Senior Installations

Papers For Peace

Inspired by reading the book, "Sadako and the Thousand Paper Cranes," Mrs. Arcuri's 6th grade class at the J.F.K. Middle School in Bethpage began folding paper cranes to send to the "Memorial to Sadako" in the Hiroshima Peace Park. Sadako Sasaki was twelve years old when she died from leukemia, a result of radiation from the bomb that was dropped on Hiroshima in 1945 when Sadako was two. "If a sick person folds one thousand paper cranes the gods will grant her wish and make her well again." Sadako had folded six hundred and forty-four cranes before her death. Her classmates folded the rest. Today children place paper cranes at her memorial in hope for peace. Pictured: Mrs. Arcuri's 6th grade class.

Senior Club

Comedy Evening Under Stars

An evening of comedy, magic and illusions will highlight the first week of "Music Under the Stars" programs for Bethpage Community Park District residents, according to Town Councilman Thomas L. Clark.

The program will be held at the community park on Thursday, July 11, beginning at 8:15 p.m. In the event of rain, the performance will take place in the auditorium of Bethpage High School, Cherry and Stewart Avenues.

"Four magicians, Steve Rodman, John Bundy, Ward Thomas and Scott Interrante, will mystify and amaze the audience with their own unique brands of magic and illusion," Councilman Clark stated. "All four magicians have performed extensively both here and abroad, and are considered among the top magicians in the country today."

Clark noted that the "Music Under the Stars" series is being sponsored by the Cultural and Performing Arts (CAPA) Division of the Town's Dept. of Community and Youth Services.

For children, CAPA will sponsor "The Capt. Dan and Conrad Show" on Wednesday, July 10, at 1:30 p.m. Councilman Clark commented that the program is a unique blend of ventriloquism, comedy, magic surprise and audience participation.

Automatic Alarms Need Permits

The Hicksville F.D. wishes to remind all residents - if you have or are thinking of installing an automatic fire alarm your installer must apply to the County Fire Marshal for a permit. A small fee is charged. For information call the County Fire Marshal's Office at 566-5200 and ask for the Permit Div. During the course of the year Hicksville Firefighters respond to almost 100 automatic fire alarms which prove to be false alarms.

After a warning - if a permit is not obtained a fine can result and in rare cases, if necessary, the alarms can be disconnected. It is a simple procedure and firefighters urge people to comply.

Chimney Cleaner False References

notify us as soon as possible. The County Police and Fire Marshal have been notified.

The Fire Dept. recommends that your own heating service vendor is qualified to clean your chimney. If you have any questions they are your best choice. The Fire Dept. does point out that there are reputable chimney cleaners who do not use scams and scare tactics to get business. If you need a chimney sweep for wood or coal stove chimney, check the Yellow Pages and check the Better Business Bureau or the County Consumers Division for a background check. The Fire Dept. does not supply lists to any vendor. Anytime you are in doubt, contact the Fire Department's Public Information Officer, Ex-Chief Owen Magee at 933-6444.

Magic Carpet To France

Jump on Milt Rashkin's magic carpet to France on Wednesday, July 17, at 8 p.m. After landing near Paris, we will head south through quaint Beaune in Burgundy to Grenoble in the French Alps. Marvel at the fabulous resorts along the French Riviera. Visit Monaco and tour Prince Rainier's palace. See the many traces of the Roman Empire in Provence - ancient temples, theaters, viaducts and arenas.

We return North and tour the magnificent Chateau country of the Loire Valley and finally reach Paris - the crowning glory of France. See Notre Dame, the Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, the Arc de Triomphe and so much more!

Admission Free - All Welcome!

Editor's NotebookLong Island's Rabies Threat

Every year this newspaper is asked to remind people about special summertime protection for pets, such as providing them with plenty of fresh, cool water and keeping them out of the hot sun and parked cars. We are always happy to pass this information along.

But this year the Nassau Health Department has a different message for readers.

RABIES

Rabies is right at Long Island's front door, and the evidence shows that the growing laxity on the part of pet owners may open that door.

It is estimated that out of the approximately two million dogs and cats in Nassau and Suffolk Counties, only ten percent of the dogs are licensed, and, most probably, properly immunized. The number of licensed dogs has been dramatically declining over the past ten years.

While there have been no confirmed cases of rabies in domestic animals on Long Island in the past 40 years, as of the beginning of June there have been 294 cases reported in New York State.

With 223 rabies cases in raccoons reported in the state, officials from the Nassau and Suffolk Departments of Health and the Long Island Veterinary Medical Association, have joined together in a combined effort to educate the public as to the seriousness of the situation. The location of the most recent cases appears to be moving close to Long Island, with the latest cases reported in Rockland and Westchester counties.

Long Island is known to have a large population of raccoons, and following the course of the disease, experts predict the spread of wildlife rabies to Long Island. Since raccoons and household pets that are allowed to run loose are known to compete outdoors for food supplies such as garbage, it is expected that the transmission will then occur to these domestic pets.

The general public has come to believe that rabies has been eradicated and pet owners have been complacent in protecting their animals.

The Nassau and Suffolk Health Departments and the L.I. Veterinary Med. Association have announced their unified support for State Senator Michael J. Tully, Jr.'s bill presently proposed in the Senate that would require dogs and cats in every county in New York State to receive compulsory rabies vaccine and to permit the Public Health Council to direct the Health Departments to conduct a public health campaign concerning the dangers of rabies and the need for vaccination of household pets.

The groups will be working closely to stop the spread of rabies on Long Island.

People are advised to take the following additional precautions:

- Do not bring wild or stray animals onto Long Island.

- If you take your pet off Long Island, make sure the animal has been vaccinated.

Once a person exhibits the clinical signs of rabies, there is no known cure for it. At the present time the best way to control the disease is to prevent it through vaccination of every animal.

Keep the Dream Alive

by Deborah Weintraub

Recently, in May, the Gregory Museum held its Third Annual Mineral Festival. It was a beautiful weekend and business was booming.

Our famous Rock Swap was held with many volunteers from Willet Avenue School and the Middle School. Children paid a small fee for their tickets and were then able to "swap" their own rocks for different pieces from the Museum's collection. The Rock Swap was supervised, as always, by Rosemary Barrow, one of the Museum's Trustees.

In other events, John Kean, also a Trustee, displayed some of his Opal Collection as well as selling some valuable pieces.

Food was available and cooked by the Weintraub family. Games were supervised by Trustee, Gail Hofer.

The entire day's events & sales were overseen by the Museum's Curator, Donald Curran. Thanks, of course, to his skill and knowledge of rocks and minerals, the Festival was very successful.

In future news, there will be a series of Summer Workshops for all those interested beginning July 10. For information about any of the upcoming workshops, call the Museum at 822-7505. The Museum is located at Heitz Place, the site of the Old Courthouse in Hicksville.

The Joseph F. Lamb Council No. 5723 Knights of Columbus, Plainview/Hicksville, held their annual Awards Night on Thursday evening, June 20, in the school basement of Our Lady of Mercy in Hicksville. A large crowd of brother knights, their wives, families and friends were on hand to witness the presentation of the various awards to members of the Joe Lamb Council for special achievements for the council during the Columbian Year of July 1990 through June 1991.

First on the program was the awarding of "Certificates of Merit" to 14 members of the council, who had been selected throughout the year as "Knight of the Month." It should be noted that three members were selected in June as "Knight of the Month," hence the total of 14 rather than 12 awards.

Then a special plaque was presented to brother knight Frank De Turris and his wife Ginny, as the Lamb "Catholic Family of the Year." Frank and his family have lived in Plainview for many years. He was one of the original members of the council and has been very active in the many affairs of Lamb Council for many years. He is the vice-president of the Devoc Columbus Club, which is a special club within the council. Whenever needed, Frank is always there!

The Joe Lamb "Knight of the Year" award was then presented, in the form of a special plaque, to P.G.K. Sam Repoli. Sam, who is also a warden in the 16th district K. of C., is a very quiet but efficient worker for the council. He has run many affairs for our council and is president of the "300" Club. He is very popular with his fellow Knights and is a tireless worker. Sam, together with his wife Doris and family, have also lived in Plainview for many years.

A special plaque was then presented to brother knight Frank Beebe for his charity efforts in raising money for various needy organizations. Frank, while working at The New York Times, and with the help of many of his fellow workers, has collected throughout the past ten years thousands of dollars for charity. Every cent collected has been donated to charity groups. Frank and his wife Paula now live in Pennsylvania.

We of the Lamb Council are happy to have so many active members in our council.

Grand Knight Josef Ort and Deputy Grand Knight P.F.N., F.D.D. Peter Volpe presented all of the awards and gave a short speech as each member was honored. Food and beverages were served to all and it was certainly an enjoyable night for all in attendance.

GRANDPARENTS - Send in your grandchildren's photos and enter our "World's Most Beautiful Grandchildren" contest. Just send a photo and a brief description of the child (or children) along with your name and address to Litmor Publications, Beautiful Grandchildren Contest, 81 East Barclay St., Hicksville, N.Y. 11801. We'll do the rest!

Resident Graduates From Dev. School

Eight-year-old Jon Ullrich of Syosset recently graduated from The Developmental School of United Cerebral Palsy Association of Nassau County, Inc. (UCP Nassau).

Ullrich is one of 15 pre-k through 2nd grade students who donned caps and gowns before a crowd of proud parents and faculty during graduation ceremonies held at UCP Nassau this month.

Ullrich attended The Developmental School's ungraded kindergarten through grade 2 program, where he received special education, therapy and intensive individualized instruction enabling him to be mainstreamed into a community school.

Nicknamed "Smiling Jon," Ullrich was described by his teacher and principal as being "eager to learn, helpful, kind and generous."

The Developmental School, approved by the New York State Department of Education, has a well-earned reputation for outstanding educational, diagnostic and treatment services for children with a broad range of developmental and neuromuscular disabilities. The pre-school program now includes children with learning disabilities, mental retardation and speech impairments, as well.

The Developmental School has the unique advantage of operating in a total therapeutic and clinical setting, where children receive therapy, medical, dental, recreational and support services in one location. Each child's program is individualized and closely monitored by a team of multidisciplinary professionals. Preparation for mainstreaming and/or maximum independence in the community is emphasized.

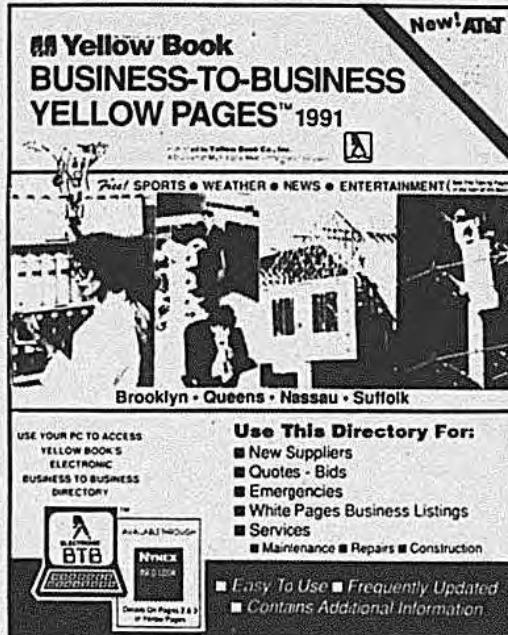

Diagnostic screenings, supervised by a full-time medical director, are now available in preparation for fall enrollment in the school or for referral to another facility if appropriate.

For more information about these programs, telephone The Developmental School at 378-2000, extension 290.

Syosset resident Jon Ullrich, 8, recently graduated from The Developmental School pre-k through 2nd grade program. Besides cap and gown, he proudly dons two gold medals and two silver medals he won at the N.Y. State Games for the Physically Challenged held earlier this month at Mitchel Field. The graduate will be attending a community school in the fall.

HBA Weekly News Update

Boys Instructional Division
The Yankees, managed by Joe Restivo, closed out the regular season with a great game against the Cubs, on Saturday, June 22. The Yankees, playing short handed, needed tough defense from Gregory Krayeski in the first inning with an unassisted defensive play and another in the fourth by Billy Cain to Matt Restivo to hold down the Cubs. All the Yankees reached base safely, with Anthony Minervini, Gregory Krayeski and Eugene Pietzak each getting five hits. Joe Ahern and Michael Recher had three base hits and Chris Radi had a clutch single in the third. Billy Cain and Matt Restivo led their team, each going six for six and scoring six runs; Matt also crashed two home runs to end a fine season. It has been an enjoyable season for me and a pleasure to manage the always exciting Yankees. I would like to thank each team member for their inspired play throughout a long season: Billy Cain, Michael Recher, David Kalos, Chris Radi, Anthony Minervini, Chris Colantropo, Matt Restivo, Eugene Pietzak, Gregory Krayeski, Joe Ahern and Patrick Mullen, along with coaches Tony Minervini and Gene Pietzak. See you on the diamond next year!

Girls Travel Team

This year HBA represents a Girls Travel Team. The team is managed by Maria Rodriguez and coached by Mike Lampert. On Tuesday, June 25, the team came to the mound against Baldwin's travel team. The score was Baldwin 6, Hicksville 3. Kacy Knauer pitched an outstanding game with 8 strikeouts, allowing only 5 hits and 1 walk. Kristen Amello scored two runs. Joy Marchese had 2 RBI's while Lisa Radicella hit a 7th inning double. Here is a list of the team's roster: Kristen Amello, Lynne Fuentes, Kacey Knauer, Christine Manuso, Abbie Mandell, Joy Marchese, Dawn Muller, Debra Radicella, Lisa Radicella, Kara Schwartz, Kristen Simat, Joan Smith and Melissa Watkins.

Input Callers Have Many Ideas On School Plans

There were mixed opinions in response to the question of the week: "Do you think a tax supported tuition voucher plan allowing parents to select schools would work?" Here are some of the answers:

OLD IDEA

This idea has been around for a long time and really did not go anywhere. The idea is that each parent should select the school of choice for their children and then present a voucher to the school which would be redeemed by the state in cash to the school. This would allow parents to select any type of qualified school they want for their children and would allow them to change schools at will. I believe the idea will finally come into existence but that it will not be implemented for a long time because we have a great many constituencies to overcome such as unions and people who really think that education will decline because the poor students will be left with the public schools. I believe the system of vouchers is the only way schools can teach morality since the public schools can never be allowed to do so. I do not believe that the good public schools will suffer, only the ones that are doing a poor job and no one would be locked in with them as they are now. The poor schools of all types would just be finished. J.G.

MAKE BETTER SCHOOLS

There are over 30 states with bills about the voucher system under consideration. I do not believe that any of them will actually be implemented. In many places the public schools are doing a job that no other school could do better so only in poor schools will this really matter. I think we should give more time to getting the poor public schools up to standard than in going in a different direction. G.F.

WORKED ONCE

When the G.I. Bill was implemented after the Second World War there were many people who thought that it was a mistake to make that form of voucher available to independent and religious colleges as well as public supported ones. But the country thought it owed a debt to the veterans and allowed the bill to go through with little difficulty. It worked out just fine and many people who would never have been able to go to good colleges were able to select. At the time public colleges were generally inferior to other colleges and the end result today is that both public and private colleges are better than they were. N.F.

DECLINE OF CITY SCHOOLS

The decline of the public school in poor areas and city schools will hasten the use of vouchers to private schools. But presently the private schools are in such bad financial difficulty that it may be too late. If we had a system where people in poor school districts could switch to better schools it would not hurt anyone. The problem in many poor public schools is that the teachers do not have authority to deal with discipline problems and that is ruining the teaching. In private schools the problem students can either shape up or ship out. H.F.

DOESN'T MATTER

It will not matter whether we have a voucher plan or not. If schools receive money for teaching they will have to conform to standards of the state education department and they will be controlled. Teaching will continue to be controlled. This would be the downfall of independent and religious schools. It will be worse than paying your own tuition. M.H.

ALREADY HAVE IT GOOD

There is so much left to the imagination in this "Question" that any answer must necessarily be framed within the limits of the responder's ability to dream. First of all, it seems to hold out the answer to the innermost dreams of every mother and father who want nothing but the best for their offspring. But, looking at it from the viewpoint of Garden City parents - isn't this exactly what they want and in fact, already have. Isn't this amply reflected in the complacency exhibited by their willingness to vote affirmatively on a school budget year-after-year despite excessively high salaries with raises not linked to performance, with add-on income for supplementary work included in the total income for social security and retirement benefits. Needless to say, the teachers are happy with the system and given the choice, why would Garden City parents even think of any other plan enabling them to choose schools other than those of Garden City. As to tax support, where outside our Village could one find a more generous system with so many families benefiting from so many widows, widowers and seniors whose increasing taxes are highly contributory to the fundamental ability of the school system to function and progress notwithstanding the differences of opinion between the two groups with respect to the economic judgement used in decision-making. Quite frankly, it would seem to me that parents would be well advised to adopt a more realistic attitude to the increasing costs and the economic impact on all Village taxpayers. P.G.S.

Young Detectives

By Bryan E. Smith

It was June of 1978 when my new neighbors moved in. They were a peculiar family of five, and rarely were they seen outside of the house. The Kohler family consisted of the parents and three children, two girls and one boy. Mr. and Mrs. Kohler were a bit overweight and had a slight German accent, but they seemed pleasant enough. The children were extremely shy, and they attended private school. They chose not to associate with any of the other children in the community. Mrs. Kohler and her children remained inside, hidden, most of the time, but Mr. Kohler would leave the house, in his car, at outrageous hours. He would leave either extremely early in the morning or late at night.

After observing their odd lifestyle for nearly a week, my best friend, Danny, and I realized something was unusual about our new neighbors. Danny was a short, plump boy who loved music and adventure. He carried a small transistor radio, with his name engraved on the back, with him everywhere. Danny said to me, "it is our duty to put the house under surveillance, because they could possibly be foreign spies."

In order to observe them, we needed two simple things: a tent, to sleep in, and a fireplace, for warmth and cooking. The tent was not a hassle because I had one, but the fireplace posed a slight problem. We needed to build one, but we needed bricks to do so. The only bricks available, on such short notice, were a pair of Danny's front steps. We looked at each other deviously, and decided to dismantle the steps. We tried for hours to loosen the bricks with our hands and with rocks, but there was no doubt that we needed a chisel.

We were faced with yet another minor problem. The chisel was locked in Danny's garage, and his parents were not expected home for several hours. I decided that the door leading to the garage must be opened by force "for the good of the country," and Danny agreed with me. This was our next act of destruction. For thirty minutes, we kicked the door, thrust our bodies against it, and hit it with logs until the lock finally broke. We both bellowed a cheer of accomplishment, as we ran into the garage.

The chisel was on his father's workbench. We left a note for his parents, saying where we were going, and then we went back to the steps to continue our mission. Danny began carefully removing the cement from each brick, while I assembled the small fireplace, with glue, in a wheelbarrow, in order to transport it. I took the wheelbarrow, and Danny carried the tent. We carefully crept through the jungle, really a small wooded area, behind the spies' house; we pitched our tent where they could not see it.

For the next two days, we hid in the bushes on my neighbor's property and observed everything that occurred at the house. We lived on Spam®, potato chips, and soda. It was enjoyable except for the terrifying nights, alone, in the woods. Everything was fairly normal except for the repeated arrival of a mysterious older man. The first day, Mr. Kohler and the man talked for an hour on the back porch, and the second day, the man picked up a package from Mr. Kohler. We knew that that package was exactly what we were looking for. Whatever was in that package was important, and we had to prevent the man from delivering it.

While the two men were talking, Danny and I ran as fast as we could towards the mysterious man's car. We found small twigs on the ground, and we wedged them in the air release valve of the tires. They were arranged perfectly in order to depress the center and release the air. By the time the man returned to his car, we were well hidden in the bushes again, and there was no trace of air in the tires. The man was livid, but it was our obligation to stop him from leaving with the secret information. Mr. Kohler came to see what all the commotion was about. At this point, the man was swearing; Danny and I congratulated each other. Mr. Kohler noticed a small transistor radio, the same radio that Danny usually carried with him, sitting on the roof of the car. Our mouths dropped, and our hearts sank. We knew deep down inside what was going to happen to us now.

The two of us packed our supplies and silently crawled through the woods back to our homes. I was greeted with a spanking from my father, and I was forbidden to play with Danny for a month. However, when Danny's parents discovered the damage done to their house, my sentence was increased to two months. Luckily, my room was situated directly across from Danny's; we spent much of our time there at this point. We remained in contact with each other by means of flashlight Morse Code during the time period. It was decided that we would let the spies occupy the country in order to save ourselves from further punishment.

However your family enjoys fresh berries, remember they are around for just a short time. While they are here, let your family try them some new ways.

SPRING BERRY BREAD

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup (1 stick) plus 2 teaspoons butter, at room temperature
1 pint (2 cups) strawberries, washed and cleaned
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon ground cinnamon
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup brown sugar

2 eggs
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sour cream
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sliced almonds

Utensils: Paper towels, strainer, measuring cups and spoons, $8\frac{1}{2} \times 4\frac{1}{2}$ -inch loaf pan, 2 small mixing bowls, fork, large mixing bowl, rubber scraper, electric mixer, oven mitts, cooling rack.

Yields 1 loaf.
Preparation time: 25 minutes.
Baking time: 50 minutes.

Turn oven on to 350 F.
Dab paper towel with 2 teaspoons butter, rub evenly over sides and bottom of loaf pan.

Place strainer in kitchen sink. Pour strawberries in and rinse under cool running water. Shake strainer several times to shake off any excess water. Spread paper towels on counter and scatter berries over towels. Pull off any green leaves or stems still attached to strawberries. Put strawberries in small mixing bowl and set aside.

Put flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and cinnamon in other small mixing bowl. Using electric mixer, beat until batter becomes creamy.

Turn mixer off and add eggs. Turn mixer on low speed to blend eggs into batter. Mixture will look soupy.

Turn mixer off and add half the flour mixture. Again, blend on low speed until flour is blended. Scrape sides of bowl between each addition of ingredients.

Turn mixer off and add sour cream. Turn mixer on medium speed and blend. Turn mixer off again and add remaining flour. Blend on low speed.

Add strawberries and almonds. Slowly blend until they scatter throughout batter.

Scrape batter into loaf pan. Put on oven mitts and carefully place loaf pan in oven. Bake for 50 minutes.

When baked, bread will pull away from sides of pan. Turn oven off. With oven mitts on, carefully remove loaf pan from oven, setting it on cooling rack. Cool for 15 minutes.

To remove bread from pan, hold pan with mitts and turn upside down. Bread will slip right out of pan. Set bread straight and let cool another 20 minutes before slicing.

Sprouts are best used when $\frac{1}{4}$ -to $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch long, and can be stored in a plastic bag in the refrigerator.

They're a handy replacement for lettuce on your favorite sandwich, or try Tofu-Egg Salad Sandwiches instead. Either alfalfa or garbanzo bean sprouts make excellent choices for these satisfying sandwiches.

Toss sprouts into your next tabouleh, or bulgur, salad for variation, or stir up a saute combining sprouts without almost any vegetable. Sprout and Carrot Saute is one example, but celery, mushrooms, cucumbers, lima beans — you name it — work just as well.

Walnut Black Bean Salad is a tasty stir-fry that's served as a salad.

TOFU-EGG SALAD SANDWICHES

$\frac{1}{2}$ pound medium-firm tofu, drained
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup minced celery
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup finely shredded carrots
2 tablespoons minced green onion
2 tablespoons mayonnaise or yogurt
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon ground turmeric
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon basil
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon thyme
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon paprika
1 hard-cooked egg, chopped
8 slices whole-wheat bread
8 tablespoons sprouts

Yields 4 sandwiches.
Place tofu in small bowl; mash with fork. Add remaining ingredients except bread and sprouts; stir well. Cover and chill.

To prepare sandwiches, divide filling equally among 4 slices of bread. Top filling with about 2 tablespoons of sprouts per sandwich, then cover with remaining bread slices.

SPROUT AND CARROT SAUTE

1 tablespoon white vinegar
2 teaspoons sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 pound bean sprouts
1 carrot, shredded
1 green onion, thinly sliced

Yields 4 servings.
In bowl, combine vinegar, sugar, salt and soy sauce.

Heat oil in wok or pan over high heat. When oil is hot, add sprouts, carrot and onion and stir-fry 1 minute. Pour in vinegar mixture and continue stirring until sprouts are crisp-tender, about 2 minutes.

WALNUT AND BLACK BEAN SALAD

1 cup black beans, cooked and chilled
2 cups soybean sprouts
 $\frac{3}{4}$ cup walnuts, chopped
2 teaspoons tarragon
1 teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons vegetable oil

Yields 2 servings.
Combine all ingredients except vegetable oil and mix well. Sauté in oil about 5 minutes. Serve at room temperature.

NICE PLACE

Romont's Cafe is one of those small restaurants that makes me glad there are such places away from the larger crowds. For your readers who do not know of this place, it is located in Williston Park on Hillside Avenue and is just a small but elegantly decorated restaurant. The menu is a pretty good sized one and we have always found it to be an enjoyable place whether we were having a late night snack or a luncheon special. We recommend it to your readers. J.F.

Q. I thought it was standard fare to get at least two vegetables with an entree but last week at the (name omitted) restaurant we were charged extra for vegetables. Is this right?
 A. A number of restaurants have changed to charging extra for vegetables, particularly fresh ones, but the safest way is to look at the menu and ask the waiter. Sometimes there are extra vegetables and they are the ones that are given an added charge.

FINE SETTING

The Maine Maid is the place to go for a restaurant in a fine traditional setting. The Maine Maid is an old Quaker House. In fact, the owner told us that it is a historic landmark. The decor is restful and elegant and the service is good. The food consists of well prepared meats and fish. Some of them are prepared right at your table. Tell your readers to try it and they will be glad for the suggestion. Toby C.

TOPS IN DINNERS

The New Hyde Park Inn is a landmark on Jericho Turnpike in New Hyde Park. Most people have been there many times for one banquet or another. Throughout the years it has served as a top catering hall for many affairs.

As a restaurant it is equally good. We went there last week and found that it has a full menu for dinner and that all of the good things that were at banquets can be had in the restaurant. Because it is a festive type place, it is a great one to celebrate a birthday as we did. Tell your readers that the New Hyde Park Inn is tops for dinners. We know. We were there. Y.R.

Q. What is the policy of restaurants when a waiter spills something on you? F.P.
 A. There is no set policy except that the management usually is very apologetic. Almost all places ask to assume the cost of cleaning your clothing. Others do this and void the check for the entire meal. On small splashes they usually do what they can at once to clean up the spot. Regardless of what else it usually requires the personal apology of the one in charge.

ONE OF THE BEST

LaMarmite is one of the few restaurants that we have ever been to, yet there is not much publicity about it. This old mansion, located on Hillside Avenue, Williston Park, is a great place for fine food and exceptionally good service.

We have gone there several times and always found such entrees as filet mignon, filet of sole and many types of fish were prepared in the most delicious style. Granted one reason LaMarmite has wonderful food is because they use the freshest but the cooks still deserve praise for the splendid job they do.

The prices are slightly higher than at regular restaurants but it is well worth it for us to have a truly enjoyable meal. We recommend LaMarmite.

Home entertaining

By Carol Cutler

While visiting friends in Philadelphia recently, my husband and I were invited to join them at a neighbor's cocktail party.

We were delighted because the home was very imposing — large, handsome stone masonry, impeccably maintained grounds, and plenty of help coming and going. Still, it was one of the worst parties I ever attended.

The host and hostess were charming and received us very graciously. The floral arrangements were lavish and breathtaking, the champagne was crisp and dry and the food was very good. But it was next to impossible to move. The reception room was full of things. Expensive things (antiques, really), but they posed obstacles, nevertheless.

It was a challenge to turn around without knocking over a tiny French table holding a collection of fine boxes. The waiter couldn't get close enough to pass the hors d'oeuvres tray without precariously stretching over a massive Dutch chest. And the modern glass sculpture standing on the floor was almost a lethal weapon.

The congestion also meant that we couldn't move about. The local couple we were talking to were quite interesting, but there must have been other interesting people there, too, and I'm sure they would have liked to talk to some of their old friends.

When a large group of guests is invited, there is an obligation upon the hosts to make them as comfortable as possible. Ease of movement definitely helps the comfort level.

People are used to clearing a room and rolling back the rug for a dance party. Just because there will be no dancing is no excuse for not clearing the room to make room for standing and moving about. Besides, for the peace of mind of the owners, one would think they would like to protect their precious belongings from being knocked over.

Usually nothing more is needed than to move the furniture against the wall leaving a large free space. Small pieces of furniture and bibelots should be removed altogether. They can be placed in a bedroom or closet.

When considering safekeeping, take a hard look at fragile furniture or wall art that can't be moved. Protect it by doing just the opposite of what has been said above — bring in a largish piece of furniture or chair and place it in front of the article to be safeguarded.

When moving furniture, it is best not to drag it. Not only will the dragging damage the floor or rug, it also will weaken the legs of the item. When moving an armchair, don't lift it by the arms, which also can be weakened by the upward pull.

Always reach underneath and lift from the base of the chair. This usually requires two people. Anyway, working with someone is more fun than doing all that work by yourself.

Have plenty of bubble wrap or thick towels and blankets available to cushion small, delicate articles.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

By Desiree Vives

Safe, scrumptious summer mayonnaise

You had a great time at last weekend's picnic, but you heard that several people ended up sick afterward.

There was a tasty-looking mayonnaise-based salad on the table but you passed it by, and now you're thankful you did.

You've heard that mayonnaise can be dangerous at summer picnics, and you were right to avoid it. Weren't you?

Actually, it's not likely that the mayo was the culprit. Mayonnaise is slightly acid, and the bacteria that cause food poisoning don't grow in an acid environment. In fact, adding mayonnaise to a meat, fish, poultry, pasta or potato salad may actually slow the growth of bacteria present in other ingredients. (That is, if the mayonnaise is commercially produced. Commercial mayo is more acidic than homemade recipes.)

Still, during the hot summer months, extra precaution should be taken when handling any food — including mayonnaise-based dishes — to prevent food poisoning. Food poisoning bacteria multiply rapidly in temperatures of 80 degrees Fahrenheit and above. The incidence of food-borne illness increases during the summer because many people leave food sitting out on picnic tables where it's fair game for those busy bacteria. To be safe, serve hot foods hot and keep cold foods on ice, in a refrigerator or ice chest, until it's time to eat.

Again, for safety, avoid recipes for homemade mayonnaise that call for raw eggs. Raw yolk is the central ingredient in mayonnaise, which also typically contains vegetable oil, an acid (lemon juice, vinegar), seasonings and perhaps sugar. Salmonella bacteria could be present in uncooked egg yolks, and the combination of a low-acid mayo recipe and a hot summer day could lead to problems. Commercially produced mayo is fine, though, because it contains pasteurized eggs.

If you really want to make your own, try mayo's close cousin, a cooked salad dressing. The easy microwave version below has a rich, creamy consistency, and eggs are cooked, so any bacteria present will be killed. It's great in salads and spreads smoothly over sandwiches. Be sure to refrigerate unused portions promptly and use within a week. In other recipes below, use commercially produced mayonnaise.

There's no reason to "hold the mayo" during summer months — if you play it safe.

(Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.)

MICRO-TIP OF THE WEEK

When microwaving mayonnaise for sauces, etc., heat gently at

MEDIUM-LOW (30 percent power) setting to ensure smooth and creamy results.

MICRO-COOKED SALAD DRESSING

2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon each dry mustard and salt
Dash each ground white pepper and paprika
3/4 cup light cream
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons white vinegar
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, softened

Yields about 1 1/2 cups.

Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 1 to 2 minutes.

Oven setting: MEDIUM-HIGH (70 percent power).

In 1-quart microwave-safe casserole combine flour, sugar, mustard, salt, pepper and paprika; stir with fork.

In small mixing bowl beat together cream and egg yolks with wire whisk. Slowly beat into flour mixture. Microwave, uncovered, 1 to 2 minutes, or until mixture boils and thickens. Stir every 30 seconds.

Using clean wire whisk, beat in vinegar and softened butter. Beat well until mixture is thick and smooth. Refrigerate in covered container until ready to use. Use well-chilled to garnish salads and sandwiches.

WARM HERBED ARTICHOKE DIP

1/2 cup each mayonnaise and sour cream
1/2 cup grated fresh Parmesan cheese
1/2 cup sliced green onion (green part only)
1 small clove garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
1/2 teaspoon each crushed dried basil and tarragon leaves
1 (14-ounce) can artichoke hearts, drained and chopped
Paprika

Yields about 3 cups dip.

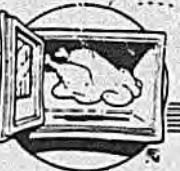

Preparation time: 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 4 to 5 minutes (plus 3 minutes standing time).

Oven setting: MEDIUM-HIGH (70 percent power).

In 1-quart microwave-safe casserole combine all ingredients except artichoke hearts and paprika. Stir well to combine. Fold in chopped artichoke hearts. Cover loosely with waxed paper and microwave 4 to 5 minutes, or until heated through.

Transfer to serving dish, sprinkle with paprika, and let stand 3 minutes before serving with crackers and French bread chunks.

FOR TEENS

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Dr. Abraham: Something has happened to me that I never thought would, and I imagine it has to some other teens, too. At least I hope it has.

It's related to my parents. What has happened is that all of a sudden I can talk to them and they listen to me.

Till now they both sure turned me off with their asking questions. So then I just clammed up after telling them, "Don't bug me."

So my dad told me, "OK, I'll be here, and your mom will, too. Let's talk whenever you have something you want to talk about."

I tried them out by telling them about a girl at school who is on drugs, and they listened, seemed interested and were so understanding about her problem that I couldn't believe it.

Then I asked them a question about birth control, thinking that might shock them. But it didn't, and their answers made good sense to me.

So I think maybe some other teens my age (I'm 14) haven't given their folks a chance to act like human beings toward them. I finally gave them one, and it's been really good.

I just thought you'd be interested in what happened to me. — Happy Daughter

Happy Daughter: Thanks very much for sharing your experience, and I'm so glad that it's working out so well.

I've also heard from other teens who have been able to break through a communications "blockage" with their parents. In most cases it seems to require an effort on both sides of the age barrier, teens and both parents. The encouraging part is that it can often happen more comfortably than those involved may imagine, sometimes easier if started by the teens.

Dr. Abraham: On his birthday I gave this boy a kind of expensive present, a watch that I saved up money for without telling my parents.

Now he and I have broken up, each angry at the other one. It was right after his birthday (he is now 15), and I want that watch back. I want to give it to another boy I've met.

How can I get it back? — Angry

Angry: Usually when a gift is given, it should stay in the hands of the receiver, unless that person returns it voluntarily. It may be best for you not to make an issue over it.

Expensive presents, especially at your age, may be a mistake anyway. They sometimes give the impression that a person is trying to buy a friendship. You might want to think about that.

This may seem like a costly lesson to you, but it could be worth a lot as time goes by.

Dr. Abraham: When I went for a medical examination, our doctor told me and my mother that the liquid I drink should be skim milk. So I started with it, and I really have to tell you that it's awful. It's so gray and weak and yukky.

I always followed his advice before, but now I told my mom that this is when he and I part company.

Do you blame me? — Hates Milk

Hates Milk: Did he explain why he offered that suggestion? If he didn't or you and your mother don't remember the reason or couldn't understand it, it's time to get back to him on the phone or in person and ask for an explanation. To stop drinking skim milk without hearing and understanding his reasoning might not be sensible.

The children in my family, all now grown, were brought up on skim milk, but we were always informed about the advantages it provided for them.

To obtain clear explanations from your physician is a good practice to follow now, but also when you're older and for your own children if or when you have them.

Dr. Abraham: I think my kid brother is really retarded. The way he talks and thinks is kind of strange.

At school they said that he is a "slow learner," but isn't that just a sort of cover-up for his real handicap?

He is 13 years old, so I don't think he will ever be normal. I'd like your opinion because I respect it so much. — Worried Worried: Most authorities in the field of exceptional children (those who deviate from the so-called normal enough to need some special education consideration) differentiate clearly between "mentally retarded" and "slow learner" individuals.

Generally, the former may have measured intelligence at one of three levels:

educable (about 50 to 75 IQ), trainable (about 25 to 50 IQ), not trainable (around 0 to 25 IQ). The "slow learners" usually perform somewhat higher than the educable group, ranging in intelligence within the 75 to 90 IQ level.

The bottom line is that labels may be misleading and certainly are not chiseled in concrete.

Very berry

By Linda Susan Dudley

Sure, strawberries are available all year, but the peak season is now through fall. It's when the berry is at its sweetest and juiciest.

When buying strawberries, look for bright red fruit and fresh green caps as strawberries do not ripen after picking. Refrigerate the berries immediately to maintain maximum flavor. When ready to prepare or serve, gently rinse, with caps still attached.

The best news about strawberries is you can consume a whole cup and only pack in 60 calories; yet as a bonus they provide 150 percent of the daily recommendation for vitamin C and some iron and fiber, according to the California Strawberry Advisory Board.

Try some of these easy suggestions for using strawberries:

- Float the biggest, most beautiful berries in flutes of champagne.

- Mound a large wicker basket to brimming with red berries and surround it with dishes of powdered sugar, marshmallow creme, yogurt and brown sugar and then let guests help themselves to their favorite berry dips.

- Serve sliced berries over vanilla ice cream, frozen yogurt or pound cake with a dollop of whipped cream, if desired.

- For a no-fat dessert that looks festive, mix sliced berries with enough no-calorie sweetener to taste and then mound on a serving slice of no-fat chocolate loaf cake.

- Add sliced berries to salads or pile them on hot waffles.

Cooks are pushing the limits of strawberries. No longer just a berry to slice on top of cereal or build a better shortcake, strawberries are turning up in everything.

Case in point — Marie Shaw-Payne, who has been successful in a number of Southern California regional cooking contests, has created an award-winning hors d'oeuvre recipe. She serves this salsa with unsalted tortilla chips or as a sauce on meats, including pork tenderloin, lamb or chicken or over asparagus.

STRAWBERRY SALSA

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup strawberries, diced
2 tablespoons sugar
 $\frac{3}{4}$ cup jicama, diced
6 large red radishes
3 tablespoons rice wine vinegar
2 tablespoons crystallized ginger, minced
1 tablespoon orange peel, orange part only, shredded

Yields 6 to 8 servings.

In small bowl, combine strawberries and sugar; let stand until juices form, about 30 minutes. Add jicama, radishes, vinegar, ginger and orange peel; mix well. Chill and serve.

Strawberries are colorful, elegant and delicious all by themselves or topped with half-and-half. But here are some desserts to try to further enhance fresh strawberries.

STRAWBERRY ANGELS' CAKE

1 baked and cooled 10-inch angel food cake (made from recipe which follows or from a packaged mix)
2 cups whipping cream
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
2 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
2 pint baskets fresh strawberries, stemmed and halved

Yields 10 to 12 servings.

Slice off entire top of cake about 1 inch down; set aside. To form a tunnel, cut around cake 1 inch from outer edge and 1 inch from inner edge, leaving a base of cake 1 inch thick on bottom. Gently pull out cake within cuts. Place hollowed cake on serving plate.

In bowl, combine cream, sugar and cocoa; whip until soft peaks form. Fold half the strawberries into half the whipped cream mixture; spoon into cake tunnel, pressing down firmly. Replace top of cake; press gently. Frost cake with remaining cream mixture. Cover top of cake with remaining strawberries. Chill about 15 minutes before slicing to serve.

ANGEL FOOD CAKE

1 cup cake flour
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups sugar
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon nutmeg
12 large egg whites
 $1\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoons cream of tartar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 375 F. Sift together flour, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup of sugar and nutmeg. In mixer bowl, beat egg whites until frothy; add cream of tartar, salt and vanilla. Beat until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in remaining sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, until stiff, shiny peaks form. Fold in flour mixture.

Spoon batter into ungreased 10x4-inch tube pan. Cut gently through batter to remove large air bubbles. Bake 30 minutes or until wooden pick inserted into center comes out clean.

Invert cake on rack to cool. Remove cake from pan.

STRAWBERRY COOKIE PIE

Chocolate Crumb Crust (recipe follows)
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cold water
2 pint baskets fresh strawberries, stemmed
1 tablespoon lemon juice
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar
2 egg whites
1 cup whipping cream

Prepare Chocolate Crumb Crust; set aside.

In small saucepan, soften gelatin in water about 3 minutes. Reserve 12 whole strawberries for garnish. With blender or food processor puree remaining strawberries until slightly chunky. Transfer to large bowl; stir in lemon juice.

Add sugar to gelatin mixture; cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves and mixture is clear; do not boil. Cool 5 minutes; mix into pureed strawberries. Chill, stirring occasionally until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon.

In bowl, beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold strawberry mixture into egg whites. Beat whipping cream until soft peaks form. With rubber spatula, fold cream gently into strawberry mixture until white streaks disappear. Mound into prepared pie shell. Garnish with reserved strawberries. Chill until set, about 2 hours.

CHOCOLATE CRUMB CRUST

Place 7 ounces chocolate cookie wafers in blender or food processor container; process to make crumbs (you should have $1\frac{1}{4}$ cups). In bowl, mix crumbs and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup melted butter. Press firmly onto bottom of 9-inch pie pan. Bake in 350 F oven 10 minutes. Cool.

STRAWBERRY CROWN TART

Pastry for single crust 9-

inch pie
2 eggs
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon vanilla
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup flour
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted and cooled
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup melted currant jelly
2 baskets fresh strawberries, stemmed

Yields 6 to 8 servings.

Line 9-inch tart pan with removable bottom with pastry. Prick all over with fork; bake in 425 F oven 10 to 12 minutes, just until pastry begins to brown. Remove to rack to cool. In mixer bowl, beat eggs, sugar, lemon juice, peel and vanilla until thick and pale, about 10 minutes.

Gently fold in $\frac{1}{2}$ of the flour, then $\frac{1}{2}$ of the butter. Continue folding in, alternating flour and butter until all has been incorporated. (Do not overmix.)

Brush bottom of tart shell with some of jelly. Slice about $\frac{1}{2}$ basket of strawberries and arrange over jelly. Pour batter over strawberries (it will not quite cover). Bake in 375 F oven 20 to 25 minutes until golden and filling is set. Cool on rack.

Arrange remaining whole strawberries, stem ends down, on top of tart. Brush with remaining melted jelly.

KITCHEN HINTS

You're selecting pork chops

One package is pale, the other rather red.

Which to choose?

1. Both are good meat, the color difference comes from the amount of protein in the flesh.
2. Just like us, animals have different coloration.
3. For tenderness, select the paler pork.

The many benefits of herbs

Though one hears and reads a good deal these days on the subject of using garden herbs medicinally, I prefer to enjoy the herbs in my garden mainly for their delicious flavors and aromas while remaining happily conscious of the side benefits they can bring in promoting good health and a feeling of well-being.

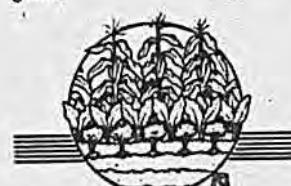

It's important, in my opinion, to approach the use of herbs with a certain judicious respect, for they are rich in powerfully active ingredients and should be consumed in moderation. Be aware, too, that there will be a small percentage of people who will not react well to some herbs.

It's wise, whenever trying a new herb, to sample just a small amount before using it in larger quantities. If you are pregnant, or taking any medication, or have a serious or recurring condition, seek medical advice before trying any herbal remedy.

There are in my garden many herbs that I enjoy using for sheer pleasure. Most of them also have some historic or current associations with medicine and healing. Even before approaching the outdoor garden, we'll find among the potted plants in many homes an Aloe vera, a plant with long, tapering, fleshy leaves.

The fresh gel from a broken or cut leaf applied to burns and insect bites brings relief and speeds healings. The anaesthetic and anti-bacterial properties of the gel within its leaves have given Aloe vera the common name "burn plant."

Among the garden herbs the one I relish with the greatest enthusiasm is garlic. I love its scent and revel in the pungent taste of garlic-flavored stir-fries and soups, and of home-made Caesar salad dressing liberally laced with fresh garlic.

Backyard Gardener

Garlic also brings back pleasant memories of a winter spent in a small Greek village, where my diet consisted principally of lentils, goat-milk yogurt, and fresh garlic mashed onto buttered bread. Believe me — there wasn't a vampire in sight.

Garlic, like all the alliums (onions, chives), possesses mild anti-bacterial properties that can help to prevent colds and flu. Studies have shown garlic to reduce the levels of harmful fats in the blood. It can also reduce blood pressure.

As an anti-coagulant, the active compound in garlic is thought to give some protection against heart disease. The medicinal value of garlic is at its peak when the cloves are used raw. In cooked foods, add mashed or chopped garlic toward the end of the cooking process for maximum flavor and health benefits.

Though not considered a medicinal herb, parsley is probably one of the most health-giving of all plants. All the parsleys are rich in vitamins and minerals.

Because this is such a beneficial, tasty and attractive garnishing herb, it's worthwhile cultivating the habit of setting out a bowl of the freshly snipped foliage every day at mealtime to sprinkle over food. Or gather fresh sprigs daily to nibble as a snack.

One can almost taste the health in the pungent flavor of parsley, which has been described as the "summation of all things green."

Parsley is a perfect companion to garlic, as a few leaves chewed after eating garlic freshens the breath. Such munching is also said to promote healthy skin.

A tablespoon of parsley seeds infused in a quart of hot water and a wine glassful taken once or twice a day is said to be an aid to digestion. Don't use seeds purchased for planting though, in case they have been treated with pesticide. Grow your own, or buy them in a food store.

Parsley promotes the health of our gardens, too. I routinely allow some of the plants to flower and make seed in their second year, as the flowers are a favored food source for some of the beneficial insects that help control plant pests. Related herbs such as dill and fennel are additional food sources for these garden helpers.

Basil, like parsley, has never been considered a major medicinal herb. But its warm, spicy scent and flavor bring rapturous pleasure indeed to palate and soul. An infusion made from the leaves and flowers is said to aid digestion, and provide an invigorating experience when added to a warm bath.

5 practical books to help parents

Dear Parents: Once in a while the accumulation of new books and programs that I see related to parenthood encourages me to share them with you — but only the ones that seem to be practical and readable. There are, of course, many others also available for parents.

Here goes with five of them on themes like these:

1. The period just before and after the baby is born.
2. Raising alcohol- and drug-free youngsters.
3. What makes families successful.
4. The child from birth to 5.
5. Surviving childhood sexual abuse.

One or maybe more of them may hit the spot for you, enough to suggest a visit to your local library or bookstore for the books mentioned.

1. "The Miracle Year" by Lanie Carter with Lauren Simon Ostrow provides a guide for expectant parents six months before and after their first baby is born.

From basic vital concerns like the baby's health and their own relationship to specific ones such as body changes, weight gains, the stages of labor, choosing a competent pediatrician, and budgeting needs, this book aims directly at providing solutions and comfort.

It starts with this statement, "As an expectant parent, you have signed on for the most important job in the world," and then goes on — successfully — to suggest how you might handle it.

2. The most serious issue in thousands of families is how to prevent their children's alcohol and drug involvements.

Prepared for parents and related to youngsters in grades three to six is a new program titled "Common Sense: Strategies for Raising Alcohol & Drug Free Children." Its source is the National PTA and the GTE Corp. (with a $1.4 million grant from the GTE Foundation).

The objectives are to improve parenting skills, in three areas: Building bonds involving families and schools; setting rights, rules, and limits; providing children with sound parent role models.

The program is contained in a kit that offers research-based information and easy-to-follow instructions for conducting four parent meetings, parent brochures with specific tips to help raise alcohol- and drug-free children, and a related videotape.

PTAs may receive a free kit by telephoning 1-800-225-5483. It is also available at no cost to GTE employees who will then donate it to an active parent group.

Civic, community and other parent-teacher organizations can obtain one for $40 (plus $4.75 shipping and handling). To reach our large Hispanic population, GTE has translated selected "Common Sense" materials into Spanish. (Their address is One Stamford Forum, Stamford, CT 06904.)

3. "State Teachers of the Year" from all 50 states selected outstanding families to find out what made them successful. The result is a recent book titled "Back to the Family" by Dr. Ray Guerendi.

He discovered four similar "rules of parenting" that these families followed (in addition to many of their other successful practices): Don't try to be a perfect parent; stick with the present and don't second-guess an uncertain future; expect your children to misunderstand and not like you at times; use strong discipline and start when they are young.

Many of you, of course, may not agree with all of these.

4. From an excellent source a three-volume series for parents is coming; it might be hard to find a more competent one than the American Academy of Pediatrics. The first one is already out — "Caring for Your Baby and Young Child: Birth to Age 5." The other two are "Caring for Your Adolescent: Ages 12 - 21" (Fall 1991 publication) and "Caring for Your School Age Child: Ages 6 to 11" (Spring 1992).

The baby-to-5 book, edited by Dr. Steven Shelov, contains an illustrated parenting manual plus an encyclopedic guide dealing with 125 health problems, including medical emergencies, immunization, and birth defects.

For costs and other information you can contact AAP Publications/Child Care Book, 141 Northwest Point Blvd., P.O. Box 927, Elk Grove Village, IL 60009.

5. The last book this time around is based on a tragic childhood problem — child sexual trauma. Its title is "No More Secrets, No More Shame."

The author, Dr. David Sack, reveals some startling statistics (which may differ from those from other sources): Nearly 30 percent of females and 15 percent of males in today's general population were molested as children; most children who are sexually abused are victims of a conspiracy to conceal the abuser and distort the child's memory; it is estimated that 40 percent of adults who were sexually abused as children suffer serious psychiatric illnesses later in life; one in four children of alcoholic parents has been a victim of incest.

I hesitate to end on this terrifying note, but sometimes that's life at its most dismal.

Nutritionist has plan for healthy meals

By Bobbi Ignezi

Fast food doesn't always mean junk food. In fact, eating in a hurry can be downright healthy, said registered dietitian Mary Donkersloot, author of the new book, "The Fast Food Diet" (Simon & Schuster, $19.95).

"You don't have to compromise good nutrition just because you're eating on the run. Lunch at Jack-in-the-Box or a frozen dinner at night doesn't mean you've blown your diet. It just means you'll need to make some informed and healthy choices," she said.

For example, instead of ordering Jack-in-the-Box's Swiss and Bacon Burger, which packs 678 calories and 47 grams of fat, Donkersloot suggests trying the Chicken Fajita Pita. You'll save nearly 400 calories, 40 grams of fat and a lot of guilt.

Only have time for frozen fare? No problem, said Donkersloot, director of her own nutrition consulting firm, Personal Nutrition Management. Pop a Healthy Choice Chicken Dijon dinner into the microwave. It weighs in at only 260 calories with 3 grams of fat. It's a much smarter choice than Banquet's Chopped Beef Meal, which has nearly twice the calories and 10 times the fat.

IT'S NOT EASY

Of course, making the right nutritional choice isn't always so easy, especially when you're hungry and in a hurry.

That's where "The Fast Food Diet" may come in handy, if you can overcome the confusing organization of her book.

In one section, Donkersloot offers a helpful rating system for fast-food chain menus and packaged grocery items. In another, she lists a 21-day eating plan, with nutritious recipes. The problem is, she doesn't show us how to incorporate the rating system into the 21-day eating plan.

Donkersloot joins a growing corps of authors trying to help people sort out the nutritional information about fast foods. Among them are Marion J. Franz, whose "Fast Food Facts" was first published in 1984; Monte Florman, Marjorie Florman and the editors of Consumer Reports, with "Fast Foods - Eating In and Eating Out"; and Barbara Kraus, whose "Calorie Guide to Brand-Name and Basic Foods" includes information on fast-food restaurant favorites.

Donkersloot's book is ambitious — maybe overly so. Along with the rating system, it offers helpful diet tips, a 21-day menu plan and 100 quick and nutritious recipes.

On a 1 to 10 scale, 10 being the healthiest, Donkersloot grades restaurant and fast-food outlet selections, frozen entrees, boxed meals, canned goods and commercial snacks, desserts and beverages.

TOTAL PICTURE

The scale Donkersloot uses is based on factors from the 1988 "U.S. Surgeon General's Report on Health and Nutrition." It takes into account the total fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, salt, sugar, fiber, vitamins and minerals in one serving.

"My clients were always asking me things like, 'Is it OK if I eat ice cream?' or, 'What's healthier, a hamburger or a taco?' I found the best way to answer them, a way they could personally relate to and understand, was to use a simple rating system," said Donkersloot, whose slim figure and boundless energy are proof of her own healthy eating habits.

"For instance, when you see that Taco Bell's bean burrito is a 9 and their Meximelt is a 4, it becomes obvious which is the healthier option. This enables people to see the whole picture and how one food choice affects their overall nutrition."

BALANCING ACT

Now, don't get discouraged if your favorite Pepperidge Farms Lido cookies scored a lowly 2 or Kentucky Fried Chicken has 26 grams of fat per thigh. Just because a food rates a low score doesn't mean it's forbidden, Donkersloot said.

"There are no good and bad foods, just good and bad diets. If you eat a high-fat, lower-rated food but balance it out with other low-fat, high-rated choices, you can still have a healthy diet," she said.

She realizes that fast-food chains are constantly coming out with lighter items that won't be found in her book, yet she believes it still serves as a useful reference for people trying to make healthy food choices.

Donkersloot suggests aiming for a gradual improvement in your diet. About 65 percent of food selections (18 out of 28 meals or snacks per week) should be rated 8 or higher; 25 percent (seven out of 28 meals or snacks) should fall into the 5 to 7 range; and only 10 percent (three out of 28 meals or snacks) should have scores from 1 to 4.

Up-to-date meals from Weight Watchers

By Kit Soedaker

I am devoted to Weight Watchers. Although I've never joined, I've seen what it has done for friends. The program makes sense.

So does the new "Weight Watchers Meals in Minutes Cookbook." Here are '90s recipes for busy cooks who still want to serve healthful meals. Not just healthful meals, either, but meals everyone enjoys and meals that win a cook, especially a busy one, a round of applause. Here are recipes for Spanish Rice and Sautéed Duck Breast, for casseroles and cassoulets, pasta and tapioca pudding.

It was hard to decide which recipes to include, hard to pick just three.

Tostada Salad is back in the realm of possible dishes again in Weight Watchers' version. Cold India Pasta is perfect to make ahead and pull out of the refrigerator at mealtime like a magician pulling a rabbit out of a hat. As for Cappuccino Mousse, just taste it.

TOSTADA SALAD

2 teaspoons olive or vegetable oil
1 cup each diced onions and green bell peppers
1 tablespoon thinly sliced mild or hot chili pepper
2 garlic cloves, minced
7 ounces julienne-cut chicken breasts (matchstick pieces)
6 ounces ($\frac{3}{4}$ cup) canned baked beans (without meat)
1 tablespoon each chopped cilantro or chopped Italian parsley and lime juice

(no sugar added)

1 medium tomato, chopped
1 cup torn romaine lettuce
1 ounce Monterey Jack or cheddar cheese, shredded
1 tablespoon sour cream
3 pitted black olives, sliced
1/4 tostada shells, broken in pieces

Yields 2 servings. Each serving has about 415 calories, 16 grams fat, 74 milligrams cholesterol and 580 milligrams sodium.

In 9-inch skillet heat oil. Add onions, bell peppers, chili pepper and garlic and cook over medium heat, stirring frequently until onion is translucent, 2 or 3 minutes. Add chicken and cook, stirring frequently, until chicken is no longer pink, 2 or 3 more minutes. Add beans, cilantro or parsley and lime juice and stir to combine. Reduce heat to low and simmer until chicken is cooked and mixture is thoroughly heated, about 15 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in tomato.

Arrange lettuce on serving platter. Top with chicken mixture and sprinkle with cheese. Top with sour cream and olives. Serve with tostada pieces.

COLD INDIA PASTA

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup plain low-fat yogurt
2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons instant non-fat dry milk powder
1 tablespoon rice vinegar
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon ground cumin
Dash pepper
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups cooked rigatoni or ziti pasta
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup each finely diced radishes and celery
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons minced scallions, green part included
1 teaspoon each chopped fresh mint and cilantro (Chinese parsley) or Italian (flat-leaf) parsley

Yields 2 servings. Each serving has about 180 calories, 1 gram fat, 4 milligrams cholesterol and 90 milligrams sodium.

With wire whisk, combine yogurt, milk powder, vinegar, cumin and pepper in mixing bowl. Add remaining ingredients and stir to coat. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate until ready to serve.

Bare edges allow moisture into doors

Q. I am having difficulty with the interior doors swelling and sticking. The problem is worse during high humidity.

I had the doors adjusted by a handyman, who shaved a small portion from the edges. Do you have any suggestion to correct this problem?

A. In addition to having the edges of the doors planed or sanded, you need to seal the raw wood on the edges to prevent future penetration of moisture.

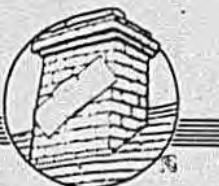

Often the bare surfaces at the top and bottom of the doors do not get painted. Moisture is then allowed to penetrate and expand the wood. Once the doors fit and the wood is dry, seal the edges with wood sealer or paint.

Q. I have tried to remove the finish from my dining room chairs without success. I've tried several brands of paint and varnish remover.

The chairs are approximately 50 years old. I am wondering if during that period some special finish was used that requires a different type of removal.

A. You have probably guessed the basic problem. The paint you are working with is most likely an old-fashioned milk paint.

Although impossible to remove with paint and varnish strippers, it is readily removed with ordinary ammonia.

Here's How

However, you may want to think twice before removing it. If the paint is still in good condition, your chairs are probably more valuable to collectors with the milk-based paint.

Traditional ambience

Q. Our bedroom is fairly formal, with traditional mahogany furniture and a canopied bed.

My question is about the floor: I have two small Oriental rugs in there now, but the room doesn't feel cozy. In fact, it's cold in winter.

My husband wants to put down wall-to-wall carpeting, but I'm afraid that will look too contemporary. Will you settle this, please? — L.D.

A. You do have a point. Wall-to-wall carpeting is a relatively modern idea. You won't find it in authentic rooms from the 18th and 19th centuries, but then, you wouldn't find electric lights or central heating, either.

Our foremothers would have loved wall-to-wall carpeting if they could have bought it. In fact, you still see period rooms where narrow strips of carpeting have been sewn together to achieve the "broadloom" look we take for granted today (the true "broad" loom is a 20th century invention).

Authentic or not, wall-to-wall can look and feel warm and wonderful underfoot in a bedroom without upsetting your traditional ambience. The bedroom we show here should inspire you.

The designers, Allen Scruggs,

ASID, and Doug Meyers, have spread a subtle, pin-dot Bigelow carpet under a roomful of very traditional reproduction furniture, including a canopied bed. The pin dots are a gentle blue, which is replayed in the damask upholstery and the floral pattern on the bed and at the French doors.

Decor Score

The most contemporary touch of all never intrudes on the classic calm of the room: the carpet is made of Allied's WorryFree nylon ... which means you can spill your tea ... do your aerobics ... enjoy life in the 20th century without a qualm.

Q. I have a small collection of blue-and-white plates and no place to show them off since my dining room china closet is actually an antique armoire with solid wood doors.

I'd like to hang them on the wall but I'm afraid they might get broken. What can you suggest? — J.E.

A. Choose an out-of-the-way wall, say, over the fireplace, or over a doorway if your ceilings are high enough.

You could also frame your armoire with the plates, up the sides ... over the top ... and down again (stopping just out of harm's way).

Q. I have fallen in love with a kilim rug that has a true red background and flowers in lots of bright colors.

I want to buy it for our living room, which is Williamsburg colonial. It would work if I slipcover the sofa (which is a print that has nothing in common with the rug), but we just bought that.

I've always heard that you should buy something when you really love it, but am I just asking for trouble? — W.G.

A. You've already discovered the trouble with an overly extroverted rug. It will always be the center of attention, and everything else in the room must be subordinated.

A truly fine rug might be worth the effort, but as New York designer Margot Gunther cautions: "You'll be basing your decorating decisions on that one thing for a lot of years, since good rugs last a long, long time. So if you don't think you're going to have a life-long love affair with a rug, don't buy it."

ANTIQUE

JUNQUE

By James G. McCollam

Your Davenport desk was a real bargain

Q. This desk was purchased in Dublin, Ireland, over 30 years ago for $40. It is 33 inches high, 21 inches wide, and 21 inches deep.

The top is inlaid and has a leather writing surface. The drawers go all the way through so the knobs are simply decorative on one side.

It seems to be quite old, but I have seen what appear to be modern copies in Italy priced at $2,000.

A. This is an English Davenport desk (named for a Capt. Davenport who designed the first one over 150 years ago). Yours was made in the mid-19th century and would sell for about $2,000 in good condition.

The reproductions are so labor-intensive that they cost as much as an original. However, the original will continue to appreciate in value.

Q. The attached mark is on the bottom of an earthenware soup tureen. It is decorated with an Oriental scene in shades of red.

I would appreciate any information you can provide about the value and when and where it was made.

A. The manufacturer was Charles Meigh & Sons in Staffordshire, England, about 1850 to 1860. It would probably sell for about $125 to $135.

Q. Can you place a value on a Chinese garden seat in the rose medallion pattern.

The local museum determined that it was made in the mid-19th century. It is in excellent condition with no cracks or chips.

A. Based on the sales listed in several price guides, a garden seat such as you describe would probably sell in an antique shop for $2,500 to $2,750.

If you choose to sell it to a dealer, you will probably be offered about $1,500 to $2,000.

Q. My husband inherited an old wristwatch. It is curved to fit the wrist and is marked "Curvex Precision, Gruen Watch Co."

Do you know when this was made and what its value might be?

A. Gruen made this model watch in the late 1930s and early 1940s. A 17-jewel movement in a gold-filled case with a matching bracelet should sell for $300 to $400.

Q. We have an Edison Model A Home Phonograph that plays cylindrical records. The horn is almost 4 feet long and has a rod to support it.

Can you tell me when this was made and what it should sell for?

A. Your phonograph was made between 1900 and 1905. The extra long horn is somewhat rare.

In good condition, this should sell for $500 to $600.

Q. Our cat seems to have a sore tongue.

Although she used to groom herself all the time she very seldom ever licks herself anymore and has almost quit eating her favorite dry cat food. What is wrong with our cat?

A. High on the list of possible causes for your cat's problem is glossitis, commonly called "sore tongue."

Cats with feline viral respiratory complex have flu or coldlike signs. They have discharges from their eyes and noses and sneeze frequently. As the condition worsens affected cats become emaciated and severely dehydrated.

The feline viral respiratory complex is highly contagious and usually spreads rapidly through all the cats on a premises. However, it is unlikely that your cat had feline viral respiratory complex if the only sign she is exhibiting is glossitis.

Burns caused by licking caustic materials or by licking metal surfaces in extremely cold weather can result in glossitis. Cats often irritate their tongues while removing burrs from their hair coats. Plant awns, splinters or needles can become embedded in the tongue.

String can surround the base of the tongue and cause strangulation. If a cat swallows one end of a piece of string and the other end surrounds the base of the tongue, the condition usually worsens every time the cat swallows.

Treatment of glossitis usually involves rinsing the cat's mouth once or twice daily with antiseptic solutions. Many veterinarians prescribe antibiotics for glossitis. Most cats with glossitis are more prone to eat liquid meals than they are to eat solid meals.

Christmas came early this year to our family. On December 17, Lindsay Patricia joined her brother, Geoffrey, age 2, to make it a super-special day. Mom and Dad, Susan and Richard Schiller, along with uncles Steve, Anthony, Tom and Mike just love those smiles. What a wonderful family I have...Patricia Tuozzo of East Williston.

Yesterday was the Fourth of July. Did you go see fireworks anywhere? I always liked the fireworks that light up the whole sky like a giant flower. Of course, the fireworks that you go to watch are lit by professionals. You should never be near when someone else lights fireworks because they can hurt you badly.

Hope you had a happy and safe holiday.

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

A definition of custodial care

By William M. Acosta

Q. There is always a lot of talk about Medicare not covering custodial care.

A. Exactly what is custodial care? — N.F.

A. Much of the care provided in nursing homes to people with chronic, long-term illnesses or disabilities falls into the category of custodial care.

Care is considered custodial when it is primarily for the purpose of meeting personal needs and could be provided by people without professional skills or training.

For example, custodial care includes help in walking, getting in and out of bed, bathing, dressing, eating and taking medicine.

Q. I was married 24 years and have been divorced for 12 years. Do I have to have papers showing I'm divorced when I reach 62 and apply for benefits on my ex-husband's record?

A. When you apply as a divorced spouse you need to submit proof of marriage and proof of divorce.

A divorced spouse who has been divorced at least two years can receive benefits at 62 whether or not the former spouse receives them. The former spouse must be eligible for Social Security benefits, regardless of whether he has retired.

Contact your local Social Security office for additional information.

Q. I plan to take a trip to Europe. Will I be covered by Medicare? — R.N.

A. Medicare generally cannot pay for hospital or medical services outside the United States. (Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa and the Northern Mariana Islands are considered part of the United States.)

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

In certain situations, Medicare can help pay for care in qualified Canadian or Mexican hospitals.

You may want to inquire about the availability of special short-term health insurance for foreign travel issued by private insurance companies.

Q. My mother, who has been receiving Supplemental Security Income for several years, is having her case reviewed again.

Seemingly her case has been reviewed a number of times. Why is this necessary? — S.H.

A. SSI cases are subject to periodic reviews to make sure that the person continues to meet the eligibility requirements and to verify that the payment amount is correct.
