics at the neighborhood park. Here, families congregated on their day of rest to pass time together. I have vivid recall of those happy faces when the horseshoe hit its mark. I remember the ham and cheese sandwiches and Dr. Brown's cream soda. I can still hear the Italian men shouting and gesticulating excitedly as they played their bacci ballgame and the lithe young men with their soccer games. I remember the wisened old folks sitting quietly on faded grey benches, watching the children on the monkey bars and the swings, and the young lovers strolling hand in hand along the cobbled walks.

The children have grown, the lovers have married, some have divorced, and most of the wisened old folks have passed away. I like to think they've moved to a new neighborhood in the sky. It's no longer safe to walk in the tired old park's cobbled paths, and in today's technological toy age, hopscotch which we played with a hairpin or a bottlecap is almost obsolete. The old neighborhood is still there - beaten and bruised beyond recognition. The familiar faces and clubs have disappeared. The friends and neighbors have scattered in search of better residences.

*****

The television show was over. I turned off the TV and looked out the window. It was quiet on the tree-lined street outside. The suburbs is noted for its dark solitude. I wondered whatever became of the Mummy and the trembling virgin maiden in flowing white garments. An answer came readily to mind - They probably married and moved to the suburbs.

CONSISTENTLY GOOD

The John Peel room in the Island Inn is consistently a good restaurant. We have been there a number of times and have always found the food and decor especially enjoyable.

The menu at the John Peel room includes a complete dinner from appetizer through dessert. We had prime ribs there last Thursday and were particularly happy with the large portion of beef along with the fine ambiance of this restaurant, the service was attentive and prompt. As usual we had a good night at the John Peel room.

TOPS IN DINNERS

The New Hyde Park Inn is a landmark on Jericho Turnpike in New Hyde Park. Most people have been there many times for one banquet or another. Throughout the years it has served as a top catering hall for many affairs.

As a restaurant it is equally good. We went there last week and found that it has a full menu for dinner and that all of the good things that were at banquets can be had in the restaurant. Because it is a festive type place it is a great one to celebrate a birthday as we did. Tell your readers that the New Hyde Park Inn is tops for dinners. We know. We were there.

Q. At restaurants that have dancing and dinner, should you wait for all your food to be served before dancing?

A. The usual procedure would be to wait until after the main course. Dessert can be broken by a trip to the dance floor. However, if the time between courses is extended then a dance may help pass the time between courses.

Q. Will you please describe the correct procedure for introducing one couple to another (1) when the couples are approximately the same age (2) when one couple is older or more distinguished in station than the other? M.J.
 A. When the couples are about the same age it doesn't matter whose names are mentioned first. When one couple is older or more distinguished - or perhaps guests in your town - you introduce the younger couple.

Q. When dining out I have often seen women wearing their coats to the table, then depositing them on the back of their chairs. However, I have never seen a man do the same thing with his overcoat. Is there really a difference in etiquette for men and women in regard to checking coats?
 A. Yes, a man always checks his coat in a restaurant. But a woman has the option of checking her coat or bringing it to the table.

ELEGANT MENU
 For a successful celebration I doubt we could have planned a better party than our double birthday brunch for ten at the George Washington Manor last Sunday. The ambience was beautiful with early 18th Century furniture and appointments. The menu was elegant and included champagne which was a great way to celebrate the occasion. The food, the cheerful service, the fireplaces, the view on all sides were memorable. We all came away on cloud nine, and all consensus was that we should do this every year! E.P.

Lucky Duck

My friend and I have been several times to the Lucky Duck which is on Nassau Blvd., Garden City South. We found the service very good and the atmosphere nice. We both had veal that we liked very much. We highly recommend this restaurant. F.M.

Q. When eating out with six or more couples, how do you split the bill? We usually split it even among the couples. But, I always feel funny when I want a salad or dessert and others don't order them. What would be the best solution when it comes to this situation in a group? B.K.

A. The easiest way is to ask anyone if they want to join you in salad or dessert. Then, at the end of the meal, add the cost and pay that separately before dividing the bill. Just say "Here's the $5 for my extras." One benefit is that you would pay part of that anyway if you were dividing the bill and allows no tension amongst friends.

Q. What is the limit for visits to an all you can eat salad bar?

A. If you are only paying to eat at the salad bar, then hunger and a certain amount of self-consciousness should dictate the number. It is at a restaurant that includes it in with the entree then twice would seem sufficient considering you will have a meal to eat afterwards.

Q. What is the proper amount to tip a waitress at a buffet brunch where all she serves you is coffee?

A. Since the waitress is still providing you with a service and she is not being paid any more for the brunch shift 10 percent would be appropriate unless the service and food has been very good. The waitress still has to share her tips with the rest of the staff.

GOURMET ADVENTURE AT BAYVILLE'S STEVE'S PIER 1

For a culinary change of pace, my wife and I both confirmed gastronomical gadabouts, decided on a seven o'clock Wednesday evening dinner at the North Shore, Bayville Village's practically palatial Steve's Pier 1 restaurant and catering complex. Located on Bayville Avenue's western end, it affords a great western view of a Bayville Beach area and a truly magnificent northern view of both Rye, New York and Greenwich, Connecticut, directly across the Long Island Sound.

"Reservations are not necessary and we will be most happy to accommodate you," assured Steve's Pier 1 hostess Kay Kollos, when we telephoned, earlier in the day, to confirm our intent. She also assured us that, yes, we could wear Bermuda shorts there, provided it was not on a Friday or Saturday evening.

Upon our arrival, a beautifully coiffured, impeccably attired Hostess Kay greeted us and ushered us to our table which location maximized both unique views.

Steve's Pier 1 was featuring five four-course complete dinner $16.95 August Specials which made up our minds for us. My wife ordered lobster bisque, baked large sea scallops, combined with seasoned bread crumbs in garlic sauce and served over linguine pasta, an herb dressing salad and fantastically fresh string beans and baked potatoes, which we both ordered. I ordered Manhattan clam chowder, a one-pound Nova Scotia broiled lobster and a creamy garlic dressing salad.

We were doubly delighted when we were informed that our specials included a generous serving of fresh coleslaw and garlic mushrooms appetizers, a full loaf of freshly baked bread and a large crock of butter. We complemented our dinners with some excellent white house wine and grand finale it with two divine desserts. Our ratings of our two dinners was absolutely superb! Our ratings of our two views, as the full sun started to slowly set, was absolutely spectacular!

We were conducted on a personal tour of the extensive establishment by a most courteous Arton Kay, one of the three managers, who showed us the spacious, sound view, regally appointed Queen Elizabeth and King George Rooms and the sound-side decoratively adorned deck below. All three areas are used to accommodate the numerous social events, hosted year round by Steve's Pier 1.

"Why are they called the Queen Elizabeth and King George Rooms?" I asked. I was under the impression that we colonists actually won the American Revolutionary War."

"The rooms were named in honor of the parents of Steve's Pier 1 owner and operator Steve G. Karathonos," explained Manager Arton, thus avoiding from the outset, any chance of ruffling our feathers, or even remotely rattling our cages.

Our total impression is that Steve's Pier 1 lives up to the very letter of its reputation as "An American Legendary Landmark Restaurant." Veteran Restaurateur and caterer Karathonos' total dedication to excellence throughout his entire establishment, is most inspiring and greatly helps to renew our faith in the incredible potentials that can be achieved in our great land of opportunity. Q. We are not wine drinkers. If we're giving a party, what kind of wines should we stock in order to take care of our wine-drinking friends' pleasure - from cocktail hour through dinner?

W.L. A. For the cocktail hour you might have on hand dry or sweet sherry, or dry or sweet vermouth, or any of the popular "aperitifs." Many choose a glass of dry white wine at the cocktail hour (either chilled or "on the rocks").

For the first course, or to drink with any fish, salad, chicken, veal or fruit, a chilled white wine is nice (such as Chablis, Soave, Riesling, Chenin Blanc, Pinot Chardonnay).

For the meat or game course (or the salad with cheese), serve a Burgundy, Bordeaux, Chianti, Cabernet Sauvignon or Zinfandel at a cool room temperature (from 60 to 70 degrees).

Rose wines should be chilled like white wines. A rose is best served with a light dish and is more popular in hot weather than in cold.

For dessert you may serve the same wine you had from the previous course. Or if it's something festive like an anniversary, dessert time is the moment to bring on the champagne (the drier the better!).

Some people enjoy a sweet wine with dessert, such as port or a sweet sauterne or sherry, but one seldom sees this custom followed anymore in this country.

SPECIALTIES

The LaMarmite in Williston Park is one of the top restaurants on Long Island according to the ad you have. We will go along with that. We have been going to this restaurant on and off for some time. It is something special and spoils you for the many other "run of the mill" places.

One thing nice about La Marmite is that it has several specialties of the house each day and they are genuine specialties. We have been disappointed elsewhere with the specials because they often turn out to be items that were made of leftovers. At LaMarmite we have to say they are really "special".

Another fine point about LaMarmite is that you are given attentive service from the beginning with the valet car parking to the end of the meal. This is really a first rate restaurant. G.E.

Q. Where restrooms have a person handing you towels, what is the proper amount to tip?

A. In many cases the attendant operates on a concession basis, taking the tips in return for keeping the restrooms clean and maintained. If you are feeling generous a dollar is enough and will cover any subsequent visits to the restroom. However, you are not obligated to tip the person.

Q. At a restaurant where there is valet parking and you do not have a reservation, what do you tip the person when you cannot get a table and decide to leave?

A. Depending on whether you frequent the restaurant regularly, the tip is optional and the attendant will understand if you pass him up this time.

UNIQUE MENU

Monday night we dined at The Orchid Chinese Restaurant on Franklin Avenue in Garden City. We were delighted with this restaurant and heartily endorse it.

The ambience was both beautiful and restful with soft background music, and very attentive service.

It was by far the best Chinese food that we have ever tasted. The menu was unique and deliciously different. We chose two of the Jumbo Shrimp entrees which were superb. Looking over the interesting menu it was difficult to make a choice. Our remedy will be to make a return visit very soon. Incidentally they are open for lunch as well as dinner. We are pleased to have such a fine restaurant at practically our back door. E.E.

EARLY AMERICAN

One of our favorite restaurants over the years has been Maine Maid Inn on Jericho Turnpike in Jericho. The Colonial Building, built in 1789 filled with authentic Early American antiques, the cozy fireplace, the Tiffany lamps... all make for a delightful ambience in which to have a leisurely, relaxing dinner with the best possible food.

We dined there Wednesday night starting with a cup of excellent soup. One dinner consisted of the special of the day. Lobster tail with shrimp and clams in a delectable sauce, served with a choice of baked potato or linguine. My choice was the Bass almonidine served with fresh peas, carrots and corn. A mixed salad with a choice of dressing, and Cafe espresso made for a memorable dinner.

Every time we dine there we say it couldn't be better, and, would you believe it! E.H.

NICE PLACE

Bomont's Cafe is one of those small restaurants that makes me glad there are such places away from the larger crowds. For your readers who do not know of this place, it is located in Williston Park on Hillside Avenue and is just a small but elegantly decorated restaurant. The menu is a pretty good sized one and we have always found it to be an enjoyable place whether we were having a late night snack or a luncheon special. We recommend it to your readers. J.F.

A solution for boring walls

Q. My husband and I have really gotten into antiques during the past six years. We buy at flea markets and auctions and refinish the pieces ourselves.

The problem is our apartment: it's a postwar building with no architectural detailing at all — no woodwork, not even around the windows. Since we don't own it, we can't even add wood moldings.

I've seen wallpaper borders used as moldings. What do you think? — H.I., New York

A. It's a brilliant solution for boring walls, especially walls you don't own.

The room we show here should provide inspiration: The chair rail is real wood, but the rest of the "moldings" come right off a bolt of wall covering (from Wall-Tex). The same border has been used to simulate a crown molding at the ceiling line and create an unusual frame-within-a-frame effect over the mantel.

Notice the important role the background wall coverings play in helping break up the once-plain wall surface. A faux marble pattern lends visual "heft" below the chair rail; above is a lighthearted medallion print, and — just for fun — a small stripe has been used to brighten the smaller inside square.

This is "carpentry" at its easiest — no hammers and nails need apply!

Q. Who started the craze for little throw pillows with sayings on them?

A friend just gave me one that's embroidered: "When my ship finally comes in, I'll be waiting at the airport."

I love it but isn't it a little too jazzy to put in my living room? I have mostly French-style furniture. — M.B., Richmond, Va.

A. Elsie de Wolfe, who was also the first professional interior designer, gets credit for the "talking pillow" idea. A New Yorker who ran with the smart international set from the turn of the century to the middle of it (she died in 1950), De Wolfe tossed her little pillows on sofas and chairs on both side of the Atlantic.

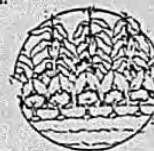

She adored the 18th century; in fact, she spent many years in France at her villa at Versailles and shopped for fine antiques to send back to wealthy clients who relied on her exquisite taste.

But Elsie also was a notable eccentric: She tinted her gray hair blue and liked to stand on her head for exercise. So her guests thought nothing of leaning back against a pillow that said things like, "Never explain, Never complain."

ARCHITECTURAL DETAIL — Faux moldings add interest and appeal to a once-plain room.

What ground covers do and don't do

Ground covers are often billed as the ultimate in low-maintenance gardening.

They are supposed to suppress weeds, keep the soil moist, stay sedately within the area designated for them, provide a fine decorative effect on their own or as an underplanting for shrubs — and demand no care.

Most ground covers do have some of these golden qualities, but few display all of them.

It's too much to expect, for example, to set ground cover plants in an area infested with difficult weeds such as creeping buttercup or chickweed, and expect the weeds to magically give way. As for any permanent planting, the soil needs to be thoroughly weeded and well prepared prior to planting.

Large-leaved and densely clothed ground cover plants do in fact keep a weed-cleared soil free, or nearly free, of future infestations.

I'm thinking of plants in my garden such as the hostas, especially the varieties with large, spreading leaves that shade the ground effectively from late spring through mid-autumn.

Viburnum davidii is another efficient weed-inhibitor with its dense, mounded growth and thick, leathery leaves.

On the other hand, the more ground-hugging types of ground cover with smaller and more delicate foliage will allow some weed growth. My planting of the orange- and yellow-flowered Sedum kamtschaticum needs to be relieved of little tufts of grass from time to time, and a bank covered with sections of the bright yellow-flowering "Golden Carpet" sedum and the red-flowered "Dragons Blood" sedum harbors regular sprigs of sheep sorrel.

Sedums, unless they're growing in impoverished soil, tend to creep beyond the area set aside for them. Many ground covers have similarly enthusiastic natures.

Not for nothing, for example, is moneywort (Lysimachia nummularia) commonly called creeping Jennie. Many gardeners confine their culture of this easy spreader to window boxes and hanging baskets, which show off this pretty plant's flat, trailing branches, small bright green leaves and shining golden buttercup flowers to fine effect.

Yet I've not found either the low ground cover sedums or creeping Jennie difficult to pull out of damp soil, because the roots are conveniently shallow. The nature of their rooting is, in fact, how I have come to differentiate between difficult and easy spreaders. I have in my garden many ground covers that travel. But it's only the ones that sink underground rootstocks deep and tight into the ground that make life, horticulturally speaking, really difficult for me.

The current villain of the home-stead in this regard is Aegopodium (bishop's weed, goutweed), which stayed nicely in place for several years before hunkering down and taking off into nearby pathways and flower plots. This fall I will be digging out one planting entirely, and confining another within a wall of thin metal sheets sunk into the ground.

My goutweed is the most commonly planted, very showy variegated form of this tough, drought-tolerant plant. Its bright green leaves are edged in white and the white flowers form in umbels on tall stalks like the carrot and parsley to which it is related.

Lily of the valley spreads in a similar fashion, sinking fast its horizontal rootstocks which can become the very devil to uproot. As with the goutweed, I'll be digging some marauding bands of these plants once the rains soften the ground deeply in the fall and after there has been some cold weather to chill the pips sufficiently for potting and indoor bloom.

Though less difficult to uproot than goutweed and lily of the valley, sweet woodruff (Galium odoratum) begins to take off in all directions after a year or two in the garden, spreading in tangled masses of pale yellow running roots. I love this ground cover for its elegant whorls of dark green foliage and the foamy heads of airy, white flowers. But I have learned to curtail its root growth by regularly pulling the new, shallow growth when it ventures beyond the planting's designated territory.

English ivy is a ground and fence cover that takes a monumental amount of jungle-type hacking to control once allowed a season or two of free growth.

Muffins and cupcakes - quick microwaved treats

Microwaved muffins can make a quick, portable breakfast when you are rushed, and a basket of fresh hot muffins makes any brunch or dinner special. Both muffins and cupcakes are perfect for school lunches because they are easy to pack and easy to eat — and kids love them.

Cupcakes and muffins microwave in minutes and their texture is lighter and more delicate than conventionally baked ones. Because they rise higher than in a conventional oven, remember to fill paper-lined cups only half-full (instead of the conventional two-thirds), to allow them room to rise. If muffins or cupcakes are rising unevenly, rotate them (if your oven doesn't have an automatic turntable) every couple of minutes.

Do not use regular metal cupcake or muffin tins. Instead, use a double thickness of paper liners (the inside one will absorb moisture) to line ovenproof glass custard cups or plastic microwave muffin tins; those with holes on the bottom help prevent condensation.

After microwaving, remove cupcakes or muffins immediately and let cool on a wire rack (this will keep them from going soggy on the bottom). Do not remove paper liners.

Muffin batter is best lumpy, while cupcake batter should be smooth. For muffin batters, add the beaten liquid ingredients to the combined dry ones and mix in only a few swift strokes, just long enough to moisten dry ingredients.

Baked muffins should have holes and tunnels in them, but not cupcakes, where a more uniform texture is desirable. But because microwaved cupcakes cook so quickly, holes often form during baking. To prevent these, cut through batter several times with a toothpick after filling cups, to release air bubbles in batter.

Over-microwaved muffins and cupcakes can become dry and tough, so always microwave for the minimum time specified and test for doneness before continuing. To check, insert a toothpick near center; a clean toothpick means your muffin or cupcake is done. Tops may still appear moist, but will dry with standing.

Frost cooled cupcakes quickly by dipping tops into a bowl of soft, fluffy frosting; twist and pull cupcake upward. Make non-frosted cupcakes and muffins more visually appealing by topping before baking with crushed toasted nuts, cinnamon sugar, Parmesan cheese, poppy seeds, oatmeal, toasted shredded coconut or crushed cereal. Streusel topping makes a nice frosting for sweet muffins.

(Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.)

MICRO-TIP OF THE WEEK

If you don't own a microwave-safe cupcake pan, here's a neat trick for you: Make your own reusable cupcake/muffin forms by cutting off the top 1½ inches from six 7-ounce plastic foam or paper (not wax coated) cups. Discard bottoms.

Arrange the rings in a circle in a flat, round, microwave-safe pan or plate. Place two paper cupcake liners in each, and fill each half-full with batter. Microwave as directed.

Never microwave more than six at a time.

SPICED PUMPKIN CUPCAKES WITH LEMON CREAM CHEESE FROSTING

- ½ cup light brown sugar, packed
- ¼ cup granulated sugar
- ¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- ½ cup canned pumpkin, mashed
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons milk or half-and-half
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon each salt, baking powder and baking soda
- ¼ teaspoon each ground ginger and allspice

Frosting:

- 1 (3-ounce) package cream cheese
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 cups powdered sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 1 to 2 teaspoons milk or half-and-half
- Grated rind of ½ lemon

Yields 1 dozen cupcakes; 1½ cups frosting.

Preparation time: 30 minutes.

Cooking time: 10½ to 14½ minutes.

Oven setting: MEDIUM-LOW (30 percent power); HIGH (100 percent power).

In large mixing bowl combine egg, brown sugar, sugar and vegetable oil. Beat with electric mixer until smooth. Beat in mashed pumpkin and vanilla, then stir in flour. Add milk, cinnamon, salt, baking powder and soda, and ginger and allspice. Stir until smooth.

Line 6 cups in microwave cupcake pan or 6 glass custard cups with double layer of paper liners. Fill each half-full with batter. Arrange in a ring (if using custard cups) and microwave on MEDIUM-LOW setting 5 to 7 minutes, rotating cups every 3 minutes, or until cupcakes are set but tops are still moist. Remove to wire rack to cool; repeat with remaining cupcakes. Let cool completely before frosting.

For frosting, combine cream cheese and butter in 1-quart microwave-safe dish. Microwave on HIGH setting about 30 seconds, to soften. With electric beaters blend in powdered sugar, ½ cup at a time. Add vanilla and enough milk to bring frosting to spreading consistency. Stir in lemon rind.

A medley of melons

Melons have been prized since ancient times. Today they are grown in many climates, but some of the best melons (except watermelons, which are especially terrific from Texas) are still grown in the Mediterranean and Middle East, where hot, dry summers produce succulent, sweet fruits.

During the season, the heady perfume of ripe melons is everywhere, from city outdoor markets to country roadside stands, throughout these countries.

Melons are imported to America, but in recent years new varieties have been developed that adapt to and even flourish in the climates of much of the United States.

Watermelons, though probably indigenous to Africa or India, have been grown successfully in the Southern and Southwestern parts of our country for years.

We are all probably familiar with the fragrant yellow can-taloupe, the red and juicy watermelon and the pale green and very sweet honeydew melon. But take a good look at your market today and you will also spot casabas, Crenshaws, Spanish and Persian melons, to name a few. Even the popular watermelon now comes in yellow, and we are beginning to see seedless varieties as well.

There are many opinions on how to choose a good melon. As far as we are concerned, the best test is with the nose. A ripe melon should smell like a ripe melon — sweet and fragrant, but not musky and pungent.

In addition, the best melons should feel heavy for their size. When shaken, the seeds shouldn't slosh around, for this indicates a melon that is past its prime.

Melons, because of their lovely color and naturally sweet flavor, figure into many of our summer meals. Here are but two ideas.

Melon soup is a light and delicase meal starter, especially when followed by a simple and equally sophisticated main course such as grilled fish.

Minted Mixed Melon Champagne Compote is a perfect finish for nearly any summer dinner, especially when accompanied by some crisp butter cookies.

TIPS

• If the melon you buy is slightly underripe, let it stand at room temperature for a day or two, then promptly refrigerate it and use within a short time.

• Cut melons lose their sweet flavor rapidly, so cut them within an hour or two of using for optimum results.

• Most melons, except the extra-watery watermelon, are interchangeable in recipes.

MINTED MIXED MELON CHAMPAGNE COMPOTE

6 cups mixed melon balls (such as watermelon, Crenshaw, honeydew and/or cantaloupe)
½ cup lightly packed fresh mint leaves
1½ tablespoons superfine sugar
1½ tablespoons cognac or brandy
1½ cups chilled champagne or other sparkling white wine
Mint sprigs for garnish

Yields 4 servings.

Preparation time: 10 minutes, plus 20 minutes chilling.

Place melon balls in clear glass bowl. Thinly slice mint leaves and add to bowl along with sugar and cognac. Toss to mix well. Chill 20 minutes or up to 1 hour, stirring gently once or twice.

Just before serving, pour champagne over fruit and toss. To serve, ladle melon and liquid into stemmed goblets and garnish each with mint sprig.

CHILLED MELON SOUP

4 cups chilled cubed cantaloupe, honeydew, Crenshaw or Persian melon
3 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon lime juice
1 teaspoon grated lime zest
½ cup white wine
1 cup plain yogurt, divided
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon salt
4 thin slices lime for garnish
4 thin slices melon for garnish

Yields 4 servings (about 4½ cups).

Preparation time: 15 minutes.
In food processor, puree melon with honey, lime juice and zest. Add wine and process a few seconds to blend. Add ¼ cup of yogurt, pepper and salt; process briefly to blend. Serve immediately or chill up to 1 hour.

Serve in shallow soup bowls, each garnished with a tablespoon of yogurt, a lime and a melon slice.

All about allium

"Aye, leeks is good." — Fluellen to Pistol, "Henry V," Act 5.

Unhappy Pistol. He has insulted the Welsh, so the patriotic Fluellen takes revenge on behalf of his compatriots by forcing him to eat their national vegetable, the leek.

In Shakespeare's play, Pistol receives his comeuppance, but science has discovered evidence that Fluellen actually does him a good turn.

Aye, says research published by the National Cancer Institute, leeks is good — and so are onions, garlic, scallions and shallots.

These pungent vegetables, known collectively as the allium family, apparently reduce the chance of getting stomach cancers. This is the upshot of a study, a joint project of American and Chinese researchers.

Further, the more allium vegetables the subjects of the study consumed, the higher their protection seemed to be.

While the researchers drew back from assigning a cause-and-effect relationship, they did point out that the findings were consistent with experiments that showed that a compound found in allium vegetables, allyl sulfides, inhibits several types of tumors. Furthermore, they observed, garlic has been shown to have anti-bacterial properties.

So there it is: Onions, leeks, garlic and other members of the odoriferous allium family are good for you. Subjects in the study who showed low stomach cancer rates ate an average of some 32 pounds of alliums per year. That sounds like a formidable amount, but it works out to only about a quarter of an average onion per day. That doesn't sound like much to work in amid the apples, the legumes, the oat bran, the cabbages and what-not now being consumed by the health-conscious.

So many recipes begin by the sauteing of some chopped onion that it's hard to imagine cooking without them. Here is a rundown of the leading members of the family.

• Standard onions come in several types. The most obvious difference is color. Yellow onions are the most plentiful, while white onions have a sharper flavor. For most purposes, the two are interchangeable.

Red onions get special treatment because of their striking magenta-to-purple hue. These are mostly eaten raw in salads; the distinctive color fades when cooked.

Onions vary according to harvest time. Spring bulbs are typically flattened in shape; they have a high moisture content and don't keep well. Bulbs harvested in fall have more of a globe shape and better storage qualities.

Many regions — among them, Vidalia in Georgia, Maui in Hawaii — have made a name for their mild, sweet onions. Some have hardly any pungency at all. You can find them on an irregular basis at markets specializing in fancy produce.

• Boiling and pearl onions are the miniatures of the bulb onions. Boiling onions run 1 to 1½ inches in diameter and are often served as a vegetable. The very small pearl onions — less than an inch in diameter — mostly end up pickled. You have the best luck finding these onions in better-stocked produce departments. Most small onions are white, but lately brown and red varieties have turned up.

• Scallions are not immature bulb onions, but a separate type. These slender stalks usually get eaten raw, but they also figure as ingredients in Chinese and New Orleans Creole dishes.

• Leeks look like overgrown scallions, but these, too, are a separate variety. The delicately flavored stalks have a large role in European cooking but are lesser known in the United States. Always served cooked, leeks have been called "the poor man's asparagus."

• Garlic adds its inimitable character to a vast array of dishes. It is most characteristic of Mediterranean, Mid-Eastern, Indian and Far Eastern cuisines.

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 tablespoon parsley, chopped

Yields 4 servings.

Boil potatoes until just tender, about 20 minutes. Drain; when cool enough to handle, peel. Cut into slices about ¼-inch thick.

Meanwhile, saute onion in butter and oil until lightly brown. Add sliced potatoes and stir gently, until potatoes are lightly brown. Garnish with chopped parsley.

Stuffed onions make a fine side dish with roast or poultry.

ONIONS STUFFED WITH MUSHROOMS AND CHEESE

6 large onions
½ cup cream or milk
1 cup cheddar cheese, grated
½ cup mushrooms, chopped
½ cup fresh bread crumbs
Salt, pepper
Additional bread crumbs
Butter

Yields 6 servings.

Peel onions, put in saucepan. Cover with salted water and bring to boil. Simmer about 10 minutes. Drain. When cool enough to handle, carefully scoop out centers of onions, leaving several layers so that onions can serve as containers. Keep bottom intact.

Preheat oven to 375 F. Chop onion centers finely. Place in bowl with cream, cheese, mushrooms and ½ cup bread crumbs. Season with salt and pepper. Fill onion cups with mixture. Top with additional bread crumbs. Dot with butter. Place in buttered 9-inch square baking pan. Add enough water to come ½-inch up sides of onions.

Bake about 35 minutes, until golden.

• Shallots remain a high-priced rarity. They are often called for in place of chopped onions in French dishes, where their delicacy of flavor is prized. Shallot clusters look something like garlic but are in fact a variety of onion.

Storage: Dry onion bulbs, shallots and garlic will keep for a few weeks in a cool, dry, well-ventilated place. Scallions, leeks and chives should be kept in plastic bags in the refrigerator, where they will last about a week.

The pungent taste and tear-jerking qualities of allium plants are released when the cells are cut or crushed. The effect appears to be a defense reaction; normally separate compounds combine to form irritants, including sulphuric acid, which cause the eyes to water. These compounds quickly break down with cooking to produce a rich, rather sweet taste.

Ingenious cooks have proposed all sorts of schemes to keep their eyes dry while cutting onions. One idea, for example, is to cut onions under water, a cumbersome solution at best.

The best course is to use a sharp knife, so as to crush the onion as little as possible, and to show a little fortitude. After all, a few tears won't kill you, but the onion is going to bring fine flavor as well as good health to your table.

LEEK AND POTATO SOUP

4 large leeks or 2 onions and
2 bunches of scallions
2 tablespoons butter
4 large potatoes
Water
Salt, pepper

Yields 6 servings.

If using leeks, see the following note on cleaning them. Remove root ends and coarser dark leaves. Chop leeks into shreds about ¼ inch across.

If using onions, peel and slice thinly. Remove roots of scallions and chop, including some green leaves.

Heat butter in large saucepan and gently saute leeks (or onions and scallions). Do not let them brown. Meanwhile, peel potatoes and cut into rough chunks. Add potatoes to vegetables in pan and cover with water. Boil.

Simmer until potatoes are very tender, about 20 minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

The soup is served pureed. Turn soup into food processor or blender and process until fairly smooth, but not featureless.

Variations: The soup may be served as is or enriched with cream to taste. Add 1 cup or more of cream to puree and reheat. Adjust seasoning; add a few drops of lemon juice to accent flavor. You may also use milk in place of some of the water for simmering.

Cleaning leeks: Leeks usually come with pockets of dirt in the leaves. To get rid of it, cut leeks lengthwise in two, then spread leaves apart and carefully wash out any dirt. Drain leeks well.

Meet the Sproutman

By Lorna J. Sass

If you find yourself eyeing your neighbor's vine-ripened zucchini and tomatoes and lamenting the lack of your own garden, consider sprouting, the ideal solution for the landless gardener.

To get you started, make the acquaintance of Steve Meyerowitz, a.k.a. the Sproutman.

For years I had been intrigued by the Sproutman's ads in Vegetarian Times and other health food magazines so, on a recent jaunt to the Berkshires, I took the opportunity to meet Steve Meyerowitz at the Sprout House in Great Barrington, Mass.

An ex-New Yorker, Steve became a vegetarian in 1975, when he was determined to rid himself of allergies by switching to a vegetarian, dairy-free diet. (Yes, it worked!)

He soon became enchanted with sprouting, for its convenience, nutritional benefits and economy. (One pound of alfalfa seeds yields 16 to 18 pounds of salad.)

For those concerned about eating organically grown vegetables, home-sprouting with organic seeds and grains is one way to ensure that you will be eating top-quality produce.

Like most of us who have had a go at sprouting, Steve began his early sprout "gardens" in glass bottles, but soon found this method cumbersome. He switched to using small woven baskets made of natural fibers.

"You don't have to worry about breakage, and the baskets make rinsing the sprouts a snap," he told me.

Steve has also designed simple flaxseed bags for sprouting grains and legumes.

"These are especially convenient for sprouting beans and grains when there are no sills or shelves available for setting baskets near available light," he said.

The bags may simply be hung from hooks in a convenient spot.

Most of us are familiar with delicate alfalfa sprouts that are now commercially produced and readily available at most supermarkets. But sprouts can be made of any grain, bean, legume or seed.

Wheat berries produce highly nutritious and delicious sprouts and may be made into bread (see recipe below). Sunflower seeds make large, tasty sprouts that add a delicious dimension to salads. Mung bean sprouts are, of course, a mainstay in Chinese cooking.

Most sprouts are rich in protein and vitamin, but it's a good idea for the serious sprout farmer to get a guidebook for determining the ideal moment for harvesting and eating the sprouts. In addition, for maximum digestibility, some sprouts (such as soybean) should be cooked before they are eaten.

If you are feeling inspired to experiment beyond the basic alfalfa, a good guide might be Steve Meyerowitz's "Growing Vegetables Indoors" ($6.95), which provides complete instructions in sprouting more than 30 varieties of seeds, grains, beans and nuts. This and a free catalog of sprouting kits and organic seeds are available from The Sprout House, 40 Railroad St., Great Barrington, MA 01230; telephone (413) 528-5200.

Here are a few of the Sproutman's recipes:

BASIC SPROUTING

• Method I — Beans and Grains. (Use this method for lentils, mung beans, green peas and wheatberries.)

Put beans or grains in sprout bag and soak in water for eight to 12 hours. (While Meyerowitz prefers a sprout bag, a glass jar capped with cheesecloth and a rubber band will also work.) Use three times as much water as seeds. Drain.

Thereafter, rinse twice a day in cold water for four to five days, draining each time. Keep at room temperature.

• Method II — Seeds. Use this method for alfalfa, red clover, fenugreek, cabbage and radish seeds.

Put seeds in sprout bag or glass jar and soak in water for eight hours. Use three times as much water as seeds. Then, spread seeds in 9-inch, tightly woven, unshel-lacked basket or on a tray covered with 1 inch of dirt. Water twice a day for five or seven days. Keep covered at all times with a plastic bag, leaving a few inches of air-space for sprouts to grow. Keep in indirect light.

The low-temperature baking method used for this bread preserves vitamins and other nutrients. This sprout bread lasts for about 10 days in the refrigerator and may be frozen for up to three months.

Just slice and warm in oven or toast. Delicious with a thin topping of nut butter and fruit-sweetened jam.

SPROUT BREAD

2 cups wheatberries
2 to 3 tablespoons poppy or sesame seeds

Yields 4 to 5 small round loaves.
Sprout wheatberries according to directions above for Method I. However, only rinse twice a day for 2 days, or until length of shoot is approximately the length of the berry.

Grind sprouted berries to a paste in food processor. With wet hands, form into 4 or 5 patties about 3 to 5 inches in diameter and 1½ inches high. Press poppy or sesame seeds into bottom of each patty and set with seed side down on cookie sheet.

Bake on a tray at 250 F in top third of oven until firm on both top and bottom, about 2½ to 3½ hours.

Making home and pool safe for little ones

Just enjoy!

By Willard Abraham
Ph.D.

Q. Can a grandparent also get some advice related to children through your column? I hope so.

I know that a child's home has to be "accident-proof," but I want mine to be, too, because we have three precious small grandchildren. Our swimming pool is one of our major concerns.

Whatever suggestions you can give us about the pool and other safety problems will be greatly appreciated.

A. Because it is still hot-weather time, let's take up the pool issue first:

• Post the 911 emergency number on your phones. Have a phone near the pool area. And don't leave children unattended while talking on the phone.

• Never allow children to be alone near the pool. Always make sure an adult is present.

• Mount flotation devices for lifesaving near the pool. Many float-type toys are thought to be lifesavers. They aren't; they're only toys and should be used only as toys.

• Keep items that can be used for climbing away from fences near the pool.

Here are some other precautions you can take:

• Keep police, paramedic and poison control center phone numbers near all phone extensions.

• Use the back of your stove whenever possible, and turn all handles of cooking pots and pans to the back.

• Don't place a crib or playpen near a phone, drapery or electrical cord.

• Unplug small appliances when they are not in use.

• Lock all cleaning fluids, sprays and other chemicals in a secure place out of children's reach.

• Keep all medications tightly closed in containers with child-proof caps, and out of children's reach. Never tell a child that any

Q. I read about a survey that indicated it might be harmful for young children if their mothers work full time. It said that emotion medicine is candy.

• Keep small electrical appliances away from the bathtub and out of children's reach. In fact, never leave a child alone in the bathroom if there are electrical appliances in the room.

• Never leave a child alone in the bath, not even for a few seconds.

These suggestions came from a recent publication of Arizona Public Service, a large utility company.

I hope they can help reduce anxieties you may have related to your grandchildren.

tional problems may occur because the mother works.

I really feel that because I work and have my little boy in an excellent preschool that this is the best arrangement for him and me. We now have enough to live on, the financial pressure on me and my husband is less, and our son is in good hands.

Is anything wrong with this picture?

A. Not that I can see.

A problem with some research is that both those who conduct it and the people who read it may generalize from its findings, applying them with a broad brush toward many to whom it may not relate.

There are, of course, some working parents who may neglect their children and create emotional problems for them. However, among non-working parents there might also be some who don't provide satisfactory family environments. In neither group is there a monopoly of either sound or questionable parent practices.

Every situation is different, but you can be sure that many parents are like you and your husband, with all family members benefiting from the decisions that are thoughtfully made.

KITCHEN HINTS

Buffet platters look best with a base

Lettuce wilts quickly.

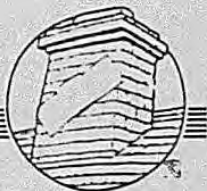

Here's a sturdier solution:

1. Use a shredded cabbage bed for meat, fish, poultry or vegetables. It holds up well to dressings on the food.
2. Crinkly savory cabbage is prettiest. Select a firm head.
3. Cut into quarters, then slice across. Scatter the crisp shreds over platter and arrange food on top.

Removing filmy buildup on crystal glasses

Q. Would you know how to remove an opaque film on delicate crystal wine glasses? We've had them for 30 years.

This film appeared slowly throughout the years and no one in our area seems to know how to proceed.

A. One of our readers recently wrote, suggesting this method: Try denture cleaner to loosen the mineral deposits.

A commercial cleaner we have often recommended is De-Solv-It. For purchase locations contact the manufacturer, Orange-Sol Inc., 9 N. Roosevelt Ave., Chandler, AZ 85244.

Be sure to use the appropriate number of tablets (dissolved in water) for the size of glass. Let it soak overnight and finish cleaning with a soft-bristle brush.

We have also recommended a solution of muriatic acid, mixed 1 part acid to 9 parts water. Try this as a last resort.

Mix the solution by pouring the acid into water, not water into acid. Be sure you handle acid with care and avoid splashing. Wear old clothes and gloves for protection.

Use a sponge or soak the glasses for five minutes in the solution and rinse with plenty of clear water. If these methods do not remove the deposits, it is likely that the glasses are permanently etched and cleaning is not possible.

Q. Is it advisable and practical to paint linoleum (40 years old)? If so, what type of paint should one use?

A. It would not be satisfactory to paint linoleum this old. Your best bet is to remove the linoleum and install one of the new vinyl floorings.

One caution: Your linoleum may contain asbestos and this should be checked prior to removal. Removal of materials containing asbestos requires specially trained and certified technicians as this is a hazardous material when disturbed.

If your linoleum does contain asbestos, you have another option, which is usually less expensive than removal of asbestos materials. A plywood subflooring can be safely laid over the present linoleum floor and a new vinyl flooring installed on top of the new subflooring.

Contact an asbestos contractor in your area for information on testing and removal.

SMART MONEY

Most people underestimate their life span when planning for retirement

Most people estimate how long they will live after retirement by relying on average life span projections of age 75. This figure takes into account the entire population, while life expectancy for a person of retirement age is already well past that average.

How retirees' estimates of their life spans and their actual projected life spans differ:

Mom puts friends ahead of her kids

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Dr. Abraham: I have friends who tell me how cold their fathers are to them, too busy with their work and worries. My case is different. It's my mother who is the cold one.

Her friends always come first. She always has time to see them or to talk to them on the phone. In fact, she'll cut off a conversation with one of us kids as soon as the telephone rings, and stays on with one of them for an hour or more and never gets back to us.

See what I mean? We're put on the back burner. That's not fair, and we don't know what to do about it. Do you? — Molly, Molly: She may not even be aware of your being passed over, left out or ignored by her. You might share your feelings with her, including the fact that you want to talk to her more and get her opinion when something bothers you.

A telephone answering machine might come in handy, but only if your mother lets it do its job. When the phone rings and a family conversation is going on, the machine can take over and she can call back later.

Dr. Abraham: I'm not quite in my teens, but I have a serious problem. My mother and dad are getting a divorce, and they have read a lot of stuff about what will happen to them and to us kids. There are two of us, me and my sister who is almost two years younger than I am.

We know what will happen to us right after the divorce — where we will live, how often we will see the other parent, what school we will go to, and things like that. But how about later on? I'm a serious person, and I look ahead a lot of the time.

My parents read a new book lately on this whole subject called "Second Chances," and they want both of us to read parts of it so that we can talk about it with them.

Do you think that is a good idea? — Debbie

Debbie: It sounds as though communication is pretty complete in your family, and this effort by your parents is one way to help make sure that it stays that way. As they seem to indicate, just reading some of this material isn't the whole story; it has to be followed by a discussion over what you have read.

You might want to talk this over with someone who knows you better than I do, and perhaps knows your parents, too. If your school has a counselor, that may be a good person to talk through your questions on this reading-discussion plan.

For others who don't know this book, let me give you its full title and publisher: "Second Chances: Men, Women and Children a Decade After Divorce," by Judith S. Wallerstein and Sandra Blakeslee (published by Ticknor & Fields). Parents in divorced families might be even more interested in it than teens are. It is based on families that may (or may not) be similar to those of its readers.

Dr. Abraham: I thought we had finally reached the stage of sex equality, but let me tell you, it's not true. I have the evidence to prove it, too.

My closest friend (another girl) and I are mad about football, but not as spectators. We want to play, and we want to be on the men's high school team. We think we're skilled enough to hold our own and aren't afraid of playing with and against the guys. Besides, we're smarter than some of them are.

No one, right up to the school superintendent, has listened to our request.

We're really frustrated. — A Football Enthusiast,

Football Enthusiast: I understand your frustration and also recognize some reasons why your request may have been turned down. Size, weight, speed, danger of injury, and insurance coverage might be among the reasons why your request hasn't been approved. You may have solid answers to some of these reservations, and I can certainly accept that.

Mainly for Seniors

By Leonard J. Hansen

This senior city has taught the nation

SUN CITY, Ariz. — Thirty years ago the idea of an entire city being created for mature adults was considered radical.

Older adults, claimed federal agencies and gerontologists alike, wanted only to remain in their home cities, predicting certain failure for Del Webb, an innovative developer based in Phoenix, Ariz.

Other developers had tried to build to the retirement market but had failed, because they assumed that retirees wanted little more than a place to live with a porch for a rocking chair, or by attempting to market a community based only on a promise that amenities would "someday" be added.

The Webb organization made the commitment to have amenities in place and operating, landscaping in place and growing, homes ready to move into, and lots ready for development. Initially, housing prices ranged from $8,500 to $11,750, with $9,500 the price tag for a home on the golf course.

In place and operating for opening day would be a nine-hole golf course, recreation center, arts and crafts center, Olympic-size swimming pool, shuffleboard and other game courts, and the first phase of a local shopping center.

The theme for the new development on 20,000 acres northwest of Phoenix would be "Sun City — An Active Way of Life." Four hundred homes were either built or under construction for the opening on Jan. 1, 1960.

The naysayers were proven wrong. On the opening weekend 237 homes — at a value of $2.5 million — were sold on the spot; the entire 400 initially planned homes had buyers within the first month. A projected sale of 1,700 homes in the first three years was scrapped when 2,000 homes were sold in the first year.

Time magazine, Aug. 3, 1962, featured "Builder Del Webb" on its cover and the feature story described Webb's "geriatric heresy" and the "most dramatically successful solution (to the retirement living problem) that has grown up in the past few years."

In 30 years Sun City has experienced some changes: growth and the role of residents.

The original Sun City, with 26,000 homes on 14 square miles of ground, was completed in 1979. A new development, Sun City West, started in 1978, has more than 18,000 residents today, and should have a population of 25,000 mature adults when completed in 1993. New Sun City developments are under way in Tucson, Ariz., Las Vegas in Nevada, and Palm Springs, Calif.

A new home in Sun City West today costs from $68,000 to $200,000; and resales in the original Sun City range from $50,000 to more than $300,000.

The role of residents is cited as key to the success of Sun City. Originally, the developer would provide, operate and program the many recreation centers and activities for retirees for their leisure years.

But, according to Webb chairman Philip J. Dion in a Phoenix press conference this spring, "We listened to the residents and they have taken the lead in determining both the activity and social direction for Sun City developments."

Residents provide community leadership and legislative processes. They established community services, sports leagues, a local symphony and other cultural organizations, operate a library, oversee recreation centers and golf courses, and serve as part-time staff for their own police department.

Sun City service clubs provide funds for Sun City's two hospitals and medical centers and, too, funding and services for community and families through social services agencies in Phoenix and other communities.

The Sun City Lion's Club leads the nation in the collection of newspapers and aluminum cans for recycling, contributing more than $300,000 each year to benefit health services to children in surrounding areas.

"Our residents came here with their ideas and with a commitment to continued personal growth and service," states Dion. "They want to serve rather than be served. So that is the direction of our Sun City communities."

As you walk, bike or drive your electric golf cart through the Sun City complexes today you find the situation very different from the yesteryear assumption that senior adults just want a porch with a rocking chair.

You may find mature adult foursomes on the golf course in the morning and in college classes in the afternoon. Or as volunteers at the respected Boswell Memorial Hospital at Sun City. As a member of the famed Sun City Pom Poms, a cheerleading team with an average age well above 65. Or in a swimming competition. Exhibiting his or her art at the resident's gallery.

"This is life as I like it," a lady resident told this reporter. "I can be active, do little or nothing — at my own pace. The important thing to me is that I have the opportunity and the choice because everything is here."

The original Sun City concept was revolutionary, and its success has spurred a number of similar developments around the nation.

ANTIQUE OR JUNQUE

By James G. McCollam

Q. Here is a picture of my six-piece toilet set. It is marked "Stone China — Stoke-on-Trent — England."

What is the value? I would appreciate anything you can tell me.

A. This very attractive set was made about 1900. It could have been made by any one of a dozen manufacturers in England.

A dealer would price this for about $325 to $350.

Q. This mark is on the bottom of a porcelain teapot. It holds about 1 quart and is decorated with a floral design with gold trim.

Can you tell me who made it, when and what it would sell for today?

A. This mark was used by the G.C. Greiner Co. in Tettau, Germany, about 1890.

Your teapot probably would sell for about $65 to $75.

Q. I have a plate with an Oriental design showing a bridge, a pagoda, trees and several people in blue on a white background. The back is marked "Ridgways Semi-porcelain, England."

Can you tell me when it was made and if it is valuable?

A. This is the famous Blue Willow pattern that was made by more than a dozen companies. Yours was made by Ridgways Ltd. in Hanley, England, during the early 1900s.

It probably would sell for about $20 to $25.

Q. I have a beautiful portrait plate of a girl with lilacs in her dark hair. It is 10 inches in diameter and marked "Pickard" and "Limoges."

Can you tell me when it was made and its current market value?

A. This plate was made in Limoges, France, and decorated by Pickard China in Antioch, Ill., about 1900.

It probably would sell for about $165 to $185.

Q. Please give me some information about the origin and value of my vase.

It is 8 inches tall and has two handles. There is a band of basket-weave pierced work near the top. The lower part has a man and a woman in a country scene.

On the bottom it is marked "M.R. — Limoges."

A. Your vase was made by the Martial Redon company in Limoges, France, about 1890. It probably would sell for about $125 to $135.

Q. What would you call a silver-plated frame holding two red glass jars with silver-plated covers?

There is a pair of tongs hanging on the side of the handle.

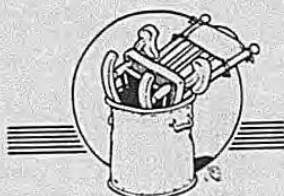

I would also like to know when this was made and what it would sell for.

A. Your description suggests that you have a cranberry glass pickle castor made about 1900.

In very good condition it would sell for about $365 to $385.

Americans are notorious for not saving much of their families' disposable incomes, as confirmed by this table.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Our 8-year-old Labrador retriever has had a sore on his left front leg for a long time. He licks at it almost constantly; the sore and the hair around it are always moist from licking.

I have tried various ointments and bandaging. Nothing seems to help. How can I solve this problem?

A. Without seeing your dog it is impossible to tell you what is causing the sore. One of the more likely causes, however, is a lick granuloma, commonly called a "lick sore" or a "boredom sore." These sores develop most often in the large breed dogs with short hair coats. Usually the dog is greater than 5 years old.

Dogs left alone for long periods of time without something to interest them will often begin to lick their wrists and ankles continuously.

Initially, the hair is rubbed off the area that is licked. Then the skin becomes reddened and shiny. Usually by this time the area itches and the licking is intensified.

Eventually the sores become hard, thick, and insensitive to pressure. Usually the dog keeps the area clean by the constant licking.

There are several forms of treatment for lick sores. Ointments containing corticosteroids are often helpful. However, the ointment has to be applied several times a day until the sore heals.

Unfortunately, the dog may lick the ointment off the sore before it has a chance to heal.

The constant licking habit may be broken by diverting the dog's attention. For example, the dog's environment may be changed. More exercise, human companionship, or another canine playmate may be effective.

Q. What is it about cats that enables them to withstand falls from high places without injury? Is their anatomy different from other animals or do they just know how to land?

A. Many cats that have jumped or accidentally fallen from tall buildings have been examined extensively by veterinarians and scientists to determine the nature of their injuries and how they survived.

In one such study conducted in New York, 115 cats were examined. All of the cats fell onto hard surfaces such as a sidewalk or street. Ninety percent of the cats survived falls that averaged the height of a five-story building.

There are several theories regarding the ability of cats to withstand long falls. The maximum speed for a cat falling through the air is approximately 60 mph. Even though gravity is pulling the cat continuously downward, the air resistance of the cat's body keeps the maximum rate of fall relatively low.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

It looks like this is the last weekend of summer vacation for most of you. I bet you have been out shopping for new school clothes with your parents. If you go to a public school you are probably checking with your friends to find out what everyone is wearing. Or do you go to a private or parochial school and wear a uniform? When I was a girl I went to both kinds of schools. And while I liked dressing up sometimes when I was in public school, most of the time it would have been easier to just wear a uniform?

Some of you may be too young to go to school this year, but I bet you'll be excited next year.

Your Friend,
Aunt Tilly

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are Kiran Gupta and Farah Maloof.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

By William M. Acosta

Check SS record every 3 years

Q. I have worked on a lot of different jobs. I have often wondered whether or not all the various employers have reported my earnings.

A. Is this something I should be concerned about? — K.S.

A. It is a good idea to check your Social Security record every three years or so to make sure your earnings have been correctly reported. This is especially important if you change jobs often.

You can get a free form from any Social Security office to help you do this. It is also a good idea to keep evidence of your earnings such as Forms W-2 until you know your earnings are credited to your record.

Q. I am age 65 and plan to continue working. I understand that if you earn over a certain amount some of your benefits are withheld. How much is withheld? — P.M.

A. Beginning this year (1990) if you are 65 or older, $1 in benefits will be deducted for every $3 of earnings over the exempt amount. If you are 65 through 69, you can earn up to $9,360 this year without any deductions.

Until this year, $1 had been deducted for every $2 of earnings over the limit.

For people under 65, the exempt amount is $6,840 and for people 70 or over, there is no deduction.

Q. Once you become entitled to Supplemental Security Income, are there any programs to help the disabled become self-supporting? — B.L.

A. Under a work incentive plan to help you become self-supporting you can set aside some of your income and some of your resources over a period of time to pay expenses such as vocational training, education, buying work-related equipment, or starting a business. The income and resources you set aside don't count in deciding your eligibility or payment amount.

Contact your Social Security office for complete information.

Q. I have been paying into Social Security for over 40 years and plan to retire soon.

How long will it take for me to get back what I paid in taxes? — S.M.

A. Today's retirees receive their total Social Security taxes back in about 21 months.

Future retirees will find it takes them longer to recover the amount of Social Security they paid because over the years, tax rates have increased. But even today's young workers can expect to get back everything they paid in taxes, plus interest, when they retire.
