National Merit Students

Hicksville High School students Kim Soo Young and James Fitzsimmons have been chosen as semifinalists in the 1992 Merit Scholarship Competition. The two students are among 15,000 national semifinalists who now have the opportunity to compete for 6,100 Merit Scholarships to be awarded next spring.

Four Hicksville High School students - Daniel Blanco, John Butt, Melissa Master and Courtney Reynolds - have been named as Commended Students in the 1992 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Of the more than one million students who took the 1990 PSAT/NMSQT, 50,000 were chosen as the highest scorers. From these, 15,000 are designated as semifinalists and approximately 35,000 (or five percent of all program entrants) are named as Commended Students. A Letter of Commendation from the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC), which conducts the program, has been awarded to each student.

Local Youth At Music Camp

James Byun of Jericho recently attended the New York State Music Camp and Institute at Hartwick College in Oneonta, N.Y. Now in its 45th season, NYSMC&I was in session from June 29 through August 11.

During the 1991 season, James, son of Yong Hee and Simon Byun, was part of a record-breaking camp enrollment of more than 400 students from the United States and Canada. The daily routine included instruction and performance practice with internationally known artists. Students performed a variety of choral and instrumental works, ranging from classics to jazz, and showcasing compositions by Haydn, Stravinsky, Bernstein, and Sammy Nestico, as well as recently premiered pieces. Visiting artists and field trips, including a trip to the Glimmerglass Opera, rounded out the program.

Teens Needed To Become Tutors

The Hicksville Youth Council is gearing up for its 1991-92 Peer Tutoring Program. The philosophy of the tutoring program is that teens feel more comfortable with other teens and therefore, may be more motivated to learn from their peers.

The Youth Council is currently recruiting teens to volunteer to tutor in a variety of subjects. All of the tutoring takes place after school at the Youth Council. Tutors are asked to volunteer at least one hour per week and tutoring is scheduled at mutually convenient times.

Tutors will receive a letter from the Youth Council stating that they have performed community service work. This letter is important as colleges and prospective employers look for this type of reference from applicants. Also, some high school courses require students to get involved in a community service project. Involvement in the Peer Tutoring Program can also provide personal satisfaction as volunteers will be helping others in their own community.

To volunteer to become a tutor, or for more information about the Peer Tutoring Program, call Pat Schussler, A.C.S.W. at 822-KIDS. The Youth Council is a non-profit organization dedicated to working with teens in all aspects of their lives. The Youth Council is located at 175 W. Old Country Road.

Senior Honored National Merit

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation announced that seven seniors in Bethpage High School were honored this year. Dr. Antoinette MacLeod, the principal, announced that Alexandra Grinshpun has been singled out as a semi-finalist for this year. Six others were honored as deserving of letters of Commendation. The students earned this recognition as a result of the PSAT/National Merit Scholarship Exam that they took last year in October. The commended students, all of whom rank in the top 5% of the nation are: Stacy P. Aronowitz, Colleen A. Cannon, Todd H. Heseikel, Sandra A. Rolston, Jennifer B. Samnick, Lloyd C. Shin.

Sweeping Changes Proposed By New Supt.

By Maureen Traxler

The seven members of the Hicksville Board of Education, at their September 25 meeting, took a back seat to the district's new Superintendent. Mr. Mugavero unveiled his new agenda of district-wide changes, including feasibility studies and program reviews at the high school, a broad-based budget committee, scrutiny of the district's administrative structure, an anti-vandalism student incentive program, and the appointment of an Educational Task Force to study the feasibility of moving the 6th grade to the middle school.

Superintendent Sal Mugavero outlined his recommendations as follows:

As educational leader of the district, Mr. Mugavero appointed an 18-member Educational Task Force of teachers and administrators to study the feasibility of moving the 6th grade to the middle school. This committee is charged with assessing the appropriateness and academic advantages of bringing the 6th grade into the middle school program, and a report is to be rendered to the Superintendent by November 1. During the early weeks of November, Mr. Mugavero intends to review the findings with the building administration and meet with parents of the current fifth graders. At the Board of Education's November 26 meeting, the Superintendent will make a recommendation for or against moving the 6th grade to the middle school.

The members of the task force are: (teachers) Carl Schulz, Robert Pownall, James Bell, Rosalie Sones, Gail Ash, Stuart Blumer, Kathy Grady; (administrators) from the Middle School, Principal Gerald Klein, Assistant Principals Joseph Giambalvo and Marie Marshall, elementary principals Carol Bentsen and Michael Dunn, and from central administration, Barbara Horsley, Donato Guadagnoli, Robert Durso, Robert Kenney, Mr. Mugavero and Asst. Supt. Dr. Couillard, chairperson.

A budget committee, comprised of students, parents, residents, teachers, and an administrator, will be formed in each of the nine school buildings. The principal will chair the committee and the committee will meet between October 15 and November 1. After which time, the names of two members will be submitted, and one chosen by the Superintendent to serve on the district-wide Budget Committee.

In addition to the nine representatives from the schools, nine members are to be chosen for the district committee by the superintendent after submission of biographical sketches and resumes. The district will be advertising in the Mid-Island Times for community members to fill these slots.

The district committee will review all aspects of the 1992-93 budget and will receive presentations by various administrative personnel.

All members of the individual building and district budget committees will come together on the evening of Wednesday, April 29, for a final meeting, at which time, the budget will be finalized. On Thursday, April 30, at 9 p.m., the Board will hold its regular monthly meeting and receive the final budget figure from the Superintendent.

"The key is balance...all segments of the community should be present," said Mr. Mugavero. The Superintendent added that the committee "fits all the guidelines" of the New Compact For Learning, a plan devised by the State Education Department and the Board of Regents to improve education in New York State with the involvement of parents and community.

"We have a new process this year," said trustee Jim Black. "It will take all the people of Hicksville to make it work." Mr. Black said that he anticipates a "lean, mean and passable budget."

Trustee Helen Lafferty stated to the board and public that the board has no input on formulation or selection of this committee. She also stated that it is the "duty of the superintendent of schools to recommend the budget to the board," using all the means available.

In order to quell some anxiety anticipated from residents, Mr. Black added his "assurance" that the final budget figure is the ultimate responsibility of the board. He said, "There will be seven decision-makers on the budget. None of us is going to abdicate

Town Presents Citation

Town of Oyster Bay Councilman Leonard Kunzig, right, presents a citation from the Town Board to Ernest Warneken, Commander of the Archie McCord American Legion Post #86, at the Bethpage Post's Installation. Commander Warneken then presented Councilman Kunzig with a Certificate of Appreciation for the work he has done on behalf of the Town's veterans. George Yochmann, Executive Leader of the Bethpage Republican Club and a Merchant Marine veteran of World War II said, "Supervisor Angelo Delligatti and Councilman Kunzig are mindful of the sacrifices made by our veterans and will do whatever is in their power to help them."

Hicksville- F.D. Has Busy Sept.

A fire in a house at 21 Moeller St. on September 29, time - 6 p.m., caused considerable damage. The fire of unknown origin started on the 2nd floor. The occupants escaped without incident. The Hicksville F.D. responded with 10 units of which 4 were used to extinguish the blaze. One firefighter was injured when he stepped on a sharp object. The County Fire Marshal's Office is investigating. 65 Personnel responded under Chief A. Wigdzinski.

In another fire - this one in a longstanding old time barber shop near Goldman Bros. on Broadway - fire destroyed the small shop at 171 Broadway on Sunday, September 29. The alarm was reported via alarm box at 11 p.m. Ten units, 70 personnel responded under Chief A. Wigdzinski. The County Fire Marshal is investigating the cause which is undetermined at this time.

Picture Framing At Library

On Wednesday, October 23, the Hicksville Public Library will present a workshop. This workshop was set up specifically for Town of Oyster Bay students who will enter their art work in the spring 1992 "Young People's Art Show." But, all students from the Town of Oyster Bay are welcome. Mr. Bill Leviton will present many aspects of picture framing:

Beware Strangers, Says Realtor

Unscrupulous individuals have adopted a ruse to gain admittance into homes of unwitting home owners who are selling their homes! It was reported to local Realtor Karen Donovan that local home owners have been tricked into letting strangers into their home on more than one occasion. "These supposed 'Buyers' knock on the owner's door claiming that a Real Estate agent had an appointment to show them the home. Then the unwitting owner is led to believe that the agent just did not 'show up.'" At this point, the owner fearing that they might miss out on a potential customer, lets the "convincing con artist" into their home!" Donovan said.

Donovan further stated that "agents do not generally meet people at the house. For both safety and financial qualification reasons, potential customers are first interviewed at the broker's office. Reputable brokers always then accompany a pre-qualified customer to the home in order to safeguard the home owners and their possessions." She went on to say that his procedure would hopefully prevent unnecessary risk and protect the client who is selling.

how to use available materials for framing, how to mat for existing frames, how to use a miter box, aesthetics of framing, etc. To register by phone, call Mrs. Gazess at 931-1417.

The workshop will be conducted at the Cameo Gallery, 509 Burns Avenue, Hicksville at 5:30 p.m.

Letters

To the Editor:

My name is Winnie Spadola and I am the newly elected Regent of Court Queen of Angels, Catholic Daughters of the Americas. For the past six months, our group has been busy with many projects. The organization has completed paying their pledge of $2,000.00 to McDonald House. Some of the members under the leadership of Kay Governale have been assisting the staff of the Central Island Nursing Home with their Wednesday afternoon socials and are running bingo on Thursday evenings. Chairlady, Rita Hanifan and her group have been visiting the sick and elderly members of the organization and bringing them Poay Baskets for their enjoyment. Our members are still selling Dorothy Rettberg Brown's GOOD OLD HICKSVILLE books and to date have contributed $880.00 to the Human Services of St. Ignatius Church for the needy people of Hicksville.

At the September meeting, their program for the next four months was presented to the membership. Many of the group plan to attend the CDA Annual Memorial Mass on Oct. 19th at St. Philipp & St. James Church. Their Christmas and Craft Sale has been set for Dec. 7th. The year will close with a Christmas Party for the members. Any woman interested in joining our court can call me at 931-4875.

Ocean To Sound Relay

In this year's Spiegel Associates Ocean To Sound Relay, the Nassau Police took first place in the Corporate division. This 60-mile competition, which is the nation's largest relay race, involved more than 139 eight-member teams traveling through the scenic countryside of Long Island. The race, sponsored by Spiegel Associates of Jericho, one of Long Island's most prominent real estate acquisition, development and management firms, raised more than $30,000 for the Aspire Program for the rehabilitation of young amputees. Presenting the plaques to the team was Robert Kinzer, chief operating officer of Spiegel Associates. Seven of the team members (all residents of Mineola) present at the awards ceremony were, left to right: Alan Hersch, Ed Kelly, Jack Freund, Dave Nystrom, Alex Couzzo, Joe Hackett and Mike Marino.

Holiday Time At No. Shore Synagogue

The children at the Nursery School of North Shore Synagogue have been enjoying the holiday celebrations of Sukkot (the harvest holiday) and Simchat Torah (the happiness of the Torah).

The youngsters enjoyed singing and decorating the Temple Sukkah (little booth) with fruit and vegetables.

They paraded around the little booth with their flags and special Torah and sang songs for Simchat Torah.

The holiday season has all the children very excited...They are celebrating, too, in their new playground.

Gregory Museum Hosts Grandparents

On Sunday, September 8, the Museum hosted Grandparents, with and without their grandchildren. Videos were made of the seniors reminiscing about the "Goldbeating days," as well as Hicksville before the population explosion of the 1950's.

Historian Dick Evers' slide presentation and narrative highlighted the "yesterday and today" of the community.

Museum guests on Grandparents' Day included Edith Nicholson, Elsie Burmester and Anna Meunch Harrison, a member of the Meunch family who had maintained a goldbeating shop in their Hicksville home. Also attending were Mrs. Gladys Stevens of Plainview with grandchildren Alex and Jocelyn.

Jericho Temple Celebrates Sukkah

All the children gather around their 375 foot long Sukkah chain.

The parents build the framework for the Sukkah while the children gather cornstalks for the decorations.

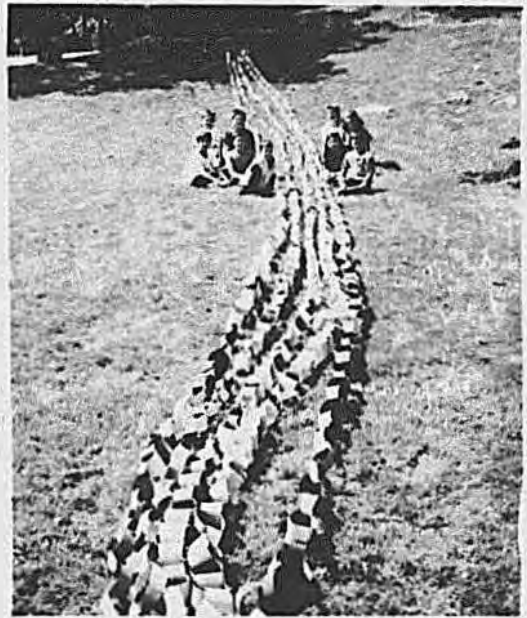

Seven year old Joshua Rubin helps by hanging corn on the Sukkah wall.

On Sunday, September 22, the members of Temple Or Elohim in Jericho prepared to celebrate the holiday of Sukkot by erecting a "Sukkah" at the temple.

The parents did construction work to make the frame, and the children gathered corn stalks, gourds and other greenery, along with their own arts and crafts projects for the decoration of the Sukkah.

A major part of the decoration was a 375 foot long "Sukkah Chain" made by the children. It is truly a delight to see them so enthusiastic in their work.

In the week that follows, the children in the Hebrew School will have the opportunity to eat, drink, and celebrate in the Sukkah as they learn about the holiday.

The children with their 375 foot "Sukkah Chain."

Parents and children work together to decorate the Sukkah.

Craft Programs at the Bethpage Public Library - The Holidays Are Coming - What better time than now to get started making gifts to give to others or treat yourself. On Monday, October 7 at 1 p. m., Donna Murray will conduct a workshop creating a charming, fragrance-scented "Victorian Parasol Potpourri." A materials fee of $6 is to be paid when registering at the Reference Desk of the library.

On Wednesday, November 6, Peggy Lang will conduct a workshop creating an exquisite "Lace and Applique Basket" that is both decorative and useful. Choose either the 1 p. m. or the 7:30 p.m. session. A list of supplies for you to bring is available at the Reference Desk, and a fee of $3 for the cost of the basket and additional supplies is payable when you register. So, get the creative juices flowing, and register before your're closed out.

The library is located at 47 Powell Avenue, Tel. 931-9007, 2 blocks west of Exit No. 8 on the Seaford-Oyster Bay Expressway, Rte. 135.

Hicksville H.S. Student Interns

The Hicksville High School is in its second year of offering a student internship program for students in grade 12. Under the directorship of the district's business education teacher Susan Galland, the program has grown to include over twenty seniors this year.

Students receive 1 credit for their service on a pass/fail basis. They are required to fulfill approximately 1 1/2 to 2 hours daily for their entire senior year. Interns are not paid for their work.

"It allows you to get an idea, a sense of whether you want to make this your career or not," said intern Ivia Negron. "Besides," added intern Kristi Cannone, "It is fun being on the other side for a change."

Twenty-two aspiring future teachers have been placed within elementary schools in Hicksville including five placements at two parochial schools. One business student has been placed in the Barclay Bank in Great Neck. "It has given me the opportunity to know how to work with children even if I decide to not go into teaching," said Kristin Saeyd on her placement.

The following students are in the 1991-92 internship program:

The district is hoping that additional local businesses would be willing to take on student interns. Businesses interested in accepting interns for afternoon hours on a non-paying basis should contact Ms. Galland at 933-6500, or the high school guidance department at 933-6666.

Clue in at Library

As part of its Computer Literacy Use and Education (CLUE) program, the Hicksville Public Library will be offering free computer classes and programs for adults and children. Registration for children's events will be October 7 from 10:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m. in the Children's Department. On October 10, registration for the fall session of the library's adult computer classes will take place from 6:30 - 8:00 p.m. These evening classes include courses in the popular WordPerfect wordprocessing program and introductory instruction on the library's IBM-compatible and Macintosh computers.

In the Children's Room, Debbie Smiloff, Librarian, will be demonstrating educational software to parents and children from Pre-School age to sixth grade. Since October was designated as national Computer Learning Month by the Computer Learning Foundation, the Children's Department will sponsor contests and special giveaways, aimed at promoting computer usage and educational software.

The Computer Learning Foundation, a group of educational and corporate sponsors such as Del Monte Foods USA and the American Federation of Teachers, has sponsored Computer Learning Month with schools and non-profit organizations for the past five years. This year, the Hicksville Public Library will be among its participants.

The computers in the children's room are very popular. Since the variety of age levels and subject areas of educational software is extensive, Computer Learning Month will help the children explore the diversity of programs. In a society which is becoming increasingly technology-oriented, computer literacy is important for children and will open doors for them in the future.

The Hicksville Library is

COLLEGE PREPARATORY
NURSERY - GRADE 12

How early should you start preparing your child to succeed in a top college or university?

At Portledge's Nursery School - Program we begin at age 3 by surrounding children with a friendly pre-scholastic environment. By first grade, our average student is anything but average. They're computer literate and learning foreign languages.

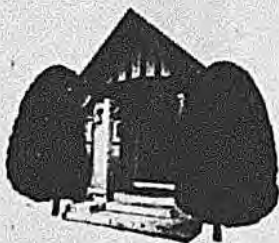

Portledge Middle School students are guided to maturity through a program which is both academically comprehensive and socially broadening. Each student is prepared to excel in the rigorous college preparatory program of Portledge's Upper School. Here, we shape the critical thinking skills and work habits that have resulted in the successful placement of our graduates at many fine colleges and universities. A superb faculty committed to personal attention, small classes, a very strong athletic program that's what you and your family will discover at Portledge. If the top schools, the best education, the best chance for success are what you want for your children, then you want to know more about Portledge. Write or call us today at (516) 671-1475 for our complete course listing, tuition schedule and financial aid information.

Chamber Music At Jericho Library

Minnewaska Chamber Music Society

The Minnewaska Chamber Music Society, an ensemble devoted to exploring a diverse repertory of instrumental music, will perform at the Jericho Public Library, on Sunday, October 6, at 3 p. m., according to Oyster Bay Town Councilman Douglas J. Hynes.

The library is located at 1 Merry Lane in Jericho.

"The Minnewaska Chamber Music Society, which will be performing an evening of 'Classics to Jazz,' comprises pianist/conductor Judith Alstadter, flutist Laura Gustavsen, double bassist Lynn Milano and drummer Jim Pirone," Councilman Hynes said. "The ensemble has consistently earned critical acclaim for its elegant performances, precise arrangements and adventurous programming."

The members of the Minnewaska Chamber Music Society have studied at some of the finest music schools and have performed across the nation. "Each is an accomplished musician, but together they produce a very special sound," said Councilman Hynes. "Audiences can expect them to exhibit their usual focused and disciplined style, executed with feeling and consistency."

Councilman Hynes noted that the "Distinguished Artists Concerts" series is being sponsored by the Cultural and Performing Arts (CAPA) Division of the Town's Dept. of Community and Youth Services and is being offered free to residents of the Town of Oyster Bay.

Sweeping Changes Proposed

Superintendent Mugavero has directed High School Principal Richard Hogan to look into the possibility of instituting Academic Resource Rooms in major subject areas. This program would allow seniors "time out" of study hall, he said, and give them an opportunity for individualized and independent study.

Mr. Mugavero also directed Mr. Hogan to draft a Substitute Enrichment Program, wherein the high school could provide for the needs of students whose teachers will be away from the classroom for a short period of time, as one or two days.

The district will be investigating a Dropout Identification Program. Mr. Mugavero said such a program is "totally state aidable."

Mr. Mugavero is also seeking to improve the high school Drama Arts Program, and he has requested Assistant Superintendent Couillard review the entire Driver Education Program with a view toward serving more students at a lower cost.

The Superintendent said that he is doing a total review of the district's administrative structure. His intent centers on consolidation and cost cutting, and he will deliver a report to the public at the January Board meeting.

And finally, as a direct result of the link between declining SAT verbal scores and the lack of student writing skills, Mr. Mugavero has implemented an increase in student writing in course work and in creative assignments. He has given teachers a directive to cut down on the amount of short answer tests and initiate more essay-type questions.

Residents responded to these recommendations with questions of their own. Gene Duodorian cautioned that Mr. Mugavero's budget committee may have "99 people too many," and said that the board should give the Superintendent a budget figure which he cannot go beyond.

Joan Kani challenged the inclusion of elementary students on the budget committee. She said, "Finances are not a child's problem and they should never be a child's problem." Mr. Mugavero replied that children have important input regarding the equipment they use in their building, what programs interest them, and how in general to improve their building.

Jay Schwartz questioned the status of the elementary schools in the Superintendent's study of a move of the 6th grade to the middle school. "We have not heard any discussion of that yet," Mr. Schwartz pointed out. To which Mr. Mugavero responded, "School closings will be on a future agenda."

The Board took action on the Superintendent's proposed Anti-Vandalism Student Incentive Program. It was estimated that the district spends $150,000 yearly in vandalism repair. A building cost estimate breakdown was devised assigning $50,000 to the high school, $30,000 to the middle school, and $10,000 to each elementary school. Under the anti-vandalism plan, the school would be allotted 10% of the estimated funds ($5,000 to the high school, $3,000 to the middle school, and $1,000 per elementary building). During the course of the school year, when vandalism occurs, 90% of the repair funds will come from the district and 10% will be charged to the individual school.

The program is designed to encourage student involvement in stopping vandalism. The incentive comes at the end of the year when 25% of the balance left in the building funds would be made available to the student body for a special project that they would designate.

The Board approved the anti-vandalism program by a 6-to-1 vote, but also voted to up the percentage of remaining funds to be returned to students to 75% of the balance at the end of the year.

In his dissenting vote, trustee James Martillo said that the program asks students to police their peers. He felt that a majority of the vandalism is not done by elementary students, and the program may put undue pressure on the younger students. He had suggested implementing the program as a pilot in the senior high and middle school, and allowing the students to, in turn, initiate the program at the elementary level.

Board President Carole Wolf described the program as "good leadership training" and an exercise which would "build character."

In other business, the Board voted to apply to the State for Excellence in Teaching (EIT) Funds for the 1991-92 school year. President Wolf explained that at the time of the settlement of the teachers' current contract, a cooperative agreement between the district and the teachers union earmarked all accumulated EIT funds and all funds received from the State during the life of the contract be placed in the district's general fund as revenue. Since the 1991-92 school year is the last year of this contract, the funds to be received from the State this year would go to the general fund of the district.

The Board also approved a Flu Inoculation Vaccination Program for senior citizens. The program will be sponsored by the district on November 14 at the VFW Hall on Broadway. More details will be forthcoming in the Mid-Island Times as the date approaches.

Several high school students opposed the imposition of the new "no hats" ruling in their building. The Superintendent explained that hats often have different "connotations and denotations" in different schools, sometimes portraying allegiance to a club or faction, and have no place in the school setting. He added that they are often distracting to other students and are sometimes pulled down and used to "tune out" the instruction process. Mr. Mugavero noted that hats are totally outlawed by New York State and that he does not feel that they are appropriate.

The next regular meeting of the Board will be on Wednesday, October 23 at 8 p.m.

Budget Committee Applications

The Hicksville Public School District has announced that it is accepting applications from area residents, parents, teachers, students and administrators to serve on the 1992-93 Proposed Budget Lay Committee. Interested persons must submit a biographical sketch and background information to an area building principal by October 10.

The building principal will select nine persons to serve on a building-level committee. Each committee will be balanced equally - no more than ten members with the building principal to serve as chairperson.

The names of two members will be submitted from each Building Budget Lay Committee to the Superintendent of Schools in order that he may select one person to serve on the District-Wide Budget Lay Committee.

The District Budget Lay Committee will be comprised of one member from each building. Nine members will also be chosen by the Superintendent after submissions of biographical sketch and resume. These must be submitted to the Superintendent's Office by October 10.

The committee will be headed by the Business Office and all aspects of the 1992-93 budget will be reviewed. Meetings are expected to be held on a weekly basis after regular business hours.

The final meeting of the District Budget Committee will be chaired by the Superintendent and the proposed budget is expected to be finalized. The proposed Annual Budget Meeting will be held on April 29, 1992 at 8 p.m. All members of the Building-Level Budget Committee and District-Wide Budget Committee are urged to attend. The Board of Education will hold their regular meeting on April 30, 1992, with the recommendation to adopt the 1992-93 proposed budget on the agenda.

Adopt-A-Pet Day October 12

Puppies and kittens, as well as older dogs and cats, will all be available for adoption at the Adopt-A-Pet Day scheduled for Saturday, October 12, at the Town of Oyster Bay Animal Shelter, according to Town Councilman Ann R. Ocker.

The Pioneers for Animal Welfare Society (PAWS) will host the special adoption day at the Shelter, 150 Miller Place, Syosset, between 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. "Everyone who adopts will receive a free collar and leash for their pet," Councilwoman Ocker stated. "Adopters will also receive a special dog or cat 'goody' bag with items such as shampoo, cookies, toys, food samples and vitamins. In addition, adopters will be eligible to enter a drawing for a stuffed animal."

The Councilwoman noted that there is a $2 adoption fee plus a license fee of $7.50 for a dog. There is no charge for a cat.

"This is the second Adopt-A-Pet Day since the new Animal Shelter opened in February," Councilwoman Ocker commented. "So why not come down, see our state-of-the-art Shelter and maybe go home with a new friend."

For further information, contact the Animal Shelter at 921-7731.

Flu Immunization Program For Seniors

The Hicksville Public School District is offering free flu immunizations for area residents age 60 and over, or a spouse of an area resident age 60 and over, in Hicksville on November 14.

Interested seniors must obtain a registration form at the Hicksville Public School District Administration Building, the Hicksville Public Library or the Hicksville Gregory Museum during regular business hours. Forms must be completed and returned to one of these three locations No Later Than Friday, October 18.

Vaccinations will be given on Thursday, November 14. Additional information and location (a handicapped accessible site) will appear on your registration form.

Vaccinations will be administered between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. We ask that you consider choosing an afternoon hour in order for you to avoid an anticipated morning rush.

A consent form will be given to each participant when they come for their immunizations. These forms must be completed by each participant prior to receiving a vaccination.

Vaccinations will be administered by a licensed professional with a physician on location.

The School District hopes that it will be able to accommodate all of our participating senior citizens in this endeavor.

Persons interested in serving as volunteers for this program are needed. If you have the time and are willing to spend a few hours with us, please contact the Hicksville Public School District Community Relations Officer at 933-6589.

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Should colleges give up on high level sports teams and concentrate on educational programs?

Input Callers Do Not Favor Gays In Service

Most callers to Input do not think that Gays should be in military service in answer to this question: "Do you think that Gays should be excluded from the military service?" Here are some of the answers:

DEFINITE YES

My answer is a definite yes. If this were to be a precedent of establishing gays in the military we would get the activists who would create a very difficult situation for the straight people in the service. N.N.

ON THEIR OWN

If gays want to join something they can join Queer Nation. Then they can march during their parades. But to join the military services and march with men, never. F.W.

NOT EXCLUDED

Of course gays should not be excluded from military service. How could a person's sexual preference have any effect on whether he or she would make a good soldier? I've no doubt that quite a few military heroes were in fact gay but of necessity had to keep the fact a secret. The military should not condone homophobia. H.F.B.

KEEP THEM OUT

Having seen the outrageous overbearing methods of gays in civilian life I do not want to see them get into the military service. They will disrupt our troops with their oddball ways and we may end up losing in any effort we have with our military. Keep the army and military forces something we can be proud of. J.G.

NOT FOR GAYS

The problem with gays in the service is that they will be disruptive. They will want to practice their ways. We have seen that in civilian life they are disruptive and not compatible with other people. Our military services have a job to do and they are not places for social misfits. K.G.

NO SPECIAL ASSIGNMENTS

I think that gays can be in the armed forces. They will have to be a part of the entire organization and it is possible that they can do this. If they are in the service they should not expect any special assignments and they should not expect that the men in the forces will give them special sexual license. Since most gays say that this is not what they want then they should be allowed in and sexual preference should not be a factor. H.G.

IN OWN GROUPS

I do not like to think that gays will be allowed in the armed forces. When battle comes it is a raw and frightening experience. It is a time when you want to have full confidence in your buddy and if there is a wide gulf it will add to the tensions of war and may even be a factor in losing a war. If the gays are in at all they should be in their own battalion and not mingled in the barracks with other men. K.G.

CREATE INCIDENTS

I do not think that gays in the military forces have to be a special problem. They would go their way sexually and the other men would go theirs. There is a possibility that they will create incidents and allow homosexual practices to get in the way of barracks life. If so it could mean that disruptions and other problems would occur. Perhaps they should have their own groups and join in as separate companies. N.F.

BAD NEWS

I used to be of the opinion that gays should be simply given their rights as citizens but I have not been encouraged by what has happened. Gays are marching and pushing to change the world to their ideas. The fact is that there are only two sexes. A cursory study of anatomy will confirm that. The fact that gays have changed the ideas of sexual practices does not make the practices natural. In other words they are entitled to all the rights of citizens but they can't make me believe that they are just normal people. In the army they would be as much a problem as other non-conformists. It would not work to the general morale of the troops and would be bad news. K.D.

NOT IN COMBAT

Unless one has a frequent exposure to gays, it is difficult to answer this week's "Question". I've had only one real exposure to people of this type and, quite honestly, it did not tend to categorize them as part of a class but rather as two masculine people who lived together in perfect harmony and had no trouble socializing with normal people both male and female. I think that the problem in this area is that a majority of gays tend to act in such a way as to establish a pattern of appearance and behavior which definitely identifies them as individuals and groups completely dissimilar to the rank and file of their associates. They attract special attention from the standpoint of their associates. They attract special attention from the standpoint of looks and behavior at all times resulting in automatic discrimination to the point where it would weaken the team spirit of the majority of their associates. In an area where instant decisions are often a matter of life or death, any reservation about your "buddy" at such a moment may affect the wisdom and result of such a decision. We have all seen photographs of gays in parades and other public places and generally speaking the impression is not a favorable one. And naturally, I am speaking of my own personal reaction although I gather that I am not alone. Quite honestly, I believe that in the military service, gays should not be excluded but should not be assigned to positions of offense or defense in the line of battle. This would not exclude them from many of the non-military functions away from the "front" where their talents could be employed with maximum effectiveness without a detriment to efficiency in the field of battle. ## A Little Of Germany On L.I.

By Dorothy Rettberg Brown

In November, 1922 we moved to Hicksville, L.I. from Ridgewood, Brooklyn. In April 1923, the builder broke ground for my uncle's home across the street from us. We watched with anticipation for the completion of the house. My uncle, aunt and four cousins moved in late June after school was finished.

We had so much fun that summer becoming farmers and watching the building of the new house three doors down from my uncle's. This house was for his older sister whom we called Tante Lizzie. When the house was completed in September, she moved in. My mother referred to her as a "Widow-woman". She had two grown daughters who commuted to New York City.

Even though Tante Lizzie was no relative of mine, I considered her my bona-fide aunt and I loved her as much as if she were. When Tante Lizzie became settled in her new home, she asked our parents if she could borrow my brother, Arthur and cousin, Bob and their wagons for the following Saturday morning. Cousin Alice and I were nosy and curious girls who had to be a part of everything that was going on. When the time came for their departure, we asked Tante Lizzie if we could go with her too. When she said "yes", Alice and I positioned ourselves on each side of her and we held tightly to her hands. The procession started with Arthur and Bob and their wagons followed by Tante Lizzie, Alice and me. She told us we were going to the Post Office.

On our arrival at the postal building, Tante Lizzie gave the clerk a postcard and he, in turn, presented our aunt with two large boxes. One package he placed in Arthur's wagon and the other in Bob's. Tante Lizzie thanked the man and we proceeded home. I was curious to know what was in the packages but I did not dare ask.

When we arrived at Tante Lizzie's house, we left the wagons at the front door and went home for lunch. Later in the afternoon when my father and uncle arrived home from work, they carried the packages into her dining room and placed them on her table. They opened them up and I was surprised to find out they contained white and colored materials. My dad said, "Lizzie, that material will make beautiful ties."

I couldn't wait for her to get started on her sewing but I did not want to pester her. She gave all of us a glass of lemonade and cookies. When the men and boys left, she asked Alice and me if we would like to learn how to make ties. We sat quietly in her high back dining room chairs intrigued as we watched her work. She told us the white material was the lining and the colored material the tie. They were pre-cut and she laid first the colored material and then the white on the table. She held up the piece of cardboard that was the shape of the tie. She put this in the center and pulled the lining and material over the cardboard. She said this made it easier for her to do the work. She sewed the lining and tie together with tiny stitches. When she finished, she pulled out the cardboard and she had a beautiful silk tie. She told us before she returned them to the manufacturer, she would impress them and place them between tissue paper.

Many days after school, Alice and I would knock on Tante Lizzie's door and ask her if we could watch her work. If she happened to be sewing on her ties, she happily welcomed us into her home. As she worked, she'd tell us about her growing-up years in Brooklyn.

One afternoon, her subject was about the band shells in the parks where her family and she would go for concerts. She said they all enjoyed the marches and beautiful German music. They were taken to the concerts when they were little children so they learned to appreciate the music at a young age.

Another day, she told us about her husband's horse-drawn trolleys which had seats across the width of the vehicle. They would ride for many hours all around Brooklyn. The afternoon ended with their stopping at the German Beer Garden. Children were allowed to accompany adults into these places. As their parents had a few beers with their friends, the children sat quietly at the tables drinking root beer and eating hard-boiled eggs and pretzels. They sang along with the people when they learned the bar songs.

Still another time, she told us about her husband whom she met at one of the beer gardens. He loved to sing and dance and they had so much fun together. Their marriage took place on a Saturday afternoon in her church. After the ceremony, the bridal couple, their parents and their attendants went to Luchow's, a famous German restaurant on 14th St., New York City. After dinner, they all went to a musical at the Opera House. When her husband died, she was very unhappy but she had two little girls to bring up so she began making ties. That way, she could be at home for them when they returned from school.

Tante Lizzie loved to sing her songs for us. One afternoon she got so carried away as she sang, she even danced around the table.

When she finished her dance, she plunged into her chair and she put her hand on her chest. I was frightened because she had a funny look on her face. I ran over to her and said, "Tante Lizzie, are you all right?" She said nothing for a few seconds, then she smiled and patted my hand as she said, "I'm okay, Dorothy". She never danced for us again but she did teach us how to sing the German songs. The first one she taught us was, "Ein Prosit, Ein Prosit der Gemutlichkeit", the toasting song. When we learned the correct pronunciation, we'd sing it before we drank our lemonade. When we mastered that song, she taught us, "Ach Du Lieber Augustine" and the "Lichtensteiner Polka".

For the Christmas season, she taught us "O Tannenbaum", the Christmas Tree. She told us that we should always be proud of our German heritage and as people like the German, Irish, Polish, Swedes, etc. came to America, they brought their customs with them. It was the Germans who brought the ritual of the Christmas tree, wreaths, sending Christmas cards, singing hymns and making special meals for the holidays. For Easter, they started using bunnies and making hard-boiled colored eggs.

When the first batch of ties were finished, we watched as Tante Lizzie packed them carefully within tissue paper and placed them in the shipping box to be sent back to the manufacturers. We helped by putting our fingers on the string which was tied around the package. The following Saturday, we were in the procession to and from the Post Office.

When she received her wages, she had a special treat for Arthur, Bob, Alice and me. As well as the goodies, she served in her house, there was special chocolates to take home.

One day she told us about the Brooklyn Bridge and how her parents and their friends watched the progress of the building of this bridge. It was such an important fete in their lives and it took fourteen years to build. It was a suspension bridge hanging from wire ropes. She drew us a picture so we would understand. On May 24, 1883, it was completed and she was a little girl at that time. She told us there was a big celebration at the dedication and there were fireworks at night.

The next day, people were allowed to walk across the bridge. It cost one cent. (My husband, Joe, lived in Greenpoint and he told me many Sundays his family crossed the bridge to Manhattan. Joe and his brothers and sisters skated or rode their bikes as their mother and father pushed the baby carriage. Joe was one of eight so he said there was always a baby in the house while he was growing up.)

In November, she told us about Armistice Day, the ending of World War I. When the war started, the German-Americans were torn between their new homeland and their country of birth. They had anti-war rallies all over the U.S. but many young German men were inducted into the service and had to fight against their homeland. During the war, many people were treated mean because they were German. My dad and uncle were lucky. When the war ended, they were inducting men with one child. Both of them had two children and they did not have to go.

One afternoon, she made us hungry as she related the story of the frankfurter and the hamburger. The frankfurter was brought over from Frankfurt and chopped beef came from the city of Hamburg. The first hamburger was born at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904 when a vendor ran out of plates and put the meat on a bun. The first hot dog was believed to have been started in Coney Island, New York. The Germans also brought sauerkraut to this country. A German by the name of Henry John Heinz invented ketchup and relishes of many types. Still another German, Richard Hellmann began selling something we loved to put on our sandwiches, mayonnaise.

Other Germans were responsible for the development of the candy industry. We loved when Tante Lizzie told us about all these goodies. Milton Hershey made the famous chocolate bar, Leo Hirschfield, the Tootsie Roll, Henry Heide, the Jujubes and F.W. Rueckheim, Crakerjacks, all of which were our favorites. Harry Burt covered ice cream with chocolate, inserted a stick in it and the Good Humor Bar came into being.

It was at a Ratskeller or delicatessen where you could purchase and eat their famous sausages like the bockwurst, bratwurst, knackwurst, knockwurst, and weisswurst. You could also purchase German potato salad, pumpernickel bread and herring. (When we had unexpected company, my mother used to send us to the German delicatessen on Broadway, Hicksville for these delicacies for her guests. We always made the trip on our bicycles. We wanted to get home as quickly as possible so we wouldn't miss out on all the fun and singing.)

READER RATINGS

Q. Our son was married in Ireland and is bringing his bride home two months after the wedding. Can we give them their wedding reception then? They didn't really have one in Ireland, and we also were kind of hoping they might receive some wedding gifts if we give them their reception.

A. It's not a wedding reception two months after the ceremony. However, it will serve as a substitute one, as far as your friends are concerned. Send out invitations to a reception, without mentioning the word "wedding" and write, "In honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Doe" either in the upper left corner of the invitation or in the body of the text, right under the word "Reception" or "Cocktail Party."

Your friends will realize you are giving a party to introduce the new bride, and almost everyone who attends will send the couple a present, either before the party or after.

Q. I don't cut meat very well, so my mother said, I could ask you if it's all right to cut up the whole piece of meat on my plate into little pieces all at once, so I don't have to worry about it again.

A. If you are over the age of 10, and if you are not disabled, you should be able to cut your meat — piece by piece as you eat it — without too much difficulty.

I remember when we were growing up, one of my brothers had a very hard time cutting his meat. My parents were very patient — but firm, too. Mother kept saying, "You learned how to roller skate, didn't you? You learned how to ride your bike, didn't you? Remember how hard those things were to learn? Well, you're going to learn how to cut your meat, too, in the very same way you learned those other things. You're going to learn it by keeping after it, by practicing it."

For a while, my mother had him cutting up bits of meat for every member of the family, which was so tiresome, embarrassing and tedious for him, he learned how to cut his meat perfectly! So go to it.

Q. When ladies already seated at a luncheon table are introduced to each other, do they shake hands, seated, when may they conveniently do so? T.G.

A. No, they bow. In this country, there is very little shaking hands between women, although the hostess always shakes hands with her guests, male and female, and anyone acting the role of hostess, say a teacher at the school, a woman representative of a firm being visited by outsiders - would rise and shake hands with the visitors, women as well as men.

Q. There was a receiving line, with the hostess first in the line, and our representative next to her. As the guests entered I noticed that there was some confusion as to who should be greeted first - the hostess or the representative next to her. What is the rule when the host holds such a prominent position?

A. The rule is always the same. One greets first the person first in line, who is the hostess or the acting hostess, always shaking hands. Occasionally there is a line made up only of men, and in this case the first man encountered is the one one greets first. As a matter of fact, very often the most important guest, for whom the reception is given, is placed in the middle of the line.

Wine Talk

By Richard Najlev

Warm, velvety and softly fruity, a fine Merlot is like money in the romance bank. This is especially true if you pronounce the name not as Californians do (MUR-low) but as the rest of the world does (mair-LOW). Then casually drop the fact that the word is Bordeaux patois means "little blackbird." You are very, very smooth.

With some luck and foresight the wine will be smooth also. Merlot is usually presented in wine textbooks as the friendlier little brother of Cabernet Sauvignon — a red wine similar in style, but fruitier, less astringent and easier to drink when young.

In practice, Merlot is bottled in a wide range of styles. In the Bordeaux regions of St. Emilion and Pomerol, where Merlot predominates in the blend, the wines can be even more mouth-searing when young than the Cabernet Sauvignon-dominated reds of the Medoc peninsula. In California, where Merlot has found a second home, it can be very supple and soft or nearly indistinguishable from youthful Cabernet.

Except for one thing: Merlot has moved ahead of Cabernet on the price tag. The wine's price snobbery is a function of both history and heat. Merlots are hot because consumers have woken up to their virtues and because they offer a delicious alternative in the Cabernet/Chardonnay universe.

Thanks to history, however, Merlots are in somewhat short supply. Merlot has typically been used in California (as in Bordeaux's Medoc) primarily as a junior partner in a blend with Cabernet Sauvignon. There wasn't a great deal needed, and there wasn't much planted. Over the 1980s, a go-go decade for Cabernet Sauvignon, the bearing acreage of Merlot grapes (about 1/10 that of Cabernet) scarcely showed a net increase until 1989.

As more wineries began to feature Merlot as a star player in its own right and consumers elevated it to a mini-trend, the low supply has pushed prices upward. Though there are no Merlots I can think of in the $50-plus bracket of today's op-of-the-line Cabernets, there aren't nearly as many Merlots as Cabernets at the $10 and under level.

They may not be cheap, but there are some very tasty (and relationship-enhancing) Merlots in the stores right now. A recent sampling turned up these bottles:

Napa Valley produced some surprisingly big and tight Merlots in 1988, a fair-to-middling vintage that is commonly available now. The best I've tasted is the Clos du Val 1988, Stags Leap District, from an area on the eastern side of the valley famous for its Merlots. The Clos du Val is quite rich and alcoholic, but carries it off with grace style. It has a generous, almost "chewy" texture and loads of black cherry, earth and chocolate notes.

If Your Restaurant is First Rate, We have a message for you.

Each week Litmor Newspapers presents a select dining guide called Reader Ratings to its readers. The guide presents the messages of outstanding restaurants in this area and it also is a forum for readers to tell other readers about why they like certain restaurants.

Reader Ratings, although it is read by up to 100,000 readers is an inexpensive way to meet the public and have the public meet you. Throughout many years, Reader Ratings has helped build loyal followings for some of the best restaurants in the area.

If your restaurant qualifies as a leader in the area we want to talk to you about being included in our guide. The cost is nominal and the results can be great.

READER RATINGS

Q. When are the group wedding photographs supposed to be taken?
A. It is always hard to get everyone there at the same time! Someone is always missing, and by the time that person reappears, someone else has drifted off.

The parents of the bride should be adamant that everyone in the wedding party go to the spot indicated by the photographer the minute they reach the reception after the church or synagogue services are over (ahead of the reception wedding guests).

There are a few minutes of peace at this moment in the proceedings. Grab them to get those precious photographs taken!

Q. Not long ago I attended a buffet luncheon at a fine dining spot. Crab legs were served and looked tempting, but I passed them up because I was not really certain how to eat them.

A. Next time be more adventurous! Crab legs are not only delicious, but like most sea foods they are highly nutritious and low in cholesterol and calories.

As far as eating crab legs, there is usually no problem since any good restaurant serving them would provide its patrons with nutcrackers.

Where Our Readers Have The Last Word

This newspaper, and the seven other weekly newspapers associated with it, publishes the last word in restaurant guides and a part of many prominent selected restaurants in this area. While many of them have been and by the press, and have great food, our readers will have the last word through "Reader Ratings."

Through a special 24 hour phone system, readers will be asked to call in their assessment of each restaurant they visit. Consensus ratings (good or bad) will be published as a continuing part of the Guide.

In addition they can make suggestions, compliments or criticisms through the open phone line and messages will be sent through to the restaurant management.

KITCHEN HINTS

Brown sugar has turned hard

Can it be redeemed?

Yes, and here's how:

1. Place a slice of apple in the brown sugar bag and seal well.
2. Put aside for a day; extra half-day if it was rock-hard.
3. Moisture from the apple slowly penetrated the hard whitened sugar crystals and turned them dark and soft.

READER RATINGS

Q. I'm a junior in college, and so far haven't yet had the chance (or maybe it's the courage) to ask a girl out on a date. Basically, I'm very shy with girls and don't know how to talk to them. I go out with them in groups with guys in my dorm, but I need to know what to say to one female when I'm alone with her.

What I'm afraid of are big lulls in the conversation when I could conveniently disappear down into a crevice in the earth.

A. When you don't know what to say to a girl, pay her a compliment. I promise you, it works. Even if she's too shy to give you a snappy reply, your saying something nice will go over big. Practice beforehand. Open a file of compliments in that computerized brain of yours.

Then, when you have some talk-less moments with her, go to that file, select an appropriate compliment and come out with it, whether it's a comment on her good looks, personality, ability or intelligence.

For example, "You look really good tonight." — "I watched you in the class play the other night. You were terrific." — "You know something, you have very pretty eyes." — "I really like to dance with you. You're a good dancer." — "I like the way you laugh. It's a nice laugh." — "That's a really neat dress you're wearing." — "You give good answers in history class. Unlike a lot of the nerds in our class, when you open your mouth, you really have something to say." — "Did you know that you have a great sense of humor?"

Great gravy

Some things your microwave just can't do — like bake a crusty croissant. But for other purposes — like making a smooth, perfect gravy — it's just right.

Microwaved gravies don't scorch or burn and don't require constant attention like they can when cooked on the stovetop. It's not necessary to stir constantly to prevent lumps; just stir occasionally, using a wire whisk to scoop cooked outer portions to inside, inner portions out. (A wire whisk will help blend ingredients smoothly.)

Most conventional recipes can easily be converted for the microwave. The important thing to remember is that you'll probably need to add a bit more thickening agent (flour or cornstarch) to the recipe. This is because microwaved gravy won't reduce and thicken, by evaporation as it would on the stovetop.

Some gravies can even be microwaved right in the serving container — in a glass measuring cup or a microwave-safe gravy boat — which means less cleanup for you.

To make a basic gravy with meat drippings, place ½ cup all-purpose flour in a 4-cup glass measure. Whisk in 1 cup chicken or beef broth until smooth. Add ½ cup meat drippings (add melted butter, if necessary, to make ½ cup); whisk until smooth and microwave 4 to 6 minutes, or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring with whisk halfway through cooking time. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Yields about 1½ cups.

Gravy adds a rich flavor to many foods, and it can also add visual appeal to non-browned microwaved meats. To make brown gravy more brown, simply add a few drops of brown bouquet sauce to finished gravy.

Canned gravies can be helpful when you're short on time; simply microwave in a 2-cup glass measure until heated through. Creamy condensed soups can also make a good base for a quick gravy. Add other ingredients like pan drippings, wine, cream, herbs or chopped cooked meat to condensed soup for variety.

A savory gravy can be the perfect way to dress up leftovers. Or use gravy over open-faced sandwiches, mashed potatoes, rice, vegetable dishes, casseroles or sliced meats.

Refrigerate unused portions of cooked gravy promptly and use within 1 or 2 days.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.

MICRO-TIP OF THE WEEK:

Gravy can be reheated right in the gravy boat; 1 cup of room temperature gravy will heat, covered, at MEDIUM-HIGH (70 percent power) in about 1 to 2 minutes. If refrigerated, double the time.

LIGHT 'N' EASY GRAVY

1 teaspoon chicken or beef bouillon granules
½ cup hot water
1 tablespoon white wine
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon cornstarch
½ cup milk
¼ teaspoon onion powder
Dash ground white or black pepper

Yields about 1 cup.

Preparation time: 5 minutes.

Cooking time: 1½ to 3 minutes.

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

Combine chicken bouillon granules and hot water in a 4-cup glass measure; stir to dissolve granules. Add wine. Microwave 30 to 60 seconds, or until mixture boils.

Combine flour and cornstarch in a small bowl. Add a small amount of milk and stir to make a smooth paste. Gradually blend in remaining milk. Add milk mixture to hot broth, then stir in onion powder and pepper.

Microwave 1 to 2 minutes longer, or until gravy boils and thickens.

MUSHROOM GRAVY

¼ pound mushrooms
¼ cup diced onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon chicken or beef bouillon granules
½ cup warm water
¼ teaspoon dried parsley flakes
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup milk or half-and-half

Yields about 1 cup.

Preparation time: 10 minutes.

Cooking time: 9 to 14 minutes.

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power); MEDIUM (50 percent power).

Rinse mushrooms, pat dry, and slice. Place in a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole with onion and butter or margarine. Cover and microwave at HIGH setting 2 to 3 minutes, or until mushrooms and onion are tender. Sprinkle with flour and stir to blend.

Dissolve cornstarch and bouillon granules in water and add gradually to mushroom mixture, stirring constantly. Stir in parsley flakes and pepper. Microwave at HIGH setting 4 to 6 minutes, or until mixture bubbles and thickens.

Gradually blend in milk or half-and-half. Microwave at MEDIUM setting 3 to 5 minutes longer, stirring twice, until gravy thickens to desired consistency. Let stand, uncovered, several minutes before serving.

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Dr. Abraham: I'm 15 and a freshman in high school, and this boy is a junior. I like him very much, and we've been doing things for the past three weeks.

Just recently we had sexual intercourse. I know I'm too young, but I really think I love him.

I don't think he likes me at all. We're both popular, and I know for a fact I wasn't one of his firsts.

I'm really scared that because he doesn't like me, I'm going to get a bad reputation if we stop talking. But I don't know what to say to him.

Please help me. I have to talk to him soon. — Courtney

Courtney: You can tell him that although you are very fond of him, you realize that he may not feel the same way toward you. You can also say to him that it was all a mistake, you are sorry it happened and it won't happen again. You can ask him not to mention that intimate relationship to anyone, even though you may not be sure he will follow your suggestion.

If he already has talked to others about you, you can either stay away from him or develop a different kind of relationship with him (as difficult as that may be), not talk to anyone else about your experience and spend more time with people you like and trust.

You can also make a promise to yourself that you have learned something important from all this.

It's not the "end of the world," Courtney. It's just the end of something unpleasant that you can try to put behind you.

Dr. Abraham: I always hear from my friends how awful their brothers are to them, sometimes, even outright mean.

Maybe I'm weird, but I have one who is actually my best friend. I can talk to him about anything, and so can be with me. In fact, I don't remember when we ever had an argument. Sure, we disagree about a lot of things, but we don't get disagreeable over them. This is his first year away from home at college, and I really miss him very much.

Do you think there is something strange about us? — Gloria.

Gloria: Weird? Strange? I think more accurate words would be "lucky" or "fortunate."

It really isn't so unusual for brothers and sisters to get along well together. Although it doesn't happen in all families, it does in many of them.

I hope that letters and perhaps an occasional phone call will keep the two of you in close touch. Such relationships are too precious to let time and distance threaten them.

You also included a sound bit of advice in your letter for others to consider — being able to disagree without being disagreeable. Such a good thought.

Dr. Abraham: I'm a 16-year-old boy who just broke up with my girlfriend (she is 15). We love each other very much. We broke up because her parents were very concerned about the difference in our religions. Her parents decided that she should go out with people from her own religion.

What does religion have to do with going out with girls? Please try to help me. I need it very badly. — Confused.

Confused: Because parents often look ahead, they may worry about some teen-age relationships continuing beyond the teen years. Then it may become difficult to end them if for one reason or another it seems necessary to do so. If two religions are involved, some parents see that, right or wrong, as a possible problem that may bring unhappiness.

What I've summarized here is something two young people may have to cope with. It often seems unreasonable to them, but perhaps not to their parents.

You might consider discussing this matter with your mother and dad. She could do the same with hers. Then after that, even though you have already broken up, you might think about talking over the matter with each other and see whether your relationship could possibly continue or whether it has too many obstacles.

I hope you will write again and tell me how things are going. I am eager to hear from you.

Celebrate autumn with taste of game birds

By Jan Stephenson

Ready. Aim. Clean out your freezer! It's time to make room for the special delicacy of the season — wild game.

Whether you're a hunter or not, you can still enjoy the flavor of a well-cooked pheasant, the buttery taste of quail, or even plan on a holiday goose.

As well as having a special flavor, wild game birds are healthier than farm-raised birds. The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that wild duck has only 5 grams of fat per serving, compared with 25 grams for domestic duck. Pheasant and quail are similar in fat content to chicken.

The lower fat content also means that you should cook wild game birds either in a liquid or fat covering, such as bacon, or use a cooking bag to keep the meat moist.

Robert Bauer, manager of propagation at the Illinois Department of Conservation, reminds hunters that, for safety's sake, the birds should be field dressed right away, cutting open the stomach cavity to remove the entrails.

"Most hunters stuff the body cavity with dry grass to cool the body temperature," Bauer said. Grass can also be used to clean out the bird.

"If a bird does not act normal and has a lackluster appearance, I would not take it home to eat. That bird is probably diseased or injured," Bauer said. "Look for a bird that flushes well, and has bright eyes and a good appearance."

Bauer estimated that 75 percent of all the game birds harvested each year are young. The age of a wild bird is important: A younger bird will be tender enough to broil or saute, while an older bird will need to be stewed.

A good way to estimate the age of a bird is to grab the rear tip of the breastbone (not the backbone). If it is flexible, the bird is young. If it is brittle, plan to stew the bird. On pheasant and quail, you can also tell the age of the bird by the length of its spurs.

Buck and Mike started hunting with their fathers and grandfathers when they were kids, and have continued to include hunting as a family event. "We take our dads and enjoy ourselves."

Mike said the flavor of wild game birds is so special he tries not to add much seasoning. "I like the basic. Salt and pepper, maybe some paprika or garlic powder. Game birds just don't need much seasoning. I wouldn't want to cover up the flavor of the bird."

Diners should watch out for lead shot left in the birds.

"My kids think it is a big thing to get the shot," Mike said, "so when we sit down to eat the kids just start looking for it."

What's the difference between farm-raised and wild?

"It's hard to describe, but there is a definite difference," said Mike. "For example, the meat is very rich and lean. Unlike farm-raised birds, the meat on a wild duck or goose is all dark meat. That makes a big difference when you start cooking them. You have to keep in mind that they are pretty dry to start out with. You have to add moisture when you cook them, or they will be inedible."

Because it is illegal for restaurants in some states to buy wild game from hunters, restaurants often purchase both wild game imported from other countries such as Scotland and farm-raised game birds.

Pheasants from the wild have a flavor reminiscent of chicken, but with something more. If the birds are wild, marinate them in liquor overnight to eliminate the heavy gamey flavor.

A popular dish is pheasant served with a brandy-orange sauce and chestnut dressing. This sauce is a reduction of brandy, with a base of orange juice and pheasant stock (made from the bones/carcase). If necessary, the pheasant stock could be replaced with chicken stock. The sauce could also be used over other wild game birds.

BRANDY-ORANGE SAUCE

- 1 cup brandy
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1 cup stock
- Salt, pepper, Worcestershire and Tabasco, to taste
- 1 tablespoon arrowroot or cornstarch
- 1 cup heavy cream or half-and-half
- ½ pound butter, room temperature, cut into tablespoon-size servings

Yields 4 servings.

Reduce the brandy over heat down to a tablespoon or so. Add orange juice and stock, and season with salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce and Tabasco. Stir in arrowroot or cornstarch to thicken.

Cream the sauce by stirring in the cream. Continue stirring until thickened. Once the sauce has returned to a low simmer, remove from heat. Add butter, one tablespoon at a time, and stir. Serve over pheasant.

This next glaze, like the brandy-orange sauce, uses a cordial for added flavor. You'll be surprised by the taste of Kahlua combined with the strong flavor of wild game birds.

KAHLUA GLAZE

- ½ cup apricot jam
- ½ cup Kahlua (or other coffee-flavored liquor)

Yields enough for two large geese or four smaller birds.

Strain jam through a sieve or smooth it in a food blender. Add Kahlua and mix well. Use it as your baste throughout. Make gravy as usual. Can be used for any game bird or turkey.

This is the type of dish that is easy to make, yet has an elegant touch. The sauce has a light, lemony flavor that works well with the heartier flavor of wild pheasant. One pheasant is usually enough to feed two people.

Wild pheasant often retains a few small feathers. These should be removed by hand, and if the flesh has any visible hairs, carefully pass the bird over a low flame and brush the singed hairs away.

PHEASANT IN ONION SAUCE

- 1 cleaned, ready-to-cook pheasant, about 2½ pounds
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 2 sprigs fresh thyme or ¼ teaspoon dry thyme
- 1 small bay leaf
- ¼ cup dry white wine
- ½ cup heavy cream
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice

Yields 1 to 2 servings.

Preheat oven to 425 F. Sprinkle cavity of pheasant with salt and pepper. Rub pheasant with oil. Sprinkle outside with salt and pepper. Put thyme and bay leaf inside and truss bird well.

Place pheasant in a roasting pan and roast in oven for 15 minutes on each side. Turn breast side up, scatter onion around it, and cook for another 15 minutes.

Remove pheasant from pan and keep it warm. Deglaze roasting pan with wine and reduce over medium-high heat by half. Remove bay leaf and thyme from inside pheasant and add them to sauce while reducing.

Add cream to sauce and reduce over medium heat. Add lemon juice and reduce sauce to ¼ cup. Strain. Adjust seasoning and pour over pheasant.

From Pierre Franey and Bryan Miller's "Cuisine Rapide" (Times Books).

If you do have an older goose, don't despair. Before the introduction of the turkey in Europe, goose was the bird always used for festive occasions. Add a little extra to your holiday celebrations with a centerpiece of cherries and goose. The alcohol in the brandy will cook out, leaving a marvelous mix of cherries and brandy flavor.

BRANDIED GOOSE

- 1 large old goose, cut into pieces

- 2 tablespoons brandy
- Flour
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- 3 cups chicken bouillon (low-salt is preferred)
- 2 tablespoons steak sauce
- 3 tablespoons dry sherry
- ¼ teaspoon marjoram
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 bay leaves
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 pound can sweet cherries (pitted)

Yields 6 to 8 servings.

Marinate goose overnight in brandy to tenderize and eliminate gamey flavor.

Cut goose into pieces. Roll pieces of goose in flour and brown in butter and oil in a Dutch oven. Brown just a few pieces at a time. Add bouillon, steak sauce, sherry, marjoram, salt, pepper and bay leaves to the pan. Heat.

Return goose to pan, cover, and place in 325 F oven for 2½ hours, or until tender. Remove goose pieces from pan. Mix cornstarch with cherries and add to pan juices with brandy. Stir and heat over low flame until sauce is slightly thickened. Return meat and baste with sauce. Simmer for 15 minutes, basting several times.

Place goose on a heated platter and spoon a little sauce over each piece. Serve rest of sauce in a gravy boat to be ladled over hot goose.

Either cook the birds in liquid or cover them in sour cream, which gets crunchy. For this kind of meal, you want to roll up your sleeves, eat, and maybe watch a football game. It is perfect around 3 p.m. on a Sunday afternoon, after you get back from hunting.

BAKED QUAIL

- 8 cleaned quail
- ½ cup flour
- 2 tablespoons cornmeal
- 1 tablespoon oil
- 1 can chicken broth
- Sour cream

Yields 4 servings.

Preheat oven to 350 F. Shake quail in flour and cornmeal until covered. Brown birds in large skillet.

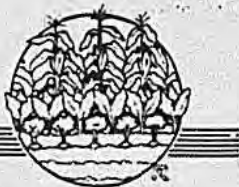

Add chicken broth and dab sour cream on any parts not covered by broth. Cover and bake until brown, about 20 minutes.

This next dish would be a great meal for guests. Everyone will enjoy the dramatic finish of flaming the brandy, and "ooh and ah" over the flavor of quail. Serve with wild rice.

Two books for the green thumb

Today I have two new books to share with my gardening friends.

"Daylilies: The Perfect Perennial" by Lewis and Nancy Hill (Garden Way Publishing, 208 pages, paperback $14.95, hardcover $24.95) is a pleasantly arranged, easy-reading book that takes the gardener on a friendly tour through the many facets of daylilies and their care.

The Hills began growing daylilies in 1947, and now operate a daylily nursery in Vermont with more than 500 varieties. During recent decades, they have seen the creation of more than 32,000 new daylily varieties. Now there are daylilies available in many different plant sizes, many unusual flower forms and a rainbow of colors and color combinations.

The current popularity of the daylily is easily explained. Apart from the loveliness of the flowers, the plants are easy to grow and very long-lived. And though each bloom lasts but a day, mature plants produce so many buds that masses of flowers cover the clumps every day for several weeks. Daylily plants do not need staking, are tolerant of a broad range of growing conditions and are little bothered by disease or insect pests.

The authors introduce the daylily with an illustrated description of all the plant parts. The chapter "From Past to Present Glory" traces the history of the daylily from its origins in the Orient, where the plants were valued for food and medicine as well as beauty.

"The Versatile Daylily — At Home Almost Everywhere" suggests ways to use the plants for best effect in the garden and how to mix them with other perennials and bulb flowers. This chapter explains how to grow daylilies in containers and how to use daylily flowers, flowerbeds, crowns and roots as food. Subsequent chapters guide the gardener in the cultivation of daylilies, from choosing a site and preparing the soil through planting, watering and methods of propagation.

The book ends with a color photo section followed by lists of award-winning daylilies, a lengthy chart of most popular varieties and lists that direct gardeners quickly to varieties with special characteristics such as extra-early or late bloom, extended bloom period, fragrance and so on.

"Pruning Techniques," a Plants & Gardens handbook from the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, is an eminently clear and practical guide to pruning for home gardeners.

Its 96 pages cover far more than the basics. The opening article, written by guest editor Alan Cook, is titled "Reasons and Seasons for Pruning." Here, both practical and aesthetic reasons for pruning are outlined. "Seasons for Pruning" describes what sort of pruning is best done in each season — a very useful guide.

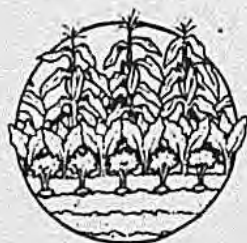

Ample illustrations make very clear where best to place cuts when removing tree limbs in "Pruning Trees." Well-illustrated articles deal in efficiently succinct detail with pruning tree fruits, grapes, cane and bush fruits, broad-leaved evergreens, needled (coniferous) evergreen shrubs and trees, deciduous shrubs, roses, hedges — and lawns, in "Mowing Is Pruning, Too."

This handbook leans strongly in favor of fostering natural forms in plants. A sidebar titled "Topless Trees Are Indecent" lists several problems that accompany tree topping and stresses the importance of planting trees that won't grow too large for their sites.

"Pruning Herbaceous Plants" describes techniques and benefits of deadheading, pinching, disbudding and cutting back annuals and perennials and gives the best timing for these procedures. In "Espaliers," sketches suggest various forms espaliers can take, and a list is given for superior plants for training in a pattern against a support. A short illustrated article covers general guidelines for training bonsai.

Pruning with an eye toward gathering decorative materials for indoor arrangements through the four seasons is explored in another article, and the handbook ends with a guide to pruning tools and a glossary of pruning terms.

Handbook No. 126, "Pruning Techniques," can be obtained by mail from Brooklyn Botanic Garden Order Department, 1000 Washington Ave., Brooklyn, NY 11225. The price is $6.95, plus $3.25 postage and handling. A list of other available handbook titles and BBG gardening videos will be sent if requested.

Our Children

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

New books give parents good advice

Dear Parents: Whenever some new books are released that might help parents handle their child-rearing responsibilities, I want to be sure you know about them. Believe me, there are many that I see and push aside because they don't seem to meet their practical requirements.

Here are two I'd like to bring to your attention, one in some detail, the other briefly.

"Love and Anger" written by Nancy Samalin (Penguin) has the flavor and sensible suggestions of books by Haim Ginott, Benjamin Spock and T. Berry Brazelton, which is certainly good company.

In the author's introduction, she states that her goal "is to open a window on what is often considered to be a forbidden subject — to provide insights into the common issues that trigger anger between parents and their children, and to offer practical ways to redirect that anger."

In a supportive manner, she adds, "... it is my hope that parents who read this book will learn to judge themselves less harshly as they begin to see that many of their expressions of anger are completely normal" (my emphasis).

"By their nature, children bring to the family environment disorder, aggravation, ambiguity and turmoil. They also bring warmth, humor, boundless energy and creativity."

Samalin refreshingly utilizes all of those traits in the 10 chapters that follow. Among them are these two: "Going It Alone" (which provides understanding and support for the single parent) and "Eight Weapons in the War on Anger." That chapter includes the sensitivity of this parent/author in themes like "Exit or Wait," "I Not You," "Stay in the Present," "Avoid Physical Force and Threats," "Stay Short and to the Point," "Put It in Writing," "Focus on the Essential" and the very important "Restore Good Feelings." She clearly and briefly fills in details for each of them.

In her closing chapter, titled "The Loving Breakthrough," she raises a factor that parents too frequently forget — that although parenting is obviously a serious business, we may sometimes take it too seriously.

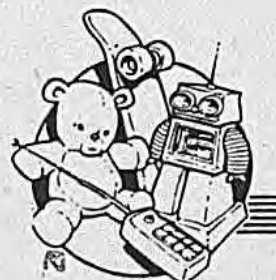

"We can get so wrapped in the weight of our responsibilities," she writes, "that we leave no room for the fun, the playfulness, the joy of being with our children. We may lose the ability to delight in their qualities of wonder, spontaneity and silliness."

The author's children (two grown sons), a productive co-author (Catherine Whitney) and others contributed to the sensitivity, support and hopefulness in this fine book.

Another recent publication also seems to be a practical contribution to the parent problem-solving scene.

"Parent Power!" by John Rosemond (Andrews and McMeel) covers a wide range of issues in its four parts: "Discipline: A Family Affair;" "It's Only a Stage;" with suggestions provided from birth through the teen years; "So, What's Your Problem?" including toilet training, tantrums, bedtime and 19 other topics, such as food fights, security blankets, tattletales and more; "Uncommon Sense," related to serious, sometimes controversial issues like divorce and adoption.

You may not agree with all of his ideas, but you will probably be stimulated by many of them. They can certainly give you plenty to think about.

New niche for the sandwich

By Maureen Clancy

As more of us bid a fond farewell to corned beef, pastrami, melted cheese and mayo — the fattening stuff great sandwiches were made of — it seems harder to construct a sandwich anyone would want to eat.

Harder for everyone except Tracy Ritter, that is.

Ritter, chef at the luxurious Golden Door spa in California, loves sandwiches, and she loves the challenge of giving them a healthful new look and taste.

"Sandwiches and burritos happen to be my very favorite foods," she said while arranging zucchini and eggplant slices on a hot grill. "They're hearty, they're easy, you can really be creative in the layering process, and you can eat them with one hand while you work."

And now they can be low-fat and low-calorie, too, Ritter says.

Under the old rules, a sandwich's bread was accused of being the fattening culprit. Well-meaning lunchers took wimpy slices of extra-thin sandwich bread and piled on the egg salad or roast beef.

"Dieters thought they had to give up breads and pastas," Ritter said. "But they were giving up the wrong thing."

Now that carbohydrates are recognized as good for weight maintenance and health, and fat is considered bad, the sandwich is getting its first real overhaul since the Fourth Earl of Sandwich, John Montague, ordered bread-and-meat combos so he could gamble without mealtime interruptions.

"The sandwich has really, definitely evolved from the old ham-and-cheese," Ritter said. "Regular sandwiches were between 800 and 1,000 calories each, and even the so-called 'California' sandwiches, you know, with sprouts and everything, blobbed on the mayonnaise and the guacamole, which usually already has mayo in it."

In contrast, Ritter's sandwiches range from about 250 to 400 calories each and many contain pork, chicken or beef.

"We figure 3 ounces of meat so it can be the protein meal of the day, but you could do it with less," said Ritter, adding that she doesn't use pork or beef in the sandwiches she prepares at The Golden Door.

For a foundation, Ritter favors sourdough or whole-grain breads, which she crisps on a gas or charcoal grill sprayed with vegetable oil spray. Next comes a variety of meats, fish, vegetables, fruits, herbs and condiments.

"You can make a sandwich out of almost anything," said Ritter, as she layered grilled apple slices, sirloin steak and red onion rings on a crusty chunk of French bread.

"We even flatten food that has never been in a sandwich before.

Last night, we had stir-fry veggie sandwiches for the staff. We grilled some bread and heaped on all the ingredients."

Cucumbers are one of Ritter's favorite sandwich additions because "they give really good crunch," she said. "And since they're so liquidy, you don't miss the mayonnaise."

Uncooked tomato slices, grainy mustard, prepared horseradish and chutneys and a bit of shredded cheese are used as toppers to the grilled ingredients.

For some sandwiches Ritter uses a mock mayonnaise — whipped non-fat cottage cheese, mustard, horseradish, Worcestershire and chives. For others she prepares a cumin-spiked puree of roasted eggplant. But most of the time she lets the flavors of the grilled ingredients and fresh herbs stand on their own.

"You have to be careful, though," Ritter warns weight-watching sandwich-lovers. To keep calorie counts down, she suggests making open-face sandwiches or adding extra vegetables to make the meal substantial yet low-cal.

Delights of rice

Joseph and Bernie Piscatella are serious about reducing fat intake and keeping hearts healthy. He is president of the Institute for Fitness and Health in Tacoma, Wash. She is a dedicated low-fat cook. The two of them produced "Don't Eat Your Heart Out Cookbook," "Choices for a Healthy Heart," and just now "Controlling Your Fat Tooth" (Workman Publishing).

The first half of the book is devoted to information about avoiding fat and reducing the percentage in diets. It's sound advice. Fat carries flavor, and frequently we don't know how much we are getting, just that it tastes great.

The second half of the book has the real how-to with Bernie's low-fat recipes. She's trimmed favorites into something acceptable. Even old-fashioned potato salad is included.

What I like are the rice recipes. Oriental, Creole and Rice with Chilies could be main events for lunch or supper. All three of them could be part of any party menu. If spices won't work in your kitchen, reduce them to half in each recipe.

RICE WITH CHILIES

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 cup long-grain white rice
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 3 cloves garlic, sliced
- 2 cups low-sodium chicken broth
- 1 (4-ounce) can diced green chilies
- 1 small tomato, diced
- ½ cup freshly grated low-fat cheddar cheese

Yields 6 to 8 servings.

Each serving has about 140 calories, 3 grams fat, trace of cholesterol and 200 milligrams sodium.

Heat olive oil in large skillet and add rice, onion and garlic. Stir constantly for 5 or 6 minutes until rice is slightly brown and onion is transparent. Add chicken broth, cover and simmer until rice is tender but not mushy. Add green chilies and tomatoes and sprinkle with cheese. Cover and simmer 2 or 3 minutes until cheese is melted. Serve at once.

ORIENTAL RICE

- 1 teaspoon olive or canola oil
- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 cup long-grain white rice
- 3 cups low-sodium beef broth
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon light soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Each serving has about 130 calories, 1 gram fat, trace of cholesterol and 230 milligrams sodium.

In non-stick skillet, heat oil. Add onion and garlic and saute about 5 minutes or until onion is crisp, but tender. Add rice and brown 2 or 3 minutes. Add beef broth, paprika and soy sauce and bring to boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 20 to 30 minutes or until broth is absorbed and rice is tender. Add parsley and toss.

CREOLE RICE

- 1¼ cups low-sodium chicken broth
- ½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- ½ teaspoon ground cumin
- ½ teaspoon oregano
- ½ teaspoon black pepper
- 1 cup long-grain white rice
- 2 teaspoons olive or canola oil
- 3 large cloves garlic
- 1 cup chopped white onion
- ¼ cup diced eggplant (optional)
- ¾ cup diced green pepper

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Each serving has about 150 calories, 2 grams fat, trace of cholesterol and 165 milligrams sodium.

Pour chicken broth into saucepan and bring to boil. Add cayenne, cumin, oregano and pepper. Stir in rice. Reduce heat, cover and simmer about 30 minutes or until broth is absorbed and rice is tender.

In another non-stick skillet, heat oil. Add garlic, onion and eggplant (if using) and saute about 5 minutes or until onion is just tender and eggplant is soft. Add green pepper and cook 2 or 3 minutes more. Toss with cooked rice.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q. We are experiencing a constant mildew problem in a family room that is on the ground level in our tri-level hillside home. One side of this room abuts the hillside, while the other walls are above ground level.

My problems with mildew include spots on the walls, problems inside built-ins, including closet spaces and drawers, and even furniture within the room.

The rest of the house is free of this frustrating problem, but nothing I have tried seems to work in this area. Do you have any suggestions on how to combat mildew and the musty odor? — L.B.

A. To prevent the spread of or to remedy mildew in moist environments, one must waterproof, ventilate and properly clean these areas.

To control the cause of dampness, replace cracked or defective mortar around the house. Check that drainage away from the house is adequate. Consider waterproofing concrete and other masonry walls, including inside walls such as yours that abut the hillside and exterior walls above ground. Seal absorbent brick and other surfaces. Prevent moisture from entering crawl spaces by spreading a layer of moisture-barrier materials over the soil under the building.

If natural breezes are not sufficient, create good ventilation. Use an electric fan to circulate air. Install vents in walls to increase air circulation. Use a dehumidifier to further control humidity. Keep closets, dresser drawers, basement, bathrooms and other susceptible areas as clean as possible.

Use a solution of diluted household bleach to clean walls and drawers to kill any remaining mildew spores. Use paint that has a mildewcide additive to help prevent reoccurrence of mildew growth. Keep low-wattage bulbs burning in closet spaces. Water-repellent sprays, mildew inhibitors, fungicides and chemicals to absorb moisture help keep fabrics and surfaces moisture- and mold-free.

If mildew has appeared on clothing or household fabrics, remove spots as soon as discovered before mold can weaken materials. Begin by brushing off mold outdoors so mildew spores do not scatter in the house.

On washable fabrics, pretreat by rubbing detergent into the dampened stain. Then launder the items in hot water and chlorine bleach, if safe for fabric, and detergent or soap.

If stain remains, sponge with hydrogen peroxide, rinse and launder. If you don't use bleach, soak items in oxygen bleach. Then wash.

Non-washable items should be dry-cleaned.

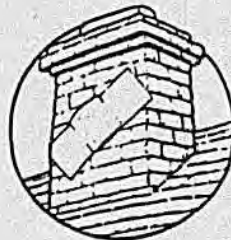

If mildew is on upholstered pieces, mattresses, rugs or carpets, start by taking the mildewed item outside and brushing mold away with a broom. Using the upholstery attachment of a vacuum cleaner, run it over the surface to draw out more mold. Since mold spores are going into the vacuum, dispose of bag or sweepings outside to avoid scattering mold spores.

If articles remain damp, dry with an electric heater or fan. Sun and air thoroughly to stop mold growth.

If mildew remains on upholstered furniture, wipe it with a cloth wrung out of a diluted alcohol solution (1 cup denatured or rubbing alcohol to 1 cup water). Dry the article thoroughly.

Sponge mildewed rugs and carpets with a rug shampoo, or use an electric shampoo machine. If possible, let items air dry in the sun.

A woodland theme for the family room

Q. We're turning an enclosed porch into a small family room, but there are four glass doors I don't know what to do with. They open out onto the patio and have arched tops that are fixed. What kind of curtains can I use? — M.F.

A. "Problem" windows aren't what they used to be, thanks in large measure to today's great vogue for arched and eyebrow windows, skylights and other unrectangular shapes. The window dressing industry is keeping pace, coming up with new hardware and new shades shaped to fit.

You're lucky that your doors open out. You don't have to worry about clearing curtains hung on the inside, should you choose that option — as interior designer Anne Tarasoff did for the room we show here.

She has used lushly gathered and ruffled tie-backs attached to rods that curve to fit inside the windows' arches. The curtains' bright flowers set the woodland theme for the entire room, in fact, including the faux wood chairs and Clover dhurrie area rug by Saxony Carpet.

You could also consider using pleated blinds on the stationary arch — Hunter Douglas is one manufacturer that will fabricate them to order. Their new "movable arch" shades open and close like a fan, using finger pulls you operate by hand (or a long pole, if your windows are tall).

Or, you could leave the arches open and simply hang straight curtains, shades or tie-backs on the doors themselves. It really depends on how much light and privacy control you need.

The bottom line: Check out all your options before you decide. With today's innovative technology, it's surprisingly easy to take the "pane" out of decorating windows, no matter what shape they're in.

Q. I have a cheap old bookcase left over from my graduate school apartment that I'd like to jazz up for my new study (I have lots of books to store). It's in sad condition, so I guess paint is the only answer. — N. St. J.

A. Try painting the insides of the shelves a light color, then make the front edges something exciting that works with the rest of the room. If you have a rich old Oriental rug, red edges would be smashing. Or paint them dark and the shelves will virtually disappear, leaving your books and accessories in the spotlight.

GARDEN ROOM — Taking her cue from the generous windows, designer Anne Tarasoff fills this dining room with flowers and faux wood furniture.

A Little Bit Of Germany On L.I.

We were especially interested when she told us about the concept of schooling that Friedrich Froebel started, namely the kindergarten. Children started school at seven in Germany but Mr. Froebel felt children could learn at an earlier age. He also believed that other subjects beside the "3Rs" should be taught in school.

When Tante Lizzie told us about the part German people played in the musical world, I was especially interested. My father worked for G. Schirmer Music Publishers and the names she mentioned, I heard around the dinner table. Every night, my father would tell my mother what important people had been in the store on that particular day. Henrich Steinway developed the piano and Rudolph Wurlitzer gave us the piano and organ. Leopold and Walter Damosch were involved with the New York Philharmonic and the Metropolitan Opera House. My father knew the opera star Ernestine Schumann Heink and talked many evenings about her. Oscar Hammerstein I was one of my father's customers.

Another famous German entertainer we enjoyed hearing about was August Ringeling who started the Ringling Brother Circus. We had never been to the circus but Tonda Lizzie's stories made me feel I was there enjoying all the performers.

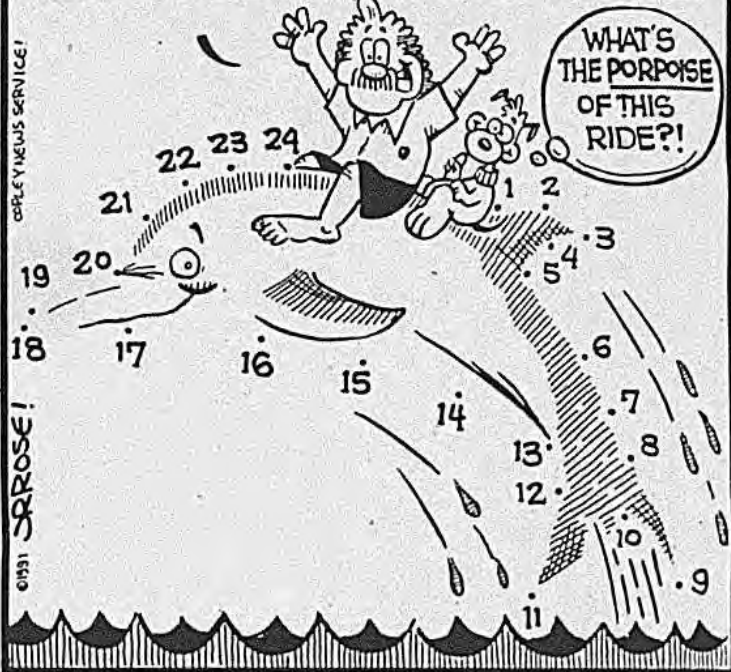

She told us about other Germans who were important in the development of many other industries.

This wonderful period in our lives lasted for five years. How sorry we were when my uncle and his family moved back to Brooklyn in 1928, followed shortly by Tante Lizzie and her daughters. After they left, I'd stand in our front porch and look longingly at the two houses across the street that were now occupied by other families. I missed my cousins but I missed most of all Tante Lizzie and the wonderful stories she would tell us as we were seated around her dining room table as she sewed her ties.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. We have had a couple of foals die recently of anemia. Both of these foals looked healthy at birth and nursed their mothers vigorously. Our veterinarian told us that these foals probably died because of a blood reaction due to something in the first milk of the mares. What was he talking about, and can we prevent this in the future?

A. The foals most likely died due to a condition called "neonatal isoerythrolysis," a very serious disease of newborn foals. A severe anemia develops in the foal because of an incompatibility between the foal's red blood cells and the antibodies obtained from the mare's colostrum, first milk, during early nursing.

Prevention of neonatal isoerythrolysis involves removing the foal from the mare or muzzling it so that it cannot nurse for 48 hours. During this period, the foal should be fed from another source. This can be an artificial milk replacer or another mare's milk that is compatible with the foal's red blood cells. The foal can be allowed to nurse its own mother after approximately 48 hours because by then it has lost the ability to absorb the offending antibodies from the milk.

Mares with foals with neonatal isoerythrolysis should be hand milked every two to three hours while the foal is not nursing.

If you suspect that you might have a mare that is going to have a foal with this problem, you should contact your veterinarian prior to the expected foaling for advice.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

This week many people at this newspaper have had to learn to use computers. While most people think it's fun, some think it's hard to learn. Everyone wishes they were able to learn about computers when they were in school. Most of the grownups here never had a chance to learn to use computers before.

Do you know how to use a computer? Did you learn in school or at home? Do you think they are fun to use? I do.

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are Susan Funke and Brian Vogler.

RULES BOYS AND GIRLS

Here is your chance to win One Dollar. ($1.00) - to spend or to save.

The World's Most Beautiful Grandchildren

This is our new granddaughter Jillian Danielle Sheridan, born May 8. She is our blue-eyed sweetie. Jillian's parents are Jean and Dan Sheridan of Mahopac, New York. Her grandparents are Rita and Bob Hesse of Williston Park, Judy and Ken Kessler of Woodside, and great-grandmothers: Helen Minary of Williston Park, Ruth Hesse of New Smyrna, Florida, and Eileen Dumphy of Somers, N.Y.

Our beautiful blond, blue-eyed grandson, Christopher Michael, born November 4, 1990, to Michael and Patti Bingold. He is Mr. Personality. He is the first grandchild for George and Joan Bingold of Garden City and Frank and Pat Carnazza of Westchester. He also has five great grandparents.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

What is considered income?

By William M. Acosta

Q. I know that in order to become eligible for the Supplemental Security Income program, your income must be below a certain limit. What is considered income? — P.T.

A. Income is the money you have coming in, such as wages, Social Security or other government checks and pensions. Income also includes non-cash items you receive, such as food, clothing or shelter. If you are married, we also look at the income of your spouse.

Q. Medicare has just advised me that a recent routine physical exam I had is not covered. How can this be? — B.L.

A. Medicare provides basic protection against health-care costs, but it does not pay for all of your medical expenses. The law limits Medicare coverage to services and items that are reasonable and necessary for the diagnosis and treatment of illness or injury.

Q. I receive Social Security retirement benefits. I plan to move to another address. I have completed a postal change of address. Must I also notify Social Security? — D.R.

A. Yes. The most common reason for failure to receive a check is not reporting a change of address. The change of address should be reported to Social Security as well as the post office. Changes of address may be reported to the Social Security office by phone or mail.

Q. I am a 59-year-old divorced woman. I was married to my ex-husband for 22 years. He remarried; however, I never remarried. Am I eligible for anything on his account? — M.C.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

A. A divorced spouse can get benefits on a former husband's Social Security record if the marriage lasted at least 10 years. You must be 62 or older and unmarried. The worker also must be 62 or older. Since you have been divorced at least two years, you can get benefits even if the worker is not retired. Contact your Social Security office for additional information.
