Columbus Day At Trinity Lutheran

Fourth grade students, Danielle Klaus, Kilon Furline, Lauren Mortimer, and Andrea Levene, of Trinity Lutheran School, display their art work depicting Christopher Columbus' voyage to America. The girls, their teacher, Mrs. Kerwin, and their fellow classmates shared the excitement of celebrating the 500th Anniversary of Columbus' great discovery with the entire school. On Friday, October 9, Trinity Lutheran School participated in a special assembly to commemorate the occasion. The school's marching band and chorus performed patriotic tunes, and younger students sang and danced to an original Columbus rap song. The middle grades made posters and murals to decorate the school, while some of the older students wrote essays to honor Columbus on this special quincentennial.

NMSC Commends H.H.S. Band Competition

Dr. Antoinette MacLeod, principal of Bethpage High School, announced recently that Erin Choi, Subna Dhanaraj, Michael Louie, Lauren Moran, Robert Patel and Brian Prange have been named Commended Students in the 1993 National Merit Scholarship Program. A Letter of Commendation from National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC), which conducts the program, will be presented by the school to these outstanding seniors at the Seniors' Awards Program in May.

About 35,000 Commended Students throughout the nation are being honored for their outstanding performance on the 1991 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, which was the route of entry to the 1993 Merit Program. Commended Students have shown exceptional academic promise by placing among the top five percent of more than one million program entrants, although they will not continue in the 1993 competition for Merit Scholarships.

Vendors Needed

Vendors are needed for the Columbiettes annual Holiday Fair, to be held November 8, at the Rev. M.J. Hartigan Knights of Columbus Hall at 517 Central Avenue, Bethpage. Tables are $25 each and are available on a first come, first served basis.

For more information please contact Mary Ellen Leger at 935-7919 or Mary DiMarzio at 796-2935.

Heavy Fire Loss In 2 Hicksville House Fires

Hicksville Firefighters responded to a reported house fire at #1 Fairview Ct. on September 27. The 2nd floor fire was reported by numerous neighbors at 5:49 p.m.. Seventy Hicksville Firefighters, 10 units under Capt. Warren Uss responded. The fire was confined to one second floor room and contents, with some water damage below. Salvage tarps were used to protect the ground floor furniture. One Firefighter - Ex-Capt. Joseph DiFronzo received 2nd degree burns on his back when embers fell inside his protective coat collar. Damage was estimated at $15,000. The probable cause was listed as electrical. The County Fire Marshals investigators will complete the investigation.

A house fire at 41 Cantague Ln., Westbury, on October 6 at 2:21 p.m. caused $10,000 damage to the first floor and basement. The fire originated in the basement near a heating unit and spread upwards. Seven units, 35 members under Chief Patrick Scanlon responded. One Firefighter was treated for exhaustion and transported to Syosset Hospital. The Plainview Fire Department provided one engine company to stand by while Hicksville fire units were tied up.

Occupants in both homes escaped unharmed.

Hicksville Haz Mat Unit Assists Bethpage Fire Department

A leaking 1000 gal. propane tank alongside a house on Clark St., Bethpage, brought out Bethpage Firefighters under Chief A. Mancini on Saturday, October 3. Firefighters dispersed the fumes and as a precaution evacuated local homes. The County Haz Mat Unit was called to assist. The Hicksville Haz Mat Unit was called in at 8:17 p.m. for their large burn-off unit. As preparations were being made to burn off the propane, Ex-Capt. Richard Magee of Co. #7 Hicksville, who also works full time with the County Fire Marshals Industrial/Haz Mat Div., managed to free the stuck valve and stopped the leak.

The cylinder was removed from the scene by the Conservative Gas Co., and homeowners were allowed back in.

Flu Shots For Seniors

The Hicksville Public School District, in cooperation with the Nassau County Departments of Health and Senior Citizen Affairs, will offer a free Flu Immunization Program for senior citizens.

The program will be open to all Hicksville residents age 60 and over, or the spouse of a resident who is age 60 and over. The program will be held on Tuesday, November 10, from 9 a.m. until 12 p.m. at the VFW Hall, 320 South Broadway, Hicksville.

Pre-registration for the program is required. Seniors may pre-register October 19-31 at either of two sites: Gregory Museum, Heitz Place Courthouse, Heitz Place, Tuesday-Friday 9:30-4:30, Saturday and Sunday 1-5 p.m. (The Museum is closed on Monday), or at the Hicksville Public Library, 169 Jerusalem Avenue, Monday-Friday, 10 a.m.-9 p.m., Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Sunday, 12 p.m.-5 p.m.

Registration appointments for the immunizations will be available for 400 individuals. Once the pre-registration period has been completed, remaining appointments will be opened to eligible individuals outside of Hicksville.

Registrants will be asked to select an appointment time for Bethpage Day -

1992 Big Success

Bethpage Day turned out to be a day all the people of Bethpage can be very proud of. The weather was perfect! The hard work of the people who organized the day, all the wonderful people who supported the efforts of the many organizations who participated, and the merchants and the Grumman Corp. whose donations to the raffle make the day happen!

Bethpage Day was just a dream three years ago. A day for all the people of Bethpage to meet in our beautiful park setting to share and exchange the many ways so many people contribute to make our community the very special place to live.

If you were unable to attend Bethpage Day 1992, you will be given an opportunity to see what you missed on the first Saturday in October 1993. For the Town of Oyster Bay issued a proclamation declaring the first Saturday in October, officially Bethpage Day! See you next year.

November 10, as well as to complete a consent form. Consent forms may be completed and left at the registration site. Individuals wishing to complete the forms at home may do so; however, they must be brought on the day of the immunization.

This valuable program is the result of the voluntary efforts of many dedicated individuals throughout the community. In order to insure a successful and efficient program, it is requested that individuals arrive punctually for their appointment, but not early, as space is limited.

Second Annual Homecoming Fair

Come and join in the fun and excitement at Hicksville's Second Annual Homecoming Fair on October 24.

The day will start at 10 a.m. at Hicksville High School's McCormack Field with a fair. There will be game booths, a castle bounce and pony rides. Come test your strength on the striker or see if your aim is accurate enough to drop one of the "volunteers" into the dunking booth. Come have lunch or just a snack at one of the many food booths, which will be open throughout the football game. However, game booths will close at 2 p.m.

The Homecoming Parade steps off at the Middle School at 12 noon and winds its way to the High School. Don't miss the class floats that keep getting more spectacular with each year.

Come and cheer the Comets, our high school football team, on to victory. They will kick off against Uniondale at 2 p.m. The gate fee will be waived for the game that day.

The Homecoming fair is sponsored by the Hicksville Council of PTAs. In addition, the Hicksville Alumni Association, the Band Parents Association, the Hicksville Athletic Booster Club and various student clubs will be participating in this community event. All PTA profits will be used to fund the Homecoming Fair Scholarship for our high school seniors. Nine $400 scholarships were given out to students this past June from last year's Homecoming Fair.

Come out and have a great day while supporting your town - your team - your schools - and scholarships!

LettersRE: State Health Dept.
New Testing Regulations

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency as mandated by Congress who were pressured by enviro-maniacs (who would bankrupt the country in their rush toward purity beyond reason) recently came up with another shopping list of constituents that water utilities must test for at each source during 4 consecutive quarters in a three year period.

Four Consecutive Quarters

We can understand the four consecutive quarter requirement for surface waters where variations in stream flows, variations in stream temperatures and potential variations in seasonal pollution from the upland water shed area might require such testing. However, on Long Island with the slow movement in feet per day of groundwater and the close proximity of deep wells on even the same plant site, it is really an overkill of costly testing. Consider the financial burden on the 47,810 population of the Hicksville Water District by testing 17 wells four times - as compared to New York City with a 7 million population possibly testing only two sources (Catskill Aqueduct and Delaware Aqueduct).

Four Quarter Time Frame

The Federal Government has given New York State flexibility in determining Board tests when in the 1993-1995 three year period. The New York State Department of Health has decided that all community water supplies serving more than 3,300 persons, which includes the Hicksville Water District, will have to complete the initial four consecutive quarter base sampling for pesticides and SOCs by 12/31/93 (even though the Federal Government allows until 12/31/95). At $6,200 per group of tests per well - the cost to the Hicksville Water District for 1993 will be $105,400 (17x$6,200) - which will leave a lot of red ink on our 1993 budget.

Suggested Alternate Time Frames

Since the Federal Government has allowed completion by the end of 1995 - and allowed New York State the option to establish the time frame of testing - can't the State Department of Health set more reasonable criteria - to consider the budgets of water utilities.

Proposed First Option

Require at least $\frac{1}{2}$ of the water sources to be tested in four quarters in the first two years with the balance in the third year. In the case of the Hicksville Water District, this would spread out the cost over 3 years as follows:

Year	Wells	Testing Cost
1993	6	$37,200
1994	6	$37,200
1995	5	$31,000
Total:	17	$105,400

Proposed Alternate Second Option

Require the commencement of testing in the third quarter of 1993 with the completion in the second quarter of 1994. This slight change in the time frame would at least provide some relief by costing $32,700 in 1993 and delaying the second $32,700 until 1994.

Please Help Us To Help You!

We recently wrote to New York State Department of Health Commissioner, Mark Chassin, M.D., M.P.P., M.P.H. in Albany to be reasonable in this matter which will affect your pocketbook and to implement one of our options which will still comply with new Federal Regulations. We also wrote to senators Ralph S. Marino, Kemp Hannon and Michael J. Tully (Chairman of the State Health Committee) plus Assemblyman Frederick E. Parola, Jr. and Richard N. Gottried (Chairman of the Assembly Health Committee) to intercede with the new Health Commissioner on your behalf.

If, as a consumer of the Hicksville Water District, you agree with us - please help us to help you! Use your political clout prior to election day by either writing, telephoning or talking to any or all of the above elected Legislators.

Thank you in advance for joining us in this effort.

Very truly yours,
Board of Commissioners

The proceeds of this event will be used to defray the burgeoning medical expenses of Margaret Delaney, a 10 month old, who was diagnosed at birth with cancer.

The fundraiser was an enormous success with attendance in excess of 225 people. In addition, monetary contributions have poured in from local residents as well as individuals throughout Nassau and Suffolk.

The CCH would like to thank everyone who contributed so generously to this altruistic endeavor. Their numbers preclude us from mentioning each by name. However, several individuals deserve special recognition. Among them are Diane Brousseau and Nancy Callari who planned, organized and directed this event from its earliest stages to its conclusion. They were ably assisted by Ed Delaney, grandfather of Baby Margaret, and Agnes and Harry Peck, of the Hicksville Elks Club.

The CCH would also like to thank the following organizations and establishments for their support and largesse: BPOE 1931 Elks Lodge, Champion Limousine, Copy Shoppe, Doctors of Pathology, Fantasia Flower and Garden Shop (Lindenhurst), Gatsby's Hair Salon, Hicksville Community Council, Hicksville Republican Committee, Knights of Columbus, Lotus Tree (Syosset), Peppercorns, Peter Kenney Florist, Roy Rogers, Staples, Town Crier, Trunz Supermarkets.

Permits Needed For School Grounds

The Hicksville Public Schools would like to advise the community that in accordance with Board of Education policy all organized groups wishing to use athletic fields in the district are required to apply for a permit. Groups failing to follow this policy and refusing to adhere to posted signs will be asked to leave the property by district security officers. Failure to comply will result in a police action.

In addition, the Board of Education policy on vandalism is strictly enforced by the school district. The district is prepared to press charges against any individuals apprehended in connection with incidents of graffiti or vandalism to school property.

Colors, Colors, Everywhere!

Burns Avenue School first graders in Mrs. Warren's and Mrs. Finck's classes wore rainbow clothes and rainbow hats on Friday, October 2, to celebrate the completion of a unit on colors. During the month of September, the children mastered the color words through many hands-on activities and experiences. They also sang a rainbow song during music class and made their rainbow covered hats in art class. The children heard stories about colors and enjoyed rainbow cupcakes on their special "Rainbow Day."

Hicksville Fire Football Update

On Sunday, October 11, the Hicksville Fire Football Team kicked off against the hard-hitting Massapequa Mustangs.

Hicksville's offense was impressive with Brian Boyle, Tight End, connecting with a long pass for 20 yards and recovering a fumble punt. Justin Rostenberg, Guard, was yielding on the offensive line. Defense was relentless forcing the Mustangs to fight for every inch. Jason Bass, Middle Linebacker, played a superior game with six tackles and blocking a field goal. Marc Parante, Guard, made a great play recovering a fumble. Josh Bergen was strong as defensive end and Danny Ciacco made several crucial tackles.

Keep up the good work guys!

Artist Perform At Town Libraries

On Sunday, October 18 the Jumbo String Band will be performing in the Bethpage Public Library at 2 p.m., according to Oyster Bay Town Councilman Leonard Kunzig.

"The Jumbo String Band has one of the freshest sounds in acoustic music today," Councilman Kunzig said. "Consisting of six members, playing the fiddle, bass, banjo, mandolin and guitar, the band packs a contemporary punch while relying on traditional harmonies and superb instrumental support."

According to Councilman Kunzig, the Jumbo String Band is comprised by Billy Clockel on bass, Jim Coleman on banjo, David Forbes on mandolin, Al Mueller on fiddle and Larry Brittain and Joan Pollack on guitar and lead vocals.

Councilman Kunzig also said that on Sunday, October 25, pianist/composer Avaraham Sterklar and friends will be performing at the Plainview/Old Bethpage at 2 p.m.

"Avaraham Sterklar has had an illustrious career as a pianist and composer on an international level," Councilman Kunzig added. "He will be accompanied throughout his performance by pianists Marilyn London, Mathew Eisenstein, Iana Brito, Lisa Perlson and flutist Laurel Ann Maurer."

Councilman Kunzig noted that the "Distinguished Artist" series is being sponsored by the Cultural and Performing Arts (CAPA) Division of the Town's Department of Community and Youth Services and all concerts are being offered FREE to residents of the Town of Oyster Bay.

The Hicksville Athletics ended its first successful season tied for first place in the National Junior Baseball League, 12 year old division. We are an 11 year old team. The competitive spring and summer league ended in mid August with a remarkable team record of 29 wins and 8 losses which also included a 10 game schedule with Plainedge Babe Ruth 12 year olds. Thanks Plainedge!

The National Junior Baseball League is an elite travel league that only accepts All Star Teams from Nassau and Suffolk Counties. We use professionally trained umpires from the Long Island Umpires Association for all of our games. Our home field is located behind the firehouse on Cantague Rock Road just north of Jericho Tpke. Our team was also afforded the opportunity and experience of playing under lighted fields at Woodbury Park and Roosevelt Beach.

Story & Photos
By Richard Evers

This past weekend Hicksville shared in the hemisphere-wide Quincentennial events recalling the epochal first voyage of Christopher Columbus to a New World. Controversy and revisionists' objections to adulation of the traditional hero notwithstanding, the community honored the larger significance of the Columbian achievement with a ball at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Friday night. There was also a parade on Columbus Day, both sponsored by the Joseph Barry Council 2520.

Master of Ceremonies for the Quincentennial Ball was Council past Grand Knight Arthur Schrieber. Grand Knight Joseph P. Leo, Jr., welcomed the celebrants (over 150), notably Monsignor James P. Lisante, principal speaker for the evening; Town Councilman Thomas Clark, and James E. Carroll, PGK, State Warden for the Knights of Columbus, who was also the General Chairman of the Joseph Barry Council Quincentennial Committee. Father Peter T. Liu, Council Chaplain, was able to present early in the evening, and Father Robert Giuntini, St. Ignatius Loyola Church Associate Pastor, rendered the Invocation Prayer. A magnificent large decorated cake was prepared by the students of the baking classes of the Nassau County BOCES. After a buffet supper, the guests danced the evening away to the music of the "The Continentals" live quartet.

Columbus Day Parade

A beautiful day such as that which dawned for Christopher Columbus on October 12, 1492, greeted the community groups parading on Broadway for this holiday of holidays. Organized by Council Warden John Rizos, P.C., and Commander of the Charles Wagner Post of the American Legion, the parade was led off by Parade Grand Marshal and Grand Knight Joseph P. Leo, Jr.

Participating units included, in part, the Hicksville Fire Department, the Hicksville High School Marching Band, the new Trinity Lutheral School Band, a large turnout of Knights, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Masonic War Veterans and American Legionnaires riding in the Nassau County Voiture 40 & 8 "WW I Locomotive" with Chef de Gare Raymond Gamble, P.C., of Hicksville. Scout and parochial school children were also in the line of march, reviewed at the Middle School site by County Executive Thomas Gulotta, K. of C. State Warden James P. Carroll, P.G.K.; Councilman Thomas Clark, and Monsignor James P. Lisante.

Monsignor Lisante, in a brief address following the parade at the Hicksville Veterans Memorials Mall, recalled the real significance of Columbus' voyage "as the opening of a new world to the tireless and courageous people who have come to comprise the American nation. He drew appreciative applause by recalling the many contributions of Italian-Americans to the U.S.A."

Jottings From Yesteryear

When getting gas last week, I thought of the days when the attendant gave the gas, washed the windshield and you could get air for your tires. If you needed an oil change, you drove over an open grease pit, where they could drain oil, and grease the many grease fittings by going down under the car; some stations had lifts all outside. But then, those days you could have your groceries delivered to your door and the doctor with his little black bag made house calls. Of course there was the iceman, kerosene and coal or coke was delivered to your home. The coal shoveled into your basement with a chute. When you bought groceries at Roulston's, A&P, Butler Bros., Bohack, Daniel Reeves, etc., the storekeeper placed your items on a sheet of brown kraft paper from a roll on the counter. He would then place items, fold the paper and tie it with a brown colored string from a roll hanging from the ceiling and then place a wooden handle hooked on to the tied package. No large bags or plastic bags. Our little express wagons were used to pull groceries and children home.

I remember Grandma telling us that when Clara Bow was small, she would run errands for grandma in Brooklyn. Going to a wedding yesterday, his second wedding, I wondered do the former guests get a discount or the senior citizens get 10% off? A friend of mine had a suggestion. If you give a check, post date it 1 year. (Just kidding.) Bill Clark

Legion Supports Crime Prevention

The Hicksville Charles Wagner Post 421 of the American Legion supports Crime Prevention Month during October. The American Legion urges all individuals, government agencies, businesses, and civic groups to work together to make their community a safer, better place to live. Join your neighbors and DO SOMETHING about crime and drug prevention.

It is your responsibility to call police about suspicious activity in your neighborhood. Report persons illegally entering houses, loitering, or looking into parked cars. Report abandoned vehicles or vehicles that slowly cruise back and forth on your street. Report anyone sitting in a parked car, especially at an unusual hour. Report breaking glass, gunshots, or screams.

Be a trained observer. Tell the police what happened. Where? When? How? Who did it. Report the license plate number, color, make, model, and route of suspicious vehicles. Report a complete description of suspicious persons. Report if a person has a weapon. Trust your instincts. If it looks wrong it probably is wrong. If you report suspicious people or activity in time, police may be able to stop a burglary or auto theft before it occurs.

Take a few steps to protect your home and belongings. Make sure your home has adequate locks on doors and windows. Equip doors with dead bolts or double cylinder locks. Doors should be solid wood or metal and have a peep hole. Secure sliding glass doors with a slide bolt and key. Windows should have heavy screens and safety locks. You may want to consider installing a burglar alarm.

Leave a few household lights on when you go out in the evening. Don't admit strangers. Don't keep large amounts of cash and jewelry in the house. A safer place for valuables is a safe deposit box at a local bank. Don't leave ladders in the yard.

Make an inventory of personal belongings in your home. List serial numbers on items such as typewriters, television sets and stereos. Inquire if your local precinct has Operation Identification, which marks all valuable property with a personal ID number.

Charles Wagner American Legion Post, under Commander John Rizos, has an active Law and Order program that honors local police and fire fighters. The Post's Children and Youth Program distributes child safety and drug awareness information to Hicksville youths. Membership in the American Legion is open to veterans who served during time of war. For information call 942-5563. This article was written and compiled by Legionnaire Greg Bennett.

Entries Accepted For Photo Contest

The Town of Oyster Bay, Department of Parks, is accepting entries in the 1992-1993 Fall and Winter Play In Oyster Bay Amateur Photo Contest and will continue to do so until March 7, 1993.

"Amateur photographers have an almost endless supply of beauty here in the Town of Oyster Bay," said Councilman Douglas J. Hynes. "I'm looking forward to seeing shots of residents enjoying fall and winter recreation at our beaches and parks and, if we're lucky enough to get some snow this winter, even sledding down a hillside or two."

Councilman Hynes added that the contest rules require that all photographs be taken between October 1, 1992, and March 1, 1993, and that the general theme depict fall and winter play and recreation in Oyster Bay's parks, beaches and places of interest. Each contestant may submit only one photograph, which can be either black and white or in color, and all participants will receive certificates of achievement. The 1st, 2nd and 3rd place winners will receive trophies.

To enter the Play In Oyster Bay Amateur Photo Contest, send entries to Play In Oyster Bay, Department of Parks, 977 Hicksville Road, Massapequa, New York 11758. Each contestant must include his/her name, address, age and telephone number in ink on the back of the photograph. Please do not send original slides or negatives. Only designated award winners will be asked to supply original negatives or transparencies. Due to the fact award-winning photos, along with the photographer's name, may be used in Town publications, newsletters and the Town Calendar, winners will also be asked to supply a release from each identifiable person in the photograph.

winners." Councilman Hynes said. "Hopefully, we'll be able to use even more contest winning photos this year for both the Town Calendar and the 1993 Summer Program Brochure."

GRANDPARENTS - Send in your grandchildren's photos and enter our "World's Most Beautiful Grandchildren" contest. Just send a photo and a brief description of the child (or children) along with your name and address to: Litmor Publications, Beautiful Grandchildren Contest, 81 East Barclay St., Hicksville, N.Y. 11501. We'll do the rest!

Library Wins Election Appeal Suit

The Commissioner of Education recently ruled in favor of the Hicksville Public Library, dismissing an election appeal filed by Mrs. Doretta Pavacic. Mrs. Pavacic contested the results of the trustee election of April 8, implying that irregularities had occurred during the election process.

The basis of the suit was that Mrs. Pavacic was told along with other candidates in a letter from the library counsel that she must refrain from campaigning within 100 feet of the library, which was the polling place, not only on the election day, but during the entire campaign. The rule actually applies only to the day of the election.

The legal cost to the library was $10,454.04, which accounts for more than half of the $20,540 allotted for legal expenses for the entire 1992-93 budget. The fiscal year started on July 1.

The commissioner stated that Mrs. Pavacic failed to satisfy a number of procedural requirements when filing the petition. Any one of these procedural defects was enough to warrant the dismissal of an appeal, since noncompliance violates the parties' due process rights. In addition, Mrs. Pavacic failed to prove that irregularities had occurred in the election process. While Mrs. Pavacic stated that she received incorrect legal advice concerning electioneering, the commissioner found that this did not prejudice her in any way, since Mrs. Bennett complied with that same legal advice. Mrs. Bennett won re-election as a trustee, beating Mrs. Pavacic 479 votes to 279 votes, a 200 vote difference.

PLASTICS RECYCLING

In Oyster Bay, recycling is a way of life... and an investment in the future. Recycling rigid plastics impacts our Town as well as our earth. When we prepare rigid plastics for curbside S.O.R.T. collection, we're making a difference. We're salvaging instead of destroying... investing in tomorrow instead of borrowing against it. We're making a local effort with resounding global significance. Join other Town of Oyster Bay residents in recycling rigid plastics, newsprint, glass bottles and cans. On a Town-wide basis, we're good at recycling. Let's get even better! For more information, call the S.O.R.T. recycling hotline, 921-3850, Tuesday through Friday, 7am-4pm.

Input Callers Cautious In Child Divorce

Most callers to Input were cautious with their answers to last week's question: "Do you think that children should be given the right to divorce their parents?" Here are some of the answers:

DELICATE BALANCE

I think it is a very delicate matter and they should have specially trained judges who can judge these things. I also think that if Lisa Steinberg was able to divorce her parents that she would be alive today. I'm all for the children. N.D.

WRONG WAY

This is a difficult question. Perhaps using the term "divorce" is the wrong word. I think there must be a way that children would not be stuck with parents who would injure them and be cruel. The courts already can intervene. Perhaps that is all there ought to be. If the lawyers get involved and start scouting out cases I can just see how it will be a sideshow. The lawyers will have some way to get their fees, either from taxpayers or from the parents. It can become very ugly if greed enters into it. I would prefer seeing the courts have more chance to handle these cases and to even arrange new adoptions if the natural parents are not functioning correctly. B.G.

ANOTHER EXCESS

This is just another of the excesses that are being brought on society by the pseudo experts who want to get into and regulate every form of behavior. Children do not need to divorce their parents. They are generally far better off with natural parents than ones assigned by society. When they are up for adoption there is usually an agreement of the natural parents or guardians that it is for the best. If we have children and lawyers interfering in family life discipline will completely erode and family life will disappear. We have laws now protecting children. We need to strengthen them where they are not working but a general move towards having children divorce their parents and make other arrangements will put too much authority in the hands of minors who cannot make up their minds for a long term. We must go very easy with anything like this and only in extreme situations can there be state interference. V.B.

EXTREME CRUELTY

In the recent case of a boy divorcing his parents there was extreme cruelty and this made the extreme ruling of changing parents a just one. This was a very unusual case and should not be taken as a standard for a future rash of child cases possibly fostered by lawyers who might think that it will open up a whole new field of legal battles. We need less litigation and we should be on guard against condoning anything that will increase this problem. N.C.

RARE CASES

Only in rare cases should there be rulings against parents which would separate children from their parents. We should not really look upon it as divorce. At the present time divorce has grown to such proportions among married people that it is difficult to know if any real justice has come out of the proliferation of divorces. If people remember marital divorces started off slowly and took many generations to reach the proportions they are now. We should not push child divorces but if a very serious case emerges then it might be the way to go. J.V.

PARENTS DIVORCE KIDS

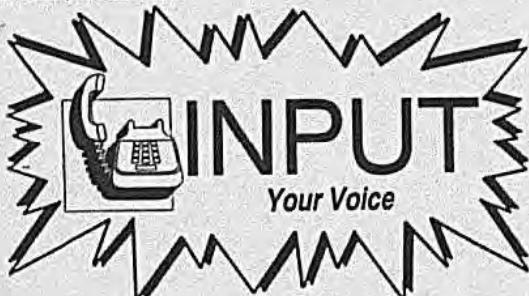

If kids can divorce parents then it would seem that parents could divorce children. In some cases there would be more of a rush for parents to divorce the children. But I'm not in favor of either way being encouraged. F.V.

LOOK CLOSELY

In some few cases there is a good reason for children to divorce their parents. We have to look to the courts to look closely at all cases. H.B.

BE CAREFUL

If it weren't for the fact that the press has been giving the question serious attention, I would say that the idea is absurd. If one were to seriously analyse the consequences the "Question" would answer itself - at least that is my opinion. I can't deny that there are numerous families across the nation where the parents have conceded or lost complete control over their children and, in those cases, very often the kids do as they want and, in a sense, are already divorced without legal action. It seems to me that when this happens the kids should have recourse to the courts who should initiate courses of action with the parents to demand changes in parental supervision with a report procedure to make certain that prescribed policies and courses of action are closely followed. Access by the children to obtain a divorce from their parents is just begging the issue and could spread like wildfire creating a serious national problem. P.G.S.

By John K. Zwiebel

One warm day last summer our family was dismayed when our elderly, arthritic dog, Amie, ran away from our Williston Park home. Because she has cataracts in both eyes and also suffers from hearing loss, we feared for her life because these handicaps would cause her to be unaware of oncoming vehicles if she crossed a street.

Of course, we searched the entire neighborhood for blocks around. We inquired of neighbors and passersby. We contacted the County Police, and the North Hempstead dog pound. No one had seen her. We placed an advertisement in the Williston Times. Then we started putting brightly colored signs in stores and on utility poles.

On the second evening after her disappearance, a series of thunderstorms rumbled through Nassau County. This increased our apprehension, for we knew that even in the security of home Amie would tremble and virtually go into a state of shock at the sound of thunder. We wondered how she was surviving without food, water, shelter or family.

Then we received a phone call from, of all places, the Garden City Village Swimming Pool. When the storm caused the closing of the pool, and all the swimmers had left, there in the parking lot the pool staff found our dog, wet, bedraggled and droopy tailed! We drove down there immediately and upon our arrival we were met by Amie and practically the entire pool staff. They told us that Amie had her supper: one of the young men had given her his hamburger.

Bright and early the next morning I took her to the Veterinarian for an examination. Aside for a slight loss of weight and a very scraggly coat, she was unharmed. I expressed my surprise that she had travelled so far on her own. (It is almost four miles from our corner of Williston Park to the Garden City Pool). Perhaps someone had stolen her and then released her in Garden City. His reply was that travel of such a distance by a dog is not unheard of. What most likely happened is that Amie was "spooked" by a near miss while crossing the Long Island Railroad tracks, or Hillside Avenue or any other of the several other main roads she encountered en route to the Garden City Pool. This disorients a dog and it can't find its way home.

You might ask how did the pool staff identify Amie so quickly and learn our phone number. They couldn't get it from her dog license because the Town of North Hempstead offices which have the dog license records were closed for the day. The answer is contained in a small metal tag worn by Amie and imprinted with her name, our name and address, as well as our phone number. Amie has worn this tag on her collar, everywhere she went, for more than ten years, but this was the first time it was used.

An identification tag of this type is easily available from local pet shops and veterinarians. It costs only a few dollars. At some places you supply the information and pay at the counter. At others you take the application with you and mail it to the producer along with your check. In all cases the tag is mailed directly to your home. You have your choice of stainless steel, brass or even 24K gold. Various designs are available - among them a heart, bone, hydrant or mouse. Mouse reminds one of cats. A cat also ought to have an ID tag because no license is required, and without such a tag there would be no means of identification if the cat is found injured or lost.

One final thought: If you have a friend who has a cat or a dog, an ID tag would make a fine, inexpensive gift.

Wine Talk

By Richard Nalley

Sommeliers are privileged people, winewise. They get to taste just about anything they want to, because wine companies understand the value of having their wines appear on the lists of "white table cloth" restaurants — the kinds that hire sommeliers.

As a result, sommeliers tend to be pretty up-to-the-minute on what's new and pleasing in the wine world. Their job is to pass the news along to us.

Here are some of the recommendations we'd hear if we went to some of the better restaurants around the country:

Says Madeline Triffon, wine director of Detroit's Rattlesnake Club, "I really like Pinot Noirs. That's probably the category I work with the most, because I like them with our food, and because they taste so good to me."

"A great Pinot I've found recently is the 1989 Sanford from Santa Barbara. Sanford just makes consistently delicious Pinot Noir; it's true to type, it's got quite a bit of new oak, so it's spicy, and it's got quite a bit of acid so it's refreshing. It's versatile enough so you really don't have to worry about what people are eating. That's what I call a great, all-purpose wine!"

At New York's 21 Club, chief sommelier William Phillips has been smitten by the wines of Santa Barbara County's Qupe Winery, especially the Reserve Chardonnay and the Syrah from the Bien Nacido vineyard.

"The wines really have everything," says Phillips. "They have concentration, they have acid, and the opulence is there in the fruit. They are also very much food wines, they're not overblown the way California wines can sometimes be."

Ray's Boathouse in Seattle has a Northwest focus both on its menu and on its wine list. Says wine manager Jeff Prather, "I've been recommending Chateau Ste. Michelle's vineyard-designated Chardonnay from Cold Creek Vineyard. I tend to suggest it with richer sauces that can stand up to it. This has been the best year for fresh halibut I've ever seen, and lately I've been recommending the wine with our grilled halibut in a creamy chanterelle mushroom sauce."

Harder to find outside the Northwest, but also close to Jeff Prather's heart are the Alsation-style Pinot Gris wines now being produced in Oregon.

Says Prather, "Pinot Gris is exceptional with seafood. It's not as rich as Chardonnay, so it doesn't mask the flavor of some of the more delicate seafoods. Pinot Gris has some richness and fruit, but it's definitely lighter, and has a nice earthy, mineral character to it and great acidity."

Guide to Good Dining

This newspaper, and the seven other weekly newspapers associated with it, publishes the last word in restaurant guides and a paid listing of many prominent selected restaurants in this area. While many of them have been rated by the great, and near great food connoisseurs, our readers will have the last word through "Reader Ratings."

Through a special 24 hour phone system, readers will be asked to call in their assessment of each restaurant they visit. Consensus ratings (good or bad) will be published as a continuing part of the guide.

In addition they can make suggestions, compliments or criticisms through the open phone line and messages will be sent through to the restaurant management.

READER RATINGS

Q. My brothers and I are giving a dinner dance in honor of our parents' 50th wedding anniversary. What should the party hours be? For how long should the orchestra play? This isn't exactly a rock 'n' roll group that will be in attendance.

A. How lucky you are to have parents celebrating their 50th! Have the orchestra wait to play until dinner is completely finished. (Only the very young generation likes to eat dinner to live music and thus be unable to talk during the meal!) You might plan a scenario along these lines:

Invite guests for cocktails at 7:30.

Serve dinner at 8:15 or 8:30. At approximately 9:30 dessert and champagne will be served.

At 9:40 the children toast their parents, the honorees toast each other and then the other guests toast them.

By 10 p.m. toasts should be over. The orchestra strikes up a happy tune. Your parents dance alone for three minutes, then a son and a daughter cut in on them, then everyone dances.

At midnight: The party's over for the guests (and maybe before that for the guests of honor!)

New tricks for Halloween

Halloween will be double fun this year with trick-or-treating falling on Saturday. The little goblins can go out a little later since extra winks can be taken in the morning.

Daylight turning to dusk doesn't matter so much these days since chaperones are generally on hand for the door-to-door search for surprise gifts.

Now comes the yearly dilemma: what to drop in those eager baskets. Candy, fruit, food of any kind, in fact, is looked upon suspiciously these days. Too bad that there is reason to be cautious. The only good thing to say about that is little teeth will be better off without the sugary sweetmeats.

So what do you do? Some people hand out coins, but that really isn't what those masked devils are looking for. Part of the fun of the ritual is the surprise of what is proffered.

One wise solution is to offer non-food gifts, inexpensive and unexpected little items. After all, this is the night for all sorts of unforeseen happenings.

Toy stores can offer all sorts of tiny treasures. Little crickets that you snap to make a clacking noise would delight the evening revelers. As would whistles. In the same toy store you can find squiggy toy spiders that make adults feel creepy and children feel powerful.

With the youthful passion for things prehistoric these days, dinosaurs are big, in more than one sense. Those pin-headed beasts are reproduced on all sorts of items from cards to rings.

New temptations are constantly finding their way onto toy shop shelves. Just look around and be imaginative.

Variety stores have good inspirations as well. Children use up crayons as if they melt away and are always in need of more. Any pencil with a fantasy top will be cherished.

Miniature flashlights are especially handy this spooky night. Roll up a short strip of amusing stickers and fasten with a paper clip. Subject possibilities abound - clowns, teddy bears, ice cream cones and on and on.

And who doesn't love balloons? The fancy decorated examples can be too much for the budget, but old-fashioned plain ones are not. And no, you do not have to blow them up. Let those young lungs get exercised.

Explore the supermarket for other ideas. Though nuts, indeed, are food, those in their shells are as safe as you can get. Put a small handful in colored plastic wrap and tie with a ribbon.

Small cans of fruit or juice may be heavy to carry in the treasure sack but will be thoroughly enjoyed later on. Look in the soap section for unusual-shaped ones. Children use them much more easily than plain old bars.

Discount stores carry lots of close-out items at very pleasing prices. Consider all items carefully before rejecting them. With a bit of imagination, the number of appropriate favors is almost limitless.

After the rounds are made and everyone gathers in the kitchen, come out with a reward that you have made for the raiders.

ORANGE-MINCemeAT SQUARES

1 1/4 cups flour
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
3/4 teaspoon salt
2 1/2 cups oatmeal
1/2 cup orange juice
1/2 cup butter, melted
1 1/2 cups prepared mincemeat
1 (teaspoon) orange liqueur (optional)
Yields 32 squares.

Preheat oven to 350 F. In bowl mix together flour, brown sugar, salt and 2 cups of the rolled oats. Sprinkle on orange juice and melted butter, stir with fork until mixture is thoroughly combined. It will be quite moist.

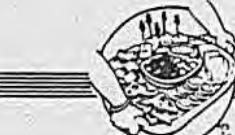

Grease an 8- or 9-inch square cake pan; pack half of batter in smoothly. Spread mincemeat over batter, sprinkle with orange liqueur, if using, and smooth with back of spoon.

Mix remaining 1/2 cup of oats with rest of batter. Spread over top of mincemeat in an even layer.

Place pan in preheated oven and bake for 35 minutes. Cool in pan, then cut into squares.

These squares are very rich, so it is best to cut them into small pieces. Cut into 8 strips in each direction to produce 32 squares.

Coral House has newly introduced a terrific Brunch, with music by Jerry Lane, accordionist. He entertained us with his music on our recent visit.

We were seated facing beautiful Millburn Lake, and as an added plus, we could see a wedding going on in the garden.

The menu was so diversified it was difficult making a final decision. Brunch included choice of cocktail, a cup of soup, choice of entree and a basket of breakfast rolls, assorted miniature muffins, Danish pastries and specially baked cinnamon bread, plus a hot beverage. We finally settled on Smoked Nova Scotia salmon, toasted cream cheese bagel, with onions and tomatoes and a glass of white wine.

We came away after having enjoyed the delightful ambience, the attentive service and a feeling of well being. We truly recommend Coral House.

Q. What is the absolute minimum number of courses you can get away with serving for a party?

A. Two — a main course, including vegetables, and dessert. If you can manage it in your home, it's nice to serve a first course, too — something that can already be in place at the table when they sit down — such as cold soup, shrimp cocktail, a special salad or a half avocado stuffed with a bit of chicken salad. However, if you are pressed for time — or for cash — just serve your guests two courses.

It's not quite time for full-fledged winter eating — those straight-from-the-oven casseroles, stews and other sturdy savories that warm the house as well as the soul.

Yet there's a slight nip to the air come dinnertime that calls for more than summer's simple fare.

A satisfying preview to autumnal eating combines the warmth of soup with simple sandwiches or salads. Such dining doesn't overwhelm the lighter appetites of summer, yet it counters that nip in the evening air.

These midseason menus also can't be beat for creating high-speed servings from a hurried chef.

It takes no more than minutes to slap together a sandwich of pre-sliced deli meats and cheeses or toss a simple salad, and each of the following soup recipes provides from-scratch flavors in 30 minutes or less.

For those times when even that minimal amount of soup preparation time is too much, consider combining canned soups to create unique textures and tastes. Some winners: 1 can each of cream of potato and cream of broccoli; 1 can each chicken rice and tomato; 1 can lentil and minestrone; 1 can French onion soup with just about any other variety.

As for the homemade varieties: Broccoli Cheese Soup pairs frozen chopped broccoli with tangy grated Cheddar for a colorfully satisfying concoction.

The quickest preparation of Cannellini Soup, the chef must have at hand two cooked chicken breasts. Simply prepare two extras sometime when preparing a poached, grilled or skillet meal, freeze and you'll be ready to thaw them at will for this suppertime soup.

And since nothing heralds the arrival of autumn so proudly as the pumpkin, consider celebrating the pre-season with some Cream of Pumpkin Soup.

BROCCOLI CHEESE SOUP
1 (10-ounce) package frozen chopped broccoli
1/4 cup margarine
3 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons minced onion
3 1/2 cups evaporated milk
4 cups non-fat milk
3 cups grated Cheddar cheese
Yields 8 servings.

Preparation time: 15 minutes.
Cook broccoli according to package directions; drain.

Meanwhile in large saucepan, melt margarine and stir in flour to make paste. Add onion, evaporated milk and milk; cook, stirring, until smooth and thickened, about 5 minutes.

Add cheese and broccoli; stir until cheese is melted and soup is heated through, about 5 minutes. Do not boil.

Serve immediately in individual bowls, sprinkled with pepper if desired.

CHICKEN CANNELLINI SOUP

2 cooked boneless chicken breasts
3 tablespoons margarine
2 carrots, thinly sliced
2 celery stalks, thinly sliced
2 onions, thinly sliced
1 teaspoon minced garlic
4 cups chicken broth
1 (20-ounce) can cannellini beans, drained
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Yields 6 servings.

Preparation time: 25 minutes.

Remove skin and fat from chicken breasts and cut into strips; set aside.

Melt margarine in large saucepan and saute carrots 5 minutes. Add celery and onions and cook 5 minutes more.

Add garlic, chicken broth, chicken strips and beans and heat through, about 5 minutes.

Serve in individual bowls with a sprinkling of Parmesan cheese.

CREAM OF PUMPKIN SOUP

3 cups chicken broth
1 potato, coarsely chopped
1 onion, coarsely chopped
1 (16-ounce) can pumpkin puree
1 cup half-and-half
Pinch of nutmeg
Pinch of pepper
Yields 4 to 6 servings.

Preparation time: 30 minutes.

Combine chicken broth, potato and onion in large saucepan and bring to boil. Lower heat and simmer, covered, about 15 minutes; be sure potato is cooked before removing from heat.

Stir in pumpkin puree and puree in food processor in batches; return to pan in which soup was cooked.

Add half-and-half, nutmeg and pepper and bring just to boiling point. Serve immediately.

QUICK TIP

When slicing or chopping vegetables, double up smaller varieties under the knife to mince slicing time. For example, line up three carrots or scallions side-by-side, or stack stalks of celery two high and set two stacks side by side to cut four stalks at once.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

Pumpkin treats

Pumpkin — native to the Americas and opulent symbol of the harvest, with its sensuous round shape, deep orange color and smooth skin.

At Halloween, most of us buy a pumpkin only to carve it up into a grinning snaggletooth lit by a votive candle. Not until Thanksgiving do we consider actually eating a pumpkin — and then we use it only to make a pie or two. So much for the pumpkin — the rest of the year, it's neglected and forgotten.

But pumpkin is a versatile winter squash that microwaves well and can be transformed into more than jack-o'-lanterns and Thanksgiving pie.

Serve pumpkin as a delicious vegetable side dish; add to soups and casseroles, or use in baked goods such as breads and muffins.

It's easier than you think to cook fresh pumpkin. Just pierce pumpkin all over with a fork (make shallow holes, about a quarter-inch deep). Set pumpkin upright on a microwave-safe plate and microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting until skin looks soft — 15 to 20 minutes for a small (about 2½ pound) pumpkin.

If your oven doesn't have a carousel, remember to turn pumpkin every four or five minutes. Let stand 10 minutes, then cut open; remove seeds and fibers. (See "Micro Tip of the Week" on how to toast pumpkin seeds.) Scoop out and mash the flesh for use in recipes. Or mash with butter, milk, salt and pepper to taste and serve as a vegetable.

Peak season for fresh pumpkin runs through October. Look for bright orange, firm, heavy pumpkins. For eating purposes, smaller size means a more tender pumpkin. (Smaller pumpkins, weighing in at 2 to 3 pounds, are sometimes referred to as "pie," "sugar," or "cheese" pumpkins.)

Don't refrigerate a whole pumpkin. Instead, store in a dry, cool, well-ventilated place for up to one month.

Try today's recipes with fresh pumpkin while it's in season or use canned during the rest of the year. Everyone makes banana nut bread, but easy Pumpkin Nut Bundt Bread is a good autumn alternative.

For a Halloween party, serve moist and flavorful Pumpkin Pecan Cupcakes with Cream Cheese Frosting. Pumpkin Rum Parfaits are easy to make but look extra special. Serve to Halloween party guests — or surprise your favorite goblins.

Recipes in this column are tested in 625- to 700-watt microwave ovens.

MICRO-TIP OF THE WEEK

Don't discard those pumpkin seeds! Instead, toast them in your microwave. Wash seeds thoroughly to remove sticky coating and let dry on paper towels.

Place 1 cup raw pumpkin seeds in a flat microwave-safe baking dish. Microwave at HIGH (100 percent power) setting 8 to 12 minutes, stirring several times until seeds are dry. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes.

Drizzle with a little melted butter and sprinkle with salt, if desired.

PUMPKIN NUT BUNDT BREAD

¼ cup graham cracker crumbs
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup canned solid-pack pumpkin (half of a 1-pound can), or 1 cup cooked fresh pumpkin, mashed ½ cup water
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ cup baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon cloves
½ cup chopped walnuts or pecans

Yields: 1 loaf.

Preparation time: 15 to 20 minutes.

Cooking time: 10 to 14 minutes.
Oven setting: MEDIUM-HIGH (70 percent power).

Generously grease a 9-cup Bundt pan or ring dish. In small bowl combine graham cracker crumbs, sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle over inside of buttered pan, turning to coat. Set aside.

In large mixing bowl cream together sugar and butter. Blend in all remaining ingredients except nuts. Beat well. Fold in nuts.

Turn batter into prepared Bundt pan or ring dish. Place pan on top of inverted microwave-safe plate. Cover with wax paper and microwave 10 to 14 minutes, rotating a half-turn every 5 minutes. Top of bread should appear dry and bread should spring back when gently pressed.

Set pan on heat-proof counter and let stand 10 minutes before inverting onto serving platter. Let cool to room temperature before slicing. Serve with whipped butter, if desired.

FOR TEENS

By Willard Abraham,
Ph.D.

Dr. Abraham: I have a slight problem — my parents. You've probably heard this a million times before, but I need your help.

Here is the scoop. I'm 16 years old, and I live with both of my parents. I clean the house, do dishes and take out trash. I also have a job.

My parents are so strict. I don't get any allowance for the work at home, and I don't get to go out on weekends. I don't even get to talk to anybody!

I have a boyfriend across the street, and they don't even let me talk to him. He is very sweet and nice. My mom and dad don't like it because he is 15, and also because he lives right across the street. I have to sneak to see or talk to him most of the time, and I don't like that.

My mom is not that strict but my dad is, and when they get together they are out of control. I am a very mature 16-year-old girl. I have already chosen what my path in life is going to be like. I am not going to smoke, drink, do drugs or get pregnant. I'm too smart to throw my life away.

What I want to know is this: Are my parents too strict? — T.D.C.

T.D.C.: You and your parents obviously have a communications problem. You may have stopped listening to them, and they may not be listening to and understanding what you have said to them.

You might try once more, hopefully in a quiet conversation, to indicate how responsible you are, proving it with the specific home, job, future and smoking/liquor/drugs/pregnancy factors mentioned in your letter. Perhaps you could share this column with them so that they get more of a feeling how you are hurting.

Another approach might be to suggest to them (or go to the library and check out for them) two books that have helped thousands of teens and their parents — "Parent Effectiveness Training" by Thomas Gordon and "Between Parent & Teenager" by Haim Ginott. There are others, of course, but perhaps these two are enough for now.

Dr. Abraham: A friend of mine introduced me to something that has become a happy experience for me. We have a school for mentally retarded children in our town, and I volunteer a few hours a week to be with the smallest ones.

I play games with them and read and talk to them. We laugh a lot together and really have a good time. They are so darling and responsive, and their parents appreciate whatever I do with their children.

I think that there probably are other teens who can spare a little time, and the rewards are fantastic.

I'm not giving my name because I don't want too many others to crowd me out, but they can probably volunteer where they live.

— No Name,

No Name: Many people who have worked with retarded or other handicapped children share your enthusiasm. Sometimes they volunteer in special settings or in schools where the youngsters are "mainstreamed," being with so-called normal children all or part of the day or week. The amount of time these children spend in regular classrooms depends on their abilities and other factors.

Thanks very much for such a worthwhile suggestion.

Dr. Abraham: I've reached the point when almost every day seems about the same — get up, go to school, classes, talk to the same people, meals at home, same questions from my parents, homework, same telephone conversations. It's just plain boring! I have a feeling that I'm too young to feel this way. Maybe when I reach my 20s or 30s it would be OK, but not yet.

Can you help me break the pattern? It's just too darned dull. — Debbie, Debbie: Even when a person is in his or her 20s or 30s (or even older), it is not OK to feel bored day after day. Because there are so many activities to check into that can be fun, or even exciting, it doesn't have to be that way.

The list of possibilities is long, including these: hobbies, school clubs, community recreation activities, volunteering (the needs of some older and handicapped people and inner city children are so great), sports (as a participant or spectator), politics (perhaps even working for a politician you admire), the school paper and visiting the many facilities available, like zoos, museums, community theaters or others that taxes and contributions help support.

Use the phone book to locate some of these possibilities and call them. You may be surprised how eagerly some will welcome your interest and perhaps your help.

Cooking Corner

Time, patience and tomatoes

By Charles Britton

Today we're going to pretend to be Sicilian grandmas, getting our larders ready for the winter to come. Or, if the idea makes you happier, we're trendy chefs, thinking up a menu to excite our socially exclusive and gustatorially discerning clientele.

Such is the curious mix of modern cuisine that Nonna and our hero-artist chef might both be thinking of dried tomatoes.

It's an old, old idea in Italy, a bit of native rusticity that has attained high-fashion status in this country. Something that you might find in a traditional household over there ends up in a trendy kitchen here as seeming opposites meet in a kind of culinary Hegelianism.

The link may be the crass matter of price. Many a traditional product originally developed by a peasant culture as a way of tiding people through the winter has become startlingly expensive in the modern market economy.

Thus a jar of sun-dried tomatoes, packed in olive oil like Nonna used to make, can set you back $5 to $12 per 8 ounces, and what's costly stands a good chance of being fashionable.

Of course, it helps that Italian cooking reigns supreme today, encouraging importers to introduce us to once-rare products. And we shouldn't overlook the obvious fact that dried tomatoes — at least the kind preserved in olive oil — really do taste good: an intense tomato flavor, augmented by the richness of the oil, a quintessentially Italian taste raised to another order of magnitude.

Dried tomatoes today can be found in two varieties: the kind in oil and the completely dessicated (and much cheaper) type packed in plastic bags. The former have the superior flavor and can be used right out of the jar; the latter need some rehydrating and tend to have a harsh flavor.

For most people, the cost of the oil-packed tomatoes limits their use to the occasional luxury category. But you can make your own, allowing you to use them with the profligacy of the trendy chef. Drying is mainly a matter of time.

First, though, you have to play the Nonna, preparing the tomatoes and arranging for them to dry.

Nonna would use the sun to dry her tomatoes, and to this day, travelers in Sicily in August will see red fruit set out in racks on roofs or on strings hanging under eaves.

Here we recommend use of a home dehydrator (available at health-food and some specialty houseware shops), a convection oven or a standard oven. The main proviso for those who would use an oven is that it have a temperature control that can be set to 200 F or less; most modern types qualify.

Otherwise, the main ingredient in this recipe is patience — lots of it. Drying a batch of tomatoes will take all day, perhaps longer. The main work is concentrated in preparing the tomatoes initially, a matter of a few minutes, and at the end, when you have to keep an eye on the tomatoes and remove those that are ready ahead of the others.

You will be astonished at how much the tomatoes shrink in this process. Recently I started out with 5 pounds and ended up with enough to fill a quart jar. This, of course, is the whole idea: You are also concentrating flavor, and that's what gives the oil-packed tomatoes their special quality. Because of the reduction in volume, drying is a good way of dealing with an excess of home-grown fruit.

PRELIMINARY CONSIDERATIONS

- Equipment: I use a counter-top convection oven with two 12x18-inch racks; together, these hold about 5 pounds of tomatoes. The tomatoes go directly onto the racks. In a standard oven, the grid is too wide to allow this — because they dry and shrink the tomatoes may fall through. You will have to add something to prevent this, for example, some clean, wide-mesh screening.

- Tomatoes: This recipe calls for the pear-shaped Roma tomatoes, now widely available. The more unusual yellow type add variety and work just as well. Try to select small fruit (which dry faster), all of the same size so that they will be finished more or less together.

- Although I have never tried them, you might also use cherry tomatoes, which should dry fairly rapidly. I understand that you can use regular tomatoes cut in slices $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thick, but I can't vouch for this from personal experience.

- Ripeness: The tomatoes you choose for drying should be thoroughly ripe.

- Timing: The drying process takes many hours — 12 in the case of the last batch I made. Once drying starts, it needs only the most cursory attention, but you have to be active at the end, taking out the tomatoes as they reach the right stage.

No matter how carefully I select fruit of a like size, they never get done all at once. I generally start a batch around 8 a.m., which means that the process should be completed before too late at night.

- Quantity: Because a large quantity takes about the same work and exactly the same time as a little, you may as well make as many as possible. This will depend on how many drying racks your apparatus will hold.

As noted, my convection oven can hold about 5 pounds worth, and so the recipe has been set up for that amount.

HOME-DRIED TOMATOES

5 pounds Roma tomatoes, preferably small and of uniform size

Salt

1 1-quart canning jar with a tight-fitting lid (we used the French type with a rubber gasket) or 2 1-pint jars, cleaned and dried

2 sprigs fresh rosemary or 1 teaspoon dried (optional)

About 2 cups olive oil (you may need more, depending on the size of the jar)

Yields 1 quart.

If necessary, prepare racks to hold tomatoes. Do not use cookie sheets or other containers; air must circulate all around tomatoes.

If using a standard oven, place flame-proof tray on bottom of oven to catch drips from tomatoes, or use aluminum foil for this purpose, making sure not to block vent holes.

Wash tomatoes; drain. Cut each tomato lengthwise almost but not quite in half. Spread tomato open, butterfly fashion. Cut each half almost in half again, spreading tomato to open. Arrange tomatoes on racks, flesh side up. Sprinkle each tomato with a little salt.

For a dehydrator: Follow manufacturer's instructions. In a dehydrator at 125 F, tomatoes will be ready in 16 to 24 hours.

In a convection oven: Place racks in oven; set temperature to 200 F, at which drying process will take perhaps 8 hours.

Recently, I tried using a lower temperature, but that lengthened the time greatly. Exchange rack positions once or twice during drying to help the tomatoes come out evenly.

In a regular oven: Place racks at different levels in oven; set temperature to 200 F. The process may take longer than with a convection oven.

When done, tomatoes have shriveled and shrunk considerably. They no longer are juicy when prodded. During the drying process, I lightly press the tomatoes from time to time to bring juice to the surface and, so I hope, hasten the drying. The tomatoes should not be completely dessicated and leathery; rather, they should have the consistency of dried fruit, such as prunes or apricots.

As tomatoes reach the proper stage, remove them to jar. Leave at least $\frac{1}{4}$ inch headroom for the oil. When all tomatoes are in the jar, pour on olive oil; the tomatoes should be well covered. Run a thin knife around the inside of the jar to release any air bubbles. Add optional rosemary.

Storage: Today's tomatoes are lower in acid than those of former times, so it is no longer a good idea to store tomatoes in oil at room temperature; there might be a danger of food poisoning.

Instead, store the jar in the refrigerator at below 40 F. This may cause the oil to turn cloudy, but it will clear as soon as it warms a little. The tomatoes are ready to eat immediately but improve upon standing for a month or so. They will keep for several months.

Variations: You can use other herbs, such as basil, instead of or together with the rosemary. Some cooks like to add a clove or two of garlic, chopped.

Now that you've taken the time to dry a batch of tomatoes, what do you do with them? Here are some suggestions:

Pasta With Dried Tomatoes: For each portion of cooked pasta, allow 2 or 3 dried tomatoes, chopped. Toss pasta with tomatoes and some of the oil from the jar. If you have fresh basil, chop it and add to the dish. Serve with grated Parmesan or Romano cheese. Pass a pepper mill, too.

This somewhat more elaborate recipe comes from Michelle Hancock at the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

PASTA WITH TWO TOMATOES

2 large ripe tomatoes, seeded and coarsely chopped
4 oil-packed sun-dried tomatoes, drained and coarsely chopped
1 clove garlic, chopped
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup extra-virgin olive oil
Salt, pepper to taste
 $\frac{1}{2}$ pound penne rigate or other tube-shaped pasta
1 cup fresh basil leaves, loosely packed

Yields 4 servings.

Combine fresh and sun-dried tomatoes, garlic, oil, salt and pepper in large bowl. Marinate at room temperature 45 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Boil pasta in salted water until al dente, 7 to 10 minutes. Drain well, and while still hot, toss with tomato mixture.

Coarsely chop basil and combine with pasta. Serve immediately or at room temperature. Although this recipe does not specify grated cheese, it would not go amiss.

Pasta With Soft Cheese and Dried Tomatoes: Follow previous recipe, but add a wedge of soft ripened cheese, such as a Camembert or chevre. (This is for cheese lovers.) Mix cheese into hot pasta so that it melts. Omit grated cheese.

In sandwiches: Use a few pieces of dried tomatoes, drained, in sandwiches.

In salads: Use thinly sliced dried tomatoes in a tossed salad; some of the oil may go into the dressing.

Bruschetta: Lightly paint slices of French or Italian bread with olive oil. Rub under a broiler to toast. Top with chopped, drained dried tomatoes and some fresh herbs. Serve as an appetizer. Or puree dried tomatoes and some of their oil in a blender or food processor; spread mixture thinly on toast. Sprinkle lightly with grated Parmesan or Romano cheese, if desired.

Garden Talk

By C.Z. Guest

A beautiful weed-free lawn is not only lovely to look at, but it can increase the value of your home by as much as 30 percent, according to real estate experts.

Landscaping not only makes your house and property more attractive, it also has a higher recovery value than does kitchen or bathroom remodeling.

And while homeowners can expect a 75 percent to 125 percent investment return on kitchen or bathroom renovations, increasing the "curb" appeal of a property can bring a return nearly twice that amount.

SELECTING SEEDS

Begin by selecting the right seed for your particular climate and soil. Kentucky bluegrasses are sturdy enough for heavy traffic as well as hardy enough for the extreme climate conditions of the North and Midwest.

Turf-type tall fescues, such as Rebel II, are also able to withstand heavy traffic. In addition, fescues work well in dry climates, poor soil conditions and shade.

For rapid germination, try perennial ryegrasses, which are easily established and provide an attractive, durable lawn.

Professional landscapers recommend using a mix of two or more grasses. Mixtures are better adapted to certain environmental conditions, and they provide increased genetic diversity for greater pest and disease resistance.

LAWN CARE

When grass is healthy, caring for a lawn is more like the relaxing and enjoyable pastime it was meant to be. Follow these simple guidelines to develop and maintain a lawn that will make people take a second look at your property.

- Design for use. Lawns are meant to be walked on, played on and pleasing to look at. Design the lawn to provide adequate space to suit your family's lifestyle.

- Test the soil. Standard soil tests determine the soil's pH as well as how much phosphorous and potash are available and how much organic matter the soil contains.

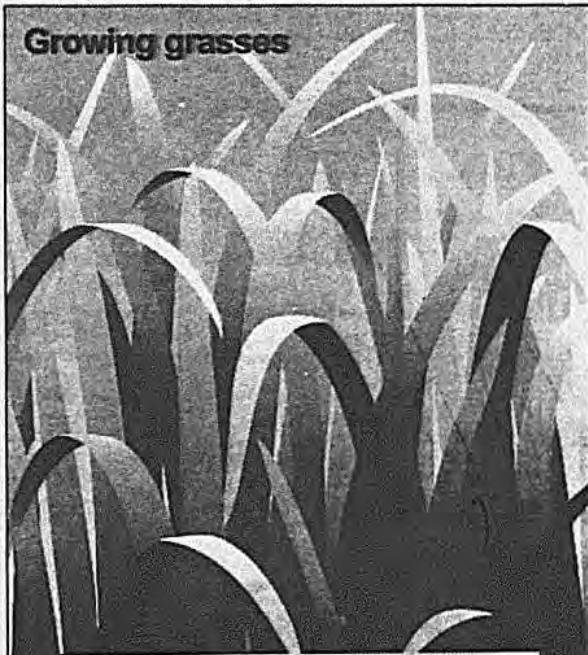

- Fertilize. Turf grasses store winter reserves in the fall. Applying a non-burning, slow-release fertilizer any time between September and November will encourage healthy root growth during winter dormancy.

- Water. To keep lawns deep-rooted and healthy, avoid light sprinklings in favor of thorough waterings that penetrate the soil to a depth of several inches. Use sprinklers that minimize water runoff.

- Mow. How often you should mow the lawn during the growing season depends on lawn type, weather, soil fertility and time of year. As a rule, cut lawns twice a week during spring, when grass is growing vigorously, and once a week in summer or during prolonged dry spells.

In late fall, drop the lawn mower blade as low as possible for a close cut without scalping the lawn or straining the mower. Do this once to remove tall grass in which bugs and disease hide over the winter.

Growing grasses

- Select the right seed for your climate and soil. Kentucky bluegrass stands up to heavy traffic and extreme climates. For rapid germination, plant perennial ryegrass.
- Use a mix of two or more types of grass. Test the soil to determine its pH before selecting a grass.
- Apply slow-release fertilizer in the fall.
- Water grass thoroughly so it's soaked to a depth of several inches.

Our Children

By Willard Abraham, Ph.D.

Comforting children when Dad is away

Q. My husband travels quite a bit in connection with his work, and it has become a problem for our two children. As infants or toddlers, it wasn't difficult, but now they are 3 and 5 years old, and they miss him very much.

Can you give me some suggestions that can help soften the separation for them? Incidentally, I miss him, too, but that's another problem, one that I'll spare you.

A. If his absence is fairly lengthy, having him write, phone or tape a greeting or message may satisfy the children at least a little. Your assurance that he will return and marking the days off on a calendar may also be helpful.

Talking about him freely and about the good times you've all had and will have is far better than avoiding references to him; in fact, avoidance may cause concerns to build up about the thought of his not returning.

Planning with the children for his departure (but not too long in advance) may also be worth considering. The plans could include preparing drawings for him and food to take along that he likes, especially healthful snacks that the children can also eat while he's gone.

I can't resist at least suggesting a few ideas that might help lessen your loneliness: keeping busy with friends, hobbies, movies, books and other activities you enjoy, as well as your work at home or on the job if you have one.

Q. Our kids are television junkies, and I wish I could push their television watching into some worthwhile directions. I'm frustrated in many ways as a single working mother, but this TV business is at the top of my stress list right now.

Our kids are both boys, 7 and 9 years old. If you can come to the rescue even a little bit, I'd be very appreciative.

A. I'm glad you brought it up because this issue is a problem in many families. I'm also pleased that I have a source that may help relieve your stress.

A pamphlet called "TV Tips for Parents (Using Television to Help Your Child Learn)" produced by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting provides these suggestions:

- How to plan youngsters' weekly TV schedules.

- How to get involved with children to boost their learning motivation.

- How older and younger children can help each other learn from the same program.

- How public TV can be a "special friend" for latchkey children.

- How to consult teachers and other available resources.

- How to use TV to promote interest in reading.

- How to promote interest in writing.

- How to explore the world on-screen and off.

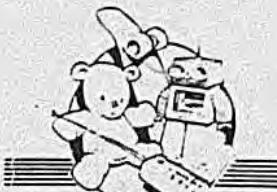

- How to turn around math anxiety and make math fun and practical.

- How to set your own pace and involvement without pressure.

This pamphlet also lists and describes the public broadcasting programs that are offered on local stations, including "Sesame Street" (for ages 2-6), "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" (3-6), "Captain Kangaroo" (3-7), "Reading Rainbow" (4-10), "Ramona" (4-10), "3-2-1 Contact" (8-12), "Square One TV" (8-12), "Owl TV" (6-12), "DeGrassi Junior High" (junior high level) and "Wonder Works" (children and family viewing).

Your local PBS stations can tell you what days and times these shows are scheduled and perhaps some details regarding their content.

"TV Tips for Parents" is available in English and Spanish from CPBV Tips, P.O. Box 1511, Church Hill, MD 21690. Single copies may be requested; the cost is $2.00.

Like an endless soap opera, the long-running controversy about irradiated food seems to be reaching one of its periodic crescendos of activity.

The process has been researched and debated for at least 40 years, but not until this year could American consumers actually buy produce that has undergone exposure to low-level gamma rays to retard spoilage.

By the end of the year, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is expected to promulgate rules for the use of irradiation on poultry, a technique already approved by the Food and Drug Administration that promises to reduce the incidence of salmonella infection.

A number of foreign countries, including Canada, France, the Netherlands and Israel, already sanction the process.

Organized opposition to food radiation in this country has remained small, though often impassioned. So far, the technique has been held back by a far more powerful but passive force: fear on the part of the food industry that the public would shun food treated by a radioactive source.

The approval of irradiation in poultry processing could turn out to be another non-event in the history of the process.

"Irradiation of meat and poultry products will not be a viable commercial process until the consuming public is ready to accept it," the National Broiler Council, a poultry trade organization, said in a prepared statement. "There is no evidence to date that the public sees irradiation as a necessary adjunct to the food safety system."

Irradiation of pork to control trichinosis has been permissible for several years; so far, no one in this country has undertaken it on a commercial basis. Though some in the scientific community dismiss the most vocal opponents of irradiation as misguided at best and obscurantist at worst, very few advocates have volunteered to put their money at risk by financing commercial food irradiation.

There are several irradiation plants in the country, but these are mainly engaged in the sterilization of surgical instruments and the like.

Some spices are said to undergo the process in order to rid them of pests, but these apparently never reach the retail level as such; they are said, instead, to be used in commercial baking.

Otherwise, the nation has one plant irradiating fruits and vegetables, the defiantly named Vindicator Co. in Mulberry, Fla. Earlier this year it began selling strawberries and other truck crops that had been through its gamma-ray chamber.

Gamma rays, which are similar to X-rays but shorter in wavelength, destroy microorganisms and retard further maturing of some foodstuffs, thus extending shelf life.

Irradiated strawberries are said to last some three weeks. In the very limited marketing tests so far, irradiated produce has not encountered the resistance that opponents promise and the food industry fears. Protesters picketed the sale of strawberries in North Miami Beach, but the produce sold out rapidly, even though the irradiated fruit, which was clearly labeled, sold for a little more than the regular item.

Since then, Vindicator has shipped such produce as tomatoes, citrus fruit and Vidalia onions to retailers in Florida and the Midwest, with apparent success.

James Corrigan, a grocer in Northbrook, Ill., told the Chicago Tribune that irradiated produce outsold regular items at his store. Both types were priced the same.

Earlier, Corrigan sent customers a questionnaire, seeking attitudes to irradiation. Response was very heavy and divided evenly between those who said they would accept such products and those who would not.

Vindicator president Sam Whitney told the trade press that his plant would process chickens as soon as the regulators allow.

A dedicated opposition remains. In Florida, a group tried to stop the opening of the Vindicator plant with a campaign of radio ads that charged, among other things, that irradiated foods cause cancer, a bald claim rejected by the scientific community.

At least one state, Maine, has banned irradiated foodstuffs. The New Jersey legislature passed such a ban, but it was vetoed by the governor. And there was some talk of a similar prohibition in Ohio, after irradiated produce was said to have appeared in that state.

Some major advocacy groups, which typically urge more regulation, take a less adamant stance.

"On the one hand, irradiation has shown a lot of promise. But we also don't know the long-term effects," a spokeswoman for Public Voice told a supermarket trade publication.

The group does not oppose irradiation but wants such products labeled, as regulations generally require.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest (which, despite its name, is an advocacy group, not a research center) is more skeptical. While not opposing radiation outright, it cites studies "that raise troubling questions that may have been swept under the rug in the lax regulatory environment of the Reagan years."

The group wants more studies, especially a full-dress review by the National Academy of Sciences that would address whether irradiation is "appropriate," not just whether it is safe.

Olive oil adds health, flavor

There is an intimidating number of flavored oils on the market now, and even olive oil, the favorite, comes in a thousand varieties.

Plain olive oil is fine for sauteing, as is anything in between. But extra virgin, first pressing and cold pressed at that, is the olive oil of choice. It is so good you can dip your bread in it before each bite and the bread's the better for it.

Even so there are so many brands of extra virgin olive oil on the shelves that it's hard to choose. The newest and the most interesting is an unfiltered oil from Tuscany called Azienda de Impuneta in Chianti, Olio Extra Vergine de Oliva. It's a cloudy celadon green, heady with the deep rich flavor of olives. Not filtering it gives the oil an extra boost of aroma and taste. Other unfiltered oils will follow.

If this oil isn't in your local market, order it from Dean & DeLuca, 560 Broadway, New York, NY 10012; phone (800) 221-7714. Price is $20 for a 500 milliliter bottle.

Then use it or any other extra virgin olive oil in the recipes below.

SPICY CRUDITES

$\frac{1}{4}$ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil

Pinch garlic powder or 1 clove garlic, minced
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon chili powder
Pinch ground red pepper

4 carrots
 $\frac{1}{2}$ a jicama, peeled and cut into narrow strips about 2 inches long or 2 (8-ounce) cans of sliced water chestnuts

Yields about 80 appetizers.

Each has 5 calories, trace of fat, 0 milligrams cholesterol, 2 milligrams sodium.

Combine lemon juice, olive oil, garlic, chili powder and red pepper in bowl and whisk together. Put carrots and jicama or water chestnuts in plastic bag or glass bowl and pour lemon juice mixture over them and toss well. Seal plastic bag or cover bowl and refrigerate for at least 3 hours, stirring occasionally. Drain before serving.

HOMEMADE TORTILLA CHIPS

4 (8-inch) flour tortillas
2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil

Yields 8 servings of 4 chips each.

Each serving has about 75 calories, 3 grams fat, 0 cholesterol and 15 milligrams sodium.

Heat oven to 400 F. Pour olive oil into small bowl. Dip in brush and paint each tortilla with oil. Cut each tortilla into 12 pieces and arrange on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake, uncovered, for 8 to 10 minutes or until crisp and brown. Chips will become crispier as they cool. Serve at once or store in an airtight container.

HOMEMADE MAYONNAISE

1 egg or 2 egg yolks
2 teaspoons wine vinegar
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt or to taste
1 cup extra virgin olive oil or $\frac{1}{2}$ cup extra virgin olive oil and

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup canola oil
Freshly ground pepper to taste
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
Yields $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups.

Each tablespoon has about 83 calories, 9 grams fat, 8 milligrams cholesterol and 50 milligrams sodium.

Put egg, vinegar, mustard and salt in work bowl of food processor fitted with steel blade. Turn on and pour oil, drop by drop, through feed tube into egg mixture with motor running. Halfway through increase drip to thin stream. Add pepper and lemon juice and whiz once to combine. Spoon mixture into glass jar with tight lid and refrigerate.

By hand, break 2 egg yolks into a bowl. Beat with whisk and add vinegar, mustard and salt. Drizzle in oil, drop by drop, beating as you do. The mayonnaise gets thicker as the oil is added. Add pepper and lemon juice and whisk just to combine. Store in glass jar with a tight lid in refrigerator.

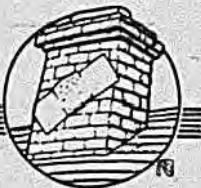

This mayonnaise will keep for about a week.

Here's How

Q. We are in the process of adding a family room and back deck to our home overlooking a canyon. I would like the deck to be a durable, easily maintained natural wood. Redwood was suggested by the contractor. But the redwood deck of one of our friends is a dingy gray.

Our contractor assures us that this is preventable with the right treatment. However, I do not want to go into a lot of effort in caring for the wood surface. Do you have any advice considering a suitable material for an outdoor, easily maintained deck?

A. Your contractor's suggestion regarding the use of redwood is a good one. It requires relatively low maintenance. A redwood deck can be finished in a variety of ways to suit style, environment and use.

Although redwood may be left to weather naturally (a grayish appearance is the result), it is known for its finish retention and will perform better in most climates with some type of wood preservative. The California Redwood Association provides these suggestions for treatment of a redwood deck:

When the deck is completed, lightly sand the areas where heavy dirt or other marks are prominent. Then wash the deck with a detergent.

To remove stains and other discoloration, use a solution of trisodium phosphate (purchased from a reliable paint dealer, not a supermarket) mixed 1 cup to 1 gallon of water. Scrub the deck with a bristle brush (do not use wire) and rinse with cold water.

New wood should be allowed to weather one or two months before staining. The stain will penetrate better and the color will be more even. Be sure when you are ready to stain that the lumber is clean and dry. Moisture, dirt and often the use of an inappropriate or inadequate finish are the most common causes of finish failure.

For a natural redwood appearance, a clear water-repellent containing a mildewcide is recommended. This type of finish helps retain a tan color, provides some water repellency and inhibits mildew growth.

Initially, two coats should be used, and then refinish about every 18 to 24 months, or when water no longer beads up on the surface of the wood. If more red color is desired, use a semitransparent stain. This will add colored pigment to the wood; yet still allow the grain to show.

A stain will perform better if it contains a water repellent and mildewcide, but if it does not, a compatible water repellent should be applied first and then after a few weeks, the stain.

Whatever finish is selected, be sure and follow manufacturer's directions carefully for application and maintenance. Be sure that the stain you select is recommended for traffic-bearing surfaces. Any stain will gradually be worn away by weather, so reapplication is necessary every two to three years, depending on climate and location.

Consider constructing the foundation/under-framing of your deck with pressure-treated lumber that will give added protection against fungus growth and termite invasion.

Q. I'm such a Virgo. I want everything organized and neat (I'm the type who balances her checkbook to the nickel and lays out her clothes the night before.) What I can't seem to organize is the furniture arrangement in my living room.

My husband says that's neurotic, that rooms can't be balanced like a checkbook. Is he right? Should I just give up? (It makes me unbalanced!) — Ellen

A. While precision may not be possible in all areas of life, take heart, dear Ellen: You can work out a well-balanced furniture arrangement. In fact, balance and symmetry are hallmarks of classic, formal decorating.

We've been living through an era when eclecticism — a mix of many elements — has ruled interior design thinking, so you haven't seen many formally balanced rooms of late.

However, it's no secret that classicism is rushing back to vogue, hand in hand with our love of relaxed, comfortable living. The room we show here is charming proof.

If you draw a vertical line down through the fireplace, you'll see that the halves are almost a mirror image of each other (there's a long sofa against the wall you can't see). Of course, it helps if you have two of everything else: two console tables, two easy chairs, two mantel lamps and so forth, but a little variety always makes a space more interesting.

Another note: Despite its formal balance, this room feels informal, thanks in large measure to the cheery wall coverings and fabrics (by Laura Ashley), and to the accessories, which are anything but stiff and self-conscious.

Q. A friend came back from Europe with a museum poster she bought "because it will go so perfectly with the colors in your living room." I love the poster, but I really don't want to hang it in my living room with my other art (mostly original paintings), even if the colors work perfectly (they do). What'll I do? — K.A.

A. Have the poster framed and find a prominent place for it in your front hall (or breakfast room or kitchen), then point out to your friend that you'll be able to see it more often this way than in the living room.

Actually, I believe the bath is the best place for your favorite art. That's where you truly spend the most time.

FORMAL FLAIR — A symmetrical furniture arrangement imparts classic formality to a sparsely furnished sitting room.

HOLY SPIRIT YOU WHO SOLVE all problems, who light all roads, so that I can obtain my goals. You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evils against me and that in all instances of my life you are with me, I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you even in spite of all material illusions. I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Say for 3 consecutive days after which the favor requested will be granted even if it appears difficult. This prayer must be published immediately. Thank you Holy Spirit. M.A.Z. geo3

ANTIQUE OR JUNQUE

By James G. McCollam

Bowl and pitcher are a set

Q. I bought this bowl and pitcher set at an estate sale. Lettering and marks on the bottom are "Semi-Porcelain, W.R. Grindley & Co., England." The pictures give a fairly good representation of the set.

Would you please tell me about what they should be worth?

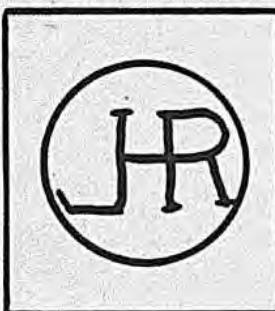

A. Your toilet bowl and pitcher set was made in the early 1900s. The W.R. Grindley & Co. factory is in Tunstall, Staffordshire, England.

This set should sell for around $265 to $285.

Q. I am enclosing a mark that is on the bottom of a porcelain bowl. It is 7 1/4 inches in diameter and has a figural Cupid flower frog in the center of the bowl.

Would you identify the maker? I would also like to know an approximate date that it was made, and how much it would sell for.

A. The mark you have provided was used by the Hutschenreuther porcelain factory in Selb, Germany, during the late 1800s. This bowl would perhaps sell for $250 to $275.

Q. I have a German stein. It is made in the shape of a Dutch girl and has a six-pointed star with the initials "R.M." on the bottom.

It is also marked "Muster-schatz." Is that the name of the manufacturer? I would also like to know the value of my stein.

A. The six-pointed star was used by Reinhold-Merkelbach in Hoh-Grenzhausen in the Rhine Valley about 1900. It would probably sell for $350 to $375.

"Musterschutz" means "protected against copying," the equivalent of our "copyrighted."

Q. I have a green relish dish in the shape of a lettuce leaf. It is 7 inches long and 6 inches wide. On the back is "Royal Bayreuth" with a coat of arms and two lions with crowns. Between the lions' heads is an outline of a knight's head. At the bottom is "Bavaria."

This dish has been in the family for years. I would like to know what the value of it would be.

A. Your Royal Bayreuth relish dish was made by the Tettau porcelain factory in Bavaria in the early 1900s. It should sell for around $35 to $45.

Q. I saw an unusual cup and saucer at an antique show recently. The saucer had a deep well or pocket in which the cup sat. I have never seen a set like this before.

I am turning to you for an explanation of the use of this cup and saucer.

A. What you saw was a French trembleuse. The purpose of the deep recession for the cup was to prevent spilling when used by an invalid who might have weak or shaky hands.

There are very few of these around, so they are quite valuable.

Points on Pets

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.

Q. Our 3-year-old Cairn terrier appears to have allergies. She often has runny eyes and a runny nose. She seems to scratch a lot. Are there allergy medications for dogs?

A. Allergies are quite common in dogs. The most common causes include pollens and molds, fleas, chemicals, insects, drugs, vaccines and foods.

Dogs that suffer due to pollens and molds usually have some eye and nose discharge. They also frequently have skin sores on the face and front legs. These dogs often lick their paws and rub their faces with their paws.

Because of the constant licking, the hair on the paws and face is constantly moist. In light-colored dogs, these hairs often turn rust-colored or pinkish due to the constant exposure to saliva.

Some dogs are extremely sensitive to fleas. The presence of only a few fleas on an allergic dog will cause intense itching and scratching.

Depending on the geographical area where the dog lives, flea allergies often are seasonal. In northern areas, fleas are eliminated by cold weather. Dryness of the desert heat also usually eliminates fleas.

Allergies due to chemicals are contact allergies. Examples are allergies to soaps, waxes, fabrics, carpets and flea collars. Contact allergies cause irritation of the skin wherever the skin contacts the causative agent.

For example, dogs allergic to flea collars usually have reddened, irritated necks. Dogs allergic to carpet materials usually have irritated paws.

Food allergies cause vomiting, soft stools and skin lesions. Insect bites, vaccination reactions, antibiotic reactions and some food allergies cause hives. Hives are slightly raised patches on the skin.

The diagnosis of allergies is usually based on the history and signs of the disease. Animals can be tested for specific allergies. However, it often is difficult to pinpoint a single cause for an allergy problem in a dog.

Treatment of allergies usually includes removal of the offending substance, if known, and the use of corticosteroids. You should have your dog evaluated for allergies by a veterinarian.

Aunt Tilly's Corner

Have you ever planned an escape route from your room in case of emergency such as a fire? This can be a challenging bit of fun when it is not a life threatening situation.

Discuss your ideas with your parents and family. Is there a door you can exit from safely? Is there a window from which you can jump? Where will you land? Are you on the first or second floor? Can you attach a rope or sheet to your window and slide down? Once I bought a collapsible rope ladder for my son. He had lots of fun climbing in and out of his second story window and I was content knowing he could get out safely. When it's not in use, he keeps it under his bed.

There are lots of things that parents must do to insure safety in the home. But it is important that you too are aware of safety measures and know how to save yourself in case of an emergency.

Your friend,
Aunt Tilly

Physicians accept Medicare claims

By William M. Acosta

Q. What does it mean when a physician accepts assignment? — B.M.

A. Physicians and suppliers who accept assignment of Medicare claims agree to not charge you more than the Medicare-approved amount for services and supplies covered by Part B. They are paid directly by Medicare, except for the deductible and coinsurance amounts for which you are responsible.

Some physicians and suppliers have signed agreements to participate in Medicare. In doing so, they have agreed to accept assignment of Medicare claims all of the time. Other physicians and suppliers will accept assignment on a case-by-case basis or not at all.

Q. I recently started to receive Social Security disability benefits. A trial work period was mentioned to me, but I'm not sure what this means. What is a trial work period? — S.S.

A. A trial work period begins with the month of entitlement. However, it cannot begin earlier than the month the application is filed. It ends after nine months (not necessarily consecutive) of work for more than $200 per month, or more than $200 net earnings or more than 40 hours of work per month if self-employed.

by a Social Security disability beneficiary.

The trial work period gives a beneficiary the opportunity to test work ability. A determination of the ability to perform substantial gainful activity is not made until after the trial work period is completed.

Q. I am a young worker paying into Social Security. Where do my taxes go? — J.B.

A. Out of every dollar that you and your employer pay in Social Security taxes:

- Seventy-three cents go to a trust fund that will pay for your retirement benefits and your family's survivors' benefits.
- Nineteen cents go to a trust fund that will pay for your Medicare benefits when you become disabled or reach age 65.

- Eight cents go to a trust fund that will pay disability benefits to you and your family if you have to stop working because of a serious illness or injury.
