Student Writing Contest

The student writing contest sponsored by the Computer Learning Foundation will consist of articles written by children in Kindergarten through 5th grade on what adults think about computers. Entry blanks and details are available in the Children's Room. Deadline for submissions is November 30.

Twenty-three software programs were donated to the Hicksville Library for Computer Learning Month. Contributors included Scholastic, Inc., Optimum Resource, Britannica Software, and Wings for Learning.

New Media Writing Unit

The new Media Writing & Advertising Unit in the Hicksville High School, under the direction of teacher Joe Scalia and student teacher Suzanne Strom, introduces the many areas of advertising and related terminology to the students.

The students are currently participating in an "Advertising Agency," project where they have been divided into smaller groups. Each group has been assigned an "account" for which television, radio and magazine advertisements will be completed.

The students are learning how to create an advertising campaign, how the various departments in an advertising agency input into the whole and how the media uses words and pictures to manipulate the consumer. Through their individual writing, the students will come to learn that their choice of words is very important for relating ideas and achieving their purpose.

Consultant Hired To Review Elem. Reorg.

By Maureen Traxler

The Hicksville Board of Education met in special session last week to discuss elementary district reorganization, a subject which has charged emotions throughout the community and touched off a bitter dispute last year.

The October 2 meeting began as a work session, but ended with the board voting to approve the hiring of a consultant to review the matter. All of the trustees concurred that an update of vital information is necessary before any decisions are made. But in addition to information gathering, several trustees wished to have the consultant go one step beyond and identify the specific school or schools, if deemed appropriate, to be closed.

"We need a group of people who will provide us with information, not make recommendations," said trustee Richard Pfander, expressing a desire to leave all decisions in the hands of the board. Following Mr. Pfander, the board's two other newly-seated members agreed.

"We know the community, (its hazards)...certain roads, certain plazas, certain railroad crossings," said James Black. "We do not need a computer, we do not need a consultant sitting in an office," to determine those variables for us. Mrs. Helen Lafferty agreed to the creation of a citizens advisory committee to work along with the consultant, but stated, "It is up to the school board to make the final decision. There will be some unhappy people, but we must move forward."

Trustee James Martillo insisted that the consultants be charged with offering the "best solution to the problem," citing the "inequities toward students." "We need credibility in the decision we make," he added.

"They were not elected by the people of Hicksville to make a determination as to what to do in Hicksville," Mr. Black rebutted, adding that the "professional people" would then be a "big cloak" for us.

Mr. Black motioned that the board hire Drs. Lloyd Bishop and Seymour Evans of New York University, the authors of the Hicksville district's 1984 reorganization review, to provide a demographic study, ten-year enrollment projections, building utilization reports including all the currently-occupied elementary buildings plus the middle school, and long-range planning objectives. That motion was amended by Mr. Martillo to include presentation of recommendations of the best utilization of the elementary buildings of the district (specifically naming any building or buildings to be closed, if the report so warrants).

The amendment passed by a narrow 4-3 vote; trustees Martillo, Rudin, Collins and Wolf voting aye and Pfander, Black and Lafferty nay. Voting on the main motion, approval of the consultant at $9,500 then passed, 6-to-one, with trustee James Black registering the lone opposition.

President Carol Wolf motioned that the board implement a lay committee to work with Bishop and Evans, at an additional fee of $3,000 and that the committee consist of one representative from each of the ten PTA units in the district and one representative from each civic association in town, including the Hicksville Community Council. Mrs. Wolf added that this committee would be "part of the decision-making process into what schools may or may not be closed." The board chose to include a district administrator on the committee to be appointed by the Superintendent and to act as a liaison/information person. The citizens advisory committee received unanimous approval by the trustees.

Summing up, Mrs. Wolf said that the consultants should begin immediately and keep to a January report date, with implementation of any proposed changes in September 1992. The preliminary and final reports to the public will be the responsibility of the board. Mr. Pfander suggested that some time be set aside at each board meeting to update the public as to the progress of the consultants and the advisory committee.

The board charged the superintendent to make a recommendation on the move of the sixth grade to the middle school at the November board meeting, and a recommendation on the elementary reorganization by the January meeting. After consideration of the recommendations from

The Hicksville Gregory Museum offers a course in Paleontology for Teachers In-Service and for Other Interested Adults.

PALEONTOLOGY - The Study of Fossils - Fee: $65.

Dr. Charles Rockwell, Professor Geology, Nassau Community College, Hofstra University; Wednesdays: October 9 - December 11, from 3:45 - 5 p.m.

The study of fossils is not just for Paleontologists, but for everyone who's interested in the history of life on our planet. The course assumes no great familiarity with geology, or with biology or ecology. Your instructor will take you on a journey to the edges of our knowledge in the various fields of paleontology. Rather than simply providing a catalog of fossils, their geologic ages and classification, your instructor will present a series of case studies on the major events in the history of life, illustrating the most important ways in which we go about reconstructing the paleontological past. Some of our topics will include:

- Processes of fossilization
- The precambrian-beginning of the fossil record
- How do we know the age of fossils?
- Reconstructing past life
- Evolutionary trends (plants and animals)
- Index (guide) fossils (the dinosaurs)
- Extinctions
- Life and climate during the ice age

Letters

To the Editor:

On Wednesday, October 2, the board majority of Martillo, Rudin, Collins, and Wolf surrendered their role as board trustees to an outside consultant to determine and name a school or schools for closing.

This is the same board majority that betrayed their trust by reversing their votes not to close two schools last November, and have now reversed their roles as board members.

They have insulated themselves by giving outsiders the charge to close one or two schools. You the community must be diligent, and attend all future board public meetings, to safeguard your rights as parents and taxpayers.

Unfortunately, the meeting that the board delegated their responsibility to the consultants was not sufficiently publicized, and thus was poorly attended. And the special meeting that the consulting firm was interviewed was again poorly publicized, and was not even mentioned at the board public meeting the night before. (September 25).

That is why I am urging the community to closely monitor all our school board meetings, and to join their newly formed committee's, one of which deals with the "Closing of Schools."

Read the Mid Island Times, very carefully, for board meeting dates, if you don't know, you can't cry "wolf."

Sincerely,
Bill Bennett

To the Editor:

I submit that our current school board has what it takes to make things happen to alleviate the ever-increasing cost of operating our school district. And that's good.

If the past is any indication of the future, the conclusion to be drawn from the Board of Education special meeting of October 2nd is that our representatives on the board, as well as our Superintendent, cannot please all the people all of the time - no matter what action is taken. And we all know that there are some people who can never be pleased at all.

The board members are making a concerted effort to do what they think is the right thing to do. I agree with their decision to hire consultants to advise the board on the current state-of-affairs in our district and formulate a sense of direction and purpose for the future. Whether the consultants submit a recommendation or a list of options is really immaterial as it is agreed that the final decision rests with the school board. No matter what charge is given to the consultants, the board will be subject to criticism by those whose school may be targeted for closing. While one faction will accuse the board for not following the consultants' recommendation, another faction will accuse the board of favoritism, or worse, for choosing one of the options over another. So, you see, it's a "damn if you do, damn if you don't" situation. Yet, we can all agree that something must be done because the payroll of the district is inordinately high.

Either the salaries are too high or there are too many individuals on the payroll, or both.

Contrary to the statement of a board member that we have a problem in Hicksville, I submit that the situation at hand is far from being a problem. I see it as an opportunity to change the course of our school district and create an atmosphere of trust and confidence for all the good citizens of Hicksville for many years to come.

We are tired of austerity budget. Yet, we want our school taxes to go up only moderately.

Let the school board do what has to be done in good conscience and fairness to the children and the taxpayers. Yes, feelings will be hurt and some will get irate. But in the end we will all be better off for the struggle of today.

Sincerely,
Jean Diradourian

Old Bethpage Road Improvements

Acting upon the recommendation of Nassau County Executive Thomas S. Gulotta and Town of Oyster Bay Supervisor Angelo Delligatti, the Nassau County Board of Supervisors today approved plans to acquire certain parcels of property on Old Bethpage Road in Plainview. The property will be acquired in order to expedite certain road improvements which the County is implementing in the area after consultations with area residents.

"The Nassau County Department of Public Works continues to implement planned improvements on Old Bethpage Road primarily in the area from Bluebird Lane to Capri Gate in Plainview," Gulotta said. "To advance these efforts plans are now set to acquire certain parcels of adjacent property so the roadway can be made as safe as possible."

Suggestions made by the area residents and by a citizens panel formed by Gulotta and Delligatti have already resulted in the implementation of short term measures. Completion of the long term improvements which will be expedited by the property acquisition, is scheduled for 1992.

The specific portion of Old Bethpage Road under question contains several areas where the road narrows from four to two lanes. This "narrowing" has created problems where traffic merges from four to two lanes.

SERVICE

The Hicksville Community Council's 21st Dinner and Installation of Officers turned-out a large cross-section of Hicksville leaders and their organizations at Antun's, this past Thursday evening. The Council's President's Award for outstanding contributions to Hicksville over many years was bestowed on Siegfried Widder, a leader of the Council, Boy Scouts, Gregory Museum and Chamber of Commerce. Receiving the Council's Community Service Award was the community's oldest, still-active organization, the Charles Wagner Post 421 of the American Legion, founded in 1919 and still going strong with programs on behalf of needy war veterans, children and youth, and the festering of patriotic and democratic ideals. The Community Council presented a special service award to the Mid-Island Support Group for Operation Desert Shield for its efforts to sustain the morale of our troops in the Persian Gulf Campaign and their families on the homefront. Joseph DePempa succeeded himself as community Council president for the fourth consecutive year, being sworn into office by Assemblyman Fred Parola.

Mid-Island Hospital Enhances Radiology

Dr. Alan P. Sitron, Director of Radiology at Mid-Island behind the Bethpage hospital's new addition, a General Electric CT Sytec 2000 Scanner System.

Mid-Island Hospital's President Robert J. Reed announced the installation of a new top General Electric CT Sytec 2000 Scanner System. Due to this new addition, the Bethpage hospital's radiology department's services will be enhanced.

A CT Scanner System, often referred to as a CAT scan (Computerized Axial Tomography), reconstructs any part of the body into sections which give physicians precise pictures of internal parts of the anatomy.

Dr. Alan P. Sitron, Director of Mid-Island's Radiology department is pleased with the new system's clinical advantages. "Mid-Island's new CT Scanner System will enhance its radiology services by increasing the number of scans possible with exceptional image quality. We will be able to see more patients a day, and critically ill patients will be diagnosed quicker. Patients will be in full view by the system's operator with a console intercom for patient, operator, and physician communication."

Physicians order cat scans for various reasons. They are analyzed to rule out evidence of internal bleeding, stroke, tumors, masses, herniated disc and for any pathologic findings in the body.

If you need a local physician, call Mid-Island's Physician Referral Service, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. at 520-2387 to give you names of physicians in your area. On weekends, holidays, or after hours, call 579-6000 and ask for Nursing Supervision for a physician referral.

For over thirty five years, Mid-Island Hospital has served the surrounding communities with a caring approach to their medical needs. This new addition to the acute care hospital's radiology department is evidence of the facility's dedication to excellence in health care.

"Discover O. B." Photo Contest

The Town of Oyster Bay Department of Parks is accepting entries in the Supervisor's "Discover Oyster Bay" Amateur Photo Contest and will continue to do so until March 7.

"Amateur photographers have an opportunity to get out there and capture some of the beauty of our Town," said Town Supervisor Angelo A. Delligatti. "Fall and winter offer amazingly colorful and exciting photographic opportunities for shutter bugs who enjoy nature and have a knack for seeing something that the rest of us miss."

Supervisor Delligatti added that the contest rules require that all photographs be taken between October 1, 1991, and March 1, 1992, and that the general theme depict fall and winter play and recreation in Oyster Bay's parks, beaches and places of interest. Each contestant may submit only one photograph, which can be either black and white or in color, and all participants will receive certificates of achievement.

To enter the Supervisor's "Discover Oyster Bay" amateur photo contest, send entries to "Play in Oyster Bay," Department of Parks, 977 Hicksville Road, Massapequa, New York 11758. Each contestant must include his/her name, address, age and telephone number in ink on the back of the photograph. Please do not send original slides or negatives or transparencies. Due to the fact award-winning photos, along with the photographer's name, may be used in Town publications, newsletters and the Town calendar, winners will also be asked to supply a release from each identifiable person in the photograph.

Consultant Hired To Review

both the consultants and the Superintendent, the board may either accept, reject or alter those recommendations to achieve their final decision.

If it is determined that one or more elementary buildings should be closed, Superintendent Muguero proposed that another firm be hired to prepare a computerization study for redistricting students. Noting the dilemma which faces parents when they hear that their children's elementary building is to be closed, Mr. Black requested that the district hire the appropriate firm now, "so that when I vote on closing schools, I will know where the children are going." Mrs. Wolf replied that it is too soon to make such a commitment, since the consultants will not have hard figures to consider for several months.

The Board and Superintendent came under harsh criticism from residents for the lack of publicity of this meeting. A self-identified "displaced Willet parent," now from Woodland Avenue, termed the insufficient notification "a disgrace" and "underhanded." She called the subject matter of the meeting "one of the most critical issues to face this town in a number of years."

Noting that the data currently available to the board is eight years old, president Carolyn Gee asked, "If it was O.K. for (determining the closure of) Willet, why isn't it good for the rest of the schools?" Another resident requested that Willet be included in the consultants' building utilization study, since it technically is one of the district's school buildings, although it is being rented at this time.

Resident Bill Bennett called the board's opting for the consultant to name the school(s) to be closed, if any, a "betrayal and cowardly act." He added, "The four (trustees) that voted to rescind (the closing of a school) last year now wish to cover their tracks." Mr. Bennett added that the board should have had the consultants present at the meeting, since there was "no articulation between board members." He charged that the board did not have the "agreement" of the consultants to make specific recommendations, since the consultants stated that they do not prefer to make such recommendations as to which buildings should be closed in a district.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the board will take place on Wednesday, October 23, at 8 p.m.

'Keep Proper Perspective On School Sports

Most callers to Input believe that there has been an overemphasis of sports in many colleges in answer to this question: "Should colleges give up on high level sports teams and concentrate on educational programs?" Here are some of the answers.

LESS EMPHASIS

I would not like to see colleges actually give up on football and basketball but I would like to see them give much less emphasis to the big ticket games. The fact is that some schools actually have athletes in varsity sports who could not qualify if they were not athletes. The problem is that the overemphasis on sports goes down to the lower levels to high schools and while there is little if any economic incentive at that level there is a great push to perform so well that scouts from colleges will come and offer scholarships. The result is that athletic programs get distorted. Winning is everything, and not just winning, but winning big and getting great notices in the country-wide newspapers and TV are of greater importance than they ought to be. The result could be a de-emphasis on academic standards and a lack of interest by the athletes in the basic reason for schools. I don't think sports should be abandoned but they should be put in proper perspective. F.G.

SPORTS NEEDED

If we did not have college sports a great many young people would not be able to go to college because they could not afford the high tuitions. Now with so many colleges with athletic teams, even if you can't make the top level in sports a smaller school might welcome you with a scholarship. So it really works more ways than one. J.H.

TOO MUCH SPORTS

It is a shame what has happened in recent years. With TV blaring away most adult's time is taken up with sports to the exclusion of practically everything else. What should be a pastime has become the only interest of many. I would like to see a total de-emphasis of sports in college and an emphasis on academics and learning to think and engage in meaningful conversations on things that are not just sports. H.F.

EDUCATIONAL CONCENTRATION

I am not certain about colleges giving up on athletics but I certainly think they should be de-emphasized. In this day and age when offices are going to be obsolete by the 21st century due to modems and computers and the way people can talk to the main office we should concentrate on the educational programs. On academics or math or science. This is a competitive environment that we live in. This is no more an agrarian society where as we say that we have the best schools on L.I. we have to think about saying that we have the best schools in the world. All of our children, whether they be on a college level or a lower grade level, are competing with people in Yokohama and Hamburg. They are not just competing with a local population. I noticed in a column in the newspaper that the athletic budget went up 63 percent in a district that has been hard hit with state aid cuts. When I read about something like that and an emphasis on high level sports in the colleges I have to wonder where our country is going. B.T.

RETHINK PRIORITIES

The colleges should not give up on high level sports but should compromise and rethink their overall allocation of funds. Anyone we talk to about college athletes these days believes that athletic performance is now secondary to educational skills. Some of these schools must set a precedent by not overlooking the usual academic requirements, SAT scores, etc. that applicants who don't participate in sports must adhere to and pay tuition without state or scholarship assistance. P.K.

KEEP EDUCATION HIGH

I believe it would be a big mistake for colleges to give up on high level sports teams. However, I think it is perfectly clear that under present circumstances the formula appears to be lacking with respect to the "quid" for the "quo". The emphasis should be on education with the reward for performance the privilege of high level sports participation. Obviously, the colleges use their sports programs as an inducement for enrollment but from what I gather are often remiss in demanding equal effort and performance in the educational areas. The fundamental raison d'être of the institution is to prepare students for careers for business, the arts, sciences and many other adult careers - high level sports cannot and are not considered a basic element of the institutional curriculum. And yet, the emphasis on sports appears to indicate otherwise. As it is, in international sports competition, we seem to have great difficulty in getting better than a bronze medal. Let's keep high level sports as an elective but maintain the pressure on educational programs at 100% for every enrolled student. P.G.S.

Saving Money On Fuel Consumption

By James M. Walsh

It is that time of the year when the pools are shut down, the patio furniture put in winter storage, and the summer clothing is exchanged for the heavier garb that indicates the onset of the winter months. For some it means winter sports and for others it means more time spent indoors. Regardless of what winter activities are pursued, most people have one thing in common - winter fuel bills. Whether the fuel used is oil or gas, it adds a strain to many already stretched budgets, and there are some steps the homeowner can take in order to keep the bills in line.

For those who heat their homes with gas, a call to the gas company for an energy survey brings a quick response. A representative will come to the house and check the heating equipment and the rest of the house also. If the heating unit needs an upgrading because of low efficiency, he will recommend the necessary people to call for estimates. In many cases it involves replacing the complete boiler with a more hi-tech package. The upgrading is usually done by a local plumber.

If a home is being heated by fuel oil, the first thing to be aware of is the total efficiency the equipment is running at. This knowledge can be obtained by calling the utility company that services the heating unit. They will be happy to come and check the unit out and make recommendations they feel will make the unit run at its peak performance. If the efficiency reading comes up 75% or lower it is time to look at upgrading the equipment. In most cases, for about $475, the efficiency can be brought up somewhere in the low to mid-80% range. By increasing the efficiency 10-12%, the upgrade will pay for itself in fuel savings and provide a more consistent temperature in the home. Once the unit is checked out and given a clean bill of health, the homeowner should be aware of other aspects that relate to keeping the house comfortable at the lowest cost.

When the weather is cold, the thermostat is the first thing that gets looked at. It is the sensor instrument that will keep the home warm and the pipes from freezing. To the homeowner it suddenly becomes the most vital part of the heating system. Yet, it is the most neglected part.

Thermostats come in two types: a line voltage (110 volts) and a low-voltage (24 volts). They are sensitive and in many cases can be calibrated if they are not accurate. This should be done by a qualified technician. What the homeowner can do, is take the cover off and blow out any dust or animal hairs that may have found its way under the cover. Especially if there has been any renovations done where the thermostat has been removed and then put back. Dust from the carpenters and sheetrockers can play havoc with the operation of a thermostat.

For homeowners who are not home during the day, there are low-voltage clock thermostats that will start and stop the heating cycle at pre-determined times. As an example: if a cool setting is preferred at night the temperature can be set at 65 degrees or what is called the night setting. In the morning, another setting will bring the heat on to whatever the day temperature is set for. In the evening the night setting will automatically kick in for the night side. Some thermostats have a double set-back that will drop the temperature when the homeowner leaves for work and bring it back up before he returns. It is recommended that these thermostats be installed by an experienced technician.

Most homes have one of three heating systems: hot water, steam, or warm air. In each system there are some things a homeowner can look for and correct in order to obtain maximum output of the system.

WARM AIR SYSTEM

- Have the utility company ascertain that the blower is in good operating order.
- Check all the air vents and make sure they are open and clean. Also, be sure that no furniture is blocking any of the output vents and the return vent.

- Have the humidifier checked for proper operation.
- Check the air filter at least once a month and replace if dirty.

STEAM SYSTEM

- For safety, steam boilers should have a combination auto-feeder and low water cutoff.
- If the radiators have covers, be sure the open vent sections are clean.
- Check the vent valves. If they are leaking or making a whistling noise have them replaced. Water is being lost from the system and damage can result.
- Check the water level in the gauge glass on the boiler. It should maintain a proper level at all times.
- Put a bucket under the blow-down valve and release the dirt and sediment that may accumulate.

HOT WATER SYSTEM

- If radiators are in use, the same advice applies as for steam covers. Keep the openings clean and free of paint.
- If the system is using baseboard, it is important that the louver across the top be in the open position. Baseboard is wholly dependent on the air flow across the aluminum fins under the outer cover.
- Take a look at the carpet on the floor in each room of the house. If the carpet butts up against the bottom of the baseboard cover, there can be no air circulation. The thermostat will call for heat, and the burner will run constantly because the room temperature never reaches the thermostat setting. The carpet problem can be rectified easily. Pull the carpet out from under the baseboard and cut away about six inches of the padding. The carpet will then lay under the baseboard and allow one-half to three-quarters of an inch for the proper air flow.
- While checking the carpet, take a look at how the furniture is placed. Big items like beds and couches can block off up to eight feet of the baseboard thus impeding air flow.
- Check the curtains and the drapes. If the baseboard, the air vents, and the radiators of any the systems are covered with drapes, air flow is minimized. Minimized air flow will result in longer operating cycles of the heating equipment and higher fuel bills.

The above suggestions, if taken, can cut fuel bills and keep the home comfortable on a normal winter day. But do not expect miracles when the wind chill factor keeps the outside temperature down in the teens. Under chill-factor conditions the thermostat may have to be cranked up a bit, and a long hard look should be taken at the drafty windows and walls. Every house has them.

The Last Word In Restaurant Guides

Where Our Readers
Have The Last Word

This newspaper, and the seven other weekly newspapers associated with it, publishes the last word in restaurant guides and a paid listing of many prominent selected restaurants in this area. While many of them have been rated by the great, and near great food connoisseurs, our readers will have the last word through "Reader Ratings."

Through a special 24 hour phone system, readers will be asked to call in their assessment of each restaurant they visit. Consensus ratings (good or bad) will be published as a continuing part of the guide.

In addition they can make suggestions, compliments or criticisms through the open phone line and messages will be sent through to the restaurant management.

READER RATINGS

Q. While visiting France last year my friend and I ate in an elegant restaurant. We noticed that forks and spoons were facing downward on the tablecloth. Do you know why this was done?

A. This is an old French custom which is gradually giving way to the English and American way of facing forks and spoons upward.

Q. Recently I came across a menu expression that was new to me. Can you explain what "A la burgignonne" means?

A. Translated from the French it would mean "in the Burgundy style" and it refers to any dish served with small onions, spices, bacon, mushrooms and, of course, Burgundy wine.

Q. Help! What does someone do who enjoys eating out, but is constantly on a diet and has absolutely no will power?

A. One solution might be eating in a Chinese restaurant. The food is low in fat, desserts are simple and the usual beverage-green tea, with no cream or sugar has no calories at all!

Another good idea might be choosing a restaurant with a big salad bar—a delicious and nutritious way to take the edge off an over-eager appetite.

Q. In a good restaurant that we attended recently an accordion player came around to each table and asked whether we had any requests. My wife made a request and the musician played it. Is this music provided by the restaurant or should I have tipped? J.B.

A. Generally the musicians are paid by the restaurant to entertain all of the diners. But when you make a special request it is expected that a small tip will accompany the request. In this case $1 would have been a fair amount.

TOPS IN DINNERS

The New Hyde Park Inn is a landmark on Jericho Turnpike in New Hyde Park. Most people have been there many times for one banquet or another. Throughout the years it has served as a top catering hall for many affairs.

As a restaurant it is equally good. We went there last week and found that it has a full menu for dinner and that all of the good things that were at banquets can be had in the restaurant. Because it is a festive type place it is a great one to celebrate a birthday as we did. Tell your readers that the New Hyde Park Inn is tops for dinners. We know, we were there. Y.R.

NICE PLACE

Bomont's Cafe is one of those small restaurants that makes me glad there are such places away from the larger crowds. For your readers who do not know of this place, it is located in Williston Park on Hillside Avenue and is just a small but elegantly decorated restaurant. The menu is a pretty good sized one and we have always found it to be an enjoyable place whether we were having a late night snack or a luncheon special. We recommend it to your readers. J.F.

Wine Talk

By Richard Najler

Is a sweet wine your just desert? Caramel cake with a luscious late harvest Riesling, perhaps? Or a slice of apricot tart, dessert-style Sauvignon Blanc? How about either wine as a dessert all by itself? One more question: Why should connoisseurs have these gorgeous wines all to themselves?

Why, indeed, except that people are confused about what fine desert wines really are. Those of use who came to wine knowing only one thing for certain knew this: dry equalled classy, as in "a glass of dry white wine, Godfrey." Right. But that's not what we're talking about.

We're not talking about jug table wines made with some sugar left over to enhance a basically bland liquid. And we're certainly not talking about the alcohol-fortified MD 20-20s of the world, either.

What we're talking about are ultra-ripe, hedonist wines infused with flavors like honey, apricot and butterscotch — wines that are diet-busters in glass. Served after dinner with fruit or moderately sweet desserts, these flamboyant wines are often the taste that guest most remember weeks later. Served before the meal, with pate or roasted almonds, these sweet wines signal, as Champagne does, that something special is to follow.

In Europe, where sweet wines have been part of grand entertaining for centuries, these are some of the most sought-after collector's bottles in the world, including such famous wines as French Sauternes and selections of grains nobles, German beerenauslesen and eisweins, and Hungarians Tokays.

When collectors find them, the wines are usually being sold in half-bottles (375ml), for several good reasons. For one thing, they are usually very risky to produce and relatively rare — half bottles stretch the supply. For another thing, with wines this sweet a little goes a long way, even with a good acidity to keep it lively.

Probably the main reason these fine dessert wines are put into half-bottles, however, is that you would have to trade in the Datsun to afford a full bottle. A bottle of the great Sauternes, Chateau D'Yquem, will set you back around $235 for the 1983, or you could compromise with a very nice 1986 Chateau Lafaurie-Peyraguey for $38.

I recently tasted a glass of 1989 Riesling Trockenbeerenauslese from the Mosel's Peter Nicolay winery. It was exquisite. It was $375 a bottle. And yes, I am very, very special.

READER RATINGS

CONSISTENTLY GOOD

The John Peel room in the Island Inn is consistently a good restaurant. We have been there a number of times and have always found the food and decor especially enjoyable.

The menu at the John Peel room includes a complete dinner from appetizer through dessert. We had prime ribs there last Thursday and were particularly happy with the large portion of beef along with the fine ambience of this restaurant, the service was attentive and prompt. As usual we had a good night at the John Peel room. B.R.

Q: When one approaches a receiving line and is asked to give a name, does one say, "Mrs. Jones" or "Mrs. John Jones" or "Mr. Jones" or "John Jones"? T.F.

A: Your just say, "Mrs. Jones" or "Mr. Jones", or more usual now, "John Jones". If you are a very special Jones, the person who introduces you finally to the guest of honor sometimes has the opportunity to define you as it were. The receiving line should never be held up for lengthy conversations, however.

KITCHEN HINTS

Gelatin desserts are also low-cal

Sometimes the desserts contain hard bits.

Here's how to keep the gelatin smooth:

1. Always allow the gelatin to soften in the liquid before heating.
2. When heating gelatin and liquid, stir thoroughly to determine if granules have dissolved.
3. For faster chilling and jelling, pour mixture into metal bowl and set in ice water. Metal conducts cold well.

READER RATINGS

Q. What is the correct way to eat crackers in soup?

A. Small crackers, such as oyster crackers, may be added to the soup and eaten that way. However, large soda crackers should really not be crumbled into the soup. It is better to keep them on the plate and eat them along with the soup.

Q. When I am on a diet I find it difficult to find things at restaurants. What do you suggest? G.B.

A. The suggestion is that you check the ads and call restaurants. Many of them have special diet plates that will be just what you are looking for. Some restaurants will allow substitutions and you can make your own plate but you cannot be sure of this unless you check the restaurant policy in advance.

Q. I have noticed that Chinese restaurants do not provide knives when serving meals. Can you tell me the reason for this practice?

A. In the orient food is cut into small pieces before it is cooked.

This has the advantage of reducing cooking time and also minimizing any loss of nutrients. In China it is considered bad manners to cut food at the table.

Great cover-ups

Covering foods in your microwave serves much the same function that it does on the stove-top: It holds in moisture and heat and lets foods cook more quickly. Also, trapped steam aids in tenderizing foods, and the cover prevents splatters. (When microwaved foods are uncovered, moisture will evaporate and liquids thicken — but not as much as in conventional cooking.)

Here's a brief primer on some different ways to cover microwaved dishes:

Plastic wrap: This provides a good seal for trapping steam and creates the ideal environment for cooking vegetables and fish. When using plastic wrap, make a small slit or turn back one corner to vent steam and prevent wrap from splitting.

Waxed paper: Helps to hold in heat and prevent splatters, without steaming food (it retains some steam, but not as much as plastic wrap). Waxed paper helps to equalize cooking of foods of uneven shape, like chicken parts — but it does not tenderize, as does steaming under plastic wrap. To use, wrap waxed paper loosely over dish. Circles of waxed paper can also be cut to fit the bottoms of pans when you bake cakes, for easy removal.

Paper towels: These don't hold in moisture, like plastic wrap and waxed paper, instead, they absorb it. They prevent splatters and soak up fat, and for this reason they're excellent for cooking bacon. Place bacon between several layers of paper towels to microwave, and it emerges more crisp because towels soak up moisture and fat. You can also dry herbs between layers of paper towels, but check frequently — overheated portions could cause paper towels to flame.

Foil: Some recipes will ask you to shield portions of food with foil (it's called shielding because foil shields food from microwaves — they can't pass through metal). You may need to shield, for instance, the fin and head ends of a whole fish, wing and drumstick tips of poultry, or the smaller end of a roast. Take care to keep foil smooth, to reduce risk of arcing. Recipes usually call for foil to be removed at some point during cooking to let the shielded portion "catch up."

Check your manufacturer's instructions first, to make sure that small pieces of foil may be used in your oven. Most microwave ovens manufactured since 1980 come with specially protected magnetron tubes that will not be harmed by the use of small amounts of foil.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.

MICRO-TIP OF THE WEEK:

Always remove coverings away from your face to avoid steam burns. If a dish is covered with plastic wrap, use a sharp knife or fork to pierce plastic, then pull up and away from you to remove plastic wrap and release steam safely.

BOB'S BEST ZUCCHINI

4 slices bacon
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onion
4 medium zucchini (1½ pounds), trimmed and cut into ½ inch slices
1 clove garlic, minced
1 cup canned tomato sauce
½ teaspoon each crumbled dried oregano and basil
Dash each salt and pepper
½ cup each ricotta and shredded mozzarella cheese
Paprika

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 13 to 19 minutes (plus 5 minutes standing time).

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power).

Place bacon between a double-thick layer of paper towel. Place on plate and microwave 3 to 4 minutes, rearranging halfway through cooking time, or until bacon is crisp. Remove bacon and set aside.

In a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole combine butter and onion; microwave, uncovered, 2 to 3 minutes. Add zucchini and garlic and microwave 3 to 4 minutes longer, or until vegetables are partially tender.

Stir in tomato sauce and seasonings. Crumble cooked bacon over top and stir. Cover with casserole lid or vented plastic wrap and microwave 5 to 8 minutes, or until zucchini is tender. Swirl in ricotta cheese, then top with shredded mozzarella. Sprinkle with paprika. Replace cover and let stand 5 minutes before serving, to melt cheeses.

FOR TEENS

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Dr. Abraham: I really like my kid brother, but I get a big bang out of teasing him. It is so easy to get him upset, just by my saying something dumb or untrue about his hair, eyes, skin, height, weight or almost anything.

My folks don't like this, but it's my fun. Besides, he should be able to tell that I'm just kidding him, but for some reason he doesn't, even though he is 9 years old. So he will pout, or even cry, or run out of the room.

Sometimes he will do one of those things if I just look at him and laugh without saying anything. It's so easy and such a fun thing for me to do. — Teaser

Teaser: I'm sorry, my friend, but if you expect to develop a good relationship with your brother, whom you say you "really like," you're choosing a terrible route toward that goal.

Younger siblings need the support, interest and affection of their older brothers and sisters (as well as from their parents and other relatives, of course).

There are less questionable ways for you to have a good time. What you're doing is one of the least attractive and most destructive that I can think of.

Dr. Abraham: This guy and I are very close when we see each other. It is so easy for us to talk on and on about almost anything. But on the telephone it sure is different.

He practically never calls me, and when he does or when I call him, he can't seem to hang up fast enough. He never even gives a reason.

What do you think about this? He is a sweet, talkative person otherwise. — Confused

Confused: Telephone talkers seem to fall into two groups: the social ones who can go on almost endlessly and the others who call or receive calls for a specific purpose, get it handled and hang up. Your friend seems to fall into that category.

So how about continuing to enjoy the personal contacts that seem so much more fulfilling and not make an issue over the telephone ones?

Dr. Abraham: If I didn't sew buttons and repair tears on my clothes, I'd probably be in rags. My mom hates doing it, and my dad says it's sissy stuff, but I have no choice. Do the sewing or use safety pins, I guess.

It isn't that I'm not a baby, because I am — play football, like the girls, and do other things that guys do. But I also don't mind the sewing. I like to cook, too.

So what's so terrible about that? — Handy

Handy: Nothing that I can see. In fact, you seem to be the kind of guy that it would be a joy to have around the house.

Your dad obviously feels that these are skills only for females. Some of the finest tailors and cooks are men, and they lead satisfying lives with jobs that pay well financially.

You haven't mentioned that these are skills you plan to build into a career, but using them to make your life easier and maybe a bit more enjoyable is a step that many parents would encourage.

Dr. Abraham: My good friend's parents talk to her all the time about liquor and how terrible it is. I think the way they deal with this subject is overkill. Here's why I think so.

Because they warn and threaten her so much, she began to feel that she'd like to try it. So she did, and now she has become a kind of sneak drinker.

They don't keep any liquor in the house, but I guess she thinks it is kind of cute to buy a small bottle and take a sip or more right out of it.

I can always tell when she has been drinking because she gets sort of silly and laughs kind of loud when there is no reason to.

My parents are different. We always have liquor at home in a dining room cabinet that is never locked. When company comes it is available, but I've never seen anyone drink too much. Once in a while my dad drinks from a 1-ounce shot glass when he comes home tired and weary. He and my mom even let us kids take a little bit, but that is always enough to turn us off because it tastes so bad.

I wish my friend's parents dealt with her that way. I'm working on her to get some help, and I think she will. But I feel it wouldn't be necessary if her folks were like mine.

— Moderate

Moderate: A good parent-teen relationship and the "moderation" theme work pretty well in many families, as they apparently have in yours related to alcohol. In other families an open liquor cabinet or excessive threats can bring on temptation and curiosity.

I hope you continue to try helping your friend. She needs your support more than you might recognize.

A sampler of autumn soups

By Leslie James
and Robin Kleven

Now that autumn is here, it's time to get serious about soup.

One of the trendy soups of the '80s, Black Bean Soup, gives a stellar performance. Dotted with bell peppers, tomato and onion, perfumed with cumin and rosemary, and given a subtle jolt with Spanish sherry or Madeira, it's unbeatable.

Smoked Chicken, Broccoli and Black Bean Soup started out as a "kind of potage gar-bage." One Monday a chef had three soups left over from the weekend. A broccoli soup, a chicken soup and a black bean soup, and he mixed them together to see what happened.

The soup is rich, subtly seasoned and satisfying. And the presentation is as dramatic as the flavor. Each diner is presented with a hot soup plate containing thinly sliced scallops, tiny tomato cubes and fresh chervil. Then a light, foamy broccoli cream soup is ceremoniously poured in.

Some could live on bread and water alone — if it were doctored up like the Bread Soup. Not much to look at, but brightened with garlic and sage and lightened with a touch of cream it is full of stick-to-the-ribs goodness.

And corn chowder can be made with or without smoked meat, but most prefer the sublime pairing of fresh grilled corn and smoked chicken on a chilly winter evening.

Bouillabaisse is enough to make you swoon: saffron, herbs, lobster stock and enough lobster, mussels and fish to fill a seafood market. After you've fished out all the goodies, the luxurious broth is just fine on its own.

Ruby Muscovy Duck Consomme is made from a clarified duck stock garnished with fresh ginger and a dash of beet juice. This soup is light, bright and refreshing.

For the ultimate light lunch or dinner, cook up some Avgolemono Soup, a silky lemon-egg soup thickened with rice.

BLACK BEAN SOUP I

- 2 pounds ham hocks (or bacon ends, prosciutto trimmings, ham ends)
- 4 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 medium bell peppers, chopped
- 2 cups chopped tomatoes
- 2 medium brown onions, chopped
- 4 stalks celery
- 3 quarts beef stock, medium strength (approximately 1 tablespoon bouillon to 1 cup water)
- 2 medium bay leaves
- 4 tablespoons oregano
- 3 tablespoons ground black

pepper

- 3 tablespoons salt
- 1 tablespoon crushed red chilies
- 3 tablespoons cumin
- 3 tablespoons rosemary
- 2 pounds black beans
- 2 cups sherry
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Accompaniments (optional): Salsa
- Sour cream
- Spanish cheese, such as manchego or strong Swiss cheese

Yields 12 to 15 servings.

Brown ham hocks and trimmings in 4 tablespoons oil. Add bell peppers, tomatoes, onions and celery and let them sweat for three minutes. Add half stock, bring to boil and add seasonings.

Add beans, sherry and rest of stock. Let simmer until beans are tender, adding more stock to keep soup liquid, if needed. It must be stirred regularly. Simmer approximately 2 to 3 hours.

When finished, add salt and pepper to taste. Serve with salsa and sour cream, Spanish cheese such as manchego or strong Swiss cheese, if desired.

BLACK BEAN SOUP II

- 2 cups dried black beans
- 4 ounces salt pork, diced
- 4 ounces slab bacon, sliced
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup onions, peeled and chopped
- ½ cup leeks, chopped
- ½ cup carrots, peeled and chopped
- ¼ cup celery, chopped
- 3 cups water
- 3 cups beef broth
- 1 smoked ham hock
- ½ teaspoon black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon thyme
- 1 bay leaf
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Madeira to taste

Yields 10 servings.

Soak beans overnight in cold water and drain.

Saute salt pork and slab bacon in butter until half cooked. Add onions, leeks, carrots and celery and slowly cook until tender. Add beans, water, broth, ham hock and herbs. Cook for 3 hours (covered) or until beans are tender. Remove meat from ham bone and return to soup. Discard bone and bay leaf.

Puree soup in food processor. Heat soup over low heat — if soup is too thick, thin with beef broth. Portion into hot serving bowls. Add Madeira to taste. Garnish with lemon slice and chopped hard-cooked eggs, if desired.

SMOKED CHICKEN, BROCCOLI AND BLACK BEAN SOUP

- ½ cup unsalted butter
- ½ cup carrots, diced
- ½ cup onions, diced
- ½ cup celery, diced
- 1 cup broccoli stems, peeled and diced
- 2 teaspoons dried thyme
- 2 teaspoons dried oregano
- 1 teaspoon dried sweet basil
- ¼ cup dry white wine
- 4 cups chicken stock, hot
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- ½ teaspoon Tabasco
- 1 cup smoked chicken, diced
- 1 cup cooked black beans
- 1 cup broccoli florets
- 2 cups heavy cream
- Salt and ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch mixed with a little water (optional)

Yields 4 servings.

In ¼ cup butter, saute carrots, onion, celery and broccoli stems for 5 minutes. Add thyme, oregano and basil; saute 5 minutes more. Add wine and deglaze pan.

Add hot chicken stock and reduce by ½. Add Worcestershire sauce, Tabasco, smoked chicken, beans and broccoli florets; simmer 5 minutes. Add cream, simmer 5 minutes more and season to taste (thicken with cornstarch mixed with water, if desired). Drop in remaining butter, piece by piece, stirring until melted, and serve immediately.

To make smoked chicken: On covered grill, slightly smoke boneless chicken, cooking to medium rare (about 30 minutes) — Use apple wood chips and don't allow grill to become too hot.

BROCCOLI SOUP WITH SCALLOPS

- 2 pounds broccoli
- 3 pints clear chicken stock
- ¼ cup fresh butter
- Salt and pepper
- 1 cup whipped cream
- 8 large raw scallops, finely sliced
- 1 large peeled tomato diced in ¼-inch squares
- Fresh chervil

Yields 4 servings.

Cook broccoli in salted water until crisp-tender. Immediately transfer broccoli to ice water. Drain well and pass through fine sieve.

Bring chicken stock to boil, add broccoli puree and butter. Pour in blender at high speed and run for 30 seconds. Season with salt and pepper. Add whipped cream.

Arrange finely sliced scallops in circle in very hot, deep plates (warm plates in oven). Garnish with tomato cubes and chervil in middle of plates and place in front of your guests; add soup to plates at table.

Notes: Scallops will be raw; therefore, soup needs to be extremely hot to slightly cook them when added to plate. Also, go easy on salt, since scallops are naturally high in sodium.

BREAD SOUP

- 4 strips bacon, sliced
- 1 medium yellow onion, sliced

- 4 cloves garlic, sliced
- 1½ quarts chicken broth
- 1 loaf dense, whole-grain bread, cut in 1-inch chunks
- 1 bay leaf
- 4 leaves fresh sage
- ½ pint heavy cream (optional)
- Salt, white pepper
- Garnish: Bread croutons
- 4 ounces ham, cut in ½-inch squares

Yields 6 servings.

Saute bacon until it is well done, add onion and garlic and saute in bacon fat until they are golden yellow. Add chicken broth, bread, bay leaf and sage. Bring to boil and simmer for 30 minutes. Remove bay leaf, and put soup into blender.

Mix well. Put it back into pan, bring it to boil one more time and add cream. Season with salt and pepper to taste, if necessary. Just before serving, add croutons and ham.

BOUILLABAISSE

- ¼ cup diced onions
- ¼ cup julienned leeks, white only
- ¼ cup olive oil
- 1 pound John Dory or halibut, cut into 6 pieces
- 1 pound baquette seabass, cut into 6 pieces
- 1 pound red mullet or red snapper, cut into 6 pieces
- 12 littleneck clams
- 12 black mussels
- 6 lobster tails, cut in half lengthwise
- 2 tomatoes, peeled, seeded and diced
- ¼ ounce minced garlic
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 sprig fresh thyme
- 1 sprig fresh savory
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 sprig fennel
- 1 pinch of saffron
- 5 anise stars
- 2 quarts fish stock (fresh or frozen concentrate)
- Salt and pepper
- ¼ cup butter

Yields 6 main-course servings.

Put onions and leeks into large heavy-duty pot with half of olive oil. Heat slowly, stirring frequently until leeks and onions are cooked. Add all of fish, mussels, clams, tomatoes, garlic, herbs and spices. Add fish stock and season to taste with salt and pepper. Bring to simmer over medium heat. Add butter.

Bring mixture to boil and immediately add rest of olive oil and lobster tails. Reduce heat and simmer until lobster is tender, about 10-15 minutes. Serve immediately. If desired, serve with garlic bread.

A new book for chefs who garden

A recently published book that will be of special interest to avid food gardeners is "Keeping the Harvest" by Nancy Chioffi and Gretchen Mead (Storey Publishing).

This magazine-size book is a revised edition of a highly popular 1976 publication, now updated to reflect the latest U.S. Department of Agriculture home preserving guidelines. The revised edition also reflects the now near-ubiquitous presence of the microwave oven in North American kitchens and includes directions for quick-drying fresh herbs and blanching vegetables in a microwave.

The book's preface notes what is probably the most powerful motivation most of us have for growing and preserving our own fruits and vegetables: "Putting food by is a method of self-guided quality control. You control the freshness of the original food, and you add no chemicals or preservatives in the processing, something that is not always true in the commercial preserving procedure."

Noted, too, is the natural alliance that home preserving forms with the preservation of our planet because both the growing and keeping of food lend themselves to continuous recycling. Plant wastes, for example, are recycled for reuse through composting. Canning jars are reusable almost indefinitely, and even heavy-duty freezer bags can be washed and used again.

"Keeping the Harvest" is a complete gardener's guide to home preserving for safety and optimum quality, and the book is laid out for the greatest possible ease of use. There are numerous quick-reference charts, useful sketches and sidebars with special tips or recipes.

Part I of the book deals with the different methods of preserving. Part II goes into specific instructions for preserving individual vegetables and fruits. The first chapter, "Planning Ahead," gives guidelines on how much to grow and when to plant and harvest.

Here, a "Vegetable Planning Chart" gives nutritional information, preferred seeding or transplanting time, amount to plant and the expected yields that will be gathered and canned or frozen for each vegetable. A chart titled "Our Best Methods" lists the authors' preferred methods for preserving individual vegetables and fruits for the best flavor, nutrition and convenience.

"Freezing" holds practical guidelines for choosing a freezer and using it wisely. One sidebar in this chapter gives tips on how to make an inventory of a freezer's contents. Another suggests using a salad spinner to remove excess moisture from blanched foods for freezing. Charted in this chapter are the blanching times for vegetables — in boiling water, steam and microwave.

A chart in the chapter on canning gives the acid strength of vegetables and fruits. This is an important safety reference that indicates low-acid foods that need to be processed at high heat in pressure canner.

"Jams and Jellies" describes a diversity of methods for making these products and includes recipes and a troubleshooting list to solving common problems. "Pickles and Relishes" holds many interesting-looking recipes, such as Spiced Apple Slices, and tips for pickle problem solving.

"Common Storage and Grains" delves into root cellars, garden storage and outdoor storage methods in kegs and bins. A chart notes the preferred storage conditions of individual fruits and vegetables.

The chapters in Part II of "Keeping the Harvest" describe how to harvest, prepare, and preserve each vegetable and fruit. There are growing tips and some unusual preserving suggestions such as drying green beans for a product the authors call "leather bristles." A few recipes appear here, too — salsify cakes, baked rutabagas, Linda's Summer Squash Chowder and Grandma Thurber's Pickled Peaches.

"Keeping the Harvest" can be ordered directly, send $10.95 plus $2.75 for shipping to Storey Communications Inc., P.O. Box 445, Pownal, VT 05261.

Our Children

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Brother's behavior is ticklish issue

Q. My unmarried kid brother spends a lot of time at our house. He's not really such a kid — 34 years old. He often mentions how much he enjoys being here, and I know one of the reasons why. It is because he gets such a bizarre kick out of what he calls "playing" with our 5-year-old son.

It's not playing at all. It's torture, meanness, and I guess you could call it child abuse.

He loves to tickle our little boy, and it goes on and on until our son is almost in hysterics. My brother thinks he is laughing, but because he is filling our house with his own loudness and is so involved with what he is doing, he has no idea of what is really happening to our son.

The little boy is sometimes crying bitterly and trying to get loose, but my brother just goes on and on, holding him tightly and having what he tells me is a good time.

Because his visits are usually in the early evening and my husband hasn't come home from work yet, he (my husband) doesn't know what is going on in his absence. I try to explain the horrible situation to him, but he just stuffs it off with flip comments like "It's all in fun," "Boys will be boys" and "It's just a little relief from your brother's lonely life."

I have to do something, but what? Please advise me.

A. I'm really surprised that you have tolerated his behavior at all. Perhaps you have a reason for delaying that you didn't mention, but at least you're finally facing up to this serious problem.

Your brother is inflicting physical and emotional pain on your little boy, and it has to stop — right away. Because your husband doesn't seem to understand the misery the child is exposed to, the responsibility has to be yours.

It can be handled briefly but firmly. Your comments to your brother can include something like this: You love him and want him to visit, but not under these circumstances; you also love your son and this tickling behavior is abusive; it has to stop immediately; if his urge to torture your son continues, he must stay away until he can totally control it; there are many games, quiet activities, reading possibilities and carefully selected television programs that can be substituted for the painful tickling.

You might add that not only is your son suffering, but so are you. Your child can't stand this torment and neither can you.

In the back of your mind, you might have the thought that to cope with his warped sense of humor, he should seriously consider seeking competent psychological counseling. That thought may edge into this conversation whenever it seems to fit in.

Q. Because we have only one child, we have no way to compare health problems he has (all minor ones, thank goodness) with the childhood experiences of others. One area that we hear conflicting things about relates to colds, which he has occasionally, so we'd like your opinion on them.

How are they caused, how frequently is normal, how long do they last, whether they can be serious and whether there is a cure are among our questions.

Can you help inform us on any of those matters? Thank you so much.

A. Although I perhaps could handle your questions, I think you'd be more satisfied if you obtained details on all of them from a reputable source that I'll suggest.

A very practical, brief brochure called "Facts About ... Common Cold" was prepared by the American Lung Association. It covers the kind of concerns that you mentioned.

Your local office of the association will probably send you a free copy of it if you provide a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope with your request. Their address maybe in your telephone directory. If it isn't, you might want to contact the association in another town or city nearby.

What to eat, by the stars

By Lou Marra

How does astrology figure into the foods you eat?

Joseph DeLouise, the Chicago psychic astrologer, dishes out some insight on food products that are good sources for the minerals and salts that could enhance your diet.

According to DeLouise, a person's system could lack a variety of minerals and cell salts, ranging from potassium phosphate to sodium chloride (common table salt).

Remember how your parents begged, cajoled and threatened you when you balked at eating spinach? If you were born under the signs of Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Libra and Pisces, you may have missed a good bet if you didn't eat your spinach. The potherb member of the goosefoot family is good for you, according to DeLouise's findings. And everyone else, too.

As an extra treat for Pisceans, nuts are recommended in the diet.

Figs are first-rate for you Archers (Sagittarians) reading this report, and maple syrup is Grade A for all you Mountain Goats (Capricorns).

If you are a Leo, you luck out. Chocolate, almonds and cashew nuts are in your astrological food chart.

Astrology, whose basic principle is that the heavenly bodies influence what happens on Earth, traces its roots to 2000 B.C. in what is now Iraq.

DeLouise traces his roots to the mountain country of Sicily, where he claims he learned the powers of the mind from his grandfather.

When he was 4, DeLouise used his psychic vibrations to locate a box filled with $3,000 on his grandfather's land, and his family used the money to relocate to Chicago.

Although his formal education ended with the eighth grade, he notes that he became hungry for education at the age of 40, when he knew what was inside a book without opening the cover.

In the early 1970s, DeLouise gave up his hairdressing career and became a full-time psychic.

Read on to find out what the zodiac has to say about food and you.

• Aries, the Ram (March 21 to April 19): Active, strong and fierce-tempered, they like excitement and variety. Highly competitive, they lose interest in tasks that require a long period to accomplish.

According to DeLouise, fruit and vegetable juices, almonds, bananas and potatoes are products that are good sources for the minerals that Arians may lack in their diet.

• Taurus, the Bull (April 20 to May 20): Loyal, patient, practical and trustworthy, they have down-to-earth personalities and rely on their common sense. Although not talkative, they are affectionate, friendly and warmhearted. They are even-tempered but can become fierce when angered. Those born under this sign are stubborn and tend to keep grudges.

Whole wheat, rye bread, cheese, lettuce, spinach, fish, buttermilk, celery and bananas will enrich their diets.

• Gemini, the Twins (May 21 to June 20): They are clever, curious, witty and expressive. With two-sided personalities, they change moods quickly. Most Geminis are restless and try many activities.

Cheese, oysters, egg whites, lettuce, spinach, celery, cottage cheese, milk, watercress, tomatoes, bananas, meats, coconuts, onions, most fruit juices, grapes, lemons, beets, cucumber, endive, celery and radishes will enrich their diets.

• Cancer, the Crab (June 21 to July 22): Intuitive and artistic, they are emotional and their moods change quickly. They rely more on feelings than on reason and can be difficult to get along with. They often try to appear shy but are hiding feelings that are easily hurt. Considered selfish, they prefer to dwell on their own dreams and memories instead of facing reality.

Chinese cabbage, sauerkraut, green cabbage, cauliflower, American cheese, milk, buttermilk, broccoli, watercress, spinach, turnips, carrots, lobster, clams, almonds, beans, citrus fruits and bran will enrich their diets.

• Leo, the Lion (July 23 to Aug. 22): Regarded as energetic, generous and strong-willed, they are good leaders and enjoy being the center of attention. However, they are sometimes too proud.

Chocolate, almonds, cashew nuts, lima beans, brown rice, oatmeal, raisins, yellow cornmeal, and most fruit and vegetable juices will enrich their diets.

• Virgo, the Virgin (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Intelligent, practical and sensible, they like order and tidiness in all things. They are good at concentrating on details and tend to find fault with things that others consider important. Proud individuals, they rely on reason rather than emotion. They are not natural leaders and work in the background, where they become powerful.

Beans, bran, brussels sprouts, clams, fish, lean meat, nuts, oats, oysters, wheat, watercress and vitamin B-1 will enrich their diets.

• Libra, the Scales (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): They like balance and harmony in all things and dislike conflict, disagreement and sudden change. Warm and friendly, they are good at patching up quarrels among others. They have naturally pleasant smiles.

Meat, fish, whole grains, eggs, almonds, corn, peas, spinach and most fruit and vegetable juices will enrich their diets.

• Scorpio, the Scorpion (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Aggressive and stimulated by conflict, they tend to change moods quickly, going from calm to anger and from rudeness to politeness. They are secretive and like to investigate secrets.

Beans, bran, bread, brussels sprouts, cabbage, cheese, clams, fish, lean meat, onions, oysters, peas and asparagus will enrich their diets.

• Sagittarius, the Archer (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Warm, outgoing and relaxed, they spend money impulsively. They are also considered cheerful and enthusiastic. Being independent individuals, they have difficulty accepting discipline. Onions, radishes and figs will enrich their diets.

• Capricorn, the Mountain Goat (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): They take life seriously and do not have much of a sense of humor. They overcome hardship well and enjoy the challenge of difficult problems. Not in a hurry, they don't rush into friendships. Considered stubborn, they are stern at times.

Milk, buttermilk, endive, celery, broccoli, spinach, turnips, carrots, raspberries, string beans, lettuce, eggs, shrimp, bran and maple syrup will enrich their diets.

• Aquarius, the Water Bearer (Jan. 20 to Feb. 19): Considered serious-minded, they do not respect tradition and enjoy shocking people by their actions. They have many friends but are hard to get to know deeply and avoid close personal relationships.

Rye bread, whole-wheat bread, buttermilk, bananas, celery, fresh codfish, halibut, lettuce, sweet potatoes, milk and American cheese to enrich their diets.

• Pisces, the Fish (Feb. 20 to March 20): They are ruled by their emotions rather than reason. They are talented and have vivid imaginations. However, it is difficult for them to make decisions or to solve practical problems. They often retreat from reality into a world of their own dreams and fantasies. Intelligent and friendly, they often drift from one interest or project to another. They can't commit to a long-term course of action.

Beef, liver, egg yolk, dried peas, spinach, potatoes, cheese, lima beans, white flour, oysters, seedless raisins, oranges, mushrooms, tomatoes, cabbage, carrots and beets will enrich their diets.

THE HEALTHY GOURMET

By Kit Snedaker

Main dish delights

Some of the most elegant one-dish meals were once peasant dishes born of necessity. Spain's paella and France's bouillabaisse, for instance, are waterfront fish stew/soups concocted by fishwives from the day's catch.

Originally their ingredients varied with whatever fish was running that day, but gradually over the years both settled into classic models.

Paella always contains saffron and shellfish as well as rice. Bouillabaisse always contains a rascasse or scorpion fish as well as eel, crab and about six other assorted varieties of fish, and, of course, olive oil.

Both are remarkable party fare, but paella is easier to manage. If saffron isn't available, increase the turmeric slightly, but try for saffron. Even though it's expensive, a little goes a long way and does a lot.

With this main dish, in which each mouthful is a kaleidoscope of flavors, the rest of the meal should be simple, but interesting. I like a fruity salad, good crusty bread and a sorbet.

PAELLA

- 12 clams in shells, littleneck or Manila
- 1 pound mussels in shells
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 2 pounds chicken breasts, bone in
- ½ pound hot sausage
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1½ cup short-grain rice
- 3 cups water or clam cooking liquid
- 1½ cups coarsely chopped fresh tomatoes
- 1 green pepper cut in ½-inch pieces
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 teaspoon saffron
- ¼ teaspoon ground turmeric
- Pinch cayenne pepper
- ¾ pound medium shrimp, cooked and peeled
- 1 cup fresh peas or frozen peas, thawed

Yields 6 to 8 servings.

Each serving has about 300 calories, 8 grams fat, 115 milligrams cholesterol and 430 milligrams sodium.

Scrub clams and mussels cutting off any beards from mussels. Don't use any that are open or don't close when tapped. Keep refrigerated until used.

Place clams to steam over boiling water and steam until shells open, about 3 minutes. Save liquid in steamer. Refrigerate clams.

In large skillet coated with non-stick spray heat olive oil. Add chicken and cook just until brown. Remove chicken from stove and when cool enough to handle remove and discard skin and bones. Reserve skillet. Cut chicken into bite-size pieces, and put it in paella pan or any large, shallow casserole that will go in oven.

Add sausage to skillet in which chicken was cooked and cook over medium heat until it begins to brown. Remove from stove and cut into slices. Drain fat from skillet and add sausage to chicken.

Put minced garlic in drained skillet and saute for few seconds, add rice, 3 cups clam cooking liquid or water, tomatoes, green pepper, bay leaf, saffron, turmeric, cayenne pepper and bring mixture to boil. Reduce heat and simmer for about 10 minutes. Pour this over chicken and sausage in paella pan.

The dish may be done as long as a day ahead at this point and refrigerated.

Poke mussels in top of dish and bake, covered, in oven preheated to 425 F for 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from oven, stir in shrimp, clams and peas and bake for another 10 to 15 minutes making sure mussels open and discarding any that don't. Serve at once.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q. Several years ago, we built an addition to our home. Almost immediately I noticed that the paint from the aluminum siding was slowly washing off onto the first floor of the addition, which is brick.

Is there any kind of paint I can put on the siding (along with a sealer) so we have no more runoff? What can I do to remove the paint staining that's already on the brick? I have tried to use a mild acid solution, but it was not successful.

A. Use a pressure washer to clean the siding. This will help remove any residue caused by oxidation. Be sure to wash away any paint and water residue from the brick immediately so you do not get additional staining on the brick.

To prepare the metal surface for painting, scrape off any loose paint and prime with a good metal primer. Use a quality exterior paint, one recommended for metal surfaces. One such product is Metal Siding Refinish marketed by Pittsburgh Paints. It's a urethane-modified acrylic paint that produces a harder, more durable film than ordinary house paint.

With a quality paint, properly applied, you should not have continual sluffing off of the paint onto the bricks below.

Clean the brick by starting at the top of the siding and working your way down. Wet the brick with a garden hose, then scrub the surface with a stiff-bristle brush and a solution of tri-sodium phosphate (½ cup) and household detergent (½ cup) dissolved in 1 gallon of water. Work the solution into the brick and let soak for five to 10 minutes prior to hosing off.

You may want to try one of the commercial products available for cleaning brick. Check with a masonry dealer in your area for recommendations.

When using commercial masonry cleaner, avoid any splashing on the aluminum siding or any metal surface. These cleaners may contain muriatic acid and you must use them with care. Wear safety goggles, a long-sleeved shirt, rubber gloves and a protective head covering. Cover shrubs in your work area.

Acid treatments are sometimes recommended for cleaning brick, but definitely not for light-colored brick, which is more susceptible to acid burn and stains than darker brick.

Q. I have an unusual problem. The concrete on our front walk is defaced with chewing gum. It evidently was hot and sticky and someone walked in it. The gum coloration has created an ugly yellow marking. How can I remove it?

A. The chemical composition of chewing gum varies from one manufacturer to another and the artificial colorings used create tough stains.

The Portland Cement Association recommends this method of removal for both sticky gum and caulking compounds from concrete:

Scrape as much off the surface as possible and apply a poultice impregnated with denatured alcohol. Use calcium carbonate (whiting), calcium hydroxide (lime), talc (talcum powder), fuller's earth or diatomaceous earth as the poultice base. Let the poultice stand until dry.

Brush off with a stiff brush. Wash with hot water and a strong soap, trisodium phosphate, or a commercial scouring compound. Another way is to scrape off as much chewing gum as possible and then remove the rest with a solvent such as chloroform or carbon disulfide.

If the color staining has penetrated the concrete pores, you may be unable to remove it.

Q. My living room is large and square, with a fireplace at one end and windows down the front wall. I can't seem to make the furniture — basically a sofa, chairs and a desk — fit so they look comfortable. I have to put the sofa against the far wall, where it seems too far from the fireplace. What can I do? — W.V.

A. Listen to interior designer Margot Gunther on the subject of square rooms. She did the one we show here for the Edith Wharton Showhouse in the Berkshire Mountains. It measured 16 by 16 feet and offered some of the same challenges you face. Here's how the pro handled them:

- With colors. Gunther had the walls glazed in two colors — apricot and pink — to make them look old and mellowed, and "take the edge off" their likeness, she explains.

- With illusion. The designer stood a painted screen in the fireplace corner "to destroy the squareness of the room."

- With new angles. She has angled the two fireplace chairs into the room, set the writing desk on an angle to parallel the screen, and laid the richly patterned petit-point rug diagonally across the wall-to-wall sisal carpeting.

The point, says Gunther: "You don't want a roomful of little pieces of furniture, all marching across the floor like regimented soldiers. You should introduce some irregularities and eccentricities to catch the eye."

Among her "eccentricities" is the column-cum-hat rack by the fireplace, and the coffee table, which is actually a small doghouse, upholstered to pamper any house pooch.

A do-good venture like most designer show houses around the country, the Edith Wharton Showhouse helped raise funds to restore the author's own home, the Mount, built in Lenox, Mass., in 1902, and which embodies many of Wharton's well-defined ideas about interior design.

In fact, design was the subject of the very first book she ever wrote, "The Decoration of Houses" in 1897, with Boston architect Ogden Codman Jr. as co-author. If you're really interested in classic design, both the book and the Mount are worth a visit.

SITTING PRETTY — Interior designer Margot Gunther plays the angles to give a vintage sitting room a touch of modernity.

ANTIQUE OR JUNQUE

By James G. McCollam

A fine chair by Wallace Nutting

Q. Enclosed is a picture of my brace-back Windsor chair; it is in excellent condition. It is marked "Wallace Nutting" and "326." It also has a label listing the other furniture that he made.

Please provide information and price.

A. Wallace Nutting made reproductions of American Colonial furniture. This represents the finest example of its kind. It was probably made about 1910 to 1920 and would sell for $700 to $800.

Q. This mark is on the bottom of a teapot. It is fine porcelain and decorated with pink and yellow roses trimmed with gold.

I would appreciate anything you can tell me about its origin, vintage and value.

A. Your teapot was made between 1910 and 1920 by the Carl Thieme porcelain factory in Potschappel, Germany. It would sell in an antique shop for about $50 to $60.

TIFFANY

The first of confusion to clear up is the separation of Tiffany & Co. (the Fifth Avenue jewelry store in New York) and Louis Comfort Tiffany (famous for his stained-glass lamps).

The latter's work was variously marked "Tiffany Favrite Glass," "Tiffany Furnaces," "Tiffany Glass Co.," "Tiffany Studios," "Tiffany Glass and Decorating Co." and the monogram "LCT." He had shops in New York City and Corona, N.Y.

He produced stained glass for windows and mosaics, blown glass for vases and bowls, metalwork for desk sets, candlesticks and accessories and various potteries.

It is interesting to note that Tiffany originally was an artist of considerable talent. During the 1870s, while studying in Europe, he was awed by the stained-glass windows of the European cathedrals. They inspired him to create the stained-glass lamps and windows for which he achieved such fame.

We are all so intimidated by the Tiffany lamps that have sold for hundreds of thousands of dollars that we tend to forget that there is a wealth of moderately priced items available, like a footed glass salt dish for $200, small ceramic vase for $400, a silver butter knife for $50, a bronze ashtray for $125 or even a few lamps for less than $1,000.

For those with a more active interest in the works of Louis Comfort Tiffany, there are several fine books on the subject. Recommended are "Tiffany at Auction" by Alastair Duncan (Rizzoli), "Louis C. Tiffany's Glass-Bronze-Lamps" by Robert Koch (Crown) and "Tiffany Glassware" by Norman Porter and Douglas Jackson (Crown).

Send your questions about antiques with picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 per item (limit one item per request) to James G. McCollam.

McCollam is a member of the Antique Appraisers Association of America.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Why can cats survive falls from high places? Is there something peculiar about their anatomy that enables them to fall safely or land differently from humans?

A. There are several theories regarding the ability of cats to survive long falls. The maximum speed for a cat falling through the air is approximately 60 mph. Even though gravity is pulling the cat continuously downward, the air resistance of the cat's body keeps the maximum rate of fall relatively low.

Humans falling through long distances reach maximum speeds of approximately 120 mph. This makes their landing much more destructive than that of cats.

Cats have the ability to spread their legs during long falls. This increases the amount of air resistance and slows the fall. Cats also bend their legs as they hit on all fours and this spreads the force of the collision throughout the body. This flexing of the legs allows the cat to bounce on impact, much like a parachutist does when he hits the ground.

Even though cats generally can survive long falls, they should not be dropped or thrown from tall buildings or high places. Cats should be protected from high windows and balconies. It is extremely inhumane to intentionally drop a cat from a high place.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Have you noticed the leaves on the trees have started to turn colors? As the weather gets cooler in the next few weeks, you will see more colors on the trees and then the leaves will fall to the ground.

When I was a little person, I used to help rake the leaves into big piles just so I could run and jump in them. Do you help your parents clean all the leaves off their lawn? Do they let you jump in the leaf piles afterwards?

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Waiting period for disability benefits

By William M. Acosta

Q. Why is there a five-month waiting period to get Social Security disability benefits, but you can get Supplemental Security Income benefits right after you apply? — D.K.

A. Social Security and SSI rules differ. Many workers who become disabled have other benefits, such as sick pay or disability insurance, that can be used to replace the lost income until the waiting period ends. The SSI recipient has little or no income or resources.

Q. I will be 70 in October and am still working full time. I plan to continue working. Since my earnings this year will greatly exceed the limit, will I be entitled to any Social Security benefits? — O.M.

A. You will be entitled to your Social Security benefits starting with the month you reach age 70 regardless of your total earnings for the year. People who are 70 or older do not have an earnings limit.

Q. There are so many different terms used in health insurance that it is confusing. I have Medicare, but what is a health maintenance organization? — C.L.

A. An HMO provides health care in exchange for a monthly fixed fee. Medicare beneficiaries then get all Medicare-covered hospital and medical insurance benefits through the plan. Your costs are known in advance and are generally limited to the fixed monthly premiums and minimal "copayments." Your Social Security office can tell you how to contact an HMO in your area.

Q. I have recently started my own business. How will I pay the Social Security tax? — S.I.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

A. If your net earnings are $400 or more a year, you determine your Social Security tax on self-employment income using a special income tax form (Schedule SE). You pay 15.3 percent of your taxable income into Social Security, however there are special deductions you can take that are intended to offset your tax rate. Contact Social Security for additional information about self-employment tax rates.
