We Need The Gregory Museum

About 18 years ago on January 25, 1973 I wrote a front page story for this newspaper.

"It started off: "Saturday, January 27, 1973 is a big day in Hicksville. It is opening day of the Gregory Museum, the first full scale museum ever to be erected in Hicksville. The Gregory Museum will comprise the largest collection, over 10,000 specimens, of rock and minerals ever assembled in this part of the country."

"The entire museum, which is the lifelong work of Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Gregory, of Cottage Boulevard, Hicksville is a magnificent achievement by the Gregories and in addition is a monument to the outstanding spirit of hundreds of people who work to make the museum the reality that the Gregories envisioned when they started the displays, originally in their home and then in the old courthouse which was leased to the museum by the Town in 1970.

"When the museum got the old building it had shown its years and some vandalism had made matters worse. But the Hicksville community pitched in. Carpenters, painters, supply dealers donated their time and materials in a manner that would restore not only the building but any skeptics faith in people..."

It is this blend of dedication by the Gregories and the people who did so much that makes the Gregory Museum unique in modern times. On Wednesday, May 22, Hicksville School District voters will go to the polls. They will vote for School candidates, a proposition on whether the budget should be approved and then Proposition Two which would authorize just $30,000 to keep the Gregory Museum operating and give Hicksville District students free access to this museum. This includes students in the district public, parochial and private. The amount is minimal when spread out through all district families. Not to approve this proposition would be a mistake that would set Hicksville back years and do away with something that has made Hicksville great and proud. Please vote yes to Proposition Two.

School Budget/Trustees Vote This Wednesday

By Maureen Traxler

On Wednesday, May 22, Hicksville residents will be asked to approve a $49,814,000 spending plan for the coming school year. This budget represents a $58,182 reduction from the present operating budget under austerity.

Supt. Catherine Fenton and the Board of Education have attributed the savings to a cut in 37 positions district-wide and the closing of Willet Avenue school. The board was also able to save dollars by reductions in travel and conference expenses, and new equipment requests, a deferral of $181,000 in Teacher Retirement System payments, and an estimated lower cost for asbestos abatement in the final year of the district's three-year management plan.

The budget, which will appear as Proposition 1 on the ballot, contains funds for bus transportation for student field and athletic trips, for extra-curricular sports, and for late buses at a minimum of 8 students. Proposition 2 calls for the renewal of a $30,000 serviced contract with the Hicksville Gregory Museum and Proposition 3 restores daily in-district transportation to 1989 pre-austerity level for public and parochial students at a cost of $916,441. Both Proposition 2 and Proposition 3, even if passed at the polls, cannot be implemented unless Proposition 1 (the 1991-92 budget) passes. The last sentence in each proposition reads: This proposition is contingent upon the approval of the voters of proposition No. 1.

No estimated tax rate has been determined by the school district due in large part to the seven-week delay in approval of a State budget. Governor Mario Cuomo has proposed a $891 million cut in education aid, of which over 50% will directly affect Long Island districts.

Residents will also vote for three candidates for school board trustee. For the seat vacated by William Bennett, which expires June 30, 1994, there are three candidates: Helen M. Lafferty, Mary E. Carton and Susan De Freitas. For the remainder of the term of JoAnn Miltenberg, which expires June 30, 1993, Richard H. Pfaender, Kevin Asher. The Winner of this seat will be immediately sworn in on the night of the election and join the present five-member board.

For the full term, July 1, 1991 to June 30, 1994, to succeed Pat Rooney, James M. Black vies Jeffrey A. Siegel.

The polls will be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Wednesday, May 22. The regular monthly school board meeting will take place at 8:15 p.m. that evening, and election results are expected to be announced as soon as they become available.

Teacher Appreciation Week

Oyster Bay Town Councilman Leonard Kunzig presents a proclamation to PTA members, school officials and teachers at the Charles Campagne School in Bethpage, officially recognizing the week of May 6 - 10 as National PTA Teacher Appreciation Week. On hand to accept the proclamation, left to right, were PTA Co-President Kathy Beatty, Principal Mary Quinn, Teacher Mary Beth O'Connor, Eleanor Engel and Betty Fabian.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

On November 28, 1990, Jo Ann Miltenberg and I resigned from the Hicksville Board of Education. Our statement read "When we ran for the Board of Education we were motivated by our children's education and the welfare of our community."

In the past two years we have watched Board members who are motivated by politics, self-interest and hatred. When these factors are the basis for making decisions; or for reversing a decision which benefits the community both educationally and financially, Board members have lost sight of their responsibilities as elected officials.

Our principles will not permit us to have our names associated with this type of decision making. After lengthy deliberation, we the President and Vice-President of the Hicksville Union Free School District resign."

This was a painful but thoughtful decision, and the sacrifice was made in the hopes that it would wake-up Hicksville. Now six months later, William Bennett has announced his retirement, and we are preparing for another election and School Budget Vote.

Don't let our actions be in vain, Bill Bennett, Jo Ann and I were good board members and always put the children, their education, and the community first in our decisions. This is your opportunity to replace us with three more good board members, who will think independently. The Hicksville school system is in CRISIS, we cannot afford another board member motivated by politics, self interest or hatred. I urge you to vote for the Row A Candidates, Helen Lafferty, James Black, and Richard Pfaender. We need intelligent, mature, prepared, ethical people to represent us. Mrs. Lafferty can relate to our retired homeowners, Mr. Pfaender as a parent of three children can relate to the families with children in school, and Mr. Black represents the young marrieds who are looking at schools and deciding whether or not Hicksville is where they want to raise their families. Seek these candidates out and speak to them. I have, find out what their views on all the issues.

Vote on May 22 Row A, for Lafferty, Black and Pfaender and please vote YES for the budget, it is important to our children.

Sincerely yours,
Patricia Rooney

To the Editor:

I would like to announce at this time that I am a candidate for a seat on the Board of Education. I am running for the seat vacated by Mrs. Rooney. It is an honor and a privilege to be a member of the board and a responsibility I do not look upon lightly. The past twelve months have been very turbulent for Hicksville and the present board. It is time for the board to settle down and address the issues at hand with a focus and determination that is needed in this time of fiscal crisis. I am fully confident that I can be a stabilizing force as the board refocuses its energy in dealing with the issues facing our district.

I have 17 years of business experience, which included contract negotiations, procurement procedures, data analysis and budget forecasting. Based upon my abilities to gather and analyze data, I know I can present well defined plans and clear decisions as a member of the Board of Education. I am a member of the Citizen's Budget Advisory Committee and have working knowledge of how a budget is prepared. This is another asset I will have to offer, as I will not be unfamiliar with the process under which the board operates and can immediately be a productive member.

My campaign will be one of honesty and integrity. There have recently been letters written that have been directed at me in a derogatory manner. These people are entitled to their opinions, but I will not participate in any "low road" campaign. I will concentrate on the facts and reason and not to disparaging remarks about other candidates. After all, it will be the voters of Hicksville who will ultimately decide.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey A. Siegel

To the Editor:

I am endorsing Jeff Siegel for the Hicksville Board of Education. Jeff is a hard working, conscientious individual who will fully commit himself to the responsibilities of a Board member. He is well educated, and his strong business background enables him to make logical decisions based on his fact finding abilities. Jeff weighs evidence, not emotions. However he is a good listener and is respectful of the opinions of others. Jeff is an independent thinker and creative problem solver.

Some have accused Jeff Siegel of representing a special interest group because of his work with the East Street Coalition. But Jeff, along with many other concerned residents fought the Board of Education, believing the decision to close two schools in the same area of town was illogical. In the five years I have known Jeff, I find him to be a good, honest person and a family man, with only the children's interests in mind. I strongly urge you to vote for Jeffrey Siegel, Row 5B on May 22.

Very truly yours,
Al Ciaccio

To the Editor:

I endorse the candidacies of Helen Lafferty (IA), Richard Pfaender (3A) and James Black (5A) to become trustees of the Hicksville School Board. While some of the other candidates offer desirable qualities, these three will best advance the interests of our children and community. Although I do not agree with every position taken by each of them, we need the insight and judgment of the "A" line.

All Hicksville voters should attend the candidates' forums. Ask questions and listen carefully. Your thoughts should decide our future, not advertisements, telephone banks, flyers or name recognition. Vote for community spirit, not special interest groups.

Hopefully, the main budget proposition will pass. Its defeat will eliminate extra-curricular activities without resulting in any significant tax savings. Please support the proposition in favor of modest financial support for the Gregory Museum at an annual cost of less than $1 for each home.

Helen Lafferty, Richard Pfaender and James Black deserve our votes. An austerity budget offers illusory relief. We need quality Trustees to create long range solutions to the difficult problems that confront us.

Charles R. Strugatz

To The Editor:

The Citizens Budget Advisory Committee, named by the Board of Education to give advice on the 1991-92 budget, was a most diligent committee. Their hard work should be commended and praised. They recommended a number of ideas to the Board of Education, some of which have been acted on favorably, others which have been rejected for good cause, and still other ideas which may be implemented over the coming years as long-term economy measures.

Now, however, the Citizens Budget Advisory Committee is encouraging the community to vote against the new school budget, and it's very difficult to understand or support their position in light of the facts.

All increases in telephone, fuel, electric, salaries, insurance, textbooks, and supplies for next year were absorbed by eliminating 37 positions and closing the Willet Avenue School. There is NO increase over the amount of the 1990/91 austerity budget. Yet, that is not enough says the advisory committee. They also accuse the board of failing to listen to their advice, so let's look at the record.

The advisory committee recommended the addition of a $60,000 administrator, who would need a secretary, office, telephone, etc. We said no to this idea, and we even went further to cut two administrator positions and three administrative secretaries from next year's budget.

The committee recommended hiring an insurance consultant, and the board said no to this because we did not believe we can afford the expense of another consultant this year.

The committee recommends that we cut the money we give to the schools to buy student supplies, workbooks, textbooks, paper and pencils. We already cut that amount during this austerity year by 50%, and we have now used up all of our inventory of supplies trying to make it through the present year. This is true of all our supplies, and these items are the very heart of our program and purpose for existence.

The committee recommended that eliminate the positions of the School Nurse-Teachers and replace them with registered nurses for a lower salary. The board accepted this recommendation and eliminated the nine School Nurse-Teacher positions. In addition, we made further cuts in other education programs that the committee did not target for elimination. We have cut positions in Remedial Reading, the elementary Gifted and Talented program, English as a Second Language, and Psychological Services. Some of the employees involved in these cuts have served Hicksville for over 20 years and are now unemployed. It was hard, but we did it to keep the budget down.

I can understand the committee's disappointment and anger that after all of their work their advice was not accepted without question. I am, however, quite surprised that they would actually advise the community to reject the budget and to entrust decisions about the next budget to newly elected board members. This action seems unconscionable since some of these same committee members are now seeking election to the board. They assisted in drafting the committee's letter and are, therefore, using that device as a way of endorsing themselves for election.

I have, as your Superintendent of Schools, given this community a quality educational program for your children, one that has done a great deal to enhance this community's self-esteem and pride. The proposed new budget represents the board's commitment to preserving the high level of our educational programs in a responsible way. The budget represents no increase over the present year, and yet it continues to offer the full range of opportunities we all want for our children. This budget deserves your support on May 22.

Sincerely,
Catherine J. Fenton
Superintendent of Schools

To the Editor:

Once again I am fighting the famous windmill represented by the School Budget. We are boasted to about the reduction over last year but what did they reduce and how little. There should be a greater overall cut when you realize we have one less school. How about a 10% increase in legal fees? Only $18,000 in reduction in Building Costs, again, one less school, and an increase in utility with one less building. What about smaller registrations? Same staff?

We do not have a Superintendent as yet but are paying $30,000 to our retired Superintendent whose expertise the Board voted against when she gave her recommendations for school closings. I don't want to take up too much space. Why don't we all mark off the increases and decreases as noted in the official budget. See if you don't wonder how realistic it is and what are they clouding up. Oh yes, we won't be getting last year's subsidy from the State. I know what I will do.

Sincerely and Disgusted,
A. Goldstein

To the Editor:

The Citizens Budget Advisory Committee elects to not recommend passage of the current proposed budget. We hope that the newly elected Board will present our community with a second budget that demonstrates much more fiscal responsibility; one that the taxpayers can afford and one that results in the highest standard of educational opportunities for our students.

Our committee, appointed by the Board of Education, is comprised of 14 residents who possess significant business and professional backgrounds. We have spent over 1400 hours in developing recommendations for submission to the Board. These 16 recommendations would have resulted in increased efficiency and greatly reduced expenses. Yet none of the 16 formal proposals were fully incorporated into the proposed budget. If adopted, our suggestions would have resulted in additional substantial savings to our community. No reasons were presented to this committee as to why our recommendations were passed over. Therefore, we cannot in good conscience support the budget being proposed by the Board.

Sincerely,
The Citizens Budget Advisory Committee

To the Editor:

On May 1, a very special occasion took place at the Elks Club in Hicksville. The scholars of the 1991 Hicksville High School graduating class were honored for their outstanding academic achievements. All of the students truly deserve this recognition and our praise.

Also, on this particular evening, the scholars chose to honor those teachers that have supported and encouraged them to excel in all that they attempt.

I was one of the fortunate teachers to be so honored. I would like to sincerely thank Dr. Catherine Fenton for such a unique concept, to the Alumni Association for sponsoring the Scholars' Dinner, and especially to those students for their thoughtfulness and kind words of praise.

The outstanding scholars from Fork Lane Elementary School include: Heather Carpenter, Jarret Roth, Sanjay Tewari, Sean Burns, Michael Schneider and Jason Elorriaga.

For these students, the best is yet to come. For me, it was a pleasure to be a part of their lives. Thank you so much for remembering me. I will always remember all of you.

Your friend,
Gregory Pisani

Old Country Student Stars

The Old Country Road School had initiated a Stars-of-the-Month program as an incentive for children to excel in all areas of education. These superstars are not necessarily students who excel academically, but who set good examples for the school. Each month teachers nominate the students they believe deserve this recognition. The children's names and their photographs are then displayed on a bulletin board in the lobby along with their own star.

The Stars-of-the-Month for March, pictured here with OCR Principal Mrs. Silver, are: Thomas Lupski, Sara Kim, Jonathan Dong, Michael Rielly, Pam Michalakis, Katie Wigdzinski, Patricia Vicchio, Daniel Tremmel, Ryan Finnegan, Michael Ghisone, Kim Pessoa, Brendan Aull, Kristi Walker, Eric Hobble, Laura Matthiessen, Lauren Russell, Nicole Degenaro, Michelle D'Amato, Patricia Bob, Danny Lee, Michael Mirra, Kevin Kerrigan, Jennifer Bangert, Lea Fernando, Nicole Franchino, Merrill Vargheese, Athina Milhalatos, Kevin Abberton, Jeanna Henderson, Hanna Kabashi, Elisa Lie, Erik Pesce, Emmett Sullivan, Ensayatullah Motahedy, Brian Ferrara, Brian Becker, John Lyons, and Najibullah Motahedy. Celebration At Holy Trinity

Holy Trinity Episcopal Church at the corner of Old Country Road and Jerusalem Avenue in Hicksville, invites and welcomes guests and new members to special services this Sunday, May 19, and the following Sunday, May 26. This Sunday is celebrated as the Feast of the Holy Spirit, traditionally known as Pentecost and sometimes known as the birthday of the Christian Church.

Special features will be the placing of 2 large symbols of the Holy Spirit over the reading stations in the Church: over 1, a white dove descending and over the other, red and orange flames of fire. These symbols emerge from the way the Holy Spirit is known in Scripture. Another feature will be a large birthday cake prepared and decorated by Edith Greenidge, a faithful member of Holy Trinity Church, to be cut and eaten at the Coffee Hour following the 10 a.m. service. Special music is being prepared by the Choir under the direction of Kenneth Soule, Organist and Choir Director.

The Rector, The Rev. Canon Domenic K. Ciannella, announces a Holy Communion replacement set will be dedicated on the following Sunday, May 26, which is the celebration of the Blessed Trinity and is the Parish Name Day. This replacement set was fabricated by J. Wippell & Company Limited of London, England. It will be dedicated in the name of those persons memorialized in the Communion ware that was stolen from the Church in July, 1988.

With other Episcopal Churches throughout the world, Holy Trinity has entered into the Decade of Evangelism. Last Sunday, the Sunday after the Ascension, the Rector charged the congregation to accept the challenge of The Most Rev.

Hicksville Baseball Update

Boys Instructional Division

Yankees (Team #8), managed by Joe Restivo, met the Tigers on the field on Tuesday, May 7. Defense was the name of the game as the Yankees went up against the roaring Tigers. The infield combination of Billy Cain, David Skelly and Matt Restivo was superb, making numerous fine plays. Key base hits by Mike Kalos, Eugene Pietzak and Anthony Minervini added to the Yankee team effort. Every game brings further improvement of each player on this young Yankee team. Yankees met the ferocious Tiger team again on Saturday, May 11. All the Yankees were smacking base hits; Michael Kalos, Eugene Pietzak, Anthony Minervini, Gregory Krayeski, Chris Colantropo and Joey Ahern. Four hits each for Michael Recher and David Skelly and a home run by Matthew Restivo capped the Yankee attack. Our defense also pulled off 2 double-plays, started by Billy Cain and David Skelly for an all around great game.

Boys Farm Division

The Blue Jays, team #1, met the Cubs, team #4, on the field this past week for a very exciting victory. Shauna Dwivedia, starting pitcher for the Blue Jays pitched 2 scoreless innings and had 7 RBI's on 2 home runs and a double. Mike Theis also had a 2 run homer in the fifth. With the bases loaded and no outs in the bottom of the sixth, score tied, David Goris got hit by the pitch to score Robert Epifania with the winning run. The box score shows a true see-saw battle.

The Cubs, managed by Joe Caruso, are back in the swing of things after a disheartening defeat by the Royals on May 4.

They came up against the Athletics on May 7 with a 14-3

The Cubs pitchers were relentless, Joe Restivo with 6 strikeouts, no hits and Adam Geslak with 8 strikeouts, 3 walks and 2 hits. Both Bobby Price and Joe Restivo did outstanding jobs as catcher. The hitting was strong with Joey Caruso going 2/3, Adam Geslak 2/3, Chris Johnson 2/3, Nakita Miglis 2/3, Bobby Price 2/3 and a tremendous hit from Brett Langlois. The entire team did a super job!

Boys Major Division

Mike Logan's Cubs, team #6, won their last game against the Yankees, team #3, 9-2. Pitchers Mike Logan and John Schiarelli pitched a fine game and strong effort by catcher by Chris DeStefano contributed to the victory. The defense of Marty Hughes, Jimmie Stahl, Thomas Morillo, and Greg Parmiter was good. The whole club played with heart!

Also in the Boys Major Division, the mighty Red Sox, team #4, managed by Joe Iocco and sponsored by Posh Pillows, won their 3rd straight game with a win against the Cubs, team #6. Joe Iocco went 2/1 with 2 home runs and an intentional walk and 3 RBI's. Sean Sullivan had 2 hits, one which was a key hit. Mike Baglieri tied the game with a line double in the gap. Joe Iocco's solo home run won the game in the 7th inning. Excellent fielding by Paul McNamara kept us in the game. Final Score, 4-3.

Fine pitching by Robert Erlaus and Joey Iocco. Cubs pitchers, Mike Logan and Brian Allen gave a fine performance. A most exciting game it was, Great Job Guys!

Leslie Quijano Honored By Rotary

pletely and without hesitation to help others in the community at large as well as right next door."

A strong, achieving student, Leslie is a member of SADD and Student Civic as well as the Honor Society. For four years she has been on the Bethpage Kickline, acting as treasurer and helped win the Long Island championship in Grade 10, and in Nassau in Grade 12.

But more than anything, her efforts as Coordinator of the Child Study Workshop and Coordinator of the two student trips to Suffolk State Center have made her stand out. Each week she plans weekly themes for the high school students to work with the nursery schoolers. Because three different classes share the Child Study Program she must brainstorm with six different high schoolers each week. A few weeks ago for example, they planned a workshop dealing with the five senses using a feeling chart of sandpaper and cotton. She plans the graduation with songs and caps and gowns, concluding with refreshments.

In preparation for the trips to Suffolk State, she will be organizing a Lip Sync in May, schedule pony rides and a Good Humor lunch and raffle off tickets to a concert. Even more satisfying to her is the role she has volunteered for during the past two years as an assistant Kindergarten teacher at Campagne and at Central Boulevard School. She now has gotten a job working as an assistant teacher in a Nursery School in Levittown.

Is it any wonder that Leslie now plans to study elementary and nursery education at Molloy College while she continues in the Nursery School. She mentioned that the turning point in her life was at the Campagne School when she discovered that so many people rely on her and need her. This confirmed her natural organizational abilities and stressed the need for consistency in working with young people. "They need to know that I will be there every day."

Leslie will be a caring elementary teacher in the future. Let's hope that it will be in Bethpage.

Hawks Continue Undefeated Season

The Hicksville Hawks 1974 travelling soccer team continued their undefeated season, bringing their overall record to 12 wins, no losses, via a 4-3, third round L.I. Chase Cup Tournament victory over the Wantagh Cosmos in a shootout - and a 3-2, come from behind victory over the Terryville United, in League play, playing both games on the road this past weekend.

Saturday's game was a defensive masterpiece on the part of both teams, with the Cosmos enjoying a 1-0 lead until a Rich Kotschau direct set up a David Baumritter header, for the tying goal. Three separate times Wantagh had shots at an empty Hawk goal, only to be thwarted by the exceptional plays of Danny Longo, Steven Fox and Brian Harkins. 90 minutes of regulation play was followed by two scoreless 15 minute overtimes, setting up a shootout. The Cosmos put in their first shot, but were matched by Tommy Basaranlar for Hicksville. Wantagh then hit again but were matched by David Baumritter for Hicksville. The Cosmos and Hawks were both stopped on their third shots. The Cosmos then missed their fourth shot and Earl Dennis converted for the Hawks. Goalkeeper Dimitry Drouin then stopped his third successive Cosmos shot for the Hawk victory.

On Sunday, the undermanned Hawks, missing three key players, were outplayed by Terryville United in the first half and trailed 2-0 at halftime. Hicksville's terrific physical conditioning was obvious as they wore down Terryville in the second half, in the blistering heat, as they came back for three consecutive goals, while putting up a great defensive effort. The scorers were Danny Bell (1) and Tommy Basaranlar (2). The Hawks offensive effort was aided by some sensational throw ins by Brian Harkins and the exceptional skill of goalie Dimitry Drouin.

The balance of the players were: Eric Blicker, Chris Jendras, Kevin Koehn, Mike Longo, Rob Persaud and Brian Rooney, all of whom contributed mightily to the weekend sweep. Congratulations to the Hawks, Coach John Fitzgerald, Assistant Coach Pat McHugh, Manager Brian Koehn and sponsor Sports Medicine/Rehabilitation of Manhasset for an exciting soccer weekend!

Students Read 15,000 Books

Fifteen thousand books! That is the incredible fact that the students and teachers of the Bellpage Schools can be proud of as a result of their participation in the Book It! Program, sponsored by Pizza Hut. The goal of this project is to have the students in each class read a set amount of books each month. Thirty classes, from kindergarten through grade six, achieved their goals for this five-month program. The rewards for this accomplishment was a class pizza party, provided by Pizza Hut.

The sixth grade students of Mrs. Arcuri, Ms. Hill, Mr. Giansante, and Mr. Telchert of JFK Middle School celebrated their accomplishments. The sixth grade students of Mr. Melone's class at JFK Middle School. The sixth grade students of Mr. Ambrose's class at JFK Middle School.

The second grade students of Mrs. Thomas' class at Kramer Lane Elementary School.

The third grade students of Mrs. Liepa's class at Central Boulevard Elementary School.

The Gregory Museum: An Educational Institution

By Maureen Traxler

Even though the Gregory Museum, housed in the nearly 100-year-old Heitz Place Courthouse, has been a part of the Hicksville community since its founding in 1963, many residents are unclear of its mission and contributions. The Gregory Museum, Long Island Earth Science Center, is an educational institution which offers a wealth of continuing learning for all ages. The museum's primary goal is to impart knowledge about our ever-changing earth, but it also does much to foster awareness of Hicksville's colorful history.

Formal instruction through lectures, slide presentations and hands-on experience is offered to youngsters from Kindergarten to 12th grade, ranging from introduction to science to rocks and minerals, from weathering and erosion to water and the water cycle, from fossils and dinosaurs to volcanoes and crystals. Students learn why the earth moves and explore the life cycles of butterflies, gaining fascinating insights about these beautiful insects.

The museum's program on Long Island studies includes artifacts, maps and slides exploring the cultural and historic backgrounds of Long Island's original inhabitants and the people of today; bus tours introduce students to the Hicksville community's points of cultural, economic, historical and political importance; and Long Island's geologic history is explained by showing local landforms and familiar sites and the processes responsible for their formation.

The museum has a workshop schedule including those designed for early childhood (preschoolers to grade 2). For children from age 5 to 12, workshops include performing experiments and creating nature-related craft projects. A modest fee is charged to defray the cost of materials.

A summer program is scheduled, and brochures for the summer of 1991 will be available soon. Museum Director Joan Kwecki, a former teacher and elementary principal, notes that these workshops are designed to challenge the brain and provide a positive environment for children.

All workshops given to children and adults are taught by professionals. Most notably leading the adult schedule are Dr. Charles Rockwell, Professor of Geology at Nassau Community College and Hofstra and former Hicksville Junior High School History teacher and local historian Richard Evers.

For the past three years, the museum has sponsored a Science Fair for elementary and middle school youngsters of the community. This worthwhile event has given many youngsters a new awareness of the precision and orderliness with which experiments are presented, carried out, and documented.

Three times a year the Gregory Museum puts out a brochure detailing its upcoming events. All senior citizens groups receive notice of its programs. Every fall and spring the museum offers courses in the earth sciences and L.I. history which have traditionally been utilized by teachers as in-service training credit. These courses have now been opened to interested people throughout the entire community on a space-available basis.

Multiple-week adult classes were organized this past fall, and many workshops find youngsters and adults working in tandem on projects of mutual interest. The Nassau Junior Mineral Club holds its monthly meetings in the museum's headquarters, and the museum was host to the first Hicksville Historical Society Membership Social this January.

The museum has been partially supported through its service contract with the Hicksville School District. Under that contract, residents enjoy such privileges as free admission to the museum at all times; free instruction programs for all public, private and parochial classes K-12; free student tours of the community; out-reach programs brought to the classroom upon request; student internships by special arrangement for grades 8 through 12 whereby students learn about museum environment and how to give tours under the supervision of the museum's curator and staff; and 20 hours of free accredited in-service training by certified staff made available each year up to 36 Hicksville teachers.

"The museum serves as post secondary education for the entire community. Culturally, it gives us the advantage to see what we are and what our lives will mean to those who will come after us," says Joan Kwecki. "It is not just a children's museum, although we do cater to children."

During the days of austerity, the museum has shown good faith to its community by its open house events. Once a month, the museum opened its doors to residents free-of-charge offering special programs and refreshments. It has continued its services to the schools and educational staff, although fees were charged while the service contract was not in effect.

Funding for the museum comes in small doses: receipts from the gift shop, admissions, memberships, steady contributors such as Northville Industries, Chase Manhattan Bank and Grumman's and some government grant money. Museum staff continually write to industry, but in these days of dwindling economic resources, contributions and assistance has been limited.

The museum's functions dovetail with educational curriculum today, even as they did when the museum kicked off almost 30 years ago. Recently, the board of education showed a desire to set a goal to improve its science program and labs at the secondary level.

Many educators and prominent national figures are concerned with America's lack of leadership in science. Two recent reports reflect that concern and the need to take advantage of opportunities available in the community.

"With recent problems in the economy," states Bruce Reinholdt, N.Y.S. Education Dept. representative, "it is even more imperative that we remind teachers and their schools that museums are still a vital partner in the education of our children."

And a quote from a report of the Policy Committee of Governor Cuomo's Conference on Science and Engineering. Education,

Research and Development reveals: "The States museums and libraries offer important resources for a new and comprehensive approach to family learning about 'how the world works,' and about technology-related mathematics and science."

On May 22, voters will be asked through Proposition 2 to approve an expenditure of $30,000 for renewal of the service contract between the School District and the Gregory Museum. Passage of the proposition will increase taxes by two cents per $100 assessed valuation, or for the average household, approximately $2.30 per year - less than one adult admission to the museum ($2.50).

The Gregory Museum, by its own statement, stands dedicated to "Creating an awareness of and active interest in the wonder, beauty and value of nature's gifts to mankind, and to do all things possible to preserve these gifts."

Inventor Convention

The evening of April 24 brought approximately 500 people, including 69 young inventors, to the Village School gymnasium for its second annual Invention Convention. This year, adding to the excitement, was the involvement of the East Nassau and Farmingdale Kiwanis Clubs. They served as our judges and chose five grade-level winning inventions as follows:

Grade One - Evan Marya Soufarapis for "Light Up My Socks"

Grade Two - Sal Cataldo for the

"Warm Weather Keeper"
Grade Three - Jessica Sherry for the "Sticker Socks"

Grade Four - Kristin Orrico for "Save-A-Sole"

Grade Five - Michael DiLeo, Adam Gross, Eric Schatz and Scott Tessler for the "Water Cleaner."

The East Nassau Kiwanis Club offered all grade level winners a $50 savings bond. The faculty advisors for the program were Ms. Aronin, Ms. Kleinman and Ms. Meyers. It was a memorable and exciting evening for all.

Mixed Views From Input Callers On Quayle

Callers to Input had mixed ideas regarding whether Vice Pres. Dan Quayle should remain on the ticket for re-election with Pres. Bush in answer to this question: "Will Dan Quayle be a liability on the ticket as Vice Pres. because of Pres. Bush's heart attack?" Here are some of the answers:

NOT HEART PROBLEM

As most people know now, Pres. Bush has not been diagnosed as having a heart condition. His problem was diagnosed as being a thyroid disease and the prognosis is that he will recover fully in 18 months or more if treated properly. The flap over whether Dan Quayle would become a liability is one that the Democrats were happy to take up because the polls were showing that Pres. Bush may well be unbeatable. My belief is that Pres. Bush ought to find another running mate with more credentials because many people were worried that Quayle would be President and that he has not, to date, shown much proof that he could assume a positon of this stature. B.N.

DEMOCRATS WOULD LIKE IT

I think the Democrats would like to see Quayle stay on the ticket and that is the reason there were Democrats quickly running to his defense when news commentators were suggesting that Quayle was a poor Vice Pres. choice and that he was only a "heartbeat" away from being President. I think that Bush, who is strong headed, will keep Quayle and unless Bush's health takes a bad turn the ticket will be re-elected. H.G.

WHY QUAYLE

It seems that people were right in wondering why Quayle with little experience was given the nomination for Vice President. In spite of the fact that the President-nominee picks his running mate in case of death the public is stuck with his choice whether good or bad. I think the public wants someone with more experience in the Veep spot and next time Quayle should be dumped. F.D.

DEMOCRAT ALL THE WAY

It is obvious to me that the Republican party stands for big business, therefore Dan Quayle is not an asset to the country. K.P.

NOT ALL TRUTH

The news keeps see-sawing back and forth on whether Bush has a real heart attack or the same disease as his wife has. The way they have been putting the wraps on Bush in his stay in the hospital leads me to believe that we are not getting all the truth and just in case Bush is sicker than we think I would like to see someone else as the Vice President. L.H.

WOULD LEARN RAPIDLY

All of this talk about Quayle not being up to the standard of being President would disappear if he took over the Presidency. We have had good luck with the likes of Truman and Johnson and neither of them ever expected to be President. When Quayle would take over he would learn rapidly and might turn out to be really great. J.P.

NO CREDENTIALS

It looks like all of the foreboding that had been aired about Quayle could come true. I think he has no credentials to be President and the American people would suffer for not being more worried about Quayle when they voted for the ticket the first time. If Quayle stays on the ticket and the Dems put up good candidates I think Bush might find that his popularity won't get him re-elected. G.F.

MUCH SNEERING

There has been so much sneering about Quayle but little fire. He has not been a bad Vice Pres. and he has been watched closer than most before him. He hasn't made any mistakes and I think he should remain on the ticket. N.C.

THINK AGAIN

When candidate George Bush in 1988 picked Dan Quayle as his running mate, the electorate was shocked at his weak choice, but due to a very weak opponent (Dukakis) he easily won the election. While a healthy George Bush would probably repeat in 1992, a not so healthy Bush had better think twice about retaining Dan Quayle especially if the Democrats put up a strong candidate. C.K.

STILL SATISFIED

It's hard to evaluate this question not alone the answer. However, at this moment it would appear that George Bush is out of the woods and merely has to alter his behavior a bit and let the medical experts keep a watchful eye on him. On that basis, I don't see how Dan Quayle can be a liability to him because the Vice President obviously had been thoroughly evaluated before electing and under the law, simply had to succeed to the Presidency in the event that Bush had to vacate his job for one reason or another. Consequently, if Quayle were to be evaluated as a risk, that decision was made when candidate Bush and the Republican Committee evaluated the prospect of victory prior to the election campaign. From a purely personal point of view I feel pretty safe in having Dan Quayle as a backstop for the President with a more than a quarter of a century advantage in age. From what I have seen so far, I haven't noticed the media jumping on any obvious missteps on the part of the Vice President on the relatively few assignments which Quayle has carried out at home or abroad. I just can't believe that he would be a liability under any circumstances unless he were to be unfairly attacked solely for political reasons. P.G.S.

By Arthur A. Delaney

If the Discovery typographer has not reversed the Chinese ideograms which illustrate this page, and if the reader is familiar with that Oriental language, its meaning will be crystal clear. For the rest of us, a translation is necessary. It means "Stamp Out Monosodium Glutamate." I was given a card containing the inscription and was told to leave it with my tip the next time I ate at a Chinese restaurant.

I was puzzled. Not at the writing, but because an individual or group thought it necessary to have the cards printed. Why could I not simply tell the waiter that MSG is not wanted? And, no, the answer isn't because of a real or imagined language gap. Rather it lies in a growing reliance on sign symbolism to convey our fears, aspirations, and desires, while projecting our images and delimiting our imaginations. Signs have been with us since the magic art of cavemen and other primitive people. Today they are taking on a new dimension of communication. Some are even on the fringe of being an art form.

Look around and you will see all kinds of sign messages that can be easily verbalized. They may range from a single word or phrase (i.e.: "Beware of Dog") to bizarre juxtapositions of words and graphics - often letters and graffiti. All of it is a sign of the times, and often it is a sign that snarls.

Take those black on yellow, diamond-shaped "Baby on Board" signs that one sees hanging in rear windows of cars. Few will quibble with the intent and purpose of the message. It is to reinforce safe driving and to convey a plea to be especially cautious because the vehicle may transport children. But, this simple sign has evolved into a whole host of messages that can be read by peering into rear windows. I take the "Lawyer on Board" to be threatening. To me it is a sign that gnars, especially when it hangs in the window of a Mercedes! Or, how about that "Mother-in-Law in Trunk"? One does not take it literally, but rather as a sign of humor. Perhaps it indicates a secret desire. Signs today often convey different messages to different receptors.

"No Radio on Board" should mean just that. But most cars do have radios. So why the sign? Its message is not for you or me. It's a plea to

請
不
要
放

a burglar to pass up a prospective hit and move on to another victim. The theory is based on the same reason people have their yards sprayed and install burglar alarms (along with the sign that advertises their existence). They want the insects and thieves to ease an easier target. The "No Radio" sign seldom works. I've heard of burglars who smash car windows, take sign and radio, and leave one of their own: "Oh, Yeah, You Lied!" A corollary to the radio sign is one I once saw on a seedy-looking Queens construction site. It was declarative: "Everything Worth Taking Has Been Took." To me the sign conveyed a sad truth, even if the sloppy grammar was an attempt to put a smile on a bad situation.

Bumper stickers form a linear genre in themselves. Here in the narrow space of a car bumper, one often expresses social and political philosophy, affirms religious faith, promotes charity, voices anger/approval, or any of a host of other human, easily verbalized messages. "What's Intelligent About the C.I.A.?" conveys through humor much animosity, while "Fight Racism" admonishes. "Better Schools Build Better Communities" is more than a statement, and "If You Can Read This, Thank a Teacher" obviously expects the message receptor to do more. You can think of countless message illustrations. My favorite is one which simply reads "Bumper Sticker." It's a sign which conveys a message, as does my bumper which carries no words, just rust.

"Just Say No" has come to mean "No Drugs," while "Honk If You Love Jesus" asks for an affirmative audio response. Most signs, however, can be taken at face; they are the ones that seem to have been with us for centuries: "Silence," "No Trespassing," "Keep Off The Grass," and "Post No Bills." But, open your eyes and mind. Do look around. You will observe the new generation of signs. And you will note that urban New Yorkers, hardly a reticent lot even as they strive to avoid eye contact, are shouting at you through their signs. It is a sign of the times.

We are not wine drinkers. If we're giving a party, what kind of wines should we stock in order to take care of our wine-drinking friends' pleasure - from cocktail hour through dinner? W.L.

A. For the cocktail hour you might have on hand dry or sweet sherry, or dry or sweet vermouth, or any of the popular "aperitifs". Many choose a glass of dry white wine at the cocktail hour (either chilled or "on the rocks").

For the first course, or to drink with any fish, salad, chicken, veal or fruit, a chilled white wine is nice (such as Chablis, Soave, Riesling, Chenin Blanc, Pinot Chardonnay).

For the meat or game course (or the salad with cheese), serve a Burgundy, Bordeaux, Chianti, Cabernet Sauvignon or Zinfandel at a cool room temperature (from 60 to 70 degrees).

Rose wines should be chilled, like white wines. A rose is best served with a light dish and is more popular in hot weather than in cold.

For dessert you may serve the same wine you had from the previous course. Or if it's something festive like an anniversary, dessert time is the moment to bring on the champagne (the drier the better!).

Some people enjoy a sweet wine with dessert such as port or a sweet sauterne or sherry, but one seldom sees this custom followed anymore in this country.

Where Our Readers
Have The Last Word

This newspaper, and the seven other weekly newspapers associated with it, publishes the last word in restaurant guides and a paid listing of many prominent selected restaurants in this area. While many of them have been rated by the great, and near great food connoisseurs, our readers will have the last word through "Reader Ratings."

Through a special 24 hour phone system, readers will be asked to call in their assessment of each restaurant they visit. Consensus ratings (good or bad) will be published as a continuing part of the guide.

In addition they can make suggestions, compliments or criticisms through the open phone line and messages will be sent through to the restaurant management.

FINE SEAFOOD

Our party of four had dinner at Estoril Granada, on Mineola Boulevard in Mineola. Seafood seems to be their specialty. We asked the waiter for suggestions and he thought we would enjoy Carne Porco Alentejana. This consists of pork and clams in a delicate brown sauce. It was a happy choice. The other couple ordered the Caldeirada, which is the Portuguese version of Bouillabaisse. Our friends heartily endorsed their choice. If you are hankering for something unique and delicious, I think you will enjoy Estoril Granada. We enjoyed the ambiance of the restaurant and found the service excellent. G.W.

Q. Who is served first at table and when is the proper time to begin eating? F.G.D.

A. The hostess is not served first unless she is the only lady at the table or is alone with her husband and children. If Grandmother or even a young girl guest is present, the dishes are first presented to her after inspection by the hostess. When the hostess is serving from in front of her place, with or without the aid of a servant, she is served next to last and her husband last. For her to serve herself earlier will mean her food will be cold and her filled plate in the way.

After several people have been served, urged by the hostess, guests begin eating so their food will not be cold. And, except at breakfast, the polite husband waits until his wife has been served before beginning to eat.

Q. Many times I find that baked potatoes at restaurants are soggy, even the better restaurants. How come they can't bake a potato right? C.B.

A. They can bake potatoes right but the problem is that when you bake a potato it takes a long time and they usually bake a number of them at once. If you happen to hit at the right time you will get the best but later it will get more soggy. The best tip in ordering the potato is to ask the server whether they are freshly baked or not. If not better take something else.

Q. Because of our jobs my husband and I are on different schedules several nights a week. I would prefer to eat out on those evenings rather than to take the time and effort to prepare a meal just for myself. However, I don't really feel comfortable dining alone. I find most restaurants don't really welcome the person who is not in a group.

A. First of all, there is no reason for you to feel uncomfortable. In today's hectic world there is nothing unusual about people eating alone in restaurants! In any case, the person who dines out has the right to expect the same courteous treatment whether he or she is alone or in the company of others. The smart restaurant owner knows the importance of good will. He values all his customers' patronage and makes them feel equally welcome.

Q. Will you please describe the correct procedure for introducing one couple to another (1) when the couples are approximately the same age (2) when one couple is older or more distinguished in status than the other? M.J.

A. When the couples are about the same age it doesn't matter whose names are mentioned first. When one couple is older or more distinguished - or perhaps guests in your town - you introduce the younger couple.

Q. When dining out I have often seen women wearing their coats to the table, then depositing them on the back of their chairs. However, I have never seen a man do the same thing with his overcoat. Is there really a difference in etiquette for men and women in regard to checking coats?

A. Yes, a man always checks his coat in a restaurant. But a woman has the option of checking her coat or bringing it to the table.

Q. Last week we went to a well known restaurant with a party of four people. Each person ordered something different and the result was that the waitress brought the orders out at different times. What happened was that some people had to sit there and let their food get cold while waiting for the others. Some in the party said "go ahead and eat" but no one wanted to do that because it didn't seem right. What should have been done?

G.H.

A. What should have been done is that you should have complained to the management. You have mentioned a good restaurant and we are going to send the complaint on to them. The food should all be served at once or as nearly as possible. Otherwise no one is dining together and you might as well have all gone alone. That restaurant will have to get on the ball.

Q. I have noticed that tips are said to range from 15 to 20 percent of a bill in a restaurant. When you calculate this, do you figure in the sales tax?

R.K.

A. No you do not generally figure the sales tax in the tip but a great many people now are doubling the sales tax to quickly arrive at the amount of the tip. With the new increased fraction the tip will then closely approximate a 15 percent gratuity.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

By Desiree Vives

Okra is one of those vegetables you either love or hate. Surprisingly, this has nothing to do with the flavor, which is mild and innocuous, but rather with the texture. Some people find the rather slippery quality of okra to be unappealing.

Yet it is this very property that makes okra the perfect ingredient for rib-sticking gumbo, since its mucilaginous quality thickens this traditional Southern dish.

(When okra is heated in water, its starch granules release gums and pectin substances that cling to water molecules, thickening gumbo.)

Gumbos are thick soups (or thin stews, depending on how you look at it) newly popularized with the recent interest in Creole cookery of New Orleans and Louisiana. Highly flavored, they may contain shrimp and other shellfish, chicken — even rabbit.

Known as "ladies' fingers" in England, okra is a native of tropical Africa. It's very popular in African cookery, in some Arab countries and in the Deep South region of the United States. A green, slightly fuzzy pod, it looks like a legume but is really the immature seedpod of a plant of the hibiscus family and is closely related to cotton. All okra pods are tapered, but some are short and chunky, others elongated.

While canned and frozen okra is available all year round, peak season for fresh okra runs from May to October. Look for young, unblemished pods, bright green or white in color, from 2 to 4½ inches in length. Pods should be tender enough to bend under gentle pressure. Avoid dull, dry or shriveled pods. Okra past its prime may be fibrous. Refrigerate in a perforated plastic bag; okra will stay fresh up to four days.

Rinse in cool tap water just before cooking and trim off ends. Cut into uniform ½-inch slices for soups or stews. One pound of fresh okra will serve four.

Okra is always eaten cooked and is particularly tasty when teamed with corn, tomatoes, green pepper and onions.

To avoid the sliminess that can come with overcooking on a conventional range, microwave fresh okra in just a bit of water. To microwave 1 pound fresh okra, place trimmed okra in a 1½-quart microwave-safe casserole. Add ¼ cup water; cover and microwave on HIGH (100 percent power) setting five to six minutes, until tender, stirring once. Let stand, covered, one minute. Drain and serve.

To microwave a 10-ounce package of frozen whole okra, place okra in a 1-quart microwave-safe casserole with 2 tablespoons water and ½ teaspoon salt. Cover. Microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting seven to nine minutes. Rearrange after four minutes. Drain and serve.

FOR TEENS

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Dr. Abraham: Sometimes I really do listen to my parents, and it sure can come in handy. Let me give an example to you and your other teen readers.

We often have a heavy evening meal, and I used to gorge myself after that whether I was watching TV or studying.

Needless to say, I wasn't hungry the next morning, so I skipped breakfast most of the time.

That's where I made my mistake. I gained a lot of weight and, in addition, found myself not listening much in school classes.

I talked all this over with my mom and dad, and they suggested (without pressure, a good approach on their part) a changed eating schedule for me — cut back on the evening gorging and gradually build up a breakfast routine.

It worked for me, and maybe will for others, too. My weight slowly dropped, and my school grades started to go up. It was hard for me to believe, but that's what happened.

I also cut back on the junk snacks during the day and the fatty food at meals, so I guess that helped, too. — Happy

Happy: Such a commonsense series of suggestions. I hope others give them some serious thought.

Thanks very much for writing.

Dr. Abraham: During spring break I went with some other college students to a beach area where a lot of the kids go. It was so beautiful there, except for one thing — and that one was bad enough that you can be sure I won't go back there or anywhere college kids go as a bunch. It was my first and last time.

It's because they drank so much, were so loud and expected every girl to give in to what they wanted (which was plenty). Some of the girls were just as drunken, loud and awful.

I guess they never realized how terrible they acted, looked and sounded.

Our group stuck it out only because we couldn't get room refunds, but never again.

Is there any way you can explain such behavior? Do you think we were just too upright? — Disgusted

Disgusted: You seemed to be reacting pretty normally to sights, sounds and ideas that were disturbing to you and not consistent with your values. Peer pressure, lack of maturity and an excuse for letting off steam are probably among the reasons for the behavior you observed.

It's obvious that not all teens are victims of that pattern. Apparently the ones in your group weren't.

Some recent research indicates that college students on the average drink more than non-college young people do, although non-college ones are more into drugs (marijuana and cocaine) than the college crowds are.

Surgeon General Antonia Novello went on record recently regarding college students' drinking. She pointed out that alcohol is one of the leading causes of death among young adults, it contributes heavily to the college dropout rate, and the average college student spends more on liquor than on books.

Fortunately there are many teens like you, in college or working full time. If others want to live a full life and avoid drunken car crashes, they will use you and those who share your attitude as models.

I guess I don't have to encourage you to hang in there. You know it pays off.

Dr. Abraham: What a girl she is! Just perfect in every way. And what a guy he is! She's running around with — school jock, honor list, BMOC in every way.

The strange part is that she seems to like me, too, even though I couldn't ever compete with him. She's told me a hundred times that she's going to stop seeing him and be with me for always, but I haven't seen any evidence that she is dropping him.

And why should she? She's got the best catch in town.

So what's in there for me? Your advice is so important to me. — Pining Away

Pining Away: If you wait for her to tell you that "leaving him" story the 101st time and you believe it, you may still be hanging on when you've heard it 200, 300 or 400 times.

You could try an ultimatum to her, like choosing him or you by next weekend, the first of the month or another definite future date.

She may choose you, but don't count on it. Even if she does, she may drift ("run" might be a more appropriate word) back to him and leave you even more disturbed than you now seem to be.

If she's honest enough to tell you that he is "the one," consider yourself free as the breeze, take your blinders off and look for a thoughtful girl who may be even more perfect than you think this one is.

Chef's secrets for better Memorial Day cookout

By Linda Susan Dudley

Cindy Black threw some grape-vine cuttings on the indoor grill in urban La Jolla, Calif., as naturally as a chef in Southern France might use an element of the surrounding countryside to enhance his restaurant's food.

Black — American born and French trained in the Gascony region of the wine country — belies her sophisticated work experience. She looks the wholesome 35-year-old mother of a 2½-year-old son. The wife of Sheraton executive chef Bob Brody, she is a professional chef and owner of the restaurant that bears her name, Cindy Black's.

Although her interest in cooking started earlier, when Black was a French major at Wellesley College, she often ducked classes to show up at the Modern Gourmet Cooking School in Boston. There she soaked up all she could from school director Madeleine Kamman, who became her mentor.

After she graduated from both schools, Black (through the intervention of Kamman), secured a job in a 70-seat restaurant in Landes, France.

"The food there was outstanding," said Black. "My education extended beyond cooking and baking."

And, occasionally, tending the grill, from which the French bring forth such superbly flavored and smoky meats and vegetables. In France, it was basically a big wood fire with vine roots and clippings thrown on to produce a big rush of fire and smoke.

"It was wonderful and we (Americans) can't seem to quite duplicate it over here," Black said.

In her La Jolla restaurant she uses an indoor gas grill with a covered hood.

Her style is to serve salmon or shrimp or vegetables such as Japanese eggplant from the grill. She doesn't believe modern cooks want to limit their cookouts to hot dogs and hamburgers.

"I've seen people doing some good things. If you're cooking something with more variety it adds a little more spice to life," Black continued.

Black said the most important thing for home grillers is to watch the cooking temperature.

"On the grill you want food to cook at a relatively low or medium heat and cook a little more slowly."

"Otherwise, if you throw your food on the grill when the heat's too intense, then when you serve, everyone's sitting around in a circle gnawing on this Flintstone-style charred meat."

The second thing to consider, according to Black, is the marinade.

"Sometimes I think you need a stronger marinade than you think you need for grilling," she said. "But you don't want something like Texas red barbecue sauce over everything all the time, although that's good sometimes."

A marinade should be strong enough to have a certain bite, otherwise it won't be flavorful enough when the food is cooked, Black said. She said you can always get more of that intense flavor by adding less oil.

"But you need some moisture so food doesn't stick as grilling is a very dry method of cooking," Black added.

When Black and her husband grill at home, it's generally something simple, perhaps salmon or shrimp.

"And sometimes, honestly, we get pizza to go. It just depends on our mood and the time and what our son, Philip, is doing."

Which brings us to summer grill lesson No. 3.

Black emphasized: Just have fun and relax. "If it's a little messy, that's so much the better."

And as far as those hamburgers go, Black is no food snob. She loves them — sometimes.

"I like to take hamburger and put the marinade ingredients inside the meat, such as Worcestershire sauce, chopped tomatoes, shallots and seasonings and make really giant hamburgers, served rare. I think that's outstanding."

How much Worcestershire sauce and other ingredients does she use? Actually, she won't say.

"Enough to make it taste good to you," Black said, smiling. "Sometimes you need to add or subtract from a recipe. Don't be afraid to do that."

"People think, 'I have to follow the dot-to-dot method with a recipe' and that's not fun. That's not even cooking, that's imitating and following someone else's coloring book. That's coloring between the lines."

"Stretch. Mix it up your way. Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't."

"You have to build on that," she said.

LEMON THYME SAUCE FOR SALMON

1 cup white wine
½ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon thyme leaves, fresh
4 tablespoons thinly sliced shallots
1½ sticks butter, softened
2 tablespoons cream
Salt and pepper to taste

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

In saucepan, combine white wine, lemon juice, thyme and shallots. Bring to simmer and reduce liquid by ¼.

Over low flame, slowly whisk in butter. Finish by adding cream and by seasoning with salt and pepper to taste.

After Work Gourmet

By Melanie Barnard and Brooke Dojny

It's coming around again to that happy time of year — time, once more, for informal family get-togethers centered around the summer holidays. And although Memorial Day doesn't officially fall in summer (and doesn't always provide a summerlike day weatherwise), we like to declare this holiday as the unofficial kickoff to all the festivities that follow during the season.

Family parties mean potluck. We've gotten very good, over the years, at spotting culinary strengths and not weaknesses, necessarily, but maybe call it "a notable and profound lack of interest in cooking."

When we organize our parties, we have learned how to tactfully (we hope) delegate. Of course, the people who truly enjoy cooking and baking are assigned the salads and desserts. Those with zero interest, on the other hand, get asked to bring soda, chips and paper goods.

Then there are some who are sort of in-between, and they usually get to do the hors d'oeuvres.

Here are a couple of recipes for simple hors d'oeuvres that you might clip and pass on to select friends or save for when you are the person who receives that assignment.

Ready-made dips should, in our opinion, probably be banished, as they almost always have that bad aftertaste of processed garlic. Also on the forbidden list should be dip recipes calling for anything from a package, such as onion soup mix. Nix!

Here is a recipe for a simple dip with a mayonnaise and sour cream base that uses garlic, yes, but in its genuine, fresh form. Its bite is gentled by cooking, but its power lingers. Chopped herbs add color and their fresh taste.

Deviled Popcorn uses freshly popped corn tossed with a little butter and a medley of ground spicy peppers to make a snack that adults and kids with sophisticated taste buds find addictive.

* For the young and timid, make some popcorn to serve plain, too.

RAW VEGETABLES WITH GARLICKY HERB DIP

Garlicky herb dip:

1 tablespoon olive oil
3 cloves garlic, chopped
1 cup commercial mayonnaise
½ cup light sour cream or plain yogurt, drained
1 teaspoon coarse-grain mustard
3 tablespoons minced fresh herbs, such as parsley, dill, basil, chives, thyme, tarragon, or a combination

Raw vegetables:

Celery sticks
Carrot sticks
Radishes, trimmed
Red, green, yellow peppers, cut in strips
Cucumber slices

Yields 1½ cups.

Preparation and cooking time: 35 minutes.

To make dip, heat olive oil in small skillet. Add garlic and cook over very low heat, stirring frequently, for 4 to 5 minutes until softened and very pale golden brown. Use spoon to mash garlic to coarse paste.

In small bowl, combine garlic, mayonnaise, sour cream and mustard. Stir in chopped herbs. (Can be made several hours ahead. Cover and refrigerate.)

To assemble, arrange vegetables nicely on large platter. Put dip in small bowl and set in center of platter. (Can be assembled 2 to 3 hours ahead. Drape with damp paper towels, cover with plastic wrap, and refrigerate.)

DEVILED POPCORN

½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon dried mustard
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon ground white pepper
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
4 quarts unseasoned popped popcorn (from about ½ cup kernels)
3 tablespoons melted butter

Yields 4 quarts.

Preparation and cooking time: 15 minutes.

Combine salt, paprika, mustard and peppers in small bowl.

Place popcorn in large bowl. Drizzle with melted butter, tossing until evenly coated. Sprinkle ½ of seasoning mixture over popcorn and combine well. Repeat 2 more times until popcorn is well coated. (Can be made 1 hour ahead.)

Backyard Gardener

By Patrick Denton

In celebration of the bean

This is an appropriate time of the year to celebrate the bean, a popular vegetable that many home gardeners will be seeding this spring.

The bean presents to the gourmet gardener a pleasant array of choices. Originally tall, twining plants in their South American habitats, beans have been tamed in modern times into an alternate bush form.

The common bean (Phaseolus vulgaris) includes both snap beans, and shell and dry beans. Snap beans are grown for their young tender pods, while shell and dry beans are grown for the seeds within the pods. The snap bean goes by several other names — French bean, green bean and string bean.

The term French bean refers to the enormous popularity of this vegetable in France, where special varieties of green bean (filet beans, or haricots verts) have been bred for slow seed development and fine flavor.

Johnny's Selected Seeds (Foss Hill Road, Albion, ME 04910 — catalog free) lists three French filet bean varieties.

The name green bean fits the green-podded varieties, but there are also purple-podded types and yellow-podded "wax" beans. Purple-podded snap beans turn green when cooked, and the plants are more tolerant of cool soil conditions than green- and yellow-podded kinds. The term string bean has become largely outmoded, as most modern varieties are stringless.

Snap bean varieties are available in both bush and pole form. Bush snap beans are popular because they require no supports. But given a trellis, fence, poles or strings to grow on, the climbing beans are great space savers, taking up only their immediate root area in the garden. And while bush snap beans generally produce faster, pole beans give a far higher yield, continuing in production until the end of summer as long as the plants are kept picked clean of beans. Pole beans are also faster and easier to pick than beans from bush forms.

But the factor that decides many home gardeners to opt for pole snap beans is their superior flavor. In my own garden I've gradually been moving away from bush form to vining beans for this reason, and because the pole beans have never developed the white moldy armpits to which the bush beans are prone in some climates.

Still within the common bean species are those kinds grown for their nutritious seeds. Shell bean is the term commonly given to beans that are shelled for their fresh meaty seeds used in the "green" stage the way broad beans are. Flageolet and horticultural beans are examples. These, along with many shell beans, can also be dried for later use. Dry beans are allowed to mature and dry hard in the pods, and are shelled and stored dry for later use in soups and for baking.

A separate species of bean is the runner bean, Phaseolus coccineus, in my view the most desirable bean of all to have in the garden. It is a vine of exceptional beauty, vigorous and prolific in its production of flowers and pods. The flowers are most commonly bright red, for which the vines are called scarlet runners. But there are white- and pink-flowered forms too. The pods are broad and flat, and rich with an intense beany flavor. For succulent tenderness in the pods I gather and use them while they are still young.

Sow bean seeds when both air and soil temperatures have thoroughly warmed. For continuous supplies of bush snap beans, make another sowing or two through early July. Choose a warm, sunny spot with a moderately fertile, well-drained soil. Sow the seeds 1 inch deep, slightly deeper on light, sandy soils. Thin both bush and pole to 4 to 6 inches apart.

A unique feature of all legumes, beans included, is their ability to establish a mutually helpful relationship with nitrogen-fixing soil bacteria, which form nodules on the roots. The bacteria live in or on the nodules, using for their growth sugars that they extract from the bean roots.

In return, the bacteria convert atmospheric nitrogen from pockets of air in the soil into a form that the roots can absorb as food for the bean plants. To enhance the nitrogen-fixing potential of these helpful bacteria, lightly cultivate next to the plants as they begin to grow away from the seedling stage. This will loosen and introduce fresh supplies of air into the soil.

Duties of a school nurse

Q. I'm a parent, but I'm also a school nurse and have been for many years. I hope you will let me talk to parents through your fine column.

Prevention of children's sickness and injury requires something very important: A parent-school nurse team effort, with the family physician always "on call" when necessary.

At the start of my career I was basically limited to giving shots and conducting vision and hearing screening. But today's demands are different.

I've handled cuts, bruises and broken bones until I could rush the children to their physician or to a hospital emergency room.

Drug problems and potential suicides have been among my responsibilities. I've worked closely with parents on diets, sleep patterns, correct shoes, earaches, runny noses, and all the rest with which so-called normal children cope.

Advice regarding prenatal care, preventing pregnancy and the dangers of all kinds of child abuse are also on my list.

Many parents have thanked me, but the only thanks I want is the smile of a healthy, happy child.

I'm not signing my name because I'm only one of thousands who get great joy as a result of the services we provide every day.

A. What a refreshing reminder of the pressures under which many school nurses work and the satisfaction they receive by being there when needed to help children and their families. Your emphasis on the parent-school nurse team effort was well worth stressing.

Thank you very much for writing, and please keep your own health in good shape so you can continue your fine contributions to others.

Q. My sister told me that a wonderful project is going on where she lives, and she wondered whether we have one like it in our area. Parents love it, she said, and of course the kids do, too. I've checked around here, but no such luck in our locality.

It's called "Children's Line 10," and its objective is to make children laugh and help them feel good. Volunteers are on duty with riddles, funny stories, jokes, and all kinds of ways to bring smiles and happiness into a child's life. It is a supplement, of course, to what families can do for and with their children.

All the kids have to do is call an 800 telephone number and the fun begins.

I dialed the 800 number she gave me, but all I got was a recorded message saying that the number isn't available from my calling area.

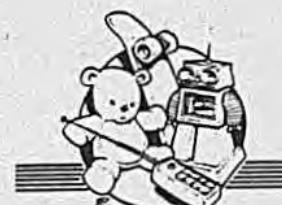

Still, it's such a good idea that I'm going to try to get it started here. I thought I'd tell you about it so that maybe others also will.

A. By writing to me you're telling a lot of others about it, too. I hope some of them share this idea with a television station and children's hospital in their community; they are its sponsors in the area where it is now in operation.

You had the correct title, "Children's Line 10." I've tracked it down at its location in San Diego County where it is a project of Children's Hospital and KGT (Channel 10). Children in that area can call 1-800-962-1010 weekdays 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. (at no cost) to reach a volunteer laugh provider.

If it is developed in other places the people who set it up will, of course, need to establish their own 800 number.

Any of you parents who feel this would be a welcome service in your community might want your TV or hospital people to write for some helpful details to KGT (P.O. Box 85347, San Diego, CA 92186 (attention: Amy Blum or Lila Evans). Their telephone number is (619) 237-1010.

She lost — and won

By Jack Williams

As a fitness instructor who worked out longer at the dinner table than the gym, Victoria Johnson could look in any mirror and see the fruit of her labors:

A classic pear — round at the base, narrow at the stem, undisciplined to the core.

The more weight she gained, the more thin students she lost (and heavy ones she attracted).

And the closer she got to her grave.

"When a doctor told me that I was clinically obese, borderline diabetic, with a cholesterol of 270, and ready to die if I didn't change my habits, I set some goals," she said in an interview.

"At over 170 pounds (on a 5-foot-3-inch frame), I was teaching 10 classes a week. But they were fluff — stop-and-go stuff, easy leg lifts — and afterwards we would go out for coffee and Danish."

The metamorphosis of Victoria Johnson — as any student of her recent home exercise videos would attest — is complete: from bulimic, obese, tired exercise instructor to competitive bodybuilder and the first African American woman to serve as a spokeswoman for a national footwear and accessories line (Side 1, a division of Nike Inc.).

Johnson has become one of the exercise industry's leading links to the minority market.

"She's a role model for those who may not see fitness as available to them," says Diana Wood, director of communications for IDEA: The Association for Fitness Professionals.

"She's been visible in encouraging minorities to get involved. As a whole, the fitness industry has left minority women behind."

Johnson, who admits to being in her 30s and having 17 years' experience in exercise instruction, easily could have been one of those women.

Fitness Forum

Raised outside Rustin, La., daughter of a migrant farmworker, her first memories are simply of survival: getting enough to eat and something to wear in a one-room flat that housed nine people. With no running water.

But keeping her weight up never was a problem.

"We ate white bread, white rice, whole milk and canned rations from the government that were crammed with sodium and nitrates.

"How could you not be overweight? We thought lettuce was rabbit food."

Johnson nearly starved herself to pare down to what she felt was an acceptable weight for the cheerleader, singer and dancer she had become in school — "I was the only black in an all-white school, and everybody looked thin to me."

Thirty-pound weight fluctuations became the norm, throwing her metabolism into chaos, and a propensity for binge eating compounded the problem.

"I'd go through a 16-ounce bag of Oreo cookies and a half gallon of ice cream," she said. "Then throw up."

She rejected formal eating-disorder therapy as "self-destructive." Every diet she tried failed until she embraced Covert Bailey's Fit or Fat philosophy — which made exercise a major part of the equation — and stopped making excuses and blaming others for her failures.

Now she eats mini meals, all day long, reinforcing her energy and willpower because "we fail when we're tired. When we deprive ourselves, we can't satisfy our hunger."

It took her 14 years to lose 60 pounds, down to a taut, petite 113, a figure at which she has placed in the top two in bodybuilding competitions near her Portland, Ore., home.

"I had always been an overachiever, a teacher's helper in school, a volunteer for all the talent shows. But weight was the one thing I never could control, the thing I saved for last," she said.

She also decided that going through the motions in a low-key exercise class wasn't cutting it. Convinced that aerobic activity alone couldn't give her the physique she sought, she hired a personal trainer — Mr. Oregon.

Three days of instruction a week for a year cost her $6,000, a modest price to pare the pear into prime-time pulchritude.

She learned the meaning of the word intensity, adapting it to hip-hop rhythms that define the growing "funk" exercise video market.

And she became, in her own words, a threat to Jane Fonda:

"It's time for new blood. Jane did a dynamic job in creating the video market, but I want her to move over."

Only her endurance, it seems, can match her ambition.

"I can do aerobics for three hours and it doesn't faze me," she said. "But I limit high impact to twice a week and I diversify: running, walking, stationary cycling, aerobics, using the StairMaster, or working out to a video."

"And some days all I do is take a walk after dinner."

"Anybody who works out every day is on another planet."

A few vegetables are leftover

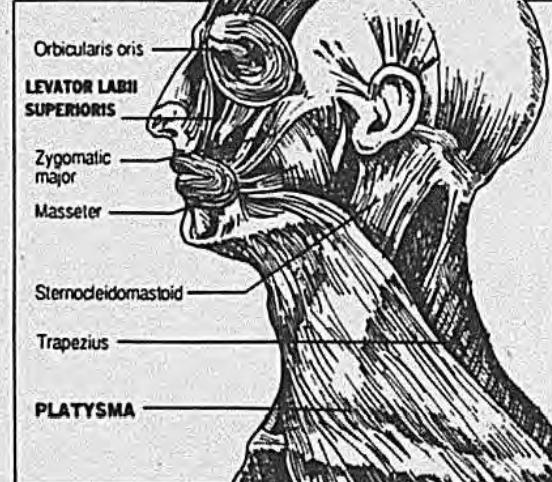

You don't need them, but don't waste them.

Here's the best use for them:

1. Put leftover vegetables into an empty milk carton and freeze. Keep adding whatever vegetables happen to be left.
2. Use them the next time you are making soup or stew.
3. Cut down the side of the container and plop the solid block into the bubbling liquid.

YOUR BODY

LEVATOR LABII SUPERIORIS

WHAT: Elvis Presley was as famous for the appealing curl of his upper lip as he was for his music. Of course, genetics determined the way Presley's lips were shaped.

But the levator labii superioris (LEE-vay-ter LAY-bee-eye SOO-peer-ee-OR-iss) is a facial muscle that can help create the "Presley lip" at least for a moment or two.

A levator is a muscle that raises or elevates something. Labii is the Latin word for lips, and superioris means upper.

WHERE: The levator labii superioris is located just below the eye sockets, near the nose and connects with the area of the upper lip.

FUNCTIONS: When this muscle is at work, you can raise your upper lip or dilate your nostrils.

THE HEALTHY GOURMET

By Kit Sneedaker

Sunset, a magazine for the Western states, recently did an interesting recipe update. It picked classics from the past three decades, cut fats, sugar and salt and compared the nutritional values of Then and Now.

Super Nachos, for instance, dropped from more than 1,000 calories per serving to 480. Pasta Carbonara went from more than 600 calories per serving to less than 400 and the calories in Chorizo Enchiladas were cut in half.

Even though many of the reduced recipes are still too high in sodium and cholesterol for a healthy gourmet, the techniques used by the magazine's test kitchen to cut calories will work in any kitchen.

Sunset advised cooks to braise chopped vegetables (for soups, sauces and stews) in water, broth or white wine instead of fat. Oven-fry instead of frying in deep fat.

Use more egg whites and fewer whole eggs or egg yolks. Make sauces without fat using a thickener, such as flour, cornstarch, arrowroot or potato starch, and water.

Substitute low-fat and non-fat dairy foods for whole milk and full-fat dairy products. Try light sour cream or non-fat yogurt in place of sour cream. Low-fat ricotta cheese is available and a good replacement for the full-fat variety. Neufchatel or light cream cheese is as good as regular cream cheese and better for you. Ice milk and frozen yogurts are delicious alternatives to commercial ice cream.

Here are two of Sunset's old favorites brought up to date.

Here's How

Pet odors are hard to eliminate

Q. Help! How can we get rid of the lingering odor of a couple of major cat boo-boos? The cat urinated in a basement apartment, in an area of heavy carpeting over cement.

The affected carpeting has now been removed and the cement scrubbed several times with commercial cleaners. The smell has lessened considerably, of course, but there is still a residual odor that we would like to clear up before going to the expense of re-carpeting.

A. We have had numerous requests recently regarding the problem of pet stains and odors, so we feel it appropriate to repeat our advice concerning this problem.

Last year at the recommendation of a pet store, we tried a fairly new product called Nature's Miracle (manufactured by Pets & People Inc., 5312 Ironwood St., Rancho Palos Verdes, CA 90274).

It is effective in the treatment of organic odors and stains. It is available at pet stores, sold in pints, quarts or gallon containers and can be used for spot treatment on carpets and furniture as well as the entire foundation.

For hardwood flooring, the old finish will have to be stripped and this solution applied to the bare wood to neutralize the disagreeable materials that have penetrated the wood. After treatment the floor should be refinished by sanding and applying a new varnish or polyurethane finish.

Pet urine can stain wood flooring permanently. A commercial wood bleach used prior to refinishing can be helpful in diminishing the staining. Be sure to follow manufacturer's directions carefully.

If the foundation is concrete, the problem is a little more difficult because of the porous nature of concrete. Saturate the entire area with Nature's Miracle. It sometimes takes up to a week to achieve results. Even though the surface may appear to be dry, it will take longer for the moisture level inside the concrete to dissipate and odors can remain during this period. It may even take more than one application to correct the problem.

If you still have pets around during this type of treatment, it is best to cover the area with heavy aluminum foil (perforated with holes for ventilation). When the odor is still present, pets are attracted to the area and are inclined to repeat the offense. Placing a dish of food on the foil is an added deterrent, as pets rarely contaminate an area where food is present.

Once the treatment has removed the offensive odor, seal the concrete with a good masonry sealer prior to the installation of new padding and carpeting.

Q. My bathroom sinks are made of synthetic marble and are white.

Recently I left a burning cigarette on the edge of the sink and forgot about it. When I noticed it, the burned-out cigarette left a yellow stain on the edge which I have not been able to remove.

Do you have any suggestions?
A. Cultured marble sinks are made of a polyester resin, which normally has a clear gel coat or onyx resin on the top surface. Often minor scratches and staining can be removed with rubbing compounds found at your auto supply dealer.

Apply a medium-cut rubbing compound and buff with an electric buffer (a buffering pad on an electric drill is sufficient). Rinse with clear water and then apply a good quality paste wax (those approved for use on the fiberglass bodies of Corvettes). Buff to a high-quality luster.

If this does not remove scratches and staining, you can lightly sand the surface with 600 grit wet-dry sandpaper, used wet. Test in a small inconspicuous area first to make sure that you are not damaging the surface.

Or you can have a professional sand the top and coat it with a catalyzed acrylic urethane. When the surface is restored, use only non-abrasive cleaners on it. It is also wise to buff your cultured marble with a paste wax at least once a year.

Providing additional sleeping space

Q. We've taken a tiny house at the lake and we have a huge list of people we'd love to have visit. Most are families, so they could share rooms. The trouble is, we have only two bedrooms and a large living-dining room. On a tight budget, how can we provide sleeping space for as many overnighters as possible? — L.C.

A. Steal a few ideas from a pro like interior designer Margot Gunther, ASID, whose own vacation home we show in the photo. Her sitting room has a traditional elegance at first glance, but look again: You'll see how accommodating, literally, a room can be without losing its charm.

* Bedding down. The sofa flips into a queen-size bed. The window seat is comfortably cushioned to sleep one adult or two children. The chaise accommodates another child. There's a second convertible sofa in the enclosed sun porch (not seen here), so all told, seven people can put up for the night, seven friendly people, that is.

* Other practicalities. The sisal rug is inexpensive and carefree. All fabrics are protected by soil- and stain-repellent finishes (in this case, by DuPont Teflon). The cocktail table hides sheets and blankets by day.

It's an old sea captain's chest, by the way, which is appropriate: Gunther's second home is a 300-year-old house in Nantucket, Mass., thought to have belonged to the captain of a whale boat.

There's a romantic view of Nantucket's harbor from these second-floor windows. The harbor still bustles these days, but with pleasure sailors and yachts, no whalers.

ROOM FOR GUESTS — Designer Margot Gunther conceals sleeping space for extra overnight guests with a convertible sofa, cushioned window seat and chaise longue.

ANTIQUE OR JUNKIE

By James G. McCollam

Porcelain vase could sell for up to $135

Q. Enclosed is a picture of a vase. It is 14 inches tall, 6 inches in diameter and is marked "Victoria-Carlsbad."

I know that it is at least 75 years old. Could you please tell me something about its age and value?

A. Your vase was made in Carlsbad, Austria, by the Victoria porcelain factory between 1900 and 1915.

It would probably sell for about $125 to $135.

Q. This mark is on the back of a blue and white 9-inch plate.

Can you identify the maker and estimate the value of my plate?

A. "Scinde" is the name of a Flow Blue pattern; it was made by Minton & Co. in Stoke, England, during the mid-19th century.

Your plate would probably sell for $75 to $85.

Q. We bought an old coffee grinder at an auction for $110. It has two wheels and is marked "Landers, Frary & Clark No. 20." It is over 2 feet high and I think it was used in a store.

Did we get a good buy? When was it made?

A. You got a bargain! Your countertop coffee grinder was made about 1900 and would probably be worth $365 to $385 in good condition.

Q. We have a Mettlach 4-liter stein; the number is 1028. It looks like a tree trunk and has a grotesque face on the lid. Below the handle is a picture of a man and an inscription in German.

Can you tell me anything about its vintage and value?

A. This stein was made in Mettlach, Germany, by Villeroy & Boch, during the late 1800s. It would probably sell for $325 to $335 in an antique shop.

Q. I have a Parker fountain pen. It is a "Blue Diamond Vacumatic" and is green with a black stripe.

I would like to know when it was made and its current value.

A. Your Parker fountain pen was made about 1940 and would probably sell for about $35 to $45 in good condition.

Q. The mark on my plate is a picture of the world with the monogram "J.H." It is 8 inches in diameter and is decorated with a brilliantly colored bird against a background of varied greens and blues.

Can you tell me anything about its origin and value?

A. The mark you describe was used by the Joseph Hildcroft Co. in Longton, England. It appears to be typical of the majolica they made in the late 1800s.

Dealers are selling plates similar to this for $75 to $85.

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 per item to James G. McCollam, F

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Our dog has a foul-smelling discharge coming out of his ears. Is this typical of ear mite infections?

A. It is possible that our dog got ear mites from a neighbor's dog?

A. Ear mites, a common cause for ear infections in dogs and cats, live in the ear canals and feed on skin debris.

The eight-legged ear mites can usually be seen crawling among the dark, foul-smelling debris. Live ear mites appear as moving specks approximately the size of the point of a dressmaker's pin. Depending on your visual acuity, you may or may not be able to see the mites without magnification.

Veterinarians usually use a magnified otoscope to examine the ears directly for mites or examine some dark debris with a microscope for the mites.

If mites are present, your veterinarian will probably dispense an insecticide or an oily preparation for you to place in the ears.

Ear mites are contagious among pets. Therefore, if mites are diagnosed in one pet, all of the household pets should be examined.

Animals with ear mites should be isolated from animals without ear mites. It would be difficult to say whether your dog acquired ear mites from your neighbor's dog.

Send inquiries to Pets, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, CA 92112-0190. Only questions of general interest will be answered in this column.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Last week two young friends of ours came over to our house and planted gardens of their own in our back yard. (They don't have a yard in the apartment they live in.) Each boy was allowed to choose two kinds of seeds at the store. One boy planted radishes and the other planted a flower called a cosmos. Both of them picked jack-o-lanterns as their second kind of seed.

We go out every day to water the gardens and pull out the weeds. We hope that in a couple of weeks when the boys come to visit again there will be plants growing in the garden.

Do you have a garden? What are you growing?

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are Caroline Steen and Lindsay Satterlee.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Can foreigners get Social Security cards?

By William M. Acosta

Q. Are Social Security cards issued to every person who comes here from another country? — K.G.

A. Social Security numbers for work purposes can only be issued to U.S. citizens, permanent resident immigrants, and temporary aliens who have been granted permission to work by the Immigration and Naturalization Services.

Legal aliens who do not have permission to work, needing a card for banking, school or driver's license, can be issued a card. However, it is marked to show that it is not valid for employment.

Illegal aliens cannot be issued Social Security numbers for any purposes.

Q. My company has determined that I am disabled to work. Will that qualify me for disability under Social Security? — G.C.

A. A decision by any non-governmental agency or any other governmental agency is based on its rules. Social Security makes its decisions based on Social Security law.

The Social Security law defines disability as the inability to perform substantial gainful work because of a physical or mental impairment that has lasted or is expected to last 12 months or result in death.

Contact your local Social Security office for additional information.

Q. I plan to continue working after age 65. I understand that I can continue with my employer's health plan. What happens to Medicare if I do? — H.M.

A. If you accept your employer's health plan, Medicare will become the secondary payer, which means it will supplement your employer's plan.

If you reject the employer's plan Medicare will be the first payer of benefits.

However, the employer is not allowed to offer you Medicare supplemental or "Medigap" coverage.

Contact your local Social Security office for additional information.
