Firefighters Honored

Awards Assembly

Nassau County Executive Thomas S. Gulotta (second from left) attended an Awards Assembly at Hicksville High School to present a Community Service Award to Colleen Barley, in recognition of her outstanding contributions to the community. Looking on were Colleen's parents, William and Maureen Bartley.

Six Restrictions On Shopping Center

The Oyster Bay Town Board has granted a request for additional restaurant space in a Plainview shopping center subject to six restrictive covenants, according to Town Councilman Thomas L. Clark.

The applicant, Delco Development Company of Plainview, is seeking a modification of restrictive covenants to permit an increase in the number of restaurants in the Plainview Commons, which is located in a "F" neighborhood business district on the south side of Old Country Road east of the intersection with Plainview and Manetto Hill Roads, Plainview, Councilman Clark explained. "Pursuant to a public hearing held on March 24, the request has been approved subject to six restrictive covenants."

The Board stipulated that the restaurant use on the premises will be limited to 150 seats, provided that sufficient off-street parking can be provided without parking variances. The applicant covenanted that no restaurant use will be conducted in the free-standing building located along the northeastern border of the subject site and that the hours of operation for the restaurant use will be no later than 11 p.m. The Councilman noted that no building permit or certificate of occupancy will be issued unless the permits are in accordance with an approved site plan.

Call 931-1417 to set up an appointment to meet with the counselor.

Town Studies Hicksville Industrial Rezoning

At the request of Oyster Bay Town Councilman Thomas L. Clark, the Town Board has authorized a study to determine the feasibility of rezoning an industrial portion of Hicksville.

"While the industrial area of Hicksville may have, at one time, been a boon to the community, the development of Hicksville has been stunted because of them," Councilman Clark stated. "I feel that rezoning certain industrial portions of Hicksville would help revitalize the entire community and stimulate the kind of development that is compatible with the business and residential districts that now about the industrial areas."

There will be two phases to the study, each involving a different area. The first phase will include the area bounded by West John Street on the north, Old Country Road on the south, Charlotte Avenue on the west and Newbridge Road on the east. The second phase will encompass the "G-1" central business district east of Newbridge Road at or near Old Country Road and going east to the railroad tracks. The Councilman noted that the second phase of the study... the G-1 zone... was recommended because of its proximity to, and interdependence with, the area included in phase 1.

Each phase will encompass four tasks. The first task will involve meetings with Town representatives to discuss the existing conditions of the area. Also included in this task will be mapping of the current businesses in the area and zoning.

In the second task, data on historic and current land use, adjoining uses, traffic patterns, analysis of traffic accidents, a parking inventory (both on and off-street), environmental concerns and a sampling of zoning issues and abuses will be collected and analyzed.

The third task will involve an analysis of current community concerns and a review of any pending applications that might impact the area zoning restrictions. This will again involve meetings with Town representatives, as well as the community.

In the fourth task, the findings will be summarized and recommendations made as to zone changes. The proposed changes will be analyzed as to the impact they will have on existing properties.

"Hicksville still has a lot of development potential, and residents would welcome development that would enhance the existing residential and business uses," Councilman Clark stated. "It is my hope that the results of this study will help the Town create a plan to revitalize the industrial area, which would, in turn, serve to boost the entire community."

The Councilman noted that the Town has retained the engineering firm of Litwornis, Schneider & Associates to perform the study at a cost not to exceed $13,000.

Letters

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to an article in Newsday "Clerk's Favor to Banker is Costly to Taxpayers" (July 27) which implied that twenty-five years ago my late husband, Francis J. Anderson, arranged a golf privilege for Nassau County Clerk Harold McConnell in exchange for the Clerk's office retaining its bank accounts with Anderson's employer, Franklin National Bank (now EAB).

On May 16 when two reporters from Newsday (Brian Donovan and Celeste Hadrick) knocked on my door and asked if they could ask me some questions for a story they wanted to do about my husband who they understood was the best County Clerk Nassau County ever had, I assumed it would be a true story - having nothing to do about the present problems of the Clerk's office. After answering many questions and showing them pictures and articles written about him, they then asked what I knew about my husband, Harold McConnell, and many other politicians having the privilege to play golf free at Meadowbrook Club. I said "I couldn't answer about anyone else but, yes, my husband was a Privileged Member ONLY BECAUSE he ran all their golf tournaments for many years before he became County Clerk and every year after until he died in 1988. They didn't report my explanation at all: they reported that I said "he had golf privileges without having to pay dues or initiation fees." To quote me completely out of context, particularly never mentioning WHY he was a Privileged Member, not only was completely false but it tarnishes the illustrious reputation of my late husband - which is both cruel and inexcusable. Also, to assume he had control over the membership policies at the club is preposterous and insulting to both the club and the memory of my late husband. Everyone who knew him knows, in both private and public life, Francis Anderson represented honesty and integrity to the nth degree.

They never asked me about the "no interest" accounts they refer to. I've been told that with regard to "some" very active in- and-out accounts, in lieu of the banks not charging a service charge for each and every transaction they pay no interest. My husband did not start this policy and it is still going on today. Their article lacked any evidence to support their accusations, and it is obvious their intentions were quite different from how they represented themselves. I feel now that through me they were only looking for more angles to attack Harold McConnell... and I hope this letter shows these reporters up for what they are - liars and connivers.

Sincerely,

Lillian N. Anderson

Anderson as a respected member of the community who performed a dedicated and honest job as County Clerk. RLM

To the Editor:

I write this letter to say, how quickly a person can be forgotten.

My brother James Cooley, known as the "Bethpage Post" wrote poems a long time for the Bethpage Newsgam. He is now a resident of the Long Island State Veterans' Home in Stony Brook. He is a victim of Alzheimer's disease.

He belonged to the American Legion (I am not sure what post) in Hicksville. No one cares or comes to see him. I am sure the Legion Post has men that visit the ill.

That is why I say, how quickly a person can be forgotten. Jim was always there when needed, yet he spends lonely hours in the home, his sister Peggy Hellmich is the only one there every day praying every day her brother will not be forgotten. A card or a visit from someone would be gratefully appreciated.

Please remember the "Bethpage Post" as he never forgot anyone.

Thank you very much in return.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Peggy Hellmich

Happenings Perform At Beth Park

A performance by The Happenings will highlight the sixth and final week of "Music Under the Stars" programs for Bethpage Community Park District residents, according to Oyster Bay Town Councilman Leonard Kunzig.

The program will be held at the Community Park on Thursday, August 20, beginning at 8:15 p.m. In the event of rain, the performance will take place in the auditorium of Bethpage High School, Cherry and Stewart Avenues.

"See You in September" and "I Got Rhythm" are just two of the hits The Happenings have had since the group's inception

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a resolution was adopted by the Board of Fire Commissioners of the Hicksville Fire District, Town of Oyster Bay, County of Nassau, State of New York, on the Eleventh day of August 1992 subject to a permissive referendum, as provided for by Sec. 6-G of the General Municipal Law.

An abstract of the resolution is as follows:

The Board of Fire Commissioners has determined that additional funds will be needed in addition to the transfer of funds made on October 14, 1991 for the new Heavy Duty Rescue Vehicle. The additional amount needed for this vehicle will be $30,000.00 bringing the total amount to $355,000.00 for the total expenditure for this vehicle.

The Hicksville Fire District maintains a Capital Reserve Fund for Firematic Equipment under Sec. 6-G of the General Municipal Law in which account there is sufficient funds to accomplish the purpose herein set forth, namely, One (1) Heavy Duty Rescue Vehicle complete with related warning lights, instruments, radios, and all required equipment to make said vehicle service ready. Included in this resolution are all the legal and clerical fees necessary for the purchase of said vehicle and any inspection trips needed. The resolution further provides that there be transferred from the present Capital Reserve 6-G Fund for Firematic Equipment of the Hicksville Fire District not to exceed Thirty Thousand dollars ($30,000.00) and the District Treasurer is authorized to effect such transfer.

The resolution shall not take effect until September 14, 1992 unless in the meanwhile, a permissive referendum as provided for in Sec. 6-G of the General Municipal Law is required to be held.

Jottings From Yesteryear

I sure recalled a lot of memories having a yard sale this past weekend. Pulling out items from all cartons and storage areas, many things belonged to parents and grandparents. Do you remember Drest, Gain, Super Suds powders and the cleaners Red Devil, Dutch cleanser and Babbitts? Then there was some Grease Solvent hand cleaner. Other articles that showed up: a pill box hat, hair nets, spare garter fasteners, and of course, that tin of many buttons with the guaranteed pins among them to stick you. In the late 20s books of movies like Wings and Fleets In with Clara Bow would have 6 to 8 photos from the film. People bought them just to see the actor or actress when young. Then there were two electric tie presses, one like a long rectangle book with a heating unit in one side with a tapered metal insert for the tie. When you closed the book the tie was pressed. The other one was a handle with two tapered metal pieces - one each for both ends of the tie.

I had to smile when I gave three little ones each a small bank free, then had them come back for me to put money in them. Starting a business young. I wonder if they did better than I with my yard sale.

Hicksville Legion Leader New Chef de Gare 40/8 Story and photos by Dick Evers.

Past Commander Raymond Gamble of Hicksville's American Legion Post 421 was honored this past Saturday by being installed as the new Chef de Gare of Voiture 803 of the Legion's Forty and Eight Organization. A large turnout of his comrades and their ladies from the Charles Wagner Post 421 joined in the jolly investiture of Voiture 803's new officers.

Presiding as installing officer for this Legion affiliate-society of funsters and pranksters who enliven American Legion parades and conventions was past Nassau County Commander and also past Chef de Gare of Voiture 803, James Frazer. The hall of the Robert Van Cott Post in West Hempstead was a sea of crimson during the affair, and very many of the wearers of the red were distinguished officers of the Nassau County American Legion. The Forty and Eight Organization (40/8) has its origins in World War I, taking its name from the signs on French railroad box cars designating capacity - "forty men or eight horses." The rituals and terms of many 40/8 groups often suggest their Gallic historical origins. 40/8 Voitures are very active with child welfare programs, when they are not making merry and dispensing fraternal cheer.

Dutch Lane's Grandparents, 'Special Persons Day

Dutch Lane School held their annual Grandparents/Special Persons Day on June 5.

This day is dedicated to the many grandparents/special persons who have students attending Dutch Lane Elementary School.

The PTA cordially invites all who attend to a breakfast buffet, including tea, coffee, ice tea, bagels, doughnuts, fruit and cookies in Dutch's all-purpose room. Afterwards all guests are invited into the gymnasium where a concert and sing-a-long are held.

At the conclusion of the concert, the grandchildren/special children escort those attending to their classrooms where they learn about their child's education.

PTA members Mrs. Roostenberg, Mrs. Strugatz and Mrs. Scally help serve Grandparents/Special Persons at the breakfast buffet.

The line never seems to end on this Special day and PTA moms Mrs. Pelter and Mrs. Hudson make sure the bagels and doughnuts are in good supply.

The chorus made up of fourth, fifth and sixth graders is led by Ms. Vicki Sutton.

Pictured are: Eric Trongone, April Probst, Tara Raisig, Cynthia O'Connor, Heather Hudson, Raymond Portor, Samra Kherzi, and Courtney Schaudel playing "Song of the Wind" in their 3rd grade Ensemble directed by Marion Lieberman.

Back in Mrs. Hoch's 2nd grade class Alyse Parsekian, Diana Norton-Taylor, Dana Kuefner, Lizzy Rothbard and Jenna Parenta dance for their Grandparents/Special Persons.

Barry Council Annual Picnic

By Vincent Murphy, PGK

On Sunday, August 2, Joseph Barry Council 2520 held its Annual Picnic at Cantiague Park. The day started with the celebration of an outdoor Mass at 11 a.m. celebrated by the Council Chaplain Father Peter Liu. He was assisted by Sam McCafferty, Lecturer, and Joe Leo, son of G.K. Joe Leo Jr. as Altar Boy.

Following the celebration of Mass and a short welcome of members and friends of Joseph

Barry Council by Grand Knight Joe Leo, Jr., the time of feasting, racing, laughing and merriment began. The cooks under the watchful eye of Tom Joyce did a very good job satisfying the members and guests with the delicious food they prepared. Races were held for the children and young adults with all of the children receiving a prize. Everyone had a good time, thanks to Chairman PGK Olie Costello and his Co-Chairmen Tom Joyce and John Kilgannon.

Hunter Safety Courses

The Town of Oyster Bay Parks Department will offer free Hunter Safety Clinics in September for Town residents, according to Town Councilman Leonard B. Symons.

"The Hunter Safety Clinics, which are being offered by the Town in cooperation with the New York State Conservation Department, are open to all Town residents ages 14 and older," Councilman Symons stated. "Certified instructors for all clinics will be provided by the State, and an examination for a hunting license will be given at the completion of the four night classes and the 10 classroom hours."

Registration forms for the courses, which will be held at Marjorie R. Post Community

Park Center, Unqua and Merrick Roads, Massapequa, can be obtained at all Town Hall and community park facilities and at all Town libraries and school districts. Registration for the September course will be conducted between Monday, August 17, and Tuesday, September 8. The course will be held on Wednesday, September 9; Thursday, September 10; Wednesday, September 16 and Thursday, September 17 between 8 and 10:30 p.m.

For those hunters ages 14 and older who use bow and arrow, Councilman Symons announced that there will be a special one-day clinic on Saturday, September 19. Taught by a qualified instructor, this course will cover all aspects of bow and arrow hunting.

Registration forms for the bow and arrow clinic can be obtained at all Town Hall and community park facilities and all local libraries and school districts beginning Monday, August 17. They should be returned to park managers or to the Park Department by Friday, September 18. The two-part course will be held at Marjorie R. Post Community Park Center between 9 a.m. and noon and 1 to 3 p.m.

Councilman Symons noted that "Sporting License Application" forms for State hunting, fishing, trapping and big game licenses can be obtained at the Town Clerk's Offices, Town Hall East, Audrey Avenue, Oyster Bay, and Town Hall South, 977 Hicksville Road, Massapequa. Both offices are open Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 4:45 p.m.

For information on any of the Hunter Safety Clinics, contact the Parks Department at 795-1000.

Final Music Under Stars

A performance by The Amazing Kreskin will highlight the sixth and final week of "Music Under the Stars" programs for Syoset-Woodbury Community Park District residents, according to Oyster Bay Town Councilwoman Ann R. Ocker.

The program will take place at the Community Park on Wednesday, August 19, beginning at 8:15 p.m. In the event of rain, the performance will be held in the auditorium of St. Edward's Church, Teibrook Avenue.

"For more than three decades, The Amazing Kreskin has entertained audiences worldwide and intrigued them with his unusual powers of the mind," Councilwoman Ocker stated. "Along with his mental feats, he mixes in some stand-up comedy and music, which make him one of the best all-around entertainers anywhere."

The Councilwoman noted that the "Music Under the Stars" series is being sponsored by the Cultural and Performing Arts (CAPA) Division of the Town's Department of Community and Youth Services. Marine Midland Bank is co-sponsoring this performance.

...And The Beat Goes On

By Karen Blicher

I pondered, for a while, over how best to begin a story on the experience of becoming a new "Band Parent." Here goes.

It's a well known fact that the Hicksville High School Marching Band is a top notch, exceptional group of musicians who have performed in some very exciting places, among them Disney World, Giants Stadium and Canada. For years, I've heard rumors that the Band parents Association was a truly dedicated unit of parents who work tirelessly and unselfishly on behalf of these kids. And here I was...about to embark on the (gulp) Band Parent expedition!

I began by volunteering for a half dozen committees within the Association, which is headed by that organized whirlwind, Diana DePalma. I learned that all fund raising efforts are quickly plowed back into the program for the students, whether it be drinks after a sweltering Memorial Day parade or bee sting kits at Band Clinic in August. Was I crazy to volunteer when it might be easier to sit back and let someone else do the work? No way! Look what I'd miss. Monthly meetings are well attended, informational,, interesting and even fun. The enthusiasm is contagious. And with the tempting array of food at the summer meetings, I was reluctant to leave.

Dedication is important in Band, and it's my opinion that this Marching Band separates the men from the boys (and girls). During summer, three-hour practices are held weekly. While it might seem like a big sacrifice for a teenager to make, remember that the Band has 125 students so both new acquaintances and old ties are renewed during the weekly gathering. Why, just this past week, as I sat in my trusty station wagon finishing a book I'd begun, I heard fantastic sound echoing out of our High School halls. Tucking my novel away, I paused to listen. This was only their fourth practice, yet the group sounded great, and I was thrilled. Countdown to Band Clinic!

So far, from my observations (and I'm not called the eyes and ears of the world for nothing), the groups are broken down, by instrument, for practice. Any questions or thoughts are quickly and helpfully answered by Section Leaders, usually upper classmen/women. In addition to the regular staff, several teachers have volunteered to come in for special sectional clinics with the students, offering the players a wide variety of expertise. One might feel that joining this large Marching band might be intimidating for kids right out of Middle School. Yet, somehow, Band students go out of their way to make their younger counterparts feel comfortable. Friendly is the buzzword here, and so incoming band members now anticipate that four day visit to the Poconos and Band Clinic (what they also will realize is that Band Clinic is hard work, too!).

Directors James McRoy and Jennifer Boltz's presence can be felt in each nook and cranny of Hicksville High. Whether offering input at Band parent meetings, or moving from one room to the next at practice, chatting with out kids, they seem to be everywhere! Their outstanding reputation was legend while our youngsters were in Middle School. Now we have a chance to meet the leaders of the Band, first hand!

If this seems all too good to be true, so far it is! And our children have taken a giant step, musically, by rehearsing and learning this year's Marching Band songs, perfecting them in Band Clinic in the Poconos, so that they'll shine in the Fall competitions and make us proud. And, as they continue to grow in confidence, they'll

In College

Murray, a 1992 graduate of St. Dominic's High School; and Theresa L. Tsounis and Barbara M. Willson, both 1992 graduates of Hicksville High School.

One Cure For The High Cost Of Health Care

THE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Do you think that more Federal Funds should go to education?

Many Favor Military Help In Bosnia

Many callers to Input think that the U.N. should intervene in Bosnia in answer to this question: "Should the United Nations interfere in the upheavals in Bosnia?" Here are some of the answers: NEVER AGAIN

The holocaust still lingers in our thoughts and lives and just as the Jewish people swore "Never again" United Nations and righteous people throughout the world must interfere. No human being should be subjected to torture and deprivation. It must be stopped immediately. History does not have to repeat itself. M.B.

DON'T INTERFERE

No. Only idiots would interfere in Bosnia and I hope there are no idiots in the U.S. The cry for intervention by the Democrats rings hollow. Remember the limited warfare roles in Korea, Bay of Pigs, Vietnam and the botched rescue attempt of hostages in Iran were directed by quick-acting but unthinking Democrats in the administrations of Truman, Kennedy, Johnson and Carter. Now a Presidential Democratic candidate is leading the crusade for armed intervention in Bosnia. I almost feel like throwing up when I think of that lying, letter writing draft dodging Clinton asking for husbands, fathers and sons to intervene in Bosnia. How many body bags later would Clinton rue the action and blame the military? Again, no armed intervention in Bosnia. And I wonder which Texarkana grave has the body of the man who went to war because of Clinton's draft dodging. F.W.

UNITED PRESSURE

I think that the U.N. should put united pressure on the Serbs and whoever else is committing atrocities in Yugoslavia. We cannot just ignore the fact that people are being tortured and that we have the means to stop it. The U.N. which would include all of the major nations should get together and stop the atrocities even if it means armed intervention. G.D.

NOT ALONE

If the question means that the U.S. should do it alone the answer is no. But if it means that the countries making up the U.N. and getting benefit out of it should all get together to stop the concentration camps in Bosnia, then we should do it. What so often has happened is that the U.S. out of good motives will go to the aid of people only to be second guessed by others who will stay around the college campuses and give advice. That advice ought to come now through the U.N. B.D.

NOT POLICEMEN

I think we have had enough of being the world policeman. If the U.N. wants to do something let them take the initiative. The usual thing is for us to foot all of the work, cost and casualties only to be later criticised. We should sit this one out and let the other people who seem to know all of the answers (after we get involved) take the first steps. N.S.

VOCAL DEMOCRATS

There are good reasons why we should go to Bosnia but I wonder why we just pick the white problems in Yugoslavia when the people are starving in black Somalia. Can we really expect black American servicemen to go to Bosnia and ignore African problems? If we are going to interfere anywhere to help people how can we just ignore Somalia? J.V.

NEEDS BALANCED SOLUTION

As it happens, I don't have any relative or friend close to the politicians behind the various segments of the Bosnian/Herzegovina upheaval. I have tried to acquaint myself with the complex situation in that recently "liberalized" area of the world but I believe that even the personnel of the United Nations would have difficulty in reaching equitable solutions. However, I am convinced that the current problems and conditions warrant and demand the combined expertise and knowledge of many nations including the U.S.A. The situation is certainly not going to solve itself and it definitely needs a balanced and equitable solution in the interests of the diverse peoples who could never reach such a resolution by themselves. I lived and worked in Europe for three years but with that brief experience I don't feel qualified to recommend a more equitable objective. However, in any case, we simply cannot ignore the tragic and sinister loss of human life involved under presently uncontrolled circumstances. P.G.S.

The High Cost Of Health Care

PAGE 3A Friday, August 14, 1992 DISCOVERY

By Herb Goldstone

Whatever individual anxieties we may have, there is one we all share, unless we're super wealthy, and that's the astronomical cost of health care and the nagging fear that an unexpected catastrophic illness will wipe out the family's finances.

With governments at every level - national, state and local - hospital administrators, public and private health agencies and insurance companies all struggling with little noticeable success to find some way of curbing skyrocketing medical and dental costs without sacrificing the high quality of care, it's a very real worry.

The mall is full of insurance company brochures warning that whatever health coverage we have isn't enough, so we'll need their "supplementary" policy. If that isn't enough to worry about, everyone trying to balance a governmental budget, whether in Washington, Albany or your town or city hall, talks about cutting Medicaid or Medicare benefits.

One such discussion I caught on TV recently rang a bell in my memory going back to my newspaper reporter days. I remembered an argument I had some years ago with a dentist I know, a veteran of years of high paying practice with an outstanding reputation.

He came up with an idea that might make sense today.

The argument started when he told me he would flatly refuse any Medicare or Medicaid patients because the fees were too low and there was too much red tape and paperwork.

"That's just great," I recall telling him: "What's the good of setting up programs to help the elderly or people who can't afford high quality care if doctors and dentists like you won't participate? What are those people supposed to do?"

"If the government really wants to provide good medical and dental care for people who can't afford it," he told me, "There's a simple way to do it."

I was a bit skeptical. "Like what?"

"Let the government pay tuition and living expenses for anyone who wants to go to medical or dental school who has the academic qualifications," he said.

"In return, when the man or woman graduates, he or she would be obligated to serve a certain number of years, six or seven or whatever they decided, as a Medicare or Medicaid doctor or dentist and be paid a decent salary. There'd be no fees. Care would be free for patients eligible for Medicare or Medicaid."

I remember being intrigued by the idea.

"You mean we'd have national medical or dental service academies like West Point or Annapolis?"

"That's right," he said. "Look at all the advantages. No phony bills or claims because care would be free. Any doctor or dentist in the program would be getting a good salary and there'd be no incentive for fraud."

"The man or woman gets a free education, and you know how expensive medical and dental schools can be, spends a few years getting good, solid experience, the best in the world, as good as any internship, and would still be young enough to start in private practice after that. And the people who can't afford to pay for good care would get it free of charge."

I suppose health insurance experts could find some flaws in the plan. Maybe existing medical and dental schools wouldn't have room for more students than they take now and the government would have to build new ones and pay high faculty salaries.

Maybe brand-new doctors and dentists wouldn't have the know-how yet to deal with really serious care cases, though someone with that kind of problem could be referred to a specialist or someone with experience under some kind of reimbursement procedure.

Maybe there'd be other problems that don't occur to me. Any kinks could be worked out, I think, but the idea is certainly worth considering.

READER RATINGS

Eating well when eating out

In the '90s, it appears that restaurant dining is not the passionate pastime it was in the '80s. Even though home entertaining is in, there will always be occasions when we sit down to a restaurant meal for both social and business reasons. A lot of people are concerned about how to order that meal.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture and various restaurant associations have conducted surveys to determine how nutritiously aware we are when eating out.

According to a 1989 study conducted by the National Restaurant Association, more than 39 percent of restaurant patrons are committed to ordering foods that are healthy. Even though that's not a majority, it's still up from 35 percent just a few years earlier. Progress.

Well not entirely. The same National Restaurant Association, recently reported that in 1991 fried chicken accounted for 53 percent of all poultry ordered, up from 48 percent in 1988.

Part of this backward slide is attributed to the current recession, with buckets of fried chicken being perceived to be an excellent value, especially with promotional discounts.

Busier lifestyles lead to more quick meals, especially in cafeterias, pizza parlors, submarine sandwich shops, fast-food restaurants and even convenience stores. Many of these food emporiums, notorious for offering fat-saturated foods that are also high in sodium, are mending their ways.

The message is spreading out across the land. Since people want to eat healthier food, they are in the business of providing it.

Full-service restaurants provide the greatest variety and flexibility in ordering. Since items are often prepared to order, you can ask the chef to hold the butter, broil instead of fry or to remove the skin from the chicken breast.

You should also inquire about serving size. More and more restaurants are offering two different portions — full or half. Often the half-portion is more than enough. Upscale restaurants often stock items that are not listed on the menu, such as low-fat or skim milk and fresh fruit.

The Four Seasons restaurant in New York was a pioneer in serving lighter fare. They introduced their spa cuisine way back in 1963. These dishes are low-calorie, low-sodium and low-cholesterol, but still gastronomically pleasing.

Another New York institution, the posh 21 Club, reports that 25 percent of the lunches served are selected from their Trim Menu, as well as a full 20 percent of dinners.

Restaurants up and down the economic scale put out tempting munchies on the table as soon as you sit down. Go easy. These extra calories add up quickly. If you want to eat some bread, pass up the butter. When a dip or salsa is put before you, ignore the fried chips and ask for celery or carrot sticks to use instead — even plain bread is preferable.

 This newspaper, and the seven other weekly newspapers associated with it, publishes the last word in restaurant guides and a paid listing of many prominent selected restaurants in this area. While many of them have been rated by the great, and near great food connoisseurs, our readers will have the last word through "Reader Ratings."
 Through a special 24 hour phone system, readers will be asked to call in their assessment of each restaurant they visit. Consensus ratings (good or bad) will be published as a continuing part of the guide.
 In addition they can make suggestions, compliments or criticisms through the open phone line and messages will be sent through to the restaurant management.

DINING GUIDE

Vegetarian View

By Margaret Wing-Peterson

Warm days and long evenings beckon us to eat lightly — a signal for salads. However, "salad" is more than head lettuce with a dash of tomato. Let your curiosity go and try some different produce items.

If you like to stick with the leafy greens, try other varieties of lettuce. Head lettuce or iceberg lettuce is basically "crisp water"; it provides lots of crunch but few vitamins and minerals.

Better bet, nutritionally, are the dark-green leafies — romaine, green leaf lettuce, red leaf lettuce or the butterheads, Boston and bibb. Spinach is terrific; many who won't touch it cooked find the raw leaves tender and more appealing.

Young savoy cabbage can be thinly sliced to eat raw. For a peppery punch, try watercress, chichory, curly endive or even young mustard greens. Use these sparingly, mixed with a larger proportion of one or two of the milder-flavored lettuces.

To dress up your greens, toss in whatever you please: diced jicama, cooked or raw broccoli and cauliflower, minced green chilies, citrus sections, different mushrooms and sprouts, low-fat cheese, beans, potatoes, even cooked grains like rice, barley or cracked wheat.

Salads are forgiving; they can take leftover cooked vegetables and even defrosted frozen vegetables. There are few dishes that make better use of your preparation time and extra food.

Eating your produce raw or lightly cooked also means you'll probably get more of the food's original nutrients. But don't subject your cut vegetables to a long bath with lots of water; vitamins can be soaked out. And watch the fat-loaded condiments. There's often more calories in a tablespoon of dressing than in that plate of unadorned mixed vegetables.

POTATO SALAD WITH A TWIST

- 1 pound green beans, cut into 2-inch lengths
- 4 large potatoes, unpeeled and scrubbed
- 2 green onions, sliced
- 1/4 small red pepper, chopped
- 1/4 small green pepper, chopped
- 2 tablespoons olive or salad oil
- 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
- 1 to 2 large cloves garlic, crushed (to taste)
- 1 small red onion, thinly sliced into rings
- 1/4 teaspoon dried oregano
- Freshly ground black pepper to taste

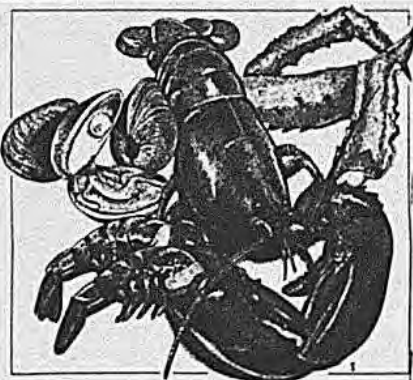

Yields 3 to 4 entree-size servings.

Cook beans and potatoes until just tender. Cube potatoes. Cool vegetables until warm and place with green onions and red and green peppers in bowl; set aside. In jar, combine remaining

READER RATINGS

Q. Why in some restaurants do I have to sit there so long before the waitress gives me the check?

A. Well the answer to your question is hard to define. It might be simply because the restaurant is so busy that the waitress hasn't time to add up the check. But at some of the better restaurants you will never get a check unless you ask for it. In these establishments they feel that the guest should decide how long they wish to talk or occupy the space after eating and only on rare occasions will they bring a check that has not been solicited and then with apologies.

Q. Some restaurants make a big thing over a lobster tank, but I think it is disgusting to have to kill these animals in order to get a meal. Why do they have these tanks?

A. The reason is simply that lobster has to be freshly killed to be eaten. The lobster tank lets the diner see that what he is getting is really fresh lobster. Possibly some squeamish people believe that the lobster tank should be somewhere else but most diners want to see the live ones and if you do not, you should be suspicious. They are killed instantly in boiling water.

Q. My friend and I enjoy a relaxing drink at the bar before eating. dinner in our favorite restaurant. How much should we tip the bartender?

A. Ten or fifteen percent of the bill is the usual amount.

Q. What do you think of a girl who always orders the most expensive items on the menu when she eats out with a male friend?

A. I do not feel she is being considerate of her companion, and consideration of others is the essence of good manners.

Q. As a non-drinker I sometimes feel ill at ease in a restaurant when everyone at the table orders cocktails except me. However, liquor makes me ill. Should I say no to my companions?

A. There is no reason for you to feel uncomfortable or to give reasons why you do not drink. When the cocktail orders are being taken simply smile and say, "Nothing for me, thank you!" or if you prefer order ginger ale or Perrier water.

KITCHEN HINTS

You like fluffy rice
and it's easy to save.

Here are some simple tips:

1. If you cook it ahead, fluff with a fork, cover with plastic wrap and leave at room temperature.
2. Rice can't be frozen, but it makes good leftovers.
3. Add leftover rice to casseroles, soups and salads, or reheat in microwave.

A. If I am dining out with a large group and do not feel like a cocktail, am I really obliged to order one so as not to put a damper on the party?
A. Absolutely not. And, this applies to all size groups. No one should ever order an alcoholic drink to please others. If you wish, you may order a soft drink or mineral water, but this is purely optional.

Q. I seem to remember that years ago salads always came to the table with the entree. But now they are served in advance of the main course. Why did this change occur?

A. Salads are now customarily served before the entree in order to provide the hungry diner with something to eat while his main course is being prepared. With today's emphasis on nutrition, salads are treated with much more respect than they once were. They are regarded not just as accompaniments to meals, but as important courses in their own right.

After Work Gourmet

A peachy season for fruity entrees

By Sharon Achatz

It's time to pick a peck of peaches, plums, nectarines or apricots.

Summer fruits are at their peak — and there's much more to these juicy morsels than out-of-hand munching or quick slice-and-dice salads and desserts. They're fine fare for fast entrees, as well.

Quite simply, it's a peach of a season for fresh and fruity entrees that are plum delicious.

Take, for example, a recipe for Plum Delicious Chicken Stir-Fry. This family favorite from "Wok Cuisine" (Better Homes and Gardens Books) combines crunchy pea pods, tender chicken and plums with a sweet-and-sour sauce for a sensational stir-fry. Substitute apricots or pears for the plums, depending on which fruits look best at the market.

The origin of Mulligatawny Soup is unclear, but it is believed to have been developed by Indian cooks for their British employers during colonial times. There are many variations, but all start with a spicy curry broth. This version relies on chopped peaches to round out the dish with a pleasing sweetness, although nectarines, plums or apples work just as well.

For fancier fare, the speedy chef can serve up Tarragon Chicken With Peaches. This fragrant dish pairs lightly breaded chicken breasts with sliced peaches, then tops them off with an elegant, clear sauce that imparts a touch of tarragon — and its anise-like flavor and aroma — to the dish.

PLUM DELICIOUS CHICKEN STIR-FRY

- 2 1/4 cups instant rice
- 4 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 1 (6-ounce) package frozen pea pods, thawed
- 1/2 cup red plum jam
- 3 tablespoons white vinegar
- 3 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1 onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings
- 4 plums, pitted and cut into wedges

Yields 4 servings.
Preparation time: 25 minutes.
Cook rice according to package directions.

Meanwhile, cut chicken into bite-size strips. Slice pea pods diagonally in half. For sauce, stir together jam, vinegar, soy sauce and cornstarch in small bowl; set aside.

Pour oil into wok, adding more oil as necessary during cooking. Preheat over medium-high heat. Stir-fry onion in hot oil 2 minutes; remove from wok.

Add chicken to hot wok. Stir-fry

2 to 3 minutes or until no pink remains. Push chicken from center of wok. Stir sauce; pour into center of wok. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Stir chicken, onions, plums and pea pods into sauce. Cook and stir about 2 minutes or until heated through.

Serve immediately over hot cooked rice.

MULLIGATAWNY SOUP

- 1/4 cup instant rice
- 2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cubed
- 1 onion, diced
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1 green bell pepper, chopped
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 tablespoon curry powder
- 1 teaspoon thyme
- 4 cups chicken broth
- 4 peaches, coarsely chopped

Yields 4 servings.
Preparation time: 30 minutes.

Cook rice according to package directions. Meanwhile, sauté cubed chicken, onion, celery and bell pepper in oil until onion is transparent, about 5 minutes. Add flour, curry and thyme, stirring constantly to avoid lumping. Gradually add broth and simmer 10 minutes, or until soup begins to thicken slightly. Add peaches and cooked rice; simmer 3 minutes to heat through.

TARRAGON CHICKEN WITH PEACHES

- 1 egg
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 4 boneless chicken breasts
- 4 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon tarragon
- 4 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 4 peaches, sliced

Yields 4 servings.
Preparation time: 30 minutes.
Break egg into shallow container; beat with fork. Combine flour, salt and pepper in another shallow container. Coat chicken with egg, then with flour mixture.

Heat oil in large skillet. Sauté chicken, skin side down, over medium-high heat about 4 minutes, or until brown. Turn and brown other side, about 3 minutes. Sprinkle chicken with tarragon. Add lemon juice, broth and margarine to pan. Bring to boil and cook uncovered 2 to 3 minutes to reduce sauce. Add peach slices; cover and cook 2 to 3 minutes, or until fruit is hot.

SUNSHINE

SPINACH SALAD

- 3 cups torn romaine lettuce or other salad greens
- 3 cups torn raw spinach
- 1 orange, sliced
- 1 cup diced jicama or 1 (8-ounce) can sliced water chestnuts, drained
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- 1 small red onion, thinly sliced into rings

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

In large bowl, combine all ingredients. Chill until serving time; toss with favorite homemade or commercial low-calorie herb dressing.

J. Have you heard the expression "Maiden Dinner?" My cousin said she will be attending one soon and I did not like to confess my ignorance!

A. This is a rather old fashioned term and it refers to the traditional dinner given by the bride-to-be for her attendants usually a few days before the wedding. The Maiden Dinner is the equivalent of the male Bachelor Dinner.

Q. What is the correct way to eat crackers with soup?

A. Small crackers, such as oyster crackers, may be added to the soup and eaten that way. However, large soda crackers should really not be crumbled into the soup. It is better to keep them on the plate and eat them along with the soup.

Raw eggplant is bitter and unpleasant tasting, but cooked eggplant has a delightful, mild flavor — and it readily absorbs seasonings and meat flavors.

To rid eggplant of its bitterness, many conventional recipes suggest sprinkling cut eggplant with salt before cooking. This method is not recommended for microwaving, however, since a salty surface can cause microwaves to cook unevenly. So skip the salting step whenever converting a favorite eggplant recipe for the microwave.

At any rate, microwaved eggplant is tender and not at all bitter. And microwaving preserves the pretty pale-green color of the flesh. (Microwaving can cut calories, too, since fried eggplant soaks up oil — and calories — like a sponge.)

The French word for eggplant is aubergine, a pretty-sounding name for one of nature's most beautiful vegetables: deep purple, with a sensuous, rounded egg shape. When shopping, look for eggplants that feel heavy for their size. They should have firm, taut, shiny purple skin and a green (not brown) cap and stem.

To microwave a delicious Middle Eastern dip, pierce a medium eggplant in several places with a fork. Place on two layers of paper towels and microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting for 6 to 10 minutes (depending on size of eggplant), or until soft. Refrigerate for 30 minutes.

Scoop flesh into a food processor (discard peel). Add 3 tablespoons olive oil, 2 tablespoons fresh parsley, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon soy sauce, 1 clove fresh garlic, a dash of sugar and freshly ground black pepper to taste. Blend well and serve as a dip with warm pita bread.

Today's recipes make the most of fresh eggplant, microwave-style. Try Chicken Ratatouille With Pasta: tender chicken breasts covered in a mixture of eggplant, zucchini, green pepper, onion, garlic and tomato, all topped with Parmesan cheese and served over a bed of cooked pasta.

Tasty Italian Eggplant Casserole alternates layers of sliced eggplant with crumbled ground beef and seasoned tomato sauce, while Savory Stuffed Eggplant is seasoned with bacon, basil and sliced black olives.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.

MICRO-TIP OF THE WEEK

To microwave a whole eggplant, wash and pierce in several places with a fork. Place on two layers of paper towel and microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting 6 to 8 minutes for a small (about 1/4-pound) eggplant; 8 to 12 minutes for a medium (1- and 1/2-pound) eggplant. To microwave 4 cups diced eggplant, place in a 10-inch glass pie plate with 1/4 cup water. Cover with plastic wrap and microwave 3 to 5 minutes, or until tender.

CHICKEN RATATOUILLE WITH PASTA

6 bone-in chicken breasts (about 2 1/4 pounds), skinned
1 egg
2 teaspoons milk
1 teaspoon olive oil
Dash pepper
1 cup seasoned dry bread crumbs
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes
Paprika
1 small eggplant, peeled and chopped into 1/2-inch chunks
1 medium onion, chopped
2 cups thinly sliced zucchini
2 cups chopped tomato
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 teaspoon dried basil
1/2 teaspoon oregano leaves
Hot cooked pasta for 6

Yields 6 servings.

Preparation time: 15 to 20 minutes.

Cooking time: 27 to 35 minutes (plus 5 minutes standing time).

Oven setting: HIGH (100 percent power); MEDIUM-HIGH (70 percent power).

Rinse chicken breasts and pat dry. In small bowl combine egg, milk, olive oil and pepper; beat well with fork.

Combine seasoned bread crumbs, grated Parmesan and parsley flakes in small, flat bowl; toss with fork to combine.

Dip chicken breasts, one at a time, in egg mixture, then dredge in seasoned crumb mixture.

Arrange chicken in a shallow microwave-safe baking dish, with meatier portions toward outside of dish. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Microwave 6 minutes at HIGH setting. Rotate dish 1/4 turn and microwave 14 to 19 minutes longer at MEDIUM-HIGH setting, or until meat near bone is no longer pink, rotating dish 1/4 turn every 5 minutes. Let stand, covered, while preparing vegetables.

To prepare ratatouille, combine eggplant, onion, zucchini, tomato, green pepper, garlic, olive oil, Parmesan, basil and oregano in 2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover and microwave 7 to 10 minutes at HIGH setting, or until vegetables are tender, stirring every 3 minutes.

Place cooked pasta on large serving platter. Arrange chicken breasts over pasta, then top with ratatouille. Serve with additional grated Parmesan, to garnish.

FOR TEENS

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Dear Teens: You already know how much I admire most teens. The tremendous amount of volunteering you do, the serious problems you overcome, your efforts to preserve and improve our environment, the love and concern you have for this country of ours, your frequent efforts to be good family members and friends — the list of your strengths is long and impressive.

The teen performance record isn't perfect, of course, but the odds seem to be strongly on the side of a safe and sensible future for our country because of your present contributions and promise for the years ahead.

And yet, once in a while a national study of teens comes out with some findings that are dismal and disturbing. When I read them I wonder whether those conducting them are studying teens who are different from the ones I hear from, whose lives don't seem to be reflected in the published research.

This recent teen study included conclusions on pregnancy (a million every year), murder (the leading cause of death among 15- to 19-year-old minority teens), suicides (doubled since 1968), arrests (skyrocketing) and drinking (more than one-third of high school seniors admitted having been drunk in the preceding two weeks).

One conclusion was that teens are less healthy and less prepared to meet the challenges of society than were their parents.

Is all that depressing? You bet! But then I decided to ask you: Is that the teen world you know and live in? Are your friends among those with such problems? Is the situation as desperate as some research reports indicate?

I hope you will write to me about the family, school and friendship settings you know best. Your personal reactions to some of those sad findings and to your own situation will be so welcome.

They can add up to an accurate story of the feelings, hopes, involvements and concerns of this column's teen readers.

Dr. Abraham: The only thing that bothers me about my girlfriend is that she is so bright that she almost scares me, and she makes me awfully uncomfortable. Wasn't there a song a long time ago that went like this: "Anything you can do, I can do better?"

That fits her to a T. She's pretty, likes me a lot and is 'fun to be with, but not when she comes on strong.

Even some of the boy stuff that I like to do, and am good at (like electrical things, my car and plumbing repairs) she butts in on and tries to take over.

I'd hate to lose her, but I can't stand this much longer. — Dave, Frankfort, Ky.

Dave: Why don't you tell her what you told me? If you start out with something about how fond you are of her, how pretty she is or how much you admire her school or other successes, you might then be able to comfortably move into what bothers you.

If she then can begin to see things through your eyes and is able to help you out (but only when you ask her to), you may be on your way to a stronger relationship.

Dr. Abraham: I need help, so please come to my rescue!

Is it really important that everyone go to college? I'm going into my last year of high school this fall, and college may or may not be in my future as far as I'm concerned.

My parents insist that the answer should be "Yes." Because they are pressuring so much, I'm beginning to move from "Maybe" to "No," but I'm really not sure yet.

Can you suggest some practical reading I can do to help me see all this clearly without letting their emotions and mine get in the way? — Tommy, Reading, Pa.

Tommy: A book recently published may be right up your alley.

Its title is "The Question Is College," written by Herbert Kohl. A line on its cover under the title says, "Guiding Your Child to the Right Choices After High School." It perhaps could be of value to you as well as to your parents.

The theme is spelled out in this excerpt from the book:

"There are valuable things that can be learned at colleges, both culturally and technically, and professions that can only be learned there. For some people college can open up unimagined possibilities and change the whole nature and direction of their lives. However, this isn't true for everyone, and one ought to consider what other useful things there are for young people to do right after high school."

The book provides a thorough treatment of college and alternative post-high school routes.

I hope your local library or a good bookstore has a copy available for you and your parents.

Watermelon weather

By Charles Britton

It's the season for a real refresher, though nations vary in their appreciation of watermelon. The picky French, for example, never have cultivated much of a taste for it. They don't even call it a melon (which, neatly enough, is French for "melon"); to them, a watermelon is a pasteque.

But Southern Italians have a soft spot in their hearts for this juicy symbol of warm, languorous days. And the Russians like it as a refresher when their Eurasian heat is at its height.

Some of the greatest fanciers are in Southeast Asia, where watermelon plays a large symbolic role. A plentiful, sweet crop is supposed to betoken a good year all around. The belief led to one of the most curious episodes of the Vietnam War. The watermelon crop there failed one year, and to keep the people from going communist in their despondency, the U.S. armed forces flew in tons of melons. (I wouldn't advise you to try this — the strategy didn't seem to work in the long run.)

In our own country, watermelon can kick off nostalgia about countrified pleasures. Barefoot boys with cheeks of tan and other assorted Americana.

Today, watermelon is a virtual year-round crop, with off-season fruit brought in from Mexico. In the old days, though, you had to wait until this time of year to have much of a selection of the fruit.

You knew watermelon weather had arrived when trucks from the farm would drive into town and park by the side of road so the grower could sell his wares right off the tailgate. Some people said that the striped melons were sweeter than the solid green ones, but one thing used to be sure: The bigger the watermelon, the better.

Nowadays, many consumers go for the basketball-size melons, and seedless varieties have taken away the pleasure of sitting on the back porch, munching watermelon and spitting out the black pits into the nearby zinnia patch.

Another old custom that has disappeared is the ritual of plugging. Used to be you wouldn't buy a melon without testing it first. The produce man would take a large knife and cut out a long, pyramidal chunk from the melon, and the buyer would taste sagely. The remains of the sample would then plug up the hole.

But first you would select your melon by judicious thumping. This still goes on: I always use a slap from the flat of the hand myself, but some people give the skin a flick of their middle or index finger. To tell the truth, I am never quite sure what to listen for — a hollow sound or something, although all watermelons sound pretty hollow to me.

Now science advises us that thumping is no real help at all. That's the trouble with the modern world — no room for tradition. Instead, the experts tell us to look for a yellow hue on the underside, where the sun didn't get to it. This indicates probable ripeness. Avoid bruised or scarred examples.

Another technique is to inspect the cut melons that markets offer nowadays. Chances are, any whole watermelon you choose will be like the examples that have been opened up.

Then, once you get your melon home, you can hope for the sound of a crack when your knife breaks the skin, the signal of a fully ripe fruit.

A freshly picked watermelon keeps for about two weeks; after that, the flesh begins to lose sweetness and texture. Cut watermelon should be eaten within two days. Do not wrap cut melon tightly, that causes it to become mushy.

Most watermelon is eaten as is, but we suggest expanding into recipes such as the following.

Watermelon makes an interesting foil for aggressive seasonings, as in this salsa:

WATERMELON SALSA

- 2 cups seeded, coarsely chopped watermelon
- 2 to 4 tablespoons chopped Anaheim chilies (or hotter chilies to taste)
- 2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
- ¼ teaspoon garlic salt

Yields 2 cups.

Combine all ingredients. Mix well. Refrigerate at least 1 hour. This may be served with chicken or other grilled meat.

Note on chopped watermelon: Don't chop flesh too finely; it tends to disintegrate.

Some people like to eat watermelon sprinkled with salt and pepper. The same notion informs this salad.

WATERMELON ONION SALAD

- 4 cups cubed watermelon, preferably seedless
- ¼ cup very thinly sliced onions
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil
- ¼ cup raspberry vinegar (see note)
- Salt and black pepper to taste
- Lettuce leaves

Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Toss watermelon, onions and basil until well mixed. Pour on vinegar; toss gently. Season with salt and pepper. Serve on lettuce.

Watermelon can, of course, go into sweet dishes.

WATERMELON SMOOTHIE

- 2 cups seeded watermelon chunks
- 1 cup cracked ice
- ¼ cup plain yogurt
- 1 to 2 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
- ¼ teaspoon almond extract

Yields 2 to 3 servings.

Combine all ingredients in blender or food processor; process until smooth.

Note: Frozen watermelon desserts do not keep well. They are best eaten the same day they are made.

WATERMELON FROST

- 3 cups cubed watermelon
- ¼ cup orange liqueur (see note)
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2½ tablespoons sugar
- Additional watermelon cubes for garnish

Yields 4 servings.

In blender or food processor, process watermelon, liqueur, lemon juice and sugar until smooth. Sugar should completely dissolve. Pour into shallow baking dish, preferably metal, and place in freezer. Stir from time to time until firm. Garnish with cubes of watermelon.

Note: Instead of liqueur, use orange juice and an additional tablespoon of sugar.

Here's a traditional Italian version, a granita (pronounced gra-ni-tah):

WATERMELON GRANITA

- 6 cups watermelon in chunks, seeded
- ¼ cup sugar
- Juice of 1 lemon

Yields 8 servings.

In blender or food processor, process watermelon, sugar and lemon until smooth. Sugar should completely dissolve.

Pour into shallow container and place in freezer. Stir with fork occasionally until completely frozen. The texture should be slushy.

"Verdura" by Vianna La Place (Morrow) includes this extraordinary recipe from Italy. Watermelon and chocolate turn out to be a great combination.

ANGURIA AL CIOCCOLATO

- 4 pounds of watermelon
- 3 tablespoons brandy
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1½ ounces bittersweet chocolate

Yields 6 servings.

Cut watermelon flesh into bite-size pieces, removing seeds. In bowl, combine brandy and sugar, dissolving sugar completely. Pour over watermelon, stir gently, cover and refrigerate for 1 hour.

Slice chocolate into thin shavings. Sprinkle over melon and serve with juice.

The most traditional watermelon recipes are those for pickles and preserves. They are reminiscent of the days when a dish of sweet relishes would appear on every respectable dinner table. As a boy, I never cared much for these because I always expected them to taste like fresh watermelon. They don't — they're more like sweet cucumber pickles. The following recipe doesn't require canning.

The following recipes call for the firm, white part of the rind with the outer green peel and the red flesh removed.

WATERMELON PRESERVES

- 1½ quarts watermelon rind, cut into 1-inch cubes
- ¼ cup salt
- 2 quarts cold water
- 2 teaspoons ground ginger
- 4 cups sugar
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 7 cups water
- 1 lemon, thinly sliced, seeds removed

Yields 6 half-pint jars.

Combine rind, salt and 2 quarts cold water in large glass bowl. Cover and let stand at room temperature for 6 hours. Rinse in cold water, drain; repeat. Let stand 30 minutes and drain again.

Place rind in large saucepan, sprinkle with ginger and add water to cover. Bring to boil. Reduce heat; simmer, stirring occasionally, for 15 minutes or until tender. Drain and set aside.

Combine sugar, lemon juice and 7 cups water in stainless steel saucepan. Boil 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Add watermelon rind and boil gently 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add lemon slices; reduce heat and simmer 25 minutes or until lemon slices are tender.

Ladle preserves into hot sterilized jars, leaving ¼ inch head space. Cap according to manufacturer's directions. Place on rack in large kettle with water to cover by 1 inch; bring to a boil and process for 15 minutes.

FRESH WATERMELON PICKLES

- 3 cups watermelon rind, cut into ½-inch chunks (see note)
- 1 cup white vinegar
- ¼ cup sugar
- 5 or 6 whole cloves, or to taste
- 1 2-inch piece of cinnamon stick

Yields 6 servings.

Put watermelon chunks in large saucepan. Add vinegar, sugar, cloves and cinnamon stick. Bring to boil, stirring often. Reduce heat, cover and simmer until rind is tender but still has texture, about 1 hour. Discard spices.

Refrigerate pickles in syrup, covered, for minimum of 12 hours before serving. These pickles will keep in refrigerator for 2 weeks.

Garden Talk

By C.Z. Guest

Gardeners are like everybody else when it comes to the environment — perhaps even more so. Saving and piling lawn clippings, dead leaves, vegetable refuse and weeds to make compost is second nature. But what if your yard is too small to yield a healthy-size compost pile?

The answer is composting with Canadian sphagnum peat moss. To make the quickest and easiest compost, mix lawn clippings, weeds, garden refuse, vegetable peelings from the kitchen and other organic matter in a 50-50 ratio including peat moss. Use three 10-gallon plastic garbage receptacles to do your mixing, aerating and storing.

Do your work where you are going to store the garbage cans because the receptacles may become somewhat unwieldy and heavy. As you fill a can, add a shovelful or two of garden soil or well-rotted manure, as well as 2 cups of ground limestone.

Blend the ingredients thoroughly by pouring them back and forth between the first two cans. After the mix is well-combined, pour a ½ gallon of water into the can of compost and set it in full sunlight.

Every day or so, air the composting material by pouring it from one garbage receptacle to the other. If liquid collects in the bottom, or if it smells like it's fermenting, simply add some peat moss to soak up the liquid.

If the clippings don't seem to be breaking down, add another shovelful of manure or a cup of high-nitrogen fertilizer. Composting will proceed rapidly in warm weather but will slow down when it's cool.

During the summer, you should be able to generate a canful of healthy-smelling, fertile compost in about one month. Store the finished compost in the third can to maintain cleanliness.

Save a few shovels of the manure compost when you empty the can and use it as a "starter" for a new batch instead of beginning from scratch with garden soil and manure.

If you customarily accumulate a pile of dried leaves each fall, save a canful of composted peat moss and mix it in a 50-50 ratio with dried leaves. Add another ½ gallon of water per can. The leaves should decrease in volume very quickly, which will allow you to add more.

Drag the garbage cans into a warm area so that the coming of winter doesn't stop the composting process.

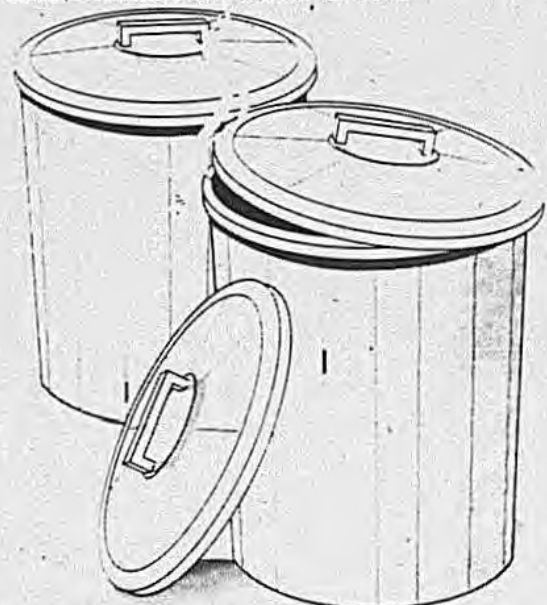

A fertile peat moss-based compost is ideal for working into the soil around plants and for mixing into potting soils. Use it as you would use it straight out of the bale.

The easiest way to mix composted peat moss into the soil around plants is to dig it into the top 3 to 4 inches with a hoe.

GARDEN TIPS

Compost recipe

- As you fill a garbage can with lawn clippings, dead leaves, vegetable refuse and weeds, add a shovelful of garden soil and 2 cups of limestone.
- Blend ingredients by pouring them back and forth between two garbage cans. Add a half-gallon of water in the can of compost and set in full sunlight.
- Air composting material by pouring it from one garbage can to another once a day.
- Add peat moss to soak up any liquid that collects.

Our Children

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

The name game

Q. Do you think that the name a child has will affect his or her personality? I feel that other influences are much more important, but my wife keeps coming back to the name issue as being at the top of the list of what affects a person.

Can we have your opinion, please? It's important to us before we name our second child, due next month. According to her, we may already have made a mistake with our firstborn.

A. A person who has gone into this subject in depth is Dr. Albert Mehrabian, author of a book titled "The Name Game" (National Press Inc.). He also discussed this topic in an article published in Working Mother magazine.

Here are some of his thoughts

- Don't choose wildly eccentric names because they tend to be a detriment, not an asset.

- If you're set on a highly unusual one (perhaps because it is a family name), use it as a middle name.

- Names can affect how people might react to others and how successful they are in life.

- Steer clear of sexually ambiguous names such as Shelby to help give your daughter a strong advantage if she chooses a career in business. On a success rating scale, the highest scoring female name was Jacqueline (clearly a girl's name) and, for boys, James (clearly a boy's name).

I don't see a child's or adult's name as being at the top of the list of what affects a person, but it can be somewhere on the list — along with other influences, like one's personality, capabilities and career goals.

Q. My husband and I have accepted a fact of life in our family. Our 16-year-old is pregnant. Now that the tears have subsided and we have all agreed that she will have an abortion (based on extensive serious discussions among the three of us related to all the options available), we seem to have only one problem. But it seems to be a big one.

My husband's family, and also mine, think we are doing the wrong thing. Because we love our parents and our brothers and sisters, we feel bad about the situation because we don't like having conflicts with them.

I don't want to take your time by going into detail about all the reasons why we've arrived at our decision. We have considered everything in depth and feel strongly that what we have decided is right from the point of view of the three of us.

But how should we cope with the extended families? That's the issue.

A. Whether your decision were pro-choice or anti-abortion, my reply would no doubt be the same. The decision belongs to your immediate family, with the aid of competent consultation and within the law.

If there is enough love from, as well as toward your families, the opinion differences will probably fade within a reasonable period of time. There may, of course, be some islands of resentment that last longer than others.

In the meantime, calmly sharing your point of view at appropriate times and providing no more details than you feel are necessary should gradually lead into unrelated conversational topics of interest to you and them. Those subjects will probably take over in the not-too-distant future.

THE HEALTHY GOURMET

By Kit Suedaker

Cookies make a difference. As miniature cakes, they come out for dessert with a flourish and coffee. On those days when nothing else goes well — count on cookies. They resolve almost any problem from a broken heart to a stomachache. Cookies, in fact, are the only snack I know that taste wicked but aren't.

Not all cookies deserve this innocent reputation. Chocolate chips still are reserved for special disasters, and off-limits the rest of the time. Generally the healing cookies, the cookies with style and grace but no lasting impact, are Italian. I don't think of Italians as bakers (except for bread, of course), but they make clever cookies, sensitive cookies, cookies that make me smile.

Sesame Cookies are one breed. They give a lot of product for time spent in the kitchen, and they keep. Amaretti are another. At first I ate the commercial variety just so I could twist the little papers in which they are wrapped, light them and watch them fly up in flames and disintegrate. Then I found a recipe and really appreciated how good they were.

Best of all, though, are Biscotti — meaning twice-baked. Rock hard, they are born to be dipped in after-dinner coffee or a dessert wine — Italian via santo.

Of course you don't have to wait for dessert. Munch on one passing through the kitchen. You will burn off all 40 of its calories just running errands and doing chores. Forgiving! That's cookies.

SESAME COOKIES

2 cups flour
1 1/4 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup low-sodium margarine
2 egg substitutes, lightly beaten, usually this is 1/2 cup
1 teaspoon low-fat milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 1/2 tablespoons sesame seeds

Yields about 40 cookies.

Each cookie has about 65 calories, 4 grams fat, no cholesterol and 32 milligrams sodium.

Preheat oven to 375 F. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. In a separate bowl cream sugar and margarine. Add egg substitutes, milk and vanilla. Stir in dry ingredients and mix. Drop cookie dough by teaspoonful onto ungreased cookie sheet.

Flatten each mound with fork dipped in water and sprinkle each with sesame seeds. Bake for 10 to 15 minutes or until lightly brown. Cool on rack.

ITALIAN AMARETTI

2 1/4 cups finely ground almonds
1 pound confectioners' sugar
1/4 teaspoon grated lemon rind
4 egg whites
1/4 cup coarse sugar

Yields 60 cookies.

Each cookie has about 177 calories, 7 grams fat, no cholesterol and 11 milligrams sodium.

Preheat oven to 250 F. Put ground almonds, confectioners' sugar and lemon rind in bowl and mix. Add egg whites and blend with electric beater until foamy.

Put batter in pastry tube and pipe dough in tiny mounds on cookie sheet lined with parchment paper. (Or carefully drop from teaspoon, shaping with fingers.)

Moisten each mound with a drop of water and sprinkle with sugar (specialty shops have it as pearl sugar. Granulated sugar will do in a pinch). Bake for 15 minutes. Increase heat to 300 F and continue baking until golden brown, about 15 minutes more.

Here's How

Damaged porcelain can be disguised

Q. Our porcelain bathroom sink was damaged by a falling object and now has several chips and cracks. It is a fairly new sink, and we'd like to repair it rather than replace it, if possible. Can you recommend any products? We've seen some advertised in mail order catalogs but are skeptical about their effectiveness.

A. The repair of porcelain enamel, short of an entire resurfacing, is almost impossible. This is particularly true when the surface is constantly exposed to water. However, you may be able to effectively treat these chips and cracks if the marred surface is not part of the actual wash basin.

You will need one of the resin repair products available at larger hardware stores or home centers. Lightly sand the area (use medium-grade sandpaper) to remove any rust and expose a fresh surface of metal and porcelain for good bonding.

Be careful not to scratch the surrounding area. Confine the sanding to the chipped area only. Resin fillers can be tinted to match the color of your porcelain. When you have a close match, fill the chipped or cracked area.

If you overfill the chipped area, the excess can be removed with a solvent, such as xylol, acetone, or even fingernail polish remover. The solvent also is helpful in smoothing and blending the edges of the patch after it has set and dried.

The patch may not last long. However, it is worth a try before having the entire basin replaced. If the repairs are not to your satisfaction, consider resurfacing, which can be less expensive than replacement. Contact a firm that specializes in bathroom and sink repairs and resurfacing. I would contact a couple of firms for estimates, an explanation of the type of process they use and what type of written guarantees they provide for work performed.

Dinner Score

By Rose Bennett Gilbert

Q. We moved into my husband's apartment in the city and I rented out my big suburban house after we were married last fall. Since he works in town and my children are all grown, it seems logical, but I'm really missing all that space, especially a real dining room.

All we have now is a "bulge" at one end of the kitchen. Any help you can offer on how to make it more attractive would be appreciated. I guess what I really mean is "more formal." — A.C.

A. Attitude is always more important than floor space when it comes to creating a mood in any room. If you choose more formal furnishings, it follows that the end result will have the ambience you're after, no matter how "miniaturized."

However, since your dining room is just a "bulge" off the kitchen, there are other considerations, privacy and lighting chief among them. You can use the latter to help create a feeling of the former.

By installing dimmer switches to lower the kitchen lights, you can shift the focal point to the dining room and leave the "business end" of the room literally in the dark.

A standing screen, a ficus tree or large plant, or even a portiere (door curtain) swagged from the ceiling across the dining room "entrance" will serve as a psychological divider, if not an actual wall, between areas.

Designer Katherine Stephens conquered a problem similar to yours when she decorated the kitchen of the Kips Bay Showhouse in New York, where the long gallery kitchen ran into a small area she turned into a charming French-flavored dining room.

The workaday kitchen (which doesn't show in this photograph) was fairly tailored and a bit formal itself, with Avonite counters and vintage cabinetry. Stephens then worked mega-magic in the minispace by treating it with an elegance far beyond its actual size.

First, she chose a traditional toile de Jouy for chairs and walls. The one-fabric look always enhances the illusion of space. Then she added another interesting dimension by upholstering one wall with flat fabric and hanging softly gathered curtains over another, over which she has hung a painting.

The mirror, too, wears a small, ribbon-hung painting that also helps fool the eye into seeing more room than really exists.

WRAPPED WALLS — Wrapping the walls and windows with classic toile de Jouy, New York designer Katherine Stephens conjures the coziness of Provence in a tiny dining area.

ANTIQUE OR JUNQUE

By James G. McCollam

Pocket watch is a timely collectible

Q. Enclosed is a picture of my Elgin pocket watch. It has a 17-jewel movement numbered 12283597. The case is gold and inscribed "Burlington Quality."

This watch keeps excellent time, and I would appreciate your comments as to the age and value.

A. The serial number indicates that your watch was made in 1905, and "Burlington Quality" indicates that the case is gold-filled—not solid gold.

Watches like this are selling in the $125 to $135 range.

Q. The enclosed mark is on the bottom of a china inkstand that is decorated with blue, orange and gold flowers with gilt trim. It consists of an ink bottle and two pen holders. It is 6 inches long and 3 1/4 inches high.

Please tell me what you think about its age and value.

A. This mark was used by the Mason company in Lane Delph, England, early in the 19th century. An inkstand such as this is a rare find and would probably sell for at least $1,000.

Q. What can you tell me about a cast-iron vending machine (penny gum)? It is six-sided and painted red. It dispenses various brands of stick gum.

A. Gum machines like this were popular in the 1930s. In really good condition, it might sell for $165 to $185.

Q. I would like to know something about a glass water pitcher. It has a picture of Adm. George Dewey and is inscribed, "Gridley, you may fire when ready!" It also has an eagle with a shield.

A. This pressed-glass pitcher was a Spanish-American War commemorative made in 1898. It would probably sell for $125 to $135.

Q. Do I have a choice find in this antique churn? It is a tapered wooden cylinder with staves like a barrel and four steel bands. The dasher has a round handle about 4 feet long.

A. Your primitive churn was made in the late 1800s and would probably sell for about $225 to $235.

With the dasher put away for safe keeping, these made picturesque wastebaskets.

Q. I would appreciate it if you would tell me something about the vintage and value of my store model coffee grinder. It is 12 inches high and was made by Landers, Frary & Clark in New Britain, Conn.

A. These commercial coffee mills are very popular with collectors. Yours was made soon after the turn of the century and would probably sell for $400 to $500.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Our 3-year-old West Highland white terrier frequently has problems with small, pink sores between her toes. She spends a lot of time licking her paws when these sores are present. What is the most likely cause of these sores?

A. It is impossible to tell you what is causing the soreness between your dog's toes without actually seeing her. However, one of the more common causes of the signs that you have described is a condition called "interdigital cysts."

An interdigital cyst is a swelling, or small abscess, on the skin between the dog's toes. Although interdigital cysts occasionally are seen in all breeds of dogs, they are much more common in bulldogs, Pekingese, Scottish terriers, West Highland white terriers, Sealyham terriers, spaniels and boxers.

Interdigital cysts can develop in a very short period of time. A pink or red swelling appears, usually on the top side of the skin between the toes. Most dogs spend a lot of time licking the cysts.

Most interdigital cysts cause considerable pain and the affected dog holds up the paw. Many cysts develop into abscesses and then drain pus.

Opinions differ regarding the causes of interdigital cysts. Probable causes include ingrown hairs, foreign substances, such as weed awns and grains of sand, scratches or lacerations from walking on wire cages and bacterial infections.

Hypersensitivity or allergies may be involved in some dogs. Dogs with interdigital cysts should be examined by a veterinarian.

JUNIOR EDITION

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Have you ever spent a vacation in a mobile home? I have. It's a little like playing house. It has a small kitchen with storage space for food and utensils. There is a small refrigerator with a freezer for ice cream, a bathroom with a shower and closet space for all your clothes. Our table during the day collapses into a comfortable bed at night.

It's fun to be able to walk around or get yourself a snack or a cold soda while you are traveling to a destination. Another nice thing is that when you arrive you don't have to unpack.

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Social Security pays lump-sum death benefit

By William M. Acosta

Q. I heard that Social Security no longer pays the lump-sum death benefit. Is this true? — C.L.

A. No. The lump-sum death benefit can be paid to the living widow(er) or to a child who is receiving or is eligible to receive benefits on the deceased's account.

Q. My mother just sold some old furniture that she has had for years. She receives Supplemental Security Income benefits and was wondering if the money she got for the furniture will affect her checks. Will it? — K.R.

A. Probably not. If she had the furniture when she started getting SSI, it was already counted as a resource. Converting it to cash should not affect her eligibility or benefit amount.

Q. A friend of mine told me that she has to pay taxes on her Social Security benefits. How do I know if I should pay taxes on my benefits? — L.M.

A. The law provides for taxing up to half the Social Security benefits of people whose income is above a base amount. The base amount is $25,000 for people who file as single taxpayers and $32,000 for a married couple filing a joint return.

In January of each year, Social Security beneficiaries receive a statement in the mail showing the Social Security benefits they received the previous year. Enclosed with the statement is an Internal Revenue Service worksheet — IRS Notice 703. Beneficiaries can use this worksheet to determine if their Social Security benefits are subject to tax.

Q. How do I apply for a Social Security number for my child? — K.S.

A. You can call the toll-free number, (800) 772-1213, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. any weekday to request an application for a Social Security card. The application lists the evidence required to obtain numbers for your children or other dependents.

Complete and return the application and required documents in the preaddressed envelope, which will be mailed to you. Cards will be issued for your dependents within two weeks. (Anyone who is 18 or older and who has never had a Social Security number must apply in person.)

The World's Most Beautiful Grandchildren

We wish to introduce our grandson, Dean Dombrowski. Dean will be a year old on September 24. The proud parents are Maryann and Richie Dombrowski. Dean happens to be one of the cutest little boys anyone has ever seen and has a personality to match. He is always smiling and laughing - he really enjoys his life in Williston Park. Dean is the big red apple of our eyes. The proud grandparents are Marge and Vincent Greco and Marian and Frank Dombrowski.
