How early should you start preparing your child to succeed in a top college or university?

At Portledge's Nursery School Program we begin at age 3 by surrounding children with a friendly pre-scholastic environment. By first grade, our average student is anything but average. They're computer literate and learning foreign languages.

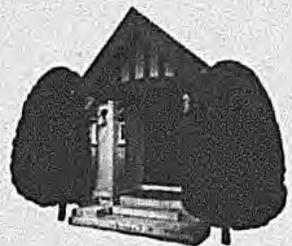

Portledge Middle School students are guided to maturity through a program which is both academically comprehensive and socially broadening. Each student is prepared to excel in the rigorous college preparatory program of Portledge's Upper School. Here, we shape the critical thinking skills and work habits that have resulted in the successful placement of our graduates at many fine colleges and universities. A superb faculty committed to personal attention, small classes, a very strong athletic program.

that's what you and your family will discover at Portledge. If the top schools, the best education, the best chance for success are what you want for your children, then you want to know more about Portledge. Write or call us today at (516) 671-1475 for our complete course listing, tuition schedule and financial aid information.

Letters

To the Editor:
"Our So-called Modern Society"

We are living in a new type of society today, a society that leaves a lot of questions unanswered! Unanswered for the common folk (the low and middle income people, the disabled and the retired). People who strive to keep their head above water month in and month out.

Where does the problem begin we ask? Well, most executives in business and politics today are followers. "Yes people" who don't know how to stand on their own two feet. Afraid to sink or swim with their own decisions and therefore protect themselves and do not worry about you and me until they need our help. "It is time for the common folk to be heard and seen."

We must take a stand and protect what is important to us. Our jobs, homes and community are what every person cares about. If all of these things are in place, we are content as human beings.

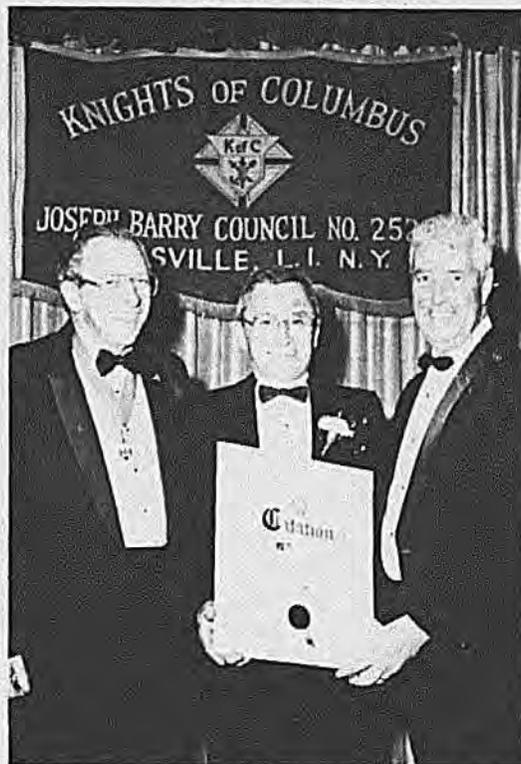

Let's look at what we believe is the road ahead of us. Nassau's Sales Tax has risen to the highest in the country!! After elections (if we do not change things) we could see high increases in property taxes that could force us to sell our homes and move out of New York State? If the rumors are true, we are certainly in for it! So, we are in trouble! Unfortunately we do not have a real old fashioned Robin Hood who stole from the rich to care for the common folk. But, be assured, we have some one who comes real close to the above. Yes, this year we have a chance to improve our lives with a man who has risen in the ranks of politics on his own merits. A man who thinks before he speaks. A gentleman who has won his present elected position over and over again. Democrats and Republicans have given him the votes each time, so that he could return to his present office as Assemblyman. Yes, Lewis Yevoli does get the job done, for he truly believes in his decisions. So, it's our turn now to help ourselves. Apathy we know hurts and it seems over the past decade to hurt us more and more, because we have allowed it to happen. Our County Government can be changed if we make up our minds to change it. It's time, don't you think? Assemblyman Lew Yevoli is running for the position of Supervisor for the Town of Oyster Bay. Let's all get together for the good of our people and place in office a person who really cares about your good and welfare.

Elected to the position of Supervisor, he can also change the picture for the entire County of Nassau. Remember your vote does make a difference, and that difference is needed this November.

Vote for Lew Yevoli, he can make the difference for you.

Sincerely,
Mal Tarkin
the Long Island
Association of Crime
Prevention
Officers:
Chief, Jericho
Auxiliary Police

Senior Citizens At Mt. Snow

"Our Lady of Mercy Hicksville Senior Citizen Club enjoyed four great days at Mt. Snow, Vermont (September 27 through September 30). They stopped at Woodbury Commons, Central Valley, N.Y., on their trip up, and then at Empire Plaza in Albany, N.Y. on their return. While touring the Mt. Snow, Vermont area, they were much impressed with the brilliant fall foliage known only to that section of New England. It was indeed a fabulous vacation enjoyed by 44 members of the club.

Local Goodwill Soccer Player

Jason Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart, Syosset, and member of the Class of 1993 at the Kent School, a coeducational boarding school in Kent, Connecticut played back on Kent's Varsity Soccer team as it met in friendly competition with a touring soccer team made up of 14-17 year old boys selected from several high schools in Hanoi, North Vietnam.

Very spirited play, in this the first of an historic series of "good will" games to be played by this Hanoi squad in the coming weeks in the United States, resulted in a "diplomatic" 3-3 tie.

Also we will present, The John Toner Award to a boy in our Senior Division and the Jennifer Gomez Memorial Award to a girl in our 5th grade division. All youths who will be receiving trophies will be receiving a call from his or her coach.

The Board of CYO would like to "Thank" all the youths who participated in the, Hicksville Charity Tournament. With your dedication and sincere devotion, each and everyone of you helped raise, $13,200.00 for children with life threatening illnesses. You and your families helped "Make A Dream Come True".

At tournaments like this so many people help and it's very hard sometimes to thank each one, but we would like to acknowledge a few men (two of whom didn't even have their children playing in the games they came down to help support). A big "Thank You" from the hearts of the children goes to, Mr. John Haley for umpiring the first boys game, and to Mr. Dan Rogers who also helped to umpire. ## News From VFW Post

By P. P. C. Carmine A. Somma

This is the time of year all Committee & Chairmen get in high gear. Our Sr. Vice Comdr. Dennis Ladislav has a committee that goes on all year round. This is "Membership." His job is to collect dues and bring in new members. If you are a veteran who served in the Armed Forces during W.W.II, Korea, Vietnam, Lebanon (1958), Grenada (1983), Panama (1989-90) Persian Gulf (1990-91) or any current conflict, you can join the V. F. W. Women are eligible to join also. For more information give Dennis Ladislav a call at 931-7843. We have our meetings every 2nd and 4th Monday of each month at 320 So. B'way in Hicksville. You must show your DD-214 to join.

From October to January we are the only organization for the V. F. W. in the Hicksville area that will be soliciting ads for our Souvenir Journal by letters. No phone calls will be made. Our Jr. Vice Comdr. Victor Ribando is busy with our Community Service Book. On September 1, the Annual Fireman's Labor Day Color guards participated. On Labor Day September 2, the Post Members put the flags along Broadway and the side streets.

Exciting developments were announced for the women veterans' health program at Northport: additional staff, new equipment, and a renewed dedication to providing quality service to Northport women veterans in the areas of health education, preventive medicine, health care and treatment. Women's Health Clinic meets Wednesday mornings in Outpatients Building 2. Any eligible woman veteran may call for an appointment. A yearly pap test and mammography are two preventive examinations that are offered and important to every woman's health. Many women veterans have already taken advantage of Northport's new mammography unit. Women veterans' support group has recently been formed by Social Work Service. The group focuses on issues of concern to women veterans including military or current life situations. For more information about this support group please contact Ms. Barbara Rio, Social Work Trainee at Ext. 7029.

Preventive medicine clinic Northport V. A. Medical Center is happy to announce the opening of the Preventive Medicine Clinic. The clinic is geared towards the early detection of illnesses. Counseling immunization, and follow-up care are among the services offered. The Preventive Medicine clinicians offer screening evaluations that are designed to detect silent illnesses and risk factors at an early stage. Some of the screening tests available are: Cholesterol Level Measurement, Blood Pressure Check, Glaucoma Testing, Pap Smear for Cervical Cancer, Mammogram for Breast Cancer, Osteoporosis, Diabetes, Colon Cancer, Obesity, HIV testing (Aids).

Veterans who are not currently receiving treatment for medical illnesses are invited to schedule an appointment Monday through Friday from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. by calling 754-7020. The clinic's hours are 8 a.m. to 12 noon on Monday. Be sure to ask about special evening appointments.

The week of February 2-8, 1992, there is a P. O. W.-M. I. A. Vigil to support the return of all P. O. W.-M. I. A.'s from all the wars in Southeast Asia and Korea. Please won't you support these brave Americans?

There are over 2,282 men who are not accounted for or left imprisoned in Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia. In W.W.II, there were 78,750 and during the Korean War 8,160 Americans were listed as unaccounted for. We want them home now. While we are all in the patriotic mood now is the time for us to demand the truth and show our support for the P. O. W.'s/M. I. A.'s. Don't take down your yellow ribbons and flags, instead leave them up until the P. O. W.'s/M. I. A.'s are home or accounted for. To show your support of this issue, add a black ribbon to your yellow ribbon and display it proudly. The black ribbon represents the men who have not come home from W. W. II, the Korean War and Vietnam. Contact your representatives and inform them that you want the truth about the P. O. W.'s/M. I. A.'s. Maybe by helping the Vietnam Veterans bring home their fellow brothers we can make up for the injustice we have caused them over the past 20 years.

The Comdr. of Wm. M. Gouse Jr. V. F. W. Post 3211 Vincent Ferrara, and the Ladies Auxiliary President Joan Chwalisz, are pleased to announce that the 1991-92 Voice of Democracy Contest in the local school is underway and they are alerting students about the contest. mum of 5 minutes, and be judged on their interpretation of theme "Meeting America's Challenge." The deadline is Friday, November 1. Classroom teachers will provide all the details.

Bill Bennett has been appointed Chairman of the V. F. W. Voice of Democracy Program and the judges this year are Mr. James Black, a member of our Hicksville Community Council and Mr. Donald Skupinsky, a fifth grade teacher at Lee Avenue School. Awards will be given to all winners and participants on February 7, 1992. The V. F. W. urges all students to participate.

1991 TOB Ice Skating Fees

The Oyster Bay Town Board has approved a schedule of fees for the Town's three ice skating rinks which reflects no increase over 1986 levels, according to Town Councilman Leonard Kunzig.

"Ice skating is a good, old-fashioned winter sport," Councilman Kunzig stated, "and thanks to the Town's careful fiscal management, residents will be able to enjoy ice skating at the Town's three rinks at good, old-fashioned 1986 prices."

All rinks will be open for public skating sessions beginning Saturday, November 23, weather permitting. "The three outdoor rinks are located at the Bethpage, Marjorie R. Post (Massapequa) and Syosset-Woodbury Community Parks," Councilman Kunzig stated. "General admission for two hour public skating sessions at all rinks will be $2 for skaters 16 years and older and $1 for children 15 and under. A reduced rate of $3.50 per two-hour session for seniors age 62 and older will be available again this year, as will a discount rate of $5.00 for volunteer firefighters and auxiliary police with proper identification. In addition, a special $1. one-hour session rate will be in effect at the Bethpage rink for skaters 16 years and older, $5.00 for children 15 and under and free for seniors age 62 years and older as well as volunteer firefighters and auxiliary police on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 12 noon to 1 p.m. and 1 to 2 p.m.

"Skaters of any age should take advantage of special discount books of 10 tickets which are available," the Councilman continued. "A book of ten tickets for adults 16 and older is only $10, and for children 15 and under, a discount book is $5. With the holidays just around the corner, a discount ticket book would make a great gift for the ice skater on your list."

A new offering this year is geared for those who enjoy speed or fitness skating. A special session at the Bethpage skating rink on Sunday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. will be devoted to skaters who practice the sport for its physical benefits. Admission will be the same as for regular two hour sessions.

For further information contact the Department of Parks, located at Town Hall South, 977 Hicksville Road, Massapequa, at 795-1000.

Woodbury Man Honored

George Skurla

George M. Skurla of Woodbury, former president of Grumman Corporation, was recently honored by the Florida Institute of Technology when it named its new School of Aeronautics building the George M. Skurla Hall.

The new building will house the school's faculty, labs and a 125-seat auditorium. The move recognizes Skurla's contribution to the American aerospace industry and his commitment to the university.

"The School of Aeronautics building represents a cornerstone of our campus," said Dr. Lynn E. Weaver, president of F.I.T., "so it is only fitting that it bear the name of a man who has done so much to promote the growth and development of the university." Skurla is a member of the university's board of trustees.

Skurla came to Grumman in 1944, after studying aeronautical engineering at the University of Michigan. He was appointed chief of structural flight test in 1950, and in 1965 was named head of Grumman operations at Kennedy Space Center, Florida, during the final assembly, tests and preflight checkout of the Grumman-built Apollo lunar module which landed men on the moon.

Skurla served as president and chief operating officer, and later chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Grumman Aerospace, then the flagship subsidiary of Grumman Corporation. He was elected president of the parent company in 1985. Skurla retired in 1986, and is now a senior management consultant.

ARE YOU OVERLOOKING LONG ISLAND'S WILDEST NIGHTLIFE?

The black-crowned night heron (Nycticorax nycticorax) is a mostly nocturnal native Long Islander who is highly discriminating. You won't find him at just any watering hole. And for dinner the fish had better be fresh, the ambience unhurried.

You might say the black-crowned night heron is a hard bird to please. But The Nature Conservancy has been working hard for 38 years to provide the night heron and hundreds of other animals and plants the finest accommodations available on Long Island.

We've saved 18,000 acres of ecologically significant land on Long Island alone, from the last 19-acre remnant of the Hempstead Plains to our 2,000-acre

Mashomack Sanctuary on Shelter Island. Nationwide, we've preserved nearly 4 million acres of forest, prairie, desert, island, and mountain. And our international program is fighting to save the world's rapidly vanishing rain forest. You can help The Nature Conservancy do its vitally important work. For $15, not much more than the cover charge for one of Long Island's hottest night spots, you can become a member of the Long Island Chapter. You will receive the Long Island Chapter Newsletter and

The Nature Conservancy Magazine to keep you informed of Conservancy activities. As a member of the Long Island Chapter, you can participate in hikes and education programs led by experienced naturalists, and you are welcome to volunteer to take part in Chapter operations.

If you're concerned about Long Island—not just about its native flora and fauna but also about the water we drink, the air we breathe, and the quality of life here—we urge you to give us a hand. Just call (516) 367-3225. You can help protect your environment. And you can have a wild time!

$25 Million Improvements At Glen Cove Hospital

An unprecedented commitment of over $25 million has just been made by the Board of Trustees of North Shore University Hospital to its Glen Cove facility to upgrade, expand, and renovate its physical plant. This is the first time in the hospital's 70-year history that a program of this size has been undertaken.

More than $15 million of that sum will be spent on general renovations within the hospital.

This will include replacement and repair of the air-conditioning, heating, and ventilation systems, upgrading of the electrical system, and new plumbing in the older wings. Repairs to the roofs, roads, walkways, and exterior lights have already begun. In addition, the entire interior of the hospital will be redecorated, including patient rooms, waiting rooms, lounges, administrative offices, and the main lobby.

As part of this overall restructuring program, North Shore University Hospital at Glen Cove will open a 22-bed Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation Unit on November 10. This newly created area is designed to provide physical, occupational, and speech therapy to patients who have suffered strokes, spinal-cord injuries, and multiple trauma. In addition, the program can help patients with Guillain-Barrie Syndrome, multiple sclerosis and other neuromuscular diseases, chronic back pain, amputations, and arthritis.

Another major part of the overall plan is the enlargement and improvement of maternity facilities at the hospital. A newly constructed Family Birthing Center will be completed by the end of the year which gives women the opportunity to "customize" their childbirth experience through suites designed to accommodate labor, delivery, recovery, and the postpartum process. New office space has already been created for a full-time perinatologist specializing in high-risk births, and additional space has been redesigned for two fulltime neonatologists who will provide specialized care for infants who are born prematurely or who have or develop medical problems.

Who Will Be Our Next Solomon?

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Do you think the last minute hearings on Judge Thomas were needed?

Input Callers Mixed Views On Health Ins.

Callers to Input think that health insurers should have a way of equalizing payments on health insurance to carry high risk users but answers were mixed on this question: "Should health care insurers increase rates for high risk patients similar to automobile insurers?" Here are some of the answers:

SHOULD BE SOME WAY

Insurance companies should have some means of equalizing risks, but the basic idea of insurance is to hedge bets on the number of claims one would make on a policy. For instance if you go for years and pay in and do not take out anything, the insurance companies are not suggesting that they will return money to you. This goes to cover the bad risks. So on that it would be wrong to charge people more when they use more health care. There are those who do use more health care than they are entitled to by being hypochondriacs but this is a small part of the cost problem. I believe that there is going to have to be some form of supplementary insurance given by the government if private insurance companies continue to increase rates beyond many people's reach. H.G.

HIGHER DEDUCTIBLE

I think that some forms of medical care could have a higher deductible but this would be in the policy to start. Cosmetic surgery, if covered, should be extra, elective operations might be done on call by hospitals when they have less work to do, but in general it would not be insurance if it did not cover the real needs for the people when they need it. J.M.

NEEDS OVERHAUL

The entire field of health insurance and costs needs to be overhauled. Unfortunately I see no way that we will be able to avoid some form of National Health Insurance. The only question is how to keep the fakes and swindlers from getting hold of it and bankrupting the taxpayer. This will require fee scheduling for doctors and health care providers, set perhaps on time given to the patient plus the years of skill of the doctor. But it would have to be based on something that can be calculated. Presently the cost of a broken arm from one doctor to another can be two to three times higher and no way is given to determine what is a fair fee. All of those things will have to be worked out before we go national. F.V.

INSURANCE USAGE

I think that many people who have health care insurance use the policies far more than those who have no insurance or limited insurance. I am not sure that those who use the insurance more are any healthier. But it still would be difficult to judge who should pay more and for what reason. M.G.

WHEN WILL HELP COME

The question is not the right one to ask. The real question is when will the government find out that it must insure all of the people who have no insurance at all or cannot afford the tremendous costs of Blue Cross. The insurance companies in many ways have made the costs go up because they pay for many things without even checking them out. Blue Cross and Blue Shield have built up a bureaucracy so that the policy holders can never get through to anyone who has answers and they seldom care what they pay or do not pay. If the government gets involved in health care the worst thing would be if it takes over Blue Shield. That and other insurers should go out of existence because they are doing a poor job. M.J.

NON PROFIT

I believe that health care should be run as a non profit organization shared by all people similar to the way it is done in Europe, not as a big money making business where a small percentage of people have to suffer because of their health. Automobiles are a different story often the driver is responsible for his actions. But a person is not responsible for their medical problems and therefore they should be shared by everyone. That should be the American way that we live by the dollar but we live for the needs of the people. K.F.

NATIONAL POLICY

This is a question the answer to which may represent a commitment directly opposed to my innermost sentiments. I feel that health care insurance generally has been increasing in cost all out of proportion to the earning capacity of the insured. If we were to tie the problem to algebraic formula ignoring the excessively high levels of medical costs, the "Question" answers itself. Certainly, health care insurers should increase rates for high risk patients similar to automobile insurers. However, I, like many other retirees on fixed incomes as well as workers with relatively low salaries, have a primary consideration to face and that is to be able to afford the constantly increasing and uncontrolled cost of medical fees. Unfortunately, your "Question" has to be regarded as theoretical but when a person reaches the point where he or she simply can no longer afford health care insurance of any kind, obliged to cross fingers and pray for continuing good health, the problem becomes specious. I don't think we have any other choice as a nation but to face up to the need for a national health policy to insure everyone for health care uniformly. P.G.S.

"You shoot an arrow into a far-distant future when you appoint a Justice and not the man himself can tell you what he will think about some of the problems that he will face." Alexander M. Bickel.

Nine Supreme Court Justices, as a consequence of the constitutionally created separation of powers, are required to answer social, economic, philosophical and political questions. These questions are in the form of lawsuits. They are submitted to the Supreme Court to secure by a majority vote an ultimate resolution. Most of the issues presented to the Court arouse considerable emotions. Sometimes these questions deeply divide. Justices are required to use then best judgement to wrestle with the meanings found in the Constitution and past legal precedence in order to resolve these controversies.

Standards for Supreme Court Justices are easily assumed by most people. Sometimes, formation of these opinions do not take into consideration the complexity of the process. Opinions are taken cavalierly. Is there a clear understanding of the selection process and criteria for a Supreme Court Justice? Those involved in the selection process are the President, Senate, people, Court (with it's history and traditions). However, in over two centuries of Court History ideology has not played a substantial part in Court deliberations.

References to the Supreme Court are found in Article II and Article III of the Constitution. Article III, Section 1 says: "The judicial Power of the United States, shall be vested in one Supreme Court..." Section 2: "The judicial Power shall extend to all Cases, in Law and Equity, arising under this Constitution, the Laws of the United States..." Article II, Section 2: "He (the President) shall have power, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate...shall appoint...Judges of the Supreme Court..."

In the spirit of "Eighteenth Century Enlightenment" and the British system of "Parliamentary Supremacy," the framers of the Constitution formulated a system of "checks and balances" to prevent incursion by any branch of government. Past experience has demonstrated greater reaction by the Executive and Legislative Branches to political pressure. The Court, from guidelines in the Constitution, has continually performed in a dynamic political environment. Awareness of a charged political atmosphere has always been reflected by the Court.

The difference between "majority decisions" of a parliamentary system and a constitutional system is the careful balancing of "majority rule" and "individual rights." This is interpreted by the Supreme Court. The balancing of "majority rule" and "individual rights" in a case by case approach has continually been maintained by the Supreme Court and stands as a monument to those that have served on the Court.

Neither the Constitution nor any other federal statute requires specific qualifications for the office of Justice. An individual is selected by the President on the basis of merit, judicial recommendation, political compatibility and personal friendship. Henry J. Abraham, gives a composite portrait of those who have served on the Supreme Court: one hundred and one men and one woman, ninety-six native born, one black, ninety-one Protestant, six Roman Catholic, five Jewish, fifty to sixty years old, all except fifteen were of Anglo-Saxon ethnic stock, all but a handful were from an upper middle to high social status, reared in a nonrural but not necessarily urban environment, "civic-minded, politically aware, economically comfortable family (all except a handful); holders of B.A. in this century, LL.B or J.D. degrees (with one-third from "Ivy League" institutions). "It was not until 1922 that the majority of sitting Justices was composed of law school graduates and until 1957 that every Justice was a law school graduate". (1:68)

The President is influenced by political considerations rather than the general belief that he can pick anyone he desires. The Senate's "Advice and Consent" is neither routine nor perfunctory. It has refused to confirm twenty-seven Supreme Court nominees out of the total of 139 (1:68). Lyndon B. Johnson nominated his friend Abe Fortas but could not get him confirmed. Franklin D. Roosevelt tried to increase the Court to fifteen members in 1937 (court packing) but could not get it passed the Senate Judiciary Committee. The President must demonstrate an astute understanding of all that is involved in the selection process if his appointment is to be ratified. The individual chosen must not have only all of the professional competence and integrity but a synergistic attitude to convince all parties to the selection process that he or she can make a major contribution to the deliberations of the Supreme Court.

The people have the least direct effect on the selection and functioning of the Supreme Court. Some critics have contended that our form of constitutionalism was designed for a "governing elite from popular scrutiny and control." Others have "reduced jurisprudence to politics and charged that judges wrote their conservative policy preferences into law under the guise of legal principles. The only remedy they could suggest, however, was the appointment to the bench of liberals who would promote the public welfare in a more enlightened, albeit equally subjective, fashion" (Bloomfield, Maxwell 1:322w). The people see two opposing approaches and do not understand why they cannot be reconciled. Ultimately their voices are heard at the ballot box. Laws are made by elected legislative bodies, not by judicial life-time appointees.

The court has sometimes been compared to a pendulum gliding between "Judicial activism" and "Judicial restraint." One of the first activist positions of the Court was taken by Chief Justice John Marshall in Marbury v. Madison (1803) when he wrote, "The province of the Court is, solely, to decide on the rights of individuals, and not to presume any larger role. "Judicial activism" or "Judicial restraint" in the past two centuries has seen Justices interpret the Constitution in a personal manner. A special resilience has been achieved by this seesawing activity of the Court. The history of the Court has proven that the Court is adept at balancing the "majority rule" and "individual rights" (Van Alstyne 21031-1038).

Studies indicate that a Justice will retain deeply held beliefs and values but will modify these principles depending on "the state of the law, external events, the collegial decision-making structure and process, and perception about the Court's proper role." Even ideology does not play a substantial role in the end result of the Court's deliberations. It has been determined reviewing past Court's decisions whether labeled one of the two theoretical extremes that Justices are in agreement in more cases than not (Howard 91-94).

Decisions by and appointment to the Supreme Court generate emotional response and reactions. Special interest groups and media appear to be most stringent in pursuing an agenda. They usually profess to be either strict Constitutionalist or activist in using the court for social change. Both must recognize that an individual of integrity that they want selected will not necessarily represent their point of view. As a member of the Court the individual selected should be free from political pressure and should decide issues balancing majority rule with individual rights. In the course of American Supreme Court Justices, as products of this selection process have demonstrated a love of country and people rather than a narrow philosophical view of government in their judicial decisions.

READER RATINGS

Questions of tipping seem constantly to bedevil people. For example, when should you tip? When should you not? How much is proper? Is it humiliating to under-tip, crass to overtip?

Tipping traditionally was a reward for proper service — or even extra-special service — but it no longer is in our society. Instead, it is considered by employers and service employees alike as an integral part of the incomes of many employees — regarded as their right due, with no extra effort expended.

We therefore must live with the system as it is — not as it should be! Whenever you become irritated, upset, disappointed or intimidated by having to tip, just remember the many fine people in the service industries who are cheerful, courteous kind and experts in their work. Think positive; think about them, the people who really deserve your generosity!

My philosophy is that you don't have to tip when:

• A person is overly hostile and rude.

• Someone takes you for a ride (such as a cabdriver literally does when he takes you the long way to your destination to drive up the meter).

However, I also think you should tip anyway if you found the service disappointing — a lower tip than you normally give — accompanied by a calm explanation of why you have tipped less than usual.

Intelligent people learn from just criticism, kindly given, so when you criticize, begin your remarks by saying something like this: "I just want you to know why this tip is less than what I usually give. You are a very intelligent person, I can see that, so you should be aware of what went wrong today at this meal."

Here are some common tipping occasions, with my suggestions:

At a luxury restaurant.
20 percent of food bill, to be split two-thirds to waiter and one-third to captain.

8 percent of cost of the wine to go to sommelier (wine steward).

$1 per coat to coat check person.

$2 to doorman for getting your cab, $5 if he performs a miracle in the pouring rain.

At a modest restaurant.
12 percent to 15 percent of food bill, all to go to the waiter.

There is no wine steward; wine would come under bill total for waiter.

$1 for coat checker, but often there is none.

Sorry, get your cab yourself!

Advice and rules notwithstanding, tip the way you want to — but remember that to be a skintight when you have money makes you unloved by everyone. Even more important, people in the service industries want to be treated with respect and dignity. That is more important than any money you put into their hands!

If you've got one last meal on earth, you know it's not going to be Slimfast. Just for the sake of a game, let's say this happened: space aliens are going to beam you to a kinder, gentler world, but first, they have the power to satisfy your ultimate culinary whim.

This, at least, was the highly reasonable proposition I presented to several of my wine-and-food-loving acquaintances. Anything goes, I said. Little did I know ...

Manhattan-based restaurant wine consultant and author Joshua Wesson: "I would board the Concorde to Geneva, where I would pick up a very fast, German-engineered, fahrvegnugen-filled sports car. I would don incredibly thin Italian leather shoes, snap on my deer-skin gloves and make a bee-line to Crissier, home of Freddy Girardet's restaurant. I would park right in front of the restaurant — it's my last meal, what do I care if it's ticketed and towed?"

"I would sit down at a table for four, and ask him to do one of his special tasting menus, which usually consists of eight courses. I would start out with a great bottle of Swiss wine, one from right around him, like a 1989 Chasselas from Valette. I would work my way up to a 1971 Domaine de la Romanee Conti La Tache (from Burgundy), and end with a 1967 Chateau D'Yquem (dessert wine). I would save the last sip for Girardet's passion fruit soufflé, a portion meant for two ... but with only one spoon."

 My fish-loving, vegetarian wife: "I'd start out with a shellfish extravaganza. As much as I could eat of the following — and it's important to have as much as I could eat: spicy boiled crawfish, fried oyster loaves, and soft shell crabs broiled with lemon and parsley." (My wife is from New Orleans, if you were wondering).

"I'd have the shellfish with endless glasses of Bollinger RD Champagne. Then — and maybe this isn't everybody's idea of a fantasy dessert — an assortment of crusty breads and soft, creamy cheeses. I'd have some chevre and Pont L'Eveque. And with that, I want a bottle of Sassicaia (a red wine from Tuscany). It has such a spicy, aromatic, deeply appealing taste."

Jan Stuebing, former director of public relations for Food and Wines from France: "I would want to be out of doors on a beautiful, warm autumn afternoon overlooking brightly colored leaves and a river valley somewhere. You know, a picnic. Of course I'd have Krug Champagne and an appetizer buffet. It would include tuna carpaccio, steak tartare and fresh radishes with sweet butter. With the main course we would have Chateau Beaucastel 1970 — I had a hard time deciding whether it would be Cote Rotie or Chateauf-neuf-du-Pape. The (Chateauf-neuf) Beaucastel won out.

READER RATINGS

Q. What if you are dining in a restaurant as someone's guest and you are longing for a glass of wine? Is it all right to order it if no one else had one?

A. If your host, for one reason or another, does not order wine for your table, you are better off leaving the subject untouched. It might embarrass the person to realize the wine was forgotten, or perhaps that he couldn't afford to order it.

Q. If you're at a very posh restaurant and you're confronted with a maître d'hotel, captain, wine steward, and waiter, what in heaven's name do you give in tips?

A. A "posh restaurant" requires no less than 20 percent, but it usually ends up being more. If you're in a less expensive restaurant, 15 to 18 percent is the usual tip.

In a very fine restaurant, add 20 percent on to the bill or the credit-card slip, but then divide the 20 percent into a major share for the waiter, and a lesser share for the captain.

For example, a dinner for two might cost $100 in a luxury spot. Twenty percent of $100 is $20, so you would give $15 to the waiter and $5 to the captain. If a wine steward served you (a sommelier), you would give him $3 for your bottle of wine. On your way out, you would give the headwaiter anywhere from one to five dollars, depending on how much attention he gave you. Then the coatroom person would receive another $1. The man out in front who gets your cab receives another $1.

A "simple" dinner for two has therefore cost at least $126. In a more modest location, the total will be, thankfully, less.

You use mushrooms a lot

But they often go "funny" in the refrigerator.

Here's how to keep them firm:

1. Never store mushrooms in a plastic bag. Plastic retains the humidity, hampering the flow of air, which causes decay.
2. Use a paper or cotton bag, which keeps contents dry.
3. Enjoy the mushrooms since a full cup contains only 21 calories.

READER RATINGS

Recently I attended a wedding reception at Coral House in Baldwin with its panoramic view of Milburn Lake. The grounds and terraces were covered with magnificent flowers. It was a wonderful opportunity to take pictures of the newlyweds and their guests and I was glad I had my camera along!

The room where the reception was held was beautifully decorated ranging from skylight and hanging plants to floor to ceiling windows and fireplaces. It is no surprise to me that Coral House is now one of Long Island's most popular dining and catering facilities.

The menu was beyond description. The food was delicious and beautifully served. I heartily recommend Coral House to anyone contemplating a wedding or other special occasion. M.M.

Q. When writing to ask for information, check on an order or make a complaint, I never know how to address the letter if I don't know to whom I'm writing. I have a feeling that if I write "Dear Madam," my letter will probably be opened by a man, and I will have started off on the wrong foot with him. What is the proper way to address correspondence to an anonymous individual?

A. The very nicest way is to use as a salutation "Ladies and Gentlemen": No one would possibly fault you for addressing them in that manner.

Autumn applesauce ideas

While apples are available all year 'round, autumn is traditionally thought of as apple time, when this most versatile fruit is abundant and at its peak.

There are plenty of ways to enjoy apples: in ice-cold apple juice, hot spiced cider, apple strudel, apple pancakes. Serve them shredded into cole slaw or diced into chicken salad. And, of course, there's the great American apple pie.

Just as delicious are plain raw apples. The International Apple Institute says that more than half of the United States crop is eaten as fresh fruit.

There may well be some truth to the old saw about an apple a day keeping the doctor away: An average size apple provides fiber, minerals and vitamins at only around 80 calories. And a crunchy raw apple helps clean the teeth when eaten at the end of a meal.

Nutritionists tell us that we should eat two or more servings of fruit each day. Yet studies have shown that on any given day nearly half of all Americans eat no fruit at all. Applesauce provides one easy way to make sure you get the fruit your body needs. It's smooth, easy to eat, sweetly apple-flavored, and goes well with a number of other foods.

If you're watching your waistline, you should know that there may be a difference of 30 to 60 calories (the equivalent of up to 1½ tablespoons of sugar) between unsweetened and sweetened applesauce. Brands marketed as "natural" should contain apple puree with nothing else added (except perhaps water).

It's so easy to microwave your own applesauce. This way, you know what's in it (some manufacturers add unnecessary ingredients like salt, artificial colors, etc.) and you can sweeten, or not, to suit your own taste. Besides, making your own sauce preserves that great fresh apple flavor.

To microwave fresh applesauce, combine 3 cups peeled, thinly sliced apples and ¼ cup water in a 1-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover and microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting 6 to 10 minutes or until apples are very soft, stirring once or twice. Stir in up to ¼ cup of granulated sugar or honey, if desired. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Yields about 2 cups.

To retain fiber, don't peel apples; simply wash well and remove core. Leaving the peel in your apple sauce intensifies apple flavor and also adds a light rosy blush (if you're using red apples). Make applesauce a little at a time, or prepare a large batch and freeze in small containers for snacks.

The most popular eating apples are Red and Golden Delicious, Jonathan, and McIntosh. The last two are also good for cooking. Other great cooking apples are Rome Beauty, Granny Smith, York and Stayman. Try experimenting with different varieties of apples — you might combine tart and sweet — for your own custom blend.

Applesauce makes a great snack, satisfying that sweet tooth and providing healthful nutrients without the fat and calories of most treats. And it's good with meals from breakfast to dinner: Try applesauce with pancakes, blintzes, cottage cheese, as a side dish with roast meats. Or try the following recipe ideas.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.

APPLESAUCE BROWNIES

- 1 stick (¼ pound) butter or margarine
- 2 ounces unsweetened baking chocolate
- 1 cup brown sugar, packed
- ¼ cup applesauce
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon each baking powder and baking soda
- 1 cup chopped walnuts
- ¼ cup raisins (optional)

Yields 16 2-inch brownies.

Preparation time: 10 to 15 minutes.

Cooking time: 16 to 22 minutes (plus standing time to cool).

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power); LOW (30 percent power).

Microwave butter and chocolate in large microwave-safe mixing bowl at HIGH setting until melted, 2 to 4 minutes.

Stir in brown sugar, applesauce and vanilla, then beat in eggs 1 at a time. Sift together flour, baking powder and baking soda. Add ¼ cup at a time to brownie mixture. Fold in nuts and raisins.

Butter an 8-inch round pie plate and sprinkle lightly with granulated sugar; add brownie batter and spread evenly. Invert a saucer on oven floor; place pie plate atop saucer. Microwave at LOW setting 14 to 18 minutes, or until toothpick inserted near center comes out clean. Top will appear moist but will set with standing. Let stand, loosely covered with waxed paper, 5 minutes, then allow to stand, uncovered, until completely cool.

FOR TEENS

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Dr. Abraham: I'm a short guy (about 5 feet 5 inches) and my girlfriend is about an inch taller. When she is with me she wears flat shoes. If she didn't, she would be that much taller. That little difference doesn't bother either of us at all, so far anyway.

The only person it seems to bother is her mother. She doesn't have anything against me except that I'm not so. We've only met once, and then only for a few minutes.

What is the best way to handle this? Any ideas? Thanks. — Shorty

Shorty: If you have the kind of personality that most people seem to like, one approach you could use is to help her mother get to know you better. Because your girlfriend obviously knows both of you very well, see how she feels about that possibility.

Another way that perhaps may help soften up her mother is for your girl to tell her some of the traits you have which she likes, especially if they are ones that would also appeal to her mother.

However, for either you or your girl to come on too strong in your efforts may only work against you. A gradual attempt toward enlightening her mother may be more effective.

In the meantime, enjoy each other, and please try not to let this factor interfere in any way with your feelings and your girl's.

Dr. Abraham: I have the same problem dealing with narrow-minded people as someone else who wrote to you. And like that person, these people are close to me, like relatives, friends' parents and adult friends.

I know that one is supposed to respect adults, but how can I do that when they don't respect the differences among other people? Religion, race and nationality are some of the factors that separate individuals from the masses. Don't they realize how boring life would be if everyone were the same?

I, too, have been called a "liberal," but that's moving into political territory, and my ideas have very little to do with politics. Put simply, they stem from what I have come to view as right and wrong, a very basic childhood concept. I feel that a group (race, denomination or nationality) of people shouldn't be stereotyped because of the actions of the minority, but each individual should be given the chance to prove himself or herself.

I'll be leaving for college in a short while, and I'm proud of the fact that I'll be able to begin my adult life open-mindedly, and without preconceived ideas of the different people I'll meet throughout my life.

Thanks for listening to me, Doc. — Open-minded

Open-minded: Hang in there, and as I wrote in my earlier reply, providing a broad-minded model for your friends and later for your children is something to be cherished.

You will no doubt meet many others at college who are on your wavelength. However, because there'll be some who are less respectful of others, try to listen and stay calm. Sometimes it isn't easy.

Dr. Abraham: My friend and I are writing to you in response to a letter that appeared in your column. You said that it is "unusual" that a guy and a girl are friends and nothing more. Well, we don't agree with you. We met two years ago, and there has never been anything more between us than friendship. It's not like we're weird or different; we just get along well.

He says: She is attractive, nice, bubbly and an all-around great person. She is a cheerleader for our varsity squad at school, and I play on the varsity soccer and wrestling teams. I enjoy the same things as she does, and I can talk to her about anything. We go out together and talk on the phone, but have never done anything more than "ordinary" friends do. I treat her like a sister, someone with whom I can share my time and have fun. I turn to her for her opinions on the girls I go out with and for other problems on which I need an outside opinion.

She says: As a girl I can always talk to him when I need a male point of view. If I'm having a problem with my boyfriend, I get the honest opinion I need. Wherever we go people assume we're a couple. Yet throughout our friendship both of us have had relationships with others. The only time problems arise is when we have relationships with each other's friends.

We just wanted to write to say that guys and girls can be friends. — Two Friends

Two Friends: What a refreshing letter, and you certainly are on target.

Of course a guy and a girl can be good friends. I agree with that totally.

Sweet spirits move to the kitchen cabinet

By Jan Stebbenson

Cordials — those sweet, syrupy spirits that come in a seemingly endless variety — have moved from the back of the liquor cabinet to a prominent place in the kitchen. Chefs are using cordials to flavor everything from fruit salad to entrees to deserts. So get out those bottles, blow off the dust, and get ready to start cooking with cordials.

What exactly are cordials? Cordials are spirits that are created with extracted flavors that are added to a base of alcohol and then sweetened.

According to U.S. law, cordials must contain at least 2.5 percent sugar by weight, with some having more than 35 percent sugar. Although cordial is the preferred term in the United States, cordial and "liqueur" have become synonymous.

You might think cordials got their name because they are served in a friendly, cordial atmosphere or because they put you in a cordial mood. Actually the word is derived from the Latin stem "cor," meaning heart, and the original cordials were created for medicinal uses. One of the oldest known cordial recipes dates back to Hippocrates, about 420 B.C.

Most American cordials, are very sweet and are made from various fruits, beans and herbs, ranging from cherry to chocolate to mint.

The use of cordials in your kitchen can be as simple as a topping for ice cream, flavoring for a glaze or sauce, or to replace an extract such as vanilla in your baking.

For example, the next time you make cheesecake, add a bit of Bailey's Original Irish Cream or Kahlua instead of vanilla to the cream cheese blend. Then, drizzle a bit of the cordial over each slice as you serve the cake.

Cordials, with their intense sweetness, are a natural ingredient to add to deserts. But don't be afraid to try them in the main course, with vegetables, or just to sip after dinner.

Some matches are obvious: a bit of fruit cordial added to a fruit salad, Calvados (apple cordial) sprinkled over a pork and apple dish. Cordials are especially good for barbecues. The sugar in the cordial caramelizes, coating the food with a sweet, thick glaze.

Dishes with cordials can have dramatic flair, and cordials are often used in flambes. Flambe is French for flaming the food with a liqueur during preparation or when brought to the table for service. The alcohol evaporates during flaming, leaving your food with the subtle flavor of the liqueur without the calories of alcohol.

Never pour cordials directly from the bottle into a flaming dish! And for easy lighting, always warm the cordial in the pan first before you try to light it.

Have a fire extinguisher nearby, just in case. A long stick match is also helpful when flambeing.

Drambuie is the oldest and probably the most famous whiskey-based cordial. The recipe for Drambuie originates from Prince Charles Edward Stuart, Bonnie Prince Charlie. Drambuie — Gaelic for the "drink that satisfies" — has a rich flavor that is tangy and honey-smooth. Combined with a bit of honey and mustard, Drambuie adds extra "punch" to this easy-to-prepare recipe.

BROCHETTE DIJON FLAMBE

- 4 garlic cloves, crushed
- 1 teaspoon dried thyme
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ cup plus 4 tablespoons Drambuie
- 1 cup Dijon mustard
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 pounds lamb or chicken, cut into 1½ inch cubes
- Salt and pepper

Yields 6 servings.

In saucepan, combine garlic, thyme, lemon juice and Drambuie. Cook over medium heat about 10 minutes until reduced slightly. Stir in mustard and honey and simmer for a few minutes.

Sprinkle lamb/chicken with salt and pepper and toss with mustard mixture. Thread meat on skewers and grill or broil 8 to 10 minutes on each side.

Flambe by heating 4 tablespoons of Drambuie until warm. Light Drambuie and pour over meat.

Some of the best-known herbal cordials contain aniseed — dried anise fruit used to flavor licorice. Said to have stomach-soothing qualities, these cordials include the Italian-produced Sambuca and French Pernod.

Many popular oyster recipes use aniseed-flavored cordials, including Oysters Rockefeller. This simplified variation on Oysters Rockefeller can be served as either an appetizer or light main dish.

OYSTERS WITH SPINACH AND PERNOD

- 24 oysters
- 1 pound fresh spinach in bulk, or 1 package (10-ounce) fresh spinach
- ¼ cup dry white wine
- 3 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1 tablespoon Pernod
- Salt and pepper

Yields 4 servings.

Have oysters opened and loosened from their half-shells. Leave them on half-shells. Preheat oven to 425 F.

If bulk spinach is used, break off and discard any tough stems and blemished leaves. In any case, wash spinach well in cold water. Bring enough water to boil in saucepan to cover spinach when it is added.

Add spinach and cook about 1 minute. Drain and run under cold water to cool. Squeeze to extract excess moisture. Chop spinach with a knife, or use a food processor. Set aside.

Arrange oysters close together in large baking dish in one layer. Sprinkle with equal amounts of wine. Place in oven and bake about 5 minutes. The oysters should be barely heated through.

Put shallots in a skillet. Remove oysters from the oven and carefully pour onto shallots liquid that has accumulated on half-shells around oysters. Cook briefly, then add cream. Cook down over high heat, stirring, to about ¼ cup. Add spinach and stir. Add Pernod and salt and pepper to taste.

Spoon sauce over the oysters and serve immediately.

Cordials are the perfect base ingredient for glazes and marinades. For a nutty, sweet flavor, try this glaze made with Frangelico. Excellent on vegetables, it can also be used to flavor poultry dishes.

Legend has it that Frangelico lived as a hermit in the hills of Italy. He created many original drinks, the most precious of which was the cordial which today bears his name.

Frangelico is made from wild hazelnuts and a mixture of berries and herbs.

FRANGELICO GLAZED VEGETABLE MEDLEY

- For glaze:
  - ¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons Frangelico
  - 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
  - 2 tablespoons water
  - 1 tablespoon soy sauce
  - 1 clove garlic, minced
  - 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- For vegetable medley:
  - 3 cups mixed, chopped vegetables (such as carrots, snow peas, peppers and squash)
  - 1 cup onion
  - 1 tablespoon vegetable oil

Yields 4 servings.

To make glaze: Combine all glaze ingredients and mix thoroughly. To make vegetable medley: Boil water and blanch vegetables, except onion, for 5 minutes. Drain and pat dry. In medium skillet, heat oil, and saute all vegetables for about 2 minutes. Add Frangelico glaze and stir until sauce thickens and vegetables are coated.

Serve immediately.

Kahlua and Tia Maria both add the deliciously sweet taste of coffee to your meals. Kahlua, with its strong Mexican coffee taste, is the top-selling cordial in the United States. Tia Maria is drier and lighter than Kahlua and made with Jamaican Blue Mountain coffee extracts.

Candied yams have always been holiday favorites. But once you've tried these yams, you won't want to wait until the next holiday to eat them again!

KAHLUA CANDIED YAMS

- 4 medium-size yams, cooked, or 1 can (1-pound, 3-ounce) yams
- ¼ cup butter
- one-third cup brown sugar
- ¼ cup Kahlua

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

To cook yams, put in large saucepan and boil yams until tender but still firm. Remove from pan and let cool slightly. Peel.

Cut yams in serving size pieces. In heavy skillet, melt butter with sugar. Add Kahlua; cook 1 minute. Add yams; turn until brown on all sides. Cover.

Reduce heat and allow to cook about 15 minutes. Turn yams once more before serving.

***

Because of the high sugar content and heavy texture, Kahlua is a natural for cookouts. Try this barbecue sauce on ribs or chicken — or even on grilled corn.

KAHLUA ZESTY BBQ SAUCE

- 1 tablespoon butter
- ½ cup minced onion
- ¼ cup chili sauce
- ¼ cup Kahlua
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar, packed
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Tabasco sauce (to taste)
- Chicken or ribs

Yields 4 servings.

In a small saucepan, melt butter and saute onions until translucent. Blend in the remaining ingredients. Simmer five minutes, stirring often.

Barbecue chicken or ribs over low-to-medium heat coals. Turn frequently, grilling 30 to 40 minutes. During last five minutes, brush with BBQ sauce; turn once and brush other side.

Time to think about tulips

At this time of the year, I enjoy leafing through the bulb suppliers' lists to see what I'm likely to find new among the spring flower bulbs at local garden outlets and to scan for names of old favorites that renew fond memories of spring gardens past. Today, let's pick up some of the highlights among the tulips.

One of my favorite classes of tulip for the unusual glow on the flower petals of all its varieties is the early-blooming Fosteriana. Red Emperor is the best-known and most popular Fosteriana tulip. Cantate, a shorter version with equally large and brilliant flowers, is one of my favorites for combining with white Anemone blanda and blue forget-me-not.

One of the newer Fosterianas is Sweetheart, a tall yellow tulip edged in white. This is a color blend I find particularly attractive in tulips.

The Kaufmanniana, or water lily tulips, are the first of the large-flowered tulips to bloom in the spring. They are followed by the Fosterianas and then the Greigii tulips. Among the Kaufmannianas, I have a special fondness for Ancilla, a soft pink variety with a red and yellow base inside the flower.

The Greigii tulips are notable for their striped or mottled foliage and vividly hued flowers. In this class, among the newer varieties are Orange Elite, a short tulip in apricot orange, and Van Hesteren, also orange and taller at 12 inches.

Double Early tulips are sturdy, stocky plants with long-lasting double roselike flowers. These perennialize well in the garden, and are among the very best tulips for pots. In this class, one of the newer varieties is the pure yellow Hoangho. Peach Blossom, a deep rose pink variety, is probably the most commonly grown Double Early tulip. Orange Nassau, a warm orange-scarlet, is another beauty. And Schoonoord blooms like a perfect white peony.

I'm very fond also of the May-flowering Double Late (peony-flowered) tulips. These bear fully double flowers that are wonderful for cutting. Angelique is an outstanding variety in this class, a top cut flower tulip in Holland for its feathery blooms in gentle silvery pink, the color melding to different shades of pink as the flower ages with the utmost of grace. Bravissimo is another personal favorite with deep turkey red, beautifully fragrant flowers.

Triumph tulips bloom in the middle of the tulip season. Excellent for pots as well as for garden beds, they are strong-stemmed plants, about 18 inches tall with large flowers. Here, Page Polka is a new variety in white suffused with pink. Red Lips is white with ruby red petal edges. Akela is cream with a broad pink edge and Dreaming Maid is violet edged in white.

The midseason Darwin Hybrids represent some of the very best of modern tulips. It's among the Darwin Hybrids that I have found the most durable tulips — ones that continue yielding large bulbs for replanting. They are also among the best for perennializing over three years or more.

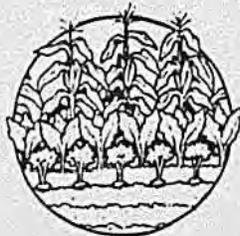

Dutch Fair, yellow flamed with red, is one of the finest among the newer Darwin Hybrids. Pink Impression is soft pink veined in rose. Holland's Glory is a long-standing favorite for its immense carmine and poppy red flowers.

Other old favorites in this class are Gudoshnik, a lovely combination of yellow, rose and red with a bluish-black base, Elizabeth Arden, a rich salmon pink, and Orange Sun in bright, pure orange.

If you haven't yet grown bouquet or multflowered tulips, try a planting this fall. The stems on these tulips branch into several flowering stems so that each plant becomes a virtual bouquet of flowers. Lovely varieties among this type of tulip are Red Georgette with cardinal red flowers and Happy Family, in deep pink.

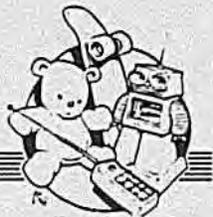

Most of the bouquet tulips bloom late, in May, along with several other unique tulip forms such as the lily-flowered tulips that bear long, urn-shape blooms with elegantly pointed, reflexed petals. A favorite among the lily-flowered tulips is Marilyn, white flamed with fuchsia red.

Fringed, or orchid, tulips have finely fringed, crystalline petal edges. Burgundy Lace in deep wine red is a longtime favorite. Among the newer varieties is Fringed Apeldoorn in brilliant red. Parrot tulips bear large, frivoloously waved and feathered petals and Viridiflora tulips have extremely long-lasting blooms that are diffused with green.

Our Children

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Smart checklist for concerned parents

Q. I have always thought that prevention is the best way to avoid problems. With three children in my family, we know we can't prevent all dangers and injuries, but we can at least try to avoid, as well as minimize, and competently handle the threats to our kids.

My husband and I have a long list of precautionary measures that we often check through to keep them fresh on our minds. Obvious ones have become a habit, like always wearing seat belts, care in street crossing, handles on hot pots turned toward the back of the stove (especially to protect little ones) and many others.

Because I know we can't cover all possibilities, we'd like to have some of your ideas to add to our list if they aren't included already.

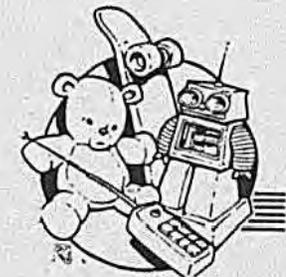

A. Any ways that we can protect children's hands, legs, eyes and all the rest are well worth mentioning to you. If you have them on your list, fine. However, other parents may not be thinking about some of them.

Many hospitals prepare newsletters that contribute to the kind of approach you use. I happen to live in an area where an outstanding example of such a product is available. It is called Take Care of Yourself, distributed several times a year and aimed at the whole family.

The May/June issue was particularly fine. Here are some excerpts from it:

• A column titled "Ask the Doc." It is written by an emergency physician, Dr. Robert Londeree, who stated, "Hardly a day goes by in the emergency room that we don't treat injuries from accidents which could have been prevented."

The most common were the result of motor vehicle accidents, but he also mentioned rollerblade falls (and the importance of protective gear, like helmets, knee and elbow pads and wrist guards) and accidental use of knives, guns, pills and cleaning substances (which should be placed where kids can't get to them). He stressed the value of close communication with the family's pediatrician, especially in the event of an emergency.

• A home first aid kit checklist. Suggested for inclusion are the following: bandage scissors, tweezers, magnifying glass, pen light, bottle of eyewash, adhesive compresses (assorted sizes), adhesive tape, sterile gauze pads (2-by-2-inch and 4-by-4-inch), elastic bandage, 3-inch cling roller bandages, 4-by-4-inch sponges (non-sterile), roller gauze bandages (3½-inch or 1-inch), safety pins, oral thermometer, tongue depressors and triangular bandages.

It sounds like a long list, but it is a vital one to consider. Taking a CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) course also is recommended.

• Fire safety: STOP, DROP, ROLL. Stop because running will make the fire burn faster. Drop to the floor and cover your face. Roll back and forth to smother the flames. And keep lighters and matches out of reach of small children.

To obtain either a copy of the May/June 1991 or another issue of this newsletter that might be available, send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope with your request to Scottsdale Memorial Health Systems Inc., Office of Community Health Education, 3621 N. Wells Fargo Ave., Scottsdale, AZ 85251.

Hospitals near where you live might have similar publications. It may be well worth asking them.

Soldiers in the breast cancer war

By Noel Osment

After Arlyne Draper had her first mastectomy in 1977, she had mammograms each year. When she passed with flying colors for five years, she was declared cancer-free.

She skipped a mammogram in 1989, when her husband had changed companies and their insurance did not cover the procedure. But in February 1990, back on insurance, she had a routine mammogram. There had been no sign of problems — no lumps, no discharge — nothing to indicate cancer. When the mammogram showed a mass, it was so small Draper was given the option of having a biopsy done immediately or waiting six months to see if it grew.

She went for the biopsy. "The breast was a spiderweb of cancer, and I had a mastectomy two weeks later," she said.

That's when Draper joined the ranks of breast cancer activists.

NEW TACTICS

In recent years, increasing numbers of women and health professionals have argued that the traditional tactics in the war against breast cancer just aren't good enough.

Not when you consider that:

- This year, an estimated 175,000 new cases of breast cancer will develop among American women.
- This year, an estimated 44,800 women will die of the disease.
- By the end of 1991, the disease will have hit about one in every nine women in the United States.

Recently, the new president of the American Cancer Society's California organization said he plans to meet with Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy and Dr. Molly Joel Coye, director of the state Department of Health Services, to create an agenda for dealing with breast cancer.

"This will be an effort to identify what is being done about breast cancer and to identify new areas to become involved in," said Dr. Paul M. Goldfarb, the incoming Cancer Society president.

There needs to be more awareness of the disease, its causes and prevention, argued Draper.

"I had always been active in breast cancer activities after my first mastectomy, when I lived in Santa Clara," she said. "I belonged to a recovery group and ran an educational program for Spanish-speaking women."

But after her 1990 mastectomy, she wanted to see progress in cancer prevention and cure.

While she has no quarrel with her medical care, she argues that the medical profession has been slow to deal with a major cause of illness and death among women.

In April 1990, she saw a "20/20" show featuring San Franciscans Elenore Pred, founder of Breast Cancer Action, and Sheila Swanson, of the Bay area chapter of Y-ME National Breast Cancer Organization.

Draper was impressed with the two women, their passion and fire. They argued that the words "prevention" and "cure" had to be added to a vocabulary largely dominated by "early detection." Draper decided to get involved herself.

Her first task was to find people to sign and send letters to Congress and the White House urging passage of the Women's Health Equity Act of 1991. Included in the act are four bills that would provide more funding for breast cancer research, set quality control standards for mammography, improve Medicaid coverage of mammography and require physicians to inform patients of alternative effective methods of treatment.

This year, activist groups formed a national lobbying organization, the Breast Cancer Coalition. The San Diego affiliate, recently formed by Draper, is the Women's Cancer Task Force.

The task force is now joining the coalition's newest letter-writing campaign to national elected officials asking that funds be allotted for breast cancer research.

THE ANGER OF ELENORE PRED

Draper's mentor is Pred, one of the movement's strongest activists, although she must wage her war against the disease on her non-chemotherapy days.

Pred's cancer returned more than five years after her mastectomy, when she was supposed to be in the clear. As she watched friends from breast cancer recovery groups die, Pred angrily charged many health officials with negligence and indifference.

As an example, she cites the fact that in a large screening done by the National Cancer Institute to determine which drugs are most effective for the treatment of cancer, breast cancer was not included.

There's not enough information on the disease, she says, and too much misinformation.

"There is the myth that mammography is preventive. It is not," she said in a telephone interview. "I don't want to discourage people from having it, but there need to be improvements in screening methods, and standards of the machines and of technicians need to be enforced. Some tumors are not detected."

Screening improvement is in sight but somewhere down the road — too far down the road, she feels.

Another myth, she said, is that cancer research applies to all cancers. Some does, she said, much does not, and more research specifically for breast cancer is needed.

Pred stresses the need for research on the rate of incidence, which appears to be rising.

"There has been a lot of biotechnical research but little that explains why the incidence is increasing," she said. "There is some epidemiological evidence about diet. It would seem that high-fat diets may contribute to breast cancer, but we need the studies to prove it. Of course, we can't wait around for studies, and I urge women strongly to reduce fat down to 20 percent or less and to eat more fiber."

Pred can rattle off an astounding amount of technical information about breast cancer. She has done her homework, taking a leaf from AIDS activists who research drugs and keep in touch with investigators for the drug companies.

"One of the most important things I learned from them is the importance of being educated. We need to learn to do medical research, use medical libraries, read medical journals. We need to empower women medically."

She said that breast cancer activists and AIDS activists have a number of issues in common:

- They are working together to monitor a new category of research that is happening in Japan. It would stop the spread of the disease and would also work on certain tumors called sarcomas.

- They are pressuring the FDA to allow desperately ill people to use drugs that have not been through the approval process.

- Realizing the importance of communication, her group publishes a newsletter, Breast Cancer Action.

- She and her allies have garnered public and media attention with events such as last May's Mother's Day march in Sacramento, Calif., a rally urging more funds for breast cancer research.

One technique her group has not mastered is the art of recruiting celebrities.

"We would love to have an Elizabeth Taylor," she said.

THE HEALTHY GOURMET

By Kit Snedaker

Many travelers fly to Italy for pasta, but I go back for the bread. Each town has its own recipe, its own style rolls, its own twist in a baguette. Each one is better than the next.

I have a palate memory of a roll shaped like a welk shell I ate outdoors at dusk once near Bologna. It didn't need butter; it tasted like piecrust.

In other trips I experienced the perfect biscotti in Rome, and everywhere incredible bread sticks and garlic bread.

Over the years I've collected enough bread recipes and Italian cookbooks to fill four shelves of a bookcase. I never made bread that tasted like piecrust, but console myself with the cook's myth that it must be the water. I have nailed down the ultimate Biscotti, Italian Bread Sticks and Garlic Bread, however.

BISCOTTI

- ¼ pound (about ¾ cup) shelled almonds
- 2 medium eggs
- ¼ cup honey
- ½ cup water
- 1 teaspoon almond extract
- Unbleached white flour as needed, 3 or 4 cups
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 egg white

Yields about 70 cookies.

Each has about 50 calories, 1 gram fat, 5 milligrams cholesterol and 20 milligrams sodium.

Toast almonds on baking sheet in oven preheated to 350 F for about 10 minutes until lightly brown. Remove and place ¼ cup of almonds in food processor. Process until fine, but do not let them turn to almond butter. Remove and set aside.

Put rest of almonds in food processor and pulse until they are coarsely chopped. Set aside. Put eggs and honey in bowl and blend. Mix almond extract in water and add both, mixing to blend. Mix in about 3 cups flour, baking soda and both chopped and ground almonds.

On floured work surface, knead this mixture for about 15 minutes, adding flour as necessary. You may also use dough hook of mixer.

Divide dough in half and make each half into long roll about 2 inches thick. Beat egg white until fluffy, but not stiff and brush each log with it.

Bake for about 20 minutes in oven preheated to 375 F. Logs will turn golden brown and shiny. Remove from oven, but leave oven on turned down to 275 F.

When cool enough to handle, cut logs into thin slices at angle. A serrated knife works well for this. Place slices on cookie sheets and bake for 30 or 40 minutes. Cookies will be dry and hard. Remove and cool on rack. Store in tightly covered tin.

ITALIAN BREAD STICKS

- ¼ teaspoon granulated sugar
- 1½ cups warm water
- 1½ teaspoons active dry yeast
- ¾ cups all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- Low-sodium safflower margarine

Yields about 20 sticks.

Each has about 100 calories, no cholesterol, 2 grams fat and 90 milligrams sodium.

Combine sugar and water in bowl. Sprinkle yeast over top. Let stand until yeast begins to bubble.

Meanwhile, put flour and olive oil in bowl and combine.

Add dissolved yeast and mix to form dough. Place on floured surface and knead until dough is smooth and elastic, about 10 to 15 minutes. Place dough in bowl and brush top with margarine. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, an hour or so.

Punch dough down and divide into quarters. Roll each quarter out flat and cut into about 5 strips. Roll each strip into rope about 1 inch thick. Place these ropes on baking sheet, cover and let rise for 10 to 15 minutes.

Bake in oven preheated to 400 F for about 20 to 25 minutes. Sticks will be lightly brown. Serve at once or cool and store in tightly covered tin.

GARLIC BREAD

- Cloves separated from a whole head of garlic
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- Black pepper
- 1 12-inch baguette of French or Italian bread

Yields about 12 slices.

Each slice has about 100 calories, 2 grams fat, no cholesterol and 132 milligrams sodium.

Place all garlic cloves in baking dish or baking sheet, drizzle with olive oil and pepper. Bake in oven preheated to 350 F for 30 to 40 minutes. Garlic will be soft.

With serrated knife, split baguette in half lengthwise. Rub with garlic mixture. Toast in oven or under broiler for 2 or 3 minutes until just starting to color. Cut into thick pieces and serve warm.

Here's How

By Gene Gary

Q. Over the years, rain dripping from the copper gutters overhanging my patio have formed a greenish line on the concrete. Do you know of a product or method that can remove this copper-based stain from concrete? — D.V.C.

A. Runoff water from copper flashings and bronze fixtures frequently leave bluish-green or brown stains. For removal of this staining, the Portland Cement Association recommends the following:

Prepare a dry mixture of 1 part ammonium chloride, 4 parts fine-powdered talc, calcium carbonate or clay. Add ammonium hydroxide (household ammonia) and stir to make a smooth poultice. Place this mixture over the stain and leave until dry. Repeat treatment as often as necessary and finally scrub well with clear water.

Q. We have a concrete retaining wall at the front of our hillside lot that is at the street level and has become the target of some local neighborhood pranksters. It is now covered with very objectionable graffiti written in spray paint. Is there any way we can remove this from the concrete, or will we have to paint over these obscenities? — M.Z.

A. There are a number of commercial products that are suitable for removing spray-paint and felt-tip markings from concrete surfaces. You may have to experiment with several before finding the right formula for removal of the particular substance that was used to deface your wall.

It is important that you follow manufacturer's instructions carefully. If you are not successful in locating a commercial product, you can try using methylene chloride.

Be sure and wear protective clothing and use extreme care to avoid splashing. Brush the methylene chloride onto the surface, wait two minutes and rinse with water during continued brushing. Oxalic acid or hydrogen peroxide can be used to help bleach out some of the pigment from concrete pores.

Solutions of sodium hydroxide, xylene or methyl ethyl ketone also are helpful in removing graffiti. Sometimes effective cleaning can be achieved with water blasting and sandblasting.

If you are successful in removing the graffiti, apply an anti-graffiti coating or sealer to the cleaned surface to prevent future problems. These surface treatments prevent spray paint and other graffiti substances from entering the pores of the concrete and facilitate the removal of stains should the problem reoccur.

Aliphatic urethanes are considered the best anti-graffiti coatings because of their resistance to solvents, yellowing and abrasion.

Solvents such as mineral spirits or methyl ethyl ketone can remove most graffiti from an all-phatic polyurethane without compromising the urethane coating.

Acrylics, epoxies, silanes and siloxanes also are used to make graffiti removal easier. However, acrylics dissolve and the solvent and epoxies tend to yellow or discolor.

Silanes and siloxanes may not resist certain graffiti materials as well as the urethanes, but they do maintain a high breathability at the concrete surface while resisting penetration of graffiti materials into the concrete.

If you are unable to remove the current staining, consider painting the concrete with a recommended masonry paint.

Use muriatic acid to etch the surface prior to painting. This will create a better bond. Clean the wall thoroughly removing as much of the markings as possible, then seal the graffiti staining with a primer recommended by your masonry dealer prior to paint application, so the staining will not bleed through.

Much of this information was supplied by the Portland Cement Association, which publishes a series of concrete informational bulletins.

Decor Score

By Rose Bennett Gilbert

Q. Our kitchen is quite small, but I would like to find space for a breakfast counter. I've seen the hinged kind that fold up when they're not in use, but that looks bokey, I think. What else can you suggest? — A.G.

A. Here's an innovative idea from a homeowner in Wisconsin who faced the same limited-space problem. He has come up with a Space Age idea, using an equally modern material called Avonite to cantilever dining space from a kitchen counter.

As you can see in the photo, even the toaster oven has been built in and topped with counter material for the max in working/serving services. A man-made composite, Avonite looks like marble and acts like wood — you use regular woodworking tools to craft it — and it's also strong enough to support itself with only a narrow wood base beneath for stability.

The oval-shaped "table" provides ample elbow room for several diners, whose chairs slide neatly under and out of the way when they're through.

Q. We've found a wonderful stained-glass window at auction and want to incorporate it into our living or dining room somehow. There is an open space by the stairs. What must I do to make it work there? — C.D.

A. To use your stained glass as a divider between spaces, you'll have to support it with wood side frames that go from floor to ceiling and across the top and bottom edges.

Keep the framework simple — stained or painted to match the other woodwork in the room — so you won't detract from the stained-glass design itself.

In fact, the idea is to show off the colors to maximum effect, so you may want to install small spotlights either on the ceiling or floor.

You can experiment with the wattage — a dimmer switch is the key — so only the glass itself is in the spotlight and the surrounding area is dark. This way, you'll be able to approximate the natural light that usually makes stained glass glow, even in the inside location you've chosen.

BREAKFAST NOOK — An oblong of Avonite cleverly cantilevered from the cabinet creates room for a breakfast table in a space-shy kitchen.

Black Memorabilia from Germany

Q. This picture shows a decorative dish depicting two black children. It is marked "K.P.M." and "Made in Germany."

Can you identify the maker and estimate its value?

A. This Black Memorabilia dish was made by the Krister Porzellan Manufaktur in Waldenberg, Germany during the early 1900s. It would probably sell for about $75 to $85.

Q. This mark is on the bottom of each piece of a seven-piece toilet set (pitcher, bowl, soap dish, etc).

Can you identify the maker and determine the vintage? I would also like to know its value.

A. Your toilet set was made by Knowles, Taylor & Knowles Co. in East Liverpool, Ohio, around the turn of the century. It would probably sell for $700 to $800 in good condition.

LIMOGES PORCELAIN

By far the best-known company producing fine tableware in the Limoges area of France was Haviland & Co., founded in 1842 by an American, David Haviland. In the beginning, his company simply decorated porcelain made by native French potters. By 1865, he was producing his own porcelain. Most of his wares were marked "Haviland & Co."

In addition to David Haviland, there were dozens of others like Wm. Guerin & Co., Delinieres Co., Charles Ahrenfeldt, J. Pouyat, Tressemanes & Vogt, Martial Redon, A. Laternier, not to mention David's son, Theodore, and his nephew, Charles Field Haviland.

It would be difficult to select one of these as being better in quality and workmanship. If there is any difference in price, it is based on familiarity with the name "Haviland."

There was an enormous quantity of Limoges china imported to the United States between 1880 to 1920. This provides a generous supply of tableware and decorative items for any collector's choice.

We might examine some typical prices of Limoges. We find a chocolate pot marked "Haviland & Co." The price is $135. There is also one marked "J. Pouyat" decorated with red roses listed for $130. Next is one marked "D. & C." (Delinieres Co.) with hand-painted cherries; it is listed at $225. One bearing the logo "T. & V." (Tressemanes & Vogt) decorated with purple grapes is offered at $215.

This is not to suggest that Delinieres is always more valuable than Haviland. The only conclusion that should be drawn is that the higher-priced items were also the most attractively decorated.

There is one situation that might cause some confusion. During World War II, Theodore Haviland set up operations for the United States, so don't be surprised when you encounter Haviland china marked "Made in USA." Item for item, American Haviland is worth about half as much as French Haviland.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. We recently purchased a male Chihuahua puppy from a private breeder. It appears that the puppy has only one testicle. We are not interested in using the dog for breeding purposes. Therefore, should we be concerned about this problem?

A. The normal age at which the testicles descend into the scrotum in dogs varies. Scientific literature indicates that the testicles should be in the scrotum any time between birth and 14 weeks of age. Testicular descent rarely occurs after 3 months and almost never after 6 months of age. The name of the condition in which the testicles do not descend at the normal time is cryptorchidism.

Cryptorchidism is very common in dogs, having been reported in more than 68 breeds. Because most male dogs with only one testicle retained are fertile, the trait is very widely spread among the dog population.

Because of the genetic nature of this condition and because of an increased risk of cancer, cryptorchid dogs should be castrated. You should take your new puppy to a veterinarian to confirm your diagnosis. You should also notify the dog breeder where you purchased the puppy of the problem.

CONTEST ENTRY DRAW IN OUR HAIR AND COLOR THIS PICTURE

Aunt Tilly's Corner

This week I did some final work on my garden before the winter comes. I planted some bulbs in the ground so that in the spring I will have flowers.

Bulbs are like seeds except that most plants that come from bulbs grow every year. Some bulbs are found around the kitchen, like onions or garlic. The bulbs I planted were for crocuses and irises, two flowers which bloom in the spring. I can hardly wait until then to see what comes up!

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

P.S. This week's coloring contest winners are Julia Salerni and Melanie Wong.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

How to get Social Security work credits

By William M. Acosta

Q. I don't have enough work credits to get Social Security. Is there any way I can pay to secure the required work credits? — H.D.B.

A. You cannot voluntarily pay into the Social Security trust fund. The only way credit can be obtained is if a person works as an employee in employment covered by Social Security or is self-employed. Self-employment income is covered by Social Security if you have net profits of $400 or more in a year. For more information, contact any Social Security office.

Q. What information must be furnished when you apply for Supplemental Security Income? — E.H.D.

A. You should take the following information with you:

- Your Social Security card or a record of your Social Security number.
- Information about the home where you live, such as your mortgage, and a record of property taxes or lease and landlord's name, cost of food and utilities.
- Payroll slips, bank books, insurance policies and other information about your income and resources.
- Names of doctors, hospitals and clinics that have treated you.

Q. My brother-in-law recently became entitled to Medicare.

What are the differences between the two parts of Medicare? — S.R.

A. Part A, the hospital insurance, helps pay for inpatient hospital care, some inpatient care in a skilled nursing facility, home health care and hospice care.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Part B, medical insurance, helps pay for medically necessary doctors' services, outpatient hospital services, home health care and a number of other medical services and supplies that are not covered by Part A.

Q. My uncle, who receives Social Security benefits, is still working. He is 73 years old. I noticed that they are still deducting Social Security tax. Is this correct? — M.L.G.

A. As long as a person has earnings covered by Social Security he/she continues to pay Social Security taxes — regardless of age and even if he/she is receiving Social Security benefits.
